

PLEASE RETURN TO
J. H. CLEWELL.

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2013

<http://archive.org/details/academy18881895unse>

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME X.

SALEM, N. C., MAY, 1888.

NUMBER 86.

Mythology of Northern Nations.

THE soft, sensuous, poetic beauty of the mythological fables of the south of Europe, of Greece and Rome, would never have suited the northern peoples with their ruder, sterner natures, hence the mythology of the early people of Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Iceland, is a rugged system of rude grandeur like the sturdy, old Norse Vikings themselves. In the Medieval time, while southern Europe peopled the domain between man and animals with light and frolicsome fairies, on gossamer wings of every brilliant hue, nestling in flower-cups, or poisoning lightly on the trellised vine, the northern nations believed in sooty, grotesque gnomes and pixies, often malicious elves who delighted more in tormenting human beings than in helping them. Instead of dainty creatures like Oberon and Titania, Ariel or Puck, they lived amid the dark, underground roots of trees, in ice caverns, or guarded the Rheingold treasure with jealous, vindictive spite.

In these northern lands stones are occasionally met with, engraved with characters called Runes or Runic letters. The Dighton Rock in Massachusetts, is also an example, a relic of the visit of the Northmen to our American shores, 500 years before Columbus sailed from Spain to discover a new world. Fortune-telling or divination was anciently practiced by the priests by means of little sticks of different lengths, which were shaken up, and from the chance figures thus formed, called runes, events were foretold. The magic verses recited at such times were also termed runes as well as the little stick figures. When alphabetic writing was introduced, the letters naturally took the form of these ancient runes. The Icelandic language is the oldest of living European tongues, and most northerly of all civilized idioms; it is soft and sonorous, having none of the Germanic gutturals or English hisses. Before the introduction of Christianity, 16 Runic characters were used in writing, to which 7 were added later. The modern Icelandic is a mixture of Danish, English, Dutch and French.

In the long Icelandic and Norwegian winters an intelligent people compelled perforce to remain in doors, would naturally have recourse to the charms of literature; and as soon as the introduction of Christianity brought with it the use and knowledge of the Latin alphabet, the first employment of the new gift was in writing out the Pagan songs and legends of the gods which had been orally transmitted from one generation to the other. In such a manner did Samond Sigfusson called the Learned, an Icelandic priest in the 11th century compile the eldest or Poetic Edda composed of 39 poems (written by unknown authors in a distant period) in order to preserve the ancient legends of his race. He was a man of culture, educated in France and Germany; his work is the parent of Scandinavian Poetry. The Eddas then, contain the mythological legends of these nations, while the Sagas, written in Denmark and Scandinavia contain the historical and romantic legends, relating among others the exploits of Dietrich of Berne, (Theodoric) and belonging thence to the same period as the Niebelungen Lied, the grand old German epic, the beginning of German literature.

According to the religious belief of these northern peoples, a great Ash-tree Igdrasil supported the whole universe;—this tree had three roots, one of which extended into Asgard the dwelling place of the gods,—another into Jotunheim, the abode of the giants,—and a third into Niffleheim, the region of eternal darkness and cold, their Hades or hell. The root that extends into Asgard is carefully attended by three Norns who correspond to the 3 Fates of Greek mythology. Asgard could only be entered by crossing the bridge Bifrost, or the Rainbow. This home of the gods contained many beautiful dwellings, gold and silver palaces, but the most famous was Valhalla the residence of Odin or Wodin, their principal God. He is represented as seated on a throne that overlooks heaven and earth, while on his shoulders sit the ravens Hugin and Munim, who fly daily over the whole universe and report to him what they have seen. At Odin's feet lie 2 wolves to whom he gives all the food set before him. Odin is sometimes termed the Alfador or All Father.

None were admitted to Valhalla but heroes slain in battle:—women and children, and all who died peaceful deaths were excluded as unworthy. The joys of Valhalla were eating, drinking, and fighting. They feasted on the flesh of the boar, Schemmir, whose flesh cooked in the day became whole again at night. The goat Heidran supplied them with never failing draughts of mead, which they drank from the skulls of slaughtered foes. Odin or Wodin gives name to our Wednesday or Woden's day, as Thor, Odin's eldest son gives name to Thursday or Thor's day. Thor's mighty strength depended on three things, his hammer, his belt of strength, and his iron gloves.

Frey was also one of the great gods, and gives name to Friday; he presided over rain, sunshine, and the fruits of the earth. Freya, his sister, loved music, Spring, and flowers. Bragi was the god of Poetry; Iduna, his wife, kept, in a casket, apples which the gods eat when they begin to feel old, to make them become young again. Heimdal, the watch man of the gods, was stationed to guard the bridge Bifrost; the gods feared the giants would force their way to Valhalla. Heimdal's sense of hearing was so acute that he could hear the wool growing on a sheep's back, and the grain sprouting in the fields. The Valkyrior were warlike maidens, messengers of Odin, and their name, "choosers of the slain," shows their office. Odin sent them to every battlefield to choose those who were to be slain, for he was very anxious to have a great many heroes in Valhalla that he might be able to conquer the giants in the great battle at the end of the world. When the Valkyrior ride to battle on white war steeds in full armor, their shields and helmets shed a flickering light which flushing up the northern sky, is called the Aurora Borealis. Loki was their evil spirit,—the contriver of all mischief, handsome, but malicious; he had 3 attendants, the wolf Fenris, the Serpent Midgard, and Hela or Death.

Baldur, the son of Odin, was good, and so beautiful that Frigga, Odin's wife, exacted an oath from the elements, from all things both animate and inanimate,—plants, rocks, woods, &c.,—that they would never harm Baldur. So the gods often amused themselves by throwing things at Baldur, knowing they could not harm him. Loki found out that the Mistletoe had been excepted, being thought too feeble to need the oath, so he sought a thick bough, and disguising himself, he threw it with such force as to pierce Baldur the Beautiful, quite through; not having fallen in battle he passed to Hell or Niffleheim. Hermod, his brother, went down to offer Hela a great ransom for his release; Hela said he might return if everything and everybody would weep for him. All things animate and inanimate accordingly wept, except one old hag, Loki, in disguise, so Baldur had to remain. Loki was caught by the incensed gods, bound in a gloomy cavern with a serpent suspended over his head, the venom falling on him drop by drop. One only comfort was allowed him; his wife Siguna sat by his side and caught the drops in a small cup, but when she went to empty it, the pain of the falling venom on his face, made him howl with horror, and the twisting contortions of his body produced earthquakes.

It was a firm belief of these northern peoples that a time would come when all the visible creation, the gods of Valhalla, the inhabitants of the earth, men, giants, and elves would be destroyed with their habitations. The fearful day will not be without its forerunners: first there will be 3 dreadful winters without any intervening summer,—tempests and storms will prevail on the sea,—there will be no warmth in the sun, the earth will tremble, the sea leave its bed, while war and discord convulse the earth. The wolf Fenris will break his bonds, the Midgard Serpent rise out of the sea, and Loki, released from his chains will join the enemies of the gods. The Eddas give a vivid description of the last great battle field, in which the powers of good and of evil will contend, and on which gods and men are doomed to perish. When all are slain, the world will be wrapped in flames; the sun will become dim, the stars fall from heaven, and Time shall be no more. We find almost the exact counterpart of these words in Matthew's Gospel 24th chapter. After the universal destruction, Alfadur will cause a new heaven and a new earth to rise out of the abyss. This new earth will produce its fruits without labor or care;—perpetual Spring shall abide there; and sin and misery be unknown. In this blissful abode gods and men will dwell together in a peace which the powers of evil can nevermore disturb.

In all these weird descriptions we can trace the faint lines of the true account of the Supreme Being, the Father of all, the brief triumph of the Evil One, but his final chaining in the abyss, the consummation of all things foreshadowed by signs in heaven and on earth, until the very powers of heaven are shaken. Then the new heaven, and the new earth shall appear, inaugurating the blessed reign of righteousness and peace. There is a strength, a symmetry and completeness in this system, which makes us appreciate it more highly than the poetic fancies of a refined yet voluptuous people. The cold climate, the wild, awful character of their natural scenery all tended to mould their religion into its rugged form.

Our Year's Work.

AS we approach the close of an exceptionally prosperous and successful school-year, we look back over the past months with a feeling of gratification with respect to the progress visible in every department,—the improvements which have been made from time to time, the cheerfulness and spirit with which the scholastic work has been carried on, and the general good health of all within the walls of the ACADEMY. For all these blessings we are profoundly thankful to God who has watched over our school for well nigh 84 years.

The Scholastic course of the school is divided into 3 Departments, the Preparatory in two divisions, the Junior and Junior Middle, the Senior Middle, and the Senior, in which the work is crowned by Graduation. The Senior Class this year has 30 members, 20 boarders and 10 day pupils,—the largest class ever prepared for graduation in the ACADEMY.

In the important department of English Literature, we begin in the Preparatory classes to lay the foundation of the culture, to be aimed at as an objective point by the Senior Class. There are two complementary reasons on which the mother tongue bases its demand for supremacy in any educational system. In the first place, English is the sole Literature of ninety-nine one hundredths of our people: the second reason why it should have the foremost place is found in the necessity for linguistic study, for mental training. For the mass of English speaking people, English offers the only practical linguistic training. In the Preparatory classes we use the lower grades of Language Lessons, passing into the Grammar and Composition of a more advanced stage, as we get into the higher classes. In the Senior Middle we take up the close, textual study of Shakespere's best dramatic works, paying close attention to the style, to the construction, phraseology, origin and signification of words. This year we have thus studied "the Merchant of Venice", and "Henry VIII". Literary History accompanies this study, and is the base around which a series of studies group themselves, for with the literature of a people we must naturally consider, the history of their language, their political and national life. During this year we laid aside Literary History with a Christmas examination, and took up in its stead a course of Mental and Moral Philosophy. This was an advance of four months study over last year's work, in this branch. Models of the English Classics are the staple of the Seniors' study of literature, in which we principally use Hales "Longer English Poems".

In the Mathematical department, more noticeably in its higher forms of Geometry, Trigonometry, &c., a marked advance has been made. Arithmetic is of course, taught in the Preparatory classes and Algebra begun,—in the Junior Middle the same in an advanced form, while the Seniors have gone beyond all previous classes in the higher forms of Trigonometry, &c. They have done considerable field work, in taking levels, vertical distances, surveying, &c., under Mr. CLEWELL'S direction.

In Physical Science we contemplate a more effective co-ordination of the work accomplished in the several classes in Natural Philosophy, Analytical Chemistry, Botany, Physiology, &c., than has heretofore been practicable.

The Linguistic department of the ACADEMY is under the immediate charge and supervision of Dr. RONDTHALER, assisted by four lady teachers. This branch of our work will be greatly extended during the new year. In addition to the linguistic requirements in the regular Academic classes, special instruction is given to private pupils both in ancient and modern languages, enabling them to make exceptional progress. The teaching follows the most approved modern methods, and engrafts as far as possible, facility in conversational French and German upon what is read from approved French and German authors. Latin is begun in the Preparatory classes, and thence carried into the Junior, Junior Middle, and Senior classes. The study of Cæsar, Cicero and Virgil covers the ground gone over.

Professor MARKGRAFF presides over the Music Department assisted by 5 lady teachers; they have in every respect maintained the high standard of the ACADEMY in this art. The rendition of "Samson" the finest of Handel's productions, will be one of the notable features of Commencement.

The Studio has been removed from the second floor of the old ACADEMY to the fourth floor of the north wing into a handsome, commodious and roomy apartment where the artistic needs of light and shade can be more fully regulated. The carpenters and painters wrought wonders in this part of the establishment. Miss GERTRUDE SIEWERS, whose training in different Art Schools of New York has fitted her for her position, is the head of this department of Art Needlework, Embroidery, Drawing, Oil Painting, &c. A large glass case stands in the entrance hall of the ACADEMY containing specimens of work elaborated under her charge.

The Commercial department has more than fulfilled the expectation of its projectors. It is steadily increasing in numbers, in effective work, and its practical results are showing for themselves, in a number of its graduates who are filling positions with leading mercantile, banking and other business establishments in this and neighboring places, with credit to themselves, and the institution which trained them. Last year its pupils numbered 41;—this year there are 56.

No department of the ACADEMY has been stationary, but a gratifying advancement is to be seen in each. The Reading and Elocution classes have been thoroughly reorganized. New readers, a graded course of Barnes' National Readers have been introduced, so that the reading drill includes elocutional training, voice culture, composition, &c.

The Calisthenic exercise, a most valuable adjunct to physical vigor, is under Mr. CLEWELL'S direction, assisted by Miss CONNIE PFOHL. Half an hour daily is devoted to it, between the first and second morning hours, in the Chapel as the only hall large enough for the evolutions of a class of 163 members. As you enter the chapel, you see on both sides of the doors against the west end a series of sloping shelves, containing between 3 or 400 dumb bells ranged in regular order. Two stands, containing the wands used in drill, are placed between the windows. The beneficial results of Calisthenic exercise are seen in the better health and improved bearing of the pupils.

The Playgrounds are at their best and loveliest in the Springtime, with their alternations of hill and valley, lawns, terraces, pavilions, fountains, trees, shrubs, brook, &c. There are four fountains sending up their sparkling jets of water over surrounding ferns and rock-work. The various croquet and tennis grounds are in good order, well stocked with mallets, balls and whatever is needed for sport and recreation.

During the past year additional sleeping arrangements became a necessity, owing to the increase in the number of pupils,—the largest since the war. The Studio was removed from the old building, as previously stated, and that space was divided off into alcoves. Two smaller rooms were likewise occupied; even with this addition every alcove was occupied. The east end of the Library was used for a time, but of course not permanently. A connection was also made between the second floors of the old and the new ACADEMY. The other floors had been previously connected.

All our departments have worked harmoniously together under the ACADEMY roof during the past year. The European usage, now being so widely followed in America, was the original basis of our system of teaching, therefore all well-tested progressive modes of instruction can be the more readily grafted upon it, and the finest results produced therefrom.

The Indian River.

BY MISS KATE PADDISON.

THIS stream, which traverses the southeastern part of Florida, is thought by some sea-captains to be more properly an arm of the sea than a river, for its waters are salt, and it has an ebb and flow of the tide. Still it is called a river. It is navigable for 75 miles, and is so straight that a line might be stretched from its source to mouth, without touching either bank.

This river is 7 miles wide at its mouth, and the water is beautifully clear, so much so that the name, "Indian" river, seems to be a misnomer. As we sail down the stream we see many things that remind us of the ocean, especially at night as the steamer ploughs through the deep waters all aglow with a beautiful phosphorescence. The water looks hoary, then gleams and sparkles as if a grand conflagration were going on.

Sailing and fishing are favorite amusements on the river. Every fine evening large parties can be seen out in their sail-boats with fishing tackle. The mosquitoes are the only marring element in this pleasure, and they are a nuisance. The banks of the river are lined with Palmettos, with here and there rocky ledges, which attract a great many admiring tourists during the winter season. It is a beautiful sight to see the orange groves gleam thro' the Palmetto trees, especially when the trees are groaning under luscious fruits, more valuable than the fabled golden apples of the Gardens of the Hesperides.

The sunsets on the Indian river are exceptionally grand and beautiful. No poet or painter can ever do them justice. The beauty of the trees and rocks, added to the glorious tints of clouds reflected in the waters, form a panorama that may well raise us in fancy to the portals of the Heavenly City, resplendent in amethystine glow,—bathed in an uncreated glory.

A number of towns are located on the Indian river, on both right and left banks. Of these places Titusville is the largest and most flourishing, but Rockledge is by far the prettiest and most attractive, surrounded as it is by palmetto and orange groves. It is a great winter resort for travellers from the North, especially for consumptives, who seek the balmy breezes of Florida, the veritable land of flowers.

The Indian river is of great value and importance to the Floridians. It connects with several railroads, and thus enables the owners of orange groves and truck gardens to transport their fruit and vegetables with much greater ease and swiftness, which is a great consideration with perishable fruits. The people are also brought into direct communication with the large Northern markets.

President Cleveland, his wife and friends were charmed with this river and its towns on their recent visit. It seems as though the tourist had arrived in a new world when his eyes first rest upon the luxuriant tropical forests and growth of quite a different kind.

"And see the river how it runs,
Through woods and meads, in shade and sun,
Sometimes swift, and sometimes slow,
Wave succeeding wave they go,
A various journey to the deep,
Like human life to endless sleep!"

—The Seniors have been working out their Trigonometry, &c., practically, in field work, taking levels, vertical distances, &c., in the Play-ground and beyond.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., MAY, 1888.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents. Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

PROGRAMME

Of Commencement Week at Salem Female Academy.

Sunday morning, June 3, 10:30 o'clock, Baccalaureate Sermon, by Rev. THOS. HUME, D. D., Chapel Hill, N. C.

Tuesday evening, June 5, 8 o'clock, Reading of Essays by Graduating Class.

Wednesday, June 6, 9 A. M., Commencement Exercises. The address will be delivered by Rev. EDWARD RONDTHALER, D. D., recent Principal of the Institution.

Wednesday, June 6, 2 P. M., Art Exhibit.

Wednesday, June 6, 3 P. M., the Annual Meeting of the Alumnae Association, in the Home Chapel.

Wednesday, June 6, 8 P. M., Grand Concert, during which Handel's famous Oratorio Samson will be rendered by a chorus of more than a hundred voices, accompanied by the Salem Orchestra, under the musical direction of Professor MARKGRAFF.

—We have been unable to complete the arrangements in regard to the entertainment of our visitors during Commencement week, and hence will issue a circular in a few days, giving information concerning railroad rates, hotel accommodations, &c. Should any of the readers of THE ACADEMY fail to receive this circular, please notify us, and we will forward a copy upon receipt of the notification. Respectfully,

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

—We shall be truly glad to welcome as many of our friends as can conveniently attend our Annual Meeting of the Alumnae Association, on Wednesday, June 6. The day is crowded with exercises, but we hope to have a full and interesting programme, a number of papers, historical and otherwise, are to be communicated, and we anticipate a most enjoyable time. Such a re-union of friends is one of the rarest, choicest pleasures in life.

—The following Circular has already been sent to the patrons and friends of the ACADEMY, but we insert it for the benefit of some who may possibly have been overlooked:

CIRCULAR.

In the summer of 1884, in a time of emergency, Dr. RONDTHALER, Pastor of the Salem Moravian church, undertook the Principalship of the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, with the understanding that, at some favorable time, the Assistant Principal, Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, then likewise appointed, should enter upon the office. It has pleased God so greatly to bless their joint efforts that this favorable time seems now to have arrived.

With the full and cordial consent of the Board of Trustees, Dr. RONDTHALER now transfers the Principalship of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY to Mr. CLEWELL, the transfer to take place on May 1st, 1888.

Dr. RONDTHALER will still remain in intimate and official connection with the institution, giving to it the time and labor which his other varied and important duties permit.

We trust and believe that in this arrangement the ACADEMY will continue to enjoy the marked favor of God and the co-operation of its many friends and patrons.

After May 1st, 1888, official correspondence will be addressed to Principal of Salem Female Academy.

EDWARD RONDTHALER,
JOHN H. CLEWELL.

Salem, N. C., April 17, 1888.

—The scholastic year has once again nearly run its allotted course, and before another number of our journal pays its monthly visit, the Commencement exercises will be a thing of the past. The ACADEMY will be a lonely and forsaken mother whose children have been scattered far and wide for a time. Her heart goes out with special feeling towards the large Graduating Class, soon to be dispersed, for they will never again go in and out of the old school home as they have done during the past year. They have grown very dear to us, and the breaking up is always sad even though tempered by the joyous home-coming.

The Calisthenic Drill.

THE Annual Calisthenic Drill of the ACADEMY came off on Thursday and Friday nights, May 3d--4th, and they were the most successful and altogether enjoyable occasions of the kind we ever had. One hundred and sixty-three girls were actually engaged in the drill, and went through the varied exercises with wands and dumb bells, as well as the other complicated forms of marching, &c., with enthusiastic precision and accuracy.

About a dozen little girls twined a May-pole, — and seventeen large girls formed a Japanese Fan Brigade, whose graceful evolutions and bright costumes were universally admired and applauded. They were encored both nights.

The numbers on the programme were as follows: 1st. Free Calisthenics and Wand Drill. 2d. Twining the May-pole. 3d. Marching. 4th. "My Queen," Waltz, (Bucalossi,) by the Salem Orchestra. 5th. Dumb Bell Drill. 6th. Mexican Serenade, (O'Langey,) by the Orchestra. 7th. Recitation. 8th. Japanese Fan Brigade. 9th. Recitation. 10th. Marching. 11th. "S. F. A.," in which, after various evolutions, the large number of girls formed the three letters, never before given in so pleasing and bright a combination. The recitations of the two evenings were: "Where is Annette?" by Miss NELLIE JOHNSTON; "Legend of the Organ Builder," by Miss PATTI PRICE; "Aunt Hannah discards the New Hymn Book," by Miss DAISY CLISBY, and "The Little Quaker Sinner," by Miss LINA FROST. The simple, inexpensive suits, cream-colored, trimmed in the case of one half the girls, in pink, and the other half in blue, were fresh, picturesque and charming.

After the drill was over, all marched to the dining-room where cake and ice-cream were served. The bright, animated scene in the dining-room was one long to be remembered.

CIRCULAR.

To the Alumnae Association of Salem Female Academy:

The Executive Committee of your Association has held a conference for the purpose of completing arrangements for the Annual Meeting of the Association, and, as a result, beg leave to submit the following points:

1. The time and place of the Annual Meeting will be Wednesday, June 6, 1888, at 3 o'clock, P. M., in the Chapel of the Moravian church.

2. A carefully devised programme is being prepared, consisting of a number of papers to be read during the meeting, covering portions of the past history of the ACADEMY; the present development of its life and work; the object and aim of the Alumnae Society; letters and greetings from members who cannot be present, will be read as well as other features of interest which will appear on the programme.

3. The Executive Committee furthermore take pleasure in announcing to the members of the Society that arrangements have been made with friends in Salem and Winston to entertain as guests all the members of the Alumnae Association during their visit to Salem. This pleasant feature will remove any difficulty from the minds of those who might have hesitated to attend, without escort on so crowded an occasion. As the number of members is large, we would request all who will be present to notify the President as to the time of their arrival. Should there be any difficulty in the matter of the notification, the members of the Society are requested to drive at once to the ACADEMY Office, where directions will be given as to the place of entertainment.

4. Your Committee would beg leave, furthermore, to call the attention of the members to Art. V. of the Constitution, which says:

"Every member of the Alumnae Association shall be required to subscribe to THE ACADEMY, as that journal will be the means of inter-communication."

As this subscription is the only financial requisite in connection with membership, we would earnestly request any who have not complied with the requirement, or whose subscription has fallen into arrears, to forward the amount at once to THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Finally, we appeal to all old pupils who have not yet joined the Society, to take this opportunity of sending in their names, as the list should be larger than it now is before the approaching meeting in June. We would also request each member to aid us in making the Wednesday afternoon meeting one of the most pleasant features of the Commencement Week of our venerable and beloved Alma Mater. This can be done by attending the meeting promptly at the hour named, and by coming prepared both to enjoy the programme as arranged, and by adding to it whatever will be of interest to those who have come, many of them from great distances, to renew the remembrances of earlier days.

With fraternal greetings to all, we salute you.

MISS EMMA LEHMAN,
President.

Correspondence.

—Our first letter for this month is from Mrs. MacLean (CLARA DARGAN,) whose pen is widely known all over the South.

The February ACADEMY, has just reached me much dilapidated having been forwarded from Atlanta, Ga. I sent a postal with my change of address, but it seems to have miscarried, so I give it again. I should feel as if an old friend had deserted me if it should fail me. This number comes with added zest, in the article about the old Salem Hotel. What visions of fried chicken and other dainties rise before us at that magic word! No girl who ever came to Salem will ever forget her first view of the embowered galleries, and the cool, clean halls. Well do I recall that day in May, 1857, when the stage toiled up the steep ascent, and my mother and I found ourselves in front of the hospitable portal. A troop of girls were standing in the piazzas dressed in pink and blue muslins, with "infant waists" and short, puffed sleeves. The only one whom I recall was MARY CORBIN; What a picture it was! On the camera of memory no other is more vivid, and the tears will rise when I recall those "blissful days that are no more." Yes,—ANNA KAUFMAN too was of the group and afterwards was my first "lieb crunk." (?) I suppose that sentimental custom no longer obtains in the progressive state of affairs in the ACADEMY world, but it was very natural, and a less harmful species of flirtation than that which our successors will practice.

But I must not begin indulging in reminiscences, or I shall never know when to stop. This is merely "en passant" as I write to give my new address. I am in charge of the Vocal Department in this half-century old Church school, established by Bishop Doane in 1837, and still very flourishing. Formerly, many Southern girls came, but at present there are none, though several teachers are from our part of the Union. How "the whirligig of Time" brings its changes! Miss Thornton, of Alabama, has been associated with the school for many years, and has the department of Science; Miss Tebbitts, of Baltimore, has Latin and Mathematics, while your correspondent takes charge of the two large chorus classes, the choir, private vocal pupils, and plays the organ for morning and evening services in the exquisite Chapel attached to the school. A lovely picture it is, Gothic in structure, ivy-wreathed, the heavy carved oak stalls filled with fair young faces, stained glass windows, tiled floors, and all the other accessories of an old world scene, the impression of which is increased by the white lawn veils shrouding every form, and shading each face.

I shall hope to see you all in Salem this summer. My boy Stuart is at Pantops Academy near Charlottesville, Va., and the separation from him is painful to me, but we mothers must make sacrifices.

I do not know if any further ceremony is necessary in offering one's name for enrollment in the Alumnae Association of S. F. A. I should like mine placed there.

With greetings to all "ACADEMY girls," far and near, known and unknown, and prayers for the deserved success of the school

I am sincerely yours,
CLARA DARGAN MACLEAN.

St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, N. J.

—Mrs. Fielder (M. CLEGG) writes an interesting letter from New Mexico.

"My welcome little visitor THE ACADEMY came this time accompanied by the little green slip, announcing my subscription run out. Most certainly I do wish to continue the paper, and hasten to remit the subscription price for its renewal. I would make many sacrifices if need be, rather than be without THE ACADEMY. Almost every number contains mention of some one of my dear companions of 1870 and '71. This time we have a letter from Fannie Powell, whom I well remember. I still have my old Autograph Album, in which she wrote, of love and remembrance for me. In a former letter she names most of her home-girls except MAGGIE MERCER.

I have looked anxiously for a letter from VIOLA JOHNS MCNIEL, MAMIE HARRIS BRAWLEY, MOLLIE HILL, and MARIE WOOD. KATE HAYLEY EMERY, wrote me last year of the death of the two McLEMORES, MINNIE and BECKIE; both have been dead some years. I was glad to hear from MOLLIE DOMINICK in a recent ACADEMY. Her letter brought sad thoughts of MAMIE DUNHAM's death. She was her "big girl friend" at Salem.

EMMA JOHNSON MOORE has recently suffered one of the saddest bereavements of life in the loss of her dear mother. What of MINNIE MANNING? ANNIE LANG mentioned her lately in a letter to the ACADEMY and I hoped she would respond. I have two pictures of her taken while she still wore short dresses. If all these girls (?) (most of them almost middle aged women now) take THE ACADEMY they treat their old friends badly in not writing to them through the columns of THE ACADEMY. I received a letter last year from NELIE LIGON GRAHAM, of Austin, Texas. She has 2 daughters. I was glad to see mention of MOCK WARREN and NETTIE COVINGTON, but I could go on ad infinitum. So I will cut off my epistle right here lest I weary you. Love to Miss MARIE VOGLER, and yourself. I must add yet, how much I rejoice to hear of the prosperity and advancement of SALEM F. ACADEMY. May it always flourish so long as there are Southern girls to be educated and trained.

Yours truly and affectionately,
MAUD CLEGG FIELDER.

Silver City, New Mexico.

—Our next is from another faithful friend ANNIE OGBURN:

"I fully intended to have renewed my subscription to THE ACADEMY, before this date, but have been very, very sick, and it frequently requires quite an effort to walk across the floor.

I am truly glad to hear that there are so many boarders in the ACADEMY. During my stay with you I remember at one time there were two hundred and seventy-five girls in school, including the day scholars. Always wishing success and richly merited favor to the dear old school home.

I am most sincerely,
ANNIE L. OGBURN.

Smith's X Roads, Mecklenburg Co., N. C.

—CORA VAIL from Charlotte, N. C., gives us a few acceptable lines:

"Can you give me Mr. ZORN's address. Some one told me he had taken orders in the Episcopal church and was living in New York city. Is it true! I think I shall be at Commencement this year. A friend wishes to become acquainted with Salem and it is not possible for us to be there for Easter. I thought the next best plan would be to come before Commencement, and spend some time. EMMA SCHEFF, is bright and pleasant as ever; LILY SCOTT is a gay young lady; BANNA ALEXANDER is a matron with a darling baby; DORA McDOWELL is Mrs. James Grier, of Charlotte.

You will do me a great favor by sending Mr. ZORN's address, at once.

With much love,

CORA L. VAIL.

Charlotte, N. C.

—Our Alumnæ are widely scattered over 17 States, from New York to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Atlantic Ocean to the Golden Gate, yet, here, around our Alma Mater, we meet in intimate and loving companionship. Another friend from New Mexico is very welcome.

"Enclosed I send fifty cents for which please renew my subscription for the year 1888. I find great pleasure in THE ACADEMY; it brings moments of "Auld Lang Syne." I take most interest in the girls of 1859, '60 and '61.

Yours truly,

Mrs. ANNE L. MEAD.

Victoria, Dona Ana Co., New Mexico.

—The next communication is from a friend and recent pupil from Virginia.

"The subscription price for THE ACADEMY would have to be more than three times what it is, before I would think of doing without the paper. I long for its coming now as much as I did for a letter from home when I was a school-girl in Salem. It gives me much pleasure to know that the school is doing so well. I hope it will continue to improve, and the number of scholars to increase, as rapidly as it improves. Enclosed please find fifty cents to renew my subscription.

Yours affectionately,

ANNE EARLY.

Hillsville, Va.

—Cammie Dancy writes from Paris, Texas, and calls up before us the image of her bright and happy face :

"Enclosed you will find fifty cents for another year's subscription to THE ACADEMY. The dear little paper affords me too much real pleasure to give it up. By reading it I found my long lost friend MAMIE STEPHENS. We correspond, and are so happy to be again permitted to talk of the many pleasant hours spent in Salem. She intends taking THE ACADEMY; and her address is Mrs. Ed. Tedford, Maryville, E. Tennessee.

Sister DELLA and I live very near together; we can stand on our front porches and talk. Each of us has a little baby boy;—hers is five days older than mine.

I would so love to visit the dear old school, but my heart would be sad when I miss the many familiar faces,—some who have long since passed over the river. Dear Mr. GRUNERT who was ever kind to us has gone. Please remember me kindly to Miss VOGLER and Miss EMMA LEHMAN. May the ACADEMY prosper more and more in my greatest wish.

Very respectfully,

Mrs. J. M. FORT, (Cammie Dancy.)

Paris, Texas.

—An interesting letter from LOUISE PALMER, (now Mrs. Seifert) to a friend, was kindly handed to us for publication :

"I was very much surprised, and pleased when I received your kind letter, particularly as it made me feel that I was not forgotten in dear old Salem.

My little boy Carl Louis is now five months old; I wish you could see him. He is a good boy—hardly ever cries.

Yesterday I went to a professional bull-fight as I had never been to a real grand fight. I will never go again, for such barbarous cruelty ought not to be allowed in a Christian country. The Plaza de Toros is like a Roman amphitheatre with rows of seats one above the other, around a central circle. Two doors upon into this circle opposite to each other, one for the bull to come out of, and the other for the fighters or Picardores as they are called. At a certain signal given they came in, while at the same moment the door was opened for the bull, that mad with fury from previous torture rushed at the Picadores on horseback; they have long, sharp-pointed lances with which they drive him in different directions. Yesterday two of the men were badly hurt, and several horses killed. Then they do another very cruel thing; one man stands in the middle of the ring and attracts the bull's attention, while the others stick the banners on him; to make them stay on, the end of the stick of the banner has a sharp, steel point, that runs into the flesh of the bull, making him nearly mad with pain as he runs around the arena, streaming with blood. Finally he is attacked in front, and killed with swords. A great many Americans were there, but before the second bull was brought out, they left the place, thoroughly disgusted, while the Mexicans thought it was very fine; the more horses and men killed the better they think it is.

You will be surprised to hear that we have so much fruit now. Water melons, plums, limes, oranges, bananas, apples, pears, chirimoiás, aguacates, mangos, chaguacan, and many others, many that are not at all known in the States. ROSA left for Guadalajara to visit a friend. She is very well. I would so much like to hear of some of my old friends, MARY WILLIAMS, LIZZIE WOLLE, JENNIE SIEGER, &c. I must close, please give love to any friends who still remember me.

Your sincere friend,

LOUISE P. DE SEIFERT.

San Rafael, Mexico.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Prof. Robert Carmichael is still in Salem. He is a genius in violin playing.

—Salem has reason to be proud of her Orchestra as a combination of rare musical talent.

—Miss ANNE JONES is in charge of the musical department of the East Bend High School. Prof. Hodges is the Principal.

—The Seniors after several attempts decided on their class colors, sage and pink, a very pretty combination.

—Mr. and Mrs. Holt, of Caney, Texas, spent some days with their daughter BESSIE, of the ACADEMY, and entered her sister LOUISE as a new pupil.

—The Catalogue for the year about to close (1887-'88) is being printed, and shows a gratifying increase of numbers in every department of the school which now sums up 237 pupils.

—Our Weather Observation girls, NELLIE BEWLEY, ELIZA CLARK and KATE PADDISON have kept on faithfully with their work during the year, in rain and sleet as well as on balmy moonlight nights.

—April 19th, the Seniors had their class picture taken on the front piazza. The day was chilly and rainy, but the picture was very good. They concluded, however, to try it once more, which they did, May 1.

—Miss HAH DUNLAP, a member of our Senior Class, left for home on May 10th, with a view of starting to Europe on the 27th. We are sorry to see her go, but the delight and profit of a European tour are a great attraction.

—New members of Alumnæ Association are Mrs. Frank Miller, (IDA WHARTON) Mrs. P. Haines, (LIZORA FORTUNE) Mrs. T. J. Brown, (DELPHINE HALL) '63, all of Winston, N. C., and Mrs. E. A. Ebert, (DORA STARBUCK) of Salem.

—The Orchestral music added greatly to the enthusiasm and general enjoyment of the Calisthenic Drill. There is something very inspiring in the strains of a lively march when performed by such an organization as the Salem Orchestra is well known to be.

—A lamp post, with a large lamp, has been placed just below the back porch of the old Academy for the convenience of the Orchestra and those who practice in the ACADEMY Chapel from town. A nice, gravel walk has also been laid from the front gate to the back porch.

—The consecration of the Oak Grove church, 6 miles from Salem, was well attended on Saturday, May 11th, in spite of the disagreeable weather. It is gratifying to note the springing up of churches and chapels around us, as the result of earnest christian effort, on the part of our home church.

—DR. RONDTHALER has at different times during our delightful Spring weather taken the whole school out for a morning in the woods. At one time they went to our usual picnic place on the railroad,—at another to the Harrison Reed place, &c. A slight lunch was carried out by the men, and enjoyed as only school-girls can enjoy such simple pleasure.

—The Square in front of the ACADEMY is beautiful in its Spring suit of tender green. The greater part of the dilapidated wooden fence which surrounded it, has been removed, and various plans are canvassed for a new one. Nothing could be more beautiful than the level green-sward, with white gravelled paths running from one corner to the opposite end. May that simple beauty long remain to rest the weary eye and brain.

—The Editor of the Twin City Daily a most energetic and successful newspaper man, paid one of our Short Hand, or Phonographic, classes a visit some time ago, and was kind enough to give us quite an extended notice.

We are always pleased to have our friends interested in our work. The eight members of this class are working for graduation in the Amanuensis Grade, for which they must be able to take down 100 words per minute.

—The Honor Essays for Commencement were announced in Chapel on May 2d, and are as follows: Salutory, Miss ADDIE FRIES, of Salem, N. C.; Valedictory, Miss JEANIE REYNOLDS, of Aberdeen, Miss. Class Essayists, with Class Motto, Finis Coronat Opus, as subject, Misses KATE PADDISON, of Titusville, Fla., and DAISY CLISBY, of Macon, Ga.; Second Honors, Misses ELIZA CLARK, of Little Rock, S. C., and SALLIE HUNNICUTT, of Atlanta, Ga.

—PAMELA BYNUM has our deep sympathy in the death of her sister ANNE who was also a member of our Alumnae Association and highly respected. She taught in the Winston Graded School until Christmas when the hereditary disease of her family, consumption, claimed her as a victim, and she was compelled to give up her work, and await the end, which came April 24th. PAMELA had filled her place in the Graded School until her sister's approaching death called her home.

—The Golden Wedding of Rev. John E. Edwards, D. D., of Danville, Va., was celebrated at Mt. Vernon church, Danville, of which he is pastor, on Tuesday night, May 1st. Thanks for invitation. May the Doctor and his estimable wife, enjoy yet many years of earthly happiness together. The Doctor delivered the Baccalaureate Sermon before the Graduating Class of SALEM F. ACADEMY, last year. His wife was ELIZABETH AGNES CLARK, an Alumna of the ACADEMY. They were married, of course, in 1838.

—Quite a number of our Alumnae have signified their intention of being present at our approaching Commencement. We hope to have a most enjoyable time. Among those who have so expressed themselves are, Misses Eddie Hunnicutt, Daisy Murphy, Cora Vail, Luta Bewley, perhaps Mrs. Thompson (Lucy Malone), Ala.; Miss Jennie Johnston, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mrs. Mary Wyatt (Hicks), of Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. Davis, Stovall, N. C.; Mrs. J. E. Hunnicutt (Mary Dupree), Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Theo. Fitzgerald, Danville, Va.; Mrs. Florence Pritchett (McCanless), Danville, Va.

Subscriptions Received.

Continued from Last Term.

Miss Mattie Crafoan, Reidsville, North Carolina; Mrs L. M. Richardson, Leonia, Texas; Miss Maggie McKinon, Plainview, S. C.; Miss J. Sherrille, Academy; Miss Kate Lark, Laurens C H, S. C.; Miss M. Paschall, Reidsville, N. C.; Miss Mollie Tucker, Kilgore, Texas; Mrs. Anna L. Mead, Victoria, New Mexico; Miss Annie Hanson, Baltimore, Md; Mrs Capple Craig, Greenwood, Miss; Mrs R A Ayers, Richmond, Va; Mrs E C Barksdale, Flora, Ala; News and Observer, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. Lucie Thompson, Tusculum, Ala; Miss Maggie David, Academy; Miss P. C. Goodman, Mr Samuel Goodman, Tyler, Texas; Miss Mittie Barber, Batheryville, S. C.; Mrs Carrie Laubum, Choctaw, Texas; Mr II W Folz, Mrs J C Buxton, Mrs. Jas A Gray, Miss Anne Bynum, Winston, N. C.; Miss Lily Lash, Bethania, N. C.; Mrs Mary L Early, Woodlawn, Va; Rev Edw J Wolle, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs Thos Holt, Haw River, N. C.; Miss Sallie Craig, Gastonia, N. C.; Mr H. W. Graham, Plainview, S. C.; Mrs H Shepherd, Lynchburg, Va; Mr George D. Shores, Sumner, S. C.; Mrs D W Moore, Van Buren, Ark.; Mrs Dora V Dunn, Neuse, N. C.; Mr J W Biting, Manor, Texas; Mrs Lula C Nelson, Lorraine, Ga; Mr W H Frierson, Anderson, S. C.; Mrs J M Fort, Paris, Texas.

—Our graduating class numbers 30, and the names are as follows:

Miss MATTIE BAHNSON, Farmington, N. C.
 " MINNIE P. BEARD, Kernersville, "
 " NELLIE C. BEWLEY, Anderson, S. C.
 " ANNIE W. BOYD, Summit, Miss.
 " MABEL E. BROWN, Winston, N. C.
 " ELIZA E. CLARK, Little Rock, S. C.
 " MAUD R. CLISBY, Macon, Ga.
 " SALLIE M. DAVID, Bennettsville, S. C.
 " LULA W. DEADERICK, Jonesboro, Tenn.
 " ILAH DUNLAP, Macon, Ga.
 " MAMIE J. DWIRE, Winston, N. C.
 " NINA S. FLOURNOY, Shreveport, La
 " ADELAIDE L. FRIES, Salem, N. C.
 " SADIE B. HALL, Salem, N. C.
 " LIZZIE W. HICKS, Raleigh, N. C.
 " ALICE C. HILL, Germantown, S. C.
 " ANNIE C. HILL, Raleigh, N. C.
 " FANNIE Y. HOLT, Graham, N. C.
 " SALLIE F. HUNNICUTT, Atlanta, Ga.
 " ANNIE M. LANDQUIST, Salem, N. C.
 " BETTIE MCLAURIN, Clio, S. C.
 " KATE W. PADDISON, Titusville, Fla.
 " JEANIE REYNOLDS, Aberdeen, Miss.
 " FANNIE V. RIGGS, Salem, N. C.
 " IDA M. SHEPHERD, Salem, N. C.
 " MARY V. SMITH, Greenville, N. C.
 " LAURA T. STOKES, Danville, Va.
 " MARY L. THOMAS, Thomasville, N. C.
 " ANNA P. URQUHART, Allen's, Ga.
 " MAGGIE C. URQUHART, Allen's, Ga.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—MOLLIE HILL is Mrs. R. T. Steadman, Winston, N. C.
 —EMMA McRAE is at Miss Kelly's school in Charleston, South Carolina.

—MR. ZORN is now living at Schroon Lake, Essex Co., in north-eastern New York.

—SALLIE SULLIVAN (Mrs Booe, of Winston, N. C.) called recently. She has a fine little boy, very intelligent in appearance.

—Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Sutherland, of Danville, Va., spent some days in Salem, visiting their children, MATTIE CLARK and JANIE SMITH.

—We were very sorry to hear of the death of Mrs McDowell, Islandford, N. C. Bessie's mother. She had long been failing, and died on Easter Sunday.

—MAUD BROADAWAY is teaching a school of about 30 scholars at her home on Liberty Street, Winston DELIA BLACKBURN also taught for a time in the neighborhood of the Winston reservoir.

—DELLA HINE is cashier at Vaughn & Pepper's, Winston. We are glad to see our pupils filling the various positions of trust and usefulness opening to women on all sides. The ranks of poorly-paid teachers have too long been overcrowded.

—We received a very interesting letter some time ago from Mrs. Ham Shepherd (nee FANT), now in Lynchburg, Va., where Mr. Shepherd is in the Revenue department. Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd have a married daughter, and several grown sons, an exceedingly promising family, just such as we would expect the children of such parents to be.

—Mrs. and Miss Carlisle, of Pennsylvania, who spent some time at Dr. EDWARD RONDTHALER's, were in Georgia, in or near Marietta, during the winter. The lady with whom they boarded was a well known pupil of the ACADEMY for three years, some considerable time ago. She is Mrs. J. S. Shelman, of Etowah Heights, Ga., better known to us as LEILA DALLAS, and is highly spoken of.

—We were surprised to hear of DORA ADAMS' marriage recently. We copy the following from the Atlanta Constitution:

"Mr. Alexander Hopkins and Miss DORA LAMAR ADAMS were married, yesterday afternoon, May 4th, by Dr. H. C. Morrison, at the residence of Mr. C. W. Hunnicutt, in this city. Miss DORA was on a visit to Mr. Hunnicutt's family. Only immediate relatives and a few friends were present. The bride is originally from Staten Island, and has been living in Cartersville. She is the niece of Rev. Habersham Adams, and is one of the most beautiful and popular young ladies of the State. The groom is the youngest son of Judge Hopkins, well known and highly respected in Atlanta."

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—Eds. ACADEMY.]

*—I feel like one
 Who treads alone
 Some banquet-hall deserted,
 Whose lights are fled,
 Whose garlands dead,
 And all but he departed!*

1861.

3987. LUCY N. JONES. —1849.
 John N. Jones, Little Rock, Arkansas.
 3988. MARY F. SMITH. —1847.
 S. W. Smith, Oxford, Granville Co., N. C.
 3989. HANNAH JANE BETHEA. —1847.
 Al. W. Bethea, Reedy Creek, S. C.
 3990. BESTY SANDERS. —1851.
 Adminis., Isaac N. Lenoir, Stateburg, Sumter County, S. C.
 3991. MARY SCOTT MCGHEE. —1852.
 Uncle and Guardian, J. C. McGhee, Madison, Fla.
 3992. ALICE VIA. —1849.
 Guardian, James C. Moir, Patrick County, Va.
 3993. SUSAN C. WILLIAMS. —1847.
 Grandmother, Susau Galloway, Wentworth, N. C.
 3994. A. JANE NELSON. —1843.
 Guardian, J. R. Nelson, Oak Ridge, N. C.
 3995. MARIA R. EARNEST. —1844.
 3996. REBECCA C. EARNEST. —1846.
 N. W. Earnest, Fuller's Depot, Tenn.
 3997. MARY WILEY. —1852.
 Mother, Martha Wiley, Henderson's Mill, Tenn.
 3998. ANN ELIZA CABELL. —1847.
 Captain John R. Cabell, Danville, Va.
 3999. MARTHA V. HOWELL. —1847.
 Clark Howell, Atlanta, Ga.
 4000. FANNIE CAGE. —1849.
 Dr. E. K. Cage, Vernon, Jackson Parish, La.
 4001. GULIELMA HOSKINS. —1850.
 4002. FANNIE L. HOSKINS. —1848.
 S. Hoskins, Lexington, Miss.
 4003. EMMA OVERMAN. —1847.
 Benjamin Overman, Pensacola, Fla.

1862.

4004. DELPHINE HALL. —1847.
 4005. ETTA HALL. —1851.
 Guardian, Dr. Jesse Carter, Mobile, Ala.
 4006. BELL SCOTT. —1850.
 Wm. Scott, Monroeton, N. C.
 4007. SARAH J. WHITSETT. —1848.
 Guardian, F. W. Watson, Monroeton, N. C.
 4008. HATTIE P. WILLIAMSON. —1847.
 Step-father, Dr. Allen Gunn, Wayceville, N. C.
 4009. LUCY CALLOWAY. —1848.
 Executor, C. Calloway, Washington, Ga.
 4010. FANNIE BROCK. —1846.
 Wm. Brock, Smith Grove, N. C.
 4011. JANE F. DOUGLASS. —1848.
 Dr. George Douglass, Lylesford, S. C.
 4012. SUE C. MILLER. —1845.
 C. C. Miller, Yellow Store, Tenn.
 4013. MARY E. RILEY. —1847.
 John D. Riley, Rogersville, Tenn.
 4014. ALICE McCLURE. —1845.
 Mitchell McClure, Rogersville, Tenn.
 4015. FLORA O. CONRAD. —1850.
 Joseph Conrad, Red Plains, N. C.
 4016. GENEVA WEBB. —1845.
 W. D. Webb, Louisville, N. C.
 4017. NARCISSE J. MANN. —1848.
 Dr. J. B. Mann, Louisville, N. C.
 4018. LUCY H. MASSENBURG. —1847.
 W. B. Massenburg, Louisville, N. C.
 4019. REBECCA DAVIS. —1852.
 W. B. Massenburg, Louisville, N. C.
 4020. ELIZA H. BALLARD. —1850.
 Benj. T. Ballard, Louisville, N. C.
 4021. N. VIRGINIA POWELL. —1847.
 Guardian, W. F. Brockshire, Louisville, N. C.
 4022. RACHEL McMAHAN. —1847.
 Mother, Jane S. McMahan, Farmington, N. C.

4023. EUGENIA BOYD — 1850
Guardian, H. Sheppard, Greenville, N. C.
4024. SUSAN L. BITTING. — 1852.
Step-father, A. C. Myers, Germantown, N. C.
4025. ALICE KNAPP. — 1851.
C. P. Knap, Pensacola, Fla.
4026. LAURA DAVIS. — 1848.
J. H. Davis, Middleton, N. C.
4027. HATTIE ELLISON. — 1848.
4028. LAURA ELLISON. — 1850.
Hr. Ellison, Washington, N. C.
4029. ANN ELIZA LITTLE. — 1849.
Thos. S. Little, Wadesboro, N. C.
4030. SARAH E. PENDER. — 1847.
Robt. H. Pender, Tarboro, N. C.
4031. ANNA E. MALONE. — 1846.
4032. LUCY E. MALONE. — 1847.
4033. SALLIE J. MALONE. — 1849.
4034. ALICE N. MALONE. — 1851.
G. W. Malone, Cherokee, Franklin Co., Ala.
4035. ADA GOODLOE. — 1848.
4036. EVELYN GOODLOE. — 1852.
Paul Goodloe, San Felipe, Texas.
4037. AMAZON PARKER. — 1847.
David Parker, Gatesville, N. C.
4038. SARAH E. EARLY. — 1846.
James Early, Hillsville, Va.
4039. MARG. TALLULAH STROHECKER. — 1845.
Ed. L. Strohecker, Macon, Ga.
4040. FANNIE WILLIS GRAVES. — 1847.
4041. SALLIE H. GRAVES. — 1848.
Mother, Mrs. A. L. Henry, Henry's Mills, Va.
4042. MARY POWELL SHAYER. — 1862.
S. M. Shayer, Rogersville, Tenn.
4043. MARTHA BETTIE GHOLSON. — 1846.
4044. MARY E. GHOLSON. — 1850.
Dr. R. A. Gholson, Petersburg, Va.
4045. MARY M. HOWARD. — 1850.
Thos. S. Howard, Newbern, N. C.
4046. MADORA V. DUNN. — 1848.
P. A. Dunn, Forestville, N. C.
4047. VIRGINIA C. WILSON. — 1850.
Guardian, W. W. Sylvester, Forestville, N. C.
4048. MARY C. CARR. — 1847.
Hinton E. Carr, Villaberry, N. C.
4049. MARY JANE PAYNE. — 1846.
Wash. Payne, Old Richmond, Forsyth Co., N. C.
4050. MARGARET CAROLINE McQUEEN. — 1846.
4051. MARTHA McQUEEN. — 1848.
S. E. McQueen, Johnson County, East Tenn.
4052. ALLYSON ADDIE WAGNER. — 1846.
Jacob Wagner, Johnson County, East Tenn.
4053. SARAH B. WAUGH. — 1846.
Wm. K. Waugh, Johnson County, East Tenn.
4054. ISABELLA SPEER. — 1848.
Alex. M. Speer, Macon, Ga.
4055. SUR R. CROUCH. — 1846.
W. H. Crouch, Jonesboro East Tenn.
4056. NANNIE McFARLAND. — 1844.
4057. HARRIET McFARLAND. — 1850.
Dr. B. F. McFarland, Mossy Creek, East Tenn.

Splinters

- "Will you please write in my fraternity (futrinity) album?"
- "Can you subscribe (prescribe) anything for fever blisters?"
- "When you pay this bill don't fail to get a recipe (receipt)."
- "I will be ready to come as soon as I justify (adjust) the theodolite."
- "Sue is a regular misogamist!" "Yes; did she have a hundred eyes?"
- "Was it Charles Moore or Thomas Dickens who wrote 'Old Curiosity Shop?'"
- "No I'm not dancing; I am only going through the motives (motions)."
- "In what respect do some young ladies who are approaching middle life differ from chromos?" They are hand painted."
- "A girl sadly remarks on hearing that Dr. R. will, contrary to expectation, be with his Latin Class: "Oh, dear, there is no Euterpa here!"
- "First young lady: "Now, don't forget the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley." Second young lady: "Very well, I went." Third young lady: "Oh, is that your Post Office?"

Married.

HOPKINS—ADAMS. — On May 4, at the residence of Mr. C. W. Humnicutt, Atlanta, Ga., Mr. ALEX. HOPKINS, (youngest son of Judge Hopkins, of Atlanta,) to Miss DORA LAMAR ADAMS, of Cartersville, Ga.

Died.

BYNUM — At her residence on Libery Street, Winston, April 24, Miss ANNE BYNUM, daughter of the late Dr. H. W. Bynum.

McDOWELL. — On Easter Sunday, April 1st, Mrs. J. L. McDowell, of Island Ford, N. C.

Obituary.

Mrs. SOPHIA McDOWELL, wife of Col. J. L. McDowell, died at her home in Rutherford county, N. C., April 1st, 1888. She was born in Union, S. C., in 1833. Mrs. McDOWELL was a sister of Rev. J. W. Kelly, of sainted memory, who was an honored member of the S. C. Conference. She was of an excellent family and had been a member of the Methodist Church nearly forty years.

For some years of her life she suffered with cancerous affection, and the last few weeks very intensely. She was always true to her neighbors, kind to the poor, ever ready to relieve the suffering, to visit the sick, to sympathize with the distressed, and to help the church with her prayers and her means, but above all she was an exemplary Christian. She clearly demonstrated that the claims of God were paramount to every other consideration.

Well may the community feel the loss of such a true friend. May the husband and children join her in the mansion above. Rev. G. B. PERRY.

From Raleigh Christian Advocate

THE SOUTHERN GUARDSMAN.

WINSTON, N. C.

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE GUARD.

Conducted by

WILL X. COLEY,

1st Sergeant Co. A., 3d Reg't., N. C. State Guard.

THE GUARDSMAN is endorsed and recommended by the Governor, Adjutant General, Regimental Commanders and all other officers of the Guard. It was officially announced as the organ of the North Carolina militia in General Orders No. 6, which were issued on May 2nd, 1858. All citizen soldiers should subscribe at once. Subscription price, $1.00 per year, in advance. 52 standard books and THE GUARDSMAN one year for only $1.50. Advertising rates, $2.00 per inch. Sent for sample copy. Address, WILL X. COLEY, Publisher SOUTHERN GUARDSMAN, Winston, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dearer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

NEW AND UNIQUE GOODS

— ESPECIALLY FOR — — HOLIDAY x PRESENTS —

— AT —

ASHCRAFT & OWENS,

DRUGGISTS, WINSTON, N. C.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

MONEY

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.— Come and see before buying elsewhere; Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

CLINARD & BROOKES.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

GIERSS, SENSEMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in Brooms, Stoves, Tinware, Tobacco Flues, Flue Iron, are still at the BIG COFFEE POT, where they have on hand a full line of COOK and HEATING STOVES, HAND MADE BROOMS, TINWARE, &c., &c.,

AT ROCK BOTTOM PRICES.

They are headquarters for the latest improvements in their line. Call and see them. They guarantee satisfaction in every respect.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

FANCY

NOVELTIES

— AT THE —

SALEM + BOOKSTORE.

POEMS, NOVELS, GIFT BOOKS, — CARDS, — FANCY ARTICLES, TOYS, GAMES, WRITING DESKS and ALBUMS.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME X.

SALEM, N. C., JUNE, 1888.

NUMBER 87.

COMMENCEMENT, 1888.

THE Commencement exercises of 1888 began on Sunday, June 3, with the Baccalaureate Sermon by Rev. THOMAS HUME, D.D., of Chapel Hill, N. C. On Tuesday night, the Reading of Seniors' Essays took place; on Wednesday morning, the Commencement proper; Wednesday afternoon, the Art Exhibition, from 2 o'clock to 5; the Alumnae Meeting, at 3 o'clock, in the Chapel of the Moravian church, and the closing Concert, given on Wednesday night.

After a previous week of rain, cool, bright, pleasant weather favored us throughout, in such perfect days as can only come in June, when all nature pulsates and throbs with abounding life and vitality. We never have cause to complain of a small commencement attendance, but this year the number was larger than we have ever known,—on Tuesday night over a hundred failed to secure even standing room, and went away disappointed, showing us that an enlarged chapel is becoming a necessity. The patient attention of the numbers of gentlemen who stood during sessions of nearly 3 hours' length was appreciated by all concerned.

It was a pure joy, a great pleasure to greet so many old friends, patrons and Alumnae, as every train swelled the number and added to the interest of the occasion. The decorations of the stage were chaste and effective. An arch spanned the rear of the platform, bearing the Motto of the Class of 1888, Finis Coronat Opus, ("The end crowns the work,") in crystal letters which gleamed and sparkled like diamonds: the columns were appropriately draped with the class colors, sage and pink. Freshly cut flowers were banked up under the arch, and bestowed wherever room could be found. By the express wish of the Senior Class no flowers were received during the whole course of the exercises. The stage had been greatly improved by raising the seats, tier after tier. The Seniors occupied the left side, the Choral Class as well as other performers sat on the right, while the orchestra, who did us such faithful service, sat in front of them. The scenic effect was unusually fine.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

Rev. THOMAS HUME, D. D., one of the most distinguished Baptist divines of the State and Professor of the English Language and Literature at the University of North Carolina, delivered a forcible, polished and eloquent address in the church to an audience estimated at about 1000. The Seniors, 29 in all, were ranged in front and on both sides of the pulpit, while the other pupils of the ACADEMY were seated in the body of the church, surrounded by the congregation, who filled every available place, the aisles, the galleries, &c.

Thus surrounded the Seniors listened to one of the most polished, elegant and forcible addresses it has been our fortune to hear, from Luke 17: 32-33: "Remember Lot's wife. Whosoever shall seek to save his life shall lose it, and whosoever shall lose his life shall preserve it." Leaving the beaten track of Commencement sermons, Dr. HUME lifted his hearers to a higher level, in a chaste, eloquent, gospel discourse, replete with beautiful language, applying to woman's highest interests in this world and the next. He combined strength of idea with beauty of expression, in touches of thrilling pathos, yet faithfully earnest in its application to the young, the cultured, the beautiful.

The Doctor reminded us that in the earnest exhortation of our Lord, "Remember Lot's wife," the two covenants were brought together, showing that the needs, the desires, the temptations of the human heart, were the same in the days of Noah and of Lot that they were in our Savior's time and are to day. He said that culture and beauty alone are insufficient for the soul's salvation,—that pious associations, amiability of disposition, or dreamy sentiment will never save the soul. Lot's wife was taken from the side of her worldly-minded, yet in the main, God-fearing husband. She had pious Abraham, the friend of God, for a near relative, the faithful angel visitors hastened her on to peace and safety in Zoar, but in spite of all she was lost, in a fiery hail-storm of divine indignation, encrusted with the destroying element as an enduring memorial of the results of a yearning for the present good things of life, rather than for the unseen realities of eternity. He also warned his hearers that they cannot get to heaven hanging to the skirts of a God-fearing father or a praying mother. Solemnly he applied the sacred words, "Two shall be in one bed, the one shall be taken, the other left." No divided allegiance will answer; it must be God, or Mammon. Religion must be everything or nothing. The world allures and calls, the Judgment, the eternal realities, seem so far off, but they will surely come.

The opening Chorus, by the choir, was Handel's "Lift up your heads, O ye gates," with full orchestral accompaniment. A fine male chorus was rendered at the close, "Peace, peace, I leave with you," the music composed specially for the occasion by Professor MARKGRAFF.

SENIORS' ESSAYS.

The number of Seniors probably reached its maximum at the close of this school-year, as 30 is the greatest number that we have graduated at once. Twenty Essays were read on Tuesday evening; 3 were excused on account of indisposition. The programme was as follows: "Greeting to Spring," (Wilson,); Duo, "Juanita March," by Misses A. HILL and F. HOLT. The essays were arranged in five groups: in the first group were, "Avoid Extremes," by Miss DAVID, of Bennettsville, S. C.; "Sirens," Miss A. BOYD, Summit, Miss.; "A Review," Miss N. FLOURNOY, Shreveport, La.; "Encouragement," Miss M. BROWN, Winston, N. C.; "The Part that Woman Plays in Life," Miss L. HICKS, Raleigh, N. C. An instrumental performance followed: "Murmuring Fountain," by Miss N. BEWLEY. In the second group we find "News," by Miss A. LANDQUIST, Salem, N. C.; "All may be Heroes," Miss BEARD, Kernersville, N. C.; "I will try," Miss A. HILL, Germantown, N. C.; "Sunbeams," Miss M. V. SMITH, Greenville, N. C.; "Intellectual Pleasures," Miss A. URQUHART, Allen's, Ga. A Fantaisie, "Moise," by Miss CARRIE MICKEV, and a Duo, "Verdict," Waltz, (Strauss,) by Misses J. REYNOLDS and LAURA STOKES, closed the first part.

Part second began with an Essay, "Motives," by Miss MCLAURIN, Clio, S. C.;

next, "Leaves," Miss S. HALL, Salem, N. C.; "The Knight of the XIXth Century," Miss M. DWIRE, Winston, N. C.; "The Seniors," Miss F. HOLT, Graham, N. C.; "Both Joy and Grief Furrow the Face," Miss M. URQUHART, Allen's, Ga. "The Beggar Student Waltz," (Milloecker), was played by Misses B. WINKLER and J. SHERRILLE, followed by a song, "The May Bells and the Flowers," by Misses N. BEWLEY and M. BEARD. The next group consisted of "Keeping up Appearances," by Miss F. RIGGS, Winston, N. C.; "Yesterday, To-Day and To-morrow," Miss I. SHEPHERD, Winston, N. C.; "The Girl Graduate in Society," Miss L. STOKES, Danville, Va.; "Only," Miss M. THOMAS, Thomasville, N. C. A Duo, "Pensees Dansantes," (Rive-King), was played by Misses L. FAIN and THREADGILL, and a Duo, "Les Coursiers," was played with great vivacity and correctness by "two little graduates yet to be," Misses SALLIE HYMAN and MARY CONRAD. The last group of Essays contained "Beyond the Alps lies Italy," by Miss MATTIE BAHNSON, Farmington, N. C.; "The Fashionable Girl of the Period," Miss L. DEADERICK, Jonesboro, Tenn.; "Many Men of Many Minds," Miss ANNE HILL, Raleigh, N. C.; concluding with "What are the Wild Waves Saying," by Miss N. BEWLEY, Anderson, S. C. "Recollections of Home," (Mills), was played by Miss O. SNOW, a Duo, "Fille du Regiment," (Ganter), by Misses J. SUTHERLIN SMITH and A. M. SCHOOLFIELD, of Danville, Va. A semi-chorus, "Greeting to Spring," (Wilson), closed the evening.

COMMENCEMENT DAY.

The Commencement proper is the nucleus around which the other exercises are grouped. On Wednesday morning, June 6, at 9 o'clock, the large Academic procession, consisting of the prospective Seniors of '89, about 35 in number, the 29 Graduates present, with the Trustees, Principal, Col. A. H. Belo, of the Galveston and Dallas, Texas, News, and Ministers formed in the upper corridor, and preceded by two little girls, LIZZIE GEORGE and ETHEL GRIFFISS, each bearing a silver salver of Diplomas, filed into the chapel, crowded to its utmost capacity, to the strains of the Commencement March, composed for the Orchestra by Professor MARKGRAFF. The Seniors sat, as usual, on the north side of the platform, the gentlemen in the centre, and the newly formed Senior Class on the south side, with the Orchestra in front of them. The gentlemen who sat on the platform were: Rev. J. H. Clewell, Principal, Rev. E. Rondthaler, D.D., Rev. C. L. Rights, President of the Board of Trustees, Rev. R. P. Lineback, of the Board, Col. A. H. Belo, of Galveston, Texas, Rev. E. P. Davis, Rev. W. C. Norman, Rev. W. W. Moore, D. D., Col. F. H. Fries, Rev. H. A. Brown, Dr. J. F. Shaffner, Rev. H. O. Lacy, Mr. John W. Fries, Rev. L. B. Wureschke and Rev. W. E. Swain.

All being seated, a matter of some time, Rev. R. P. Lineback read a Psalm of praise, and Rev. C. L. Rights offered up prayer. Miss M. DAVID performed an instrumental selection "Le Reveil du Lion," (Kontski). Miss ADDIE FRIES, of Salem, N. C., then read the Salutatory, followed by a song, "Come, Sister, Come," (Cox,) by Miss L. FAHS. The Class Essay on the Class motto, "Finis Coronat Opus," was divided into two parts; the one was read by Miss DAISY CLISBY, of Macon, Ga., and the other by Miss KATE PADDISON, of Titusville, Fla, these two young ladies being decorated with the "Causa Honoris" ribbon by the Salutatorian and Valedictorian, Misses FRIES and REYNOLDS. Mr. CLEWELL rose and stated that the contest for the first honors had been so sharp that it was determined to make the honors equal by giving the distinctive ribbon badge in this way. A Duo followed, "Tres Jolie Waltz," by Misses M. BROWN and ALICE HILL. The 2nd Honor Essays were then read, "Sympathy," by Miss SALLIE F. HUNNICUTT, of Atlanta, Ga., and "Silent Cities," by Miss ELIZA CLARK, of Little Rock, S. C.

The second part of the programme opened with a song, "Love is a Dream," by Miss BEARD. Next an instrumental performance, "Fantaisie Impromptu," (Chopin), by Miss E. SIDDALL. Dr. RONDTHALER, the late Principal of the ACADEMY delivered an address, in which he spoke of his inability to deliver a literary address to this class, his own dear children. He spoke of his attachment to the ACADEMY, of his former duties as Principal and Pastor, thanked his people for their loyalty to him in his arduous labors, gave instances of his warm friendship for the fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters of his former pupils, of his pleasant relations with the pupils, and of the spiritual good which the ACADEMY has done and is still doing to thousands.

He spoke very impressively to the graduates, assuring them that if they did their duty, the happiest part of their lives was yet to come.

After his brief address, Dr. RONDTHALER introduced Col. Belo, speaking of his high position and wide-spread influence as editor of the Galveston and Dallas, Texas, News, and requesting him to deliver the Diplomas to the young lady graduates, who would value them all the more highly for receiving them from Col. Belo's hands.

Col. Belo spoke of his attachment to Salem, his native place, and the ACADEMY, said that he was truly glad to see that Texas came next to North Carolina in the number of pupils, that he wanted to see Texas and North Carolina hand in hand in upbuilding the ACADEMY; he closed by congratulating the ACADEMY that for the first time in its history it had a Salem man as its Principal. Col. Belo then handed the 63 Diplomas to their fair owners, 30 in the regular Academic department, 23 in the Commercial and 10 in the musical departments. The Orchestra performed the "Finis Coronat Opus" march after the presentation of Diplomas, Miss JEANIE REYNOLDS, of Aberdeen, Miss., read the Valedictory, which was followed by the "Farewell" song, the solo sung by Miss SALLIE HUNNICUTT, the chorus by the whole class; Miss NELLIE BEWLEY, one of the graduates, composed the words, and Prof. MARKGRAFF the music. The far-famed "Hallelujah" chorus of Handel concluded the exercises of the morning, the whole vast audience rising during its rendition, as is customary in refined musical circles.

A number of invited guests assembled in the Teachers' Room after the Commencement, from whence they repaired to the Dining Hall, which seemed to be transformed into a fairy-land of decorations; the pillars were festooned, flowers placed wherever they could be effectively disposed, the tables crossing at right angles from the centre. About 300 persons sat down to dinner, while the Orchestra, from their platform at the west end, discoursed sweet music during the banquet. Various after-dinner speeches were called for and responded to by Rev. J. H. CLEWELL, Dr. RONDTHALER and Dr. W. W. Moore.

THE ART RECEPTION.

The three rooms in the old ACADEMY, where the Art work of the past year was displayed, were thronged with appreciative visitors from 2 to 5 o'clock, P. M. The oil paintings were hung in the room to the right of the entrance door, the art needlework and embroidery to the left, while the crayon drawings were displayed in the back room. Miss SIEWERS, the Art teacher, may well be proud of her beautiful display. How quickly the contents of these rooms are scattered over the entire South, and how many homes will be brightened and beautified by them! The list is too long for insertion here, so it will be given elsewhere. A new feature of the exhibit was the display of specimens of Book-keeping sets. The Commercial department is becoming more and more popular, as it prepares young ladies to be self-supporting when the reverses of life overtake them.

THE ALUMNÆ ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Alumnae Association of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY was held in the chapel of the Moravian church at 3 o'clock, on Wednesday afternoon, and though the day was crowded to overflowing there was a good attendance, over 100 members being present, representing almost every Southern State. The pleasurable meeting of old friends, and general cuncte cordiale made this meeting one of the most enjoyable of our Commencement experiences. The presence of our clergy, the Trustees and other invited friends added much to the pleasure of the occasion.

The Association was called to order by the President, Miss LEHMAN. After a greeting by the President, she read letters of sympathy and congratulation from the absent Vice-President, Mrs. AYERS (V. MORRISON), of Virginia, and from Mrs. GEORGIA BOWE WRIGHT, of Columbia, S. C. A very interesting letter from a pupil of 1816, from Courtland, Ala., Mrs. MARV WATKINS SAUNDERS, was handed in, but too late to be communicated, to our great regret. It shall, however, appear in the ACADEMY as early as possible.

After the roll-call and reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the Secretary, Miss JESSIE BROWN, a paper was read by Miss M. E. VOGLER on the objects of the Association. A pleasing letter from Mrs. AMELIA ROE WOODWARD (of 1826), of Cincinnati, O., was read by Miss LAURA LEMLY. Mrs. ROBT. BELO (MATTIE WILLIAMS) read a very sprightly communication from Mrs. DRAUGHN (SUE HELLEN), of Tarboro, N. C. Miss CONSTANCE PFOHL read a poem, "Flotsam and Jetsam," written by Mrs. CLARA DARGAN McLEAN, of Burlington, N. J. Mrs. Dr. SIEWERS (ELLIE DE SCHWEINITZ) read a loving greeting to her Alma Mater from Mrs. Dr. WILEY (LIZZIE REEVES), of Emory, Va. Miss CLAUDIA WINKLER read a letter from Mrs. ALICE HORD WARNER, of Chattanooga, Tenn. Miss EDDIE HUNNICUTT, of Atlanta, Ga., read a paper on the present state of the ACADEMY and its improvements. Miss VAN VLECK composed an Alumnae Song, words and music, of which the solo was beautifully sung by Miss ALICE RONDTHALER the Alumnae joining in the chorus.

The election of new officers followed. Miss LEHMAN was re-elected President, Mrs. ALSTON (EMMA SAUNDERS), of Hagood, S. C., Vice President, and Miss SALLIE SHAFFNER, Secretary. The new members of the Executive Board are, Mrs. GAITHER HALL (ANNE JONES), Hickory, N. C., Miss JENNIE RAGSDALE, of Jamestown, N. C., Mrs. J. W. FRIES (AGNES DE SCHWEINITZ), Mrs. ROBT. BELO, Salem, N. C., and Mrs. W. B. GLENN (SALLIE MATTHEWS), Winston, N. C.

A committee was appointed to consider the matter of a Society badge, by which the daughters of Alma Mater may recognize each other wherever they meet, Mrs. Dr. BAHNSON (EMMA FRIES), Mrs. H. E. FRIES (ROSA MICKEY), and Mrs. J. E. GILMER (LAURA LASH).

The church choir then rendered a selection. Dr. RONDTHALER took the chair, and a Moravian lovefeast of coffee and buns was enjoyed as a memorial of olden times, as well as a covenantal strengthening of affection for each other and our Alma Mater.

The papers read at the meeting will be given elsewhere as we have the time and space.

THE CLOSING CONCERT.

The Concert on Wednesday night was a brilliant occasion, and though the evening was very warm, the chapel was again crowded to overflowing. Misses A. GIBBS and M. SMITH played a Duo, Overture, Banditenstreichle, (Suppe); then a song, "Open thy Lattice," (Grech,) Miss L. TANNER; Piano, "Tannhauser March," (Wagner-Liszt,) Miss LULA HEGE; Duo, "Indian Line March," (Warren,) Misses ROLLINS and N. WARNER; Song, "Going to Market," (Diehl,) Miss L. CLARK; Piano, "Fanfare Militaire," (Ascher,) Miss M. BEARD; Trio for Violin, Violoncello and Piano, (Markgraff,) Misses M. DAVID, B. WINKLER and M. DUFOUR; Piano, "Heber," (Shaw,) Miss KRULSHIK; Song, "Welcome," pretty Primrose," (Pinsuti,) Miss S. HUNNICUTT; Duo, "The Jolly Trumpeter Galop," (Behr,) Misses M. CLARK and M. FAGG; Song, "Lullaby," (Meyer,) Miss M. PENN; Duo, "Ojas Criolles, Danse Cubaine," (Gottschalk,) Misses D. CLISBY and E. HAZLEHURST; Piano, "Feu Follet," (Grau,) Miss DEADERICK; Duo, Overture, "Rosamunde," (Schubert,) Misses M. BEARD and M. DAVID.

The second part of the Concert was composed of the Grand Oratorio "Samson," by Handel, considered by many the choicest of the Oratorios. It was not given as a complete whole, but the solos and choruses were given in such a way that the connection was preserved. Misses TANNER, HUNNICUTT, FAHS, BEARD and CLARK had the soprano solos, and Messrs. F. H. VOGLER and E. A. EBERT the tenor and bass. The Dead March, with full orchestral accompaniment, is unsurpassed.

Altogether our closing exercises were successfully and artistically carried out, and our high standard in every department fully sustained.

—On Thursday evening, May 24, the Euterpean Society gave a closing Entertainment, beginning with a Society meeting, recitations, readings, music, &c., in the Chapel. Then in second session they adjourned to the dining-room where an elegant collation was spread on handsomely decorated tables. The whole was arranged and conducted with a good taste, judgment and idea of the fitness of things which we would not expect in school-girls.

—To our deep regret, Dr. HUME, after preaching our Baccalaureate Sermon, was compelled to return home on Monday in order to be present at and attend to his own Commencement duties, as the University Commencement fell on the same days as our own. We owe the Doctor many thanks for thus coming to us amid the heavy press of his multifarious cares, in order to minister to our needs, and we shall ever hold him in grateful remembrance. We have received so many favors during these closing days that we are in the position of the little boy who was expecting all the while to be surprised, — he had so many pleasing experiences to record.

—MINNIE FAGG'S grandfather Col. John A. Fagg died suddenly in Asheville, N. C., May 23. He was one of the last surviving officers of the Mexican War, and about 81 years of age.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., JUNE, 1888.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—The 85th Annual Session of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY begins August 30th, 1888. Entrance Examinations begin on August 28th.

—Persons who wish to avail themselves of the Special Through Car in September, will please notify us, so that we may send them the time tables.

—The overcrowded condition of the ACADEMY during the past year, and the prospects for a still larger attendance in the new term, make it desirable that those who intend to come should send applications at an early day, in order that the necessary preparations may be made for the greater comfort of all accommodated.

—The SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY is under obligations to many kind friends for aid, willingly and freely given, before, during and after Commencement week. To the Salem Orchestra and gentlemen singers; to the representatives of the press, and the newspapers in this and other States; to the railroad officials at home and at a distance; to the polite and accommodating operator of the Western Union telegraph office; to the ushers and their assistants; and to many citizens of Salem and Winston who so freely and enthusiastically gave their time and energy to make the Commencement a success. The smooth and pleasant manner in which every thing was conducted was mainly due to the fact that this whole-souled, unstinted aid was so freely given. To one and all we return our most hearty thanks for the kindness shown.

—A Special Through Car will be run from Central Texas to Salem, N. C., without change, before the opening of the Fall Term of the ACADEMY. This car will pass through Marshal, Shreveport, Vicksburg, Jackson, Meridian, Birmingham, Atlanta, Charlotte and Greensboro to Salem. This arrangement was made in order that parents who cannot leave home at that time can feel perfect safety in committing their daughters or wards into the hands of the railroad official who will escort the pupils to their destination. Parents who accompany the pupils will find this special car an aid in making the trip easy and pleasant.

—The Commencement number of THE ACADEMY bears with it to our pupils in their widely scattered homes their Alma Mater's last messages and good wishes for the close of the school-year of 1888. There is always an atmosphere about the last school-days that softens and subdues the sensibilities and disposes to profitable thought. All that was discouraging in the past months loses its sharpness of outline: the routine that perhaps wearied at the time, seen in the retrospect, appears what indeed it is, a wholesome support, the body of all successful work, and in place of them remain only tender and happy memories, springing hopes and pure desires.

We think of you in your several homes, and imagine what your occupations are. We join in your pleasures, and rejoice with you in the joy of your return to home and friends. We add our best wishes for health and happiness during the vacation. When these joys are over, think cheerfully of the school-home that again awaits your coming. The ACADEMY will greet you with her kindest smile, and with special pleasure to her adieu adds her

Au Revoir!

FAREWELL.

"Parting is such sweet sorrow,
That I would say "Farewell" till it be to-morrow."

Not so say we, however: the parting with our pride and joy, our Senior Class, is too painful to be very sweet just yet; the freshness of the wound precludes any pleasurable emotions, and the bitter drop in the farewell is the thought that it is final. There is no return for them as pupils, and if, perhaps, in years to come they may return for a brief visit, they will have changed: the cares and responsibilities of life will have stolen away the charm of their sunny maidenhood. In greeting them in after years, we feel like Mrs. Hemans, when she says:

"But ye! ye are changed since we met you last;
There is something bright from your features passed,
There is that come over your brow and eye,
Which speaks of a world where the flowers must die."

Your Alma Mater holds you in loving remembrance, and will follow the course of each one with affectionate interest, happy in your happiness, sympathizing in the troubles that come to all. May you remember her wholesome teachings, not only in your duties but especially in your pleasures, so that no bitterness of remembered folly or sin will be found in your cup of joy.

To the Alumnae of Salem Female Academy.

YOUR Alma Mater greets you affectionately though you have gone from her walls years ago: her heart throbs as warmly for you now, though the snows of age may have whitened your brow and bowed the upright figure. Her interest in her children never decreases or flags, and it is with a holy joy that she hears of your prosperity and success. Let yourselves be heard from: inquiries are frequently made by former schoolmates and friends, and we do not know how to reach you.

All former pupils of the ACADEMY, whether graduates or not, are invited to join the Alumnae Association. It ought to number thousands instead of hundreds. Nothing is required of a former pupil to become a member save an application to the President, or any member of the Executive Board, and a subscription for THE ACADEMY, the accredited organ of the Association. No fees of any sort are called for. The object of the Association is a general fostering of the ties of affection which bind together the children of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY wherever they may be, and the strengthening of such ties between themselves and the old school home, in order that her best interests may be subserved. It is through her children that the ACADEMY has become such a power, and it is through them that her usefulness may best be continued and increased.

—The Academy Annex or Bagge House accommodated a number of ladies in the Commencement season: Mrs. Winkler, of Corsicana, Texas; Mrs. Holt, Coney Texas; Mrs. Fabs, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Schoolfield and Mrs. Sutherland, of Danville.

SALUTATORY.

By MISS ADDIE FRIES, of Salem, N. C.

JUNE has come,—fair, rosy, merry June, the loveliest of all the children of the year! Crowned with fresh young leaves, and scattering blossoms on every side, she trips lightly along, the gayest of the gay. How fitting, then, that our Graduation day,—our day of commencing new and untried paths,—should fall within her reign, for our hearts are overflowing with that wild abandon of joy which older people say belongs only to the young. Be that as it may, we care not, we are simply very happy. Your presence here is the crowning joy which fills our cup of happiness to the brim.

We believe that you have come prompted by a kindly interest in us, and with a warm sympathy which will readily respond to our desire to please you. It is pleasant to feel that for once in our lives we are the principal feature of the occasion, the point upon which the varied rays of interest and of good wishes are brought to a focus.

To me has been entrusted the pleasant task of bidding you welcome, and of extending to you a hearty invitation to join with us in the Commencement exercises. Under the dome of the Capitol in Washington words uttered in one part of the Rotunda may be heard by another placed at some distance, as if they were spoken into the very ear of the hearer. Would that we occupied such a relation to you to-day, so that my words of welcome might fulfil their mission, and enable me to greet each one of you individually. Especially would I like to reach the ear of the Alumnae of the ACADEMY who have gathered from all parts of the country to renew acquaintance with their Alma Mater. You have stood where we stand now, and have felt each nerve and fibre tingle with pleasurable excitement. Will you not forget the years that have passed by,—years, no doubt, filled with many varying experiences, with alternating light and shadow, and if only for to-day, cast behind you all trouble and anxiety, and with light hearts sympathize with us in our happiness?

Last September when we first took our place as Seniors, the idea of graduation was very shadowy and indistinct, while June seemed so far off as to be almost a myth. As the weeks passed swiftly by, filled with earnest labor, our thoughts gradually assumed a more tangible form, and we began to realize that there was such a thing as Commencement after all, and that it was advancing with rapid steps. Now, for the past few weeks, all our glances have been directed toward this goal.

There is an old belief that at a certain distance above us all the sounds of earth, which are so different, of such varied tones and meanings, are blended into one great harmony. So with us, for the past year many sounds have been combined in our ears,—the patter of drops, the occasional friction of imaginary fetters, the carols of joyful hearts, the busy hum of the recitation room, the Babel of a hundred voices, the noise of sharp conflicts, for when girls meet Mathematics "then comes the tug of war," the concord of sweet sounds in Shakespeare, Milton, Coleridge and Keats. Now we have reached that height where all combine to form one sweet harmonious song, the remembrance of which will linger with us long after the separate notes have faded away in the distance.

The future looks very bright to us: a rose tint hangs over every object, every purpose, rendering them so alluring that we long to be "up and doing, still achieving, still pursuing." No doubt when the sun of experience has risen in his might, he will scatter many airy fabrics, and reveal many stern facts now unknown or unheeded.

"Ourselves with scorn
Perhaps shall view what now so fair appears,
And wonder whence the fancied charm was born," but,

"Oh, the joy
Of young ideas painted on the mind,
In the warm, glowing colors fancy spreads,
On objects not yet known, when all is new,
And all is lovely."

How many mute questionings fill our minds to-day, in this Present, which so completely shuts us in, that we cannot foresee what even a day or an hour may bring forth. How we would like to know what our part will be when, with school-books laid aside, we step upon the stage to take our places in the world's great drama! Will it in any degree fill the measure of our strength, our hopes, our expectations? Only Time can reveal to us what lies beyond.

"The Past is turned from us, and sleeps;—do not wake it:

The Future is His, with its brambles and flowers.

Face to face with to-day, we can mar it or make it,

The Present alone is ours!"

Since we may not know, we shall do well to make the best possible use of what we can call our own, of the To-day which we have in our power to make or to mar, taking "no thought for the morrow, for the morrow will take thought for the things of itself," saith He whose loving eye compasses the whole path we may have to tread. May we strive by His help with whose assistance we cannot fail to be successful, to employ the knowledge which we have gained here so that we may be a comfort and a help to those around us.

"Onward, onward, may we press,
Through the path of duty:—
Virtue is true happiness, Excellence, true beauty."

VALEDICTORY.

By MISS JEANIE REYNOLDS, of Aberdeen, Miss.

A COLLEGE Commencement is a representative of the choicest culture and of the greatest intellectual forces, as it is the outgrowth of the highest christian civilization. Nor is it wanting in poetic or ideal elements; its music, its addresses, its assemblage of friends from all parts of the country, its reunion of Alumnae who have gathered again in the old school-home,—all make it an occasion of interest to us who stand as it were at the charmed centre of things.

The close of school-life naturally brings with it serious thought, for we stand on the water-shed of Time, with restless, eager eyes peering into what lies before us, into this great, this magic land, the Future, on which the lights and shadows play with beautifying radiance. The veiled years, sweet in their mysterious silence, beckon us on:—the Past detains us with gentlest clinging touch, and we hesitate, — drawn contrariwise between the two.

Ten years have passed since the first regular graduating class stood upon this platform, and glanced, as we do, back upon the Past, and forward with eager insistence into "The Future's great veil which our breath fully flaps, While behind it broods ever the mighty Per-haps."

During this decade 153 graduates have left these ACADEMY walls, and with our class of 30 form a book of 183 chapters, some of them fuller and more varied than others. Forty-five chapters had their gilded leaves of happy married life;—forty-four have become faithful teachers, and their many trials and strict attention to duty would fill a lengthy volume. Four had their chapters cut short already in the early spring-time of life, and God gathered them around his throne in happy union.

To-day, the 30 graduates before you are like 30 bells, some resonant and deep-toned,—others ringing out merry jingling sounds of happy sleigh-bell accompaniment. These joyous ringers may in treading the thorny paths of this world, have their merry tones subdued and made more sweet by its many trials and sorrows:—so many bells and so many lives all forming the harmony of a noble music. May we, after leaving our dear Alma Mater, ring out the influences which we have received during our stay, and prove a credit to her.

Our lives are before us: will they have more of bitter or of sweet,—of song or of sighing,—of stillness or of strife? Changeless sunshine would be a great sorrow:—some rights must gloom, and days be dreary. Shrouded in the mist of years, the unseen, the unknown, the untried Future lies! All that our lives have been, are, and shall be, are making up a glorious drama beside which Shakespeare's most finely wrought fancies are dull and lifeless. There will be tragedies, comedies and histories, and only the great Master of Life can so carefully compass the whole plan as to work out the dramatic unities aright, in their full completeness.

We hope to go on gaining higher culture of mind and heart. Experience will be our teacher: no other mentor has so wasted, so grave a face; no other sits so stern, so inexorable, so resistless in her authority, yet it is only by her instructions that we can ever find a safe path through the intricate pitfalls and snares of Time.

It is a lesson that should be impressed on every mind that it is not the little or the much that we have acquired at school that is an augury of future successes, but the use we make of our achievements. There will be work for us to do: no woman ever yet lacked work if she looked about her. She need not seek a career; she need only take up the nearest duty, and do it as if it were the only thing on earth to be done.

"Work is the holiest thing in earth or heaven,
To lift from souls their sorrow and the curse:
This dear employment must to us be given
While there is want in God's great universe."

If usefully employed, life can never be a burden to us. As we grow older, beyond the so-called pleasures and amusements of youth, we shall only consolidate our forces and concentrate our purposes. Every year will evoke order out of confusion, will sweep a broader circle for our horizon. Thus we shall not fear these years, for they bear in their bosoms the fullness of life; shinning dim and beautiful, they will still be our vassals, swift-footed to bear our messages, swift handed to work our will. Then, as we go on in years, the ripe, rich years will be getting into us, as one by one the crudities, the bewilderments and uncertainties of youth shall fall from us.

"No life
Can be pure in its purpose and strong in its strife,
And all life not be stronger and purer thereby.
The spirits of just men made perfect on high,
The army of martyrs who stand by the throne,
And gaze into the Face that makes glorious their own,
Know this surely at last: Honest love, honest sorrow,
Honest work for the day, honest hope for the morrow!
Are these worth nothing more than the hand
they make weary."

The heart they have saddened, the life they left dreary?
Hush! the seven-fold heavens to the voice of the Spirit
Re-echo: "He that overcometh shall all things inherit!"

Farewell! a word that must be and hath been! a sound which makes us linger as we think of leaving our dear ACADEMY home, where we have pursued the noblest objects, and framed the loftiest ideals; where the most intimate and loving friendships have been formed,—where some have been born into a spiritual life. Soon the shady spots in the Playgrounds will be deserted, the piazzas and halls which are as dear to us as Mt. Zion to the longing tribes of Israel, or Mecca to the Prophet's followers, will be silent and tenantless. We will no longer linger around the sparkling waters of the fountain, no more essays will be written by the purling brook which seemed to inspire us with poetic fancies. The weeping willow, which may be weeping for the days that are not, will no longer cast its chequered shade for the Seniors of '88.

We would still like to go on receiving knowledge from our kind instructors, but the parting has come as it needs must, and we give up our places to others, to you, Seniors of '89. To you we extend a hearty, a cordial welcome: it is, however, with reluctance that we surrender to you our class-room and our bright study parlor, where 20 of us loved to sit and talk of what we would do, some day, some time! Happily, the walls cannot tell, for if they could, what tales they might unfold! and though we have gotten through the year creditably, we might have done better; but of this we can assure you, our successors, that your Senior year will be your brightest year in school, if strict attention is paid to duty,—and, as I look into your faces, duty seems to be written there. We feel that we have surrendered our claims to a deserving class, and have the assurance that next year will likewise be a happy, a successful one. Do not let the memory of the class of '88 sink into utter oblivion, for it is sweet to be remembered.

Farewell seems to be the key-note to-day, borne on every passing breeze to the Class of '88! Ah! class-mates, I would that others could utter the parting words for me. Soon our closely united chain of friendship must be broken, and we shall be hurrying in different directions as fast as steam can carry us. We hope to have a re-union in 5 years, and may that reunion be as joyous as this parting day is sad! and may not one of the 30 be missing from the happy circle that is thus linked together in closest friendship. May our attachment to our Alma Mater strengthen with every passing year, and may she be proud to call us her children.

To you, our dear Principal and teachers, who have ever had our interests in view, we are most indebted, for you have borne with us during our impatient, homesick hours, and it is with aching hearts and tearful eyes that we say Farewell! As the years roll on, our Diplomas will be closely written over with the familiar faces of class-mates, teachers and Principals, with incidents of school-life mellowed and softened by the tender haze of Memory, and though our farewells must be spoken, and though one or the other may be absent from our anticipated re-union, let us so live that at the Greater Re-union by the green palms of the River, amid the gleaming radiance of the Father's House, not one may fail to receive the Diploma of Eternal Life!

The Alumnae Meeting.

OUR Alumnae meeting was a source of great pleasure to all concerned; the re-union of friends, the recalling of old reminiscences, and the general cordiality and good feeling which prevailed, made it a most enjoyable occasion. There were 150 names upon our list, of parties widely scattered all over the country from Washington Territory to the West Indies, and of this number 103 were present. About 50 names were added during the meeting and afterwards, making a membership of over 200. In consequence of the desire expressed by many for the publication of the papers read at the meeting, we shall give several in this issue of THE ACADEMY, communicating the others from time to time as we have the space.

RE-UNION SONG OF THE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION OF SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

Composed and dedicated to them by Miss A. VAN VLECK.

From far and near we gather here,
In glad re-union meeting,
And eye meets eye, and heart meets heart,
In kind and joyous greeting.
Our Alma Mater greets us too,
Her children welcome ever,
For she has linked us to her heart
With chains time cannot sever.

Chorus.

Then of our Alma Mater dear
We sing with loving voices,
Let each Alumna join the song,
For each in her rejoices.
Our love for her will ever shine
With undiminished lustre,
For round her walls how many thoughts
And happy memories cluster.
Of School-mates, Teachers, Principals,
(Alas! some gone forever!)
A retrospect both glad and sad,
But would we lose it? Never!

Chorus.

We look around and faces see,
Both past and present linking,
But still of absent school-mates dear,
Our hearts are fondly thinking;
Of walks and rides together shared,
With hearts light as a feather;
Of holidays and merry plays,
And lessons conned together.

Chorus.

But if on earth no more we meet,
May we enjoy in union,
On God's own great Commencement Day,
A Heavenly Reunion.
God bless our Alma Mater then,
And us who soon must sever,
And may her teachings good and true,
Abide with us forever.

Chorus.

God bless our Alma Mater then,
And us who soon must sever,
And may her teachings, good and true,
Abide with us forever.

THE ACADEMY OF TODAY.

By Miss E. HUNNICUTT, of Atlanta, Ga.

The ACADEMY of the Present is built upon the strong, secure foundation of the Past. Based upon the best European models, with Principals and Educators of the true, cultured, German type, it has increased in power, intellect, and vast influence until now it stands among the foremost ranks of any institution of its kind, North or South.

No wonder it is a success, for it is the result of European culture and American push and integrity. A people noted for their progress have, for many years, with united efforts, strengthened and supported the institution until now, hundreds of homes in grateful acknowledgment of the benefits derived and pleasure gained therefrom, rise up and call it blessed, and the daughters scattered far and wide over our United States are bound together in one grand sisterhood, having enjoyed the privileges and training of this grand old institution. Dear Alumnae, should we not feel grateful for such a privilege, even as when the Chinese women were rescued from heathendom by enlightenment, so may we proclaim our ACADEMY one of the bright lights of our Nation, sending forth its rays to bless and crown our Southern homes with peace, happiness and joy.

Let us cast for a moment a retrospective glance over the past four years, and note the improvements made during that time.

In 1884, Dr. EDWARD RONDTHALER became Principal, with Mr. CLEWELL as assistant, and under their administration many improvements have been made. In April, 1885, the class rooms were relegated to the old Academy, and dwelling rooms were converted into pretty and home-like study parlors, each parlor being fitted up with carpets, rocking-chairs and sofas. The room companies seem to vie with each other to see which one can most beautify their parlor by adding here and there a bright picture or a vase of fresh flowers.

It is, no doubt, a pleasing sight for the former pupils to pass through the dormitories and see the wonderful changes that have been made to secure more comfort and privacy for the pupils. The beds have been alcoved—each girl has her bed and trunk enclosed with bright bordered curtains. The washing rooms are closely connected with the alcoves, so that every arrangement has been made for the comfort and pleasure of the girls.

Amidst all the improvements of '85 there is none which has added more pleasure than the introduction of Croquet, Lawn Tennis, Archery, etc. As you stroll through the play-grounds where Nature has bestowed its most beautiful gifts,—through pleasant shades, past rippling streams, across rustic bridges,—you catch glimpses of girls running to and fro, some playing Tennis, others busy with Croquet, while their rosy cheeks and smiling faces indicate health and happiness, the result of such amusement,—these do indeed form a charming picture. Three new fountains have lately been added to the grounds.

The Commercial Department which was added to the school in 1886, including —The Salem Orchestra gave a closing promenade concert in the Public Square, Monday night, June 4. A large crowd was in attendance.

Telegraphy, Short-Hand, Book-keeping, etc., has somewhat surpassed the expectations of its projectors. It is on a steady increase, a number of the girls having gained positions in banking and business houses, doing credit not only to themselves but to the ACADEMY.

The Studio occupies large and handsome rooms upon the fourth floor in the north wing, and under the skillful management of Miss GERTRUDE SIEWERS has steadily increased in art and beauty.

The ACADEMY has always been noted for its fine music, and as the years pass by marked progress is visible.

Thus could I continue to sing the praises of our Alma Mater, which to our hearts is so dear; but will desist from further comments with a wish for the welfare of any and all who are connected with the ACADEMY, and praying God's blessing upon their noble efforts. And to you, dear Alumnæ, may this coming together bind us more closely to each other and the interests of the school. May we be a grand, sweet sisterhood, like the order of Masonry, one in sentiment, love and principle.

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

By Mrs. CLARA DARGAN McLEAN.

Affectionately inscribed to the Alumnæ Association of Salem Female Academy.

From this fair haven,—Salem, "port of Peace,"
Our barks sailed forth, o'er Life's alluring sea;
Bright was the sun, and favoring breezes blew,
The hours passed swift, with mirth and minstrelsy.

Anon, the wind of sadness 'gan to blow,
Dark clouds obscured the sky,—the sunshine died,—
Ah, God! we saw the fierce storm beat our sail,
Despair seemed lowering near, and Hope denied.

We threw our joys, like Jonahs, overboard,
"These bring us death," we cried,—yet all in vain!

The hurtling waters asked not sacrifice,
But lighting of the ship from stress and strain.

Passion, and Prejudice, and selfish Care,
Lost Opportunities, and fond Regrets,—
If these we willing cast into the deep,
Angels will gather them in harvest nets.

From farthest wave, broken on crags of woe,
From cares where Doubt and Death their coils unfold,
Safe to the tideless shore they will be borne,
Transfigured by a sea-change into gold.

Courage, my comrades! soon the voyage past,
Danger forgot and all our labors o'er,
A happier harbor waits our beaten prow,
And rescued wrecks prove treasures evermore.
May 10, '88. St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, N. J.

A VOICE FROM EDGECOMBE.

By Mrs. DRAUGHN (S. HELLEN).

Did you call me, Alma Mater? It has been near a quarter of a century since I heard your voice before. Those years crept slowly by and so softly one scarcely knew of their going. So long since your sheltering arms encircled me. Now rock me to sleep, Mother, and let me be a child again just for to-night, and I'll tell you my dream of "Days there were to memory dearer,

Forms and scenes of long ago,
And how the thoughts
Now crowd upon me,
You shall know."

In the days of that little unpleasantness Salem became a safe retreat for young females, persecuted by real or imaginary dangers. Far off Texas, with her broad borders, dared not keep her daughters but hurried them off to our Salem till after the war. Don't you remember LIZZIE GREER? "Behold! she had dove's eyes. From the Peninsula they came, and from the other Carolina, and from all our border States, with the word, "take care of our girls while we drive out the invaders."

Every day came new applications till the word went back,—"no room, but if you will bring beds we will try to board you;" soon that resource was exhausted, and some went out in town to live, which was against the rule, for the good President knew that it was best not to suffer girls to be led into temptation. We New-Berne girls were of the shut-out ones, temporarily, who found shelter and comfort in the home of Mrs. Clewell, mother of your honored President. She had learned well the text: "Entertain strangers, for in so doing you may entertain angels unawares." We refugees found the angels in every good woman's house in the neighborhood.

In the first room of the ACADEMY sat Miss STAUBER, one of the most energetic women of that day. Time had been caressing her brow and sprinkling the dust of years among her hair before we knew her. Her dignity remained the same, and she ordered her troop about like one born to command. Sent me on one occasion the second time after water because she saw no drops on the outside of the pitcher the first time. Miss BRIETZ was her co-laborer, a woman of petrified prudence and justice. Those two women were wise virgins who kept their lamps burning. Misses PFOHL and REICHEL kept the second room. We never lived with them, yet I know how Miss PFOHL vexed her righteous soul with our 2d Grammar class.

In the third room were Misses WELFARE and CLEWELL. Girls, you remember how much nearer Heaven Miss WELFARE was than the rest of us in that room. As for Miss MAGGIE CLEWELL she could look right into a girl's eyes and see how bad she was; then put her arms around her and help her out of her difficulty.

About the 1st floor I know but little, except I had a "lieb crank" down there named ANNIE PENDER. Miss ADDIE HERMAN lived there, who rarely ever smiled, especially not in French class. Where are these noble women? Echo answers, Where? Only "their footprints on the sands of time" we see. In the basement, you remember, tripped Prof. GRUNERT to teach us to "bisect a line," which was very hard to do if it ran across our inclinations. Also to him the wonder grew that girls could not translate puer at their first Latin lesson. Close by my side sat dear ADDIE DE SCHWEINITZ. If the spirits of the departed can mingle with the living, she is here. If the loved and lovely are about us, she is here. Some of you girls of the New Edition know, perhaps, Miss SARAH SHAFFNER, of S. F. A., well, she used to be "Sallie," and was my David and I her Jonathan. Let us not tell about every one we loved and who loved us, for friendship is a finely spun article, the less you use it the longer it lasts. Besides our paper is growing like Moore's old edition of N. C. History, more names than matter.

Academy girls were not always good,—they sometimes went into the dining-room and eat sugar, then had to be called before the court in the chapel and hear Mr. DE SCHWEINITZ tell them how much better they lived there than at their own homes, because coffee and sugar were not found in every man's house "during the war." We had well furnished tables three times a day, and a luncheon at four. On the President's birthdays we had big dinners and the girls had big pockets made for the occasion, and the spoils we carried off lasted several days. After a while some of us, who thought we were ready to graduate when we reached Salem, succeeded in getting into the Select Class. There was noble, earnest, energetic Mrs. DENKE. The fragrance of her presence lingers with me still. She was old and bowed down, yet it is well known that "full heads hang low." At seventy-five she had forgotten more than any of us ever, in the pride of our intellect, knew. We recited in the Library, through which we used to march, in single file, into the grand old church, whose sacred services will ever shed a hallowed influence over our lives.

All these days were chequered with news of the war. The same mail brought joy to one heart and sorrow to another, for those were days to try women's hearts. We had not long to wait now. On one dread day, a troop of the enemy's cavalry came scouring and plundering our "sure retreat." The postoffice was ransacked, and the news of life and death spread abroad. "Somebody's darling lay dying," it said. Somebody's brother was shut up in a Northern prison—in that loathsome place he was well nigh starving. We girls did not dare more than peep at the Blue Coats, not caring to expose the poverty of our much loved Confederacy by showing our homespun dresses, with bindings of scraps of before the war calico. On went the marauders to the factory, and took bolts of the renowned Salem jeans and strapped them behind their saddles; and as they travelled the rear horses trampled on some of the very same cloth that it cost us over a hundred dollars to get a cloak off of. These obnoxious intruders stayed about the place, keeping our tempers high and our tongues limber. Our Salem soldier boys said it was not right for the girls to sit in church with the Yankees. These were high-minded, hot-blooded young fellows, who were not afraid to die for those they loved. "Children, you are wrong," said venerable Bishop Bahnson; "with God there is no respect of persons." I see you remember it yet, you with silver threads among the jet. The school had passed safely through the measles, scarlet-fever and small-pox, so we had reason to hope it might stand the war, and it did.

In this country I could mention a number of Salem's daughters who speak of it as one of the dearest spots on earth.

Now, honored and highly esteemed Alumnae, while you are gathered in social and intellectual assemblage, we will sing:

"Do they miss me,
'Twould be an assurance most dear;
'To know that at the Commencement
Some loved ones were saying:
'I wish they were here!'"

HOLSTON SPRINGS, May 31st, 1888.

Pres. of Alumnae Association:

It is with feelings of mingled pleasure and pain that I greet you, and through you the members of the Association gathered again under such happy circumstances. It is exceedingly pleasant to remember the many happy days I spent in Salem as a student of the ACADEMY. At the Annual Re-union of the Society and Commencement exercises, I met some dear friends and school-mates which forcibly brought to mind the days of long ago. It is painful to remember that within one short month of that happy time, my darling little Maggie, then in the bloom of perfect health, was taken from us, but I have bowed humbly to the will of my God, and have said, "Not my will, but thine, be done." Nevertheless, human nature will assert itself, and hence the pain.

"A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled."

I regret so much that I cannot be with you again, but assure you and the Association that you have my sympathy and support. I rejoice to note from THE ACADEMY that the membership is steadily increasing, and hope it may go on until the name of every old student is enrolled. With a heart full of love for you and all my old friends and school-mates,

I am, very sincerely,
MRS. R. A. AYERS,
(VICTORIA MORRISON).

—The Futurity books that for a time were all the rage, were in many cases, left for the trash boxes, a very near and ignoble future for some precious thoughts!

Chronicle and Gossip.

—The crystal letters of the Senior Class Motto, "Finis Coronat Opus," in the Chapel, attracted a great deal of admiring comment.

—No girls are left for vacation, and the buildings are now given over to cleaners, plasterers, &c. Desolation reigns supreme.

—The Seniors were the recipients of a delicious treat of strawberries, cream and cake, from the kindness of Mrs. Clisby and Mrs. Hyman on May 29.

—The Class rings of the graduates were obtained in good time, and were handsome, broad band rings with '88 in very distinct, raised figures on the front.

—FOUND!—In the ACADEMY, a solid gold ring; also a silver bangle, with letters, "H. M. B., May, '85." The owners can have them by applying to the editors of THE ACADEMY.

—The success of our Alumnae meeting encourages us to hope much from its influence in the future, and makes us urge all former pupils to send us their names for enrollment.

—During Commencement we sent our dispatches from the ACADEMY office direct to Washington, Richmond and other points; henceforward all our dispatches will be so sent.

—Many thanks to W. S. Pfohl for an invitation to a Debate given by the Salem Literary Society in the Music Hall, May 25. The Society is doing a good work in developing the talent in our midst.

—The Seniors were invited to the Closing Exercises of the Winston Graded School, May 17, and would have been happy to attend, but it chanced to be the day of their closing examination in Physiology, which could not be postponed.

—Dr. and Mrs. RONDTHALER planned a Senior picnic to Bethabara on June 1st, but the continuous rain preventing, they invited the Seniors to a social Tea, which was enjoyed as only school-girls do enjoy creature comforts and social pleasures.

—Prof. MARKGRAFF, the musical director of the ACADEMY, set out for his home in Nieu-saltz, Germany, on Friday, June 8. Professor Robert Carmichael, to whom we are so much indebted for faithful musical services, accompanied him as far as New York.

—The number of our visiting friends and patrons at Commencement was unusually large. They began to arrive in the preceding week, and every train brought additions to the company. The hotels were filled to overflowing, and many were the guests of private families in both towns.

—The "Causa Honoris" Ribbon has been given to only two young ladies previous to the Commencement of '88, viz.: to Miss BESSIE PFOHL, '86, and Miss VICTORIA SWANN, '87. It was bestowed on Misses DAISY CLISBY and KATE PADDISON recently, and is a mark of distinction to be appreciated.

—The members of the Senior Middle Class met in the Library on Tuesday morning, June 5th, to receive the tickets showing whether or not they had passed into the Senior Class of '89. It is always a painfully anxious moment till the pupil reaches the hall and opens her envelope. The new class promises to be of very fine constituency.

—Col. Belo's presence was a happy feature in our Commencement exercises, united in interests as Texas and North Carolina should be. He is a native of Salem, N. C., and an adopted son of Texas, and has done noble work for the great interests of our day in his papers, the Galveston and Dallas News, among the foremost periodicals of the South.

—The floral decorations in the church on the occasion of the Baccalaureate Sermon were almost wholly of pure white water lillies, the generous gift of Dr. Bahnson. On Commencement morning he also sent the Seniors a stand of water lillies in such profusion that each Senior wore them. These graceful gifts were appreciated by them, and will ever be remembered in connection with this red-letter day of their lives.

—On May 25, Rev. J. H. and Mrs. CLEWELL gave a reception to the Senior and Senior Middle classes of the ACADEMY. Over 100 were present. It was one of those charming evenings that make school-days pleasant to look back upon, besides being delightful at the time, and was a pleasing compensation for the anxiety and worry of closing examinations. The recherche entertainments of the evening will long be remembered.

—On Thursday morning, June 7, the ACADEMY was early astir. After a 5 o'clock breakfast, the crowds of girls were stowed away in the long line of carriages and omnibuses at the door. Good-byes, promises to write, and vows of affection were interchanged, and soon the buildings were well nigh deserted. A few girls were left for the evening train, but the great mass started in the morning. Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, the Principal, and several lady-teachers accompanied the girls to Greensboro. All trunks and baggage were checked at the ACADEMY, and the whole night was spent in conveying trunks to the depot.

—A correspondent from Rome, Ga., asks concerning the historical facts embodied in Longfellow's poem, "Hymn of the Moravian Nuns at the Presentation of Pulaski's Banner." The facts are as follows: Pulaski, the gallant Pole, who came over to assist in our Revolutionary War, was in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, on wounded furlough. Before he left the place, the Moravian Sisters (not nuns) presented him with a crimson silk banner, which he courteously accepted, saying it should be defended with his life and be his shroud in death. The minor details of the poem are all incorrect; there are no Moravian nuns, and the accessories of burning incense, in swinging censers before the altar, the cowed heads, "the nuns' sweet hymn sung low in the dim, mysterious aisle," all existed only in the poet's imagination.

—Among the new members of our Alumnae Association are Mrs. J. H. Clewell, (Alice Wolle) Salem, N. C.; Mrs. Dr. Strickland, (Lilian Lehman) Bethania, N. C.; Mrs. Hemsath (Ada Leimbach) Bethlehem, Pa.; Mrs. Alice Hord Warner, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mrs. A. E. George, (Elizabeth Lash) Wenonda, Va.; Mrs. W. W. Barnard, (Cordie Sluder) Asheville, N. C.; Mrs. B. Williams, (Sue Bryan) Granville Co., N. C.; Mrs. Dr. Booth, (Anna Clewell) Granville, N. C.; Mrs. Dr. Hunter, (J. Siddall) Mrs. C. A. Hege (Fannie Spaugh) Salem, N. C.; Mrs. J. A. Biting, (Louise Wilson) Mrs. A. B. Gorrell (F. Wilson) Winston, N. C.; Mrs. E. T. Clemmons, (Hattie Butner) Asheville, N. C.; Mrs. Geo. Nissen, (Sallie Stafford) Wauhtown, N. C.; Misses Mary Gorrell, Flora Lott, Mamie Dwire, Della Hine, Ada Dodson, Winston, N. C.; Helen de Schweinitz, Bethlehem, Pa.; Eliza Clark, Little Rock, S. C.; Jeanie Reynolds, Aherdeen, Miss.; Daisy Clisby, Macon, Ga.; Nellie Bewley, Anderson, S. C.; Fannie Holt, Graham, N. C.; Nina Flournoy, Shreveport, La.; Annie Hill, Raleigh, N. C.; Maggie David, Bennettsville, S. C.; Kate Paddison, Titusville, Fla.; Alice Hill, Germantown, N. C.; Lula Deaderick, Jonesboro, Tenn.; Sallie Hunnicutt, Atlanta, Ga.; Anne and Laura Stokes, Danville, Va.; Mattie Bahnon, Farmington, N. C.; Anne Boyd, Summit, Miss.; Bettie McLaurin, Clio, S. C.; Mary V. Smith, Coxville, N. C.; Minnie Beard, Kernersville, N. C.; Hattie Swift, Addie Shore, Annie Landquist, Emma and Louie Fisher, Agnes Hauser, Mary Lewis, Minnie Vogler, Bessie Pfohl, Salem, N. C.; Lily Scott, Ida Moore, Charlotte, N. C.; Stella Nissen, Wauhtown, N. C.; Mrs. William Ormsby, Salem, N. C.; Misses Maggie Eccles, Clemmonsville, N. C.; Mamie Thomas, N. C.; Lizzie Thomas, Jefferson, N. C.; Julia Hicks, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. Dr. Dalton, (L. Biting) Mrs. Don Shelton, (S. Biting) Winston, N. C.

Painting, Embroidery and Needle-work Exhibit.

PAINTINGS.

LENA CHAFFIN.—A marine view, tambourine with sunset scene, and metal panel with landscape.

JULIA MRACHUM.—Water scene with rushes and pond lilies, Tambourine with thistles and birds.

ANNE SWANN.—Water scene with rushes, marsh lilies, &c., tambourine with tiny chicks.

BELLE MCKAY.—Morning glories, and Tambourine with winter landscape.

MARY W. SMITH.—Plaque plush frame, with jonquils, pansies, &c. Winter landscape. Large panel of nasturtiums. Porcelain plaque plush frame, design of bird and blossom.

ALLA GIBBS.—Large landscape. Plush framed porcelain plaque, with bird and wild rose design. Plaque with lilies and jessamine, and another with snow scene at sunset.

NELLIE BRYAN.—Plaque, with morning glory and pansy design. Snow scene. Tambourine, with windmill design, and large study of cherries with landscape background.

LILLY FAHS.—Large painting of Jaqueminot roses, and a shield with flight of swallows.

ELIZA CLARK.—Painting of dog's head, and large study of Jaqueminot roses.

BIRDIE DAVIS.—Landscape at sunset. Large panel of storks reeds, &c., and plaque with snow scene at sunset.

LULA TANNER.—Study of lillies and jessamine.

ANN E. THREADGILL.—Plaque with landscape design and spray of pond lilies. Umbrella stand with cranes and water grasses. Shield with bird and apple blossoms.

ALICE EVANS.—Plaque, landscape and flowers, and large study of magnolias.

DAISY CLISBY.—Brass plaque with snow scene. Three panel screen with flower designs. Landscape at sunset. Head of Breton peasant. Porcelain plaque, plush framed with fisher girl and another of Mareschal Neil roses. Also brass tray, photo frame decorated palette and blotter.

MRS. J. C. BUXTON.—Umbrella stand with design of storks and marsh grasses. Head of girl on tambourine. Two studies of children's heads, trays, plaques, &c.

MRS. W. B. GLENN.—Study of pansies, and large picture of chrysanthemums.

MARY PETERSON.—Forest scene with deer. Plaque with morning glories. English church, landscape. Plaque with birds and holly. Palette with marine view and pond lily's spray. Study of roses.

Child's portrait, free hand drawing finished in crayon, by Miss S. O. H. DICKSON.

Drawings from the cast by about twenty beginners, comprising drawings of geometrical figures, leaves, fruit and block-heads.

EMBROIDERY.

DAISY CLISBY. Sofa cushion, olive plush with poppies and wheat. Toilette cushion, red plush with golden rod and daisies. Drawn work buffet cover, and towel mat and tray cover of linen with drawn work. Table scarf of plush and felt.

FANNIE HOLT.—Fir pillow. Easel and table scarfs of china silk, plush and felt. Bannerette with pansies. Sachet, pink plush with daisies, &c., &c.

A. MAY SCHOOLFIELD.—Mantel scarf, old gold with morning glory and pansy designs done in chenille. Old gold felt and plush table scarf, roses and geraniums. Fir pillow with crackle design. Portfolio, easel scarf, dressing case scarf of china silk and plush with tinsel embroidery. Golden brown plush and yellow satin toilette set. Photo case, picture frame of plush, chair back, sachet, &c.

KATIE FROST.—Fir pillow crackle design and table scarf felt and plush with poppies and morning glories.

HELEN RUFF.—Fir pillow, tidies, sachet, &c.

ANNIE BOYD.—Toilette set old gold and pink, and table scarf felt and plush with morning glory and honeysuckle design.

MARY W. SMITH.—Fir pillow, handsome mantel lambrequin, three elaborate table scarfs, chair backs, sachets, toilette sett, lace handkerchief. Specimens of drawn work. Buggy robe, &c., &c.

ALLA GIBBS.—Three handsome table scarfs, tidies, &c.

BESSIE HOLT.—Table scarf, felt and plush, portfolio tidies, photo frame, fir hag, &c.

MARY ATKINSON.—Table scarf, sachet and easel, scarf of china silk.

NELLIE WARNER.—Fir bag, large plush picture frame with roses, toilette sett, sachets, pin cushion, &c.

VIRGINIA BURSON.—Very handsome garnet plush mantel lambrequin and table scarf, elaborately embroidered in ribbon and chenille. Wall banner, photo frame, china silk scarf, &c.

KATIE MOSES.—Table scarf of garnet felt and plush with jonquils, etc., done in chenille, thermometer panel, chair backs, &c.

JANIE S. SMITH.—Old gold felt and plush table scarf with roses and geraniums. Fir pillow, &c.

ANNA FAHS.—Handsome plush, toilette sett, dressing case scarf, peacock blue plush sofa pillow with golden rod and daisies. Sachet, &c.

LILLY FAHS.—Old gold satin clock scarf with peacock feathers, sachet, tidies, &c.

NETTIE DUNLAP.—Mantel lambrequin, garnet felt and plush with pond lilies in chenille. Thermometer panel, whisk holder, photo frame, chair tidies, &c.

LIZZIE FITZGERALD.—Portfolio, shaving case, felt and plush table scarf, fir pillow, crackle design, plush toilette set, &c.

MARY PRETLOW.—Table scarf, garnet with pansies and geranium designs. Fir pillow, scrim scarfs, photo frames, &c.

MARY PENN.—Blue plush banner with poppies, and photo cases, portfolio, chair backs, &c.

IDA BLACKWELL.—Table scarf turquois and peacock blue, with wild rose to honey suckle design, tidies, &c.

What our Brethren of the Press say of Commencement Week.

It is not always pleasant to "see ourselves as others see us," but in the present instance it is a matter of modest satisfaction to know that the Press reporters from our own and other States were able to find interest and pleasure in the Commencement. We give below brief extracts from a number of the papers, acknowledging to them, with thanks, the kind and friendly spirit which prompted the writing of the paragraphs.

"Salem Female Academy is an educational institution of very high grade. Its system of mental, moral and physical training is inimitable, while its curriculum is as thorough and complete and almost as ornate as Vassar."—Greensboro Patriot.

"Dr. Hume made a fine impression on our people, and as some one said on leaving the church 'he is a small man, but a large one.'"—Raleigh News and Observer.

"The telegraphic instrument at the Academy is connected with the Western Union at Winston. Matters of news and business are flashed over the wire from the Principal's office, and frequently the operator is a young lady pupil."—Greensboro Patriot.

"I stepped into Prof. Clewell's private office about 12 o'clock last night. I found Maj. Duffy there sending press dispatches about the Commencement to the various papers which he represents. This is enterprise."—Raleigh News and Observer.

"Altogether the closing exercises of Salem Female Academy were bright and most successful. Everything was first-class and artistically rendered, and the high standard of merit in every department was fully sustained."—Salem Press.

"All honor to the Academy and its efficient Principal comes from the hearts of those who attended the Commencement of 1888. May this grand old institution in the historic town of Salem never cease its great and noble work."—Asheville Citizen.

"While dinner was being served today the Salem Orchestra favored the occasion with music such as only that organization can produce."—Raleigh News and Observer.

"The song, 'Farewell,' was a production of the Academy, and was beautiful both in wording and in music. Miss Bewley is indeed a poet, Prof. Markgraff is known as a musical artist, and they were fortunate in their selection of the sweet-voiced Miss Hunnicutt to lead in its singing."—Winston Sentinel.

"Members of the press and many other friends were invited to eat Commencement dinner. Like every other portion of the exercises the dinner was a success, and the closest and most undivided attention was given it."—Raleigh News and Observer.

"A class of 30 young ladies graduated. The essays were above the usual order of what we hear on such occasions, and the graduates gave evidence of having received excellent drill in elocutionary exercises."—Winston Schoolteacher.

"So the old Academy has again renewed her youth, and with her principles still more firmly grounded than ever, she stands the ripe, cultured, religious school that her founders intended her to be, and the present management will leave nothing undone to further her best interests."—Danville Register.

"The special features in the Institute Concert this (Wednesday) evening were the most difficult ever attempted and the most brilliant ever given in this section, famous for its proficiency in music."—Wilmington Messenger.

"Rev. Dr. Rondthaler, late Principal, delivered the address; it was a retrospect of the past, and at times touchingly pathetic. To Col. Alfred Belo, of Galveston, Texas, was assigned the honor of presenting the diplomas to the 30 graduates and 33 students in music, telegraphy, phonography, type-writing and book-keeping. The concert this evening was the most difficult ever attempted and the most brilliant ever given in this section."—Richmond Dispatch.

"The Academy is doing a grand work, and the people are not loth to sound its praises. Long live the noble old institution."—Salisbury Watchman.

"To the Principals and faculty we offer our congratulations upon their splendid achievements. As managers and instructors they have done wonderfully well. We trust the day is not far distant when other buildings will have to be reared to accommodate the many who seek the benefits of a school-life with the combined comforts and protection of a home."—Twin City Daily.

"Part second (of the Grand Concert) took the audience by storm. Handel's 'Samson' Oratorio is a production of more than ordinary difficulty for a Commencement programme; but the Academy was equal to the task. So with 100 voices, with piano and orchestral accompaniment, this grand selection was given with marked perfectness, and with no talent but such as could be found and cultivated among the attending pupils. It was glorious. It was grand. A brilliant record for the musical department of the Academy."—Winston Republican.

"The discipline of the school is rigorous, but no more so, possibly, than necessity and the high responsibility of the care of so many young ladies so far from home requires. The experience of many years has served to perfect the course of study presented by the faculty, so that the Salem Female Academy is now recognized as one of the most thorough institutions in the South."—Fayetteville Journal.

"The town of Salem has never on a similar occasion entertained a larger number of visitors than were here this week from this and other States attending the Commencement exercises at Salem Female Academy."—Goldsboro Argus.

"It is a home school and a home, too; for the girls go there for training and are treated with parental care and kindness. For these reasons I like it, and those who send their daughters there like it. It is filling the demands of the times, and I am glad to know that it is meeting with the popularity and success to which its solid worth entitles it.

"One-fourth of the number of pupils taught the past two sessions were from Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia and Texas, with pupils from other States, which shows how the name and fame of this worthy but modest Academy are reaching afar, and how the scope of its usefulness is expanding. Thus may it ever flourish and grow stronger in its good work for the daughters of the southland."—Greensboro North State.

"To-night the concert will be given. Success is already stamped upon it, and the production of Samson, the grand oratorio, will mark an epoch in the musical history of Salem."—Fayetteville Observer.

"We do not know that we have ever on a Commencement occasion anywhere heard the equal, as a whole, of the seniors' essays, twenty-eight in number, and the six honor addresses as they are called. They were gems in conception, composition and delivery, of which the young ladies and the school may feel proud."—Fayetteville Journal.

"There were thirty graduates in the regular course and thirty-three in music, book-keeping, telegraphy, phonography and type-writing, to which particular attention is given, because of their practical value in equipping for the battle of life young ladies who may be self-dependent. It is a commendable feature, which ought to be engrained into all our schools for girls."—Durham Recorder.

"No such number of visitors has been here since the war, and the old school, with her recent infusion of young blood, goes boldly forth into the future, ever renewing her youth."—Raleigh State Chronicle.

Correspondence.

—Our limited space allows the following letters only for this month. The first is from Mrs. Alice Hord Warner whose two daughters NELLIE and GREY were with us last term.

Greetings to the Alumnae Association of our dear old Alma Mater S. F. A.

"Though not a member, I regret exceedingly my inability to be present at the meeting in June, and beg that my name be placed upon the roll of membership, trusting at some future meeting to be with you.

I am one of the old girls, having been in the Select class of 1861 and '62. I had the honor that year of delivering the Valedictory to my class and teachers; many of whom alas! have long since joined the silent throng in the great beyond. I recall the venerable face of our dearly beloved teacher Mrs. DENKE, and the bright faces of SALLIE SHAFFNER, MARY FRIES, JOHANNAH MACK, SALLIE COOPER, FANNY MYERS and others; and hope that some of them will remember me. There are thoughts, kind loving recollections, also for Miss STAUBER, Miss BRIETZ, Miss JOE SIDDALL, Miss PFOHL and Miss MAGGIE SIEWERS; also my patient teacher of music, Professor LEINBACH. These thoughts bring tears to my eyes, for the years that will never come again, and the loved ones who are gone forever.

With best wishes for the prosperity of our dear Alma Mater, the happiness of her girls, and the hope that they in turn, will be prosperous, and educate their daughters in our dear old Salem school, I wish you one and all farewell.

Alice Hord Warner.

Chattanooga, Tenn.

—Mrs. Georgia Bowe Wright also gives us kindly words of greeting.

"It had been my intention and would have been a source of great pleasure and gratification to me to be present at the meeting of the Association to-morrow, but I find it impossible to leave home at this time, and I must send my greetings and best wishes by mail. I am heartily in sympathy with the purposes and intentions of the Association, and shall be glad at any time to render what assistance may be within my power.

With kind regards to yourself and best wishes for all the members.

I am very sincerely yours,

Georgia Bowe Wright.

Columbia, S. C.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Miss MOLLIE WESSON lives in Charleston, S. C., Legare Street.

—BESSIE SANDERS of Darlington, S. C., was first Mrs. Williamson, and is now Mrs. Spain.

—Miss STELLA NISSEN left the week before Commencement to visit relatives in California.

—Mrs. BARNARD, (CORDIE SLUDER) of Asheville, N. C., was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Vogler.

—Dr. Ingram, of Pine Bluff, Ark., came for his granddaughter EDNA, and took her away on Friday, June 8.

—Mrs. Jos. Clisby, of Macon, Ga., spent some weeks at Mrs. Hyman's before Commencement. Her son, Mr. J. Clisby came on later.

—Some one recently inquired for the Colliers. They live in Hawkinsville, Ga., but we would be glad to hear more definitely from them.

—Mrs. Thompson, of Pride Station, Ala., (LUCY MALONE '64), was expected at Commencement, but to our great regret was not able to come.

—Col. A. H. Belo and family, spent Commencement at Mrs. E. Shelton's. Captain and Mrs. Paddison, of Fla., were the guests of Messrs. Leinbach.

—MINERVA SMITH who has several times been inquired for, is Mrs. Wolfe, of Rogersville, Tenn. Her husband died over a year ago, and she has several children.

—Mrs. Chas. Hemsath, (ADA LEINBACH), of Bethlehem, Pa., with her little son, Carl, spent some time with her parents in Salem, returning to her home, June 20.

—Various former pupils have been inquired for, among them are SALLIE BOLLING, of Ala., MARY and JOSEPHINE PRARSON, Miss., and SALLIE YOUNG, of Quitman, Ga.

—JENNIE TOPP is Mrs. M. K. Mister, of Torrance, Miss. She lived in Grenada from her marriage until 3 years ago. She has one child a little boy 7 years old; she lost 2 boys.

—Miss MATTIE BARRY came from Washington City with her father Congressman Barry, of Miss., to attend Commencement, and then went on to Mississippi with some friends.

—We were very pleased to see Mrs. Gaither Hall, (ANNE JONES) of Hickory, N. C. She spent the time at Dr. Babson's, and Mrs. Dr. Wiseman (ALPHONZINE DOUTTIT) at Mrs. H. Lemly's.

—MOLLIE TUCKER writes us from Taylor, Texas, that her cousin, Mr. James Tucker, of Greenville, N. C., was married to MARY POWELL, but MARY has not notified us. She was probably too happy to think of it.

—Miss GEITNER left for her home in Hickory, N. C., on June 11th, Miss PITTMAN goes to Eastern Carolina to visit friends. Miss LIZZIE HEISLER leaves for Los Angeles, California, to spend the year with her brother

We were charmed to meet with Mrs. Winkler, Tex. a lady with whose literary and intellectual gifts we had been for some time conversant, through her letters and written articles for various newspapers and magazines.

—Mrs. T. Purnell, (DELIA ZEVELY) of Raleigh, a member of the Alumnae Association sustained a severe bereavement in the death of her little son, on June 5. The remains were brought to Salem for interment.

—Miss DAISY MURPHY was expected but did not appear. BLANCHE ARMFIELD was prevented by her brother's graduation at Chapel Hill, but Miss JENNIE RAGSDALE, valedictorian of '87 was here, the guest of Miss HATTIE SWIFT.

—REBECCA MARKS now Mrs. W. Brown, of Winston, came on in time for Commencement, appearing at the Grand Concert, to the gratification of her many friends. We expected our other bride DORA ADAMS, Mrs. Alex. Hopkins, but she did not come.

—It would scarcely seem like Commencement without the presence of our Salutatorian of '86, Miss EDDIE HUNNICUTT, of Atlanta, Ga., and we were very happy to greet her again. Her paper read at the Alumnae Meeting was much admired, and various requests were made for its publication.

—It gave us great pleasure to meet Mrs. J. A. Alston, (EMMA SANDERS) of Hagood, S. C. She was the guest of Mrs. Robert Belo, at Commencement with her only child, a sprightly little boy, Algernon, about 6 years old. We were very sorry to learn that her sister GEORGIA (Mrs. Col. Graham) is quite an invalid.

—We received a communication, June 14, without a name attached, from Princeton, S. C., containing the following announcement:

"Married on Wednesday, December 7th, 1887, at Reedy Hill, the residence of the bride's father, by Rev. J. D. Pitts, Mr. J. L. French to Miss LIDA, second daughter of Major Cullen Lark, of Laurens, S. C."

—Mrs. M. V. Moore (SALLIE LENOIR) of Lehoir, N. C., and a member of our Alumnae Association, died in February after protracted consumption. She leaves 9 children, of whom 4 are grown. Her husband Captain Moore holds a high position under the General Government as Inspector of Post Offices, in which he has travelled extensively in foreign lands. He is known as a fine descriptive writer.

—Miss THEO. FITZGERALD came up the week before Commencement and spent the time with her friend Miss CORA HAMLIN, of Winston. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wyatt, (MARY HICKS) of Raleigh, were here dividing their time between Mr. W. Shultz's and Dr. J. W. Hunter's. MARY has two lovely children, Willie and Louise, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hicks, Mr. J. Hicks and Miss JULIA HRCS completed the party. Miss SALLIE JONES, of High Point was also here.

—Misses LUTA BEWLEY, of Anderson, S. C., DELLA DAVID and sister were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Ebert, during Commencement. Misses ANNIE STOKES, of Danville, Va., ELA CATHCART, of Winnsboro, S. C., and LILY SCOTT, of Charlotte, N. C., were entertained by Dr and Mrs. J. F. Shaffner. The entertainment of our visiting members of the Alumnae Association was one of the many pleasing features which distinguished the Commencement of 1888

—We quote the following from a newspaper slip handed us by a friend, concerning Miss PATTIE JOHNSTON's marriage:

"The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Stamey, of Reidsville; the attendants were: Mr. J. I. King and Miss Mollie Johnston, Mr. James Johnston and Miss Lizzie King, Mr. James Cobb and Miss Mollie Motley, Dr. Joyner and Miss Nannie Orr, Dr. Badgett and Miss Fannie Keesee, Dr. Keesee and Miss Nannie Cobb, Mr. J. N. Craigie and Miss Mattie Motley, Mr. George Johnston and Miss Fannie Bailey, Mr. John Cobb and Miss Sue Motley, Mr. John Neal and Miss Lizzie Johnston."

A long list of elegant bridal presents was given, with an elaborate account of the wedding festivities, which our limited space does not allow us to transcribe.

—Among the parties at Commencement not mentioned elsewhere we note: Judge Frost, Mr. Smith, Mr. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Gibbs, of Tex.; Col. A. Boyd and niece, Miss; Mr. C. W. Hunnicutt, Mr. E. Hunnicutt, Mr. R. B. Swift, Atlanta, Ga.; Capt. G. S. Hardee, Fla.: Mr. Pretlow, Mr. Moses, Mr. and Mrs. Penn and daughter, Col. Smith, Mr. J. D. Spencer, Messrs. Clark and Lindsay, Mrs. Chaffin, Va.; Mrs. Blackwell and grandson, Mrs. Fagg, Mrs. O. J. Lehman, E. W. Lehman, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kapp, J. L. Kapp, T. E. Kapp, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Lehman, C. B. Atkinson, Mr. J. M. Vaughn, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wells, Dr. and Mrs. Strickland, N. C.; Mr. J. B. Hill, Raleigh, N. C.; Mr. J. H. David, Messrs. W. H. and R. E. Frierham, Mr. W. McMasters, Mr. W. Smith and T. S. Parkham, Mrs. Bethea, S. C.; Mr. D. Burson, Messrs. J. E. Griffiss and Peter Warner, Tenn.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

—I feel like one

Who treads alone

Some banquet-hall deserted,

Whose lights are fed,

Whose garlands dead,

And all but he departed!

1862.

- 4058. MARY H. HOWELL. — 1847.
S. G. Howell, Alpharetta, Ga.
- 4059. ALICE WINSHIP. — 1849.
Joseph Winship, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4060. CALLIE OYERBY. — 1851.
Guardian, E. W. Thrasher, Madison, Ga.
- 4061. ELLA LOVD. — 1845.
Guardian, Robert Clark, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4062. FLORENCE A. WALLACE. — 1848.
A. M. Wallace, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4063. MONEY L. THRASHER. — 1847.
E. W. Thrasher, Madison, Ga.
- 4064. SUSAN D. SCOTT. — 1845.
David Scott, Greensboro, N. C.
- 4065. MARTHA HARPER. — 1845.
Brother and Guardian, Francis M. Harper, Kinston, N. C.
- 4066. ELIZA A. PALMER. — 1848.
Guardian, Noah Rouse, Mosely Hall, N. C.
- 4067. MARY ELLIOT. — 1847.
C. G. Elliot, Hillsville, Va.
- 4068. SARAH E. ARNEY. — 1848.
Guardian, G. W. Peay, Leaksville, N. C.
- 4069. MARY L. HAMLIN. — 1850.
Mother, Martha A. Hamlin, Leaksville, N. C.
- 4070. MARY MOIR. — 1850.
Jas. C. Moir, Elamsville, Patrick County, Va.
- 4072. MARY ELLEN GLASS. — 1848.
J. S. Glass, Blackwell's, N. C.
- 4073. MARGARET MILLER. — 1849.
C. E. Miller, Yellow Store, East Tenn
- 4074. PRISCILLA L. KERNER. — 1847.
Israel Kerner, Kernersville, N. C.
- 4075. SALLIE M. COVINGTON. — 1848.
- 4076. COLUMBIA M. COVINGTON. — 1850.
J. M. Covington, Walnut Cove, N. C.
- 4077. JANE M. FLYNT. — 1849.
Wm. H. Flynt, Walnut Cove, N. C.
- 4078. LOUISA T. MAYO. — 1848.
Benjamin C. Mayo, Tarboro, N. C.
- 4079. VIRGINIA L. COTTEN. — 1850.
Mother, Louisa C. Cotton, Hamilton, N. C.
- 4080. LUCY KYLE. — 1848.
A. A. Kyle, Rogersville, East Tenn.
- 4081. FANNIE MORISSETTE. — 1846.
Richard Morisette, Rogersville, East Tenn.
- 4082. REBECCA C. MOORE. — 1847.
Mother, B. Moore, Mooresburg, East Tenn.
- 4083. BETTIE M. BURT. — 1847.
Step-father, F. L. Hale, Hillsville, Va.
- 4084. MARGARET D. YORKE. — 1847.
A. T. Yorke, Concord, N. C.

4085. LAURA E. PLUNKET. — 1847.
Guardian, Capt. P. A. Smith, Concord, N. C.
4086. SUSAN B. JONES. — 1846.
Uncle, H. W. Brummell, High Point, N. C.
4087. LAURA BRADSHAW. — 1848.
Brother, H. R. Bradshaw, Concord, N. C.
4088. MARY HALL. — 1848.
John Hall, Salisbury, N. C.
4089. FANNIE BIGGS. — 1845.
Hon. Asa Biggs, Rocky Mount, N. C.
4090. VESTA WALKER. — 1848.
Guardian, Dr. J. N. Baker, N. C.
4091. MARY H. BAKER. — 1849.
Mother, S. R. Baker, Tarboro, N. C.
4092. SARAH C. GANT. — 1849.
Jesse Gant, High Falls, Alamance Co., N. C.
4093. PRISCILLA H. NEAL. — 1848.
Wm. R. Neal, Lawsonville, N. C.
4094. MARGARET WILSON. — 1847.
Guardian, W. W. Sylvester, Forestville, N. C.
4095. ADELIA E. SHARPE. — 1852.
Dr. W. K. Sharpe, Fulton, N. C.
4096. AVA B. TAYLOR. — 1848.
Guardian, A. D. Swinson, Snow Hill, N. C.
4097. HESPY A. T. SWINSON. — 1848.
Guardian, H. H. Best, Snow Hill, N. C.
4098. LOUISA FORD. — 1846.
Daniel Ford, Cartersville, Ga.
4099. EMILY J. LEACH. — 1846.
J. Q. A. Leach, Pittsboro, N. C.
4100. MARY L. MANN. — 1855.
Dr. Jos. B. Mann, Louisburg, N. C.
4101. ALICE R. BLYVINS. — 1849.
John Blyvins, Rogersville, East Tenn.
4102. ANNIE HOBSON. — 1849.
Sam'l A. Hobson, Jerusalem, Davie Co., N. C.
4103. CORINNA SEWELL. — 1848.
Guardian, Dr. Jas. B. Dunn, Raleigh, N. C.
4104. FANNIE A. MVATT. — 1850.
Guardian, R. G. Dunn, Raleigh, N. C.
4105. CATHERINE GOLDING. — 1847.
R. D. Golding, Germantown, N. C.
4106. CATHERINE R. S. DARDEN. — 1848.
Guardian, A. D. Speight, Speight's Bridge, N. C.
4107. MARY EMMA BARTON. — 1850.
Robert M. Barton, Russelville, Tenn.
4108. SARAH ELLEN TAYLOR. — 1848.
F. W. Taylor, Russelville, Tenn.
4109. KATE R. BETHEA. — 1846.
Col. Jas. R. Bethea, Reedy Creek, S. C.

Married.

KING—JOHNSTON.—In Ruffin, N. C., on Wednesday, May 30, Mr. KING to Miss PATTIE JOHNSTON, ('85.)

BROWN—MARKS.—In Shreveport, La., on May 30, Mr. WILL. BROWN, of Winston, N. C., to Miss REBECCA MARKS. ('87.)

RAMSAY—MILLIGAN.—In June, Mr. RAMSAY, of Asheville, N. C., to Miss ALICE MILLIGAN, of Greenville, Tennessee.

Died.

MOORE.—In Lenoir, N. C., in February, Mrs. M. V. MOORE. (S. LENOIR)

BILL.—In May at the home of her father Col. D. H. Spencer, Spencer, Va., Mrs. LUCY SPENCER BILL, aged 34.

Her death was expected, and with fortitude and perfect faith she was prepared to go. When barely grown she married the late Hon. J. L. Dillard, first judge of the county court of Henry County, Va., and resided with her husband in Martinsville, Va., till his death in 1875. Then with her infant son Harry now a manly intelligent youth, she again became a member of her father's family at Spencer. Several years later she married Mr. C. S. Bill a business man of sterling worth and popularity at Snowville, Pittaski County, Va. Two children blessed this union and with the father survive the deceased.

About a year ago her health began to decline, and several months later she re-entered her old home for the last time. For nearly 40 years that household has been the abode of a large and happy family. The aged parents are still living and 12 children have grown up around them, and not till this week had the presence of death been felt in that home. Mrs. Bill was a member of the Christian Church, and at the Old Well church the funeral service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. J. Scaman.

—FOUNDED 1802.—

Salem Female Academy.

SALEM, N. C.

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

ADVANTAGES.

Healthy location, ample grounds, well-arranged Infirmary.

Careful discipline. Two teachers in charge of each Room Company. Commodious study parlors. Well-aired, warmed and lighted dormitories, with separate sleeping alcoves for each pupil, and convenient wash-rooms on the same floor.

A graded course of thorough Academic instruction. Classes never overcrowded. Twenty-four professors and teachers. Much attention to the wants of the individual scholar. Large library and reading-room.

Unusually well-equipped Music, Art, Linguistic and Commercial Departments, under the most competent teachers.

Religious instruction, which is simple, careful and unsectarian. Has been trusted in by members of all Christian denominations for more than three-fourths of a century.

Charges, which are as low as the advantages offered by the Institution will permit.

Send for Catalogue.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY,
Salem, North Carolina.

ICE COLD

Mexican Sherbet,

Grape Phosphates,

Kidwell's Cream,

Lime and Lemonade

— AT —

ASHCRAFT & OWENS,

DRUGGISTS, WINSTON, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,

AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"

AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

 MONEY

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

— JUDICIOUSLY. —

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere;
Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then
will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLINARD & BROOKES. —

THE SOUTHERN GUARDSMAN.

WINSTON, N. C.

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE GUARD.

Conducted by

WILL X. COLEY,

1st Sergeant Co. A., 3d Reg't., N. C. State Guard.

THE GUARDSMAN is endorsed and recommended by the Governor, Adjutant General, Regimental Commanders and all other officers of the Guard. It was officially announced as the organ of the North Carolina militia in General Orders No. 6, which were issued on May 2nd, 1888. All citizen soldiers should subscribe at once. Subscription price, $1.00 per year, in advance. 52 standard books and THE GUARDSMAN one year for only $1.50. Advertising rates, $2.00 per inch. Send for sample copy. Address, WILL X. COLEY, Publisher SOUTHERN GUARDSMAN,
Winston, N. C.

FANCY

NOVELTIES

— AT THE —

+ SALEM + BOOKSTORE +

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME X.

SALEM, N. C., SEPTEMBER, 1888.

NUMBER 88.

"FINIS CORONAT OPUS."

BY MISS DAISY CLISBY.

[The Class Essay for the Commencement of 1888 was divided into two parts, Miss CLISBY taking one part of the Class Motto, "The End Crowns the Work," in its application to the past school year, and Miss PADDISON the other, in its general bearing on human life.]

OUR Class Motto, "Finis Coronat Opus," embodies the result of a successful striving for anything that is worth having in this world, or the next. It encourages to persevering effort, to patient continuance in performing the thousand little acts of self-denial that come up in every life, by holding out the glittering crown as the natural result of such striving, and as the glorious reward with which our Creator has been pleased to honor our obedient service. To the school-girl, it forms the highest incentive to duty. Few would leave their comfortable, luxurious homes, surrounded by fond relatives and friends, to endure the many unavoidable trials of boarding-school life, if there were not an end in view, and if they did not look forward to the reward they would gain, by becoming refined, cultured, a delight to their friends, an ornament to society.

Our past year has been remarkably uneventful. Few things have happened to distract our attention from the regular daily and hourly duties that make up the sum total of ACADEMY life. The very air of Salem seems to have a quieting and soothing influence, removed from all disturbing elements. The square in front of us, its white gravel walks crossing at right angles, and set in a frame work of cool emerald, and the playgrounds in the rear surround us, as it were with Nature's gentlest, softest influences. The hum of society, with its attendant distractions, comes to us so subdued by distance as to be almost imperceptible; and we are thrown upon each other for the delights of social intercourse.

Friendships are formed, and do much for us. School-girl friendships are proverbial in all mouths; they form one of the largest classes of human attachments whose idealizing power glorifies and sweetens school life; and we have enjoyed them to their full extent.

It would be expecting too much of twenty girls with varying dispositions and temperaments, to live without occasional disagreements, but they have been few and far between, and, on the whole, our Senior year has been remarkably quiet and peaceful. No great storms have raged, such as sometimes unsettle and demoralize a whole class; we review it with pleasantly regretful feelings, able to regard this, the crowning year of our school-life, with a feeling of gratified success. We have wrought with this good end in view from the beginning. Striving without an object is always discouraging and unsatisfactory:—if we fix our eyes upon the crown of our work we gain an added stimulus.

The Class of '88 was the first to form a permanent Society, The Euterpean. Other attempts had been made in past years, but they were too short-lived to deserve the name. Ours has become an acknowledged success, and we hope it will flourish many years.

In the matter of class colors, we had special difficulties; 30 tastes would not run in the same direction, 30 hearts would not beat as one, but finally we settled upon sage and pink. The subject of class rings was equally difficult. "Long time in even scale the battle hung," while the merits of different styles were discussed, of Etruscan, or plain gold, of bands or other forms, but a decision was finally made.

We have tried to take duty as our keynote, duty considered from its highest stand-point, though we must confess we have some failures to record as well. Occasionally the charms of embroidery were greater than those of Latin, and it was more pleasant to put 3,267,941 stitches in a crazy cushion or other fancy article than to write exercises. Composition day was not always an unmixed pleasure, and practicing hours would grow a little wearisome, but we have tried to do our duty through the hours of pleasant work as well as through the routine and drudgery that be long to all successful striving.

We would never appreciate the glorious rewards of duty well performed, if it were not for the rugged passages between the lines. Too many sugar plums are never wholesome in this world; a life of ignoble ease would sap all our strength of character. We have worked in the past year, and will try to go on making a duty of happiness and a happiness of duty. There is sadness and trouble enough in this world; let us try to be as sunshiny and happy as we can, and live so that all faces shall brighten at our approach. Let us be sunbeams wherever their light is needed. We are not meant to go through the world with long faces, sighing over the depravity of other people and conveniently forgetting our own, but by every means in our power to help others, while we strive loyally and faithfully for the reward.

"Now the long and toilsome duty
Stone by stone to carve and bring:
Afterward, the perfect beauty
Of the Palace of the King.

Now,—the tuning and the tension,
Wailing minors discords strong:
Afterward,—the glad ascension
Of the Alleluia song!"

"Finis Coronat Opus."

BY MISS KATE PADDISON.

THE beginning of any work is comparatively easy:—any one can begin well, but to continue well is the criterion: it is only he who holds out to the end that is crowned, or gains the golden prize.

The bible, particularly the apocalyptic vision of St. John, in Patmos, teems with encouraging promises to him that overcometh! In the old Greek games, it was no special honor to begin the contest, but the victor at the end alone was crowned. "So run that ye may obtain," writes St. Paul to his church at Corinth, clinching, as it were, his advice with the object teaching of the Isthmian games.

What are the prizes of life that men esteem so highly, and strive for with such untiring zeal? "Honor, love, obedience, troops of friends," money, position, character,—all these make up the objects of a successful life. And how shall they be obtained? By beginning wisely, and persevering to the end. The road to success is rough and rugged, and to secure it requires hard and long continued work, making stepping-stones of our very failures. until the prize is within our reach.

The school-girl who begins well, but by and by grows tired,—shirks classes and misses lessons, is regarded as wanting in all the elements of a fine character, and loses the respect of all her associates. But how pleasing it is to watch the upward course of another, who increases in persevering diligence as the days roll by, and at last completes the crowning year of school-life with honor.

Perseverance is the strength of all successful striving, even in seeming failure. Like William of Normandy, when he stumbled on the shore of England, by changing the omen he turned the distrust of his followers into an overweening confidence in his success. A man may, like a Nelson, snatch laurels from the doubtful hands of victory, while she is hesitating where to bestow them.

To begin at the foot of the hill and work slowly to the top seems a very discouraging process, and here it is that thousands make a wreck of their lives; they try to reach the summit with a single bound and fail. There is no royal road to success; the path lies through troubles and discouragements. It lies through fields of patient labor. It bids the young build on a solid foundation of good character, and it promises a crown of triumph as a reward.

The noblest men have had to fight their way to triumph through a long series of failures, but success crowned their work in the end. From earliest ages the symbol of the highest desert has been the crown. The emblem of goodness, as well as of power, is often unworthily won and worn. It should be the consummation of the noblest exertions. The world's history tells us of the lives of men who have waded through slaughter to a throne, and shut the gates of mercy on mankind. A crown on such a brow is a mockery, not an honor and a glory.

But humanity intended a crown for her benefactors, and she does crown them right royally. Sparkling with loveliest gems the virgin gold is a cheat on the brow of baseness, and there is no satire so profound, no spectacle so hideous, no contrast so shameful, as when the blazing trophy of heroic virtue falls upon the head of ugly wickedness. There should be no crowns, no diadems, to distinguish and adorn any save those who have achieved something for the good of their fellow creatures, or have reached, through bitter struggle, the serene heights of self-conquest or self-sacrifice.

What is the one creating cause of that grand galaxy of results which glows in a crown? Man is fond of the dignified disguise of technicalities, but the plain English answer to that is Work! Lo! the primeval world of forest and field and flood, of savage man and unconquered wilderness! But the forest falls and the field yields food. What does it? Work! Man shivers in the wintry blast; what builds him a refuge of comfort and protection? Work! Soon he explores the great seas, and his ships bring him the wealth of other lands. What gives him luxuries? Work!

All the strong, star-eyed sciences walk the earth scattering health, comfort, benefactions and blessedness. The civilization of to-day is an end, the glorious crown of the work of the past;—every city, every nation, every art, every science, is but a jewel in the diadem that crowns the exercise of man's energy.

It is well for us who have in these halls been trained and prepared for the greater work of life if it can be truly said, "The end has crowned the work!" This end of our school days, with its commencement joys, its greetings of loved ones, its diplomas, its anticipations of home-coming, indeed forms the regal circlet with which each one of us is crowned to-day. May our training here so have prepared us for what is awaiting us, so fitted us for happiness and blessing that when the end indeed shall come, the last garland hung above our slumbers may be inscribed with

"Finis Coronat Opus."

The Special Car from Texas.

BY MISSES MEACHUM AND FITZPATRICK.

It is always interesting to note improvements and changes in this progressive age. What strides have been made in the matter of rapid and easy transit since the early days of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, when its first pupils came on horseback, and then when private conveyances had become the customary means of travel it was thought perfection had been well-nigh reached. Now, a special Mann-Boudoir car, with every convenience that modern times furnish, starts in far-off Texas, coming 1900 miles all the way through from Dallas to Salem without a change, making it easy for a party of lively, chatty school-girls to travel without parents or guardians as necessary escorts, unless they choose to do so.

Arrangements for the special car, The City of Birmingham, were made by the Principal of the ACADEMY, Mr. CLEWELL, during vacation, and we were in due time notified that the car, under the supervision of a competent agent, would leave Dallas, Tex., for Salem on August 27. Accordingly on the appointed morning we Texas girls bade adieu to friends and homes and went to Dallas where we met Messrs. Grant, and Thweatt, G. T. P. A. They conducted us to the waiting-room where, after several hours, we entered our special car. The car seemed like a second home to us before we reached our journey's end, and a very pleasant one besides. We naturally felt sad at leaving our friends of the Lone Star State, but school-girls are not troubled with such thoughts for any length of time; the natural buoyancy of youthful spirits is like Banquo's ghost, it will not be kept down, though we did not try to do as we hear a party of New York girls did some time ago, on an excursion to California, under a teacher's care. They inveigled her into one compartment, locked her in, and then had what they called a good time.

Our route lay through some of the most beautiful parts of the Great South-West, and our obliging agent, Mr. Thweatt, carefully pointed out to us all the places of note or interest. In Shreveport another young lady joined us. We next came to Vicksburg; while the train was being ferried across the Mississippi River our entire party went on deck in order to have a good view of the scenery. Our delay in Vicksburg was very pleasantly spent in eating ice-cream, so we naturally have sweet memories of the place, and Thweatt also, provided the speaker has a lisp.

On Tuesday evening several young ladies joined us at Meridian, Miss. We reached Birmingham on the morning of the 29th. As we had several hours at our disposal here, we left our car and enjoyed an elegant breakfast in the dining-room. Mr. Thweatt had arranged for a drive over the city for us, but an unexpected shower prevented it. Among many pretty places that we passed was the Piedmont Chautauqua, consisting of several large buildings with fine lawns in front, containing flower-beds of every possible geometrical figure, a perfect blaze of bright colors. From thence to Greensboro there was little of interest.

Here we were met by our Principal, Mr. CLEWELL, who came on to welcome us; he was greeted with a smile of pleasure from one end of our party to the other. From Greensboro to Salem there was an incessant stream of questions both from new girls and old ones, so that it was enough to exhaust the patience of the most enduring of men. Mr. CLEWELL, however, did not appear to mind it; the only difficulty was in disentangling the questions when three or four happened to come together, or at the same time. At length we reached the ACADEMY, where the doors were thronged by our old companions who appeared to be as glad to welcome us as we were to meet them.

Our Mountain Trip.

BY MISS WILLIE LUTZ.

ON the morning of August 8th our vacation party set out from Salem, N. C., intending to visit the Blue Ridge in the vicinity of Fancy Gap, &c. Our company was made up of the following parties: Mr. A. Fogle, who is well-known to the older pupils of the ACADEMY, having taken them on various expeditions of the sort, had the general charge of everything; then were Rev. Edward S. Wolle, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mrs. Wolle (Mrs. CLEWELL's mother), Mrs. CLEWELL and CLARENCE, Misses SALLIE SHAFFNER, EMMA CHITTY, CONNIE PFOHL, ALMA CARMICHAEL, Mrs. CARMICHAEL and WILLIE LUTZ, that is myself.

The weather had been very hot just before we started, but a pleasant rain had cooled the air, laid the dust, and made it very cool and comfortable indeed. If we had sent out a special order for a fine day to start in, we could not have done better. We took our first dinner at Mr. Stauber's, about 10 miles north of Salem.

At 4 o'clock it began to rain, so we spent the night at Mr. Culler's, near the Pilot. After supper we all sang on the piazza, a gentleman from Lynchburg, Va., joining in with us. We had a fine view of the Pilot Mountain the next morning, though the clouds drifted across the Pinnacles occasionally. The Blue Ridge in the distance looked like a bank of light blue clouds. We could also see the Sauratown Mountains; they were nearer, and of course showed to greater advantage.

At Bliss we stopped for dinner;—wrote some postals to let our friends know where we were. Afterwards, as we drove on, we passed an old Quaker graveyard and a log church. We got out of our conveyances to look around; the door stood open; there was a pulpit and some benches, but it was a very lonely place. About 5 o'clock that evening we stopped at Mr. Prather's, to camp for the night, as we had come prepared to pitch our tents and enjoy camp life generally, with its pleasures as well as its drawbacks and discomforts, such as bugs, and the like.

The next morning, the 10th, we again set out for Fancy Gap; as it was cool we walked some distance, gathering flowers, and soon passed from North Carolina into Virginia. A pretty waterfall came down the steep side of the mountain. Cornfields lay so high up that we wondered how any farmer could plough them. On Saturday we reached Morris's Lookout. On Sunday we had religious service kept by Rev. Mr. Wolle. Over 40 people collected from the neighborhood, and we had a nice little meeting in the Fancy Gap church. When we returned to our camp we watched the night gathering over the mountains; it was beautiful to see the purple shadows growing deeper and denser. We had 4 tents pitched in a row, and had large fires in front of them. We stayed here 4 nights. On Tuesday the wind was so high it blew our plates off the table at meals; thick double shawls were not uncomfortable.

We next visited a place called the Devil's Den, a sort of cave in the mountains; we had to crawl on hands and knees in order to enter the 3 apartments, but we did not find his Satanic Majesty at home, unless he was lower down than we ventured. Next we went to Elk Spur, from which we saw the Alleghanies in West Virginia and the mountains of Tennessee and North Carolina. We then began to retrace our steps down Fancy Gap, and reached home on Thursday evening, having been absent a week.

—Miss ILAH DUNLAP has probably recrossed the ocean, from her European tour by this time. She wrote to us from Lausanne, Switzerland, in July, enclosing a pretty photograph of Chillon Castle, on Lake Lemán, which "flows by Chillon's walls," as well as a small bouquet of tiny Alpine flowers. Her party landed at Antwerp, going first to Brussels, Bruges and Ghent. From Belgium they went to Paris, where they remained three weeks, making delightful excursions to Versailles, Fontainebleau, Malmaison, &c. Fontainebleau was undergoing repairs, as M. Sadi-Carnot, the President, intended to occupy a suite of rooms for a time. Of course, this created a furore among the French, as it is the first time a President occupies a royal palace. The party visited the Louvre, the Salon, the Luxembourg, &c., until they were sated with fine paintings.

They next went to Switzerland, visited the Valley of Chamounix, went up Montanvert, crossed the Mer de Glace, down the Mauvais Pas to the Chapeau, and back to Chamounix. ILAH describes the surface of the Mer de Glace as like a sea frozen suddenly when the wind has subsided and the waves, although still high, have become blunt and rounded. Then they went to Chillon, where she saw the column to which Peter Bonnivard was chained. From Lausanne they went to Berne, Interlaken, Brunz, Lucerne, Zurich, Winterthur, down the Rhine to Germany.

They were anxious to take in Italy, but that was uncertain at the time of writing, and as her next letter was written from London we suppose they had to forego the pleasure. It is a great risk in the summer on account of the Roman fever. After this they intended to return to Brussels, from thence to Antwerp, then over to England and Scotland, to return to America late in September in the steamer City of New York, of the Inman Line. Such a tour is an education in itself. How delightful if all our graduates could take it at the close of school-life.

—An item from an Anderson, S. C., paper reads as follows: "Quite a number of young people spent a pleasant evening at the residence of Mrs. C. D. Bewley, on Wednesday of last week. The occasion was termed 'A Fortune Sociable.' The beautiful yard was illumined with Chinese lanterns, and in the back yard was a small tent, in which was found the Fortune Teller, impersonated by Miss NELLIE BEWLEY; she warbled a sweet song, composed especially for the occasion by her sister, Miss LUTA BEWLEY, and told the fortunes of the gay young couples. About 11 o'clock refreshments were served, and the merry participants retired, feeling that they had never spent a more delightful evening.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C, SEPTEMBER, 1888.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.
Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

THE opening of the new school year on August 30th was attended by a gratifying number, running up to 120 boarding pupils the first week, with daily accessions; these, with our town scholars, brings up the list at once to the borders of 200. The ACADEMY greets her returning children with her most cordial welcome, while her heart warms especially to the new pupils, who naturally feel as if they were set down in the midst of an intricate and puzzling succession of corridors and rooms and a sea of strange faces. They have the comfort, however, of knowing that with each returning day they are more fully at home, and soon these strange faces will become those of dearest friends.

THE ladies of the committee for deciding upon a badge for the Alumnae Association of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY have fixed upon a very neat and tasteful Badge pin, of strong, first class work, that may be worn as a pin or badge whichever is preferred. It consists of a scroll of chased work, with the ACADEMY monogram in the centre thus :

“FOUNDED,—S. F. A.,—1802.

The price is $6. Any members of the Association who wish to procure the badge will confer a favor by sending their names to the President of the Association as soon as possible that the committee may know how many to order.

SEVERAL so-called Mind-readers visited Winston, July 19th and 20th, giving an exhibition of their powers in the Opera House. What is not humbug in all such exhibitions is crude, or yet undeveloped science. Magnetism and Mesmerism are in their formative stages, which all the plain, practical, American common sense are not able to divest of superstitious elements, as shown in the impostures of Spiritualism. There must be a Göetler Dämmerung, a twilight of the gods in every science, in every pursuit, a chaotic condition from which it will emerge in due time, resolving itself into something clear and plain. Mind reading probably has some scientific or psychological truth at its base, but just at this time it keeps bad company with tricks, juggling, and imposture of various kinds.

THE Moravians are opposed to proselyting, and while unsectarian religious instruction pervades every department of ACADEMY life, pupils are dissuaded from joining the Moravian Church for several reasons. When a pupil returns to her home she finds no Moravian church within reach and must, if she desires any church privileges connect herself with a denomination in her own vicinity; besides it would be wrong to try to influence young minds, either directly or indirectly, at their most impressionable period, for denominational purposes, but when we hear of former pupils whose religious life blossoms out in actions like the following, it is a source of deepest gratification.

Many of our older Alumnae will remember KATE and LIZZIE DAY, of S. C. They live at Trenton, S. C., and in a quiet, unobtrusive way, have done a noble work. They joined the Episcopal Church, were baptized and confirmed, and by patient effort, under many discouragements, they have been the means of starting an Episcopal congregation. They have a neat little church building, nicely furnished, a cabinet organ, have services at stated times, and have done a work over which any one might well rejoice.

WE have received from some friend an envelope with 50 cents inclosed, and on the outside was written, “Enclosed 50 cents for ACADEMY; please direct the other number to Newport, Tenn.” This is a new address, and we have no means of securing the name, unless this notice should be seen by the person who sent us the envelope. Please forward the name.

—A PLEASANT surprise party was given Miss LIZZIE HEISLER, at Mr. CLEWELL'S, a few days before she left Salem for Los Angeles, Cal., where she will spend a year or more with relatives. A letter received from her gives an entertaining account of her journey to the Pacific coast. She first stopped in Washington City, saw its varied attractions, shook hands with the President, then set out for Chicago. From this point westward, sights and scenes began to change greatly; sage brush predominated; Indians in gay colors, with papposes strapped on back, were to be seen continually from Council Bluffs to Los Angeles. Here she found her relatives happy to see her, and devising all sorts of plans for her amusement. The Pacific Ocean, only 8 miles distant, was visited; vegetation is luxuriant, and of rapid growth. A Catherine Mermet rosebush covers one side of their house with blossoms as large as ordinary saucers. The Chinese are a source of considerable interest to her. She expects to visit Ramona's home, immortalized by Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson. We hope she will give us an account of those interesting localities.

Correspondence.

—Mr. J. W. FRIES some time ago handed us a letter doubly interesting from the fact that it was written by one of the oldest living Alumnae of the ACADEMY with whom we have had any communication thus far. Such letters are very precious to us as voices from a generation that has so nearly passed away.

“Your kind letter came duly to hand, which was appreciated and carried me back in the long ago to pleasant memories. I was a little girl about ten years old when my parents left me in Salem, North Carolina, at the ACADEMY. I was boarded with a Mr. and Mrs. Fries, as I was young, and Mr. Bagge recommended it to my father. I boarded there until cold weather and the snow came; then I was boarded in the ACADEMY as I could not walk through the snow.

A Mr. STEINER was the President of the ACADEMY, and I was put in Miss SHOBER'S room. Mr. STEINER died while I was in Salem, — was stung by a poisonous spider, which caused his death. I have a hymn book that the Moravian Church used; it is marked with my name, MARY F. WATKINS, 1816. It was in the fall of that year that I entered the ACADEMY. I remained until 1819. I remember the family of Fries with gratitude, for they were very kind to me. No doubt it was your grandfather's family. I recollect how anxious I was to learn German, and he taught me many words so that I could ask for what I wanted.

Miss SHOBER, my teacher, married a Mr. Wolle, one of the Brothers, for in that day they had a Brothers' House and a Sisters' House. I recollect the Moravian Church and their services, for they were the best Christian people I ever met; also the Chapel that the girls attended for morning prayers and Sunday school.

I received impressions on my young heart then that I have never forgotten.

I remember the Graveyard where the Easter celebrations took place, as the teachers often walked to the place with the girls in their evening walks; and the garden where we had flowers to cultivate, hyacinths, tulips, and the beautiful Summer House, made of cedars trained, with windows and doors, and white jessamine vines trained on them. It was beautiful; and there were the water-works too, the cake shops, toy-dolls, and other toys.

On the hill Dr. Shuman lived. He was our M. D., and attended the sick-room.

I will mention some of my room-mates and class-mates: ELIZA and EUGENIA LONG, from Georgia, SARAH PUGH, ANTOINETTE SHERROD, MARY ANN SCARBOROUGH and HELEN ADAMS. I would like a Catalogue of those years if they have one kept.

I am now an old woman and my husband, Col. James E. Saunders, is 82, just as active and bright. He is now writing the reminiscences of the early settlers of Lawrence county, Alabama.

May God bless you and yours with every earthly blessing.

Very respectfully,
MARY WATKINS SAUNDERS.

Courtland, Lawrence Co., North Alabama.

—An inquiry in THE ACADEMY some months ago for JENNIE TOPP brought forth the fact that she is now Mrs. Mister, of Torrance, Miss. After writing the following, she ascertained that her old school chum, MATTIE WILLIAMS and Mrs. Robt. Belo, of Salem, are identical.

"What a time it has been since I left the old school, about 24 years ago! I often wonder if it has changed much; it was such a quaint old place. Who has charge of the school now? Mr. DE SCHWEINITZ was there when I was, and how we little girls used to flock around him, and how kind he was to us.

I remember a Mr. Belo, a merchant; he had two daughters who were day-scholars in the 7th room. One was named AGGIE, but I have forgotten the name of the other. I do not know if he had any sons, as we were not allowed to look at the boys in those days.

I had three very particular friends while at Salem, NELLIE HORD, MATTIE WILLIAMS and NARCISSA MANN. Of course there were others, but I loved them most, and I hope you are one of the three; MATTIE and I kept day together; she was a pretty, black-eyed girl, from Newbern, I think. SISSY was a blonde, and had a little sister, MARY, in the 10th room. She, too, was from N. C. NELLIE HORD and MOLLIE LA FOND were from Mufreesboro, Tenn. I saw them once while a young lady, visiting my old home, Nashville. I think they are both married and live in Tennessee.

You must write and tell me your maiden name, and where you lived at the time you were going to school. Hoping to hear from you soon, I am

Your friend,
JENNIE TOPP MISTER.

Torrance, Miss.

—We were so disappointed in not seeing Miss MURPHY at Commencement that we will give part of a letter written before the close of school as a partial compensation to her many friends.

"I have just read something in the paper that has pleased me so much and sent me off into a brown study about the ACADEMY and its inmates. You told the class of '86, during a Physiology lesson, one morning, how injurious it was to indulge too much in day dreams. "Never do it, girls!" Now, to avoid it I must talk to you and tell you what the something was: JEANIE REYNOLDS is Valedictorian of her class!

Thinking of all, incidental to giving out the honors for the approaching commencement, has brought up such a long train of happy remembrances, and with it a wave of home-sickness for Salem and the ACADEMY,—dear old Cro' Nest,—the Senior room, library, everywhere, everything, everybody there. How tenderly I think of and love them all! I believe it is true, as DORA ADAMS once said: "Even the cracks in the walls are dear!" I have only to close my eyes to see it all so plainly,—the hall, with, as you once said, "not a dim, religious light, but a soft, academic light,"—the girls going to and from the practicing rooms,—you sitting at your table in the Senior room. I wonder if you are often interrupted with, "May I speak, please?" in study hour. I can almost hear through the open windows somebody practicing in the Chapel. I wish, O I wish I could study the picture nearer to it. Artists stand at a distance, do they not, to see how the lights fall and to study effects; when one is not an artist, however, she should keep near the study to appreciate it,—not so? Well, I must see you all at Commencement, if possible.

EMMA McRAE wrote me recently from Miss Kelly's school, in Charleston, S. C.

I can't begin to imagine how it would seem not to see Dr. RONDTHALER in his place in the ACADEMY. Oh! there he is with Cæsar under his arm. I hope he will not ask for a synopsis, or "to change this indirect discourse into direct." He might mean this rambling way in which I am writing to you.

Please find enclosed 50 cents for renewal of my subscription to THE ACADEMY.

With a whole heart full of earnest good wishes and love,

Yours, &c.,
H. DAISY MURPHY.

Burlington, N. C.

—The following interesting letter from an esteemed friend of the olden time was read at the annual meeting of the Alumnae Association in June.

"Your letter containing a request for a communication for the Alumnae meeting was received. It would give me great pleasure to be with you at that meeting, as you kindly desire, but it will be impossible. My thoughts, however, will be with you, and will be busy with memories of long ago, when the Alumnae were few in number. How plain it all seems now, after the lapse of years,—years that have brought to me nearly all the varied experiences of life.

I left, when 16 years of age, my Alma Mater, that had been my home for 4 years, and the ties then severed were very close. I see the names of companions that have become unfamiliar to the present generation; they will always be to me the beloved friends of my youth; one, especially, who placed her ring upon my finger at parting. Where is she now? I have been so happy through the columns of THE ACADEMY to make the acquaintance of two members of the Alumnae, Mrs. ANN STURDIVANT, of Charlotte, N. C., and Mrs. MARY RICE, of Va.

How clear to my remembrance is the old church at Salem, to which my young feet were turned every Sabbath. There were many joyful occasions even in the quiet, uneventful life of this Moravian settlement. Our school-life was so intimately blended with our religious life that it was in the true spirit of worship that we joined in the simple ritual of the old church, then not frescoed. I often call to mind the sainted ones who ministered there: Bishop VAN VLECK, our Principal, Rev. G. B. Reichel, Rev. Mr. Shultz, who lived in the brick house at the entrance of the cedar avenue, the father of our revered Bishop Shultz and my dear friend and teacher, Miss LISETTA SHULTZ, whom I was privileged to see in Bethlehem, shortly before her death. Then I call to mind the Rev. ABRAHAM STEINER, the second Principal of the ACADEMY, who served as missionary to the Indians at one time.

My regret at not being with you on this occasion is increased by calling up old times, especially the lovefeasts on important occasions. Many times, in my home circle, have I described these services with coffee and buns. The coffee seemed like nectar to our young palates, for the daily fare of school-life, while served with abundance and scrupulous nicety, was not varied, though we did ample justice to it with our healthy appetites. Music was a prominent feature in the education of the young folks, as well as in the religious services. I shall never forget the grand old organ, how its notes pealed forth in welcome to the New Year. How lovely the church looked the last time I saw it on the occasion of a visit I made some winters ago to Salem. One of the large decorations was retained for me to see at the old tavern, by the courtesy of my Salem friends, to whom my contemplated visit had been announced by my friend, Mrs. Louisa Blickensderfer. I consider myself fortunate to have seen the old building at that time, since I learn through a recent number of THE ACADEMY that it has been altered.

One striking feature of the ACADEMY was the sanded floors that were first made beautiful in the purity of cleanliness and then sprinkled with white sand, which with a broom was formed into patterns of lines and waves. On Saturday we had the quiet dissipation of a walk down town, accompanied by our teachers, who bought for us from our pocket-money, fruits, cakes and sweets.

When I was there the number of pupils was very large, but tender care was shown for the mental, moral and physical wants of all. To the few who were ill, kindness and consideration were always given. At last the time came for me to leave Salem, and I was conducted by dear old Daddy BAGGE to the tavern to meet my brother, to be carried away from the dear old school-life forever to my home in Savannah, Ga. How like yesterday it seems when I bade the beloved school good-bye!

I feel sure that the members of the ACADEMY now enjoying its privileges will appreciate the feelings with which I turned from its-doors, and that they, sixty years from now, must, like me, look back upon their school-life with sweet and hallowed recollections. That the school may continue its remarkable course of prosperity and gladden many homes through its refining influence, is the sincere wish of its some-time pupil and present well-wisher.

AMELIA ROE WOODWARD.

East Walnut Hill, Cincinnati, O.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Our supper hour has been changed to six o'clock, a change appreciated by all of us.

—Prof. MARKGRAFF returned from his European visit, and resumed his duties, Sept. 12th.

—A neat passage way, with substantial railings, has been made from the north door of the dining-room into the yard.

—The morale of the new Senior Class is good. There are at present 26 in the class, 19 boarders and 7 day-pupils. We will give their names as soon as our space allows.

—A correspondent recently inquired for the publishers of Dr. Edward's book, "The Old Log Meeting House." It was issued by the Southern Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn.

—Some of the room companies of the ACADEMY now occupy the front seats down stairs in the church in the Sabbath service, alternating with each other, as there is not room enough for the whole school at one time.

—Door-bells have been appended to the two entrance doors of the new ACADEMY. The doors are kept locked in the morning until 8 o'clock, when the day pupils begin to come in, and in the evening from 5 o'clock on.

—A change has been effected in the course of the afternoon school-hours;—they now run from half-past 1 to half-past 4, the last hour being used only as a study hour and for additional work in the special departments.

—Speaking tubes now connect Mr. CLEWELL'S office with the Teachers' Rooms, one on the first floor, the other on the second. They are a great convenience; a whisper is distinctly audible, as though the speaker stood by your side.

—The Euterpean and Hesperian Societies of the ACADEMY were re-organized on September 7th, with commendable zeal and interest. The members are brimful of enthusiasm, and success is therefore a foregone conclusion.

—In vacation we had a number of pleasant evenings in the Play-grounds. CLARENCE had a bright little birthday party there, July 3d. Later in the month Dr. RONDTHALER'S birthday was the occasion of a pleasant social meeting of a few friends.

—Examinations of new pupils commenced August 28th and continued as daily arrivals presented themselves. The school was opened formally Thursday, August 30th. 137 scholars were in attendance the first morning, the number increasing steadily from day to day.

—Mrs. RONDTHALER and ALICE were away all summer, returning August 28th. Mrs. R. visited relatives in Bethlehem, New York, Brooklyn, &c., and Miss ALICE attended the famous Sauveur Summer School of Languages at Burlington, Vermont. She has now taken charge of the French in the various classes in addition to other work.

—The two Senior Middle class-rooms in the old ACADEMY building have been arranged for the day-pupils, instead of the 7th room in the new house. These two class-rooms were separated by a row of double closets which have been torn out and 5 doors placed side by side, so that the two rooms may be thrown into one as occasion requires. An adjoining music room has been fitted up with shelves, and hooks for wraps, &c.

—The dwelling-rooms, or study parlors, are provided with teachers as follows: the Seniors, 1st and 2d rooms, Miss LEHMAN; 3d, Misses EMMA CHITTY and LIZZIE LEINBACH; 4th, Misses L. SHAFFNER and M. MEINUNG; 5th, Misses SALLIE SHAFFNER and ELLA SHORE; 6th, Misses A. PITTMAN and C. JONES; 7th, Misses CARMICHAEL and E. COOPER; 8th, Misses LULA TATE and MARY LEWIS; 9th, Misses CONNIE PROHL and ELIZA CLARK.

—Two rooms, No. 1 and No. 2, are occupied by the Seniors of '89, with several special students, Misses DAISY LITTLE, NELLIE CRAMER, &c. Miss LEHMAN has charge of both rooms. Few scenes are brighter than this suite of 4 rooms, 2 study parlors and their adjoining side rooms all thrown into one by connecting doors; they are especially attractive during the evening study hours, the bright gas-light falling on still brighter young faces, intently preparing next day's tasks.

—Through the kindness of Dr. Swift and Miss HATTIE on July 26, we were enabled to attend the closing exercises of the State Normal School in Winston, which had been in session about 3 weeks. The cordial welcome and the attentions we received added much to the pleasure of the occasion. We were especially pleased with the Library of the Graded School, which has been gathered, first by Professor Tomlinson and later by the exertions of Prof. Blair, the genial superintendent.

—Miss GEITNER received a pleasing mark of attention in a picnic, or an informal evening, in the pleasure-grounds the day before she left for her home in Hickory, N. C. Several weeks later we were truly sorry to hear of her bereavement in the death of her mother, who departed after an illness of some weeks. Miss GEITNER does not return to the ACADEMY.

—Various changes were effected in the sick-rooms during vacation. The inner sick-room was entirely cut off from the front room by closing up the partial partition, as well as the door, and running a passage way from the front room quite back. One door leads from this passage way to the left into the inner sick-room, while an opposite door to the right leads into the sick-room kitchen.

—Among the varied conveniences that mark the opening of the new term none is more appreciated than a handsome Post Office box, of black walnut, deftly carved and ornamented with S. F. A. in raised letters on the front, the work of Mr. Regennas, in the employ of Fogle Bros. This box is fastened against the wall in the lower corridor, and is easy of access from all parts of the building. It is securely locked, and the mail is taken out twice a day.

—Mr. CLEWELL has published a neat and interesting pamphlet entitled: "How to get to SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY." It is illustrated with a fine frontispiece of the ACADEMY buildings and scenes in the grounds. Besides there are 6 excellent railroad maps, giving routes with explanations, directions, &c. Full information is given relative to the ACADEMY, and the work is a valuable guide to any one who wishes to visit Salem. The typographical work is neat.

—Thanks to a friend from Midland, Tenn., probably Mrs. Dr. Bogle, for a copy of a Nashville paper with a wood-cut of Mrs. Ex-President Polk as she touches the electric button, the signal for opening the Cincinnati Exposition; the paper also contains full accounts of the general proceedings of the Exposition, &c. We are likewise indebted to LINA FROST, of Corsicana, Tex., for copies of Mrs. Winkler's letters to the Dallas and Galveston News concerning her visit to Salem, &c.

—The arrival of the Special Car, "City of Birmingham," from Texas and the Southwest, on Thursday, August 30, was an event in the history of the school. "Salem is the pioneer in this as in various other progressive movements," says one of our brethren of the press. The young ladies forming this party started from Dallas, about 1500 miles distant, came through Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, &c., receiving accessions as they came; they were brought to Salem in an elegant car, under the charge of Mr. Thweat, the gentlemanly conductor. The girls will ever remember the kindness and watchful care of Mr. Thweat with gratitude. His genial, kindly manner at once gained their confidence, and his untiring efforts in their behalf were fully appreciated. The next day after their arrival, another party of Texans came on, under the charge of Col. Means, from Houston.

—A large window, with solid pane of plate glass has been placed in the roof of the back piazza of the ACADEMY, outside the Senior room window, in order to give light to those who so often sat in darkness in the 7th, or former day-scholars' room. Since these rooms have been temporarily occupied in the new ACADEMY as dwelling-rooms, all the day pupils are accommodated in the Senior Middle Class rooms of the old building, where special provision has been made for their comfort.

—A mountain party from the ACADEMY, conducted by Mr. Aug. Fogle, set out for Fancy Gap in the Blue Ridge, on August 9th, returning in a week. Mrs. CLEWELL and CLARENCE, Mrs. Aug. Wolle, of Bethlehem, Pa, Rev. E. Wolle, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Misses SALLIE SHAFNER, CONNIE PFOHL, EMMA CHITTY, ALMA CARMICHAEL, Mrs. CARMICHAEL and WILLIE LUTZ, the first pupil who came for school, formed the company, with MAT and his wife to look after creature comforts. An account of the trip is given elsewhere.

—We recently added two small alligators to the tank in which our former pet has been living for more than a year. The first occupant looked on in amazement when the new arrivals were put in, as if to say, "what do these little wrigglers want?" but he adapted himself to the inevitable (as most of us learn to do with increasing age), and now he even shows an affectionate interest in them. As the patriarch is 21 or 22 inches in length, and the smaller ones 8 or 10, it will be quite a while before animals or children will be in danger. A little raw beef now satisfies them, with an occasional despoil of polly-wogs.

—Miss KATHERINE EYANS, of New York, who was engaged to fill the position of Lady Professor of Vocal Instruction for the new year, arrived promptly August 28th, and assumed her work with the first days of the new term. Miss EVANS has made vocal culture her life-work, and has received a thorough training both in America and in Europe. In addition to her American studies, she has received certificates of proficiency from Desiree Artot de Padella and from Pauline Viardot Garcia, a distinction which few American vocalists attain. Miss Evans has been a teacher at the Southern Female College of La, Grange Ga., and has appeared in concerts in Atlanta, Montgomery, Jacksonville and Savannah.

—The large number of applications of pupils for the Fall Term of the ACADEMY made it evident that more room would be required. The Trustees of the School accordingly agreed to have a handsome 2-story cottage (2 floors and basement) erected in the rear of the Bagge House, fronting on the former deer park. The work began the last week of vacation, and the walls arose almost like magic. We watch the rapid work with great interest, and it is not at all probable that any of us will be like the Trappist monk who never raised his eyes as he walked for many years, and so cracked his skull against a new chapel that had been built on the premises. The two rooms of youngest girls are to occupy the new building when completed. For the present they are accommodated in the old 7th room and the old Preparatory class room next the church in the north wing.

—The faculty of the State Normal School, in session in the Graded School building in Winston, and the teachers attending, were invited to take tea in our Pleasure Grounds on July 25th. Some 50 responded to the invitation, and we had a most enjoyable time. Three long tables were set at the foot of the hill, on the borders of the brook that flows through the grounds. After tea various short, spicy, post-prandial addresses were made by Professor Blair, of Winston, Prof. Moses, Principal of the Raleigh Graded Schools, Prof. Branson, Dr. Rondthaler and Mr. Clewell. The company then strolled about over the grounds until the gathering shades of twilight drew them to the ACADEMY. A number went over the buildings by gas-light, and then departed with mutual expressions of gratification and pleasure. Among these Normalites we were pleased to greet old acquaintances,—Miss Irene McGehee, of Madison, N. C.; Misses Lizzie Neal, Mary Norfleet, Ada Thornburg, of Winston; Miss Flynt, of Dalton Institute, and others, besides making new acquaintances, the able members of the Faculty of the Normal School, Mrs. McDonald, teacher of the Primary Department, Dr. Davis, of S. C., Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Webb, &c.

—Some names of new members of the Alumni Association were crowded out of the June ACADEMY, and some have since been handed in. We enroll them with great pleasure, and heartily invite all former pupils to do likewise. The names are: Miss Carrie Crist, Miss Carrie Vest, Mrs. A. Vance, (Addie Fogle) Mrs. Chas. Fogle, (A. Butner) Mrs. Christ. Fogle, (E. Reich) Misses Carrie and Anne Jones, Mrs. Chas. Pinkston, (Lily Jones) Salem; Mrs. Dr. A. Jones, (Nannie Dalton) Walnut Cove, N. C.; Mrs. W. J. Hudson, (Bettie Grier) Wolfesville, N. C.; Mrs. Mary Phillips, (McGhee) Monroe, La.; Mrs. Frank Earnest, (Jodie Vaughn) Cotulla, Tex.; Mrs. M. Clement, Miss Lizzie Clement, Mocksville, N. C.; Mrs. M. E. Whiston, Miss Alice Selinger, Charlotte, N. C.; Mrs. J. R. Bolt, (Jane Ransour) Smith Grove, N. C.; Mrs. E. B. McMasters, (Elizabeth Boatright) Mrs. J. S. Connor, (Miriam Lumpkin) Mrs. L. E. Seavell (Mary Creight) Winoboro, S. C.; Mrs. N. Klemann, (Nannie Thomas) Wilmington, N. C.

—The names of our old pupils who have returned to school up to date are, Misses Louie Bridges, Grace Nichols, Lizzie Fitzgerald, Florence Cummings, Julia Meachum, Lillian Thompson, Annie Walker, Hattie Sutton, Lola Wells, Lillian Parker, Daisy and Helen Ruf, Lida and Kattie Fain, Anne Swann, Zula and Hannah McCaless, Mary and Bert Fitzpatrick, Carrie Bonn, Ada Evans, Tibbie Wommack, Jeanie Smith, Selma Krushik, Ava Stroup, Maggie Graham, Edna Ingram, Virginia Burson, Nettie Dunlap, Daisy Little, Marguerite Du Four, Nellie Griffin, Bert and Edna Lindsay, Kate Moses, Annie Sloan, Annie Staples, Mary Penn, Lula Peyton, Minnie Whitsett, Nellie Johnson, Mary Cannady, Janie Sherille, Lizzie Anne, Mary and Fannie Moore, Salie Meagan, Bettie Murphy, Liss Rogers, Frances Felling, Ollie Snow, Janie Whitner, Florence and Emma Hardee, Emily Hazelhurst, Mary and Fanny Pretlow, Nellie Warner, Mattie Grimes, Emma Rollins, Minnie Fagg, Etta Taylor Minnie Farmer and Lena Chafin.

—The Commencement number of THE ACADEMY was so filled up that various items of interest were crowded out. Among others a poem written by a former pupil, and addressed to the graduating class of '88. The names of the graduates in the special branches were also omitted. They are as follows: In Phonography or Short-hand and Type-writing, Misses Kate Paddison, Beatrice Winkler, Nellie Johnston, Hannah McCaless, Laura Dicks, Mamie Dwyre, Fannie Riggs, Mary Smith and Ollie Snow, in Telegraphy, Misses Bettie Sherill, Nina Flournoy, Ann Eliza Threadgill, Julia Dunlap, Annie Brown and Beatrice Winkler. In Book-keeping, Misses Minnie Beard, Louie Bridges, Laura Dicks, Nina Flournoy, Florence and Emma Hardee, Bessie Hooker, Hannah McCaless, Mary and Fannie Pretlow, Janie Sherille, Ollie Snow, Agnes Townsend, Beatrice Winkler. The graduates in Music are: Misses Minnie Beard, Nellie Bewley, Maggie David, Lula Deaderick, Lula Hege, Salie Hunnicutt, Carrie Micky, Ellie Siddall, Allah Gibbs and Mary Smith. Total, 9 in Short-hand, 6 in Telegraphy, 14 in Book-keeping, and 10 in Music. One of the young ladies graduated in 3 of the special studies, viz: Miss Beatrice Winkler, while Misses Minnie Beard, Nina Flournoy and Laura Dicks, graduated in two.

—The new pupils enrolled thus far are: Misses Willie Lutz, Greenwood, Miss.; Almada McGregor, Waco, Tex.; Mary Holt, Henderson, N. C.; Maggie Gunn, La Villa, Ga.; Marie Werber, Newberry, S. C.; Lizzie Kime, Liberty, N. C.; Anne Clegg, Onlet, N. C.; Belle Cramer, Thomasville, N. C.; Sadie Dunn, Bertie, Dicks, Martha Jefferys, Mattie Williams, Evvie Thomas, Raleigh, N. C.; Addie Leinback, Bethania, N. C.; Dora Cox, Cedar Falls, N. C.; Bettie Cox and Kate Ogburn, Sedge Garden, N. C.; Mamie and Kate Waddell, Asheville, N. C.; Rachel Sims, Oxford, N. C.; Lena Fields, Daisy Kayner, Kinston, N. C.; Sarah Cheatham, Oxford, N. C.; Lillie Fleming, Tex. Creedmore, N. C.; Lucille Arnsfield, Jamestown, N. C.; Lyda David, Bennettsville, S. C.; Frank Creight, Winoboro, S. C.; Lizzie Sutton, Fayetteville, N. C.; Mattie Fain, Daudridge, Tenn.; Julia Smith, Greenville, Tenn.; Belle King, Dalton, Ga.; Hattie Jaruga, Moxey Creek, Tenn.; Annie Belle May, Rock Hill, S. C.; Emma Lee Wells, Wilson, N. C.; Lou Winstanley, Gaston, N. C.; Addie Borden, Goldsboro, N. C.; Lizzie Burson, Bristol, Tenn.; Sallie Smith, York, Penn.; Maude Harris, Reidsville, N. C.; Bertha Mebane, Greensboro, N. C.; Georgia Dalton, Dalton, N. C.; Lucille and Anne Reid, Wentworth, N. C.; Virginia McMurray, Anson Co., N. C.; Kate Holland, Fort Reed, Fla.; Alealede Youngblood, Atlanta, Ga.; Fannie Wray, Shelby, N. C.; Georgia Baxter, Sparta, Ga.; Lillian and Claudia Dicks, Randleman, N. C.; Martha Pierce, Tazewell, Va.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Miss ANNE JONES resumed her duties as music teacher at the Union High School, East Bend, N. C.

—Miss MATTIE BARNSON called in the Senior room to see us recently. She appears to be well, and enjoying young lady-hood.

—Miss FOGLE visited Connelly's Springs, toward the close of vacation, but we are sorry to find that she has not improved in health very rapidly.

—A communication from Mrs. Hyde (Miss E. D. LEWIS, our former Painting teacher,) announces the name of her little son, George Gordon Hyde. Alas for art!

—Miss JEANIE REYNOLDS, of Aberdeen, Miss., our valedictorian of '88 spent the summer visiting friends and relatives in Columbus and Waverly, Miss.

—Miss BLANCHE ARMFIELD came up to enter her sister LUCILLE in the ACADEMY, and spent a night with us. Miss JENNIE RAGSDALE is engaged in teaching.

—Miss NELLIE CRAMER, of Thomasville, is with us as a special student. Misses BESSIE and BLANCHE THOMAS, MAMIE's younger sisters, entered the school as day pupils.

—Mrs. W. B. Creight, of Winoboro, S. C., (MARY's mother) brought a younger daughter, FRANK, to school, and remained a few days in the Academy Annex or Bagge House.

—Misses L. SHAFNER and ALMA CARMICHAEL made a pleasant visit to Wilmington, N. C., as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster, (GERTIE HALL) Miss CARMICHAEL's cousin.

—Miss CLAUDE WINKLER went north near the close of July to avail herself of additional advantages in ornamental needlework, in Brooklyn, N. Y., at Bentley's Art Establishment.

—Rev. Samuel Blum, of the Moravian church, Phila., Penn., an esteemed friend passed part of his vacation in Salem, preaching an able discourse for us on the last Sabbath of his stay.

—ELIZA HUMPHREYS who married HOB. F. M. SIMMONS, of the 5th Congressional District, N. C., died four years ago, leaving 3 children; the eldest Mamie Simmons is eleven years of age.

—We were very pleased to meet Mrs. Kalligan (formerly FANNIE BIGGS, 1862-63) a handsome lady with two children, a boy of perhaps 10, and a girl of 15 or 16 years of age. She spent some time in Winston.

— Professor AGTHE, of Cumberland, Md., with his wife, daughter TINA, and a relative of his son's wife, spent some days in Salem at Miss SOPHIE BUTNER'S, on his way to Mr. R. A. Hamilton's, in Ashe Co., N. C.

— Miss SALLIE VOGLER has returned to her mother after a year's teaching on Staten Island, N. Y., with her brother Rev. W. H. Vogler. She has now opened a small private school, and will be engaged with her pupils in the Widows' Home, in the former Infant School room.

— Dr. and Mrs. Henry, of Miss, brought our first pupil for the new term, Miss WILLIE LEE LUTZ, August 2nd. They are old friends having brought us a well-known pupil of eleven years ago, CAPPIE HENRY, now Mrs. Craige, of Greenwood, Miss., CAPPIE has a bright little son Dittoe Craige by name.

— Miss NINA FLOURNOY was very ill during the summer of Typhoid fever, at her home in Shreveport, La. Once a false report of her death was circulated, but she was mercifully restored again. Her cousin EMMA ILER, a new pupil from Shreveport, reports her as able to sit up again, with daily improvement in strength.

— Mr. J. W. Fries and family visited some of our northern cities passing on to Niagara up to Montreal, &c. ADDIE and MARY enjoyed the journey to its fullest extent. ADDIE is wisely carrying on some of her studies in a post graduate course, in Literature, Latin, &c., and also takes up book-keeping in the Commercial course.

— Miss ANNIE PITTMAN stayed with relatives and friends at Scotland Neck, Eastern Carolina, during vacation. Miss MARY BERNARD is living in Wilmington; she taught in the Graded Schools during the past year. We are sorry to hear of the death of her uncle Mr. A. Van Bokkelen an estimable gentleman, a citizen of Wilmington.

— A number of friends and acquaintances enjoyed the society and scenery of the Piedmont and Danbury section. We note the names of Miss KITTIE MAY PENN, Mr. Charles Penn, Misses MAY SUE MOTTLE, EUGENIA NUNNALLY, of Reidsville, Miss ELLA SHORE, SALLIE VEST, CARRIE JONES and Mrs. Durham, (LELIA WEBB) of Salem.

— Miss KATE PADDISON spent the heated term on board her father's splendidly equipped steamer "The Queen of St. John's," which Captain Paddison ran up to Wilmington during the summer, taking his family on board. What a delightful time KATE must have had, all the pleasures of river and sea-shore, then later the return to Florida.

— European travel is becoming more and more common: we see from a Danville paper of June 16, that Misses KATE SCHOOLFIELD and ANNIE CLARK, of Danville, joined a company of foreign tourists in charge of Miss SHAW, of Richmond, Va., and are probably still abroad. ILAH DUNLAP was to return near the close of September.

— Miss SALLIE HUNNICUTT has been away from home part of the summer, at the sea-shore, &c. She attended the Southern Chatauqua, of Atlanta, at different times. Miss LULA BROWN, of Macon, Ga., paid her a visit of several weeks. Miss DAISY CLISBY visited Miss LUCY TOMLINSON and Miss NELLIE BEWLEY, ESSIE, at Tate Springs.

— We were much interested to find that the mother of Professor Moses, of the Raleigh Graded School was educated in the ACADEMY about 1830. Her name was Miss SUSAN WILLIAMS, of Knoxville, Tenn. Prof. Moses impressed us as one of those genial irresistible persons, brimful of life, vitality and energy who are sure to command success.

— Miss LILY LASH has our deep sympathy in the death of her father, Mr. Thos. B. Lash, of Warfa, N. C., who died July 27. Miss SALLIE VEST sustained a similar bereavement in the death of her father Mr. J. P. Vest, of Salem, Sept. 3rd. Miss Vest had been at the Piedmont Springs, in feeble health herself, and was called home by this sad dispensation of Providence.

— Among the familiar faces of friends bringing pupils we were glad to see Mr. Pean, of Danville, MARY'S father, Mr. Binson, of Bristol, Tenn., who brought a younger daughter with VIRGINIA, Mrs. Whitsett, Capt. and Mrs. G. S. Hardee, Fla.; Mr. Harris, Mr. Lindsey, of Reidsville; Dr. and Mrs. McGregor, of Waco, Tex.; Mrs. Reid, of Wentworth, N. C.; Mr. Little, of Arkansas.

— Among those who brought daughters or wards to school were some of our older Alumnae, who availed themselves of the opportunity of revisiting the scenes of auld lang syne. It was pleasant to see their delight when they recalled familiar haunts as if they were dear old friends. Among them we met Mrs. Verber, who was a pupil here in 1850, as Marie Louise Bono, of Cross Keys, S. C. Her daughter MARIE WEBBER is an inmate of the fourth room. Mrs. Martha Jefferies, who also brought a daughter, was here 54 years ago in 1834. ALVIRADO JEFFERIES was her near relative.

— In the changing kaleidoscope of human life the merry peal of wedding bells is often heard and in close succession the toll of the passing bell as one or another is borne to the long home of all humanity. ELLA McCOMB died at Hickory, N. C., on the 21st of July. She was so robust, so full of life and vitality when she left us several years ago, that we little dreamed how soon her career would be cut short.

— Some time ago we noted the fact that Prof. Thos. L. Norwood, late of Bingham's had been elected Dean of Knoxville College, Tenn., and Professor of Modern Languages and English; later to our deep regret, we saw the notice of his death at his father's in Tennessee, July 28th. He was well known in our midst as a gentleman and scholar. His first wife was Miss CARRIE BAHNSON, of Salem, who died in the first year of their married life.

— We are truly glad to welcome back several of our old pupils as teachers, viz: Miss ELIZA CLARK, of Little Rock, S. C., LULA FATE, of Graham, N. C., and EMMA COOPER, of Salem. Miss CLARK, in addition to regular room and class duty assists Mr. CLEWELL in his office as secretary, and amply. Her knowledge of short-hand now makes her doubly useful. Miss MARY LEWIS, of Salem, takes room duty only, her school hours being otherwise occupied.

— We were pleased to learn of several marriages among our friends and Alumnae of the ACADEMY. Miss FANNIE EVERITT, the well known and esteemed Lady Principal of the Statesville Female College, was married to Mr. W. W. Walton, a leading business man of the place, on June 13, they took a bridal tour embracing our most noted northern cities.

— We shall be happy to welcome to our midst our Salutatorian of 1882, Miss LUCY PATTERSON, who is now Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, and will make her home in Winston, N. C.

— Mrs. Clara Dargan McLean who taught in Burlington, N. J., last year, will fill a position in the Wesleyan Seminary, Staunton, Va., in the ensuing year, as teacher of music. She spent a good part of the summer in Salem at Prof. E. W. Leibach's, with her youngest son, Scott. Later in the season her step-son Prof. McLean, and a sister Miss Dargan, joined her at Prof. LEIBACH'S.

— Prof. McLean ranks high in his chosen art, as teacher of music, at present in Rogersville, Tenn. He brought us messages of kindly remembrance from some pupils of 20 years ago, Mrs. Ed. Powell, (MOLLIE RILEY) Mrs. Waterson, (NERVE RILEY) and others.

— Mrs. Winkler, of Corsicana, Texas, with her two daughters BEATRICE and her younger sister, spent the summer in an enjoyable tour among her kinsfolks and friends in Virginia, in Petersburg, Norfolk, and Johnson's Springs, in Goochland County. Revisiting the scenes and friends of 20 years ago is one of the dearest and at the same time often the saddest experiences of our lives, for how many join "the great majority" out of every circle in the course of 20 years! Mrs. Winkler's ever active and gifted pen has contributed a series of letters to the Galveston and Dallas News wherein she describes her journey from Texas to Salem, the various distinctive features of Salem, the Belo House, Hotel, Widows' and Sisters' House, the Avenue, Graveyard, Cemetery, ACADEMY, &c., with an accuracy and correct insight that we do not often meet with.

Married.

FRANKLIN—BARHAM.—In Winston, June 28, Mr. W. E. FRANKLIN to Miss ANNE BARHAM.

WALTON—EVERITT.—In Statesville, N. C., June 13, Mr. W. W. WALTON to Miss FANNIE EVERITT, the Lady Principal of the Statesville Female College.

PATTERSON—PATTERSON.—In Russellville, Tenn., Sept. 5, Mr. J. LINDSAY PATTERSON, of Winston, N. C., to Miss LUCY PATTERSON.

PERKINS—MOORE.—In Greenville, N. C., in July, Mr. PERKINS to Miss HELEN MOORE, both of Greenville, N. C.

BRYAN—CONRAD.—In Lewisville, N. C., Sept. 6, Mr. GEORGE BRYAN, of Charlotte, to Miss JULIA CONRAD, daughter of Eugene Conrad, Esq.

Died.

McCOMB.—In Hickory, N. C., July 21st, of Typhoid fever, Miss ELLA McCOMB, daughter of the late Mr. Wm. McComb.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere; Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

CLINARD & BROOKES.

WANTED.

A position as governess in a private family by a young lady, a Graduate of Salem Female Academy.
Address ACADEMY.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES, AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT," AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

OF

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,

CROCKERY and HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

ICE COLD

Mexican Sherbet,

Grape Phosphates,

Kidwell's Cream,

Lime and Lemonade

AT

ASHCRAFT & OWENS,

DRUGGISTS, WINSTON, N. C.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., OCTOBER, 1888.

NUMBER 89.

SILENT CITIES.

BY MISS ELIZA CLARK.

THE aphorism that "distance lends enchantment to the view" is exemplified in natural scenery.

The mountain appears beautiful as it lifts its head until it reaches the thunder's home, piercing the sky like a wedge, but as we approach nearer, the soft blue resolves itself into rugged crags and prosaic outlines.

This is equally true of the works of man. The present age seems dull and unromantic in comparison with the past ages. It has been said that no age appears heroic to those who live in it, so then we may hope that our age will appear heroic to coming generations. Man's present triumphs seem less brilliant than his former achievements, and to the student of history it is a fascinating pleasure to study the grandeur and magnificence of the silent cities of antiquity, robed and tinted with the purple hue of distance.

Athens, Sparta and other cities of their time formed a bright constellation in the firmament of glory; now, ancient Athens lives in the shattered beauties of sculpture. It is true a sort of third rate city hangs on the borders of her ancient glory, but not even the remnants of a ruined castle mark the spot where heroic Sparta stood.

Little did the proud Athenians dream that an age greater than their own would ever come, and Athens, the centre of the world's learning, art and refinement, would dwell only in the dead memories of the past. She still lives, however, in the beauties of the Venus of Milo, still lives in the gay acanthus of her marble shafts; these monuments of decayed glory present a sad picture of her present degeneracy. How much more awful is it for us to contemplate the destruction of Pompeii than that of Babylon, Nineveh or Tyre! The fall of these cities in which man was the chief agent, causes us no pang, save a sentimental regret that so much beauty and loveliness should fade away, but the fate of Pompeii arouses our sympathy because it was so sudden, so unexpected, so unsparring in the destruction of human life.

Rome, from her throne of beauty, ruled the world; it was impossible for the nations to make any progress in thought, hampered and restrained by her despotism. She made no effort to diffuse among her conquered provinces the refinements and learning which she herself enjoyed, but she taxed and extorted tribute from them so that she might repose in idleness and luxury. This state of things naturally tended to corrupt and weaken, and as "time moved on its tireless course" the great Roman Empire was divided by the northern barbarians, and for ages the life-blood of the imperial city seemed to be slowly ebbing away, and she saw her once weak adversaries rising by her decay; she, however, profited by her terrible lesson and instead of being buried and well-nigh forgotten, she appears to be entering upon a new lease of life, as an integral part of the new kingdom of Italy, though it is not likely that she will ever again have the world at her feet.

The peaceful waters of the Dead Sea daily glide over the once proud cities of the plain, and no skillful philosopher has as yet suggested any way by which they could be removed from their silent state of petrification. The destruction of these cities shows the superiority of nature over art.

All the creations of man are but for a season, while the works of nature are as fresh and strong as they were when Adam loitered amid the beauties of Eden. Pompeii has been destroyed, but Vesuvius stands as terrible as it did 1800 years ago. We can see the yellow Tiber as it flows by the walls of Rome; we can see Vesuvius at whose base Pompeii reposes; we can see the geographical sites of Babylon, Nineveh, Carthage, Sparta and Troy, but as for the cities themselves they "sank into dust and oblivion."

Our fair modern cities, Paris, London, Berlin, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Cincinnati, Chicago, Atlanta, and New Orleans, are now in the zenith of their glory. Will their gilded fanes ever lie in rubbish at the feet? We need entertain no saddening fears if they continue with energy and industry to pursue the highest aims of virtue and glory. Still we know that unless they profit by the mistakes of the silent cities of the past, and learn anew lessons of the true glory and strength of a people, they too will yield to the influence of Time.

"Revolutions sweep
O'er earth, like troubled visions o'er the breast
Of dreaming sorrow; cities rise and sink
Like bubbles on the water, Yet Time, Time the tomb-builder, holds his fierce career,
Dark, stern, all pitiless, and pauses not
To sit and muse, like other conquerors,
Upon the fearful ruin he hath wrought."

What are the Wild Waves Saying?

BY MISS NELLIE BEWLEY.

What are the wild waves saying,
To the vessels on her billows swaying?
Do they not speak in their thundering tones
Of the dark caves beneath, the sea monsters' homes?
They dash so wildly, so loudly they roar
As they break on the rocks of the surf-beaten shore!

Each wave bears a different message to our ears. Some whisper joy and gladness, while the sound of the same wave would bear to another, past memories of the deepest grief.

Perhaps they speak of a loved one whom these same cruel waves entombed in their last resting place, the mighty deep; far down he lies where mermaids sport and sea-pearls glisten. They speak also of the fruitless hours of watching and waiting in a far off land for one who can never come again. To another they bear memories of a far distant home, and bring back the days of long ago;—the happy fireside, parents, companions and friends, as with a solemn undertone they say: "No more! no more! no more!" Such language holds the murmuring sea "to the hearts upon the shore."

The song of the ocean fills the inmost soul of the aged sea-captain with rapture, and makes him think of the happy hours of youth and manhood, for to the sailor his home on the rolling deep is far dearer than aught else. Even when he is safe on terra firma he sighs for "a life on the ocean wave." To the maiden the waves seem to say: "wait till the clouds roll by," as she thinks of a happy season soon to come, which the waves of time bring nearer each day.

When the storm king is abroad in his might, and the waves dance in maddest glee, anon rising mountain high, they drive the tempest-tost seaman as he stands aloft on the mast betwixt Heaven and earth to his only sure anchorage in Him "who holds the waters in the hollow of his hand." The foreboding thunder of the waves tuned in the very lowest key of Nature's music, is so saddening in its minor notes that it takes a cheerful, wholesome, sunshiny nature to rise superior to its influences.

While the stormy billows are raging on the surface of the ocean, there is perfect peace and calmness in its quiet depths; there the sea anemone spreads its pink petals, the gorgeously attired denizens of the ocean caves flit about in peace and safety,

"As down in the sunless retreats of the ocean,
Sweet flowers are springing no mortal can see,
So deep in the heart the still prayer of devotion
Unheard by the world, rises silent to thee,
My God! silent to thee."

Some times the sound of bells is heard on the waves, bearing to the home-sick voyager memories of peaceful home Sabbaths and family meetings. Occasionally sweet music is thus wafted far out to sea, "as if the wild air trembled to disclose an ocean mystery," or the inhabitants of Neptune's realms could not contain their joy, and would fain have the sympathy of the mortals of our upper world.

The ocean, "the glorious mirror where the Almighty's form glasses itself in tempests," is the emblem of infinity, of God-like power, before which man is utterly powerless; his control stops with the shore, and though his genius has partially subjugated the ocean, it is only in its mildest, gentlest moods. A so-called invincible Armada of a proud nation is utterly wrecked and broken into a thousand fragments by its angry storms.

"Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean, roll!
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain;
Each zone obeys thee; thou goest forth, dread, fathomless, alone!"

Sympathy.

BY MISS SALLIE F. HUNNICUTT.

THERE are no twin souls in the universe; each individual stands alone in his accountability to his Maker, and in his duty to man. No one can by any means redeem his brother, even if he would be willing to give his chances of salvation to the dear one. But while we thus stand alone in the great issues of life and death, while we must undergo all our deepest experiences alone, we are all linked together by the universal bonds of sympathy and love. "No man liveth to himself and no man dieth to himself;" we all have a common brotherhood and sisterhood of imperfection and need. "One touch of nature makes us all akin," saith the immortal bard, and it is a very cross-grained, gnarled and twisted nature that does not sympathize with his fellows.

Those who are working together for the same end, who have the same object in view, before whom the same goal shines, must necessarily be sympathetic; they have the same interests to make them so.

Sympathy is very sweet when we are in any trouble or difficulty. A mourner may sit in a darkened house from which the light of a beloved life has gone out forever; and a sympathizing friend comes in with no hackneyed words of condolence or set formulas of resignation, but the tender pressure of the hand, the tearful eye, speak of the sympathy dearer than any thing else on earth could be.

Sympathy lightens our hardest tasks, smooths away the roughest passages of difficulty, and softens the deepest furrow of discouragement. The calm voice of sympathy seems "Like the sweet melody which faintly lingers

Upon the wind harp's strings at close of day,
When gently touched by evening's dewy fingers
It breathes a low and melancholy lay."

Some proud natures naturally disdain pity; they do not want it because it implies that they do not possess the gifts, the talents, the good luck of others, and in its very nature implies the lack, the want of something; but sympathy presupposes a similarity of feeling, a community of interests, and is not at all synonymous with pity.

A woman is by her very disposition and temperament, by her intuitions, more sympathetic than a man. A man is ready to do all he can to relieve and help those who are in need, but when it comes to the finer feelings of sympathy he appears awkward and constrained, and had rather not be there.

The sympathy of the whole Christian world centered about the couch of the late German emperor, who made such a brave fight with death. The baby king of Spain, Alfonso XIII, seems to have gained general sympathy in his unconscious infancy, and the cutting of a tooth causes a pleasant ripple of interest from one side of the Atlantic to the other. Thus the extremes of life are touched by sympathy.

Elizabeth Fry, with an almost divine sympathy, went into the worst prisons of England, where she was surrounded by the lowest and vilest of the human race. A man with less magnetic sympathy would have been torn in pieces as in a den of wild beasts.

We want sympathy from infancy to old age; we need it, we greatly need it in every period of human life. The little child, in pain or sorrow, turns instinctively to its mother, and in her loving eye and gentle, soothing touch, forgets its short-lived trouble. School-girls sympathize with each other no matter what the trouble may be; no matter how much she is to blame she gains the sympathy of her companions. The business man who has failed goes home utterly crushed by his losses until the cheerful sympathy of his loved ones lifts the burden from his shoulders, and he goes forth with renewed hope and energy. The aged pilgrim, whose home-centre has been removed to the other shore, still values the kindly sympathy of his friends.

There is, however, a sympathy which is not ennobling, that is, a sympathy with wrong-doing, a sort of canonization of the wicked. Let a man commit the most heinous crime, and be confined for a time in prison, and there is a morbid sympathy excited for him which is unaccountable. See a Guiteau, receiving bouquets and selling his photographs to some of the first ladies of Washington! See the canonization of a Goethe, a Burns, a Byron; what excuses are made for men of genius whose vices make sight drafts on all the ready charity of the world. It is the most mischievous and fallacious notion that makes the possession of great gifts and the achievement of a great work an apology for wrong-doing. A God-like sympathy with the sinner, and an abhorrence of his sin, should be the rule. It is not easy for erring human beings to dissociate the sinner from the sins and sympathize with and love the sinner; but the more nearly we do this, the nearer we approximate to that divine sympathy which en-folds in its glorious bonds the whole human race.

Sympathy is worth more to us than money in hours of trouble; there are some restful people whose very touch is balm, whose companionship is a benediction; who draw out all that is best in the natures of those around them; they have a wonderful power over them, and a woman need ask no grander monument than to live in hearts by the divine power of sympathy.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—September 19th, Mr. CLEWELL'S 33rd birthday, the school had a holiday which gave even more than the usual amount of satisfaction. The new pupils enjoyed the drive given the whole school, especially because it gave them a general idea of the size and importance of the Twin-cities, and all, both old and new, enjoyed the drive and the dinner to its utmost extent. The drive began at 9 o'clock taking about 25 girls at one time, thus carrying the whole school in five separate installments. This consumed the day; at night a first class Concert was given in the Chapel by Prof. MARKGRAFF and Miss EVANS. We give the programme as follows: First, a Piano Duett, "Egmont Overture" (Beethoven,) by Miss EVANS and Professor MARKGRAFF, then a Vocal Solo, "Frühlingszeit" (Becker) Miss EVANS. Vocal Duett, "Die Engel" (Rubinstein) Miss EVANS and Prof. MARKGRAFF. Piano Solo, "5th Rhapsodie Hongroise" (Liszt) Prof. MARKGRAFF. Part Second:—Vocal Solo, (a) "My dearest heart" (Sullivan) (b) "Madchen Lied," "Nacht Lied" (Rubinstein) Miss EVANS and Prof. MARKGRAFF. Piano Duett, "Deux Marches Militaires" (Schubert) Miss EVANS and Prof. MARKGRAFF. The concert was good throughout, and at once placed Miss EVANS in an assured position as a first class vocalist. Prof. MARKGRAFF'S abilities are too well known to require description. Refreshments in the dining room after the concert, closed an altogether delightful day.

—On Sunday afternoon September 23rd, the whole school attended an open air meeting in the Winston Reservation where the corner-stone of a new Moravian Sunday School Chapel was laid with the services customary among us on such occasions. A very large concourse of people was gathered together, around the rising walls. Dr. RONDTHALER conducted the exercises, assisted by other ministers. Rev. J. H. CLEWELL read the Te Deum Laudamus, the congregation responding alternately. Rev. J. B. WURRESCHE read a Psalm. Rev. H. A.

Brown, of the Baptist church, was called upon by Dr. RONDTHALER to make some remarks. Rev. W. C. Norman, of the Methodist church, offered up a prayer. All the ministers of the Winston churches were present, taking part in a delightful fraternal spirit. All the ministers present together with our Moravian preachers, tapped the corner-stone with the small wooden mallets, repeating the formula, "In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." The long stream of nearly 300 boys and girls of the Home Sunday School, then 150 Academy girls, then the Elm Street school, about 200 strong, formed an interesting procession. We returned in the same order in which we had gone. The lovely autumn evening, the vast assemblage of people, the laying of the corner-stone with its attendant ceremonies, all combined to make a most interesting occasion.

—The Salem Grave-yard which has, for more than a century been a pleasant spot to visit, has during the past months been much enlarged and improved. It was extended from Mr. Lichtenthaler's house at the upper gate of the Cedar Avenue, to Mrs. Vogler's at the lower end. Under Mr. James Leinback's tasteful supervision it has been laid out in winding walks, with shrubbery here and there. There are now three large entrance gates instead of one. Over the arch of the first and oldest gate is the well-known inscription, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord," and on the inner side of the arch "I am the Resurrection and the Life." Over the second gate are the words, "Because I live, ye shall live also," and on the inside "God shall redeem my life from destruction." Over the third is the text "Them also that sleep in Jesus shall God bring with him," and on the inside "I know that my Redeemer liveth." We never pass this hallowed resting place of "the forefathers of the hamlet," without mentally running over the beautiful lines of Gray in his immortal Elegy.

—Mr. Hough our excellent photographer, has pictures of a number of the Trade Floats that figured in the Grand Procession of July 4th '88. The business of the Twin Cities, its varied industries were well represented on that occasion. Among these floats were the numerous Tobacco and Cigar factories, Furniture houses, the Warhovia, Arista and Salem mills, the Salem Iron Works, the Hardware stores, the Millinery displays, the several Building firms, and Mercantile establishments, all of which together with the well conceived Historic floats, would richly deserve a full description, if we had the space. It is a great pity that our pupils who naturally would enjoy such a display of the tastes and industries of the Twin-towns, were all away from here at the time, and did not even get a description of them, for it became an old and threadbare topic before their return in September.

—Miss GERTRUDE JENKINS, one of the first graduates of our Commercial Department, recently reported, in short-hand, the speeches of Fowle and Dockery, the gubernatorial candidates in North Carolina. The speeches were printed in full by the Winston papers. GERTRUDE has now gone to Washington City for further practice in the art of short hand reporting. She previously filled two positions, one that of book-keeper at Fogle Brothers, and the other at Messrs. P. H. Hanes & Co.

We learn that Miss ANNE LANDQUIST is regularly installed at Fogle Brothers in GERTRUDE'S place, and Miss MAMIE DWIRE at Messrs. P. H. Hanes & Co. We feel a pardonable pride in the successes of our Commercial graduates, filling as they do, various positions of trust and usefulness. Of course, a knowledge of short-hand and book-keeping alone, do not fit a young lady for a position, unless she has the elements of faithfulness, punctuality, and exactness besides. These we cannot give, and without them few will retain a position long. These three great qualities are the trinity of business success; indeed, we may go farther, and say, of success in any walk of life.

—The freshet that usually comes in August, and the September Equinoctial rains, this year apparently joined hands, causing a destructive freshet. The submerged corn fields of our lowland sections, and the cotton fields farther south are pitiable reminders of the rain storms of September. Then too the unusually early frosts of September 29th and 30th, cut short at least one-fourth of the tobacco crop, so that the farmer's outlook is not promising, no matter where we turn.

—So much material for THE ACADEMY accumulated during vacation that letters and other matter were crowded out. We crave the indulgence of our friends; they shall appear in due time, and are none the worse for being a week or so old; they are like good wine,—all the better for being on hand awhile.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., OCTOBER, 1888.

*Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.*

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

WITH this number THE ACADEMY enters upon a new year, upon its eleventh volume. It is not necessary to multiply words as to what we intend to do; people who talk much of what they are going to do, rarely accomplish anything. We hope to go on making our journal a faithful exponent of our school-work, to show our friends from day to day the even, progressive course of ACADEMY life.

The paper naturally falls into three distinct departments, very different, yet working harmoniously and effectively together. First is the Literary or Scholastic department, which consists of Essays on literary or social topics, historical sketches, &c. Secondly comes the Alumnae department, of which our Correspondence columns form the nucleus. Here our Alumnae from 20 States interchange opinions and greetings, revive old friendships, and form new ones, thus strengthening the cords of affection which bind us together and to our Alma Mater. The third department is a simple transcript of our regular school-life and work as set forth in the columns of "Chronicle and Gossip" and "Personal Items." Our recent graduates, as well as earlier pupils, can thus follow the work of their late companions hour by hour, and be with them in spirit.

In this three-fold character we trust THE ACADEMY will continue to receive the moral and pecuniary support of our friends.

—REV. R. G. PEARSON, the great evangelist of the South-west, arrived in Winston, with his wife, and began a series of meetings in the Centenary Methodist E.

Church, on September 17, which continued until Thursday evening, October 4th, when he left for Goldsboro, there to hold similar services. The church building, the largest in the Twin-Cities, holding from 1800 to 2,000 persons, was crowded night after night to its utmost seating capacity. Every inch of space was utilized, stair-cases and all, and hundreds went away who were unable to get in. The large folding doors back of the pulpit were opened, thus adding an annex which held several hundred. The amount of interest excited and of good accomplished by this true-hearted, earnest servant of God is simply wonderful. Christians, whose faith had become weak and faint, were refreshed and strengthened, and hundreds were converted during these weeks.

Mr. Pearson kindly came down to the ACADEMY and gave us a highly interesting talk, in the Chapel, upon the first 16 verses of the Sermon on the Mount, on Saturday morning, September 22d. The whole school in a body attended two of his morning services in Winston. At night it was an utter impossibility to think of obtaining seats for so large a number. The second morning we went up, to Mr. Pearson's farewell service, the galleries, where we sat, were kindly vacated for us by part of the Graded School. The unanimity, the harmony, the kindliness of spirit manifested by all throughout the whole series of meetings was remarkable. The ministers of every denomination in Winston and Salem, without a single exception, attended from beginning to end, assisting in the work wherever it was necessary.

On the last morning the services were almost Pentecostal in their nature. Nearly 200 persons, of every age, from small boys and girls to men and women of hoary hair, came forward on Mr. Pearson's invitation, to grasp his hand as an earnest of their determination henceforth to live to Christ, their Saviour. Some 25 of the ACADEMY girls were among this number, and we trust the religious life of the school will be greatly quickened thereby. Mr. Pearson said that only twice in the course of his meetings had he ever seen anything like this powerful manifestation of God's spirit.

He then asked those heads of families who would thus pledge themselves to set up a family altar, or who had already done so, to come forward and take him by the hand. Many also accepted this invitation. This closing meeting lasted two and a half hours; it was half past one o'clock before we of the ACADEMY got home, yet none complained, but all felt that it was good to have been there.

Mr. Pearson is a native of Starkville, Miss., and received a collegiate education; then graduated in Theology at Cumberland University, Tenn., in 1876. He had charge of a Presbyterian church at Tupelo, Miss., for 2 years, and at Columbia, Tenn., for 2 years. At the Cumberland Presbyterian church of Nashville he was assistant to Rev. A. J. Baird one year, then he devoted himself entirely to evangelistic work and has so continued to do for 6 years. He has labored in Tennessee, in Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Colorado, Missouri, Texas, Alabama, Mississippi and North Carolina. In this State he has visited Newberne, Asheville, Salisbury, Raleigh, Wilson, Charlotte, and has now gone to Goldsboro from Winston. He asks no pay for his services, but a little over one thousand dollars was made up for him in Winston and Salem by the voluntary contributions of the people.

Mr. Pearson is about 40 years of age; in appearance he is tall and slender, with a pale, smooth, almost boyish face, dark eyes that seem to glow like fire, and a voice that, in its appealing softness, is almost feminine; but as he warms up to his work, his plain, simple, practical words flow with burning eloquence and magnetic power. Persons who have heard Spurgeon, Beecher and Moody say he eclipses them.

Correspondence.

—Few things please us more than to hear that our former pupils are filling positions of trust and usefulness. Such letters as the following are therefore very acceptable:

"Thinking you will be interested, I will tell you what a desirable position I entered upon the first of the month. It is that of Stenographer to Mr. Spier Whittaker, of Raleigh, Chairman of the State Democratic Committee. I have a nice private office, new Remington Typewriter, easy hours and good salary. The office only lasts till November, but I have had several good offers of positions, and will, no doubt, find a good one.

I note with pleasure what a flourishing condition the ACADEMY seems to be in. I hear it complimented on all sides, especially as to the business branches taught. Hope you have spent a pleasant summer. Give my kindest regards to Dr. RONDTHALER and family, Miss LEHMAN, &c.

Very sincerely,

WILLIE R. MILLER.

Raleigh, N. C.

—A letter from a dear friend and pupil, KYLE PACE, to Dr. RONDTHALER has been long delayed, yet it is ever welcome.

"How often I think of the dear old ACADEMY, and the many happy days, even years, I spent beneath its roof. I turn to the days gone by with a feeling of sadness and longing, yet I love to recall them, for they enshrine my holiest aspirations, my purest hopes and brightest joys. It is pleasant to think of those we hold in earnest and affectionate remembrance, although separated by insuperable barriers.

I have longed to visit my Alma Mater, but that pleasure has been denied me by force of circumstances, yet I will never relinquish the expectation of visiting Salem until the shadows of life have grown long and dim.

A great many changes have taken place since I left in 1883. Mr. ZORN is no longer there, and some of the teachers are gone, but you are best remembered as our pastor. The many sermons I listened to in the Moravian church have been a great help and comfort to me. Remember me to all my old teachers, Misses LOU and SALLIE SHAFFNER, Miss LEHMAN and others. Their love and kindness to me will never be forgotten. It was not my intention to write at this length when I began, but my life at Salem came up before me so vividly I could not resist. I always think of the place as home.

Give my love to Mrs. RONDTHALER and ALICE, and accept my best wishes for the prosperity of your institution.

Affectionately,

KYLE PACE.

Waco, Texas.

—An old friend writes us the following, —one of the ever lessening Alumnae of 50 or 60 years ago:

"The last number of THE ACADEMY reached me a short time ago, reminding me that my subscription to the paper has expired. I enclose the money to renew at once. Quite a remarkable circumstance has occurred since my taking THE ACADEMY. Two old school-mates, after an entire ignorance of each other for 63 years, have, in the last 12 months, commenced a correspondence; several letters have passed between us. She saw a letter of mine in THE ACADEMY, and wrote at once to me; her last letter brought me her photograph; she is certainly one of the handsomest old ladies I ever saw, being 77 years old last September. She is Mrs. Dr. Woodward, of Cincinnati, Ohio, formerly AMELIA ROE, of Savannah, Ga. We were never particularly intimate at school, she being a first room girl, while I was in the second. I tell my family, since receiving her letters, I am carried back to those long ago school days, living those happy times over again. I have only heard of two of my school-mates, besides my sister, Mrs. Woodward, and Mrs. Dr. Edwards, of Richmond, a Methodist minister's wife.

Respectfully,

MARY RICE (STAMPS).

South Isle, Va.

—Our next is from Ringgold, Ga.:

"My name was BELLE HUNTER, now Mrs. Combs. I was a student in 1857, '58 and '59. My husband and I fully intended spending several days in Salem, but when we arrived at Murphy, N. C., we found we would be obliged to travel 30 miles across a mountainous country by private conveyance. This, to a southern woman is a hardship not to be entertained during the warm, sultry weather. You can never realize what a disappointment this was to me. Though I knew I would only see strange faces, yet the place seems very dear, next to my childhood's home. If there is a paper of the school published please send it me, also two of the largest pictures of the ACADEMY. I will send on the money at once.

Wishing the dear old school every success, I remain,

Yours truly,

MRS. BELLE COMBS.

Ringgold, Ga.

—Another old friend writes:

"As my subscription expires in a few days please find the amount enclosed for another year. I do not wish to miss a number of THE ACADEMY. I often see the names of girls with whom I was associated while in school. I would love to live over those sunny hours, They are forever mirrored or graven on the tablet of my memory; they linger as sentinels on the watch towers of the past. Long live the dear old ACADEMY.

Very respectfully,

MRS. J. W. CATES.

Maryville, Tenn.

—Mrs. Dr. Wiseman (ALPHONZINE DOUTHIT), a very dear friend, writes the following. The only fault we find with her letter is its brevity.

"Enclosed please find 50 cents for THE ACADEMY. Mrs. J. R. Bell, of Smith Grove, Davie Co., N. C., wishes to join our Alumnae Association. She was JANE RAMSOUR, and attended school in the ACADEMY about 1854. She has one daughter, Mrs. Blair, the wife of a Methodist minister. Her grand-daughter, little Eva Blair, is 3 years old. Mrs. Bell has been a widow for a number of years.

With best wishes,

MRS. A. S. WISEMAN.

Farmington, N. C.

—We were very pleased to receive a letter from MAGGIE EAGLETON, and though some time has elapsed since its reception, we give it as soon as we have room.

"You cannot imagine how glad I was, in fact, we all were, to receive your letter. All the home folks know you, though they have not all seen you. MAMIE and I often entertain Mamma for hours with reminiscences of our school-life at Salem. Do you ever hear from JUANITA MILLER or HESLOP ARMISTEAD? I had a letter from HESLOP more than 2 years ago; I did not reply immediately, and now I do not know how to address her letters.

We live 18 miles from Ocala, on one of the most beautiful lakes of Florida, where

"Mildly and softly the western breeze
Just kissed the lake,—just stirred the trees.
The water-lily to the light
Her chalice reared of silver light."

Nature does here what art does elsewhere in the way of beautifying. The beautiful spring time, in which poets delight, to me always bespeak the quinine bottle and the pill box.

Ever since I am at home I have wanted you to visit us, but each winter has passed in thinking by the next we could make it more pleasant for you, but now I want you to come. In the spring and summer the land is more beautiful, but in fall and winter we have our nicest fruits, oranges, and the like. Any time, however, you can come, we will be ever so glad, and we will try to make you like Florida, regardless of the season.

I hope your alligator will continue to do well, till it equals one I saw in St. Augustine, which a lady had reared from babyhood till it was 6 or 7 feet in length, and had quite a little family of 7 or 8.

Sister's health is better than it has been for several years. Her little boy, Jacky, has grown into a lovely child, though he is a thorough boy in every respect. MAMIE is quite a young lady and, if you will pardon a sister's partiality, quite a handsome one too. Sisters both send love.

Yours truly,

MAGGIE EAGLETON.

Ocklawaha, Fla.

—Our next is from JODIE WAUGH, now a staid matron.

"I have had this postal note a week, expecting every day to write to you, but have been too busy. The June number of THE ACADEMY was very interesting. So many familiar names were mentioned. I cannot realize that REBECCA MARKS and DORA ADAMS are married. They were little girls when I saw them last, and it seems only a little while since I left Salem.

Is NETTIE REID married? Where is ELIZA MOREHEAD? and where is Prof. D'ANNA and family? There are 50 of the girls that I want to ask about, but will not trouble you with too many questions. I would like to join the Alumnae Association, have wanted to do so ever since it began.

I enclose the subscription for THE ACADEMY for another year. I received two copies of the June number. Next summer I hope to visit the ACADEMY, if only for a day or two. I should like to be remembered to all my friends. With many wishes for the prosperity of the ACADEMY, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

J. WAUGH EARNEST.

Cotulla, La Salle Co., Tex.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Old pupils returning since our last are Misses Minnie Trimmier, Hattie Haugabook, Mattie Clark.

—Several new members of our Alumnae Association are Mrs. Jesse Carter, (ELLA VOGLER) Madison, N. C., and Miss EMMA SCHIFF, Charlotte, N. C.

—The Seniors have taken up Mythology this term. DR. RONDTHALER has an hour in Biblical Literature with them, and also with the Senior Middle classes.

—The Twin-City Daily is growing rapidly, and deservedly in popular favor. The daily reports of Mr. Pearson's sermons alone were worth the price of the paper.

—Capt. Paddison was kind enough to express us a small alligator, but the poor little saurian was fumigated to death by the quarantine authorities, before it left Florida.

Miss JANIE WHITNER has our deep sympathy in the death of her uncle Judge A. C. Whitner, of Jacksonville, Fla., a victim to the yellow fever, the terrible scourge that has so ravaged that city.

—We were sorry to hear of the sudden death by heart disease of an estimable physician, Dr. Hill, of Lexington. We became acquainted with him early in the Spring when MAUD TAYLOR was ill.

—In the September ACADEMY the names of Misses JULIA FLAKE and JULIA DUNLAP were inadvertently omitted on the list of last term pupils returned. They were among our earliest arrivals, punctual as they always are to the day.

—Names of new pupils not before given are Misses Lidie Irby and Emma Hale, Clinton, S. C.; Mabel and Jessie Peterkin, and Gertie Little, Drake, S. C.; Lizzie King, Wentworth, N. C.; Ada Johnson, Sudie and May Johnson, Asheville, N. C.; Addie Laciari, Mauch Chunk, Penn.

—The new Cottage on our grounds is progressing rapidly, and is daily becoming more handsome and attractive. It is not like Solomon's temple, in several respects, in one feature it is essentially different, it does not rise without the sound of hammer or axe.

—Birthdays of individuals are common enough, but it is not often that a book is thus honored. The two hundredth birthday of Newton's "Principia" was commemorated in the University of Cambridge, England. Newton was Professor of Mathematics in the University, hence the distinction.

—We have been using a glass inkstand for some years, a regular log cabin, with an opening in the chimney to admit the pen. It is a relic of the great log cabin excitement of 1840, when William Henry Harrison, grandfather of the present Republican candidate, was elected President of the United States.

—A storm during the summer prostrated three of the fine large cedar trees of the Avenue; the patriarchs of a full century's growth, cannot be replaced. The two small ones that were at once planted appear like shivering babies, while the large ones look down upon them with tolerant condescension.

—Miss KATE PADDISON is teaching at Point Caswell, N. C. We are happy to see how ready our pupils are to get to work, when they leave academic walls. The world is so full of people who want and need teaching that no right thinking person can afford to remain idle. Opportunities for usefulness are opening on every side for women of heart and brain.

"We have no time to cast away the hours,
All should be earnest, in a world like ours."

—The names of the Seniors of 1889 here at present are as follows: Misses Loulie Bridgers, Julia Dunlap, Marguerite Du Four, Lida and Kittie Fain, Mary and Bert Fitzpatrick, Mary Fries, Minnie Farmer, Julia Flake, Birdie Goslen, Emily Hazlehurst, Bert Lindsey, Julia Meachum, Mary Pfohl, Daisy Ruff, Etta Shaffner, Carrie Stockton, Hattie Sutton, Anne Swann, Janie Sherille, Anne Staples, Lola Wells, Bessie Winkler, Janie Whitner and Carrie Shelton.

—It is pleasant to see pupils of last term returning with younger sisters. HATTIE SUTTON returned accompanied by her sister LIZZIE, LOLA WELLS by EMMA LEE, VIRGINIA BURSON with a sprightly little sister LIZZIE who reminds us much of DORA ADAMS when she first came to the ACADEMY, a little girl of 9 years old, BERT LINDSEY's sister EDNA who had been here before, came with her, and LIDA FAIN brought her sister MATTIE. Other groups of sisters are the HARDEES, FLORENCE and EMMA, the RUFFS, DAISY and HELEN, the two FITZPATRICKS, MARY and BERT, the two DUNLAPS, JULIA and NETTIE, the four MOORES, LIZZIE, ANNE, MARY and FANNIE, HANNAH and ZULA McCANLESS, MARY and FANNIE PRETLOW, MAMIE and KATE WADDELL, LILIAN and CLAUDIA DICKS, LUCILE and ANNIE REID, MABEL and JESSIE PETERKIN, ADA, SUDIE and MABEL JOHNSON.

—A letter from LINA FROST informs us that she and KATIE are at St. Joseph's Academy, Sherman, Texas.

—Mrs. N. A. Watkins, of Winston, (SALLIE's mother) was killed October 11th, during the heavy wind and rain, by the falling of a tree. SALLIE and FLORENCE have our sympathy in this unusually afflictive dispensation of Providence.

—We were very pleased to hear from Miss NINA FLOURNOY, of Shreveport, La. She has nearly regained her usual health and strength, and as soon as she can do so with safety, will assume the duties of a position in an office which will pay her the nice little sum of $75.00 per month. We are highly gratified at the success of our Commercial pupils.

—The long benches on our church galleries formerly extending in an unbroken line from end to end have been separated; two benches have been made instead of one, and a convenient passage way between them. Down stairs the hand of improvement is also visible in a walnut screen perhaps two and a half feet high, before the so called "Amen" benches. It was unpleasant to stand there during prayers or other parts of the services, without any visible means of support.

—Miss MARY LEWIS finding the demands upon her time and strength in the ACADEMY too heavy in addition to her work in the Boys' School, resigned her position as Miss LULA TATE's colleague in the 8th room, and Miss CLAUDE WINKLER entered the school to fill the vacancy. Miss LEWIS kindly remained a week, as Miss ELIZA CLARK's substitute during her absence, when called home to Little Rock, S. C., by her father's death. We were very sorry to learn that Miss CLARK did not reach home in time for her father's funeral. She returned to her school work promptly on Monday, October 8th.

—A sore affliction befell Misses LOU and SALLIE SHAFFNER in the death of their mother Mrs. Amelia Shaffner, October 7th, after an illness of four days. She was about 75 years of age, and highly esteemed by all who knew her. The new school year, bright and prosperous as it opened in many respects, has yet brought one crushing bereavement after the other to members of our faculty. Miss Vest mourned the loss of her father the first days of school; then Miss LULA TATE lost her grandfather, then Miss ELIZA CLARK her father, and the Misses SHAFFNER their mother. Among the pupils several lost relatives, though none so near as a parent.

—We are indebted to Mrs. W. B. Creight, of Winnsboro, S. C., for the following names of former pupils; they also joined the Alumnae Association. Mrs. E. B. McMasters, of Winnsboro, S. C., is a widow lady with five grown sons and three daughters: Mrs. J. H. Connor, (MIRIAM LUNPKIN) is the wife of a Methodist minister and has 6 children, all doing well. Mrs. L. C. Levelle, is MARY CREIGHT. She has one little boy. Her younger sister FRANK, is with us now.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Miss SALLIE JONES, of High Point, has been visiting Miss CLARA NISSEN.

—We hear that FANNIE HOLT is taking a few special studies at Peace Institute.

—Miss CARRIE VEST is teaching at Stony Ridge, N. C., near the foot of the Pilot Mt. in Mr. F. A. Butner's family.

—Mrs. KLEMANN, of Wilmington, N. C., was NANNIE THOMAS. She too has been enrolled on the list of the Alumnae Association.

—Miss MARY WALKER, of Oxford, N. C., was teaching the first form girls at the Oxford Orphan Asylum when we last heard from her.

—Mrs. J. Cramer, of Thomasville, NELLIE's mother, spent several days or a week in Winston, visiting friends and relatives, and attending Rev. R. G. Pearson's sermons.

—Will our correspondents please give us their maiden names when writing to us? We have frequently been at a loss, not knowing to whom, or of whom we were writing.

—Miss LULA COX, of Sedge Garden, N. C., brought her younger sister to school as a boarder in the ACADEMY, and gave her name as a member of the Alumnae Association.

—A letter from Miss SALLIE HUNNICUTT informs us that she is on the point of starting to Washington, D. C., to take special studies in one of the schools of our great metropolis.

—We recently received a letter from LULA DEADERICK. She has been living quietly at her home in Jonesboro, Tenn. We could hardly conceive of her as otherwise than quiet and self-contained.

—A correspondent inquires concerning Misses ELIZA MOREHEAD and NETTIE REID. By referring to the marriage notices, you will see ELIZA's marriage. Miss REID as far as we know is at home.

—A bright and chatty letter from Miss LUTA BEWLEY tells of her visit to her brother, W. D. BEWLEY, of Union, S. C. Her letters are like herself, lively and pleasant, showing a facile easy pen, that seemingly runs on of itself.

—The death of Professor Richard Proctor, the great English Astronomer, is a sad loss not only to his friends but to the scientific world as well. Though not at all exposed to yellow fever, the germs of the disease must have been in his system.

—MARY JEFFERIES, of S. C., is a near relative of LAURA JEFFERIES, of Spartanburg, S. C., a beloved pupil of years ago. LAURA is now Mrs. Roseborough, her husband is Rev. J. W. Roseborough. COLUMBIA JEFFERIES, her cousin, is married to Dr. Fort.

—Mrs. Ramsay, (ALICE MILLIGAN) was prevented from calling by to see us, at the beginning of the term by some injury to her eyes from a cinder. We were much disappointed, and trust she has fully recovered the use of them, and will pay us the promised visit some other time.

—ALLIE BLEVINS is Mrs. William Branner, of Mossy Creek, East Tennessee; MARGARET MILLER, who was recently inquired for, is now Mrs. Dr. Hoffman, Stony Point, Tenn. REBECCA MOORE is Mrs. Williams, of Mooresburg, Tenn. FANNIE MORISSETTE is Mrs. Slater, of St. Clair, Tenn.

—Miss JOHNSON, of Asheville, N. C., has entered the ACADEMY, as a special student, largely to be near her two little sisters, as well as to take up several studies, short-hand, &c. Miss LACIAR, of Mauch Chunk, Penn., has also entered as a special student of Music and the Commercial branches.

—Thanks to Mrs. Milligan, (BESSIE BROWN) of Greenville, Tenn., for large photograph of herself. From notices we have seen in the papers, we find she is using her fine voice to advantage for her own improvement, and the gratification of her friends. We hope some day to have the pleasure of hearing her.

—During the terrible Yellow Fever times, there were many anxious and troubled hearts in our ACADEMY home, of girls whose friends were far away, exposed to dangers that greatly magnify themselves in suspense and distance. No doubt those parents and friends were at the same time thankful that their children were in a place of safety.

—Rev. R. G. Pearson and wife took dinner in the ACADEMY dining-room, the day he preached for us in the Chapel. Mrs. Pearson was a Miss Bowen, of Oxford, Miss., married in 1878, and is a true help-mate in her husband's evangelistic work. During their stay in Winston, she held regular Bible readings in the afternoon for ladies, which were well attended.

—Miss SALLIE VOGLER has quite an interesting school of some 16 pupils. She has fitted up the former Infant School rooms of the Widows' House, brightening them with maps, prints, &c., new desk seats, very neat and commodious, and will no doubt do a good work, familiar as she is with all the modern improved methods of study, and of imparting instruction.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, (nee LUCY PATTERSON our Salutatorian '82) arrived in Winston Salem near the close of September, remaining some time with Mr. Patterson's mother, Mrs. R. L. Patterson. They then went to housekeeping in their cozy home on Broad Street. LUCY is the same bright, cheery young lady that we knew and loved several years ago, an ornament and an acquisition to any social circle.

—Professor E. C. Branson, of Raleigh, but now superintendent of the Athens, Ga. City Schools, was married to Miss Lottie Lanier, of West Point, Ga., Sept. 27th. He was one of the prominent teachers of the State Normal School that met in Winston during the summer. Mathematics was his specialty, and now he has worked out the old, old problem in human life that one and one are one.

—A pleasant letter from Mrs. Wyatt, of Raleigh, N. C., gives us the following valuable information. She says:

"You probably know that LIZZIE has been to Coxville to act as bridesmaid to Miss HOLLIE SMITH, who was married to Mr. Jas. Johnson, Thursday, September 20th. The ceremony took place in the Episcopal church, and was a very grand affair. Seven couples of waiters attended the bridal pair, and afterwards enjoyed a reception at Mrs. Smith's. The second night there was a reception at HOLLIE's new home, as she went at once to house-keeping, and the third night there was one at Miss ANNIE HARDING'S. LIZZIE came home on Monday evening, perfectly charmed with her visit, and much improved in health.

—A heavy sorrow has come upon another of our teachers, Miss EMMA CHITTY, in the loss of a dearly loved mother, Mrs. Frederika Chitty, who died at Hope, Indiana, on October 12th, in the 74th year of her age. Mrs. Chitty went on a pleasure trip to visit her numerous friends and relatives in Indiana, leaving home September 4th in company with Mr. and Mrs. Allen Spough, of Salem. Mrs. Charles Fogle who went on some time later, was also with her at the time of her death. Miss EMMA received intelligence of her illness, and after alternations of hope and fear, she received the telegram announcing her death. It is hard enough to give up our loved ones, when we can be with them, and go with them to the very borders of the eternal world, but doubly hard when they are widely separated from us.

—We sympathize deeply with Miss ELIZA CLARK, who has been with us a month and a half as a teacher. She was called home by a telegram, informing her of the death of her father, Mr. R. K. Clark, a well known citizen of Little Rock, S. C. Death is seldom an expected guest, but it adds to the crushing force of such a blow, when it comes so utterly unexpected. Mr. Clark was in the very prime of life, and though he suffered from a chronic disease, his family and friends fondly hoped for many years of useful life. ELIZA spent a week at home with her stricken family and then returned to her work, which we all find to be the best panacea for grief or trouble.

—We copy the following concerning Miss CLARK's father, from a South Carolina paper: "Died at his home in the upper part of this county on last Sunday night, Mr. R. K. Clark, in the 44th year of his age. Mr. Clark who was well and most favorably known to this entire county, was comparatively a young man, whose early death is a shock to his many friends. His imposing presence, stalwart frame and apparently buoyant health, seemed to presage a long life and many years of future usefulness. His character also was in perfect keeping with his magnificent proportions, stern and inflexible by nature and uncompromising in what he considered right, he was generous to a fault, and to those who possessed his confidence most tender and considerate. In losing him it is no extravagance to say that Marion county has lost a citizen who if among her many sons had his equal, cannot be surpassed among them all.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*— I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1862.

- 4110 MARION ELMIRA BETHEA. — 1848.
John R. Bethea, Reedy Creek, Marion Co., N. C.
- 4111 M. LOU BETHEA. — 1846.
Mary A. Bethea, Reedy Creek, S. C.
- 4112 ANGERONA MANNING. — 1850.
Brother, T. J. Manning, Selkirk, S. C.
- 4113 LAURA G. HOWARD. — 1849.
Grandfather, Ira Howard, Floyd C. H., Va.
- 4114 ELLA LESNER. — 1851.
James W. Lesner, Floyd C. H., Va.
- 4115 ALVARINE HOYLE. — 1846.
Uncle, R. J. Cowart, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4116 LEILA P. COWART.
R. J. Cowart, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4117 ANNIE SPENCER. — 1849.
D. H. Spencer, Horse-Pasture, Va.
- 4118 LUCRETIA A. BORDEN. — 1849.
Guardian, E. W. Fonvielle, Wolfpit, Onslow Co., N. C.
- 4119 SALLIE A. WILLIAMSON. — 1849.
Jas. C. Williamson, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4120 REBECCA L. JOHNSTON. — 1847.
Thomas D. Johnston, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4121 CLARA E. JOYNER. — 1849.
John Joyner, Mosely Hall, N. C.
- 4122 MARY WOOTEN. — 1849.
C. C. Wooten, Mosely Hall, N. C.
- 4123 MARY T. HUNT. — 1847.
Guardian, W. W. Vass, Raleigh, N. C.
- 4124 ANN PENDER. — 1850.
R. U. Pender, Tarboro, N. C.
- 4125 CATHERINE MORRISON. — 1846.
- 4126 VICTORIA MORRISON. — 1847.
H. A. Morrison, Estillville, Va.
- 4127 MARY D. CROCKETT. — 1848.
S. S. Crockett, Wytheville, Va.
- 4128 M. ELIZABETH PHILLIPS. — 1849.
Adopted father, Leo Walthall, Marion, Ala.
- 4129 IDA TOPP. — 1846.
- 4130 VIRGINIA TOPP. — 1848.
Dixon C. Topp, Duck Hill, Carroll Co., Miss.
- 4131 HELEN PURNELL. — 1849.
John C. Purnell, Carrollton, Miss.
- 4132 RHODA J. EARLY. — 1848.
James Early, Hillsville, Va.
- 4133 ELLA CRAIG. — 1849.
Hamet Craig, Shiloh, Ala.
- 4134 WALLACE STANFORD. — 1849.
Dr. James B. Stanford, Shiloh, Ala.
- 4135 ANNA M. WESTMORELAND. — 1848.
J. G. Westmoreland, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4136 MARY LA FOND. — 1850.
Step-father, Thomas Hord, Murfreesboro, Tenn.
- 4137 ISABELLA SOPHIA DAVIDSON. — 1849.
- 4138 MARGARET AMANDA DAVIDSON. — 1849.
A. B. Davidson, Charlotte, N. C.

1863.

- 4139 ELLEN KNIGHT. — 1849.
James Knight, Goldsboro, N. C.
- 4140 LOUISA CRUMP. — 1851.
Wm. B. Crump, Red Sulphur, Va.
- 4141 HARRIET E. FAHEY. — 1849.
W. Fahey, Old Richmond, N. C.
- 4142 SUSAN J. YANDELL. — 1846.
- 4143 EMMA Y. YANDELL. — 1848.
Guardian, Mrs. E. Singleton, Canton, Miss.
- 4144 MIRA MCD. WOODFIN. — 1847.
N. W. Woodfin, Asheville, N. C.
- 4145 SALLIE WEATHERLY. — 1846. Died March, 1863.
- 4146 MARY WEATHERLY. — 1851.
T. C. Weatherly, Bennettsville, S. C.
- 4147 JOSEPHINE WEATHERLY. — 1851.
T. C. Weatherly, Bennettsville, S. C.
- 4148 ALICE WESSON. — 1850.
W. H. Wesson, Columbia, S. C.
- 4149 LYDIA JANE BOGGAN. — 1847.
Guardian, George W. Little, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4150 SARAH A. BATCHELDER. — 1847.
George F. C. Batchelder, Brooklyn, Ala.
- 4151 CHARLOTTE (TINNIE) LITTLE. — 1846.
George W. Little, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4152 ELIZABETH CARR. — 1850.
H. E. Carr, Villaburg, N. C.
- 4153 ELIZABETH GILLESPIE. — 1847.
Mother, Margaret Gillespie, Chattanooga, Tenn.

- 4154 MOLLIE S. CORBIN. — 1849.
H. L. Corbin, Reynolds, Ga.
- 4155 HATTIE CORBIN. — 1850.
H. L. Corbin, Reynolds, Ga.
- 4156 MARGARET F. McDOWELL. — 1847.
Col. J. A. McDowell, Asheville, N. C.
- 4157 SUE HELLEN. — 1844.
Guardian, Capt. Thos. Wallace, Newbern, N. C.
- 4158 M. MATTIE WILLIAMS. — 1846.
Guardian, Capt. Thos. Wallace, Newbern, N. C.
- 4159 RACHEL HERRING. — 1851.
Uncle, Dr. D. W. Herring, Kenansville, N. C.
- 4160 ELLA C. CRAWFORD. — 1850.
Joel T. Crawford, Enon, Ala.
- 4161 FLORA C. MCLENDON. — 1852.
Mrs. A. W. Bacot, Darlington District, S. C.
- 4162 MARY KRAUS. — 1850.
John Kraus, Greenville, S. C.
- 4163 LINA WILLIAMS. — 1847.
Joseph Williams, Richmond Hill, S. C.
- 4164 MARY A. YORKE. — 1849.
A. J. Yorke, Concord, N. C.
- 4165 MARTHA QUINTINE PHARR. — 1849.
Samuel Pharr, Concord, N. C.
- 4166 LUCY A. MORGAN. — 1849.
Dr. J. Morgan, Selma, Ala.
- 4167 SUSAN REDD. — 1848.
M. L. F. Redd, Golden Place, N. C.
- 4168 ANNA ELIZ. TILLMAN. — 1846.
- 4169 FANNIE TILLMAN. — 1848.
Dr. R. H. Tillman, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4170 MILDRED E. FRANKLIN. — 1849.
Uncle, William Slade, Lenox Castle, N. C.
- 4171 LAVINIA LITTLE. — 1850.
Thomas S. Little, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4172 ANNE E. MOORE. — 1847.
W. R. Moore, Smithfield, N. C.
- 4173 HESTER BELVIDERA MAXWELL. — 1846.
- 4174 EVELINE E. MAXWELL. — 1849.
William H. Maxwell, Jonesboro, Tenn.
- 4175 LILLIE PAINE. — 1854.
Mother, Mrs. Fannie Paine, Brick-store, Ga.
- 4176 CHARLOTTE A. MASSEY. — 1849.
Guardian, John Petty, Liberty Hill, S. C.
- 4177 M. ELIZABETH (MITTIE) WEATHERLY. — 1853.
T. C. Weatherly, Bennettsville, S. C.
- 4178 NANNIE K. THOMAS. — 1847.
Mother, Mrs. M. A. Thomas, Bennettsville, S. C.
- 4179 EDDIE MOORE. — 1850.
D. W. Moore, Bennettsville, S. C.
- 4180 LIZZIE REEVES. — 1846.
William Reeves, Haynesville, Tenn.
- 4181 NORA LOVE. — 1849.
Robert Love, Haynesville, Tenn.
- 4182 MOLLIE HOGE. — 1846.
- 4183 GUSSIE HOGE. — 1847.
James Hoge, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4184 FANNIE POOLE. — 1849. Died June 3, 1863.
Guardian, E. M. Talliaferro, Ga.
- 4185 JENNIE THRASHER. — 1851.
John J. Thrasher, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4186 SUSAN DICKSON. — 1847.
Guardian, Robt. H. Johnson, Beauregard, Fla.
- 4187 SARAH E. WALTERS. — 1846.
Guardian, J. M. Parrott, Kinston, N. C.
- 4188 BETTIE V. M. RAIN. — 1851.
Guardian, George W. Peay, Leaksville, N. C.
- 4189 ANNE ROBERTSON. — 1848.
T. C. Robertson, Dunnsville, N. C.
- 4190 JANE ROSS. — 1849.
Adopted father, Robert Douglas, Chesterville, S. C.
- 4191 ALICE LEE MATTHEWS. — 1848.
- 4192 PATTIE MATTHEWS. — 1847.
Grandfather, M. L. Wiggins, Ringwood, N. C.
- 4193 HELEN SLADE. — 1848.
Mother, Mrs. P. Slade, Ringwood, N. C.
- 4194 ANNIE M. EVANS. — 1845.
Mother, Sallie A. Evans, Christiansburg, Va.
- 4195 CORNELIA PURVIS. — 1847.
John W. Purvis, Rocky Mount, N. C.

Married.

JOHNSON—SMITH.—In Coxville, N. C., on September 20, Mr. JAS. JOHNSON to Miss HOLLIE SMITH.

SEVYT—WATSON.—In Anderson, S. C., September 26, Mr. U. E. SEVYT to Miss SUZ, daughter of Mr. W. B. Watson, of Anderson, S. C.

SILER—MCDOWELL.—In the College chapel, at Weaversville, N. C., October 2d, Rev. JESSE W. SILER to Miss MAGGIE McDOWELL.

NELSON—MOREHEAD.—In the 1st Baptist church, Leaksville, N. C., October 17th, Dr. WILLIAM NELSON to Miss ELIZA MOREHEAD, daughter of J. Turner Morehead, Esq.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

MONEY

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere; Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLIDARD & BROOKES. —

WANTED.

A position as governess in a private family by a young lady, a Graduate of Salem Female Academy.
Address ACADEMY.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,

AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,

CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

ICE COLD

Mexican Sherbet,

Grape Phosphates,

Kidwell's Cream,

Lime and Lemonade

— AT —

ASHCRAFT & OWENS,

DRUGGISTS, WINSTON, N. C.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., NOVEMBER, 1888.

NUMBER 90.

MANY MEN OF MANY MINDS.

By MISS ANNE HILL; of Raleigh, N. C.

IN this great busy world are all kinds of people, and each individual has his own part to perform that the great microcosm of human life may move on in perfect order and harmony. Out of this vast multitude comparatively few have been immortalized for greatness and strength of mind. Each century since the beginning has brought forth its numbers, who are like the stars that spangle the floor of heaven, one differing very materially from the other in glory. There are some that we may call Master Minds and a very great many that can by no stretch of the imagination be called great.

Variety truly is the spice of life. How monotonous it would become if all the men and women we meet with in our lives were substantially alike in personal appearance! What multiplied Dromios would complicate matters! If one man were to commit a crime, another might have to bear the punishment, while the real culprit would go scot free and laugh in his sleeve. If a man were about to be married, a cunning rival might slip into his place and have the knot securely tied. A man would scarcely know himself, much less distinguish other people.

If these results might follow too great a uniformity in personal appearance, they might be still more deplorable if men were similar in mental constitution. Happily there is no danger,—for no two minds are precisely alike in the whole universe; even though we are told serio-comically that "all great minds run in the same channel." If minds did run in similar runs or channels, we would have a surfeit of some kinds of literature and starve for want of others. If we glance at the minds who have sung the loftiest strains of poetry, as Moses, David, Isaiah, Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare, Milton, Burns and Byron, they are as dissimilar as opposites can be. Moses is characterized by lofty fire; David by the sweetness of his song; Isaiah by the grandest imagery; Chaucer and Spenser, like parallel lines, nowhere come together or meet; Shakespeare wins us by his wonderful versatility, his knowledge of the workings of the human heart; Milton soars into the very presence chamber of the Almighty; Burns with his simple lyrics idealizes common things; Byron with his passionate utterances captivates us with his genius.

In art there are the same differences visible. Michael Angelo, it is true, was both painter and sculptor, but his painting of the Last Judgment stands in strong contrast with Raphael's sweet Madonnas.

In the sciences the same distinctive gifts are found. Bacon, Locke and Newton were widely different, neither trenching on the ground of the other; even our own philosophers, gone mad over evolution, are very dissimilar.

With one man the gift of inventive genius results in steamboats, railroads, etc., with another in the wonders of electricity, while others are practical only in labor-saving, in mowers, reapers, cotton gins, sewing machines and a hundred thousand other inventions.

In individual peculiarities we find men and women of as many idiosyncrasies as there are types of the race, vastly differing in sympathy and in feeling as in mental powers.

This diversity of gifts, of traits and of feelings was wisely ordained for the greatest good to man. At first view it might seem as if in this marked difference of gifts some might preponderate injuriously, but this is not the case. The equilibrium has been wisely arranged by the hand of the great Ruler of the Universe, who has given to each a mind befitting his position and enabling him to perform his allotted work. As in a mosaic, the intricate pattern is made up of variously colored precious stones, some pleasant and gay, others gloomy and dark, yet the whole combines into a thing of beauty in which not one could have been spared: so all the differences of mind, heart and disposition in the world form a beautiful, a finished whole, in which the hand of the great Designer is plainly seen.

—A pleasant letter from Miss ANNIE HILL, our gentle little senior of '88, was received a short while ago.

The Frost.

By MISS MARY PFOHL.

THE frost caused by the condensation of the frozen moisture of the atmosphere powders the grass with pure, white crystals, until every blade and leaf glitters in the sunlight. "He scattereth the hoar frost like ashes" is a fine simile. The frost generally comes with the cool nights of early October, often playing pranks most mischievously and unexpectedly until it is usually personified as a tricky sprite. This year the planter sighs over his tobacco fields, which were caught in September before the plants could ripen properly. Here, perhaps, the frost spirit saucily nips a cherished geranium until the poor leaves hang bruised and scalded; there a rose-bush that was busily perfecting blossoms such as the summer in all its glory had not been able to produce, was stripped of its beauty in a single night, and the dried and shrivelled leaves go chasing each other down the garden walks. The dahlias, before tall and stately, hang their heads like frightened children.

"The frost falls from the clear, cold heaven
As falls the plague on men,
And the brightness of the flowers is gone
From upland glade and glen."

In the woods the green foliage of the trees is touched with the hectic flush of swift decay. The undergrowth looks as if a painter had splattered bright red blood-clots all over the leaves of the baby oaks that are not a year old as yet. The maple tree on the south-east side of the Public Square was flaming in gorgeous beauty, the first to flaunt the crimson banner of the advance guard of King Winter. The yellow maples did not care so soon to don their penitential robes. The sourwoods showed a swarthy, sullen gleam on darkened cheek: the golden hickory trees softened and mellowed the whole landscape with gentle insistence. The fluffy masses of the golden-rod on the hillside turned a rusty gray; here and there the blue gentian stood in serene beauty, steadfastly looking up as it prisoned the deep October sky in its own blue eyes. The red berries hasten to mature in the fast waning light and heat of the sun.

When all the beauty and glory of the year have been laid in the dust, the frost seems to hold back his strength for awhile, and the Summer comes stealing softly back, on tiptoe, through the misty haze over the brilliant, leaf-carpeted woods, to see how we are getting along without him, to catch any lingering sighs of regret for his vanished beauty.

We call this delightful season "the Indian summer," in England it is styled "St. Martin's Summer;" but whatever it is called it is the sadly sweet reflex movement of the departing summer. Soon, all too soon, the shrill winds of November, the ceaseless patter of rain drops on the leaves, will change the whole landscape into dull gray, and the brown old earth lies quiet and still, unless, at times, she throws the saintly veil of maiden white around her to conceal her deformities.

Our Autumnal Holiday.

BY MISS HATTIE SUTTON.

THE holiday which is annually given at this season to the pupils of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY is one of the brightest and most enjoyable of the whole year, associated as it is with a great throng of merry girls, bent on having a good time in the brilliantly colored autumnal woods, carpeted with Nature's choicest warp and woof, while "On the hill the Golden-rod,

And the Aster in the wood," stand in their autumnal glory. The holiday is given as near as possible to Founder's Day, October 31st, but as Nature is at times capricious, we take advantage of the first bright day, before or soon after, for such a holiday must be spent out of doors to be thoroughly enjoyable.

We celebrated the 86th birthday of the school on Oct. 17th, when the forests were gleaming with brilliant colors and the golden sunlight was mellowed down to its softest beams. After breakfast we had our usual study hour and chapel service, though some of our companions had reported various preparations in the culinary department as tokens of a day in the woods. The weather was not quite decided, for it looked glum and sulked at first a little, but while Mr. CLEWELL was announcing the holiday in the chapel the sun gave us a cheery smile as if to say, "I'll do my part," and so it did, for by the time we fell into ranks and started out through the playground and Park, at half-past 10 o'clock, all fogs were lifted, and the day was simply perfect. We wended our way by the railroad track to the same piece of woods where we have picniced for several years, and then scattered out in all directions.

Some found secluded nooks, where with congenial friends they chatted, read or crocheted; some went nutting, though the squirrels manage to get the most of the nuts to be found; others strolled around gathering ferns, red berries, golden rod, etc., and again others played games, pitched quoits, &c. In about an hour's time the welcome shout of "Dinner!" brought the stragglers in, and over 200 hungry girls were soon seated, expectantly awaiting the distribution of sandwiches, pickles, crullers, coffee, &c. When all were satisfied the girls scattered out again, to be recalled at half-past 3 o'clock for a lunch, after which preparations for home-coming were made. Tall sticks or poles were obtained, to which handkerchiefs, &c., were fastened; these improvised flags transformed the company into an army with banners," yet in no sense terrible, except to several horses, apparently not accustomed to such scenes. By 5 o'clock we were all back at the ACADEMY, and made the halls ring with our cheers.

Physiological Plates.

WE have examined a good many physiological charts, plaster models of the different organs of the body, and other improved modern helps for the study of Anatomy and Physiology, but we have never met with anything so exquisitely perfect, so complete in every detail, as a set of superposed colored plates recently placed in our hands by the kindness and courtesy of Dr. Bahnson.

There are 10 volumes in the set, each one in the form of a movable atlas, published by Balliere, Tindall & Cox, 20 King William Strand, London, and in Boston by Cupples, Upham & Co. The original is by G. J. Witkowski, M. D., Member of the Faculti De Medicine De Paris, Officier D'Academie, &c. Each volume, with its accompanying descriptive pamphlet, was translated from the French by a different physician of note. The startlingly accurate plates, as natural as life, were obtained by freezing a human body perfectly solid, and then slicing it from head to foot in sections, each section of which was photographed and the colored plates superposed.

Part I. contains the human body, the neck and trunk. Raising the upper colored plate of the muscles of the body (marked and numbered for reference in pamphlet) you come to the chest; raising the next plate the heart and lungs appear, opening the lungs you see every minute blood vessel, every air cell, from the first division into right and left bronchi to the minutest cell. The heart is similarly given, each auricle, each ventricle, each valve.

Next you come to the diaphragm, raised so that the liver, the stomach, the intestines, the kidneys, appear, giving the student a better idea of the whole, as well as of each separate organ than actual dissection of each body would show, without any of its attendant unpleasantnesses.

Part II. gives the throat and the mechanism of the voice, speech and taste, the tongue, pharynx larynx, &c., in natural colors.

Part IV. gives the eye and mechanism of vision.

Part V. illustrates the teeth and the ear, the mechanism of hearing and mastication. The first right lower molar is shown in 5 different layers. The ear in its beautiful yet complicated arrangement is given; the Eustachian tube, the incus or anvil, the stapes or stirrup, and the malleus or hammer, the cochlea or snail shell, &c.

Part VI. contains the brain, and illustrates the headquarters of the nervous system. First the skull is given, life-size; opening it you find the lobes and convolutions of the cerebrum with its motor centres. Lifting this you find the cerebellum or little brain, the medulla oblongata or beginning of the spinal cord, the several meninges, the dura mater, pia mater, and arachnoid.

Part VIII. gives the skeleton, with its various articulations.

Part IX. is a perfect representation of the human hand, with its bones, muscles, fascia, veins, arteries, ligaments, &c.

Part X. is a similar representation of the human foot, with its various parts, ligamental construction, &c.

—Miss NELLIE BEWLEY has been visiting in Tennessee nearly all summer.

—The following stirring appeal was written for the last Alumnae Meeting in June, by Mrs. Dr. Wiley, of Emory, Va., and read by Mrs. Dr. Siewers, of Salem :

"Make you an epistolary visit? That seems impossible! I am walled in with duties "mountain high." I cannot even see over the top. Cannot stand upright, so many duties are pressing hard. So, weighed down, I sit,—and once in awhile crane my neck towards the brightness beyond and say to myself, "To-morrow I will be freer—to-morrow I will have leisure," and yet, believe me, dear old ACADEMY," (I shall talk to you now,) I don't crave one bit to have that "To-morrow" come. Why? Well, I'll tell you. Who wants to be idle in this great toiling world of ours? Who could sit with folded hands and let the busy multitude move grandly and aggressively forward without feeling an irresistible impulse to join the eurrent, and sweep with it to the goal? Who could dally with the lazy hours—could thrum the window-panes of an aimless life, while the great surging tide of immortals outside are pressing on to conquest in the world's battlefield! Who would be content to sit among the cool shadows of the foot hills—while upon the mountain peak rests, like an aureole, the benediction of a well-spent life? Crave the idle to-morrow! Nay, not so. God made me to work, and I wouldn't be happy out of my element. I could forge in the workshop of fancies, a beautiful chain of logic in support of the sophism of the "desert of care", with this green oasis by the wayside (your meeting of the Alumnae), &c., and so on—but the religion of common sense makes life anything but a desert, and as for oases, they are all about me. Why, this earth is an oasis to me, and I can't stop working until I've tried to make it so to others. That's why I'm busy. What am I doing? Well, dear mother mine, as long as this query is put by you, I'll answer.

Of course, my family duties come first. Then there are great public interests at stake whose issues are vital, and for which I am, in part, responsible; for instance, the Temperance Movement. Can I sit idle while that sum of all curses, the Rum-powder, rolls its Juggernaut over the quivering hearts of our sons and brothers? Unless something interposes, its wheels may be stained with the blood of my boys. I am intensely alive to its eternal destruction and I cannot rest till it comes. Oh, my Alma Mater! call to your children all over this land, from the trembling saint with the snow on her temples to the bride at the altar, or the maid in her coy beauty, call them to come and with their influence, their prayers and tears, strike a blow at this monster, woman's great arch enemy.

Then, again, there are millions of human beings living upon this earth (to me so beautiful) who walk in darkness, who stumble and fall and die, with no one to stand by, and, in the power of Jesus, say to the blind eye and deaf ear, "Ephphatha, be opened!" No one to sing to the burdened soul of the "One who is mighty to save," no one to feed the hungry with the Bread of Life, or clothe the needy with the garments of Salvation. Can I, a favored one in a favored land, sit inert while the command "Go ye into all the world" sounds in my ear like thunders from Sinai.

He said it to me, and I'm going, in my work, in my prayers, in my influence, in my benefactions. I've no time for the foot hill shadows.

Then, again, there are claims upon us nearer home. Call it home missions, if you please. A year or two since there was organized in the Holston Conference what is known as the Woman's Department of Church Extension. Correlated to the parent board this board goes side by side with it, building parsonages in needy charges, wherever the Board builds a church. It is my duty, as Conference Secretary, to assist our women in the organization of auxiliaries wherever practicable. For the good accomplished thereby ask the homeless itinerant; and not only so, but the reflex influence is making our women what God intended they should be—helps meet for man in every undertaking.

And so in the joy of our committal to this work, we toil cheerily on—while here and there we see flashing and gleaming "from turret to foundation stone," the "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me."

Leisure, to-morrow? Yes, the to-morrow of eternity. I will rest, but not now. I am not tired. I feel as if I had just begun. True, the sun has reached its zenith and the shadows begin to point eastward, but I can't realize it unless I look in the old Family Bible. My blood bounds in my veins and I say, "all the more need to work now that my time is short." I want to stand by my King on that glad to-morrow and hear Him saying: "She hath done what she could!" That will rest me throughout eternity.

And so I go singing for very gladness, and toiling while I sing. And just here imagine me trying hard to overtop the intervening mountains in my eager longing to see you and say: "Blessings on the dear old ACADEMY girls, both known and unknown, who gather there on this glad anniversary."

LIZZIE REEVES WILEY.

A Marriage in High Life.

The vesper planet blushes
In the wake of the setting sun,
While Jupiter proudly flushes
With joy at the bride he has won!

Grave Neptune as high priest attendant
Waits to join them in bonds of love:
The halls of the sky beam resplendent,
To grace the nuptials of Jove.

What shy, elfin twinkler is dancing
Low down in the glowing west?
'Tis Mercury with merriment glancing
As he lowers his shining crest.

Away in the soft shades of even
He gleams, like a meteor bright,
Sent to summon the hosts of heaven
To attend the nuptial rite.

Bluff Mars, the unfortunate suitor,
Has failed to secure the prize,
So he moodily watches with Uranus
From the zenith, with fiery eyes.

Such a brilliant family meeting
Rarely cheers the Olympian dome,
E'en the Moon's slender crescent beams
"Welcome!"

In the path of the downward Sun.

—On the night of October 24th, there was a fine torchlight procession through the streets of Salem and Winston, gotten up by the Democrats of the Twin-cities. The local newspapers estimate the number of men carrying torches and transparencies of various kinds at about 1,000. We, of the ACADEMY, enjoyed the pretty sight from our windows, but, of course, were not able to make any estimate of the number. The procession passed up Main Street to the Hotel Fountain, where, at 9 o'clock, Senator Z. B. Vance addressed the crowd for about an hour, on the political topics of the day, in a speech replete with humor and anecdote, as only our inimitable Vance can make.

—Our Splinters have necessarily been crowded out from the September and October numbers of THE ACADEMY, but we will give them as soon as we can.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., NOVEMBER, 1888.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents. Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

THE recent conjunction of Jupiter, Venus and the Moon, November 5th, is one of the finest celestial appearances to which we are treated, unless, indeed, a comet should blaze athwart our sky. Mars, the rejected suitor of Venus, views this "Marriage in High Life" from his station near the zenith, the red flush of hottest anger flaming in his face; Saturn, old Father Time, as usual, pokes away off in the East, rising about 10 o'clock, five hours late for the nuptial ceremony between Jupiter and Venus.

Those whose eyes are so persistently chained to the earth that they never raise them intelligently to the starry worlds are to be pitied. It is a rare, an ennobling pleasure to note the planets as they wander from constellation to constellation, in their broad pathway, the Zodiac, some sweeping across this celestial race-course in less than a year at a rate of speed that eclipses any earthly force,—others creeping slowly and lazily from star to star, as if greeting old acquaintances in each. Then, too, how gloriously the constellations gleam as they rise, climb the shining cope of heaven, then march majestically down in the track of the westering sun.

The study of Astronomy does not receive the attention it should from the world in general. It is not absolutely necessary to be able to calculate eclipses, or to note the parallax of Venus in order to appreciate her beauty, and to know the heavenly bodies by name. It is possible, of course, to do both, to understand Mathematical as well as Siderial Astronomy, but if we had to choose between the two we would certainly take a knowledge of the last named, from the elevating, aesthetic pleasure which it gives. It is interesting and ennobling to watch Arcturus in Bootes the Bear-driver, as he holds his greyhounds, Asterion and Chara, in leash, and drives the two bears, Ursa Major and Ursa Minor, around the North Pole,—to imagine their mythological connection with Callisto and Arctos, as victims of Hera's jealousy; to see the Scorpion glow in the southern sky during summer heats, and then to note the autumnal heavens becoming deeper and clearer as the northern royal family group appears, Perseus and Andromeda, Cepheus and to watch the sweet influence of the Pleiades and Hyades, to see Aldebaran glow in the sullen front of Taurus, soon to be followed by the magnificent hunter's group of Orion and his two dogs, Canis Major and Canis Minor, until we almost hear "Sirius bark and Procyon growl." All these and more form a source of unfailling enjoyment.

"Cassiopei fair

In state reclining in her golden chair;"

Then, too, if our minds will bear the tension, we may try to form an idea of the mechanism of the Universe, where God, the Creator and Preserver, sits at the centre, the controlling, life-giving power, while around him revolve suns and systems, to our finite minds without number, an endless progression of worlds, some not yet inhabited, others inhabited like our Earth, and again others worn out, burned out like our Moon. Surely here is an ample field for every power of mind.

The New Annex Hall of Salem Female Academy.

IT is evident to the most casual observer that the ACADEMY, in its steadily progressive course, has entered upon an era of prosperity beyond that of any previous time since the late war. Last term the accommodations were taxed to the utmost capacity commensurate with comfort, and by mid-summer the applications of new pupils were so numerous that a new building was a necessity. Work was accordingly begun upon the New Annex Hall, and by pushing the work, with relays of skilled mechanics, the completed building was thrown open for the inspection of our patrons and friends, November 16.

The Hall is an elegant two-story frame structure, 70 feet by 90, in Queen Anne style, with roof of four gables and a deck. It stands in the rear of the old Annex, or Bagge House, the piazza fronting on the yard back of the two principal ACADEMY buildings. The first floor consists of a large entrance hall, 2 study parlors and class-rooms, while the second floor is divided into 36 sleeping alcoves, neatly finished throughout in native pine and oak.

Each room is wainscotted in oak, with hard oil finish. Gas is in every department, bath-rooms complete on each floor, with hot and cold water, and every modern convenience; sewerage and ventilation are exceptionally complete. Handsome Brussels carpets adorn the study-parlors, sofas are upholstered in olive green plush. The exquisite finish of the whole appeals to every artistic, beauty-loving eye.

The two youngest room companies of girls, the 8th and 9th, about 30 in number, moved into this bright, cheery, handsome dwelling, November 17th, leaving 120 for the large ACADEMY. The whole Preparatory department is accommodated in the new Hall with the old Annex, leaving the Academic department for the large ACADEMY buildings. This arrangement is specially satisfactory in view of the large number of little girls here at present. The day pupils, who raise the number to over 225, are accommodated in the old ACADEMY; thus our establishment naturally adjusts itself most conveniently as a working whole.

A plank walk with neat railing, connects the Annex with the other ACADEMY buildings. The only objection our friends from town urge against the new Hall is its distance from Main street, where its beauty would make it one of the finest ornaments of town: all who are engaged in Academic pursuits will agree with us that this privacy is its greatest advantage. Mr. J. W. Fries, who planned the new building, and Messrs. Fogle Bros., the contractors, have our warmest thanks for what was so evidently a labor of love on their part.

The old Annex has also been thoroughly renovated and improved, so that it scarcely appears like the same building; class-rooms have been made, pianos placed therein, and the whole is a hive of busy workers.

Correspondence.

—We are glad to hear from our friends both old and young. If you wish to please us and all your former schoolmates let us hear from you;—send us long, gossipy letters, just as often as you feel inclined to chat with us. The following is from a pupil of 56 years ago.

"I have before me Volume X, number 87 of THE ACADEMY. I see no familiar names in it. Are they all gone?—have all passed away, or scattered in distant climes? Have they been silent, as I have, for these many years? I went to school in the ACADEMY in 1832. My father Albert Peebles at that time resided in Henry Co., Ga. I spent 15 months in the school very pleasantly. Our Principal was Mr. BENJAMIN REICHEL. Some of the teachers were Miss LINEBACK, Miss STAUBER and CLARA REICHEL; there were others that I do not remember. If there are any living who attended school at that time, I would be glad to know them, and to hear from them by letter.

I have a piece of embroidery in satin, some of my work, done while attending your school at the time mentioned, hanging on my parlor wall. My age is 69. My husband, Mr. A. D. Peeples is 75 years of age. If we live to see our next wedding anniversary which is in November we will have spent 50 years of wedded life. I would appreciate a letter from any one at the ACADEMY, even if I did not know her when I went to school. Hoping to hear from some of my old friends and schoolmates, I remain

Respectfully,
LOUISA J. PEEPLES.

Greensboro, Miss.

—Our next is from a friend and school-mate SALLIE FOWLER, now Mrs. McCleskey, of Arkansas, whom we accidentally traced through the Atlanta Constitution :

"Your notice reminding me of the expiration of my subscription to THE ACADEMY, is at hand, and I assure you I have no idea of giving up claim to anything so precious as that little journal is to me. I had lost sight of Salem and everything connected with it, until Miss LEHMAN hunted me down through the agency of the Atlanta Constitution, and found me away out here in this western border. Since that time I have been keeping up with Salem and its dear people, and the Alumnae that are so widely scattered.

I have found and hear of many long lost friends, among them is Mrs. H. C. Thomas, (CARRIE BUTNER.) I received a letter from her a few months ago, also an old daguerreotype of ours, when we sat, side by side, taken by Leimbach (Mr. Traugott) when we were rosy cheeked girls of 16 years. Oh! the joy mingled with sad thoughts these pictures afford. I could but exclaim, How great the changes! I looked with eyes full of tears on our youthful faces, when we had felt no sorrow, and I the words of the poet came into my mind,

"Then we were young and on our brows,
The rays of hopes were shining.
But time has left its imprint now,
That tells of life's declining."

I left when 17 years of age, the dear ACADEMY, that had been my pleasant home for 4 years. Those years were full of unalloyed pleasure, for I always had a good time; I found so many good friends among teachers and pupils. I remember with pleasure Miss STAUBER and Miss BRIETZ of the first room, Misses REICHEL and BELO of the second, (my room at the time of leaving Salem.) Misses PFOHL, ZEVELA, KREMER, FANT, BENZIEN, SCHNALL, and others that were teachers from July '53 to May '57. I entered the 7th room in the old Congregation House under dear Miss BENZIEN and Miss CHITTY; in them I found love akin to a mother's.

I have pleasant recollections of LUCY WILKINS, MARTHA WILLIAMS, ANN FLOOD, ION BOYCE, and many others of the old 7th room, and scores of others that came and went during my stay. Those girls went from room to room with me; LUCY W. was a good elocutionist, and read for our room company each Friday night,— "The Lamplighter," "Wide, Wide World," "Queechy," &c. We hailed the time for reading with delight.

There are so many things that I remember so well of Salem, that you would tire of reading were I to mention all. The Moravian church with its sweet music, and sacred services, the Chapel, the Sick-room with old Mother PECK, and Dr. SCHUMANN at its head,—the Graveyard, with its even mounds and plain tombs, the many delightful walks, through Winston, over to the Water-works, in the Flower garden with its blooming lilacs,—all around over hill and dale around Salem. At Miss Katy Stauber's confectionery we were delighted with her nice candies and toys. I have a little wooden box that I bought of her that I prize highly. I have a picture in Tapestry that I completed on my 17th birthday, the day before leaving. The design is a large parrot with outspread wings sitting on a decayed limb, encircled by a wreath of roses, lilacs, morning glories, &c. It is as bright and pretty as the day I finished it. I have it framed, and it has taken two premiums at State Fairs.

I have a Moravian Hymn Book also, and I prize all these things very much. If I allowed my pen to run on, there is no telling where it would end, for Salem and its associations are a great hobby of mine. I want my name enrolled as a member of the Alumnae Association, and nothing would afford me more pleasure than to be present at the next Alumnae meeting, but I cannot say if I ever will be able to do so. May the dear ACADEMY and all connected with it ever prosper and increase in knowledge and power year after year.

I enclose a letter received from a gentleman of this county, (Yell) whose mother, sisters and sisters-in-law were educated in Salem.

Yours with everlasting love for the ACADEMY and its Alumnae.

Mrs. J. F. McCLESKEY. (SALLIE FOWLER)
Belleville, Yell Co., Ark.

—Miss ILAH DUNLAP wrote us several interesting letters during her European tour, and having returned safely home, she gives us the following: we would like to have it longer.

"I have just gotten home after a very delightful trip. It seems so strange for me to be at home at this season of the year. I can hardly realize that I am no longer a pupil of the ACADEMY; but though I am not really there, a large portion of my heart is there. As I cannot be with you all this year, I shall hope to find some substitute in reading THE ACADEMY.

DAISY came to see me a day or two ago; she is looking very well. I also saw SALLIE as I passed through Atlanta.

As ever,

ILAH DUNLAP.

Macon, Ga.

—A letter from Tupelo, Miss., next comes to hand, but we do not know the maiden name of the writer.

"The copy of THE ACADEMY sent to me came duly, and I assure you the contents were read with much pleasure. Though nearly 40 years have passed since I left dear old Salem as a pupil, still my thoughts cling fondly to it, and I cherish with kindest feelings the names of dear Misses BELO, PFOHL, WELFARE and others who were my teachers. "God be with you till we meet again." If it were only possible for me to go through those dear rooms and halls once more, I would feel as if one of my dearest dreams were realized. Then too were the dearly loved girls, ELIZA RAGSDALE, MARGARET MILLER, LIZZIE MOFFATT, and others who were once so dear to my heart. I often wonder if they still live, or have they crossed the river and "rest under the shade of the green palms by the river?"

I like your little paper THE ACADEMY so much, and will enclose 50 cents. With many kind wishes for the prosperity of dear old Salem, and its kind and generous people, I am

Very respectfully,

MRS. H. S. GAYLE.

Tupelo, Miss.

—The following letter was written by Mr. H. P. Barry, of Fair Hill, Arkansas, in answer to some inquiries of Mrs. J. McCleskey, of Belleville, Ark.

"Your very acceptable letter was received this morning, and I hasten to reply, though I am now and have been quite sick with fever for some days. My mother was educated at Salem. Her maiden name was SARAH P. HARRISON. When she went there I have no means of knowing. She died in 1844. My sister EMILY A. TUCKER, nee Barry, now of Sanford, Fla., was at Salem for many months, but returned to take care of our mother before she died.

My wife's mother, MARY CRAIGE, who has been dead for many years, was also educated there. My wife's sisters, SARAH A. EVANS and HANNAH K. EVANS were educated there. They are now widows. Mrs. S. A. Robinson and H. R. Robinson;—both live in Florida, and I believe, Barton is their address, but I have not kept up with their changes since my wife's decease.

I hope to make your acquaintance as I have quite a bias in favor of all ladies educated at that noble institution.

Most respectfully,

H. P. BARRY.

Fair Hill, Ark.

—We quote part of a letter from Miss KATE PADDISON, who being prevented by the Yellow Fever from returning to her Florida home, used her time wisely and well in teaching.

"I am carrying on a day school, and also a night school; the latter only lasts about two hours, and the time is occupied altogether in teaching Phonography. As it is impossible for us to go to Florida yet a while, and as I did not wish to be idle I opened a small school to enable me to employ my time profitably. I would like to visit the ACADEMY this fall, but it would make me feel sad to see all my class-mates gone, and to know that our places are occupied by others.

I learn that there are 140 boarders in the ACADEMY, at present. Where are they put to sleep? Surely an Annex was necessary. I have not received my ACADEMY for September, consequently I am behind the times in the news line. If my subscription has expired I wish to renew it, for I do not want to miss a copy. I wonder what senior is occupying my alcove, my table in the study parlor, and my seat in the class-room. I must close. With much love.

Yours, &c.,

KATIE PADDISON.

Point Caswell, N. C.

—Some time ago we received the following communication from Mrs. Lark, of Laurens Co., S. C., but it was crowded out from time to time.

"The commencement of this letter brings up the pleasant reminiscences of 15 years ago, when I visited Salem to see my daughters whom I had placed there at school. When I left the ACADEMY, after one of their pleasant Entertainments, I bade the venerable President M. E. GRUNERT a pleasant good-bye, as well as the teachers among whom were Prof. LEINBACH, Misses VOGLER, LEHMAN, STEINER, &c., of whom I have still a kind remembrance.

We had then to take a stage coach to High Point over 18 miles of rough road. I hoped then some day to return to Salem, but this hope has not been realized. The appointments and surroundings of the school together with the maternal care exercised by teachers over pupils is unsurpassed by any other institution. If all my boys were girls I would certainly educate them all at the SALEM ACADEMY. Enclosed find Postal Order for THE ACADEMY and forward to Miss Kate Lark, Laurens, C. H., S. C., and oblige an old patron and friend

Yours truly,

C. LARK.

Laurens, S. C.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Miss DELLA DAVID is again teaching at Pierson, S. C. She seems to have chosen teaching as her vocation.

—Several new arrivals since our last are Misses MINNIE MAY, Wilson, N. C., and GEORGIA HORTON, New York.

—Rev. J. F. McCuiston and wife have taken apartments in the Swift Hotel, where they begin house-keeping for themselves.

—Miss ETTA TATE is teaching at Iola, N. C. Her sister, LAULA, who is now teaching here in the ACADEMY, taught there before her.

—Miss MYRA CABANISS is visiting a sister in Montana. She will hardly be so enthusiastic about the country when the thermometer registers 53° below zero.

—Messrs. Ashcraft & Owens are domiciled in their new drug store, in the elegant block south of the Courthouse. The drug store is a regular city store in all its appointments.

—Since our last issue Miss CAMILLE HUNT (LOUISE's sister) from Lexington, N. C., has entered the school, and SADIE RUMBOUGH, of Asheville, who was here once before.

—Miss ADELAIDE YOUNGBLOOD, of Atlanta, Ga., returned home October 18th. FRANK CREIGHT, of Winnsboro, S. C., went home a short while to recover from a slight attack of illness, but will soon return.

—We are not able to give a complete account of the removal into the new ACADEMY Annex in this number of our paper, but will give all its details in the next, as well as the renovation of the Bagge House or old Annex.

—We are sorry to hear from Miss MATTIE BARBER, of Barbersville, S. C., that her father died on October 9th. We sympathize deeply with his daughters, SALLIE, EMMA and MATTIE, who are all Alumnæ of the ACADEMY, and well known in Salem.

—Two marriages in one week among our Winston Alumnæ will do pretty well. We were sorry to hear that Mr. Allen Morris was somewhat battered by a railroad accident on his way to his bridal, but life and limb were spared and that is much to be thankful for.

—Father Schleyer, the French priest who invented Volapuk, the universal language, died recently. The language has lived through its first storms of ridicule and is now regarded as a rough attempt at a general tongue, to be refined and finished off by some one else.

—On October 11th, the school enjoyed the customary autumnal picnic in the bright woods east of Salem. The weather frowned a little in the morning, but by the time the company started, near 11 o'clock, the sun shone brightly, and the hours spent in the woods were very happy.

—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union Convention of North Carolina held its 6th annual convention in Winston, November 1st, 2d and 3d. Thanks for invitation. Mrs. P. J. Ector (PHEBE JANE BROWN), an Alumna of the ACADEMY, is the efficient President of the Winston Union.

We were sorry that a press of duties prevented our attending the interesting exercises, which were held in Brown's Opera House.

—Miss ALICE OLLINGER has been spending a delightful time with relatives in New England, &c. She called to see JENNIE SIEGER in Bethlehem, as she was on her way to meet her parents in Philadelphia. KATE wrote us a long and interesting letter which we hope to lay before our readers next month. She remained at home to keep house while the others were away. Her turn will come also. She is still young enough to wait awhile.

—A letter from Miss GERTRUDE JENKINS informs us that after a pleasant visit to Washington and Baltimore she went to New York city, and entered the Short hand department of C. A. Walworth's Business College. GERTRUDE is an enthusiastic worker, and will no doubt be benefitted by the course even if she can only devote six weeks to it.

—A Grand Concert was given on Friday evening, November 9th, by Prof. MARKGRAFF, assisted by Misses EVANS, SIEWERS, CARMICHAEL, and by the Salem Orchestra. Our limits will not allow us to insert the programme which was choice and well carried out. The concert was Miss EVANS' first appearance before a Salem audience; our last concert given by herself and Prof. MARKGRAFF being exclusively for the school. A large and appreciative audience filled the ACADEMY Chapel.

—Thursday night, October 25th, the ACADEMY girls attended the marriage ceremony of Miss Laura Masten and Rev. John McCuiston in the Moravian church. Afterwards Miss Letitia Masten, the sister of the bride, gave them a reception in the Sisters' House, where the invited guests spent a most enjoyable evening. A number of rooms were thrown open, handsomely decorated, and all went "merry as a marriage bell." The walls of that ancient institution do not often enclose so sprightly a scene.

—Miss JEANIE REYNOLDS, of Aberdeen, Miss., is teaching a small private school at Waverly, Miss. She appears to be much pleased with her work, and is pleasantly situated. We are glad to hear of so many of our graduates who take up some special occupation when they leave school. It is no longer a doubtful question with any young person; we all need work to strengthen the character, to give self reliance and all the traits that are valued in this world. No young life is good for anything unless it is active, and in this great busy world there is so much to be done,—and life at its best and longest is short.

—Mr. CLEWELL has obtained a Virgil Practice Clavier from New York. It is a silent teaching and practicing piano, which, instead of musical tones, produces mild clicks, almost like those of a telegraphic instrument. It is an effective means of developing the strength of the fingers, wrists and arms. This instrument of 7 octaves has a graduated touch, graded from very light to extremely heavy. The small metal knobs to the right of the key-board control the clicks, the front knob for the down clicks, and the back knob for the up clicks. The large knob in the centre of the name board controls the weight of touch.

—We are indebted to Miss CAMMIE BLACK, of Rock Hill, S. C., for an illustrated copy of the Yorkville Enquirer, giving an account of Rock Hill, with wood cuts of its principal buildings, such as the Graded School, which looks much like the Winston Graded School building, the Frew Building, Saving's Bank, Library, Cotton Factory and Roddy Building, which contains the 1st National Bank, wherein Miss BLACK and Miss NANNIE WOOD are both clerking. The 8th page of the paper contains portraits and brief biographical sketches of thirteen of the most prominent men of Rock Hill. Among them are Captain W. L. Roddey, (Miss BLACK's uncle), his son, Mr. W. J. Roddey, Mr. W. H. Frew, (ANNE BELLE MAY's uncle), and others. Our three Rock Hill commercial students are doing well, and we have a fourth one coming on.

—Our menu is becoming quite varied,—chicken on Friday, oysters on Saturday, and turtle soup on Monday. His Chelonian majesty, as bought by Mr. CLEWELL, was an immense fellow, his broad, flat flipper: being very suggestive of soup. The name of the edible turtle is Chelonia mydas; it is found all along the Atlantic coasts, as elsewhere also. The largest turtles are from 5 to 6 feet in length, nearly shield- or heart-shaped, and weighing from 500 to 600 pounds. Ours was not so large, still formidable enough to make the men who unloaded him very careful as to how they approached his wicked-looking mouth. It is well known that when a turtle gets angry and takes hold of something, he is like Bud Means's dog in "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," of whom his master said, "Ef Bull takes hold heaven and yearh won't make him let go!" The smaller turtles, captured occasionally in our streams, are highly prized on account of their delicate flesh, though soups are not made of them.

—A series of entertaining evenings is to be given in the Academy Chapel for the purpose of exhibiting the best work done in the different departments which make up our school, in order to entertain and instruct at the same time. On Saturday evening, November 3rd, Professor WURRESCHKE the head of the department of Natural Science, gave a lecture in the Chapel attended by the whole school, trustees, &c. His subject was principally "Water," though his illustrative experiments covered various things. Three of the young ladies, Misses MARY FITZPATRICK, LIDA FAIN and JULIA MEACHUM performed the greater part of the experiments under the Professor's direction. Three of the Professor's boys from the Boys' School, also rendered efficient service. Among the experiments were producing ink, black, red and blue liquids by the admixture of colorless acids with water, and the burning of magnesium, potassium in water, burning a steel-watch spring, phosphorus, making soap-bubbles, sending up two small balloons that rose to the ceiling, and poised there gracefully, compound blow-pipe, ether-jet, &c.

A musical evening will be given at an early day;—the department of Literature will be represented in due time by Dr. RONOTHALER its head, in a lecture, "Down the Rhine."

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Mr. George Shore, well known as Ryttenberg's book-keeper, first here in Winston, and later in Sumter, S. C., was married to Miss Charlotte, daughter of Dr. S. D. Doar, of McClellarsville, S. C., on October 23rd.

—The Death Angel Azrael appears to be abroad in the land, reaping an unusually heavy harvest. We were sorry to learn of the affliction of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, (IOA WHARTON) of Winston, in the death of their little son Conrad, October 16th. He was about two and a half years old.

—We were glad to hear through MATTIE CALDWELL of SALLIE GIBSON, of Rock Hill, S. C., an Alumna of the ACADEMY, well-known and esteemed for her intellectual ability, years ago. Miss GIBSON applied for membership in the Alumnae Association to which she is cordially welcomed.

—We copy the following from a South Carolina paper. "Little James, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. O'Bear, of Wigginsboro, S. C., died on Friday morning, October 12th, of membranous croup, that terrible scourge of childhood, before which medical science seems powerless. Tracheotomy was resorted to, and afforded great relief at first; he slept quietly, but grew worse rapidly and died." Mrs. O'Bear was EUNICE HARRIS, an Alumna of the ACADEMY.

—We had a very pleasant call from Mrs. Coble, (CARRIE PATTERSON) of Statesville, N. C., who spent a week visiting her many relatives and friends in Salem and Winston. Time has dealt more gently with her than he does with most people; if there is any change at all, she appears younger and livelier. She seemed much pleased with the varied improvements of the ACADEMY since her time first as pupil, and later as teacher.

—Miss STELLA NISSEN is expected home about the last of November or first of December. She is having a good time; she spent 6 weeks in the mountains of California with two of her uncles, J. and F. Stafford, who left North Carolina 37 years ago. Naturally she has collected many curiosities in that Wonderland where she has been visiting for some time. We shall be most happy to accept her mother's invitation to call and see her and her treasures when she returns.

—We sympathize deeply with the family of the late Mr. Willis E. Hall, Sr., of Salem, N. C., who died October 30th. Mr. Hall's declining health impelled him to go north to Alexandria, Va., but receiving no benefit, his friends brought him home, where he expired in a very short time, a few minutes after reaching the house of his brother-in-law in Winston. Mr. Hall was born in Mobile, Ala., and went to Virginia as one of the Mobile Cadets. He married Miss SARAH CARTER BROWN, the sister of Col. John E. Brown, of Charlotte, and Major Brown, of Winston, and leaves 5 children to mourn his loss. His wife and 2 daughters, DELPHINE and SADIE are Alumnae of the ACADEMY. Mr. Hall was a cultured scholar, a polished gentleman, and a good citizen, highly esteemed in the community, and among his large circle of friends.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!

1863.

4196. LUCY D. BARLOW. — 1847.
D. Barlow, Tarboro, N. C.
4197. NANNIE B. BROWN. — 1849.
4198. BETTIE S. BROWN. — 1851.
Grandfather, J. A. Sanders, Speedwell, Wythe Co., Va.
4199. ELIZABETH ISOM. — 1850.
Brother, Richard Isom, Independence, Va.
4200. APPIE WOOTEN. — 1850.
Brother-in-law, J. P. Speight, Stantonsburg, N. C.
4201. CATHERINE SPEIGHT. — 1846.
4202. JULIA SPEIGHT. — 1848.
Abner Speight, Wilson Co., N. C.
4203. MARY T. MAY. — 1849.
Guardian, L. P. Bardsley, Greenville, N. C.
4204. MARY M. SHEPPARD. — 1849.
Henry Sheppard, Greenville, N. C.
4205. FANNIE McDOWELL. — 1848.
J. P. McDowell, Greenville, E. Tenn.
4206. ELIZABETH SATCHEL. — 1855.
Dr. Satchell, Gen. Milit. Hospital, Wilson, N. C.
4207. SARAH JANE GWYNN. — 1846.
Hugh Gwynn, Mt. Airy, N. C.

- 4208 PATTIE FREEMAN. — 1849.
Uncle, L. B. Battle, Nashville, N. C.
- 4209 MARY M. SHEFFER. — 1848.
F. Sheffer, Woodstock, Va.
- 4210 NANCY HERRING. — 1847.
Wm. Herring, Kingston, N. C.
- 4211 EMMA R. BELL. — 1847.
- 4212 KITTY BELL. — 1851.
Dr. J. W. Bell, Enfield, N. C.
- 4213 HATTIE C. GOFORTH. — 1849.
J. S. Goforth, Saltville, Va.
- 4214 IDA RIDDLE. — 1851.
- 4215 ADDIE RIDDLE. — 1853.
Dr. N. W. Riddle, Linden, Ala.
- 4216 KATE STEELE. — 1847.
Robert L. Steele, Rockingham, N. C.
- 4217 ELIZA SPEFFER. — 1851.
F. Sheffer, Woodstock, Va.
- 4218 M. FANNIE LEAKE. — 1847.
J. W. Leake, Rockingham, N. C.
- 4219 JOSEPHINE THRASHER. — 1846.
John O. Thrasher, Madison, Ga.
- 4220 VENIE AKRIDGE. — 1846.
Mother, Mrs. M. Lounious, Madison, Ga.
- 4221 MARY SNOW. — 1846.
- 4222 BETTIE A. SNOW. —
D. A. Snow, Snowville, Va.
- 4223 MATTIE W. DOUTHIT. — 1846.
B. Douthit, Clemmonsville, N. C.
- 4224 MAGGIE E. ECCLES. — 1846.
Harrison Eccles, Clemmonsville, N. C.
- 4225 REBECCA J. DOGGETT. — 1847.
- 4226 MARTHA A. DOGGETT. — 1848.
John Doggett, McLeansville, N. C.
- 4227 MISSOURI THOMAS. — 1847.
- 4228 ASENAH THOMAS. — 1849.
Abijah Thomas, Marion, Va.
- 4229 LOU GIVHAN. — 1849.
Uncle, Robt. Brooks, Okalona, Miss.
- 4230 JOSEPHINE M. TOMLINSON. — 1848.
A. N. Tomlinson, Bloomington, Guilford Co., N. C.
- 4231 MARY M. HUNT. — 1849.
Pleas Hunt, Panther Creek, N. C.
- 4232 JULIA H. BANKS. — 1850.
- 4233 MATTIE S. BANKS. — 1851.
Wm. J. Banks, Wilmington, N. C.
- 4234 MARIA T. WIMPLE. — 1844.
Dr. John T. Wimple, Vanceville, N. C.
- 4235 JANE M. SMITH. — 1846.
W. R. S. Smith, Gibbesville, N. C.
- 4236 MARY A. STEG. — 1848.
D. A. Sugg, Snow Hill, N. C.
- 4237 FANNIE KEELLY. — 1848.
Uncle, D. A. McRae, Jamestown, N. C.
- 4238 DELPHINE N. DENN. — 1849.
Cousin, Jas. R. Mendenhall, Jamestown, N. C.
- 4239 ROSA F. STEELE. — 1850.
R. J. Steele Jr., Rockingham, N. C.
- 4240 CATHERINE ELIZ. HANES. — 1849.
Mother, Mrs. Jane Hanes, Fulton, Davie Co., N. C.
- 4241 ALICE MARCH. — 1848.
W. B. March, Fulton, Davie Co., N. C.
- 4242 AMELIA VANCE. — 1846.
Samuel Vane, 7 Mile Ford, Smyth Co., Va.
- 4243 CAROLINE AGUSTA LAMKIN. — 1851.
J. F. Lamkin, Holmesville, Pike Co., Miss.
- 4244 MARTHA J. BURSON. — 1849.
- 4245 MARIETTA BURSON. — 1851.
Z. L. Burson, Jonesboro, Tenn.
- 4246 ELIZA BARR. — 1849.
W. A. Barr, Holmesville, Miss.
- 4247 LUCY F. STATHAM. — 1849.
R. Statham, Holmesville, Miss.
- 4248 CATHERINE ELIZ. PEBBLES. — 1849.
H. W. Peebles, Beaumont, Chatham Co., N. C.
- 4249 MARY ELVIRA MARTIN. — 1850.
- 4250 ELLA VIRGINIA MARTIN. — 1851.
Leland Martin, Wilkes Co., N. C.
- 4251 EMMA WHITE. — 1848.
C. N. White, Concord, N. C.
- 4252 MATHILDA WINECOFF. — 1848.
R. Winecoff, Concord, N. C.
- 4253 MOLLIE S. MCCORMACK. — 1847.
Mc McCormack, Glade Spring, Va.
- 4254 KATE HUTTON. — 1847.
Arthur Hutton, Glade Spring, Va.
- 4255 ELIZA A. SHELLEY. — 1845.
Brother, R. W. Shelly, Thomasville, N. C.
- 4256 ISABELLA A. GREEVER. — 1840.
- 4257 R. VIRGINIA GREEVER. — 1847.
- 4258 REBECCA GREEVER. — 1851.
Col. H. A. Greover, 7 Mile Ford, Va.
- 4259 LOUISA SMITHERMAN. — 1851.
Jesse Smitherman, Troy, N. C.
- 4260 EVELINE COLTRANE. — 1845.
Ira B. Coltrane, Hillsville, Va.
- 4261 MARY WYCAL. — 1845.
- 4262 LUCY WYCAL. — 1846.
S. Wygal, Floyd C. H., Va.
- 4263 KITTY STEPHENS. — 1846.
- 4264 MELISSA STEPHENS. — 1848.
- 4265 CAROLINE STEPHENS. — 1850.
Christopher Stephens, Richlands, N. C.
- 4266 SALLIE THREADGILL. — 1848.
G. B. Threadgill, Ansonville, N. C.
- 4267 ALICE YOUNT. — 1851.
P. L. Yount, Newton, N. C.
- 4268 MARY T. MARTIN. — 1849.
Uncle, H. Gwynn, Mt. Airy, N. C.
- 4269 NANCY T. LILACH. — 1848.
Dr. Jas. T. Leach, Leachburg, N. C.
- 4270 ROSA MAYNARD. — 1849.
Excutor, John Leach, Leachburg, N. C.
- 4271 ANNA DEWEY. — 1850.
O. S. Dewey, Jamestown, N. C.

- 4272 JOSEPHINE BENSEL. — 1851.
Capt. J. W. Bensef, Smithfield, N. C.
- 4273 EMMA A. MARTIN. — 1850.
- 4274 MARY V. MARTIN. — 1852.
Thos. S. Martin, Huntsville, N. C.
- 4275 HARRIET E. NISSEN. — 1850.
John Nissen, Vauhtown, N. C.
- 4276 SARAH A. M. BESSENT. — 1850.
Rev. C. W. Bessent, Jerusalem, Davie Co., N. C.
- 4277 HENRIETTA L. HARPER. — 1850.
Brother, F. M. Harper, Mosely Hall, N. C.
- 4278 EMMA C. HUGHINS. — 1851.
Thomas W. Hudgins, Edenton, N. C.
- 4279 MORGIANA WEATHERSBERE. — 1849.
B. Weathersbere, Jamestown, N. C.
- 4280 MARTHA OCT. FINLEY. — 1848.
A. W. Finley, Wilkesboro, N. C.
- 4281 MOLLIE CRANOR. — 1850.
E. Cranor, Wilkes county, N. C.
- 4282 MARY J. WOOTEN. — 1850.
John Wooten, Mosely Hall, N. C.
- 4283 JEANNETTE VESTAL. — 1845.
- 4284 SARAH ETTA VESTAL. — 1847.
C. Vestal, Oakland, Chatham Co., N. C.

Splinters.

—A dentist lives from hand to mouth.
—Sam Jones is styled "the sainted cyclone."
—"Are false teeth white lies?" Not necessarily.
—Is there any invisible (indelible) ink in the room?
—"If silence is golden is it also indicative of guilt (guilt)?"
—"Nothing but Leaves,"—the song of the banana plants in the back-yard.
—"This broad piazza is a nice place in which to ride cyclopedias, is it not?"
—"A rifle may not be very sociable in its nature, but it never goes off by itself.
—"A young pupil is puzzled to know why the mouth of a river is larger than its head.
—"The most powerful hook in the world is the pocket-book, (provided it is well filled) —"What was the matter with the young man?" "Why? information of the brain, the doctor said."
—"Are Sulphur Springs good places for match-making?" They are in every sense of the word."
—"These little election (electric) bells certainly are queer, sometimes they ring and sometimes they don't."
—"Still life—among the moonshiners. O! is that what artists mean when they speak of still-life studies?"
—"How many lives did Plutarch have?" asks a pupil. About 46;—this leaves the nine lives of a cat out of sight.
—"He said, very correctly, that it was the most progressive age in which he had ever lived!" Query: "In how many ages has he lived?"
—"In a literature lesson, a short while ago, the question came up, "Do three feet of poetry make a yard?" What a wonderful age, when the poems even are reeled off by the yard!"
—"Per Aspera ad Astra, the motto of the class of '87, fits the case of the timid person who has to cross Broadway at a busy hour to get to the Astor House, as well as that of aspiring graduates.

Married.

WALKER—KLUGE.—In Leaksville, N. C., October 24th, Mr. OSCAR J. WALKER to Miss MINNIE, daughter of Eugene Kluge, Esq.
LIPPETT—HAMLIN.—In the 2d Street Baptist church, on November 13th, Mr. T. J. LIPPETT to Miss CORA HAMLIN, both of Winston.
MORRIS—GIBSON.—In the Centenary Methodist church, on November 14th, Mr. ALLAN MORRIS, of Shreveport, La., to Miss FLORENCE GIBSON, of Winston.

Died.

PHILLIPS.—On the morning of October 4th, PATTIE L., wife of Joseph B. Phillips, of Battleboro, N. C. Her maiden name was Battle; she left 5 children.
"She who has now passed from death unto life" was very dear to us, and though our loss fills us with sorrow, we still have the consoling remembrance of her happy past, and the hope of an eternal re-union in heaven. Gentle and retiring in manner, she yet possessed great strength of character, and exerted a positive influence on all with whom she associated. During a well spent life on earth she filled the highest office of true and noble womanhood. She was a loyal, loving wife to her husband, walking hand in hand with him, gently urging him onward and upward to duty and to God. She was a mother who while ministering to the daily wants and needs of her children, failed not to train them in the love and fear of God. A daughter, sister, friend, but above all, as a faithful follower of Jesus, she was ever seeking to know her duty, ever diligent to perform it. The main spring of her every thought, word and deed was charity in its purest, most heavenly sense. May all who loved her take comfort in the thought that she now enjoys the realization of Christ's beautiful benediction, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical. $1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.60. Send for sample copies Address.

THE SCHOOLTEACHER.
WINSTON, N. C.

WANTED.

A position as governess in a private family by a young lady, a Graduate of Salem Female Academy.
Address ACADEMY.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:
Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.
We solicit a share of your patronage.
Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere; Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

CLINARD & BROOKES.

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,
Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

OF

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,

FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices:

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., DECEMBER, 1888.

NUMBER 91.

TENNYSON.

BY MISS EMILY HAZLEHURST.

ALFRED TENNYSON stands at the head of the Victorian poets; he began to write with the accession of Victoria in 1837, and has grown old with her reign: his powers have shown a gradual decline during the last thirty years, and his friends are sorry for him when he occasionally tries to mount his Pegasus: his flights are low and inglorious.

Born in 1810, Tennyson's life has been singularly quiet and uneventful, free from the vices that stain the lives of many poets, like Byron, Shelly and Keats. He succeeded Wordsworth in 1850 as Poet Laureate, and later was made Lord Tennyson by the Queen. His favorite residence is Farringford House, in the Isle of Wight, where he lives a recluse, and scarcely ever receives visitors.

Though Tennyson is sometimes styled "the young ladies' poet," with a sort of sneer for his gentleness, it is rather a tribute to the morality and purity of his works than otherwise. There is strength and power in the "Charge of the Light Brigade," at the battle of Balaklava, in the Crimean War, 1855, that fatal charge when the flower of the chivalry of England "rode into the Valley of Death."

"Cannon to right of them
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon in front of them,
Volleyed and thundered.
Stormed at with shot and shell,
Boldly they rode and well,
Into the jaws of Death,
Into the mouth of Hell."

We seem to hear the clash of the ringing sabres, to see their very gleam as they turn in air.

In the "Idyls of the King" we have a fine dedication to Prince Albert,

"Who spake no slander, no, nor listened to it;
Who loved one only and who claved to her
Wearing the white flower of a spotless life."

The poet embodies the fine old legends of King Arthur's time, 500 A. C., in his description of Enid, whom the brave Geraint "of that great Order of the Table Round," loved, "as he loved the light of heaven;" of Vivien, the enchantress; of Elaine, "the lily maid of Astolat;" of Guinevere, Arthur's treacherous queen, who at length finds refuge in a convent, and discovers, alas! that it is "Late! Too late! Too late!"

to redeem her sinful life. "The Quest for the Holy Grail" has a rare, mystic charm.

"In Memoriam," written in memory of his friend, Arthur Hallam, is a tender lament, especially for those who have lost friends,

"Who talk them o'er and wish them here
To count their memories half divine."

"The Lady of Shalott," with her magic mirror, in which she sees, among other things, Sir Lancelot as he rides between the barley sheaves, a red cross knight, on his way to many towered Camelot, is a weird creation.

"The Bugle Song," in the "Princess," has the rare, ethereal, poetic essence which almost makes us

"Hark! O hear! How thin and clear,
The horns of elf-land faintly blowing."

We imagine we see

"The splendor fall on castle wall
And snowy summits, old in story,
The long light shakes across the lakes,
And the wild cataract leaps in glory."

In "Enoch Arden" we have one of the sad experiences of adverse fate, where, like Ulysses, he is long kept from his home. At last he returns, to find, not a Penelope, faithful to the end, but his wife married and children grown up. With heroic self-abnegation he creeps away, and hides himself and his bitter pain, only revealing it in his last hour, before the eternal silence of death seals the secret on his lips. The Enoch Ardens of our late war make the story sadly real to us.

In "Maud" there are passages of exquisite beauty:

"Queen Rose of the rosebud garden of girls,
Come hither, the dance is done.
There has fallen a splendid tear
From the Passion Flower at the gate.
The red rose cries, 'She is near! She is near!
And the white rose weeps, 'She is late!
The larkspur listens, 'I hear! I hear!
And the lily whispers, 'I wait!'"

The Brook is beautifully idealized as it

"Chatters over stony ways,
In little sharps and trebles," while it hurries down "by thirty hills and half a hundred bridges," through Philip's farm.

"The Charge of the Heavy Brigade" marks the decline of Tennyson's genius from which all the grace and lightness of his earlier works are gone. Take the simplicity and freshness of "The May Queen," the tender beauty of the fragment:

"The stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill,
But, oh! for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still."

Or the bitter philosophy of "Locksley Hall," as he exclaims, in desperation:

"Am I mad that thus I cherish that which bears such bitter fruit,
I will pluck it from my bosom, though my heart be at its root,"

and we realize more fully than ever that poetry belongs to youth; the stern, hard experiences of life rub it out of the whole nature: it is well for us, however, that the appreciative power in poetry does not fade away with the creative power.

Academy Pets.

IT would be something unusual, nay, almost unnatural, for so large a number of young people and children to live in the ACADEMY without occasional pets. In the early days of the school, a room company of girls, walking where Winston now stands, came upon a little fawn, which they caught and brought home in an apron. We have no means of knowing how long it lived, presumably not a great while, for pets belonging to school-girls are apt to receive spasmodic attentions at one time neglected, and at another almost killed with kindness.

In 1861 or '62, a small alligator, then a great curiosity, was brought by Mr. Christ. Fogle, on his return from a trip in South Carolina and Georgia. The little saurian was put into the fountain in the back yard, but the water being too cold for his luxurious nature, he soon meekly closed his eyes on earthly scenes. What appears to have impressed the minds of former pupils who were here at that time was the burial that the girls accorded to him. He was shrouded, put in a little box, covered with flowers, and interred in the play ground under a large Norway spruce, where later pets repose by his side, more quietly in death than they would ever have agreed in life.

During the New Orleans Exposition, in 1885, REBECCA MARKS returned with an alligator about eight inches in length, but he died before any one knew how to take care of him. A third one was sent to us something over a year ago, presumably by some former pupil from Florida, though we never ascertained the donor's name. He survived last winter, and is now, perhaps, 23 or 24 inches in length, and by next summer will almost have to be handled with a pair of tongs. Two smaller ones were later added to give him company, and Captain Paddison expressed us a little fellow a few weeks ago; so that we have four, as interesting and ugly as pets can well be.

Naturally cats come in for their share of petting. Several stray kittens were adopted by pet-loving girls; one, that later grew into a large yellow cat, followed the 9th room girls when they came from walk; they took it in charge, and it flourished for a number of years. One night, while quietly reposing on the old 2nd (now 3rd) side-room window, some mischievous girls threw her out at some boys standing on the pavement. They thought the cat was surely dead or crippled, when the next morning she came limping through the back porch as they went to breakfast, but little damaged by being used as a projectile, a sort of cat-a-pult. She died at length, full of years and honors; her photograph was taken several times.

The next feline pet was a large tortoiseshell cat, brought by little MAY and EVA TRAMMELL in their arms from Georgia. When they left they carried her along again. Snowball came next in order; she was a lovely, fluffy ball of white fur, with a blue ribbon around her neck, brought as a present by a day-scholar to a little 6th roomer. But lovely kittens will grow up into matronly cats, and so, too, Snowball lost her kittenish beauty, and became a furred and whiskered, sinuous, evasive creature, ensconcing herself in the best-looking shelves of the side-room with a calm, matter-of-course air, creeping under the spreads in the dormitories, and curling herself up in the softest part of the bed with a sublime audacity that you let her remain from sheer amazement at her consequential air. At length she departed this life, and was mourned with many tears by her 6th room friends. Mr. ZORN himself helped the little girls to dig her grave, which was kept covered with flowers for many a day.

Birds also served their time, the pet generally only lasting about as long as the fancy did; except in the case of Bessie Pegram's carrier pigeons, their descendants still live. A pet squirrel now absorbs the affections of the 9th room children, for one day while in the Playground a squirrel playfully ran upon the shoulder of a little girl. Bunny was brought to the ACADEMY in triumph, a tread-mill cage obtained, and his various tricks and antics have become a source of much pleasure. He runs considerable risk of dying of apoplexy from overfeeding. The child nature requires pets, and it is a trait which makes children gentle and kind, and should therefore be encouraged.

Lady Hester Stanhope.

BY MISS ADDIE FRIES.

LADY Hester Stanhope, one of the most peculiar and eccentric of women, was born in 1776. She was the eldest daughter of Charles, third Earl of Stanhope, and the grand-daughter of the great Lord Chatham.

While still quite young, she was sent to live with her uncle, William Pitt, and presided over his great state banquets with skill and tact. After her uncle's death she was seized with a desire to leave England and travel in Eastern lands. She lived for some time in Constantinople, then went to Syria, where by her matchless courage and commanding bearing, coupled with rumors pronouncing her to be fabulously rich and of high rank in England, she became a princess and reigned as such among the half-civilized tribes about her.

By and by her sovereignty passed away: she then declared herself to be a priestess, a prophetess, holding communion with God himself. She lived in an old convent on the Lebanon ridge of mountains. Her servants were all orientals, except two Italians, the one her secretary, the other nominally her physician but really a sort of upper servant, the major-domo of her strangely assorted household. She had a body of Albanian soldiers at command, who made nothing of sacking a town or village at the word of their imperious and haughty mistress.

She permitted no visitors, making an exception only in favor of a few friends of her earlier and more civilized days. Alexander Kinglake, in his "Eothen," gives a graphic description of his visit to this most eccentric woman.

She wore the attire common to Eastern men, with a very large turban which seemed to be made of a pale Cashmere shawl. Her sole article of food was milk; and she exercised the same self-denial in intellectual food; she never looked into a book nor newspaper, but trusted to the stars for her sublime knowledge.

She died in June, 1839, in the same solitude in which she had lived. Moore, the English Consul at Beyrout, heard that she was ill, and accompanied by a missionary, rode over to see her. When they arrived at the convent it was plunged in darkness and desolation: lighting their lamps they passed through hall and gallery till they reached the room where she lay a corpse. Her servants, no longer restrained by fear, had plundered the room of all it contained, but even in death she could protect herself, for the articles on her person had not been touched.

The consul had her body properly interred, certifying that her death took place from natural causes; whether she was the victim of foul play or not will never be known. What a life and what a death for an English gentlewoman, highly gifted and intellectual!

The Hotel Piazza of a Mountain Resort.

BY MISS CARRIE SHELTON.

"WHAT is there about a hotel piazza to interest?" Much, if you will rise early with me to-morrow morning, and take up your station at some convenient place, you will see, and seeing is believing the world over. First, there is an old gentleman, or, perhaps, several, (the young men are never out early) walking up and down the long piazza, pacing off the 160 feet of length with a methodical exactness which marks every action of a well-governed life. By and by the breakfast bell rings, and the guests begin to come out from the right hand and the left, passing on to the dining room at one end.

Every variety of dress and costume may be seen; here is a lady in an elegant morning gown, here a party in regular waists, plain skirts and sun hats, regular tramping outfits, and here, too, are some in riding habits, ready for their morning ride as soon as the matutinal meal has been dispatched; some are in tennis or boating suits, morning greetings are interchanged, the weather discussed, and the scenery admired.

Breakfast is over; a few late risers are making their way to the dining-room, while the piazza is filled with a laughing, talking, bustling company of well-dressed people. Soon hacks, buggies, horses, &c., are brought forth for the driving and riding parties. Some start off with stout alpenstocks for a tramp, others, with rackets in hand, are on their way to the tennis court, and again others start on a boating excursion on the lake.

By and by you might suppose the piazza would be deserted but that is not the case. Middle aged people now occupy the places; those who prefer a quiet indoor chat to a walk, or who take advantage of the quiet to read a favorite book or magazine. Elderly ladies are chatting over their work, while at one end of the piazza a reading society is enjoying a new book. Of course, there, too, are the inevitable loungers at the office door. So the morning passes by, and dinner time approaches. The various pleasure parties have returned with extraordinary appetites, and spend the interval, until dinner is announced, in relating their adventures and experiences of the morning.

After dinner there is the mail to wait for, and everybody loiters on the piazza until some one's quick eyes have discovered that the mail is in. There is a general stampede for the office where it is distributed, with the usual results, some are happy with a number of letters, others scowl their disappointment, or with sound philosophy "grin and bear it."

When the public (and sometimes private) news has been discussed, the majority of the ladies retire for a siesta; the piazza is not entirely deserted for here and there sits a gentleman dozing over his newspaper, or small tables are surrounded by others engaged in whist, euchre, &c. At the other end, far enough removed not to disturb the gentlemen, are groups of children with their nurses. The afternoon wanes away, the sleepy clerk at the office door opens his eyes as one gay party of ladies after another, in evening costume, come out on the piazza promenading up and down.

The evening meal being over, the piazza is a moving mass of gay promenaders; up and down they go in a happy buzz and hum of conversation, till the music strikes up in the ball-room, and the number is lessened, though many remain, some to station themselves at the low windows to watch the waltzers, others become more confidential and sentimental as the crowd lessens, and wander off in couples, oblivious to everybody and everything else. We begin to feel somewhat de trop as this separation into twos goes on, and are not sorry when the evening is over. Perhaps we hear a farewell tune, or see a clog dance on the piazza, where the day begins and ends.

The close observer will see much to instruct as this moving kaleidoscope passes on and on. The piazza is the place where everything of general importance takes place and is discussed, and when the season is over and the groups start homeward in various directions, some of our most pleasing recollections are associated with the Hotel Piazza.

The River St. John.

BY MISS JANIE WHITNER.

THIS beautiful stream rises in the southern part of the State of Florida, among the Everglades, and flows northward for nearly 200 miles, then, seemingly changing its mind, it flows directly east, and after 25 miles of exquisite beauty, it pours its waters into the Atlantic Ocean. It is the largest and most important of the Florida rivers, and is noted for the richness and luxuriance of its tropical scenery. The many bends and curves open one exquisite panoramic scene of beauty to the enthusiastic beholder after the other. Laudatory adjectives are soon exhausted by the tourist, and he at length drinks in the sensuous, poetic delights of the river banks in happy silence. Nature appears to be in her most lavish and generous mood. How many flowers of rare beauty are here "born to blush unseen," while in colder lands hearts are starved for what is lacking in nature.

On account of the irregular course of the river, as well as its extreme narrowness in parts, steamers are obliged to turn and twist, to zigzag along, and even then their bows occasionally push into the soft earth of the opposite shore; you cannot quite shake hand across the stream though, as some have said.

Jacksonville, a thriving commercial city of about 25,000 inhabitants, is situated on the north side, near the mouth of the St. John's. In Winter it is a popular resort for invalids, especially consumptives, and those who hasten to escape the rigors of a northern winter, amid balmy odors wafted from the orange and lemon groves; golden apples indeed are borne by the glossy, dark green trees, choicer than the golden fruits of the Gardens of the Hesperides, guarded by the fierce three-headed monster, Cerberus. Alas! however, for the fair city of Jacksonville, with all her natural advantages! During the past months the Pestilence not only struck in the darkness, but it walked her streets at noonday. The whole country throbbled with sympathy as the bulletins of dead and dying were published from this sore fever-stricken city. Sad and harrowing tales of suffering and misery have become only too familiar, and only the purifying frosts and winds of December can put a stop to the awful ravages of the Yellow Fever.

Until recently the River St. John carried on all the trade of the upper part of the State, but the completion of several railroads has seriously injured its once prosperous trade.

On the banks of the river are flowers of every variety in richest profusion, with backgrounds of stately trees, the green foliage softened by long festoons of gray Spanish moss, the Tillandsia usneoides. Strangely enough, this fluffy dry moss belongs to the same natural family as the pineapple, the juiciest of fruits.

On the fallen trees, half submerged in the water, are sprawled turtles, alligators from 8 inches to 15 or 20 feet in length basking in the hot sunshine; too lazy to seek their prey, they lie with open mouth and a sort of "Will you walk into my parlor?" expression, until insects, bugs, birds, anything, everything, accepts the wordless invitation, when, with a snap, the ponderous jaws are closed, and farewell to the audacious intruders.

The waters are alive with fishes, which afford occupation and amusement to the pleasure seekers. Birds of brilliant plumage and oddly shaped bills are wading, seeking their finny prey, giving the landscape the brightness of coloring it needs. Much has been said and sung about the St. John's, but those who visit the river are ready to say: "the half was not told us."

—One of the little girls wants to see the picture of the boy who is riding horse-back on a mule.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., DECEMBER, 1888.

Entered as a second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence

Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—We have received 50 cents from a Salem subscriber, but no name was attached. Any one who has paid a subscription but has not had a receipt returned will favor us by notifying us of the same.

Tempus Fugit!

ALAS! we know it, and the older we become the faster the old fellow of the hour-glass and scythe travels. The new school year has scarcely begun; the ponderous machinery of school-work, with its many details that need close attention, has come to move without friction, and before we are aware of it, the old year is fading away and the lusty new year is clamoring for admittance. In vain we say,

"Old year! you must not die,
You came to us so readily,
You lived with us so steadily,
Old year! you shall not die!"

but in spite of it all he dies, and before we know it,

"There's a new foot on the floor, my friend;
And a new face at the door, my friend;
The New Year's at the door."

Before our next visit to our friends, the great mystery of the Incarnation of Christ will again have been celebrated with all its sweet and holy observances; the hallowed Christmas tide with its atmosphere of Peace and Good-Will to men will have come, and gone. The joy-bells, too, will have greeted the New Year, and the unfamiliar 1889 will have taken its place in our letters, as each day is more and more closely written over with good deeds and bad ones,—with the joys and sorrows of life.

To all our friends we wish a joyous Christmas, and a happy, a very happy New Year.

—The perfection of art is simplicity. Persons of the highest breeding possess the simplest manners. The deepest thinkers use the plainest Anglo-Saxon words. Note the person who uses the largest, most high sounding Latinisms and you find a person conspicuous for poverty of ideas. Fuss and feathers never accompany real worth.

The noblest, the most elegant ladies dress in subdued colors; they leave vulgar display to the low and underbred. Cooks and washerwomen in our large towns and cities blossom out in meretricious splendor, in gorgeous display, while the true lady is always simple and modest, yet with an indescribable air, a something that marks her as thoroughbred,—a lady in every noble, womanly quality. So, too, the true gentleman; there is nothing flashy or dudish, nothing conspicuous but a nameless something that stamps him as a gentleman by the grace of God and the appreciation of his fellow men.

Correspondence.

—Our Correspondence columns for December open with a sprightly communication from Miss KATE OLLINGER, who will always have a warm place in our hearts. The Alumnae of the ACADEMY are cordially welcome here around the board of our Alma Mater.

"THE ACADEMY arrived this morning and as we had not received one for such a long time, it was doubly welcome. How eagerly I read it, only those who have been there and love the place can know. For some days I have been expecting it, and was so glad to see it with the mail this morning; it was so nice to feel that I had it.

I heard through BLANCHE, of some of the improvements that had taken place recently, the two story building that is being erected for the little ones is such a good idea. How I wish I was there that I might watch the rapid work with you. Lately, I have been so homesick for the ACADEMY and all my friends. It seems as if I grow worse with time. I think of the dear old place, and the happy years I spent there oh! so much! DAISY MURPHY'S letter brought back a flood of recollections, when I read it. I could scarcely keep back the tears. "Ah distinctly I remember how the halls looked at night," like DAISY, I can see it all, if I close my eyes. But enough of this, though I do dearly love to muse over these things.

Had you heard that ALICE was in Massachusetts, but she has not confined herself to that State, though she spends most of her time in Salem. During the early summer months she was in very good health, then though she was not really sick, she looked so pale that Mamma and Papa thought it best to send her off on a trip. So Mamma decided to let her go to Massachusetts, where she has so many relatives. She has been away nearly two months now, and has enjoyed every moment of the time. Not long ago she took a little run up into Maine. She also spent some time in Portsmouth, N. H. The beach, there, she says is perfectly grand. She says she could sit on the beach and watch the huge waves dash and splash against the rocks for hours.

By this time I know Papa and Mamma are with her. They will spend some time visiting relatives and friends, as well as in taking in some of the sights in the larger cities.

Carrie, Hattie, (my younger sisters,) and I are the only ones at home now. Carrie and Hattie are not at home very much of the time either, for they have commenced going to school now. I receive letters almost every day from some of the girls. It is such a pleasure. ELLA has been in Anderson, S. C., for some little time. It was rather unfortunate for LUTA and NELLIE are both away just now. You received an invitation to SUE WATSON'S wedding did you not? MYRA has left Texas, and is now in Montana, visiting a sister there; she seen s charmed with the country, everything is so new to her. She will hardly find the winters as pleasant as the summers, for the thermometer falls 53° below zero. That would just freeze me out.

Has my subscription for THE ACADEMY expired? I do not know but I will enclose fifty cents in this letter so that there may be no delay when it does run out. I also enclose $1.00 for which please send me "The Academy Girl March," composed by Prof. MARKGRAFF. I have been wanting it some time, but have always neglected sending for it. I teach Carrie and Hattie music now.

How busy you must be with two rooms of girls to look after, THE ACADEMY to get ready, and the lessons, besides other duties.

With much love for yourself and many good wishes for a successful year

I am, yours affectionately,

KATE OLLINGER.

Milton, Fla.

—A few lines from AGNES PARKER, follow:

"Enclosed please find 50 cents for one year's subscription to THE ACADEMY. I received and read the September and October numbers with great interest. I would like so much to see and be with you all again, but I shall not return to school this year. Please give love to Mrs. CLEWELL, Dr. and Mrs. RONDTHALER.

Wishing the dear old ACADEMY and all connected with it a prosperous and happy year

I am, yours respectfully,

AGNES S. PARKER.

Coatopa, Ala.

—Our next is from Miss NINA FLOURNOY, a dear friend, and one of our late graduates of '88.

"The postman has just handed me your letter and I am going to show my appreciation by an immediate reply. I do appreciate it highly too, for I looked during these long days of convalescence for a letter from you, and when it failed to come I hardly knew what to think, surely you had not forgotten me so soon? I thought over and over again, perhaps you were too busy, for I could not bear the thought of being forgotten by one whose friendship I valued so highly.

You know how I was taken ill the day after my arrival at home, and for days all hope of recovery was given up, but I am thankful to say my strength is fast returning, and I will soon be strong and well.

We are nicely settled in our new home, and find it very pleasant indeed. The house is very much on the order of our Winston home, but in the summer time we will hardly find it so pleasant, in the long June days. I have a nice cozy little room. Don't you think you could let Phonography classes go long enough to make me a visit in Louisiana. Nothing would give me more pleasure. We are having lovely autumnal weather, that reminds me of my boarding school life, and our long rambles through the woods for autumn leaves.

You almost made me envious when you spoke of ELIZA'S Phonography class.

I went out last evening to hear Keene. He has played here three nights, as "Richard 3d," "Richardieu," and "Julius Caesar," and of course I enjoyed it very greatly.

Cousin A. and his bride arrived this evening, looking somewhat worn out from their long trip, but happy as young married people usually are. We had the whole house from the third story illuminated, and the effect was quite pretty. F—admired our floral decorations especially as she said Jack Frost and cold weather had put an end to the flowers in Winston. To look at our trees and grass you would think we were having Spring, as they are so beautifully green, but it is near midnight, so I must close for this time.

Yours lovingly,

NINA FLOURNOY.

Shreveport, La.

—A sad letter from Mrs. J. A. Oertel, brings the heavy tidings of the decline of a very dear friend and some time pupil of the ACADEMY, her daughter, Miss LENA OERTEL. We had watched her course with gratification, as she devoted herself with all her strength to the cause of her Lord and Master, a faithful worker in the Episcopal church, but the hand of disease lies heavy upon her, and we fear the worst.

"My daughter desires me to write for her as she is unable to do so herself. She wishes me to tell you that the letter written to yourself last Spring was about the last one she was able to write. Since then she has been very sick, ever growing worse and worse. Sometimes she has seemed to improve, but she would never gain the point from which the last declension took place, so it is much with her like the going out of the tide.

The climate of Sewanee did not agree with her, and we made a change to Nashville, as you will see from the heading of this sheet, but I fear too late to be of any benefit to her. She is entirely confined to her bed, and for the last few days an acute attack of pleurisy has added greatly to her discomfort.

If you have time please write her about yourself, and old Salem which she loves so much. I am sure no "Salem girl" ever remembered the institution with more affectionate interest. We have a celebration of the Holy Communion in her room every Monday at 4 P. M. Be with us in spirit at the time.

With love from her and kindest regards from myself.

Yours very sincerely,

J. A. OERTEL.

East Nashville, Tenn.

—Our next is from Miss MATTIE CALDWELL, a staunch friend and graduate of the Class of '83.

"Since last I wrote you I have had the pleasure of meeting with Miss SALLIE GIBSON, of Rock Hill, S. C., who was educated in Salem, and was there about 1859. We had a short chat about the ACADEMY, of changes that had taken place since she was there, etc. I sent her several copies of THE ACADEMY to read. She was so much pleased that she decided to subscribe at once. She wishes to join the Alumnae Association and also wishes one of the badges.

Yours with affection,

MATTIE CALDWELL.

Concord, N. C.

—A very few lines from Mrs. David Stokes, formerly FANNIE POWELL, read as follows. We would be pleased to hear from her at greater length. Thanks for the obituary.

"Inclosed you will find postal note for fifty cents to renew my subscription for ACADEMY. I also enclose you a notice of the death of Mrs. Joe Phillips, (formerly PATTIE BATTLE) an old pupil.

Very respectfully,

FANNIE POWELL STOKES.

Rocky Mount, N. C.

—Mrs. Minor (MOLLIE DONNELL), of Wentworth, N. C., wrote as follows concerning a badge pin of the Alumnae Association, which was decided upon at our annual meeting in June and referred to a committee elected for the purpose. The badges have recently arrived, and all parties who ordered them, Mrs. Minor among them, express themselves well pleased.

"I notice in the last number of THE ACADEMY that the Badge Pins for the Alumnae Association are ready. I would like to have one. How soon can I get it? I expect to leave home soon to be absent several weeks, and would like to get it before I leave, if I can. Let me know please when I can get it.

Yours truly,

MRS. J. B. MINOR.

Wentworth, N. C.

—Several new lamp posts have been placed between the New Annex Hall and the Main Building; one stands just outside the dining room, the several lights making the yard as light at night as any hall about the establishment.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—On Tuesday evening, Dec. 4th, Misses EVANS and VEST, with their pupils, gave a musicale in the Chapel to invited parties among the inmates of the ACADEMY.

—We see from a letter written by NINA FLOURNOY, of Shreveport, La., that she has entered upon the duties of her position with Iler, Morris & Hibbette, and is very happy in her work.

—We are sorry to note the death of Col. R. R. Bridgers, (LOULIE'S uncle). He was President of the W. & W. R. R. Co., at Wilmington. We were also informed about the first week in December of the death of Mr. W. W. Pegram, of Charlotte, BESSIE'S father, and we sympathize deeply with her in her affliction.

—The Seniors have taken up Virgil with praiseworthy zeal. They have completed the study of Literary History, and laid aside the dear little Text-books that have become old friends, though we cannot say that the parting cost either pang or tear. Peabody's Moral Philosophy takes the place of the study. We have a good, steady working class with no laggards or drones.

—We acknowledge the reception of an invitation to the marriage of Mr. W. H. Frierson and Miss NELLIE BEWLEY, both well known and highly esteemed in our midst. NELLIE is the first member of the class of '88 to enter the state matrimonial, and is, of course, the subject of the liveliest interest. May the choicest blessings of heaven attend them, and may the sun of prosperity and happiness ever rest upon their home.

—On Saturday night, December 8, Professor Markgraff gave a Beethoven evening to the school as a whole. A large portrait of Beethoven was a prominent feature on the platform. The Professor gave an interesting sketch of the life work, and peculiarities of the great composer, after which a varied selection from his best works was rendered by the Professor, assisted by Miss EVANS, who sang Adelaide, and by Misses DU FOUR and KRULSHIR in the instrumental part. We append the programme, which speaks for itself:

1st. Coriolan, Overture, (Miss DU FOUR and Prof. MARKGRAFF). 2d. Andante from Op. 142. 3d. Allegretto Sherzando Rondo, from first Piano Concert in C. 4th. Largo e mesto, Op. 10, 3. 5th. Song, Adelaide, (Miss EVANS). 6th. Adagio from Sinfonia in C Minor, Op. 27. (Miss DU FOUR and Prof. MARKGRAFF). 7th. Andante con Variaziane, Op. 26.—a. Andante.—b. Variations, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.—c. Marcia funebre. 8th. Rondo from Piano Concert in Eb, Op. 73, (Miss DU FOUR and Prof. MARKGRAFF).

—We are indebted to Professor Joseph Maclean, of the Synodical College, Rogersville, Tenn., for Programme of six Piano recitals given at the College. They include selections from John Sebastian Bach, Louis Pabst, Beethoven, Adolf Jensen, Franz Schubert, Edvard Grieg, Mozart, Robert Schumann, Haydn, Joachim Raff, Jean Louis Nicode, Ignaz Bruell, Halfdan Kj-rulf, &c.

—A copy of the Wellesley Courant was handed to us, Volume I, Number 3. The subscription price is $1.50. Princeton runs a daily, but we cannot attempt a daily just yet awhile.

—One of the immediate advantages of the increase of room through the new Annex Hall was the recovery of our Reading Room, which latterly had to be used as a class-room.

—The Badge Pins of the Alumnae Association of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY have arrived, and a number have been sent according to order. They are handsome and can be worn as pins or as badges, as the wearer prefers. They are strong and serviceable and being solid gold are well worth the price $6.

—Our Thanksgiving dinner was a success; it always is a success as far as the disposal of an unlimited supply of good things to eat is concerned. Thirty-two turkeys and fifteen chickens offered up their lives on the Thanksgiving altar of the ACADEMY; in addition to these victims, we disposed of a variety of other edibles, corn, potatoes, cranberries, pickles ad libitum, mince pies, celery, &c., &c., until tongues waxed weak, and became unaccountably silent for a time.

—The Golden Fours, for the term ending November 15th, were given out at a special Chapel service called for the purpose. All came out beaming, for this time none failed to secure the coveted card. We offer no prizes in the ACADEMY, to be gained by one or two, while the remaining 148 have bitter heart-burnings; but these golden fours are within the reach of all, and are helping to build up character in all good and pure elements.

—On the annual Congregation Festival of the Salem Moravian church, November 11th, which is also a memorial day of the whole Moravian Unity throughout the world, all the pupils of the ACADEMY who were communicant members of any denomination were invited to the Lovefeast in the afternoon, and the Holy Communion in the evening. Between 40 and 50 accepted the invitation. Three of the girls connected themselves with the church, EMMA ROLLINS by baptism, and MARGUERITE DU FOUR and MINNIE FAGE by confirmation.

—The services of Thanksgiving day as usual consisted of a sermon in the morning and another at night, preceded by a liturgical service for the occasion. The decoration of fruits, vegetables, of corn, pumpkins, onions, kale, celery, cabbage, potatoes, beets, carrots, &c., was unique and handsome. The festoon of red peppers, cotton bolls, small onions, &c., brought together in odd juxtaposition, attracted considerable attention from the congregation. Some of our girls could not understand beforehand that a decoration could be made of such materials, and were surprised and pleased at the effective results.

—On Wednesday evening, November 27th, the night before Thanksgiving the Till family consisting of two young men, and their two sisters, gave an entertainment in the ACADEMY Chapel. Their performances on new and peculiar instruments called forth the applause of the audience. They performed on a Rock Harmonicon, consisting of 60 pieces of Hornblende rock, from 6 inches to 4 feet in length, with a compass of 5 octaves; they were arranged on a stand 12 feet long. The two gentlemen and one lady played on it at the same time, each having 2 or 3 small felt covered mallets with which they tapped the rock keys, arranged in two banks, the upper one containing the sharps and flats. A Fantasia of popular airs pleased even more than their imitation of Westminster and Trinity Chimes, especially when Dixie with all its stirring associations was rendered. "The Crystal Chimes" on a great variety of glasses, goblets of all sizes were played by means of the friction of the fingers on the rims of the glasses, and were very sweet. Such airs as "The Swanee River," "Ah! I have sighed to rest me," "Abide With Me," "Nearer My God to Thee," &c., were touchingly sweet. They also played upon "Fairy Bells," or Swinging Zithers, and gave a quartette with Ocarinas, instruments of clay, modelled after some recently exhumed in Pompeii.

—The moving into the New Annex Hall of the ACADEMY was despatched with neatness and celerity on Saturday morning, November 17. There was no school on Friday, the preceding day, in order to enable the little girls to gather up their numerous belongings. Besides, the Hall was thrown open from 2 o'clock to 5 P. M., to enable our friends from town to inspect the whole.

On Saturday morning, the little girls began to move before breakfast; for once they were up before the ringing of the rising bell; nothing short of a general removal, or of an earthquake would cause such results. All the men servants connected with the establishment were put to work, and in a short while, the task of moving the 8th and 9th rooms from the large ACADEMY to the Annex Hall was accomplished. Misses LULA TATE and CLAUDIA WINKLER are the teachers of the 8th room, and Misses CONSTANCE PFOHL and ELIZA CLARK of the 9th. When they had been moved, a general rearrangement of the dormitories in the large ACADEMY buildings was necessary; the girls were removed from their temporary accommodations in what was formerly known as Professor Wurreeschke's class room, on the 2nd floor, in Miss LEWIS's old room, and the small Library Annex, &c. At present, we occupy seven large dormitories, all alcoved, and presenting a bright and attractive appearance. It is under the blessing of God to the exceptionally complete ventilation and sewerage of our buildings that we owe our exemption from serious illnesses. No case of that justly dreaded scourge of childhood and youth, diphtheria, has ever been known among us, and we trust it will ever remain a stranger.

The first days that the girls occupied their new house, every thing was couleur de rose: indeed the rose tint seems to rest permanently on it. Occasionally they failed to hear a bell, such as the rising bell, but the summons to meals was promptly obeyed. The first room to the right of the entrance hall is occupied by the first Preparatory class, the opposite room is as cosy a teachers' room as we often see. The 9th room girls live in the room back of the class-room on the right, with an adjoining side-room very neatly fitted up in native wood with hard oil finish. On the opposite side of the hall is the 8th room similarly equipped. Between the 8th and the Teachers' room is a bright music room, indeed brightness is the distinctive state or appearance of the whole building. At the north end of the hall both up and down stairs are washing rooms, bath-rooms, &c. The whole second floor is alcoved. The subdued colored lights that fall in the hall through the colored glass windows aside and above the large entrance doors, are very soft and pretty.

—Mr. Ackland Boyle, of New York, gave an elocutionary rendition in the ACADEMY Chapel, on Friday night, December 7th, under the auspices of the young men of the Salem Literary Society. His selections were mostly humorous, being gaged by what he styled a humorometer.

—Thanksgiving week was a sort of gala week,—one entertainment succeeded the other, beginning with a lecture on Tuesday night, Nov. 27th, by Rev. W. H. Milburn, the "Blind Man Eloquent." This lecture on the life of Richard Brinsley Sheridan was a rare intellectual treat abounding in fine expressions, well chosen words, combining refined humor with rare purity of diction. The lecturer was engaged by Prof. Blair, the Principal of the Winston Graded School, to whose public spirit and kindness we are indebted for the pleasure. Rev. Mr. Milburn gave three lectures on three successive evenings, on Monday night in the Opera House, of Winston, he told the people "What a Blind Man Saw in Paris," and few people who have the full use of their eyes see as much as he described in that beautiful city. On Tuesday night he lectured in the ACADEMY Chapel on Sheridan, and on Wednesday night again in Winston on Aaron Burr.

Mr. Milburn known all over the English speaking world for his wealth of information and his eloquence, was born in Philadelphia in 1823. In early childhood he lost the sight of one eye totally, and of the other partially. He was determined however, to obtain a thorough education, and fit himself for usefulness in life; and his career shows the triumph of a strong will over apparently insuperable obstacles. "Time was," he said, "when I could read after a fashion, a letter at a time, always spelling, but never reading with that flashing glance which instantly transfers a line or sentence to the mind." Thus, for more than twenty years, was his reading done, with a shade on his brow, his finger beneath the eye, the beaded sweat, joining with hot tears trickling from the weak and painful eye. By great exertions, studying in leisure moments while employed as a clerk in a store in Illinois he fitted himself for college, and passed through the 4 years' course with honor, but at the cost of his health. At the age of twenty he entered the ministry of the Methodist E. Church, and in the course of 12 years itinerancy, he occupied fields in almost every part of the Union, every where impressing his hearers by the modesty and amiability of his manner, and his extraordinary eloquence.

In 1845 when 22 years old Mr. Milburn was chosen Chaplain of Congress, and again in 1853-55. In 1857 he visited Europe, delivering lectures, and preaching in the principal cities of Europe to delighted audiences. He was also successful as an author. A volume of his lectures published in 1857 under the title of "Rifle, Axe, and Saddle-bags," had a large sale. "Ten Years of Preacher Life," was issued in 1859, and "Pioneers and People" of the Mississippi Valley in 1860.

The Christmas numbers of periodicals are coming in; some of them are artistic gems, as the ST. NICHOLAS, with its exquisite engravings, HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, and HARPER'S MONTHLY. THE ART JOURNAL is an especially handsome number; it gives two studies in color, besides a variety of etchings, &c.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

--CARRIE BORUM was called home, December 5th, by her father's illness.

--Mr. Penn, of Danville, Va., MARY's father, took his Thanksgiving dinner with us.

--Mr. and Mrs. R. Daniels (MARY WILLIAMS, class of '85) have named their little daughter Margaret Louise.

--FRANK CREIGHT, whose visit home we chronicled in our last, has returned to her school-work again.

--We have received cards to Miss JENNIE WILLIAMSON's wedding, December 18. Our best wishes attend her.

--Mr. H. A. LEINBACH, the photographer, has removed his gallery from Salem to Broadway's former stand, in Winston.

--We have heard incidentally that Miss MARY (MECK) SPENCER, of Spencer, Va., was married, but do not know the particulars.

--Dr. H. T. BAHNSON, our attentive and popular physician, has returned from a visit to the great North-west, to Milwaukee, Wis., &c.

--Dr. N. S. SIEWERS and lady (ELLIE DE SCHWEINITZ) visited some of our Northern cities, returning just before Thanksgiving Day.

--Miss MATTIE GIBSON, of Marlboro, S. C., one of our late pupils, was married March 21, 1888, to Dr. W. J. Pate, of Richmond Co., N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. CHAS. SHORE (FANNIE OWENS) have our sympathy in the death of their baby boy, 14 months old, by diphtheria, early in November.

--Miss STELLA NISSEN has returned from her California tour, and we trust she will favor us with an account of her visit to that land of wonders.

--Miss KATE PADDISON, we are informed, is teaching near her home in Florida. She is near enough to spend her Saturdays and Sundays at home.

--Miss BLANCHE ARMFIELD visited her sister, LUCILLE, during Thanksgiving week, remaining several days as the guest of Miss CLARA NISSEN, of Salem.

--Miss GIST, of Yorkville, S. C., a cousin of Mrs. C. D. MACLEAN, arrived here November 22, to prosecute the study of Phonography or Shorthand and Typewriting.

--In an item in the September ACADEMY, a lady visitor formerly FANNIE BIGGS was mentioned as Mrs. Kalligan. Her name is Mrs. Kellinger, of Norfolk, Va., not Kalligan.

--Mr. and Mrs. Du FOUR, MARGUERITE's parents are spending some weeks in Salem, boarding at Mr. E. W. Linebach's. They arrived Dec. 5th and MARGUERITE is happy accordingly.

--CLAUDIA and LILIAN DICKS were called home by the death of their father, November 29. It was a sad Thanksgiving Day for the two sisters. Mr. R. P. Dicks was President of the Naomi Falls Manufacturing Company, at Randleman, N. C.

--Mr. and Mrs. Will. T. Brown, (REBECCA MARKS) returned from a pleasant visit to relatives in Shreveport, La., about Dec. 1st. Miss MAGGIE BROWN accompanied them: the whole party returned just in time to celebrate the Silver Wedding of their parents Mr. and Mrs. Brown, of Winston.

--The Moravian Synod that met in the middle of November, in the Salem church, elected three delegates to represent our Southern province in a General Synod to assemble in Herrnhut, Saxony, next Spring: they are Dr. Rondthaler, Rev. James E. Hall and Mr. James Leinbach. No doubt they will enjoy the European visit very much.

--We noted Misses DELLA HINE and ADA DODSON were employed in the great establishment of Messrs. Vaughn & Pepper, CARRIE RIGGS and MINNIE ECTOR at Rosenbacher Bros., FANNIE RIGGS at Mrs. Ada Masten's millinery establishment, MOLLIE and CARRIE WATRINS at Mrs. Stanton's, and MATTIE WINKLER at Messrs. Fries, Giersh & Senseman's.

--Among the new names sent in as applicants for membership in our Alumnae Association we are happy to record Mrs. J. Thom BETTIE KIMBALL, 1875, of China Grove, N. C.; Mrs. Dr. Bogle (MATTIE BOYD, 1867), Midland, Tenn.; Miss ROXIE ARMFIELD, Greensboro, N. C.; Mrs. J. F. McCleskey (SALLIE FOWLER, 1857), Belleville, Ark.; Miss SALLIE GIBSON, Rock Hill, S. C.; Miss MARY WELFARE, Salem, N. C.

--Judge Thomas Settle died in Greensboro, N. C., December 1st, of heart disease. Judge Settle was a United States District Judge in Florida, one of the most prominent politicians of his day, a thorough gentleman, esteemed wherever he was known. His wife was Miss MARY GLENN, one of the first ladies of the State. His sisters and various connections were Alumnae of the ACADEMY, and his daughter MARY, now Mrs. Sharp, a handsome intelligent young lady attended the ACADEMY for a time.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

— I feel like one
Who treads alone

Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!

1864.

- 4285 ELLA WATSON. — 1851.
Uncle, Woodson Lee, Pittsboro, N. C.
- 4286 ANN CLEGG. — 1845.
Elisha Clegg, 1845.
- 4287 KATE ELLA CLEGG. — 1851.
Brother, J. N. Clegg, Haywood, N. C.
- 4288 SARAH ELIZABETH INGRAM. — 1848.
Uncle, Thomas Stokes, Milledgeville, Montgomery County, N. C.
- 4289 RACHEL E. BANNER. — 1847.
4290 CORNELIA A. BANNER. — 1849.
Elisha Banner, Mt. Airy, N. C.
- 4291 NARCISSA E. FONVILLE. — 1853.
E. W. Fonvielle, Wolfpit, Onslow County, N. C.
- 4292 CARRIE E. SMITH. — 1846.
4293 MARY E. SMITH. — 1850.
Alva Smith, Fair Bluff, Columbus Co., N. C.
- 4294 MARY A. PEEBLES. — 1848.
Mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Peebles, Fulton, Davie County, N. C.
- 4295 MAGGIE MERCER. — 1852.
Dr. J. R. Mercer, Joyner's Depot, N. C.
- 4296 MARTHA BEST. — 1849.
Brother, H. H. Best, Snow Hill, N. C.
- 4297 BETTIE BRIGGS. — 1849.
Grandfather, W. U. B. Taylor, Snow Hill, N. C.
- 4298 ANNA HILZHEIM. — 1850.
H. Hilzheim, Jackson, Miss.
- 4299 MARY A. SPEAR. — 1849.
Wm. Spear, Stock Co., Va.
- 4300 LEAH H. PERRY. — 1852.
A. L. Petty, Louisburg, N. C.
- 4301 SALLIE P. LAW. — 1853.
W. T. Law, Clemmonsville, N. C.
- 4302 KATHIE SMITH. — 1850.
Col. T. T. Smith, Augusta, Ga.
- 4303 BELLE JANE McCLELLAN. — 1846.
George R. McClellan, Blountsville, Tenn.
- 4304 MARY A. TALLEY. — 1846.
Bro. in Law, Dr. J. B. Murfree, Emory, Ky.
- 4305 ISABELLA DE LACY CAVE. — 1848.
Wm. P. Cave, Orange C. H., Va.
- 4306 ANN L. McCLELLAND. — 1850.
T. Stanhope McClelland, Tye River Warehouse, Virginia.
- 4307 MARIA S. CARDWELL. — 1850.
Jos. L. Cardwell, Madison, N. C.
- 4308 JUDITH ANN GIBSON. — 1847.
James M. Gibson, Brightsville, N. C.
- 4309 MARTHA EASTERLING. — 1849.
Mother, Margaret Easterling, Bennettsville, S. C.
- 4310 EVA HAMMOND. — 1847.
4311 FANNIE HAMMOND. — 1852.
H. B. Hammond, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4312 LOUISA M. BOYD. — 1851.
D. A. Boyd, Bennettsville, S. C.
- 4313 FRANCINA DUPREE. — 1851.
4314 MARY LEWIS DUPREE. — 1852.
4315 LUCY GRATTON DUPREE. — 1854.
Lewis Dupree, Lexington, Ga.
- 4316 ALICE EMMANUEL. — 1850.
Col. E. R. Emmanuel, Brownsville, S. C.
- 4317 CHASSIE KING. — 1849.
Grandfather, Rev. Jas. King, Bristol, Tenn.
- 4318 ANNA FOSTER. — 1848.
Hon. Thomas J. Foster, Courtland, Ala.

1865.

- 4319 IDA WHARTON. — 1850.
Dr. Wharton, Clemmonsville, N. C.
- 4320 LOUISA WARD. — 1853.
Dr. E. W. Ward, Jacksonsville, S. C.
- 4321 KATE KING. — 1849.
Hill King, Golden Place, N. C.
- 4322 MOLLIE E. HANES. — 1849.
Lewis Hanes, Clemmonsville, N. C.
- 4323 MATTIE E. ECCLES. — 1849.
Harrison Eccles, Clemmonsville, N. C.
- 4324 AGUSTA MOSS. — 1850.
A. A. Moss, Clemmonsville, N. C.
- 4325 VIRGINIA C. BRANSON. — 1849.
G. M. Branson, Cold Spring, Carroll Co., Va.
- 4326 ALICE JANE HARDING. — 1850.
Wm. Harding, Huntsville, N. C.
- 4327 SARAH REBECCA HOLLAS. — 1851.
D. H. Holland, Leachburg, N. C.
- 4328 NANNIE HORNE. — 1850.
J. L. Horne, Joyner's Depot, N. C.
- 4329 ANNIE PITT. — 1851.
B. P. Pitt, Tarboro, N. C.
- 4330 HATTIE GRIFFIN. — 1852.
J. G. Griffin, Joyner's Depot, N. C.

Splinters.

—"Please go to the teachers' room and get the key to the ten-pins." "What! Can we play ten-pins on Thanksgiving Day?" "Why, yes, of course we can, goose; if it don't happen to come on a Sunday."

—"Was Alexander Selkirk a survivor?" "No; why do you ask?" "Because he was monarch of all he surveyed."

—"Does an organist let his left hand know what his right hand doeth?" "Sometimes."

First pupil: "What did you come here for, any way?"
Second pupil: "To get an education, of course."

—"Do give me a subject for Composition!" "Companion answers: "Write on a Rainy Day; then you can quote Tenmenny, you know, in 'The day is cold and dark and dreary.' " "Thank you! you have helped me so much!"

—"You seniors try to be so dignified, always speaking ironically."

—"I wish I could go to Florida, for I have never seen an orange or a lemon vine."

—"Those steps led to the confumary."

—"Miss A — is from Philadelphia," says a girl. "No, indeed, says her friend, "she is from Pennsylvania; she told me so."

—"I hope you will not think it assumption (presumption) on my part."

—"Teacher, on return from church: "Girls, who can tell me where Dr. R —'s text is to be found?" Bright girl answers: "Why, from Paul, 15th chapter, 25th verse."

Married.

IVEY—BYRD.—In Morristown, Tenn., Dec. 19, Mr. JOHN T. IVEY, of S. C., to Miss LUCY BYRD.

OVERMAN—WILLIAMSON.—In Asheville, N. C., Dec. 18, Mr. EDWIN OVERMAN, of Salisbury, N. C., to Miss JENKIE WALTERS WILLIAMSON.

FRIERSON—BEWLEY.—In the Baptist Church, Anderson, S. C., on December 19, Mr. W. H. FRIERSON to Miss NELLIE BEWLEY.

—FOUNDED 1802.—

Salem Female Academy.

SALEM, N. C.

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

—ADVANTAGES.

Healthy location, ample grounds, well-ranged Infirmary.

Careful discipline. Two teachers in charge of each Room Company. Commodious study parlors. Well-aired, warmed and lighted dormitories, with separate sleeping alcoves for each pupil, and convenient wash-rooms on the same floor.

A graded course of thorough Academic instruction. Classes never overcrowded. Twenty-four professors and teachers. Much attention to the wants of the individual scholar. Large library and reading room.

Unusually well-equipped Music, Art, Linguistic and Commercial Departments, under the most competent teachers.

Religious instruction, which is simple, careful and unsectarian. Has been trusted in by members of all Christian denominations for more than three-fourths of a century.

Charges, which are as low as the advantages offered by the Institution will permit.
Send for Catalogue.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY,
Salem, North Carolina.

CHRISTMAS NOVELTIES

— AT THE —

— SALEM BOOKSTORE —

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical $1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies.

Address: THE SCHOOLTEACHER,
WINSTON, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES, AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT," AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

MONEY

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere! Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLINARD & BROOKES. —

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

S. F. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY and HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., JANUARY, 1889.

NUMBER 92.

THE RIFLED TREASURES.

BY MISS ADDIE FRIES.

There was once a lovely country,
Where ruled a mighty king,
And the glory of his riches
Even the birds would sing.

His men he counted by thousands,
A stalwart band were they!
A portion of them were miners,
Shunning the light of day.

Deep, and still deeper they burrowed,
And forced the fruitful soil
To part with its choicest treasures,
To recompense their toil.

The skillful hands of their comrades
Received the precious store,
And wove the royal robes of green
By rules of fairy lore.

They spangled them o'er with diamonds,
And brilliantly they shone,
Reflecting a thousand colors
Made by the rising sun.

One morning a burly stranger
Passed by the Oak King's door,
And with eager longing glances,
He eyed the treasures o'er.

Then with a resistless power
He seized them,—and was gone.
Without a single word or thought,
For the ruin he had done.

Then arose those sturdy miners:
King Oak, we have agreed,
Till you recover those jewels
We're from our labor freed.

"All summer you wore them gladly;
Now you relaxed your care,
And the North Wind grasped them rudely,
And left you cold and bare."

Then the Oak King smiled right proudly,
"Though now beyond your ken,
When May brings with her the South Wind,
I'll have my gems again."

CHRISTMAS.

CHRISTMAS, as observed in the ACADEMY, has its own distinctive traits, unlike those of any other season. The Christmas joys live here in a peculiarly sweet and sacred atmosphere. The midsummer vacation is a general breaking up, largely commingled with the parting sorrow of friends who are about to separate, it may be for years, it may be forever. The Easter recess is short, and all its pleasures are Il Penseroso; the spirit of sad contemplation hroods over the days, but for the Christmas holidays there comes a joyousness, an expectancy, that is altogether charming and delightful. Then, too, the Christmas joy, in a large measure, is derived from the ennobling pursuit of the happiness of others; this raises the Christmas tide to its place as the reigning sovereign of festivals.

Since our Fall Term of school closes with the 15th of January we have no Christmas Concert in the Academy Chapel. School closed quietly on Friday, December 21st, and while a number of the pupils who live reasonably near went home for the holidays, the great body remained, enough to make the recess pass pleasantly and happily. The last days of school were remarkably busy times, so many little embroidered or crocheted articles to be finished up in order to be sent home, so many last touches to be given.

Then came the busy visits to the glittering shops, bright with everything that tempts girls; groups of girls gathered apart to consult about this or that gift to be purchased together for a mutual friend; the secrecy and planning, the sudden thrusting of certain articles out of sight as the prospective recipients chanced to come about, all tend to make a tout ensemble, bright and cheery at the time, and growing softer and more tender as the mellowing touch of memory rests upon it.

This year the room decorations were put up on Monday (Christmas Eve), and those who feared the shortness of the time would contract the usual display, were much surprised to see them more extensive and generally elaborate than usual. Every dwelling room was adorned more or less artistically with festoons, transparencies, inscriptions on the walls of mottoes in evergreen letters, pictures, gas-jets, &c., were emhowered in cedar or twined with the lighter and more graceful ivy. Every room had a tree, with its glittering fruits, save the Seniors; they never have a tree, but make up for it in more extensive and elaborate adornments. A long table, draped in white, is generally placed on one side of the room, upon which all the various presents of the girls are displayed in glittering profusion.

There is a generous rivalry as to what room company shall have the most handsomely decorated room. The arrangements of the younger girls are more like the scenic decorations of years ago, though we have not had one of those extensive displays of rocky crag, of waterfall, of streams of water, rustic bridges, caves, animals, birds and fishes of every variety, since 1885. They require more room than we can spare since we are so closely filled up. The pleasant, cheery scenes of Christmas morning, when the girls come down to their brightly-lighted room and examine their presents, are familiar to all who have ever dwelt under the ACADEMY roof.

The number of boxes sent from home was unusually large this year, yet with all indulgence the sick-rooms were well-nigh deserted. The Christmas mail is so heavy that three girls are necessary to bring it from Mr. CLEWELL'S office to the ACADEMY: this is a duty that no girl will willingly delegate to another.

The church services of this holy season are also closely intertwined with our ACADEMY life, and partake of the bright and joyous characteristics of the season. The music, the lovefeast, the lighted tapers, emblematic of the light which came into the world on that memorable night, 1888 years ago, all make a deep and lasting impression upon the youthful mind and heart. The appearance of the two galleries and of the church below on Christmas Eve, when each child and young person held a lighted taper in hand, was as beautiful a scene as we have ever beheld.

The church decorations were much like last year; small cedar trees filled each window; heavy festoons met in the centre of the ceiling; an exquisite transparency, painted in Europe, from Correggio's famous picture of the Nativity, was framed in glossy evergreens in the centre of a large Gothic arch in the middle of the pulpit recess. There were two smaller arches, one on each side of the principal arch, which were panelled off with brightly colored inscriptions. The letters "A" and "O" (Alpha and Omega) occupied the centre of a large shield with red ground, one on the right side of the pulpit arches, and the other on the left.

It is small wonder that in the many letters received from our Alumnae, the memories of Christmas spent in Salem occupy so prominent a place,—indeed, they grow brighter and more distinct as the years roll by.

A Visit to California.

BY MISS ESTELA NISSEN.

SINCE my earliest recollection it has been my great desire to visit my relatives in California, and it was with great delight that I found I could accompany my uncle on the long wished for visit.

Leaving Winston May 31st, we reached Washington City and spent two days in our national capital. June 2d we set out for St. Louis, Mo., by way of Cincinnati; crowds of people assembled at the stations we passed, to see the excursion trains: there were three following us in the course of fifteen minutes. We arrived at St. Louis on Sunday evening, but spent only a few hours here for, leaving my uncle, I went on about 200 miles to Johnson Co., Mo., to visit an aunt. He remained to attend the Democratic convention in St. Louis, and later, joined me at Knob Noster, where we also visited relatives.

Kansas City was the next place of interest, though we did not remain long, and hurried on to Denver to spend a few days. Denver is a very pretty place, with broad streets, and a stream of running water on one side. No streets are macadamized, not even where the street cars run, and they are never muddy, not even after a hard rain. Here we saw the first cow boy.

We took the Denver & Rio Grande, a narrow gauge road, across the Rocky Mountains. At first there was little of interest to be seen, except the snow-covered mountain peaks in the distance, but when a second engine was attached, and we began to climb the mountains, every window in the car was raised and every head put out to enjoy the beauties all around us. As we neared the Royal Gorge an observation car was attached, and it was scarcely fastened before it was filled with eager observers. The railroad followed the Arkansas River up the gorge, between two perpendicular walls of rock, over 2000 feet in height, with projecting spurs almost touching, so that you unconsciously dodge the rock; in some places the road bed is built over the river.

Salida is our next stopping place, but there is nothing of interest here, except a branch road that leads up to Leadville, and the grade of the road is 600 feet to the mile; one engine can only take up 2 empty box cars. We spent the night here in order to pass the Black Canon in the day, and early the next morning we finished the ascent of the mountain. On the summit the train stops under a long snow-shed, the passengers all get out and pick up every thing they can find as souvenirs. All aboard again, and we begin to descend, through plenty of snow, quite a novelty in June. The scenery in the Black Canon is quite different from the Royal Gorge, as it is continually changing from a solid rock wall to a water-fall, or another canon. Perhaps I enjoyed it more because it was my first ride in an observation car. We did not wear hats, only veils tied over the head, so that we could look up without any fear of having to go bareheaded to the next stopping place.

Salt Lake City is reached at length, and the Mormon objects of note all visited. The Temple and the Tabernacle are the first places of interest. The Tabernacle, with one exception, has the largest self-sustaining roof on this continent; the building seats 8,000 people; it is oblong in shape, 250 feet in length, 150 feet wide. Two persons standing in either end of the building can hear each other whisper, or can distinctly hear a pin fall. The Temple is a handsome building of white granite, and has been in process of erection 32 years: the Mormons intend to finish it in the year 1900.

We visited the tomb of Brigham Young, on a high hill on one side of the city; he has a granite tomb with a granite slab weighing 9 tons placed over it. Three of his wives and two children are buried in the same lot; he has 19 wives and 64 children now living in Salt Lake City. Most of the buildings belonging to the Mormons are in two blocks, surrounded by a concrete wall, 5 feet thick and 8 feet high, with sliding gateways and doors. The streets of the city are handsome; they are 132 feet wide, with a stream of clear water on either side of every street, which is bordered also by large shade trees.

Leaving Salt Lake City we make but a few short stops until we reach Madison, Cal., a little town where we spent most of the summer. Fruit was just ripe when we got there and we enjoyed the choice varieties more than we can well express. The apricots were new to us; they are much better than peaches. Figs were fine, the trees growing larger than our apple trees. The grapes lasted all summer; they were plentiful when we left the last of October, and watermelons were as plentiful then yet as they are here in August. I spent a month in the mountains, and the climate was delightful after being in the valley where the thermometer registered 117° in the shade, to be comfortable in thick garments. In order to get to the mountains I had to leave the train at Red Bluff, and go by private conveyance 80 miles. I visited near a small town named Hay Fork, and there was not a church nor a doctor within 27 miles. Some church should establish a mission here. While in the mountains I visited a large Natural Bridge, and a cave that has been explored a mile; I also saw the mining for gold, deer hunting, &c. We had venison nearly all the time, though none that I killed. The woods are full of panthers, deer, wild-cats, coyotes, wolves and rattle-snakes.

I went to Sacramento, to the State Fair, but cannot say that it is a very attractive place. The capitol is a poor building for such a wealthy State, but the grounds surrounding it are very handsome. The trip from Sacramento to San Francisco was quite interesting. At Benicia the cars were run on a large boat and ferried over to Port Costa: it took 20 minutes to cross. Our next stop is at Oakland, where we leave the cars and take the ferry boat for San Francisco. Here we visited the Woodward Gardens, the Golden Gate Park, Cliff House, Sutro Heights. We rode through the Chinese quarter of the city. It is not safe to walk through, unless attended by a policeman. San Francisco is a lovely place to live in; the climate is always pleasant, and any kind of fruit you may want can be found there the whole year round.

On the 30th of October I left my uncle in California and started home, stopping a few days in Missouri, and finally reached home November 9th. I did not see a familiar face from the time I left Missouri until I reached Asheville, N. C., where I met Mr. C. A. Hege, of Salem, and had company the rest of the way home.

Complaint of a Blackboard.

BY MISS MARY FITZPATRICK.

NO doubt you will say, "What in the world can a black-board have to complain of?" Fastened up against the wall as it is from the beginning to the end of the session, with no work to do, no function to perform, no ideas to originate, only to reflect the written ideas of others, surely it can have no grievances, but I have some things to complain of, nevertheless.

In the first place, I am not a board at all in these modern times, but a slab of slate. If you have curiosity enough to explore our basement you may find something like a blackboard, but it is a relic of the past, and only brought into service in an emergency, like the old Roman dictators who were remanded to obscurity when the emergency was safely tided over.

The older pupils may have a faint recollection, too, that some years ago, all the dwelling rooms, then also used for class-rooms, had a broad black band about two and a half feet wide, running quite around the room, above the wainscotting, and made of some silicious composition substance plastered on the wall. They did not remain in favor long, for they wore out quickly, besides giving the rooms a gloomy appearance:

Other expedients have been tried, but no substance is equal to the broad slabs of slate now used in every part of our establishment. I was formed, grain by grain, in the massy rock layers of the everlasting hills, as age after age rolled away, in the metamorphic rocks of the Silurian period. My principal constituents were silix and alumina, with some oxide and sulphate of iron, potash, magnesia, water and a little carbon. I was first found in Wales, though some of my twin-brothers from the hills of Pennsylvania and New England are just as good as I am. I was quarried by blasting out great masses, and then splitting off a single slab by means of gads and large wedges.

After various manipulations in dressing and polishing I found myself a slab, 12 feet by 3, with a finely-grained, blue-black, polished surface, ready to be put up in the Senior Class room of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. The carpenter put me in a frame and fastened me securely to the wall. Now, thought I, my good times have come, and I will have only nice and happy experiences.

Alas! for vain hopes! no sooner was the smooth, satiny surface ready for use, than an irresistible inclination to abuse me manifested itself in some girls. Some geometry pupils came to draw their figures, and for a time I enjoyed their chatter mixed as it was with demonstration of lines and angles, until I felt my importance and began to consider myself as filling a useful place in the little school world. Next came a noisy, quarrelsome group, evidently roaming around to see what they might deface or spoil. One goes to the slate and writes, in mispelled words, "I love Mary C——;" another, just to annoy her, writes under it, "I hate Mary C——." Now, you may imagine the feelings of a respectable black-board with such contradictions on her very face, and she not able to protest or show displeasure in any way. Occasionally an analysis of a chapter in Physiology would fill me up from end to end; or an outline sketch of a composition was placed upon me, but I never receive very affectionate glances under such circumstances. From my varied experiences, thus far, I begin to recognize the full force of the saying, "They also serve who stand and wait."

Fayetteville.

BY MISS HATTIE SUTTON.

THIS old town, whose very name is suggestive of history, is situated at the head of navigation on the Cape Fear river. It takes its name from that noble General La Fayette who came over from France at the risk of his life to help the 13 original colonies of America in their struggle against the mother country. He paid a visit to this place since the Revolutionary War, and there are some old ladies still living who display the dresses, slippers, &c., with much pleasure and pride, in which they "tripped the light fantastic toe" with him on that great occasion.

Nature has been wonderfully kind to this town in many respects: besides being situated on the banks of the Cape Fear, through which she has communication with the outside world, there are two creeks which flow through the midst of the town, thereby affording sufficient water-power to justify the erection of factories, mills, &c., upon their banks. For this reason it was impossible for the streets to be laid out straight, but they wind in and out, and are crossed many times by bridges which add to the attractive and picturesque appearance of the town. It can truly be termed "a city of bridges." These creeks meet at one place, and strange to say their waters do not mingle in a friendly manner, but each one keeps on its own course, and so forms a perfect cross, from which coincidence the township in which Fayetteville is situated gets its name, and the place itself was originally termed Cross Creek.

This strange freak of nature was interfered with by the erection of a factory near the crossing point, and the waters were backed up to make a pond. It is a great pity that this remarkable crossing was spoiled.

On the bank of one of these creeks is the site of the home of Flora McDonald, whose name will ever be linked with that of the unfortunate Prince Charles Edward, the Pretender. Sir Walter Scott immortalized her in his great romance of "Waverley." There is nothing left of the house but some crumbling brick of the chimney and a part of an old cellar. The faithfulness and devotion of this brave and loyal woman will ever be remembered. Faithful to her king in Scotland she was a staunch tory in North Carolina during the Revolutionary War. Her husband was killed in the battle of Moore's Creek, and, bereft of all, her heart yearned for the heathery braes of Scotland: she returned to her native land and died there March 4, 1790.

A United States arsenal was in Fayetteville, but was burned, together with nearly all her important buildings and factories, by Gen. Sherman, in 1865.

The old town has, like Rip Van Winkle, been asleep as regards the outside world, but she is awaking, and trying to catch up with other progressive places in modern improvements. Electric lights blaze in all their brightness. In the last 4 years two railroads have been built, and a third is nearing completion. We sincerely trust ere long to see Fayetteville one of the important places of the south.

—The Cedar Avenue was lovely during the holidays: the deep blue sky overhead, dark evergreen trees with pyramidal forms, the emerald softness of the thick grass, bordering the white gravelled walk, all combined to make a charming picture.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., JANUARY, 1889.

*Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.*

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers
constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence

MISS EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

ONCE again has the old year passed away and happy New Year greetings tremble on every lip and sparkle in every eye. Yet with all our cheery words, the beginning of a new scene of time brings with it earnest, serious thought. What hast thou in store for us, O Year, just born and christened? Bright be thy sunshine and sweet be the fall of thy dews! Cheerful and happy be thy days and peaceful thy nights! and as the Seasons rise from the fulness of the year and walk before us, may they pour rich treasures into our waiting hearts and hands. Thou art God's gift to us, O Year, and thou wilt be to each one of us just what our hearts and lives shall make it.

NATURE never did more in honor of the Christmas and New Year season than she did this year. The weather was mild, yet bright and bracing: we had winter days shot to the very core with mellow sunshine. It was June and November welded and fused into a perfect glory, as if the sunshine and the snow were prisoned beneath the deep-blue, cloudless skies. We caught the flavor of ripened nuts, the fragrance of strawberries, the exquisite odor of violets, the aroma of all seasons blend into a perfect whole. The sunshine was like a benediction of God, dropping from the sky,—his smile in its light and permeating the whole through and through with supernal beauty, a stillness appealing to every heart, and breathing "Peace on on Earth, Good Will to Men!"

WE desire to bespeak particular attention for the following article entitled "What think you of it?" by A Friend. It goes directly to the point of a need that we have long felt, that of continual accessions to our ACADEMY Library, and we trust it will awaken a responsive interest in this important subject. What gives it additional value is the fact that the article was written by a leading business man, who has himself given practical evidence of his interest in the Library by donating valuable works at different times.

What Think You of It?

Not long since it was my pleasure to go over the ACADEMY buildings and grounds with a friend who, in years gone by, had relatives and friends educated within this institution. After we had about completed our visit and were admiring the beauties of the pleasure grounds, he said: "I am most agreeably surprised in this institution,—it surpasses my expectation and I feel that it is an honor to our entire State."

Those of us who are more closely associated with the ACADEMY can best see wherein there is room for additional improvement and increased usefulness. At the present time it is not an unusual thing to see in our papers that one or another of our colleges has had a handsome endowment;—such an announcement concerning the ACADEMY would fill many hearts with joy, but my suggestions are of a more modest nature.

The fact that the young ladies of the school are supplied with many weekly and monthly papers naturally suggests more careful reading and study concerning those lines of thought in which each pupil finds peculiar pleasure: when we consider to what extent any one line of thought, whether literary or scientific, can be followed, and examine the ACADEMY Library we find that it needs many additions. It is true that many books have been bought, but it is also true that many more are needed, and I therefore offer the suggestion that friends of the institution, in Salem or elsewhere, see to what extent they can make additions to this Library.

I know from personal experience that often times one has books that after one reading are placed in the home library and left, may be for years. If it is a good book why not donate it to the ACADEMY Library and let the teachers and scholars enjoy it.

It often happens that one purchases a book for some special study, and if the subject in hand is once mastered, the book is placed aside: why not donate such a book to the ACADEMY, where several hundred would annually have access to it? Again, there are many works of interest published by our U. S. Government, some of them of peculiar scientific value to an institution, of no particular use to the individual: could not some of these be secured and donated to this library?

And, lastly, we all have acquaintances who would, no doubt, be willing to aid in increasing the usefulness of their Alma Mater, and friends who are willing to donate smaller or larger amounts when they know the funds are properly used. I would therefore suggest to the readers of the ACADEMY, and to the editor of the same, the propriety of starting a Library Fund, noting from one issue to another the amounts contributed in books, periodicals or cash. Can't we make a beginning? Who will think the suggestion worthy of adoption?

A FRIEND.

Correspondence.

—Our first communication for January is from an esteemed Alumna, SALLIE NORMAN now Mrs. Williams, of Vance Co., N. C.

"My little daughter MATTIE WILLIAMS has been a pupil in the ACADEMY since the opening of the term. In 1858, just her age, in company with my cousin LENORA FLEMING we were entered, remaining till 1860. I entered the tenth room then in charge of dear Misses HEISLER and SCHALL; I was transferred from time to time until I reached the seventh room.

I saw a copy of THE ACADEMY;—the Correspondence columns as well as MATTIE'S letters reveal many reminiscences of the past. Dear old Salem occupies a pleasant place in my memory.

Where is Rev. ROBERT DE SCHWEINITZ, Misses CARRIE and BESSIE SIEWERS, ZEVELY and VOGLER? Mother PECK the dear old soul administered to our whims and necessities in the sick room;—she nursed me through a long spell of measles,—believed more in teas and toast than in too much medicine. I would be glad to correspond with any of my teachers if they still reside in the place. It would be pleasant indeed to revisit Salem, which I hope to do at some future time.

My little ones have often gathered around, to hear me rehearse my school-girl days,—Mr. Meller who brought us cakes every Saturday, Miss Katie and Miss Hannah in the Sisters' House with their fruits and toys, all served to break the monotony of school-days, and Mr. GRUNERT who kept prayers for us every morning except Monday, and prayed for our protection from all harm,—where is he?

Please excuse me for thus trespassing woman-like, but "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

Hoping to hear at your leisure, I remain
Respectfully,

SALLIE NORMAN WILLIAMS.

Steedsville, Vance Co., N. C.

—The following is an extract from a letter written by Mrs. C. W. KELLINGER, of Norfolk, Va., formerly FANNIE BIGGS. She visited Salem, the summer of '87, accompanied by her husband and son, a fine boy of about 10 years old.

"I was delighted with my visit to the old school. A number of changes have been made since I was there, before so many things were added for the comfort of the pupils. Some of the teachers and pupils of my schooldays met me kindly, and went back in imagination over the days of "Lang Sync" when we were school girls at the dear old ACADEMY. But I missed so many, Alas! nearly all had gone, "some to the bridal, and some to the tomb."

I have only kind remembrances of the happy days within those old brick walls. I am glad to see in THE ACADEMY, that the grand old school is in such a good condition. Long may it be a power in the land.

Yours very truly,

MRS. C. W. KELLINGER,
(FANNIE BIGGS.)

Norfolk, Va.

—From ROXIE ARMFIELD we have only a short letter. A longer one would be very acceptable:

"I enclose Postal Note to renew my subscription to THE ACADEMY for one year. I should also like to become a member of the Alumnae Association.

Yours sincerely,

ROXIE ARMFIELD.

Greensboro, N. C.

—MARY V. SMITH, one of our late graduates writes as follows:

"Enclosed find fifty cents to renew my subscription for THE ACADEMY. I have anxiously awaited its arrival, and as it has not come, I think my subscription must be out.

I taught a two months' school this summer and found teaching very pleasant work. I often thought of you in our Trigonometry class, as I taught Mathematics. HOLLIE, my sister, was married to Mr. James R. Johnston, of Pitt County, on the 20th of October. LIZZIE HICKS was one of the attendants at the marriage: she spent the following week with me. I visited her during the State Fair: there I met FANNIE HOLT, and our dear little ANNIE HILL as we called her. I cannot tell you how happy I was to meet them. I felt as if we were back at school. I suppose ELIZA CLARR is back in the ACADEMY teaching. I should like so much to see her assuming the duties and the dignity of a teacher. I know she will be successful as a teacher. I feel as if I too ought to be at some beneficial work.

Please send me an October number of THE ACADEMY. Give my love to Dr. R. and the teachers.

Yours, &c.,

MARY V. SMITH.

Covville, N. C.

—Miss M. A. RUEDEMAN who lived in Rev. R. DE SCHWFINITZ'S family so long, in Salem, and was well known in every part of the school, writes us a kindly note in connection with the renewal of subscription to THE ACADEMY.

"Enclosed please find 50 cents in stamps (as I could not conveniently send it any other way) to renew a subscription to THE ACADEMY to be sent to Miss Emma Maul, Kewanee, Henry County, Ill., again. I take it for granted that you kindly sent the last number to her address, though I had not made the request, for which remissness please excuse me, as I was so very busy.

Hope yourself and family are well, as also those under your charge. I am happy to hear the school continues in so prosperous a condition,—I always take great interest in it, having been connected with it in former years. Please remember me kindly to Mrs. CLEWELL. With best wishes for continued health and prosperity, I am

Yours truly,

M. A. RUEDEMAN.

Bethlehem, Pa.

—Our next from Miss WILLIE MILLER, late of Rock Hill, S. C., gives us great pleasure, in view of the energy and success that characterize all her occupations.

"It may be of interest to you and my other friends at the ACADEMY to know that I have accepted a position to teach Short-hand and Type-writing at Peace Institute beginning the first of January. It seems that all the schools are waking up to the importance of establishing this, and other commercial branches in their course. Greensboro College, I believe, introduced it this Fall. Salem should be very proud of originating this movement in the State and so successfully carrying it out too.

I have been very fortunate in obtaining employment since first starting out in this capacity. I was most delightfully situated at the Democratic Headquarters in Raleigh, but that was necessarily temporary. While there, I had several other offers, one from a new Mercantile Agency in Wilmington.

After the Presidential election, I accepted the position I now hold, in this first National Bank, which only lasts till January first. It is the bank that failed last Spring, and the business is being wound up, so that is why my work will not last longer. But this engagement just fits in with that at Peace Institute so that I am particularly fortunate, in not having any interval between my work.

I hope you all have had a successful school-term. I hear many high compliments about the ACADEMY from all directions, and I never fail to endorse them heartily. I shall always regard my time spent there both profitable and pleasant.

I think of you all very often, and it would give me great pleasure to peep in at you all, and revisit all the spots to which such pleasant memories cling. I hope some day to do so.

Give my kindest regards to all my friends, with love for yourself, and wishes for a bright and happy Christmas and New Year, I remain

Yours affectionately,

WILLIE R. MILLER.

Raleigh, N. C.

—The letters of our Alumnae speak for themselves;—they need no preface, but such communications like the preceding, and the following, noble records of successful work, give us a pure pleasure, such as few things on earth afford. Mrs. Siler, better known as MAGGIE McDOWELL of '78, is a pupil whose memory will ever be cherished in her Alma Mater.

"I have just finished the September and October numbers of THE ACADEMY, and my head and heart are so filled with Salem memories and Salem loves that I must give them vent. I do not know when my subscription to THE ACADEMY expired; indeed my life for the last six years has been such a busy one that I seem to know very little of what occurred during that time. I do know surely, that I love the ACADEMY, I love her every interest, her faculty, her pupils; I love every one that loves her and count it my goodliest heritage to have had her training.

Six years ago I went to Raleigh and taught there 2 years in the Graded School, then back to Weaverville 2 years, and lecturing in the Normal Schools of Asheville and Boone in vacation. While in Asheville, I took a special course in Kindergarten from Miss Coe, of New York, and took music lessons all the while, hoping that some time I might be worthy of a position at Salem, and endeavoring at all times and in every place to reflect honor on my Alma Mater.

I taught last year in Sullins College, Bristol, Tenn., where little LIZZIE BURSON was one of my pupils. In Bristol I heard BESSIE BROWN MILLIGAN sing, and was so proud of her because she was a Salem girl. For 8 years, I wrestled against giving up my chosen work, teaching, but last Christmas, Mr. Siler, with whom I had grown up, got me to agree to accompany him as a missionary to China. His health failed during the summer however, and for a year at least, we will be at this place.

We are now boarding, but will go to house-keeping, and then we want you, and all the rest of the faculty, everybody that has been to Salem, to come and see how they will be entertained by a Salem girl.

Dr. Miller, of Charlotte, officiated at our wedding, and it would have done your heart good to see the little girls, my former pupils, in their school dresses marching up in the aisle of the Chapel, scattering flowers. MINNIE FAGG'S father gave us a reception.

Please give my love to Misses LOU and SALLIE SHAFFNER, Miss CHITTY, Dr. RONDTHALER, Prof. WURRESCHE, ANNIE PITTMAN and my little cousin, MINNIE FAGG. Accept the gratitude, honor and love of MAGGIE of '78.

MRS. M. D. SILER.

Murphy, N. C.

—This year 16 girls remained in the two Senior rooms for the holidays;—last year there were 6.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—The Seniors presented Miss LEHMAN with a handsome rattan easy chair.

—Thanks to Misses ALICE and KATE OLLINGER for box of pecans, the finest we have ever seen.

—Miss LULA TATE spent Christmas at her home in Graham, N. C., accompanied by Miss ELIZA CLARK as her guest.

—The public square in front of the ACADEMY has been ploughed up, — present unsightliness for spring verdure and beauty.

—Miss LIZZIE LEINBACH went to her parents in Bethania for a short visit after the regular Christmas festivities were over here.

—Miss GERTRUDE JENKINS has returned from her studies in New York; she reported Dr. RONDTHALER's sermon on Christmas Day for the PRESS.

—LIZZIE KIME and LIZZIE NEWTON deserve credit for promptness in returning at the close of the holidays: they were here at breakfast on the morning of January 1st.

—The ACADEMY girls got up little driving parties during the holidays, chartering the omnibus, at different times, for drives of an hour or two in the suburbs of Winston, Salem and beyond.

—Prof. MARKGRAFF left here December 11th for Corsicana, Tex. He returned with his bride Jan. 1st, and they are now occupying rooms at Mr. William Shultz's, in the upper end of town.

The Senior Class of '89 have chosen as their motto, "VESTIGIA NULLA RETROSUM." The evergreen letters of the motto showed quite prettily on the wall of the room among the other Christmas decorations.

—The meetings of the Week of Prayer were unusually well attended. The beautiful weather and bright moonlight brought large numbers from night to night. It is generally a season of snow or sleet.

—New arrival in December not chronicled was Miss MARY McKEOWN, of Brooksville, Fla. In January, '89, Misses CARRIE THOMAS, of Jefferson, N. C., CARRIE WRAY, of Shelby, N. C., and K. MILLER, of Rutherfordton, N. C.

—We hear incidentally that Rev. C. Smythe, wife and two little boys will leave the West Indies in April, and spend some time with relatives and friends before settling down again. Mrs. Smythe is probably better known to our Alumnae as Miss LOUIE GRUNERT. We shall be very happy to see her once more.

—We of the ACADEMY had our usual oyster supper between the two meetings on New Year's Eve. Dr. RONDTHALER and family and Prof. WURRESCHKE were at Mr. CLEWELL's table. The dining room presented a bright and animated scene.

—On the night of January 4th Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL gave a reception to Professor MARKGRAFF and his bride. The Orchestra gave us some excellent music and, though the weather was unfavorable, all within was merry as a marriage bell.

—Our Christmas dinner passed off as usual;—the dining-room was, however, darkened, and we enjoyed our turkey, cranberries, &c., by the light of gas and of wax tapers ranged along the windows, which gave a sort of medieval cast to the very enjoyable exercises.

—We were glad to meet Miss IDA MOORE recently. About December 19 she called in to see us, as she was visiting her mother several days. She went on to Hampden-Sidney to stay some time with her brother, Dr. W. W. Moore, spending the night with THEO. FITZGERALD, of Danville, Va., in passing.

—On the morning of second Christmas day the fire-alarm was given and smoke was seen rising from beyond the cemetery. We were sorry to learn that it was the dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Starbuck (MOLLIE BUTNER). They are a young couple just beginning life, and they have the sympathy of all in their loss. A defective flue caused the mischief.

—Several special students have recently entered the ACADEMY for instruction in Music and Phonography or Short-hand, viz: Misses KATE MILLER, of Rutherfordton, N. C., and LILY CLARK, of Little Rock, S. C., who was here last year till the close of the spring term. The desire to learn short-hand appears to be spreading. Our latest arrival among the regular pupils is Miss LUCY OUTLAW.

—The Home Sunday School, under the superintendence of Mr. F. H. Fries, gave their annual entertainment on the evening of Christmas Day. The Cantata was entitled "The Magi at the Manger." The dialogue was largely made up from the story of Ben Hur, by Gen. Lew Wallace. The recitations were well rendered, especially those of Balthasar the Egyptian, Melchoir the Hindoo, and Gaspar the Greek, the three representing Europe, Asia and Africa, the Gentile world come to worship at Mes-siah's manger. The music is always good on such occasions.

—School closed with us on Friday, Dec. 21st. A number of the girls who lived near enough went home to spend the short Christmas interval. Those who remained enjoyed themselves as usual, and will, no doubt, often look back in after years to the Christmas spent in Salem as a choice and pleasing memory. There was, of course, no concert at Christmas because the term closes with the 15th of January. The mid-winter concert is then given.

—We are pleased to see other Southern schools following the example of the ACADEMY in teaching commercial branches. Miss WILLIE MILLER, one of our earlier short-hand pupils, has accepted a position as teacher of this popular and important branch at Peace Institute, Raleigh. It is one of the most hopeful signs of progress in our section to see one school after another waking up to the importance of a practical business training for women, to fit them for the many avenues of honorable and remunerative employment which our age opens.

Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL gave a reception on Tuesday night, Jan. 1st, to the pupils and teachers of the ACADEMY. The long suite of rooms thrown open to the guests gave ample space without any of the crowding which often mars the enjoyment of social gatherings. Games, puzzles of various kinds, music and conversation caused the winged hours to fly all too swiftly. An elegant collation made the occasion doubly enjoyable, and all returned feeling that they had begun the New Year socially and happily.

—We copy the following from the Shelby Aurora:

"Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wray, on Christmas night, gave an elegant tea-drinking complimentary to their son, Master John Wray, who is at home from Wake Forest College, and their daughter, Miss Fannie F. Wray, who is home from Salem Female College. After a supper befitting the festive season and the well known reputation for hospitality of the host and hostess, the young people were gathered in the parlor, where a delightful evening was spent with games and other entertainments. The party was indebted to Mr. John Schenck and Mrs. Belle Walker for a rare musical treat. At a late hour the young people bowed themselves out from an evening pronounced by all present to have been the pleasantest of the season."

—The church services of New Year's Eve consisted, as is customary with us, of a meeting at 8 o'clock, P. M., in which the Memorabilia of the year is read to the assembled congregation; it is a sketch of the general events of the year in the world at large and, more especially, of our own immediate interests, as culled from the church diary. The second meeting begins at 11½ o'clock, and is made up of exhortation, singing, prayer, &c.; the minister is interrupted by the striking of the midnight hour, while the church band, with the first stroke of the clock, chimes in with one of our solemn chorales,

"Now let us praise the Lord,
With body, soul and spirit."

The congregation rising, simultaneously joins with the hymn of praise to God, thus appropriately spending the last moments of the old year and the first of the new in devout exercises of praise and prayer. On New Year's Day, Jan. 1st, the usual New Year's sermon was preached by Dr. RONDTHALER.

—Our ACADEMY Library has recently been restored to something of its former appearance before we were so pressed for space to use this noble apartment as classroom or dormitory. It occupies the southern half of the old Academy building, second floor, and includes the second and third rooms of 35 years ago. The Annex of the Library is also again thrown open to us, and presents a cozy and inviting nook for private study. The large Reference closet with its wealth of Cyclopedias and other reference works, has been placed therein, as well as closets Nos. 7 and 8.

An elegant atlas, "William Bradley's Atlas of the World" has been fastened on a stand, and is ready to be interviewed and consulted as often as we wish. It contains the most exhaustive and exquisitely finished maps of the whole world that we have yet seen. With such an Atlas and Redpath's History of the World, also recently added, a student might acquire a fund of information even if no other sources of knowledge were at hand.

Our Library has an excellent collection of standard works, but it needs additions, and, like Oliver Twist, the cry is still for "more" intellectual food.

—ANNE SWANN was compelled to return home, Jan. 8th, but we hope it is only a temporary interruption to her studies, as she is anxious to complete her last year, and it would be a great disappointment to forego it.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Mrs. Irby, LIDIE's mother, visited her during the holidays.

—Prof. Emil A. De Schweinitz was in Salem during Christmas.

—Misses LAH DUNLAP and SALLIE HUNNICUTT spent Christmas in Danville, Va., with friends.

—Miss DAISY MURPHY has a class of music pupils at her home. We know she enjoys the work.

—Mrs. Martha Martin Douglas, wife of Stephen A. Douglas, was a cousin to the late Judge Settle.

—We were sorry to hear that Mrs. Mattie Cannon's mother died of typhoid fever, on December 9th.

—Mr. Henry Keehn and his bride (MATTIE WALSTON) were in church on Christmas day. A bride is always the observed of all observers.

—NANNIE ALEXANDER, is now Mrs. Edward Reed, of Matthews' Station, 9 or 10 miles below Charlotte; she has a fine little girl seven months old.

—Mrs. Evans, Miss KATHERINE EVAN's mother, from Rochester, New York, came Dec. 28th, to visit her daughter, the vocal teacher of the ACADEMY.

—The little meddler Eros or Cupid, has been busy among our Alumnae recently. Four were married Dec. 18th and 19th, and another on Jan. 1st. Our best wishes attend them all.

—Miss SARAH DAVIDSON, of Charlotte, N. C., is one of our oldest living Alumnae, having been a pupil here about 1812 to 1814. She has been blind for some time and is very feeble.

—We acknowledge with pleasure the reception of a notification of the wedding of Mr. Harvey Giersh, of Salem, to Miss Fannie Burwell, of Goldsboro, N. C., Dec. 27th. The bride and groom appeared in church here, on Sunday, Dec. 30th.

—Prof. Alonzo Tripp is again in the Southern lecture field; he was at St. Mary's, Raleigh, recently. In the last year of Rev. M. E. GRUNERT's administration he visited us in the ACADEMY, and gave a series of Descriptive Lectures on the great Epochs of French history.

—We see from the Atlanta Constitution that invitations are out for the wedding of Mr. J. Edgar Hunnicutt, of Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Olivia Greenleaf, of New Orleans, La., on the 16th of January. Mr. Hunnicutt has long been a leading young man in Atlanta business and society circles, and Miss Greenleaf is one of the belles and beauties of New Orleans. The attendants and friends who go with Mr. Hunnicutt are Mrs. A. P. Stewart, Misses Pink and Eddie Hunnicutt, Annie Adair and Maud Jones, Messrs. Will Drake, Frank Block, W. H. Inman, Jr., Charles R. Winship and Harry Snook.

—From the Dallas News we also quote: "Married at the residence of the bride's mother, in Corsicana, Texas, on the evening of Dec. 18th, PROFESSOR GEORGE MARKGRAFF, musical director of the Female Academy, Salem, N. C., to Miss BEATRICE WINKLER, daughter of the late Judge C. M. Winkler, of the Texas Court of Appeals. No cards. The happy couple will remain with their friends in Corsicana till after January 1st, when they will leave for Salem, N. C. Among the bridal presents were a handsome silver pitcher, goblets and waiter, from Judges White and Hurt, and E. P. Smith, clerk of the Texas Court of Appeals, which were appreciated as a testimonial of their friendship and kind wishes for future happiness."

—We quote from a South Carolina paper a few items concerning SUE WATSON's marriage of some time ago. "Mr. U. E. Seybt and Miss SUE WATSON were united in marriage at the residence of the bride's parents, near Anderson, S. C., Rev. A. Marshall officiating. Only a few friends and relatives were present, and the occasion though quiet was a most pleasant one. The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents. Shortly after the ceremony the bride and groom left for a trip to Richmond, Baltimore, Washington and other places, carrying with them the best wishes of their many friends." Mr. Seybt is one of Anderson's most worthy and excellent young men, while his bride is a young lady of many beautiful traits of character, and is highly esteemed by her acquaintances."

—We sympathize deeply with Miss SALLIE VOGLER, a teacher in the ACADEMY of a year or two ago, in the great bereavement which has fallen upon her in the unexpected death of her mother Mrs. S. D. Vogler, widow of the late Rev. Miles Vogler, a former missionary of our church. Mrs. Vogler herself had been a teacher in the ACADEMY, as Miss RUEDE, at different periods of her life, from 1827 to 1832, from 1834 to 1839, and in later years a short time again during her widowhood. She lived with her husband as a missionary in the West Indies, and in the Indian Territory. The last years of her life were spent in quiet retirement in the Widows' House of this place. Though the feebleness of increasing age was coming upon her, the news of her sudden illness and death in less than a week's time was a shock to all.

—We are very sorry to record the death of Mrs. Almira Kapp (Schaub) near Bethania, N. C. In the very prime of life, with a devoted husband, a little son, Ernest, about five or six years of age, with all that makes life rich and valuable, she was called away into Eternity. Some months ago, threatened with a cancerous affection she was apparently saved by a successful operation; only a few short weeks ago, Bronchitis and general debility set in, which soon brought her to the confines of the tomb, and on the last morning of the old year 1888, she breathed her last. Verily, the ways of Providence are deeply hidden, but of this we may be assured that He never willingly af-licts or grieves the children of men, and what now seems dark and inscrutable, in the clearer light of Eternity will be found only wise, faithful and loving.

—How strangely life and death, happiness and sorrow, supplement each other even in the columns of THE ACADEMY. The same mail which brought a letter overflowing with the happiness of a bride, brought one from Mrs. Oertel, of Nashville, Tenn., informing us of the death of her daughter LENA. She says: "I mailed you a paper which has probably before this reached you, announcing the departure of our darling child to a brighter world, on Monday, Jan. 7th. She kept her consciousness to the very last, and received the Holy Communion from the hands of our beloved Bishop not an hour before her death. She was laid to rest in the beautiful Mt. Olivet cemetery on Wednesday morning." Thus one by one we are gathered in for the heavenly harvest home! May we too live lives of earnest consecration to the Master's service, so that we may be ready, awaiting the coming of our Lord with the serene, steadfast trust of the dear departed. As a pupil of the ACADEMY she was characterized by a high sense of honor, a cheerful devotion to duty, and zeal in her Savior's service, that were fully exemplified in her later life. Her age was about 36 years.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under who notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1865.

- 4331 REBECCA PITT. — 1853.
Robert S. Pitt, Joyner's Depot, N. C.
- 4332 FIDELIA YATES. — 1847.
- 4333 ISLELY YATES. — 1849.
Alvis Yates, Cary, N. C.
- 4334 VITURIA ANN DORSETT. — 1853.
John Dorsett, Trinity College, N. C.
- 4335 MARY E. MAULTSBY. — 1830.
W. G. Maultsby, Flemington, Columbus Co., N. C.
- 4336 JANE PRESTON. — 1850.
Brother, Walter R. Preston, Blacksburg, Va.
- 4337 WILLIAM ANN KILLEBREW. — 1848.
C. B. Killebrew, Tarboro, N. C.
- 4338 MARGARET AUGUSTA LYNCH. — 1849.
- 4339 HARRIET LYNCH. — 1851.
Larkin Lynch, Huntsville, N. C.
- 4340 EMILY A. HAWKINS. — 1846.
Thomas H. Hawkins, Lexington, Ga.
- 4341 ABELEIDE MILNER. — 1847.
Jonah G. Milner, Lexington, Ga.
- 4342 CHARITY D. WOODRUFF. — 1851.
J. S. Woodruff, Mocksville, N. C.
- 4343 C. JANE MILLER. — 1852.
Guardian, J. S. Woodruff, Mocksville, N. C.
- 4344 ANNE FRESIL CALDWELL. — 1850.
- 4345 ISABELLA MARY CALDWELL. — 1852.
James M. Caldwell, Stateberg, Sumter Co., S. C.
- 4346 VICTORIA ANN JOHNSON. — 1849.
J. M. Johnson, Mocksville, N. C.
- 4347 LOUISA DICKENSON. — 1850.
Uncle, Wm. Dickenson, Saltville, Va.
- 4348 MOLLIE McCELLAN. — 1851.
George R. McClellan, Blountsville, E. Tenn.
- 4349 SALLIE BURSON. — 1845.
Z. L. Burson, Blountville, E. Tenn.

- 4350 ANNE E. JONES. — 1852.
Guardian, R. L. Patterson, Salem, N. C.
- 4351 LILLIE BENDEL. — 1856.
Joseph Benzel, Smithville, N. C.
- 4352 KATE C. CRUMP. — 1851.
George E. Crump, Rocky Gap, West Va.
- 4353 BERTHA E. BULE. — 1851.
R. N. Bule, Fayetteville, N. C.
- 4354 GRISCILLA (GIDDIE) SANDERSON. — 1850.
John Sanderson, Norfolk, Va.
- 4355 ELIZABETH M. HARDY. — 1845.
- 4356 EMILY M. HARDY. — 1845.
- 4357 MARY PINKY HARDY. — 1862.
Thomas A. Hardy, Williamsboro, N. C.
- 4358 BERTIE EVANS. — 1851.
Mother, Mrs. Lucy B. Evans, Raleigh, N. C.
- 4359 LAURA F. PEMBERTON. — 1853.
W. S. Pemberton, Little Rock, Ark.
- 4360 GEORGIA ALICE WILSON. — 1850.
George A. Wilson, Norfolk, Va.
- 4361 VICTORIA SAUNDERS. — 1850.
Guardian, John Stafford, Forsyth Co., N. C.
- 4362 LOUISA SMITH. — 1850.
Guardian, F. George, Witleville, N. C.
- 4363 LUCY H. SNEED. — 1851.
W. M. Sneed, Townesville, N. C.
- 4364 MARTHA A. CLICK. — 1850.
- 4365 FRANCES A. CHICK. — 1851.
Guardian, C. W. Bessent, Jerusalem, N. C.
- 4366 MARTHA KATE PARROTT. — 1850.
M. J. Parrott, Knoxville, Tenn.
- 4367 EUGENIA WALL. — 1856.
Robert M. Stanley, Norwood's, Stanley Co., N. C.
- 4368 M. HENRIETTA WALL. — 1852.
Mother, Lucy M. Harris, Norwood's, N. C.
- 4369 FANNIE COOPER. — 1852.
Alex. W. Cooper, Clemmonsville, N. C.
- 4370 MARY EUGENIA CRUMP. — 1851.
R. Crump, Pee Dee, Anson Co., N. C.
- 4371 LIZZIE WILLOUGHBY. — 1848.
G. W. Willoughby, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4372 JULIA A. LITTLE. — 1852.
George W. Little, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4373 IDA GADDY. — 1851.
Joel Gaddy, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4374 LAURA ANN BOWMAN. — 1852.
Thos. Bowman, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4375 FANNIE EVERITT. — 1849.
John Everitt, Goldsboro, N. C.
- 4376 ELLEN GARDNER. — 1840.
G. Gardner, Jamestown, N. C.
- 4377 HETTIE KAYSER. — 1853.
Julius Kayser, Unionville, S. C.
- 4378 KATE BARNARD. — 1850.
- 4379 SALLIE BARNARD. — 1851.
E. Barnard, Columbus, Ga.
- 4380 SARAH EUDY. — 1850.
John Eudy, Jamestown, N. C.

Married.

PHILLIPS—MCLEAN.—On November 27, 1888, Mr. ROBERT PHILLIPS to Miss ANNA MCLEAN, of Robeson Co., N. C.

MARCKRAFF—WINKLER.—In Corsicana, Texas, Dec. 18, 1888, Professor GEO. F. MARCKRAFF, of Salem Female Academy, to Miss BEATRICE WINKLER, of Corsicana.

BUFFALO—HICKS.—In Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 1, 1889, Dr. A. J. BUFFALO to Miss JULIA HICKS, both of Raleigh.

RICH—WATKINS.—On Jan. 8, 1889, in the Baptist church, Winston, Mr. D. RICH to Miss CARRIE WATKINS.

Died.

KAPP.—On December 31, 1888, near Bethania, N. C., Mrs. ALMIRA KAPP, wife of Mr. Eugene Kapp and daughter of the late Elias Schaub, Esq., of Bethania.

VOGLER.—In the Widows' House, Salem, N. C., Jan. 8, 1889, Mrs. S. D. Vogler, aged about 80 years.

OERTEL.—On Monday, Jan. 7, 1889, at 12:30 o'clock, at the residence of her father, Rev. J. A. Oertel, 601 Woodland St., Nashville, Tenn., Miss LENA OERTEL, aged 36 years. Funeral from St. Ann's church, Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Burial at Mt. Olivet.

BOOKS AND NOVELTIES

AT THE
+ SALEM + BOOKSTORE +

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical. $1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies Address.

THE SCHOOLTEACHER.
WINSTON, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES, AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT," AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:
Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

 MONEY

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL:—Come and see before buying elsewhere; Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

CLINARD & BROOKES.

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., FEBRUARY, 1889.

NUMBER 93.

What Shall We Read?

IT frequently happens when young ladies graduate and leave school that they are let down at once from the bracing routine of school-work to a kind of intellectual vacuity. Some (and the number is ever increasing) seek for regular occupation; they are happy in finding work and in being able to do it. But many have home ties, home duties, and in performing them they receive life's holiest, its sweetest rewards. Neither should social duties be ignored; they demand time and attention, but there are minds of fine calibre that soon tire of an endless round of visiting, of receiving calls. Feebler natures may content themselves longer, and not unfrequently they deteriorate into gossips and flirts, but the nobler intellect longs for something better. "What shall I do?" is the question asked with a soul-hunger, with an intellectual thirst that must, that ought to be appeased.

Some take up a favorite study begun at school and carry it on; others continue their music, or rise to higher degrees of perfection in art. All this is good, yet, with it the reading habit should be formed and fostered, for nothing else so rounds and develops the mental powers as judicious reading; nothing furnishes a more soul-satisfying banquet of delights before which the mere pleasures of the senses fade away into thin air. There is no more ennui or weariness which saps the finest powers, but an ever increasing source of the purest gratification in a taste for reading intelligently carried on.

Granted that the reading habit is a necessity for an active, cultivated mind, the next question is how shall we read? and what shall we read? In the first place, have a stated time for reading; having fixed the time, keep it as nearly as possible amid the varying home and social duties of a young lady, for without regular systematic work nothing will be accomplished, and you will soon become disheartened.

In the next place, let reading and writing go hand in hand: keep a scratch-book and pencil by your side, and note down every beautiful thought, every choice expression you find, and when you have read a certain length of time write out a brief resume of what you have read, weaving into the sketch as many choice words or quotations from the author as you can. In this way not only will you acquire ideas, but you will likewise unconsciously acquire the art of reproducing them in a style of your own, polished and enriched by what is choicest and best in your author.

In the third place, what shall you read?

The fields of literature are so rich we may well ask what? Begin with the four great stars of the first magnitude in our literary firmament, Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare and Milton. You cannot read all the noted works until you become greatly but select the best: take the "Canterbury Tales" of Chaucer, and if the peculiar English of his day is too difficult, try to gain a general idea of the whole work, noting down in your scratch-book a brief sketch of each tale, obtained by reading the argument given at the beginning of each canto; then read choice passages here and there, enriching your sketch with them.

Take Spenser's "Fairy Queen" next: gain an idea of the framework of this fine allegory, and again write a sketch of the whole, an essay, making it as brief as your taste will admit, introducing the finest lines as quotations. A judicious friend is a great help though the eye soon becomes skilled in culling the loveliest flowers of poesy.

When we come to Shakespeare, we find a library in itself. If you have no one to direct you read Charles and Mary Lamb's "Tales of Shakespeare;" you can get them in 15 or 25 cent editions in our day of cheap literature. Take the 5 great tragedies, Hamlet, Macbeth, King Lear, Romeo and Juliet, Othello; then the comedies, Merchant of Venice, As You Like It, Midsummer Night's Dream, — Julius Caesar, Henry VIII. Then select gems from Shakespeare, reading carefully and appreciatively, Hamlet's "Soliloquy," Hamlet's "Advice to the Players," Othello's "Apology to the Seigniors of Venice," "The Seven Ages of Man," from As You Like It, Portia's address to Shylock on the quality of mercy, (you will be apt to read the whole trial scene if you have any æsthetic or literary tastes). Next, read Marc Anthony's address over Caesar's dead body, Wolsey's farewell to his greatness. Then take Mrs. Jamieson's Characteristics of Shakespeare's Heroines, and study the noble faces of the two Portias, of Katherine of Arragon, of Imogen, the arch face of Rosalind, the sadly-sweet features of Ophelia, the tender, girl-beauty of Juliet, of Miranda, turn with a shudder from Lady Macbeth's baleful eyes and Cleopatra's sinuous, serpentine grace, and if you do not become an ardent admirer of you have no æsthetic chord in your nature.

"Sweetest Shakespeare, Fancy's child, Warbling his native woodnotes wild,"

From Shakespeare's magic you tear yourself away, and begin the noblest epic ever penned by uninspired man, Milton's "Paradise Lost." Read the heading of each canto or book until you have an idea of the whole. Then cull the choice expressions like jewels, and bind them together. Hear the stirring trumpet peal of Satan, as he calls to the stupefied host, "Awake, arise, or be forever fallen!" Read the account of the infernal peers in counsel till you know why Satan is our arch enemy; follow Raphael's narration to Adam of the war in heaven; mark the touch of Ithuriel's spear as it turns the toad "squat at the ear of Eve" into the grisly king of hell; see the seraph, Abdiel, in his stern integrity, "among the faithless, faithful only he!" Finally, hear Eve's lament over the tender plants her hands alone have tended, until you see the fallen pair

"Hand in hand with wandering steps and slow
Through Eden take their solitary way."

Coming down from these lofty heights, take a selection from Pope's "Essay on Man," or "Alexander's Feast," by Dryden. If their smooth perfection wearies you take Byron, and wander with Childe Harold in many lands; stand with him in Venice on the Bridge of Sighs; go to Rome, the Niobe of nations, where the Goth, fire and sword have worked their stern will on her. Then take up the pure, artistic verses of Sir Walter Scott, and see the union of greatness and goodness in his creations.

Turn to the library of fiction embodied in the Waverley series, ranging from The Talisman, Quentin Durward, Ivanhoe, Kenilworth and Waverley. Take Dickens and make the acquaintance of Pickwick, of David Copperfield; read the death of little Paul and of little Nell without tears, if you can. Then browse among the beauties of Ruskin in "Sesame and Lillies." Make the acquaintance of our American poets, of Bryant in "Autumn Woods" and the "Death of the Flowers"; read Longfellow and Tennyson until you are thoroughly imbued with their brave and noble patience. Become familiarly acquainted with Washington Irving's Sketch Book, put yourself in tune with the weird, rhythmic music of "The Bells."

In the fourth and last place, read systematically: take as much or as little time as you can spare, but keep to that time, and do not neglect it for anything but imperative duty, and you will have a store of intellectual wealth, a treasure trove which is yours by inalienable right, to depend upon when other riches may have taken wings and flown away. Your habits of thought, your tastes and perceptions will have broadened and deepened, while they have become ennobled and refined by intercourse with the great, the wise and learned of past and present ages.

Sermon.

REV. E. RONDHALER, D. D.

January 13th, 1889.

[As the subject is of general interest, we publish the following sermon by Dr. RONDHALER, giving an outline of Moravian mission work throughout the world.]

TEXT:—"He said unto them, Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."—Mark 16: 15.

This was the commission which our Lord Jesus Christ gave to his Church ere he ascended into heaven. By his life and death and resurrection he had prepared good news for sinful men. Through his atoning merits he had provided a remedy for guilt, and a reconciled life with the Heavenly Father. By his word, example and spirit, he had made it possible for men to live in nobler, better ways, in the love of God, and in the love of man. Through his own divine and human person, glorified by the resurrection from the dead, he had assured a similar prospect of happy immortality to those who should put their trust in him.

Having done all this it was our Savior's will that the good news should be spread over the whole world, and that every human creature should be made a partaker of the blessing. It was for this purpose that he founded a church upon earth. It was to be a society for the spread of the Gospel. With a view to this work he promised his own spiritual presence to his Missionary Church. The peace, the joy, the strength of Christian living, are bound up in the endeavor which Christians make in behalf of other souls. If a man says, "I do not enjoy my religion," we at once ask, "Are you doing anything to make others Christians?" If not, you have no right to expect joy in your religion. Our Christian faith is a missionary faith. It is trust and obedience toward Him, who said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

My purpose is, this morning, to show by a brief exhibit, how the Moravian Church practically understands this commission. I wish to carry you, as it were, around the world and, for the awakening and sustaining of your Christian interest, to show you, in a series of rapid pictures, the actual fields in which our brethren are endeavoring to obey the Saviour's command concerning the carrying of his Gospel into all the world.

In the north-eastern part of our great continent lies the vast peninsula called Greenland. It is calculated as being 4 times the size of the present German Empire. But its name, Greenland, seems to have been given in irony. It would be better to call it as an early English explorer did, "the land of desolation." The interior is one great lonely field of rock and of ice. The eastern coast is hemmed in with perpetual fields of ice so as to be practically inaccessible. Human beings only live within 20 or 30 miles, at most, of the coast, and mainly on the western side of Greenland. Even here the land is desolate enough under its mantle of snow during the long Arctic winter. Its plant life is very scant, and the tallest trees never grow to a height of more than 18 feet. Years ago, when visiting the mission school at Kleinwelke, my attention was drawn to the peculiarly stunted appearance of a couple of little boys on the playgrounds. They were the children of a Greenland missionary, and seemed still frozen up, though living in a more genial clime than the land of their birth. We need not wonder that the native Esquimaux suffers both bodily and mentally from the land and climate in which he is doomed to dwell. A most unlovely creature he is, with his small body, large head, hands and feet, his high cheek-bones, face smeared over with soot and train oil, sometimes eating 10 pounds of flesh in a day. Morally, they are not worse than other barbarous people, but they are said to be envious, ungrateful and phlegmatic, as if their very constitution had been touched by frost.

Hither our missionaries came, in 1733, to labor. When told, ere they started from Copenhagen, that they would not find timber enough to build a house, they heroically declared: "Then we will dig in the earth and lodge there!" In this spirit they labored for 5 hard years, until the first Greenlander's heart was moved by the story of Jesus' agony in Gethsemane and death on the cross, and the man exclaimed: "Tell me that again: I, too, want to be saved." And there the brethren are laboring still, on a monotonous Arctic coast, amid difficulties which, in some respects, can never be overcome, among a stolid people, living in what several English visitors in 1863 said were worse than English pig-pens. Last year some 50 heathen Esquimaux from the inaccessible east coast, settled around the station, Fredrichsthal, and declared their desire to become Christians. They are now being instructed to this end. There were in July, 1888, in Greenland, 6 stations, 9 Moravian missionaries, 42 native helpers, and a total of 1,597 members.

Separated from Greenland by the Greenland Sea is Labrador. It was the first part of the North American coast reached by the earliest explorers of the 15th century. The Portuguese called it Labrador, which means "cultivated land," though where the land is that can be cultivated has not appeared in the 119 years since the Moravian missionaries labor there. A brother who had visited the country told me how deeply his heart was touched with the desolation of the scene, when standing in the graveyard of the stations where brethren and sisters who died at this dreary post of Christian duty, lay buried in the scanty earth, between the out-cropping granite rock. Then the country stretches bleak and monotonous into the unknown interior. Further south than Greenland it is more open to the Arctic winds, and is, therefore, still colder. At the most southern station, Hopedale, the thermometer sometimes falls to 70° below freezing, the snow having a depth of 15 feet. Labrador belongs to England, but the British have never thought it worth while to set up a government there. The missionaries live alone with their Esquimaux converts, and are visited and supplied yearly by the missionary schooner, The Harmony, whose successful voyages along a stormy coast, where rocky islands lie among the fogs and where icebergs and icefields defy all charts, have, during the past 118 years, been one of the marvels of nautical life. As The Harmony floats into the Liverpool dock, amid a forest of masts, on her return voyages, vessels of every nationality lower their colors, thus saluting the King's ship as she comes and goes on her high and holy errand. In July, 1888, there were in Labrador 21 Moravian missionaries, including the brethren who carry on the trade through which the Esquimaux subsist, 6 stations, 23 native helpers, and 1,251 members.

Quite recently, the mission on the other side of the continent, in Alaska, has been commenced amid a similar Esquimaux people and similar conditions of climate. The Northern Province of our American Church has taken noble hold of this work and sent its laborers to the two new Alaskan stations. The enterprise is still in its infancy. The Esquimaux, it is said, are eagerly waiting until, as they say, the heavy tongues of the missionaries shall grow nimble enough to speak their language; but the morning dawn is already appearing in the conversion of the first fruits in this youngest of our Moravian Mission Provinces.

The chief aim of the Moravian emigrants in coming to the United States, 150 years ago, was to reach the Indians with the Gospel. It was for this purpose that brother Rauch first made his way from New York city into the forests on the borders of the State of Connecticut. There, in a Mohegan wigwam, he told the new story: "God loves you, and has sent his Son to die for your sins." His simple preaching, and that of other brethren, was wonderfully effective. The Gospel gloriously triumphed in the lives and deaths of multitudes of converts. The Delawares proved especially susceptible to saving truth. The brethren entered into a touching covenant with them to serve their religious needs for all coming time. In spite of all disasters, and notwithstanding the sad inconstancy of the Indian character, this covenant still stands, and the New Fairfield Mission, in Canada, and the Westfield Mission, in Kansas, are witness to a hundred years of Moravian good faith. In the same spirit the exiled Cherokees were sought out in their Indian Territory home, and 2 stations still exist among them. The work among the North American Indians is, perhaps, in its sunset hour. There are only 4 missionaries engaged and about 250 souls in charge, but its annals will remain among the most heroic and tender which the Christian Church affords.

When we come to the West Indian Mission Province,—divided into Eastern and Western Districts,—we reach our earliest missionary ground. It is hallowed by recollections of the pioneers, Leonard Dober and David Nitschman. Their utterances, that they were willing to be sold as slaves, if that were the only way in which slaves could be reached with the Gospel, has become classic in the Protestant Christian Church. The great revivals which accompanied the work, the graves of missionaries and their wives richly strewn over the islands, testify both to the success and self-sacrifice upon which it was grounded. The West Indies no longer furnish fresh mission ground. The Gospel has been preached so long in these islands that they present the same phenomenon which we see amongst ourselves;—there are those who having heard the Gospel from childhood are weary of it, and bear not the fruits of the faith. Sickness and other causes have thinned the ranks of the laborers, so that there are not enough for the requirements of the work. Still, both missionaries and members are doing nobly in their efforts towards self-support. The annual grant from the general fund shows this. In 1880 $15,000 were called for, in 1889 only $1,500. The difference was raised by the people themselves. One of the great questions of the approaching General Synod will be how to take the last steps wisely whereby the West Indian may become a home province, and the resources there expended released for fresh fields among the heathen. There are 33 missionaries, 618 native helpers and 38,216 members.

The Mission along the Mosquito Indian Coast of Central America is comparatively fresh ground. The missionaries come in contact with the heathen. A missionary schooner plies along the coast from Honduras down to the point where Catholic Nicaragua strictly forbids the entrance of our brethren. It is a happy, God-blessed field. God has made many hearts willing in the day of his power. Indians come from afar to hear the good news. Chapels are diligently erected by them. The congregations are in their first love. The genial little man, brother Martin, who heads the mission, was present at the last General Synod, and no one would have supposed from his quiet, unassuming manner that so great spiritual success was awaiting him in the years that have since transpired. There are 10 missionaries, 33 native helpers and 3,294 members.

When we come to the north-eastern part of South America we reach one of our greatest mission fields. In British Guiana there are only 672 members without a missionary at present, but in Dutch Guiana we have 36 missionaries, 377 native helpers and 26,262 members. In the chief city, Paramaribo, the congregation numbers 12,000. Three branches have, in recent years, been developed from this mother church, but the central congregation is still an immense one; and the growing influence calls for preaching in still another language, the Dutch tongue of the more influential citizens, as well as the Negro-English, which has hitherto been employed. Among the Paramaribo members are 50 Chinese, who are spoken of as a good and reliable element. But the chief interest of the South American Mission lies in the work which is being pushed into what is called The Bush, far up the rivers. Nature is very bountiful along these streams in its growth of mighty tropical trees, all festooned with gigantic creeping plants and vines. It is the favorite home likewise of great coiling serpents, but the climate is, in the long run, deadly in its effects upon Europeans. Our missionaries make occasional boat journeys into the heart of these great tropical forests, but must leave the stated work to native evangelists. It is ripe for the harvest. At several places idols have recently been cheerfully surrendered, and candidates are being prepared for Christian baptism.

And now we cross the wide Atlantic and rest our eyes for a moment upon the great South African field. It is divided into the Western, or Hottentot, and Eastern, or Kaffir, sections. The former is the older field; the latter is the nobler race. Here, too, our brethren are in the midst of an aggressive movement. They have followed many of their Hottentot members to Cape Town, and the flourishing work of Moravian Hill is a recent endeavor, likewise the railroad mission. In the Kaffir country actual heathen are being reached and, as usual, the fresh ground is the best.

We see from the word of the Savior that he expected what has since so often come to pass. In old fields many have grown tired of the Gospel. In new fields they eagerly reach out their hands toward it. Thus, as Jesus said, "The children of the Kingdom are cast out, but others come from the east, and west, and north, and south, to sit down at the heavenly feast." Oh, my friend! you who listen to the Gospel with only half an ear, and know not whether you want it or not, remember that God is studying your case, and ere long he may give the place you might have had to some poor but willing heathen at the far end of the earth. In the South African provinces there are 29 missionaries, 351 native helpers, and 12,530 members.

But not all fresh heathen fields are rapidly productive. Of this our brethren have made painful experience among the Buddhists in Thibet. It quite impresses one in studying the map of the remote valleys in which four of our brethren are laboring, to notice altitudes of Himalayan peaks, 3000, 6000, or even 8,000 feet higher than Mt. Blanc, where even the passes are snowed up half the year. And with their self-righteousness, the Buddhists are as cold as their ice barriers and as hard as their stupendous rocks. After many years of labor only 42 members have been painfully gained. It is a field where men must not only work and pray but, to a peculiar degree, must likewise wait.

And now we make another vast sweep over the map, and come to our last mission province on the 5th, the Australian, continent, among a people originally so utterly degraded that missionaries abandoned the field, but were sent back with the word that real Moravian missionaries never deserted their posts. Among these dregs of the human race, of whom it was often doubted whether they had responsible souls, precious trophies have been gained for our Savior. There are now among these people, rapidly dying out, 3 missionaries and 112 members. The results attained may be best concentrated in a single incident. A little Papuan girl of 7 years, about to fall asleep in Jesus, said, a few moments before she died: "Papa, I shall leave you; I go to Jesus; please, Papa, follow Jesus."

I need not tell you that this work is carried on carefully and economically. The fact that its governing secretaries serve on small salaries, such as you would regard utterly insufficient for your own minister, and live in a few rooms of a jointly occupied house, is sufficient evidence thereof. But the work is vast: the expenses are large, and last year there was a deficit of $24,000. What you will do to help bear this great but glorious burden of our Foreign Mission support I cheerfully and confidently leave to the heart and conscience of each one of you. Amen!

---

—We have recently received, among other handsome photographic views, a large picture of the Moravian church at Bethania, N. C., one of the oldest and best preserved churches in the State. It was built in 1807, thoroughly renovated in 1884, and is as neat and attractive a church as our section of country affords. The picture was taken by Mr. Julius T. Schaub, of Hope, Indiana, who visited North Carolina relatives last autumn. Mr. Schaub is one of the best photographic artists in the country; he is a native of Bethania, but has lived in Indiana for years.

---

—The poor Type-Writer has no rest. You can hear the sharp tap of the keys and the ring of the little bell whenever you pass the room almost any hour of the day or night. A ribbon does not last long with such a number of amateurs of different grades of expertness,

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., FEBRUARY, 1889.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

Robert Elsmere.

THAT our age is barren in great literary effort is illustrated by the fact that a book like Robert Elsmere, by Mrs. Humphrey Ward, should produce so marked a sensation. It is, however, only a sensation, that will soon be followed by something else, and the book will hardly unsettle the faith of a mature mind. It might unduly influence the young, especially the emotional, sensitive nature, for it possesses a wealth of diction, an apparent fairness, and an appreciation of what is morally good that seems plausible to the young mind, but it is sadly vacuous and defective to the settled and mature.

The characters are well drawn, and the attention of the reader closely held till the middle of the book, where its strength begins to flag, and "it drags its slow length along" to the end. Gladstone thought it worth while to write a lengthy critique on it, but it appears to us to be a waste of powder and shot. Let the book alone and it will die of itself, and if here or there a tense, unfledged intellect thinks it wonderful and fears that Christianity, with its noble record of 18 centuries, will go down before its puny emotionalism, he will in a few years be wiser; Robert Elsmere will drop like a leaf on the stream of Time, and with a few eddying whirls be lost and forgotten. The progressive youth of the period must, perforce, pass through a season of evolutionary crankiness,—a sort of assertion of manhood, as it were,—and it is well, if like measles or mumps, they take the disease early;—they will pull through much better, and in a few years will look back with good-natured sarcasm to their juniors who are floundering in the same bogs.

The reading world just now appears to be divided in two classes: those who have read Robert Elsmere and those who have not. For the benefit of the last named class we would state that Robert Elsmere is a young English rector, educated at Oxford just at the time of a religious reaction after the secession of Cardinal Newman. He entered upon the duties of a family living, married a noble, devoted woman, Catherine Leyburn, one of three sisters residing with an invalid mother, in a Westmoreland valley,—each one of the sisters being a character in her own way. The Squire of the parish, Wendover, is a noted scholar and infidel, an impersonated intellect, under whose influence Robert falls, and soon loses his faith in an inspired Bible and a divine Christ. He gives up his living after months of mental agony. We are not told precisely what sapped his faith, unless some casual allusions to Renan's Life of Jesus, and equally pointless allusions to "brilliant conversations" with Squire Wendover might be so considered. He goes, with his wife and child, to London, where he begins to work among the poor and the atheistic, organizes the "New Christian Brotherhood of Elgood Street," working it on the plane of an emasculated Christianity, out of which all vigor is gone, yet keeping it alive by his own intense personality, until he breaks down of overwork, goes to Algiers for his health, and dies, in 4 years' time.

Of all dreary beliefs the cold Theism of Robert Elsmere is the coldest and dreariest. Take away a personal Christ, his atonement for sin, his victorious resurrection from the dead, his sympathy with the tempted, the sorrowing, and you have the husk of Christianity without any kernel, a body without a soul. Such a faith would fill our insane asylums, and swell the number of hopeless suicides; for from Theism, such minds as Elsmere's drift into absolute negation; it is but a half-way station to utter, hopeless infidelity. Emerson travelled that way, and others will do it. From such a dreary belief may all good powers conjoin to deliver us. Why must men fret against the half-learned lesson of trying to reconcile the Almighty Worker, as shown in the records of the rocks, in the vast chain of being,—and his Word? Why beat and bruise ourselves against the bars of our limited knowledge of things?

"God is his own interpreter,
And He will make it plain,"

in his own good time.

The Mid-Winter Concert.

Our usual mid-winter Concert came off on Tuesday evening, January 22nd, and was a successful and altogether enjoyable occasion. The weather was favorable, the Chapel filled to overflowing, and the exercises were concluded at a reasonable hour.

The first part of the Programme consisted of the following performances:—Duo, "Overture De L'Opera Fra Diavolo" (Auber) by Misses A. CARMICHAEL and ADDIE SHORE; Vocal, "Chanson D'Abeille," (Masse) Miss ADDIE LACIAR; Piano, "Scherzo Op. 31," (Chopin) Miss M. DU FOUR; Vocal Trio, "Down in the Dewy Dell," (Smart) Misses FLORENCE SETTLE, MARY and BERT FITZPATRICK; "Sonata, Op. 31. No. 1," (Beethoven) Miss SELMA KRULSHIK; Vocal, "How it Came About," (Wilson) Miss NELLIE CRAMER; Piano, "Scherzo Op. 39," (Chopin) Miss FLORENCE SETTLE; Quartette, "Peasant's Wedding March," (Soedermann) Misses EVANS, STEWERS, PFOHL and CARMICHAEL; Duo, "Steeple Chase Galop," (Fitzgerald) Misses J. WHITNER and E. HAZLEHURST; Vocal, "Farfalla, Valse Chantee," (Gelli) Miss EVANS; Four Part Chorus, "Good-Night," (Goldberg.)

The second part consisted of Franz Schubert's world renowned "Mass in G," accompanied by the Salem Orchestra, and assisted by Messrs. J. Butner, E. Ebert, R. Spough, W. Spough, W. Boyd, E. Crosland and F. Vogler. Miss NELLIE CRAMER sang the "Kyri;" Miss F. SETTLE and Mr. E. Ebert the "Gloria;" Miss EVANS, Prof. MARKGRAFF and Mr. J. Butner, "the Benedictus," and Miss ADDIE LACIAR and Mr. Ebert the "Agnus Dei."

Lake George.

BY MISS MARY FRIES.

LAKE GEORGE is a beautiful sheet of water situated in the eastern part of the State of New York, just south of the well known lake Champlain. Regarded from an æsthetic point, Lake George cannot fail to please, and call forth expressions of pleased satisfaction from tourists and travellers, who have perhaps beheld the grandeur of Niagara, or the beauties of the renowned Hudson.

The English named this beautiful expanse of water "Lake George," in honor of the second king of the House of Hanover. It was called "Lac du St. Sacrament," by Jesuit missionaries, who used its waters for baptism. The original Indian name means "the tail of the lake," because it really does appear as a sort of tail or appendage to lake Champlain, and the Indian eye was quick to perceive resemblances in nature.

James Fenimore Cooper called the lake "Horricon," from a tribe of Indians that dwelt on its banks. The lake is 34 miles in length, while its greatest breadth does not exceed 4 miles. It is bordered on every side by mountains;—its waters are thickly dotted over with lovely islands of all sizes, on the largest of which appear neat cottages, summer resorts of those who wearied by city life have come to enjoy nature's choicest influences in this charming spot.

As the boat makes its daily trip up and down the lake, those who stand on deck, may see perchance a happy crowd of children or young people, who have come here for a day's picnic, or they may catch a glimpse of the white tents of some camping out party through the green foliage. There is always something pleasant to attract the attention, and please the eye.

Of course there are many legends connected with so romantic a spot as Lake George. It is related that Major Rogers and his party were at one time hotly pursued by a band of Indians. Rogers, coming to a precipitous cliff, slid his knapsack over the precipice, and by holding fast to trees and bushes was enabled to climb down the sides of the rock. The Indians reached the spot just in time to see him with his knapsack on his shoulders, hurriedly making his way across the icy surface of the Lake. Then, seeing the tracks which his sack had made on the snow, they believed Rogers was miraculously saved by sliding down a well-nigh perpendicular wall of rock.

The prettiest hotel on the shores of Lake George is the "Sagamore," it is not however on the mainland, but on Green Island, which is three-quarters of a mile long, and is connected with the mainland by a bridge. The hotel grounds are beautifully kept, and on either side are handsome cottages, the summer homes of the proprietors of the "Sagamore."

A week passed all too quickly at this delightful summer resort. The chief occupation of the young people of our party was, naturally, rowing on the Lake. This is found to be very enjoyable, especially when the wind rises enough to toss the boat about considerably, permitting, of course, that you have an experienced boatman on board. It is not quite so comfortable, and a good deal more exciting if you are the principal oarsman yourself, and are in doubt as to whether you can bring the boat to the dock in safety. The calm, quiet beauty of Lake George has been a favorite subject with poet and painter; the poet feels his inability to describe its salient points of beauty, or to give a true idea of its sweetly soothing influences; and the tints of the water, the serene sky above, and the romantic scenery about the Lake are alite the despair and the delight of the painter who attempts to portray them on canvass.

Correspondence.

—Some of our letters are delayed for a considerable time, for want of space, but a letter from a friend is like good wine, age does not impair,—on the contrary it often becomes more valuable.

—"The ACADEMY's monthly arrival always affords me a pleasant hour, and this time it was most welcome, it came so opportunely. I was alone nursing a cold, and thinking unspeakable things of colds in general, and of my own individual grievance in particular. My mind was effectually diverted. It is seldom that I see a familiar name in the columns of THE ACADEMY, for I was there so short a time, but when I do find one, some incident almost forgotten is brought vividly back to my mind. So it was when I read LUCY PATTERSON'S name; I wonder if she too recalls a shivering cold afternoon that she and I spent in the Library on wisdom bent, and how we heeded not the inward admonitions of shivery, creepy-feelings, until we had gained double knowledge, that for which we had been seeking, and that for which we had not sought; however, both were useful lessons to us. Ask Mrs. Patterson if she remembers it, and me, please.

Please also give my love to Mrs. Charles Vogler, nee BETTIE BROWN. I am sure she will remember me. Do you know anything of ZETA ROGERS, NANNIE JONES, FANNY COLEMAN, and BIRDIE or PATTY LYON? I should like to hear of their welfare.

I had two trips this last summer, first with my mother to Cleveland Springs where we spent three very pleasant weeks, then, after a short stay at home mother went north, to the seacoast with my sister and her family, and I intended to stay at home and have a quiet time and for a few weeks I did, when a prevailing fever took hold of me; after I recovered, I took a recruiting trip to Rutherfordton, N. C., where I gained strength rapidly, and had a most delightful time. Several of the Rutherfordton young ladies were speaking of going to Salem, but I did not see their names among the new pupils. I hope they may still come.

I enjoyed meeting Mrs. Alston, the Vice President of the Alumnae Association, who was visiting in our city. She told CORA VAIL and myself of the day she was a pupil. Please place my name on the roll of the Alumnae.

Hoping my lengthy chat has not tired your patience too much, I remain with love to you

Sincerely,

EMMA SCHIFF.

707 E. Trade St., Charlotte, N. C.

—Our friends need never fear that we will tire of such letters as these, the longer and more gossipy they are the better we like them. They can do us no greater favor than thus to write.

Our next is from another Charlotte friend, Mrs. A. Sturdivant formerly ANN MYERS, one of our older Alumnae, now alas! so few in number, and leaving us one by one for a better world.

"The last number of THE ACADEMY is just to hand to-day. I was looking for it with some impatience as it was some days over due, so great is my affection for old Salem that I hail with pleasure its coming. You wish a chat with any one, old or young. Now, you know few are living much older than I am, who love to write to you, or who do write oftener than I.

I long to chat about our Alumnae. You no doubt hear often from girls who were there in '60 or '70, or '80, but not often from those who were school-girls in 1820 or '30. How I would love to hear through THE ACADEMY of MARY STUART my day-keeper, a jolly, clever girl. I wish your correspondents would always give their maiden names, as sometimes they change by marriage. One of our old girls NETTIE WALKER nee COVINGTON, has been very ill here. She is the wife of one of our very promising lawyers. We feared at one time she would die but God in his mercy spared her to us, to her many friends. One of your girls Miss IDA VAIL is doing good work in the Orphanage, as a teacher at this place, under the care of the Episcopal Church, here.

I was in Washington a part of last winter, and saw often an old Salem girl, Mrs. Wells, nee ELIZA COVINGTON who has a son in the War Department. When will the Badges be ready? I think it is a pleasant thought that so many of the same school will wear the same badge. I hope to meet with the Alumnae next June. I see you mention the dear old name "Bagge." How well I remember Daddy Bagge, of the long ago! He always came for any of the girls whose friends were at the Hotel. Do you ever have dialogues at Christmas as we used to? Expect me next June at the Alumnae meeting.

With sincere regards to friends,

Yours truly,

ANN STURDIVANT,
(nee ANN MYERS.)

313, 5th St., Charlotte, N. C.

—Our next is an interesting communication from SALLIE F. HUNNICUTT, now attending a finishing school in Washington, D. C. A pleasant letter from KATE PADDISON stands over for the next number of THE ACADEMY.

"I dislike apologies very much still I must tell you it was want of time that made me delay the answer to your letter thus long. I have very little time that I can call my own; we go out walking twice a day besides I am in the school-room from 9 until half past two o'clock. On Saturdays after study hour, we go out sight seeing. I enjoy this part of the duty very much, and find it instructive to visit the different public buildings. Do you know there are really persons living in Washington that have never been inside of the Capitol. Among the many places of interest that we have visited are Mt. Vernon down the Potomac, the Great Falls of the Potomac, Lee's old home, Arlington, the Agricultural Department, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Corcoran's Art Gallery, and many other places. I am going to the Dead Letter Office on Saturday, and I am sure from what the girls say of it, it must be a perfect Curiosity shop.

As Booth never comes to Washington, the people have to go Baltimore to see him. Mrs. Cabell chaperoned a party of girls over to Baltimore to see Booth and Barrett in the "Merchant of Venice." Booth taking Shylock. He sustains the character admirably, as you might think had you noted his encores. You do not think of him at all as Booth,—he is Shylock to perfection.

It will not do for me to sing Booth's praises and not mention Barrett, still I cannot say so much that is complimentary, and I had better not abuse him for some one might criticise my judgment. We enjoyed the day spent in Baltimore and my time was particularly pleasant as I spent part of it with JANIE SMITH.

I am studying few lessons that I have not studied before, but I am trying to obtain most of my knowledge from observation. My studies are Advanced Literature, Composition, two French classes, critical study of Shakespeare and Milton, our Government, and Music. I had to give up my vocal music on account of my throat, which troubles me a great deal at times.

I am naturally anxious to be at home now, as there is such rejoicing over my brother's marriage; his wife is a lovely young lady from New Orleans.

I am sure you would be surprised to know that I was so enthusiastic over the Presidential election that I could not sleep at night. Perhaps you know that I am one of Mrs. Cleveland's greatest admirers since I called on her with some friends. She was very cordial, and made us feel quite at home.

I am going to leave the hurly-burly of Washington City, the closing exercises of my school, and all to come back to Salem in June. I will close: asking you to remember me to Dr. and Mrs. RONDTHALER, Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL, and Miss CHITTY.

With much love to you I remain

Yours affectionately,

SALLIE F. HUNNICUTT.

1407 Mass. Ave., Washington, D. C.

—From a letter of ILAH DUNLAP's we quote a portion, to give her friends an idea of her pleasures and occupations generally.

"Though I have no regular school duties, I am not idle by any means. I am taking a regular course of reading, of French and German conversation, so my time is fully occupied. Besides I have my practicing, of course.

I suppose, ere this, you are fully started in your work, and the new girls having exhausted their lachrymal supply, are beginning to feel that the ACADEMY is the place for them after all. I told Mamma the other day that I would go back and be a special student. She says she is afraid I am fonder of my Salem friends than I am of my home friends.

I received THE ACADEMY and enjoyed it very much. It was quite a shock to me to hear of the death of Miss SALLIE's and Miss LOU's mother. I had a nice long letter from JEANIE REYNOLDS telling me about her school, she seems to be charmed with it. I can hardly imagine JEANIE being a teacher.

LULA BROWN and DAISY CLISBY have just called, so I will say "Good Bye," for this time.

Much love to you, Dr. RONDTHALER. & C.

Affectionately,

ILAH DUNLAP.

920, High Place, Macon, Ga.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—The 24th and last volume of the Encyclopædia Britannica is out. It forms a reference library in itself.

—Professor MARKGRAFF has taken up Mendelssohn's fine Oratorio, "St. Paul," for Commencement. It will be at our doors before we have time to think much about it.

—We have another little 6 year old pupil, a companion for FANNY MOORE, PRAISE YEARGAN from Texarkana, Texas, though she is larger than FANNY, they are graduates for '99.

—We have, for some time been trying to publish our list of subscriptions to the ACADEMY from Oct. 1st, but it has been crowded out. We shall, however, give it in small installments from time to time.

—GERTRUDE JENKINS frequently reports discourses in short hand for the press. She took down Dr. RONDTHALER's address at the funeral services of the late Mrs. S. D. Vogler, which was then published in The Moravian.

—WILLIE LUTZ showed us a photograph of little Dittoe Craige, son of CAPPIE HENRY, now Mrs. Craige of Greenwood, Miss. He is a fine little fellow, and looks so much like his mother that we should have recognized him any where.

—A Musicales was given Monday evening, Feb. 3rd, chiefly by the pupils of Misses EVANS and CARMICHAEL, which seemed to afford much pleasure to the audience, our ACADEMY world. It gives the girls confidence in themselves to appear occasionally on the platform.

—The Senior Class had their photographs taken February 4th, a good deal earlier than they usually get ready for so momentous an occasion, but it was hastened this year on account of Dr. RONDTHALER's approaching departure for the East. A Senior Class would hardly be complete without him.

—The Wachovia National Bank has been removed into the most elegant and commodious bank building in the State, at the corner adjoining the handsome Drug Store of Messrs. Ashcraft and Owens. Winston may well be proud of these structures. The Savings Bank, a comparatively new, yet very flourishing organization, occupies the former quarters of the Wachovia Bank.

—The class-room for Phonography or Shorthand has migrated again, to what was formerly Miss VEST's music-room, just next door to its old quarters. The interest in the study is ever increasing; new students enter with each term, and the number is larger now than it has been at any previous time.

—The members of the Euterpean Society have been very energetic during the past weeks. They have one of the former commercial rooms, the north room in the 4th floor of the new Academy building, as a Society Hall, which is now undergoing needful repairs, Kalsomining, &c. They have purchased a good piano, new chairs, curtains, &c., and are working with praiseworthy zeal to improve the Society.

—Mr. CLEWELL has introduced a small book into our morning prayers in Chapel, containing Offices of Worship, eleven in number, with responsive readings, and singing. Various tunes with words are given in the back part of the book; the chapel services are thus made more varied and interesting. We use the offices of worship twice a week, on Monday and Thursday mornings;—the remaining days, the usual order of exercises is observed, singing, prayer, Bible reading.

—New arrivals since our last issue, not elsewhere chronicled, are Misses TIBBIE and LAVINIA ROGERS, Macon, Ga., SWANNANOA BROWER, N. C. We were happy to see Miss ZETA ROGERS, one of the last days in January; she came to bring her sister and cousin as new pupils for the Academy. Her visit was however quite a disappointment as to length;—she went away again the same evening, instead of remaining some days as we had hoped.

—Mr. Chitty, the faithful ACADEMY watchman, was stricken down by paralysis the middle of January, just when about to begin his nightly rounds. He was removed to the Twin-City Hospital where he is slowly regaining the use of his benumbed powers. Mr. Spaug is his successor. The Hospital is under the control of the ladies of Winston and Salem, and though it has been in operation a comparatively short time, it has done much good. It is a noble work and deserves the support and co-operation of all right thinking people.

—A recent correspondent inquires about ZETA ROGERS, NANNIE JONES, Mrs. Charles Vogler, PATTY LYON, FANNY COLEMAN, Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, &c. NANNIE JONES is Mrs. Claude Estes of Gainesville, Ga.,— was married in November, '85. FANNY COLEMAN, Mrs. Charles Scott, was in Dallas, Tex., when we last heard, several years ago. She was married in Sept. '81. Of PATTY LYON we know nothing at all. Mrs. Chas. Vogler (BETTIE BROWN) is living in the Vogler homestead, in the lower part of Salem. Mrs. Lindsay Patterson (LUCY) has a cosy home in the Western part of town.

—Mr. Du Four who is still in town, kindly delivered a lecture in the ACADEMY Chapel, on Saturday night, Feb. 2nd. His subject was "The City of Florence, Italy," and he handled the subject in a manner that showed him thoroughly conversant with the past of this beautiful city, as well as with its present condition. The subject was a very full one, because the present of Florence can only be understood in the light of her medieval glories. His apt quotations from the Latin, French, and German, gave added finish to the whole.

—We note in The Sentinel, Winston, of Jan. 31st, an account of a brilliant Musicales by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Glenn, at their handsome residence in West Winston. Professor Bedee gave an instrumental rendition "a Caprice," Miss BALDWIN a recitation, "Sioux Chief's Daughter," Miss EVANS several songs, "Love may come To-morrow," and Coppelia Waltz;—Prof. W. A. Blair a Reading, "How Jacob set a Hen," Master Thos. Glenn a Recitation, "Annie and Willie's Prayer." A number of ladies and gentlemen enjoyed the entertainment as well as the elegant hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn.

—Dr. RONDHALER, who is one of the members of the Moravian General Synod to meet in Herrnhut, Saxony, in May, left Salem about February 14, in order to make an Oriental tour before the warm weather sets in. The Doctor's original intention was to go through the Straits of Gibraltar, thence to Naples and from Naples to the Holy Land, but later he changed his mind, intending to land in Glasgow, and then mature his plans. Howard, his son, accompanied him; they expect to be absent six months. The next best thing to visiting Palestine with its many tender and sacred associations is to have Dr. RONDHALER visit the holy places, and then tell us about them on his return.

—A large congregation attended Dr. RONDHALER's last service, before setting out on his Oriental journey, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 13. At the close the Doctor took his station in front of the reading desk, and shook hands with all, as they filed up one aisle, and down the other, in regular order.

—Robert Elmsmere has been the great sensation of the religious world for some months. Every paper criticizes the book and its authoress, Mrs. Humphry Ward. A recent number of the Christian at Work devoted 3 long articles, and 2 short ones to it, and the following week, it contained a 4 column article on the same subject. Gladstone the great English Ex-Premier, thought it worth while to write a critique upon it, which was published in leading journals, and was issued in pamphlet form by the enterprising American publisher, John B. Alden. About all the good such wide spread criticism and denunciation do for the book is to advertise it thoroughly, and make it a greater pecuniary success to the publishers. John Ward, Preacher, by Mrs. Margaret DeLand, a novel, has also attracted unusual attention, both in this country and in England. It reached its 20th thousand very soon, and public interest is still increasing.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Mrs. E. T. Clemmons, of Asheville, has been spending some time with her sisters in Salem, Misses SOPHIE and SALLIE BUTNER.

—Mrs. CLEVELL with Clarence and little John went to Bethlehem, Penn., Jan. 31st, on a visit to her mother, Mrs. C. Wolle. No doubt she is having an enjoyable time.

—Miss GIST, of Yorkville, S. C., returned home at the close of January. She was a special student in Short-hand and Type-writing, and is anxious to secure a position.

—Miss MARIA BONER, of Greensboro, N. C., formerly a teacher of the ACADEMY, visited her old home about the middle of January, spending a week with relatives and friends.

—We were sorry to learn of the death of Mr. Rogers, of Macon, Ga., father of several of our well-known Alumnae. IDA and ZETA ROGERS. IDA is now Mrs. John S. Jones; was married in 1885.

—We are indebted to Miss ROXIE ARMFIELD for a copy of the Nashville Weekly American, from whose columns we glean important facts concerning the first settlers of Tennessee. Among them was John Whitsett Childress, the father of Mrs. Jas. K. Polk, who is spoken of as extremely anxious to educate his children particularly his daughters, at a time when female education was rare, outside of our own borders, here in Salem. Mr. Childress sent 3 of his 4 children to North Carolina on horseback to be educated. A servant was sent with Susan, Sarah and John W. on the long journey in 1817. The girls went to SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, and their brother to Chapel Hill University. There were two other girls of their county sent to Salem. They became the wives of William Maney and Hon. John Bell, the Whig candidate for President when Lincoln was elected in 1860. Mrs. Bell was Miss SALLIE DICKINSON.

—A correspondent recently inquired for Rev. ROBERT DE SCHWEINITZ, Rev. M. E. GRUNERT, of Misses CARRIE and BESSIE SIEWERS, ZEVELY and VOGLER. We have mentioned all these parties repeatedly in THE ACADEMY, but she was not a subscriber at the time. Rev. ROBERT DE SCHWEINITZ resides in Bethlehem, Penn., with his family. His wife died in 1881, and his two daughters HELEN and CLARA are teaching. BERTHA is at home. Miss CARRIE SIEWERS went to Illinois with her parents in 1863, and died while they were still stationed at West Salem, Ill. Miss BESSIE married Mr. Aug. Pfohl, of Salem, and died years ago. Her only living child Miss CONSTANCE PFOHL, has been teaching in the ACADEMY about 8 years. Miss ZEVELY married Mr. A. I. Butler in 1860, and died in 1863. Miss MARIA VOGLER taught in the ACADEMY 27 years, and then went home in 1882, to assist her sister in taking care of their aged mother who has long been an invalid. Mr. GRUNERT was living in Nazareth, Penn., as a retired minister and died suddenly of apoplexy in June, 1887.

Subscriptions.

Received since October 1st.

Miss Mattie Crafton, Reidsville, N. C.; Mrs. S. M. Richardson, Leona, Texas; Miss M. McKinnon, Plainview, N. C.; Miss Janie Sherille, Academy; Miss Kate Lark, Laurens C. H. S. C.; Miss Mary Paschal, Reidsville, N. C.; Miss Mollie Tucker, Kilgore, Texas; Mrs. Anne L. Mead, Victoria, Dona Ana Co., New Mexico; Miss Annie Hanson, Macon, Ga.; Mrs. Cappie Craig, Greenwood, Miss.; Mrs. R. A. Ayers, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. E. C. Barksdale, Flora, Ala.; News and Observer, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. Lucie Thompson, Tusculumbia, Ala.; Miss Maggie David, Bennettsville, S. C.; Miss P. C. Goodman, Tyler, Texas; Sam A. Goodman, Sr., Tyler, Texas; Miss Mattie Barber, Barberville, S. C.; Mrs. Carrie Lanham, Choctaw, Texas; Miss Lillie Lash, Bethania, N. C.; Mrs. Mary L. Early, Wood Lawn, Va.; Rev. Ed. J. Wolle, 297 State St. Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Thos. Holt, Haw River, N. C.; Miss Sallie Craig, Gastonia, N. C.; Mrs. W. H. Graham, Plainview, N. C.; Mrs. H. Shepherd, Lynchburg, Va.; Geo. D. Shore, Sumter, S. C.; Mrs. D. W. Moore, Van Buren, Ark.; Mrs. Dora N. Dunn, Neuse, N. C.; J. W. Bitting, Manor, Texas; Mrs. Lula C. Nelson, Lorraine, Bibb Co., Ga.; W. H. Frierson, Anderson, S. C.; Mrs. J. M. Fort, Paris, Texas; Mrs. J. B. Minor, Wentworth, N. C.; Mrs. J. G. Hall, Hickory, N. C.; Mrs. A. E. George, Wenonda, Pittsylvania Co., Va.; Mrs. Maud A. Fielder, Silver City, New Mexico; Mrs. A. O. Lineback, Oaks P. O., Cherokee Nation, Ind. Ter.; Mrs. J. E. Frierson, Butler, Ga.; Mrs. J. W. Cates, Maryville, Tenn.; Mrs. Mary Rice, Cole's Ferry P. O., Charlotte Co., Va.; Miss Fannie Holt, Graham, N. C.; Miss Pattie Price, Athens, Ga.; Miss Laura Wilson, Hendersonville, N. C.; Mrs. J. A. Alston, Hagood, S. C.; Mrs. J. D. Graham, Sumter, S. C.; Mrs. Ada Hemsath, Bethlehem, Pa.; Mrs. J. B. Houston, Mt. Mourne, N. C.; Mrs. E. T. Clemmons, Asheville, N. C.; Mrs. H. C. Hinton, 316 State St., Little Rock, Ark.; Mrs. J. H. Minge, Faunsdale, Ala.; Mrs. J. R. Bell, Smith Grove, Davie Co., N. C.; Miss Theo. Fitzgerald, N. Danville, Va.; Mrs. Sam'l Patterson, Yadkin Valley, N. C.; Miss E. Nunnally, Ruffin, N. C.; Miss Daisy Murphy, Burlington, N. C.; Mrs. F. X. Burton, Danville, Va.; Mrs. N. J. Hudson, Wolfesville, N. C.; Miss Mary Lenoir, Lenoir, N. C. Mrs. Wm. Barnard, Asheville, N. C.; Miss Mamie Thomas, Thomasville, N. C.; Miss Lizzie Heisler, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Dr. Wiseman, Farmington, N. C.; Mrs. Dr. Strickland and Mrs. Emma Lehman, Bethania, N. C.; Miss Kyle Pace, Waco, Texas; Mrs. Ann Sturdivant, Charlotte, N. C.; Mrs. Frank Earnest, Cotulla, Texas; H. W. Foltz, Mrs. J. C. Buxton, Mrs. Jas. A. Gray, Miss Ada Dodson, Mrs. L. Haines, Mrs. T. J. Brown, Mrs. Hyman, Mrs. A. B. Gorrell, Miss Sallie Watkins, Mrs. F. Miller, Winston, N. C.; Mrs. R. Belo, Mrs. Ed. Clinard, Miss Jessie E. Brown, Miss Flora Lott, Miss Carrie Crist, Mrs. R. L. Patterson, Mrs. T. Vogler, Miss Claude Winkler, Miss Adelaide Fries, W. O. Senseman & Co., Salem, N. C.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem at a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under who renounce this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1865.

- 4381 LORA COWART, — 1853.
Robert J. Cowart, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4382 JULIA JOHNSTON, — 1849.
R. A. Johnston, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4383 PALLIE COWART, — 1850.
James H. Cowart, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4384 ODESSA STRICKLAND, — 1851.
Step-father, Dr. A. M. Parker, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4385 ERIE FOSTER, — 1847.
4386 NANNIE FOSTER, — 1849.
Gen. Ira Foster, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4387 BESSIE WARE, — 1851.
H. H. Ware, Selma, Ala.
- 4388 LIZZIE CLAYTON, — 1850.
John Clayton, near Bethania, N. C.
- 4389 MARY WALLACE BARR, — 1855.
W. A. Barr, Holmesville, Miss.
- 4390 B. M. (LADY) BLEVINS, — 1850.
John Blevins, Rogersville, Tenn.
- 4391 ADELLA V. BYROM, — 1852.
4392 ANNIE BYROM, — 1854.
Wm. H. Byrom, Byrouville, Ga.
- 4393 MATHILDA L. BLEVINS, — 1851.
Step-father, Thomas H. Lewes, Bellevue, Dallas Co., Ala.
- 4394 BETTIE L. JAMISON, — 1851.
James Jamison, Patrick C. H., Va.
- 4395 CLARA DIXON, — 1849.
Guardian, W. P. Grimsley, Snow Hill, N. C.
- 4396 ADDIE DIXON, — 1850.
Guardian, Joseph Dixon, Hookerton, N. C.
- 4397 CORA GRIMSLEY, — 1851.
W. P. Grimsley, Snow Hill, N. C.
- 4398 ANNE EDWARDS, — 1850.
Guardian, Samuel H. Edwards, Hookerton, N. C.
- 4399 BETTIE EDWARDS, — 1849.
W. F. Edwards, Hookerton, N. C.
- 4400 SUSAN WILLIAMS, — 1849.
Mother, Mrs. J. Williams, Snow Hill, N. C.

1866.

- 4401 EMMA FREDONIA DAVIS, — 1850.
J. S. Davis, Charlotte, N. C.
- 4402 MOLLIE MCKER, — 1849.
Mother, Mrs. M. E. Moore, Charlotte, N. C.
- 4403 MOLLIE LINDSEY, — 1850.
Uncle, A. V. Sullivan, High Point, N. C.
- 4404 NANNIE ATKINSON, — 1850.
4405 J. ELLEN ATKINSON, — 1851.
4406 SALOME ATKINSON, — 1853.
Guardian, Thomas H. Atkinson, Boote Hill, N. C.
- 4407 MARY GEE, — 1849.
Guardian, Dr. R. S. Gilliam, Santuck, S. C.
- 4408 MARY McJUNKIN, — 1851.
4409 FANNIE McJUNKIN, — 1853.
W. S. McJunkin, Santuck, S. C.
- 4410 IDA MOORE, — 1850.
Mother, Mrs. Mary Wood, Madison, N. C.
- 4411 JENNIE SETZER, — 1851.
George Setzer, Newton, N. C.
- 4412 MARY JANE GRAINGER, — 1851.
4413 SARAH FRANCES GRAINGER, — 1851.
H. H. Grainger, Hookerton, N. C.
- 4414 EMMA L. MCGOWANS, — 1851.
J. W. McGowans, Kinston, N. C.
- 4415 SARAH H. PATRICK, — 1851.
Admin. of Estate J. M. Patrick, Hookerton, N. C.
- 4416 KATE JORDAN, — 1851.
W. G. Jordan, Wilson, N. C.
- 4417 CYNTHIA THOMPSON, — 1847.
J. H. Thompson, Lexington, N. C.
- 4418 PATTIE I. SMITH, — 1847.
Cousin, Dr. W. R. Smith, Madison, N. C.
- 4419 ESTHER BLOUNT, — 1850.
R. H. Blount, Wilson, N. C.
- 4420 HARRIET A. PHILLIPS, — 1851.
4421 LAURA MARY PHILLIPS, — 1853.
Dr. J. J. Phillips, Battleboro, N. C.
- 4422 CAROLINE N. WALL, — 1850.
John L. Wall, Lilesville, N. C.
- 4423 VIRGINIA S. INGRAM, — 1850.
Joseph P. Ingram, Ansonville, N. C.
- 4424 MOLLIE A. EARNEST, — 1848.
4425 IDA EARNEST, — 1849.
J. H. Earnest, Rheatown, E. Tenn.
- 4426 LAURA ANN McCANLESS, — 1849.
Joseph McCanless, Gold Hill, N. C.
- 4427 SUSAN A. PICKETT, — 1849.
Dr. W. L. Pickett, Camden, S. C.
- 4428 ADA W. DUDLEY, — 1854.
Mother, Mrs. E. B. Dudley, Newbern, N. C.
- 4429 VENETIA HARRIS, — 1849.
C. L. Harris, Rutherfordton, N. C.
- 4430 MATTIE E. BACON, — 1854.
J. J. Bacon, Augusta, Ga.
- 4431 BETTIE POWELL, — 1851.
J. H. Powell, Battleboro, N. C.
- 4432 KATE BAKER, — 1853.
Grandfather, J. H. Powell, Battleboro, N. C.
- 4433 RUTH REDD, — 1853.
Grandmother, Mrs. Ruth Redd, Henry C. H., Va.
- 4434 TALLULAH M. CLARK, — 1851.
Z. H. Clark, Lexington, Ga.
- 4435 SARAH C. BUSH, — 1852.
W. W. Bush, Lexington, Ga.
- 4436 CORNELIA SLATON, — 1850.
Mother, Mrs. Susan Slaton, Lexington, Ga.
- 4437 IDA AMOSS, — 1849.
4438 NORA AMOSS, — 1850.
B. P. Amoss, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4439 JULIA MANGRUM, — 1849.
4440 VIRGINIA MANGRUM, — 1851.
Uncle, Robert M. Clark, Adanta, Ga.
- 4441 LIZZIE BRANNER, — 1852.
B. M. Brainer, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4442 MARY B. DUNCAN, — 1847.
Step-father, Thomas May, Coffadellia, Miss.
- 4443 LAURA F. McDONALD, — 1847.
Mother, Mrs. K. McDonald, Gholson, Miss.
- 4444 SALLIE A. DURHAM, — 1848.
C. A. Durham, Mashulville, Miss.
- 4445 LIZZIE DOBY, — 1850.
J. M. Doby, Arkadelphia, Ark.
- 4446 EUNICE CRAWLEY BIRNBOW, — 1853.
Dr. E. Birnbow, East Beud, N. C.
- 4447 VIRGINIA F. HARRIS, — 1849.
Richard F. Harris, Stanley County, N. C.
- 4448 CHARLOTTE F. BENNETT, — 1850.
L. D. Bennett, Wadesboro, N. C.
- 4449 IDA EASTLACK, — 1850.
Mother, Mrs. Caroline Eastlack, Salisbury, West Tennessee.
- 4450 LAURA ROSSON, — 1850.
Cousin, S. M. Hobson, Jerusalem, Davie Co., N. C.
- 4451 EUGENIA A. PRAY, — 1853.
Uncle, Wm. F. Stansbery, Lexington, Miss.
- 4452 CORNELIA E. DE LOACHE, — 1851.
Guardian, W. L. De Pass, Camden, S. C.
- 4453 SALLIE McWHORTER, — 1850.
Grandfather, L. S. Tulane, Wetumpka, Ala.
- 4454 EMMA McNEILL, — 1850.
Mother, Mrs. E. McNeill, Wetumpka, Ala.

Splinters.

—A girl in the Chorus class exclaims, piteously: "Don't leave me in a row all by myself!"
—"Pass the Rubicon (rhubarb) pie."
—"Are you going to hear the bella donna sing to-night?"
—"Raw ham or sausage may prove hurtful from the aluminum (trichine) which it is liable to contain."
—"The arteries are a series of cylindrical firm but elastic canals which commence with the iota (aorta)," &c.

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical. $1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies. Address,

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,
WINSTON, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES, AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT," AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere: Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

—CLINARD & BROOKES.—

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,

CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., MARCH, 1889.

NUMBER 94.

FLORENCE.

MR. DU FOUR recently gave us a very interesting lecture on this beautiful city, the home of artists and of art, of literature and learning during the Renaissance. He began with the earliest days of Florence, the ancient Florentia, the Italian Fierenze, the capital of the Grand Duchy of Tuscany, situated on both sides of the river Arno: this river is crossed by 6 bridges, 2 suspension and 4 stone. The Ponte Vecchio, or jeweller's bridge, alone retains its ancient form, and is flanked on both sides by goldsmith's shops. The bridge of St. Trinita is adorned with statues.

Florence was originally a small trading village belonging to the the Etruscan city of Fiesole, before Rome was founded. The name, Florentia, may have been derived from Florimus, a Roman general, or, from the great quantities of flowers in the valley of the Arno. Zanobius was the most celebrated of the early Florentine bishops. An invading army of barbarians approached Florence in 405, and was defeated and destroyed by the Roman general, Stilicho, but the pious Florentines ascribed the victory to the prayers of Zanobius. A youthful saint, Reparata, was said to have appeared in the midst of the battle, bearing a blood-red banner with the device of a white lily, which consequently became the badge of the city. Commerce began to flourish in the 10th century and her merchants became princes.

In 1215 Buondelmonti was assassinated for a breach of promise in marriage, which sowed the seeds of a tedious civil war, and years of discord. His bride drove through the streets with his bloody head in her arms, inciting the populace to revenge by her shrieks and tears.

The struggles of the Guelphs and Ghibellines embroiled "la bella Fierenze," as the city was called. First one rough suitor was in the ascendancy, and then another. Guelph and Ghibelline deluged the streets with each other's blood, and we wonder how, amid all these frantic efforts to destroy, the wealth and genius of the city could continue to increase. After centuries of anarchy came the benumbing influences of despotism, under the domination of some great family: her historical associations are of the deepest interest, abounding in stirring incidents and fruitful in political lessons. With all her dissensions, Florence may justly be termed the artistic and intellectual capital of Italy from 1200 to 1500.

The Guelphic Florentines, the partisans of the Pope, sustained a severe defeat from Manfred, a natural son of the Emperor Frederick II., at Monteparti, near Siena. A French Pope, Clement IV., invited Charles of Anjou, brother to Louis IX., of France, to take Naples and drive the Ghibellines, or Imperialists, out of Italy. After Manfred's defeat and death at Benevento, Charles assumed the lordship of Florence, at the request of the Florentine Guelphs. In 1282 the wealthy guilds of Florence established a government of their own, and drove the Ghibellines into banishment. Rent with internal dissensions and factions, Charles of Anjou was again called to Florence to restore order. The Signiory trying to conciliate him by bribes Dante, then a prior, refused to consent, and was banished.

Born in 1265, Dante Alighieri was the most illustrious of Italian poets, if not the greatest of all time; his love for Beatrice Portinari, the guiding star of his fitful, troubled life, was the motive power that produced the Divina Comedia, a triple poem of the three realms of the departed, Paradise, Purgatory and the Inferno, one of the grandest monuments of human genius. Banished to Ravenna, he laments the hardship of climbing the stairs of strangers and the bitterness of eating the bread of patrons. Buried at Ravenna, his countrymen, repenting of their hostility, begged that his ashes might be restored to them, but they were refused.

One faction succeeded another, the Bianchi and Neri; the Pitti family went down before the Medici. The richest citizen of Florence, Giovanni de Medici, was chosen Gonfaloniere in 1426. His eldest son, Cosmo, was styled the "Father of his Country." From him were descended Lorenzo il Magnifico, Popes Leo X. and Clement VII, Catherine de Medici, queen of Henry II. of France, the mother of 3

French kings, and Alessandro, the first Duke of Florence. In the Pazzi conspiracy of 1478 Lorenzo narrowly escaped with his life, while his brother, Giovanni, was murdered before the altar of the Cathedral.

When Charles VIII. was invited by Ludovico el Moro, lord of Milan, into Italy, Piero de Medici offered to yield the fortresses of Tuscany to him, and consequently had to flee from Florence as a traitor. Charles lingered in Florence till Savonarola bade him begone.

Giraloma Savonarola, like Dante, was one of the great reformers before the Reformation, and one of the noblest sons of Florence. Born in 1452, at Ferrara, he became a Dominican monk, and was sent to the Convent of San Marco in Florence, where he failed as a preacher at first, from his diminutive size and harsh voice: later he returned and became a great religious and political leader. Applying the visions and prophetic denunciations of the Apocalypse to the pagan Renaissance of Italy, he became the Vicar General of his order and a great leader. George Eliot, in Romola, gives a fine portraiture of him. Later he lost his power and popularity through the enmity of Pope Alexander VI., a Borgia, and his infamous son, Cæsar Borgia. Savonarola was dragged to prison and to torture, and was finally strangled and then burned in Florence, in front of the Palazzo Vecchio.

Francis I., Grand Duke of Tuscany, and a Medici, lived in 1575. His niece, Mary de Medici, married Henry IV., of France. In 1737 Gian Gastone, the last of the Medici, ruled in Florence. By the Pragmatic Sanction, Tuscany was given to Francis of Lorraine in exchange for his duchy, which was then annexed to the French crown. And so Florence, the beautiful, has drifted along, until, in 1870, it became a part of the new kingdom of Italy under Vittorio Emanuele II., of the house of Savoy, after the war of Italian nationality, by which the Austrian power was broken in Italy.

The greatest names in literature are found among the people of Florence during the brilliant Renaissance from 1200 to 1500. Dante, Savonarola, Galileo, the Medici, Guicciardini, Ariosto, Alfieri, Boccaccio, author of the Decameron, Machiavelli, and a host of others, eminent in science, philosophy and poetry.

In art it would appear as if nearly all the great masters were Florentines, or, at least, left their choicest work to adorn her palaces and churches. The names of her great artists were: Andrea Orcagna, Taddea Gaddi, Fra Filippo Lippi, Fra Angelico, Andrea Castagno, Donatello, Desiderio di Littignano, Fra Bartolommeo, Sandro Botticelli, Ghirlandajo, Brunelleschi, Leonardo Da Vinci, Raphael, Michel Angelo. Cimabue commenced a new era in painting, and Giotto, his pupil, went still farther. He built the beautiful Campanile, or bell tower, of the Cathedral, a wonderful poem in marble, flashing in the Italian sunlight. Ruskin said of it, "that bright, smooth, sunny surface of glowing jasper, those spiral shafts and fairy traceries, so white, so crystalline, seem like a serene height of mountain alabaster, colored like a morning cloud and chased like a tinted sea-shell."

Chief among the ecclesiastical edifices of Florence is the magnificent group of the Duomo or Cathedral, the Campanile, and the Baptistery. Brunelleschi, the wonder of Cosmo's age, crowned the city with the vast dome of its cathedral, a structure unthought of in Italy before, and rarely, if ever, surpassed. Michel Angelo, who modelled the dome of St. Peter's, said, in passing the Duomo, "Surpass it I cannot; imitate it I will not." The Baptistery of St. John, in front of the Cathedral, the Florentines say, was originally a temple of Mars, but if it be so, little of its ancient design remains. The mosaics of the floor and ceiling, the frescoes around the walls, are striking, but the glory of the edifice are its great bronze doors, which Michel Angelo said were worthy to be the Gates of Paradise.

Among the other churches of Florence, Santa Croce is the Westminster Abbey of the city. Here are monuments to Michel Angelo, Galileo, Dante, Raphael, Machiavelli, Alfieri, &c. The church of San Lorenzo is famous for its Medicean Chapel, lined with richest marbles, agates, jaspers, lapislazuli: the sacristy contains the monuments erected to the Medici by Michel Angelo. The Annunziata is a blaze of color from its paintings, marbles, precious stones and altars covered with gold and silver.

The palaces of Florence are numerous. The Palazzo Vecchio was erected in 1298 for the Gonfaloniere and the Magistracy of the Republic, and was the centre of the political life of Florence. In front of the Palazzo Vecchio, in the Piazza della Signoria, stand some of the finest statues of the city. Here are the David of M. Angelo; Perseus of Benvenuto Cellini; The Rape of the Sabines by John of Bologna. The Pitti Palace, the Uffizi, with their galleries of paintings and statuary alone would require a volume of description, a whole art catalogue. The Venus de Medici, the Madonna della Sedia, alone would make a gallery famous. In one room, called the Tribune, are most of the noted statues of antiquity; in another, we find the group of Niobe and her seven children, as they are one by one slain by the pitiless darts of Apollo. Raphael's and Titian's masterpieces are here. The private palaces are the Strozzi, Corsini, Albizzi, Rucellai, Alessandri, Corsi, &c.

The numerous convents in Florence are rich in art treasures, but we cannot touch upon them. The convent of San Marco, in which Savonarola lived, is almost unchanged from his day. The walls are covered with exquisite frescoes by Fra Angelico, who was so devout an artist that he always painted on his knees. Savonarola's Bible is shown in his cell, the margin filled with annotations in his handwriting.

The Boboli Gardens lie behind the Palazzo Pitti, formerly the residence of the Grand Duke of Tuscany, and of Vittoria Emanuele II. the few years that Florence was the capital of Italy. Long avenues of trees, walks between thick walls of box, terraces, evergreens, water-falls, lakes, statues, parterres gay with flowers, all form a beautiful whole. The view from these gardens is superb.

There are 3 large and valuable Libraries in the city: the National, which unites the Pitti with the Magliabecchian, the two together 280,000 volumes; the Marucelliano, and the Laurentian, founded by Lorenzo de Medici, and attached to the Convent of San Lorenzo. The last one has over 9,000 valuable manuscripts, illuminated Bibles, missals, &c.

As you stand on the streets of the Florence of to-day, you perhaps hear the tinkle of little bells and see a procession of dark-robed monks approaching; they are the Miserecordia or Brothers of Mercy made up of Florentines of all ranks, whose members are bound together by solemn vows, to bury the dead, strangers or poor people, to convey the sick to hospitals, or whatever charitable service is required of them, all without payment.

The chattering and jabbering of the people in the streets is simply deafening. Here is a merchant or shop-keeper with a street stall who swears by everything sacred that he will take no less than a fixed price, and the customer swears just as roundly that he will give no more. A stranger would expect a deadly strife, but soon the trade is amicably adjusted. The sights and sounds of the Florence of to-day are different from those of 500 years ago, but the city, under the new regime, is prosperous, and, we will hope, has entered upon a new lease of life, freed from the intestine strifes that annoyed her in the Renaissance.

The Entertainment of February 22d.

THE evening of Feb. 22 was marked by an entertainment, given in the ACADEMY Chapel, by the Euterpean Society; it was an occasion of more than ordinary interest and reflected credit on all engaged therein. Mr. Du Four was kind enough to write an amusing, original Charade, entitled Pot-Luck. The plot was good, and the performers entered into it with energy and spirit. Where all did well it would be invidious to make distinctions,—indeed it must be a very cross-grained, frumpy nature that failed to laugh heartily at the good hits that were dealt right and left with unsparing hand. Music, both vocal and instrumental, tableau scenes, &c., made up the programme, with the Charade as a pièce de resistance.

The Salem Orchestra opened the exercises with one of their most spirited marches. The first tableau scene represented the Nine Muses in full panoply of tragic and comic equipments. The muse of Tragedy, Rachel Sims, was particularly striking in sweeping pall. Mattie Clark represented Calliope, Lily Clark Clio, the muse of History,—Bert Fitzpatrick made a pretty muse of Comedy,—Lilian Parker represented Polyhymnia,—Minnie Trimnier was Urania,—Lilian Thompson Euterpe, the muse of Harmony, who gives name to the Society,—Lizzie Sutton was Erato, and held a large lyre in her hand,—Edna Ingram was Terpsichore.

A medley of old songs followed, in which the girls who sang the different airs appeared in characteristic dress. Mary Fitzpatrick made a very fine old lady, dressed in black, as with dignified step and bowed head she came forward singing Auld Lang Syne, which turned into Rory O' Moore, Lena Fields representing Kathleen Bawn; Janie Whitner sang the Last Rose of Summer as she held a drooping rose in her hand; Hattie Sutton and Bert Fitzpatrick took up the strain of Home, Sweet Home, the others joining in the chorus; Emily Hazlehurst brought down the house in Dixie, which has a peculiar charm for southern ears; her costume and acting were simply perfect; Mary Penn sang Comin' Through the Rye, and Sue Borden Listen to the Mocking Bird.

An instrumental solo was played by Marguerite Du Four, followed by a tableau scene, Rebecca and Rowena, from Ivanhoe: Gladys Crawford made an exquisite Rowena, and Rachel Sims, Rebecca, in her oriental beauty. After a performance by the orchestra, the first syllable of the Charade was given in various scenes. A young lady, Miss Ethel, is seen seated in deep dejection, having lost her father and nobly given up all his property to save his good name. She has absolutely nothing left but a fine tulip, growing in a Pot, standing on a table by her side. Her old friend, Dr. Van Lych, coming in, presents her with a receipt in full from her father's creditors. After desultory conversation, he sits down to read the papers, and there finds among other bits of news that a Chicago millionaire, a tulip fancier, offers $5000 for a very rare specimen of the Arch Duchess of Ghent, as the bulb was called. One of Ethel's ancestors had purchased this very bulb for $20,000 during the great tulip mania of Holland. The Doctor finds from several old leaves of a family Bible that Ethel's bulb is the noted tulip, and he goes to Chicago to secure the $5000 for her.

Bert Fitzpatrick then sang Margarita Erik (Meyer-Helmund), after which the second syllable of the Charade, Luck, was illustrated. This was a bright and witty school scene, where Janie Whitner was Miss Mary Summerville, the teacher, and Nellie Warner, Marguerite Du Four, Carrie Wray, Lizzie Sutton, Mary Penn and Lillian Thompson were scholars, under the euphonious names of Selma Kettle drum, Caledonia Axelgries, Arabella Buggywheel, Cornelia Horseshoe, Miss Smallbones, &c. Addie Laciari rendered a fine vocal solo, The Daisy (Franz Abt), was encored, and sang Katie, Come In and Shut the Gate (Herbert Leslie), with even greater expression and acceptance than the first.

The entire word of the Charade, Pot-Luck, was then brought out in a scene where Emily Hazlehurst and Daisy Rayner, two old maids, with very scant preparations for dinner, were overwhelmed by visitors, relatives who stopped to take dinner with them. Daisy, as Miss Elmira, fainted as natural as life at the accumulation of troubles. Minnie Fagg and Ethel Griffiss were good as the two giggling daughters of Mrs. Pompous (Sue Borden), as also were Mary Fitzpatrick and Maggie Graham in the characters of Mr. and Mrs. Cottonwig. Sadie Rumbough as Miss Doodle in the first scene, and Emma Rollins in a later one, were capital representatives of their several parts.

A vocal solo, Caroline, by Mary Penn, was loudly encored, as, indeed, were all the scenes and performances, but the lateness of the hour precluded too much repetition. A tableau scene, Maud Muller, Minnie Trimmier, raking hay, while the Judge, Sadie Rumbough, with pleased eyes looked down into her arch, dimpling face, was the next in order.

In instrumental solo, Whims (Schumann), by Mary Fitzpatrick followed. The concluding tableau scene, The Gipsy Camp, well deserved to be the last, for it was unusually good and well wrought out in every detail; the gipsy tents, the kettle, the rich and picturesque costumes, the attitudes and occupations of the girls, fortune telling, &c., all combined to leave a pleasing impression. The members of the orchestra who added so much to the enjoyment of the evening afterwards joined us in some refreshments in the dining-hall.

Miss Nellie Bewley's Marriage.

A CLIPPING from an Anderson, S. C., paper gives us an interesting account of the Frierson-Bewley marriage on Dec. 19th, 1888:

"On Wednesday night, at 8:30 o'clock, W. H. Frierson, Esq., our worthy county treasurer, and Miss Nellie Bewley, one of the prettiest and most popular young ladies of Anderson, were married in the Baptist church by Rev. D. E. Frierson, D.D., father of the groom, assisted by Rev. A. A. Marshall, pastor of the Baptist church.

There was a large gathering of the relatives and friends of the contracting couple to witness the interesting ceremony, and all were highly pleased. There were no decorations in the church, except a simple but neat evergreen pavilion on the rostrum, behind which was fixed on the wall a floral anchor between the letters 'F' and 'B.'

"Mrs. L. M. Ayer presided at the organ, and as the wedding march pealed forth the officiating ministers proceeded up the right aisle, followed by the ushers. Then followed the attendants, the couples proceeding, alternately, in the two aisles, and crossing to the opposite side upon reaching the rostrum, viz: Miss Nellie Towers with Mr. A. W. Kay; Miss Kate Bewley, of Laurens, with Dr. J. H. Burgess; Miss Mira Fant with Mr. T. S. Crayton, Jr.; Miss Janie Gordon with Mr. J. W. Mattison; Miss Lily Scott, of Charlotte, N. C., with Mr. R. C. Cunningham; Miss Nellie Hoyt, of Greenville, with Judge W. F. Cox; Miss Hattie Frierson, of Laurens, with Mr. Wyatt Aiken, of Cokesburg; Miss Luta Bewley with Mr. R. Ethan Frierson.

"Then came the bride and groom, who were soon pronounced man and wife by Dr. Frierson, and the divine blessing on the union was invoked by Rev. Mr. Marshall. The bride wore pearl white cashmere and silk with lace and cord trimmings, real orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white hyacinths and autumn roses. The groom wore an elegantly fitting Prince Albert suit.

"After the ceremony a charming reception was given the bridal party and a few relatives and intimate friends at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. C. D. Bewley, on McDuffie street, and on Thursday night another reception was given at the residence of the groom's father, Rev. D. E. Frierson, D.D., to a large number of friends in honor of the bridal party. The young couple were the recipients of a large number of handsome presents, along with the best wishes of many friends for happiness and prosperity in the new life which they have just entered."

—Thanks to Miss Kate Paddison for a box of deliciously fragrant orange buds and blossoms. They do not look much like the poor little starved and stunted blossoms of our trees.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., MARCH, 1889.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers
constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

AMONG the various documents sent us from Washington, we have lately received an interesting volume, issued by the Bureau of Education, entitled the History of Education in North Carolina, by Charles Lee Smith, Fellow in History and Politics of Johns Hopkins University.

It is a valuable compilation, beginning with education under the Proprietary Government from 1663—1729; it then goes on to the Provincial and State Governments before 1800, noting the first efforts for governmental aid, first school legislation, the early preparatory schools, &c.

Considerable space is devoted to the State University from its founding to the present day, with various illustrations of the buildings on the campus, Society Halls, &c. Next the book goes on to speak of the denominational colleges in the State, of Wake Forest, Davidson, Trinity, the female schools, SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, St. Mary's, Peace Institute, Greensboro Female College, Thomasville, Oxford, &c. It then gives a general survey of Preparatory and Graded Schools, colored schools and so on.

At the close of the sketch of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY it says: "The influence of Salem Female Academy has been widespread. For many years it was the only institution of repute in the South for female education. Its pupils have, therefore, been unusually well represented in the leading families of the South. A great many of its Alumnae have become teachers and heads of seminaries and academies, carrying the thorough and painstaking methods of this school into their institutions. It is probably owing to the influence of the Salem Academy that preparatory institutions for the education of girls are more numerous in the South and, as a rule, better equipped than are similar institutions for boys."

The book is well written and well illustrated. The abundant materials were derived from the recently published Colonial Records, church and denominational histories, sketches of particular periods, &c., and Mr. Smith was one of the first to avail himself of them. He is quite a young man, the son of Dr. L. Turner Smith, of Durham: he graduated at Wake Forest in 1884, and will take his Doctor's degree in June at Johns Hopkins.

In looking up some items of information recently we were much pleased with a book donated to our Library some time ago by Mr. Henry E. Fries. It is the Annual Report of the Bureau of Ethnology, published by the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., and compiled by J. W. Powell, Director of the Smithsonian Institute. It is filled with illustrations of the articles made and used by the Navajo and Zuni Indians of New Mexico and Arizona, equipments of war, idols and fetiches, belts of wampum, implements of stone, richly colored blankets and girdles woven by those peoples, whose habits and ways of living have been well described by Frank H. Cushing: he resided among them, in their pueblos, in order to study their language, mythology, sociology and art, and full results obtained by him were forwarded to the Smithsonian Institute where we examined them years ago just as they were being unpacked and set up.

Stevenson's researches among the Indians of this and other sections are also here recorded and illustrated. Their peculiar, brilliantly colored pottery, feather and bead work, stone jars and vases, gods, &c., are very interesting, as also are their folk lore, their legends, &c. A good deal of linguistic work among the various Indian languages and dialects is also mentioned and illustrated.

Mr. Fries likewise kindly donated some 6 large volumes, compilations of The Colonial Records of North Carolina, published by order of the General Assembly of 1886, and collected and edited by William L. Saunders, Secretary of State. The 6 volumes run from 1662 to 1765, and are a perfect treasure house of information concerning colonial times in North Carolina.

Mr. J. C. Buxton also, several years ago, presented us with Prof. C. S. Sargent's excellent series of 16 large Maps of the Forest Trees of America. Thus the good work has begun and, we trust, will continue, until our Library becomes a power, not only in the ACADEMY, but in the place.

Correspondence.

—Our first communication for March is from one of our honor girls of last June, Miss KATE PADDISON, of Florida, and is very acceptable indeed.

"I remember when I was living in your room, seeing you sitting at your table, reading and answering letters from your "old girls." Sitting in my room to-night the thought occurred to me that perhaps you would not object to hearing from one who is now classed among "the old girls!"

I have not written since my return to Florida, but it has not been from want of inclination, but because I somehow have not the faculty of doing the right thing at the right time. When I had been down here eleven days, I accepted a situation as teacher, and have been engaged in that work ever since. I think I have found my calling for it is the only thing I ever followed that did not after a time grow monotonous. I have eighteen pupils, ten little boys, and eight girls, just as interesting as they can be. I find so much more pleasure in this, than I fancy I would in Society life. I have more opportunity for keeping up my studies, and pursuing a course of reading.

Before Christmas I read Dickens, and since Christmas I have been reading from different authors, books that we used to discuss in Literary History class. I have just finished "Endymion." This week I cannot read much, for I have to correct the monthly examination papers. Next week however, I hope to take up "Thackeray," have been trying "Shakespeare," but do not enjoy him alone, rather prefer reading him with a companion. My eyes hold out fairly well, but still I have to humor them a good deal. I am compelled to wear my glasses now continually, taking them off only when I retire.

My health is about as usual. I am very anxious to visit Salem at Commencement but that is still in the future. I long for a sight of our Principal and teachers. Every spot of Salem is dear to me. I spent two happy years there. Our chain of 30 links has been broken; I wonder who will be the next to follow NELLIE BEWLEY's example. Professor MARKGRAFF gave us all a surprise. I was utterly astounded. Have you had much cold weather? This has been an unusually cold winter for Florida; ice twice and frost a few times. Vegetables are in, beets, beans, cucumbers, lettuce, etc. I saw a strawberry to-day, almost ripe.

Please remember me to all the teachers, to Dr. and Mrs. RONDTHALER, Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL, etc. With much love for yourself.

Affectionately,

KATE PADDISON.

Turnbull, Fla.

—A few items from a letter received from SUE WATSON now Mrs. Seybt, will be acceptable, though it has been on hand for sometime.

"I have been wanting to write to you for a long time, to tell you all about our marriage, but I have been in a constant round of visiting and receiving company, almost ever since that event took place. We certainly enjoyed our Washington and Baltimore trip very much; we had beautiful weather all the time we were away.

We have not as yet gone to house-keeping but are living with Papa and Mamma; they are anxious for us to remain, so I do not know how long we will stay. I think I should enjoy house-keeping, I always did like it. When we passed Greensboro I told Mr. Seybt I felt as if I must run up and see the dear ACADEMY. I would like so much to see all the changes and improvements made.

I have received so many nice letters from the girls since my marriage. MYRA is having a good time, and so is ALICE OLLINGER. Can you tell me where MARY COOK is living now? We had a very pleasant though quiet Christmas, and I just believe I am the happiest girl in the world. Please change my address from SUE WATSON to Mrs. U. E. Seybt.

With many good wishes for the prosperity of the dear ACADEMY, and love to all the teachers, I remain

With much love,

SUE SEYBT.

Anderson, S. C.

—A very few lines from NINA FLOURNOY are as follows:

"It has been such a long time since I have heard from you that I must write again and remind you that I am still in Shreveport, and am still as anxious to hear from you as when I first left school. I know you have a great deal to attend to, but I hope that new classes and faces will not make you forgetful of the old, and remember there are still members of the class of '88 who love you and will always be glad to hear from you.

Yours truly,

NINA FLOURNOY.

—An interesting letter was received from one who is better known to the older teachers as SUE YANDELL, than as Mrs. William Handy. SUE and EMMA YANDELL from Canton, Miss., were here early during the war.

"You will doubtless be somewhat surprised at receiving a reply to your letter so kindly written, after so long a time. Pardon me I beg, for what has seemed perhaps as intentional neglect. It is not so however. I have been, and am still in fact, a great invalid. For almost a year I was confined to my room and bed, and even after convalescent sufficiently to be up and about, I remained too feeble until recently, to take much interest in things.

I sent your letter to my sister, and I know she has written you of herself and whereabouts e'er this. She married Judge H. S. Foote, of Canton, Miss., and they removed to Oakland, California, five years ago, this past January. I had a letter from her a few days since, and they are now residing in San Francisco. Judge Foote finds it more convenient for his business. We left Canton four years ago, and have been residing here in Birmingham ever since.

I never had the pleasure of knowing you, as you were not connected with the school, when I was there. However I have heard my dear sister speak of you so frequently, and with such warmth of affection that I can assure you, you do not appear as a stranger to me. It will have been 25 years in June since I left dear old Salem, where some happy years of my life were spent. How many tender memories cluster around the sweet old "Alma Mater," and what infinite pleasure it would afford me to pay it a visit. I did not receive the copy of the paper you sent as it went to Canton, and was not forwarded to this place. I hope you will be kind enough to send me another copy, as I should much like to see it. Will you please also send me one of the latest Catalogues? I have never met any of my old classmates, since leaving Salem. I suppose some of the dear teachers have passed away since I was there. Is Miss REICHEL still living? If so, remember me affectionately to her.

Hoping soon to receive a visit from your pen, I am Very truly yours,

SUE YANDELL HANDY.

Birmingham, Ala.

—ANNE BOYD gives us a most welcome letter, after we had well nigh despaired of hearing from her.

"How happy I was this morning to receive your nice letter. It made me feel as if I would like to go back to the ACADEMY. After I came home in summer there was so much to see, and so much to talk about, that time slipped by almost imperceptibly. My young ladyhood thus far has been quite as pleasant as one could wish. I make my home in Magnolia with my father now.

Christmas was enjoyed very greatly. During Christmas I took a trip to New Orleans; the city was more than beautiful in its Holiday garb. The rest of the time I spent in Summit with friends.

With kindest regards to all, best wishes to the class of '89, and love to yourself, I am

Your affectionate pupil,

ANNIE BOYD.

Summit, Miss.

—LAURA DICKS writes from her new home, Walkertown. We are pleased to hear from her.

"I have intended writing for some time but if you have ever had anything to do with moving you will know exactly how my time has been employed during the last month.

We left town the latter part of November and are nicely settled in the country. Our home is on the Roanoke and Southern Railroad. I enclose 50 cents to renew my subscription to THE ACADEMY, and would also like to have my name added to the lists of the Alumnae Association; should feel as if an old friend had deserted me, if I failed to get THE ACADEMY. Nothing can ever eradicate the tender memories associated with that home. I had hoped to make you all a visit long before this that I might see the changes and improvements going on in the old school home, but my mother's health has kept me at home. I would like to ask you many questions but for fear I am taking up too much of your valuable time, I will close for the present.

Wishing you all success throughout this year, with love to all, I remain

Your affectionate pupil,

LAURA DICKS.

Walkertown, N. C.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—MARY PASCHAL's mother, we are sorry to learn, died in December of consumption. MARY has our deepest sympathies.

—MATTIE CLARK returned again to her school work February 3rd. Her health appears to be better here than any where else.

—Capt. G. S. Hardee, of Rockledge, Fla., came up on March 2nd, to take FLORENCE home awhile. She is not able to study, and the change will probably enable her to return next session with renewed vigor and energy.

—Hon. Thos. Sutton, of the Legislature and Dr. Anthony, of Bertie, came up from their legislative duties in Raleigh, to spend Sunday with HATTIE and LIZZIE DELL, on February 24th—quite a pleasant little episode for the girls in their school life.

—We see from a Laurensville, (S. C.) paper that the Trustees of Friendship School at Charlton Hall have secured the services of Miss KATE LARK for the present year. KATE was here at school during the last years of the Rev. M. E. GRUNERT's administration.

—Miss KATE BITTING one of the most popular young ladies of Winston, and a graduate of the class of '85, was married March 6th, at her home in Winston. The marriage was a quiet one, and the young couple left on the evening train for a tour to some northern cities.

—We see that Professor R. O. Holt, late of Oak Ridge Institute, has entered upon the duties of his Civil Service appointment in Washington, D. C., and bids fair to make his mark there as he has done elsewhere. Prof. Ransom takes his place as Professor of Mathematics in the Institute.

—Col. Chas. R. Jones, of Charlotte, LEILA's father, died Feb. 19th, at his home, pending the arrangements to remove him to the Morganton Asylum. He was long a prominent N. C. journalist, editor of the Charlotte Observer, &c., but broke down mentally and physically. He leaves a wife and four children.

—The faithful Stewardess of the ACADEMY Mrs. Carmichael, (perhaps better known to some of our Alumnae of 30 years as ELIZA VIERLING) celebrated her 50th birthday, February 26th. A number of friends called upon her during the afternoon and evening to offer their congratulations. She received from her son Professor Robert Carmichael a handsome gold watch with monogram thereon,—from Miss ALMA a pair of gold spectacles,—from the teachers a rattan easy chair, besides numbers of presents both useful and beautiful from friends.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Some of the French scholars are at work on Ludovic Halevy's "Abbe Constantin."

—Prof. MARGRAFF and wife have gone to housekeeping. They have set up their household gods in the old Fisher house, opposite Fogle Bros. Mills.

—Logarithms sometimes go to the head, causing a rush of blood to the brain, but we never before heard of their falling into the feet and causing lameness until recently.

—On a windy Saturday afternoon, March 9th, two wagon loads of girls, principally from down stairs, got up a straw ride out into the country under Prof. WURRESCHKE'S charge.

—Thanks to Mrs. A. D. Prince (HENNIE SCHIFF), of Washington, for set of copies of Washington Evening Star, giving full and detailed accounts of the Inauguration ceremonies, ball, &c.

—We acknowledge, with special pleasure, an invitation to a reception, March 21, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, given by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Patterson, of 1622 Wallace Street, Philadelphia.

—We see from the Washington Post's account of the Inaugural Ball in the Pension building, Washington, that it was a perfect crush. Among some thousands of names of ladies present we see that of Miss GRACE NICHOLS and Mrs. John Nichols, of Raleigh.

—We greet with pleasure a new exchange among college periodicals, viz., The Guilford Collegian, published monthly by the Literary Societies of Guilford or New Garden College, New Garden, N. C. It is well gotten up and bids fair to become a faithful exponent of the work done there.

—We see a notice in the Atlanta Constitution of an elegant reception given in Atlanta uppertendom by Miss Annie Adair in honor of her guest, Miss Sadie Polk Hall, of Nashville, Tenn. Among those present we see the familiar names of Mr. and Mrs. Pat. Hunnicutt, Misses Eddie and Pinkie Hunnicutt.

—A letter received from Dr. RONDTHALER February 26th, was written just as he was on the eve of sailing February 23rd, from New York, in the good ship "Devonia," for Glasgow. We hope to hear from him on his travels, though we know he will not have too much time for letter writing, glad as we shall be to receive them.

—Writers should not be discouraged if they do not hear from their manuscripts at once. Thomas Nelson Page, the famous Virginia writer, sent his popular story, "Marse Chan," to Scribner's Magazine in 1880. A few months later he received a notification of its acceptance and a check for $80. It was published in 1884.

—The poetic mill has been set in motion in the Senoir Class. Do you not sympathize with us in our woes, Seniors of '88? You have been there also in the past. A despair second only to that of Essay time sat on every brow, and such expressions were common "I was not born under a rhyming planet,"— "Poeta nascitur non fit," &c.

—Class colors have been decided upon by the Seniors, and they are resplendent in cream and gold, a very handsome combination. Class rings are next in order. Mr. Vogler brought down a variety of sample rings from which the girls made their selection, and a very excellent selection it was. The rings will be ready in the course of 2 weeks.

—Several new applicants for membership in the Alumnae Association of the ACADEMY have been received and are cordially welcome. Among them are Mrs. Hunt (LORENA BOBBITT), Oxford, N. C.; Mrs. Kirke (LOULA GIBBS), Bentonia, Miss.; Mrs. Dr. Bogle (MATTIE BOYD), Midland, Tenn.; Miss LAURA DICKS, Walkertown, N. C.; Miss ROXIE ARMFIELD, Greensboro, N. C.

—We are very pleased to see that the Hesperian Society has also obtained a hall for their regular meetings. Mr. CLEWELL had the carpenters at work fitting up what had been set apart some time ago for a Calisthenic hall in the basement, but soon grew too small as the number of pupils in the ACADEMY increased so rapidly. The box-room was moved a little farther on also. It gives more dignity to a Society to have its own hall.

—Mr. CLEWELL, Prof. WURRESCHKE and Rev. John McCuiston divide Dr. RONDTHALER'S duties between themselves during his absence. Rev. Mr. McCuiston acts as pastor besides his preaching duties. The various chapels around the mother church, Elm Street, Centreville, East Salem, the Colored church, and Oak Grove, several miles away, are all the centres of growing congregations, very much alive and in earnest.

—We were justly proud of the success which attended the entertainment of the Euterpean Society on the evening of Washington's Birthday. The audience appeared to be charmed with the performances, and though there were other attractions in Winston and elsewhere, the Chapel was comfortably filled. Over fifty dollars were netted, which will be applied to furnishing their Hall. The Society is doing well, and shows that the interests of the organization are in safe hands.

—Washington's Birthday is our first holiday in the new year, and we celebrated it faithfully, as patriotic children of "the Father of his Country." A beautiful snow fell during the previous evening but it remained on the ground a very short time, so short indeed that by the time the idea of a sleigh-ride had penetrated the brain, the snow was gone. The day was spent quietly and happily by the girls, partly in preparation for the evening. A good dinner was not the least enjoyable part of the day.

—A European tour is now the great and all absorbing topic of conversation among the teachers and among some of the older girls. Several of the teachers will probably attempt the tour this summer. Two of the Seniors of '88 visited Europe, DAISY CLISBY at the beginning of the school-year, September, '87, and ILAH DUNLAP, May, '88, just before the close. European travel is becoming a necessity for cultured people, it is no longer a luxury well nigh unattainable as it once was, and only then for the favored few.

—Valentines are evidently going out of style though a few still put in their appearance about the 14th of February, but the number is very small compared with the loads brought some years ago. It may be that people have become exhausted over Christmas and New Year cards, or perhaps they are becoming too matter of fact for such trivialities, as the worship of good old Bishop Valentine, and his attendant loves and doves. We saw a new feature in Valentines at Blum's Bookstore, consisting of "Telegrams transmitted by Cupid's Union Telegraph Company," quaint in design and general make up.

—A photograph of the new Annex Hall was taken March 5th, by Mr. Hough. It makes a handsome addition to the various ACADEMY views. He has quite a picture gallery, comprising views of different points of interest in the Playground, the 7 Croquet grounds and Lawn Tennis space, the large Pavilion, the rustic bridges, the Spring, the upper Summer house, Principal's house, with a number of views in the buildings, viz., the dining-room, the dormitories with alcoved beds, the staircases, the study parlors, all true to life and very bright and attractive.

—The Library Annex has been in the hands of the carpenters for several days, and as a result we have shelves all around the walls, furnishing ample storage room for the Encyclopedias, reference books and a large lot of volumes sent on from the Government Departments of Washington City. Now, if we could only have a number of the newer and more popular works of the day, we would be perfectly happy in our Library.

—The planet Venus just now is a magnificent object in our western sky after sunset; indeed, she may be distinctly seen in day-time by any one whose eyes are moderately strong. This is not an infrequent occurrence, but it appears to have excited an unusual degree of attention; some people suppose it to be a burning world and other improbable things: it is nothing more nor less than our next-door neighbor of the solar system in an especially resplendent and beaming mood.

—The faithful old bell in the back porch which has called so many generations of school-girls to meals, and has disturbed their morning dreams as the rising bell, was cracked a short time ago by ultra-vigorous pulls. We have a sort of substitute in the bell which formerly hung in the old Academy, but its voice seems to have become impaired by age, and it pipes a sort of cracked treble that reminds us of second childhood. On the morning of the 25th of February Lucy went through all the dormitories, ringing a little hand-bell, as the signal for rising.

—Mr. Hough has recently taken excellent views of our several ACADEMY buildings for the Catalogue, viz.: the new Annex Hall, the South Hall (old Academy building), and the ACADEMY proper, both front and rear. These pictures are really the first in which the noble proportions of these large buildings have ever shown to advantage. The rear view of the ACADEMY is fine, with the girls grouped in the large quadrangle formed by the north and south wings, which are each large structures in themselves. The pictures were taken from a height of some 20 or 25 feet, thus placing the different objects in a favorable perspective.

—On Saturday, March 9th, Professor MARKGRAFF gave a Mendelssohn Evening in the ACADEMY Chapel. Some few friends from town were present, with the whole school. The orchestra gave their efficient assistance; as also did Miss EVANS, Miss VAN VLECK and others. The Professor sketched the life of the great composer, Mendelssohn, briefly. The first piece on the programme was a Duo, overture, from the Hebrides, played by Miss MARGUERITE DU FOUR and the Professor. The second was the well known vocal duett, "O wert thou in the cauld blast," by Miss EVANS and Professor MARKGRAFF, followed by "Songs without words," by the Professor. The entire programme was as choice a repertoire as could be found in the whole range of this great composer. In the Professor's opening remarks he drew a comparison between the style of Beethoven and that of Mendelssohn, stating that the music of Beethoven was more virile, had more strength and power, while that of Mendelssohn, owing partly to his carefully sheltered easy life and partly to his natural bent, was more feminine, softer, more refined, and generally better appreciated by ladies.

Subscriptions.

Continued.

Mrs M J Phillips, m u M Kaliski, Monroe, Ouchita Parish, La; Mrs S R Perkins, Max Meadows, Va; Ashcraft & Owens, Winston, N C; Miss Lula Tate, Academy; Miss Lula Deadrick, Jonesboro, Tenn; Miss M A Fogle, Academy; Miss Maggie R Blain, Blackstock, S C; Mrs Dr A G Jones, Walnut Cove, N C; Mrs L B Winkler, Stockton, Cal; Miss Lola Miller, Hope, Ind; Mrs M E Wriston and Miss Alice Springs, Charlotte, N C; Miss Carrie Vest, Stony Ridge, N C; Mrs Emily Claypole, Newbern, N C; Miss L. Cox, Sedge Garden, N C; Mrs G W Sanderlin, Boston, N C; Miss Mattie Bahuson, Farmington, N C; Mrs N Klemann, Wilmington, N C; Mrs Jas Garrity, Corsicana, Texas; Mrs. Chas E Stevenson, Baltimore, Md; Mrs. Jessie Carter, Madison, N B; Mrs H S Gayle, Tupelo, Miss; Mrs John Kapp, Bethania, N C; Mrs A Winkler, Corsicana, Texas; Miss Lizzie Hicks, Miss Julia Hicks and Mrs J P Wyatt, Raleigh, N C; Mrs E B McMasters, Mrs J F Connor and Mrs L E Leavell, Winnsboro, S C; Mrs A C Ruthertord, Houston, Texas; Miss Mattie Caldwell, Concord, N C; Mrs J E Gilmer, Winston, N C; Mrs J M McClesky, Belleville, Ark; Mrs M E Scarborough, Rider Springs, S C; Misses A and K Olliger, Milton, Fla; Mrs W D Rankin, Lexington, Missouri; Mrs W D Stokes, Rocky Mount, N C; Miss Ella Thompson, Greenville, S C; Miss Annie Hill, Raleigh, N C; Miss Annie I. Ogburn, Smith's X Roads, Va; Mrs W

M Kellett, Waco, Texas; Miss Olivia Warner, Bethlehem, Pa; Mrs Eunice H Ohear, Winnsboro, S C; Mrs Amelia R Woodward, Cincinnati, Ohio; Miss Kate Paddison, Titusville, Fla; Miss Cora Vail and Miss Emma Schiiff, Charlotte, N C; Miss Alice Hill, Germanton, N C; Miss Mary Smith, Mexia, Texas; Mrs Florence Stockton, Winston, N C; Miss Irah Dunlap, Macon, Ga; Miss Jennie Ragsdale, Jamestown, N C; Miss A Bourdeaux, Academy; Miss Agnes Parker, Coatopa, Ala; Mr C B Pfohl, Miss Sallie Vest, Miss M E Vogler, Mrs W A Lemly, Mrs John Tise, Miss A Steiner, Mrs J G Sides, Mr T B Douthit, Mrs E W Leinbach, Mrs Allen Spach, Miss G Siewers, Mr E Pfohl, Miss Jane Welfare, Mr John Brietz, Mrs Henry Lemly, Miss Amy Van Vleck, Mrs Dora S Ebert, Mrs H T Bahnsen, Mrs E E Shelton, Mrs Geo E Nissen, Dr J F Shaffner, Mrs E Kremer, Dr N S Siewers, Mrs W H Hall, Mr H W Shore, Mr J W Fries, Mr F H Fries, Salem, N C.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under who senile, this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1866.

- 4455 JOE MARY RICE. — 1851.
Uncle, Dr. B. F. Arrington, Goldsboro, N. C.
- 4456 TILLA EDENS. — 1849.
Mother, Mary Edens, Little Rock, S. C.
- 4457 LIZZIE COOPER. — 1850.
Milton Cooper, Wetumpka, Ala.
- 4458 MOLLIE WILLIAMS. — 1851.
Dr. R. S. Williams, Wetumpka, Ala.
- 4459 HANNAH BAXTER. — 1850.
Dr. O. F. Baxter, Kempsville, Princess Anne Co., Virginia.
- 4460 LIZZIE J. RAINY. — 1853.
John G. Rainey, Ruffin, N. C.
- 4461 ISABELLA VIRGINIA (PINKIE) YORKE. — 1851.
A. I. Yorke, Concord, N. C.
- 4462 ESTHER FRANCIS MILLER. — 1851.
Paul Miller, Concord, N. C.
- 4463 MAGGIE SPRUILL. — 1851.
D. Spruill, Seppermong, N. C.
- 4464 DORA JETER. — 1852.
Thomas C. Jeter, Shelton's Ferry, S. C.
- 4465 SALLIE GRACE REID. — 1852.
Uncle, James H. Alexander, Union District, S. C.
- 4466 REBECCA JENNE DOGGETT. — — —
John Doggett, McLeansville, N. C.
- 4467 ROSA F. BRYAN. — 1853.
E. Bryan, Haywood, N. C.
- 4468 ELLA SELMA GRIFFIN. — 1851.
B. F. Griffin, Oak Hill, N. C.
- 4469 ELLEN BARRINGER. — 1851.
Moses Barringer, Gold Hill, N. C.
- 4470 LIZZIE G. JOHNSTON. — 1850.
Thomas D. Johnston, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4471 ROBERTA NEAL. — 1851.
James M. Neal, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4472 ALICE M. SHELTON. — 1851.
W. N. Shelton, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4473 TALLULAH A. LEA. — 1851.
Gen. James K. Lea, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4474 JUDITH H. SHEFFIELD. — 1850.
Wm. A. Sheffield, Ridgeway, N. C.
- 4475 MINNIE BURCH. — 1850.
John S. Burch, Cheraw, S. C.
- 4476 MIRIAM ELLERBEE. — 1850.
Guardian, W. H. McEver, Cheraw, S. C.
- 4477 NETTIE S. COVINGTON. — 1855.
Rockingham, N. C.

- 4478 CORINNA COVINGTON. — 1852.
Dr. C. C. Covington, Rockingham, N. C.
- 4479 MOLLIE WALL. — 1850.
Mial Wall, Rockingham, N. C.
- 4480 LIZZIE WATSON. — 1853.
John Watson, Warrenton, N. C.
- 4481 PATTIE BURNETT. — 1851.
Aunt, Martha Powell, Enfield, N. C.
- 4482 PATTIE JONES. — 1853.
Jos. J. Jones, Henderson, N. C.
- 4483 LIZZIE PHILLIPS. — 1855.
Dr. J. J. Phillips, Battleboro, V. C.
- 4484 ELEANORA RAMSEY. — 1854.
M. J. Ramsey, Pittsboro, N. C.
- 4485 ANN W. COTTEN. — 1853.
R. Clifford Cotten, Hadley's Mills, N. C.
- 4486 ANNA SCURRY. — 1851.
- 4487 SALLIE SCURRY. — 1853.
James Scurry, Newton, Ga.
- 4488 ANNA J. VINSON. — 1850.
Brother and Guardian, A. P. Vinson, Blackstck, S. C.
- 4489 KATE J. ROGERS. — 1851.
H. J. Rogers, Brownsville, S. C.
- 4490 FANNIE DEAL. — 1849.
Eli Deal, Newton, N. C.
- 4492 JANE C. WILSON. — 1848.
- 4493 ALICE WILSON. — 1852.
M. M. Wilson, Newton, N. C.
- 4494 ANNIE JAMES. — 1852.
Mother, Harriet James, Newton, N. C.
- 4495 MARY E. WRIGHT. — 1849.
James A. Wright, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4496 SUE JOHNSON. — 1849.
Brother-in-law and Guardian, James A. Wright, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4497 LINDA COLEMAN. — 1851.
George W. Colemau, Clayton, Ala.
- 4498 FLORENCE GIBBS. — 1850.
Seth Gibbs, Middleton, N. C.
- 4499 MOLLIE J. BERRY. — 1849.
Uncle, John Worsham, Kuffin, N. C.
- 4500 LEO EPPING. — 1851.
- 4501 REBECCA EPPING. — 1852.
H. H. Epping, Columbus, Ga.
- 4502 JULIA ABERCROMBIE. — 1850.
- 4503 MINNIE ABERCROMBIE. — 1852.
Dr. Chas. Abercrombie, Columbus, Ga.
- 4504 SALLIE WILKINS. — 1852.
Mother, Mrs. S. Wilkins, Columbus, Ga.
- 4505 MOLLIE FLOURNOY. — 1852.
Mother, Mrs. Mary A. Flournoy, Columbus, Ga.
- 4506 LIZZIE C. WHITT. — 1856.
Uncle, C. P. Whitt, Bellevue, Ala.
- 4507 HARRIET H. FRANCE. — 1849
- 4508 LUCY D. FRANCE. — 1850.
Capt. H. C. France, Horse Pasture, Va.
- 4509 MARY C. COCKE. — 1852.
James F. Cocke, Brandon, Miss.
- 4510 FANNIE MARCH. — 1850.
A. H. March, Holtsboro, N. C.
- 4511 LAURA BOOHER. — 1851.
D. L. Booher, Columbus, Ga.
- 4512 MATTIE ESTIS. — 1850.
H. S. Estis, Columbus, Ga.
- 4513 LA VERA BARSHALL. — 1850.
Jos. Barshall, Columbus, Ga.
- 4514 MARIA STOCKTON. — 1850.
R. S. Stockton, Columbus, Ga.

Splinters.

--Nature's Serial Story—the Spinal column.
—A paper that has some grit in it—sand-paper.
—Period 6th in our Literary History runs from the Resurrection (Restoration) to 1745.
—A new addition to a list of plants found within a radius of 6 miles from Salem—the Electric Plant.
—It is said, though we cannot altogether vouch for its truth that a traveller returning from Central Africa was met by a native very scantily clad, whose first question was, "Have you read "Robert Elmsnere?"

Married.

WAGGOMAN—KEEHLN.—In Salem, February 14th, Mr. EDWARD WAGGOMAN to Miss EMMA KEEHLN.

REYNOLDS—BITTING.—In Winston, N. C., March 6th, Mr. WILLIAM REYNOLDS to Miss KATE BITTING, daughter of Col. J. A. Bitting.

MCBEE—GWYN.—In Wilkesboro, N. C., Feb. 7th, by Rev. R. W. Barber, Rev. VARDREY MCBEE, of Alabama, to Miss JOYCE GWYN, of Wilkes Co., N. C.

Died.

PARKER.—In Winston, February 17th, Mrs. JOSIE PARKER, daughter of Rev. T. H. Pegram, aged about 25 years.

—* MISS EMMA I. LEINBACH, *—
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

LADIES' SHOPPING AND PURCHASING AGENT,

ALSO AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.

146 WEST 16th ST., NEW YORK CITY.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician; she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.
Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

—FOUNDED 1802.—

Salem Female Academy.

SALEM, N. C.

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

ADVANTAGES.

Healthy location, ample grounds, well-arranged Infirmary.

Careful discipline. Two teachers in charge of each Room Company. Commodious study-parlors. Well-aired, warmed and lighted dormitories, with separate sleeping alcoves for each pupil, and convenient wash-rooms on the same floor.

A graded course of thorough Academic instruction. Classes never overcrowded. Twenty-four professors and teachers. Much attention to the wants of the individual scholar. Large library and reading-room.

Unusually well-equipped Music, Art, Linguistic and Commercial Departments, under the most competent teachers.

Religious instruction, which is simple, careful and unsectarian. Has been trusted in by members of all Christian denominations for more than three-fourths of a century.

Charges, which are as low as the advantages offered by the Institution will permit. Send for Catalogue.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY,
Salem, North Carolina.

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical. $1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies.

Address:
THE SCHOOLTEACHER,
WINSTON, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES, AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT," AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

 MONEY

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere; Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

—CLINARD & BROOKES.—

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

—Dealer in—

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

—OF—

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., APRIL, 1889.

NUMBER 95.

NOVELISTS OF TO-DAY.

THE four great English novelists, Charles Dickens, Sir Walter Scott, William Makepeace Thackeray and George Eliot, will probably stand unrivalled and alone for ages, if not for all time. Scott, the first in point of time, died in 1832, in the same year with Goethe, the greatest of German authors. He created the historical novel, and, in 25 standard works, as with an enchanter's wand, touched the dry bones of history, until the men and women, noted in song and story, appear to tread the earth again as in the days of yore.

Thackeray ranks highest as a satirist; his finest creation, Vanity Fair, is a piece of keenest vivisection, too bitter and too true to be altogether pleasing. His two most noted female characters are caricatures. Becky Sharp, alert, keen, green-eyed, is an impersonation of cunning, of intellectual ability without heart,—while Amelia Sedley is all sensibility, softness and feeling, without intellect, well-nigh devoid of common sense. Thackeray could not depict a true woman. He died in 1863, during our civil war.

Dickens is confessedly the master humorist among novel writers, with the one great defect that he recognizes no religion save that of human kindness, and when he attempts to portray a religious man he invariably gives us an oily, unctuous Mr. Chadband, or a snivelling Pecksniff. Dickens died in 1870.

For George Eliot (the name assumed by Marian Evans) we feel a profound pity. Gifted with an intellect beyond that of any other woman, she made shipwreck of her own life, and marred each of her great works with the same poison. Adam Bede, Middlemarch, Romola and Daniel Deronda are fair examples of her work. When she was 60 years of age she married Mr. Arthur Cross, 20 years younger than herself, and died in 1880, after a short married life.

Charlotte Brontë stands as it were between the earlier novelists and those just named. Belonging to a singularly gifted but unhappy family, her works, Jane Eyre, Shirley, Villette and The Professor show a morbid strain. She was the first to leave the beaten track of novel writing; she tried to depict human life rather as it is than as she wished it to be, and may be considered the apostle of the realistic school. She died in 1855, after a short married life of one year with Mr. Nicholls, her father's curate.

Mrs. Dinah Muloch Craik is at the head of our second-class novel writers; she became famous through John Halifax, followed by a long series of good, instructive works, and died in 1887.

William Black ranks first among living English novelists. Born in 1841, in Glasgow, Scotland, he attracted attention by The Strange Adventures of a Phœton, followed by a number of works in which yachting voyages are conspicuous. MacLeod of Dare and Madcap Violet are among his most tragical romances.

Richard D. Blackmore has done a fine piece of literary work in Lorna Doone, a story of James II's time, that will live.

Wilkie Collins does not write much any more, but belongs to the past rather than to the present. He is known by a variety of works, The Moonstone, Woman in White, &c. He plunges the reader into a mystery with the first chapter, from which he does not emerge till the end.

Dr. George MacDonald, a Scotchman, is a prolific writer of semi-religious novels, such as Thomas Wingfold, David Elginbrood, and perhaps 30 others of varying merit. One defect in his theology is the ignoring of the atonement of Jesus Christ, a sort of Robert Elsmere theism, which may finally drift into atheism.

Walter Besant and James Rice formed a sort of literary partnership on the Erckmann-Chatrion order, but Rice died some time ago.

Robert Louis Stevenson acquired a certain celebrity in his peculiar story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, the very impossibility of the main feature of the narrative gave it an added charm. It has been dramatized and is quite a success on the stage. Stevenson is a long-haired, peculiarly sensitive looking writer; he delights in the sensationally impossible. The Black Arrow is another of his works.

Thomas Hardy is a middle-aged Englishman who has written various novels, Far from the Madding Crowd is a fair specimen.

W. Clark Russell is a racy raconteur.

W. E. Norris is a neat, close-shaven gentleman, whose stories have been well received.

B. L. Farjeon, a bluff Briton, has given numerous stories of London life, as Little Kate Kirby, Second Cousin Sarah, &c.

James Shorthouse created a stir in literary circles several years ago by a historical novel, John Inglesant.

Captain Hawley Smart has written racing stories.

H. Rider Haggard is a thoughtful man, with a smooth face, moustache, and a far-away look as if he were hunting elephants in South Africa, or picking up diamonds by the sack-full in King Solomon's Mines. His stories are sensational, but their tendency is not bad.

Mrs. Arthur Stannard, a London lady, writes popular stories of life in the barracks, Booth's Baby, Houp La, Mignon's Husband, &c., have a pleasant, racy freshness about them that jaded novel readers admire. She writes under the nom de plume of John Strange Winter.

Mrs. E. Lynn Linton writes for many leading periodicals, and is always readable.

Mrs. Henry Wood, the wife of a London banker, died about a year ago, after a successful career. East Lynne was one of her best, though the number of her works is legion.

Miss Amelia B. Edwards has also done some superior work. Lord Brackbury is perhaps her best. She is now visiting America.

Mrs. Alexander wrote Her Dearest Foe, The Wooing O't, &c.

Mrs. Charlotte May Yonge wrote The Heir of Redcliffe, The Dove in the Eagle's Nest, of superior historical value, My Young Alcides, Heartscase, &c.

Miss Braddon (Mrs. Maxwell), a London lady, was a voluminous writer, dashing off bright and amusing novellettes, with wonderful rapidity, but she died some little time ago.

Robert Elsmere, a sort of semi-religious novel, by Mrs. Humphrey Ward, had a kind of short lived notoriety. Mrs Ward is a grand-daughter of the great Dr. Thos. Arnold, of Rugby. Her two uncles, Matthew and Edwin Arnold were noted in letters; especially was this true of the last named, Edwin, whose brilliant poem, The Light of Asia, created an enthusiasm in favor of Buddhism and of Buddha for a time, which it was feared would react unfavorably on true religion.

"Ouida," as Louise de la Ramee styles herself, became notorious some years ago for brilliant but very corrupt novels. Wanda, one of her latest, is, perhaps, the cleanest, but they should all be banished from library shelves, along with the works of the modern French school of Alphonse Daudet, Emile Gaboricau, Octave Feuillet, &c.

The continent of Europe has produced a number of more or less noted novelists, whom we will give in the next ACADEMY in connection with American writers. The tide of American literature has apparently turned towards the South, where our young and vigorous writers are, making their mark upon the age.

---

TRAVEL.

BY MISS JULIA FLAKE.

TRAVELLING belongs to later times. In the world's youth people knew too little of each other; there were no facilities for travel, and when every man's hand was against his brother it was quite too risky. Herodotus, the father of history, travelled in ancient times and gathered up facts and legends which form a treasure house of information to the world.

Marco Polo, a Venetian, in 1200, was the first European traveller to Asia. Sir John Mandeville was the earliest English traveller to Palestine and the Orient generally, in 1300, but the examples of real travellers are few and far between. Travels to Africa, the Dark Continent began, in 1760, with Bruce: since that time the number of explorers is legion. Livingstone, Stanley, Sir Samuel Baker, Barth, Burton, Speke, Grant, Schweinfurth, etc., are the best known of these intrepid spirits. Only one or two women are favorably known in such a work that taxes the powers of the strongest of men, viz: Made-moiselle Tinne, a wealthy European lady, who was finally murdered by her guards in the Soudan, and Madame Ida Pfeiffer, who visited many uncivilized lands.

Travel belongs essentially, therefore, to an advanced stage of civilization, for exploration is the advance guard of travel for improvement and culture. It presupposes a degree of culture and knowledge, and at the same time, it adds continually to knowledge and culture. A traveller to the great centres of our modern civilization must be acquainted with the history of the past, otherwise the greatest monuments of great men and great deeds will be without meaning to them and will become very wearisome.

A visitor to London who knows nothing of literature might yawn with weariness among the great memorials of the gifted lords of human thought in Westminster Abbey. Paris would be a beautiful puzzle to one unacquainted with the French Revolution, the greatest upheaval of modern times, while to another every noted locality would cause a train of memories of deeds of daring, of heroic patience, to stand forth. The place where the guillotine drank so much noble blood would raise visions of the execution of Louis XVI, his dignified queen, Marie Antoinette, and the howling mob; the tomb of Napoleon would bring in its wake the great ambition and brilliant deeds of the mighty dead, for whom the world was almost too small. In rapid transition would flit before the thoughtful mind one revolution after the other, the first Republic, the second Empire, the melancholy fate of Napoleon III. and his brilliant Empress, Eugenie, now a miserable, broken down old woman.

Some knowledge of architecture is necessary to admire understandingly the magnificent cathedrals which the religious superstition of the Middle Ages raised to the glory of God. Munich, Dresden, Berlin, the great art centres of central Europe, would become tiresome to one whose knowledge of painting is small; to one whose aesthetic tastes are uncultivated, the Venus of Milo, or Dannecker's Ariadne, would say as little as the plaster casts of an Italian image vender. To the prepared, the cultivated mind, it is a higher education, an ever new unfolding of pleasures to stand in the Eternal City, in Rome; to look backward to the time when Romulus and Remus fought for the supremacy of a few mud-built huts on the Palatine Hill, to watch the growth of this city to brick, from brick to marble, till she sits a queen on her seven hills, and rules the world, gathering to herself all the art and beauty from a hundred conquered provinces.

Florence and Venice, each a queen in her own right, the one of art and artists, the other of the Adriatic, "throned on her hundred isles," each becomes a Mecca to her hundred devotee. The good to be gained by travel is not to be estimated by dollars and cents; it broadens the views, cultivates the mind, enlarges the sympathies, lifts us up to a higher plane of knowledge, and we begin to realize faintly what a wonderful world we live in.

---

PHOTOGRAPHS.

BY MISS ETTA SHAFFNER.

THE modern photograph is a very good exponent of this pushing, progressive age, where everything is taxed to its utmost capacity, and where every power of nature is made to do the work of man. It is the age in which steam is harnessed down with iron bands and, as the bond-slave of man, is made to do the work of a thousand human arms with ease. Even the lightnings are called, until they come and say, "Here we are,—ready to carry your messages by telegraph or the sounds of the voice by telephone and phonograph." They lose their ghostly characteristics as the thunderbolts of Zeus, forged for him deep down in Cyclopean dungeons, and become the willing, helpful friends of man, lighting his dwellings and propelling his cars.

The glorious sun, the King of Day, himself has been thus pressed into service: while paintings will probably always be made by slow and laborious processes, the sun, with one flash of his radiant beams, fixes the human face and form with unflinching accuracy and instantaneous power on the plate, and we have a perfect picture.

By the instantaneous processes in art, we can even get the picture of a bird on the wing, arrested, as it were, in mid-air, the horse on the race-course, or the baby's expression when it opens its mouth to cry, before it has quite made up its mind whether it shall do so or not.

The lightning from the thunder-c'oud has been known to stamp a tree or a house indelibly upon some face or person, but electricity has not yet been utilized for this work, which the steady sun-light can do so much better.

Attempts have been made from early times to reproduce the human face and form. Here and there we still see the old profiles, which are something like the silhouettes, or shadow pictures, of to-day; by the help of a strong imagination, you can see a faint resemblance between the profile and its original.

A long series of years intervened, filled up with portraits painted by artists of more or less note, but in a young and growing country like ours, comparatively few could afford them. We see these portraits in some places, and how quaintly they look down upon us from the walls! It was with great joy, therefore, that the world hailed the invention and discovery of M. Daguerre, a French artist, in 1839, which was the first step towards the photograph of to-day. It is true the polished plate was so much like a mirror that the picture had to be turned in various directions to be seen, still, it was a picture, and a comparatively inexpensive one, too. The ambrotype, taken on glass, followed the daguerreotype, and was an improvement upon it. Pictures on ivory were delicately tinted, and at length the photograph of the present was achieved, one of the greatest marvels of modern art. The great sun is called in, as it were, to stamp the lineaments of some dearly-loved face on the negative, to give us a treasure that exceeds any thing else in value.

Photographs have probably given more heart-felt satisfaction than aught else,—“these counterfeit presentments” of our friends. While they are with us we do not, perhaps, care so particularly, but how dear and precious these bits of card-board become when years of absence lie between us and the original, and still more, when the cold hand of death has removed them for a time from mortal vision.

It is true that photographs do not always flatter: sometimes the nose appears too long by some unlucky position, or some other feature acquires an undue prominence. It is interesting to note the different expressions of a large group, as our Class picture, for example. Of course, 30 people will not all look alike; it would be rather monotonous if they did; some will appear grave, some gay, some lively, some severe; some eyes will turn heavenward, while others are demurely veiled beneath the long lashes, yet it is valuable to us, and will become more so as the swiftly passing years roll on. Perhaps we will point to this or that bright young face and say, “she was my day-keeper,”—or of another, “how we used to work together, and build air-castles of the future, and how different things are from what we supposed they would be!” Thus memories come trooping up like lively ghosts from the Past, and we lay them aside with a sigh and a smile.

MERRY MARRIAGE BELLS.

From the Knoxville Tribune.

AT Forest Hill, the well-known home of Mr. George A. Fain, the bride's father, Rev. John Daniels united in the holy bonds of wedlock Dr. Thomas W. Gallion and Miss LILA J. FAIN, at 1:30 P. M., Tuesday, March 26, 1889, both being well-known society leaders of Dandridge. The spacious double parlors were beautifully decorated by loving hands with early spring flowers set in evergreens. The happy pair stood under an elegant marriage bell of evergreens and flowers hung in the centre of the room, facing the immediate members of the family and a select few from a large circle of friends.

Ten years ago Dr. Gallion came into our midst a young physician with little more than his profession and energy upon which to rely. Soon his sterling traits of character, his determination to take a high place in his life-work, and his skill in the sick-room, won him many friends and placed him in the front rank of physicians in the country.

The charming bride is well known throughout East Tennessee as a young lady of many endearing qualities, of bright, cheerful disposition, artistic taste and talent. She is also possessed of those domestic qualifications which men love and that render home a charm. She was attired in a very handsome, stone-grey, traveling suit, tailor-made, while the Dr. wore the regulation Prince Albert suit.

There was an elegant display of bridal presents, testimonials from friends near and far, viz: A large silver water set, from Mr. and Mrs. Attorney General Pickle; pearl-handled knives from Mr. and Mrs. Will. Fain; silver jewelry stand, Miss Kattie Fain; silver cake basket, Mr. Geo. A. Fain, Jr.; silver butter dish, Miss Sue Crouch; card case and napkin ring, Miss Allie Fain; silver berry spoon, Mr. and Mrs. John Fain, of Atlanta; cake basket, Mr. Sam Fain; silver tea set, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Fain, parents of the bride; silver berry bowl, little Kattie Briscoe; elegant terra cotta statuery, Miss Maria Fain, of Atlanta; silver berry spoon, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moore, of Lexington, Mo.; handsome unique vase, Miss Cynthia Swann; triple folding mirror, Misses Mammie and Flora Fain, of Atlanta; silver butter knife and spoon, Miss May Franklin.

The happy couple left at once for a two months' stay in New York.

A TRIP TO EUROPE.

SEVERAL of our teachers, Misses SLEHMAN and SIEWERS, intend, Providence permitting, to join the N. C. Teachers' Assembly in a vacation trip to Europe, and, naturally, look forward to it with much pleasure. The trip includes England, Scotland, Ireland and France. The party will leave New York on July 4th in the elegant steamer, Georgia, and intend to return about the end of August.

The principal places to be visited are, first, Glasgow, Scotland, with excursions to Paisley, Greenoch and Androssan, Ayr, the home of Robert Burns, then through the Trossachs to Balloch, across Loch Lomond, across Lake Katrine, the scene of The Lady of the Lake, then to Callender, and by rail to Edinboro.

From Edinboro, en route to London, they stop at Abbotsford, Sir Walter Scott's home. Six days are to be spent in London, attending service on Sunday at Rev. C. H. Spurgeon's Tabernacle in the morning, and service by Canon Farrar, at St. Paul's Cathedral, in the afternoon. Then follow excursions to Windsor Castle, Eton College and Hampton Court, visits to the Tower, Westminster Abbey, Parliament buildings, Hyde Park, British Museum, Crystal Palace and other noted places.

From London the party goes to Paris, visits the Exposition, Tuilleries, Louvre, Palais Royal, Place de la Concorde, Notre Dame, Art Galleries, and other places of interest. Excursions to Versailles, St. Cloud, Sevres, &c.

Then they return to London, from thence to Glasgow, to Belfast, Ireland, to Giant's Causeway, and from Larne back to New York.

This is the tour as mapped out, and while it does not include the Rhine and Italy, it promises to be very enjoyable.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., APRIL, 1889.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHNAN, Salem, N. C.

PROGRAMME OF COMMENCEMENT WEEK, JUNE, 1889*

Baccalaureate Sermon.

Sunday, June 2, 10:30 o'clock A. M.

Children's Evening and Concert.

Monday, June 3, 7:45 o'clock P. M.

Art Exhibition.

Tuesday, June 4, 3 o'clock P. M.

Seniors' Essays.

Tuesday, June 4, 7:45 o'clock P. M.

Commencement.

Wednesday, June 5, 9 o'clock A. M.

Meeting of Abnamic Association.

Wednesday, June 5, 3 o'clock P. M.

Grand Closing Concert.

Wednesday, June 5, 7:45 o'clock P. M.

Owing to the large number of pupils, and correspondingly large increase in the number of patrons and friends, the entire series of exercises will be held in the Moravian church, where due arrangements for the comfort of all will be made.

TIME, in its swift and noiseless course, is again bringing us to the solemn Easter tide with its beautiful and touching services, its sacred associations of joy and sorrow, joy that the world's redemption was thus fully wrought out, and sorrow that the world's Redeemer hung upon the cross and expired in agony for each and every one of us. What a sweet and precious season Dr. RONDTHALER must be enjoying! we can imagine him following the footsteps of our Lord from that upper chamber to moonlit, sad Gethsemane, to trial, to condemnation, and to crucifixion on Mt. Calvary, not only in spirit, as we must, but really and truly spending the Holy Week amid these solemn scenes;—no doubt his heart swells as did those of the old Crusaders when they first caught sight of the holy city, and he can say in reality, "My feet stand within thy gates, O Jerusalem!"

MRS. HUMPHREY WARD.

MRS. HUMPHREY WARD, the now famous author of Robert Elsmere, is the eldest daughter of Thomas Arnold, M. A., of University College, Oxford. The late Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, was her grandfather, and the late Matthew Arnold her uncle. She was born in 1851, in Hobart, the chief town of the Island of Tasmania, which lies about 120 miles south-east of Australia. Her maiden name was Mary Augusta Arnold. In 1872 she married Mr. Thomas Humphrey Ward, Fellow of Brasenose College, Oxford, a man of some local literary note. Her home is at No. 61 Russell Square, London.

Mrs. Ward's first book was a story for children, Milly and Olly, in 1880. In 1884 Miss Bretherton appeared, and attracted considerable attention. Miss Mary Anderson was said to be the model from which the heroine was drawn. Mrs. Ward has done other literary work besides. She is a frequent contributor to the Quarterly Review, which has two papers by her, one on Modern Spanish Literature and another on Modern Genera.

Mrs. Ward has shown herself to be a woman of unusual mental attainments, and Robert Elsmere is a novel with an avowed purpose and of a strong philosophical tendency. Alas! that the powers of mind which she possesses should be turned against the Giver of those very powers.

The Schubert Evening.

THE music of the late Schubert evening on March 30, in the ACADEMY Chapel, afforded such pleasure to the audience that we produce the entire programme. The evening was under Miss EVANS' direction, ably seconded by Professor MARKGRAFF, with the Salem Orchestra, Miss A. VAN VLECK as accompanist, and Misses SIEWERS and CARMICHAEL in vocal solos.

1. Orchestra. March from Divertissement à la Hongroise. Accompanists, Misses MULLER and CRAMER.
2. Vocal Solo. Frühlingsglaube. Miss SIEWERS.
3. Vocal Solo. Serenade. With orchestral accom. Miss FLORENCE SETTLE.
4. Vocal Solo. Adieu. Miss DU FOUR.
5. Piano Solo. First Impromptu. Professor MARKGRAFF.
6. Vocal Solo. a. Death and the Maiden.
b. Hedge Roses. Miss M. FITZPATRICK.
7. Piano Duet. Final from C. Major. Sinfonic. Miss DUFOUR and Prof. MARKGRAFF.
8. Four-Part Chorus. Ständchen. 16 voices. Miss CARMICHAEL, Soloist.
9. Vocal Solo. Ave Maria. With orchestral accom. Miss LACIAR.
10. Vocal Solo. The Wanderer. Professor MARKGRAFF.

11. Vocal Solo. Barequolle. Miss N. CRAMER.
12. Piano Solo. Second Impromptu. Miss KRUSHIK.
13. Vocal Solo. Erl King. Miss EVANS.
14. Orchestra. Overture. Rosamond.

The Hesperian Society.

THE HESPERIANS gave a public entertainment on the evening of April 5th in the ACADEMY Chapel for the purpose of raising funds to furnish their Society Hall. The Salem Orchestra lent their valuable assistance, the music both vocal and instrumental, the tableaux, drama, &c., all contributed to produce a gratifying success.

Among the 18 numbers on the programme, we noted Tableaux, "A Kitchen Scene," quite lively and suggestive; "The Fates," the weird sisters spinning the thread of life and cutting it with immense shears; a beautifully touching scene, "Before the Execution of Mary Queen of Scots;" "The Four Quarters of the Honey-moon;" song and tableau, "Rock Me to Sleep;" "The Studio," very fine, and encored several times; "The Guardian Angels;" "Joan at the Stake," a decided sell, for instead of the heroic Maid of Orleans, there was a servant beating steak. A drama, in 3 acts, "Leap Year in the Village," was good, and the comedy, "The Train to Mauro," was unusually well wrought out. There were several instrumental duos: "La Gracieuse," by Misses ROGERS and SITIG; "Gaité de Cœur," the Misses WELLS; Solos, vocal, "The Old Chorister," Miss HELEN RUFF, and "Fleeting Days," Miss PACE. Miss LACIAR also rendered several sweet melodies in connection with Tableau scenes as in "Rock Me to Sleep," &c. A Chorus at the close was good, representing the Lament of the Captive Jews in Babylon. Three selections were given by the Orchestra.

During the exercises the Euterpean Society presented the Hesperians with a large and elegant pyramid of flowers as a token of appreciation and of sisterly good will: this graceful little act gave quite a finish to the evening.

Both of our Societies have done wonders this year in pushing the interests of their respective organizations, and deserve credit for their marked success.

Letter from Dr. Rondthaler.

From the Moravian.

AN ocean journey, I am free to confess, still remains for me a solemn undertaking. I cannot share in the light and easy way in which many speak of it. Much as I have learned to love the wide, deep waters, I can never regard them in a familiar light. My thought still remains that of the Psalmist: "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters, these see the works of the Lord and His wonders in the deep."

February 23, 1889, was the appointed day for sailing from New York, and a bitter, cold day it was. Even the frozen newsboy on Broadway seemed more interesting because his papers were the last to be bought in our native land for a long time to come. In the saloon of the Devonia a circle of very dear friends was gathered to bid the wanderers good-by. One of them, with kindly forethought, brought the German daily word, text and hymn for the day. The latter ran thus:

"Nimm durch einer Engel Wacht
Seel und Lieb und Gut in Acht,
Fuehr das Schiefflein durch die Wellen
Und hilf mir in allen Faellen."

But neither giver nor recipient realized fully how much this prayer would be needed ere the eventful voyage should be over.

At the time of starting, I had my place in the glass house on deck. A couple of little children, playing hide and seek, had found refuge with me. Their merry, childish call to their companion to search for them relieved the sober moments during which the great vessel moved away from the dock and thus cut our connection with our dear native land. Under a clouded sky and amid bitter cold, New York harbor did not appear in its usual attractiveness. At the Sandy hook bar we passed several steamers coming in. Their very hulls, splashed with frozen water, seemed glad to have escaped the wintry ocean which awaited us outside.

Sea-sickness is the unfailing topic of interest and discourse at the beginning of a voyage. The Germans have a proverb, "Where there is nothing, the Emperor has lost his right to take." But sea-sickness, mightier than imperial sceptre, continues to make demand even when the poor stomach has nothing more to give. Ere long, however, we had more to think of than the usual sea topic, for the new subject on hand is

THE STORM.

On Monday night, February 25, a snow-storm. About to o'clock I crept into the glass-house and found that the visible world had dwindled down to a very small spot indeed. Beyond the nearest light, uneasy ship and troubled sea were shrouded in utter blackness. The captain, two officers and two seamen were on the bridge peering into the night, all the more dangerous because we were on the steamer-lane. Wide as the ocean is, the necessities of rapid steam-transit between Great Britain and America bring the steamers together on a narrow stretch between the banks of New Foundland and Sandy Hook. This stretch may be compared to a street crowded with vehicles moving in opposite directions. The danger is still farther increased by the racing steamers. These, equipped with the most powerful engines, and steaming like locomotives through the fog as well as sunshine, have made the ocean a far more perilous place than it used to be. The foolish desire on the part of tourists to say that they have crossed in less than a week has cost many a life through reckless collisions, and will probably cost many more unless checked by some disaster so appalling as to draw the attention of all civilized nations to the folly. On such a wild, dark snowy night a vessel struck in the side by a great iron steamer would not leave a single survivor to tell how the rest had perished.

The snow ceased on the next afternoon, but the easterly gale continued during the week, with the exception of a short gleam of sunlight on Friday. It was a grand but gloomy sight to watch the waves from the glass house. From the side they came howling on with their long rows of foamy teeth, striking the ship with a boom like that of heavy logs. In front the vessel goes toiling up the huge water masses and burying her head in the waves. Fore and stern the ship is readily washed over and over again, meanwhile the wind sweeps through the rigging as over a vast Æolian harp and not a ray of sunlight breaks on the dark and noisy scene. So the days passed from Monday night until Saturday noon, when the captain announced that the danger of a failure of coal had led him to resolve on a course which neither he nor his officers had ever taken before. He would seek St. John's harbor, New Foundland. By this time the passengers were glad to hear that they were going anywhere, even though it were to out-of-the-way New Foundland. The pleasure of seeing land on the morrow greatly over-balanced the dread of dangers incurred in seeking it.

FINDING NEW FOUNDLAND.

Saturday night was an anxious night. I remembered how rocky and wild the New Foundland coast had looked over a still summer sea, years ago, and, therefore, sympathized the more with the captain's heavy-hearted remark: "If I can only make out Cape Race light at midnight." As the night deepened the vessel was slowed and sometimes stopped for soundings. The night was too dark to enable the light-house light to shine through it, but the soundings showed about thirteen miles from shore, which was as near as it was safe to go. Like St. Paul's sailors, "we wished for day."

Sunday morning was the most exciting Sabbath I can remember. Soon after day we commenced moving through a wide expanse of ice. It lay in broken, snow-covered sheets, immovable and silent except as the ship crunched through it. To the west the dark edge of the fog seemed to show land, and by and by a fog-horn confirmed the conjecture. But where were we? Repeated firing of the ship's cannon at last brought out a boat with a fisherman in it, who said that the fog-horn was blowing from St. Francis Cape at the entrance of Conception Bay. He also declared that he knew the way to St. John's, some 15 miles farther south. He was taken aboard, and the vessel headed around through the ice. In the course of an hour or two cliffs began to appear beyond the ice-fields, but their heads were shrouded in mist. Only their rocky sides and the surf washing against them appeared. Finally, the vessel came to a stand. Between two misty cliffs there seemed to be an opening. Was it St. John's harbor? The captain had never been there; the fisherman was afraid to say that it was; the shore signals were unsatisfactory. If it was the harbor the entrance was known to be very narrow, with a rock lying in the middle of it. But the fog absolutely refused to solve the mystery. After much reversing, propelling and stopping, the captain, with true Scotch caution, determined, as he phrased it, "to put his nose" into the curve. A slight lift in the fog showed the dim outlines of a light-house. It must be St. John's, and the vessel moved in just as a pilot came walking out on the ice to meet it.

In fifteen minutes we were safely in the deep land-locked basin, and before long the captain, after the strain of so many hours on the bridge and the imminent risk of losing his vessel, at last fell down in a condition of cramp and exhaustion. Surely in the words of our text on the day of starting, the Lord had sent His angel before us to direct our way.

Correspondence.

—We quote the concluding lines of a letter from one of our oldest, and highly esteemed Alumnae, Mrs. Amelia R. Woodward, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

"I am charmed with the beautiful Badge-pin of the Alumnae Association of the ACADEMY, and cannot refrain from complimenting the taste of the designers. Besides the attractiveness of the pin, its significance as an emblem of the tie that unites the scattered Alumnae of the ACADEMY must commend it to all."

Yours very truly,

AMELIA ROE WOODWARD.

E. Walnut Hill, Cincinnati, Ohio.

—Our next is from a well remembered friend of the class of '87 whom we hope to greet with many others at our now rapidly approaching commencement.

"THE ACADEMY came with the same mail that brought me four letters, and was particularly interesting; no doubt the numerous marriages helped to make it so. I hope many of the girls especially those of '87 will be at Commencement in June. It was a pity that we did not set a time for a re-union before the class separated. Perhaps it might still be brought about through the columns of THE ACADEMY.

We think the Library fund a capital idea, and felt upon reading, as if we should like to ship some books at once, if we could. LIZZIE and I have had a very pleasant time this winter: socials are flourishing; besides we spent several weeks in New York, just before the holidays, and thoroughly enjoyed them.

The carpenters recently finished a "dark room," for us, and we are looking forward to our first lessons in photography which will be a constant source of enjoyment for us here at home.

Most of the girls it seems, are hard at work, and appear to be very happy in so doing. We are at present enjoying our reading. LIZZIE is busy with "Ivanhoe," and I have "Vanity Fair." Please remember me to the teachers, with love from both.

Affectionately,

JENNIE SIEGER.

66 Church St., Bethlehem, Pa.

—We are much indebted to Mrs. A. D. Prince, (HENNIE SCHIFF) formerly of Charlotte, N. C., for a file of interesting Washington papers, describing the Inauguration exercises, as well as for her letter.

"It was owing to my many social and domestic duties that I entirely forgot to renew my subscription for THE ACADEMY. I wonder if any of the teachers of 1874 and '75 visited Washington during Inauguration week? What a treat it would be to the girls to see such a time, and in a body too. I would be so glad and delighted to meet any of the pupils and teachers that still remember me. With best wishes I remain,

Yours sincerely,

MRS. A. D. PRINCE.

Washington, D. C.

—We had not heard from Mrs. Slappey, (STELLA NEIL) for some time, but domestic cares and duties have been a hindrance.

"I was reminded with the last number of THE ACADEMY, that my subscription for another year was about due. How quickly these years do pass! But I cannot do without the dear little paper as it is the only regular communication I get from you all in the cherished old ACADEMY home.

I have intended writing to you for a long time but my increasing home duties give me little time for epistolary work. I am the busy mother of seven children, three boys and four girls. Benlah and Alice are well advanced for their years. I would be delighted to have them graduate in Salem if we could. My little baby girl is very sweet with blue eyes and brown curly hair. Her name is Maud H.

Please give my love to Aggie Buxton.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I am with very best wishes,

Your true friend,

STELLA (NEIL) SLAPPEY.

Marshallville, Ga.

—From JEANIE REYNOLDS our Valedictorian of '88, we have the following:

"Enclosed find my subscription for THE ACADEMY for two years. I could not do without it. Every month I find myself devouring its columns and am transported back to my ACADEMY home, mingling with the dear girls.

With best wishes, as ever

JEANIE REYNOLDS.

Waverly, Miss.

—Our next is also a brief note, from ANNIE BROWN, in which she writes:

"Enclosed please find 50 cents to renew my subscription to THE ACADEMY. I find myself looking forward eagerly each month for its arrival, and when I take it up, I never put it down until I am well acquainted with everything in it.

I hope it is nearly time now for the next number.

Very respectfully,

ANNIE P. BROWN.

Townville, S. C.

—Mrs. Kirke will probably be better known to our readers as LOULA GIBBS, whose friends often inquire about her.

"I enclose postal note for renewal of my subscription to THE ACADEMY. It has proved to be of great interest to me, so much so that I would not wish to be deprived of its monthly visits. Please send me a Catalogue of the school. I would also like very much to become a member of the Alumnae Association. With best wishes for the prosperity of the dear old ACADEMY, and all connected therewith, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

LOULA KIRKE (GIBBS.)

Benlona, Miss.

—ALICE WOODSIDES, Mrs. W. B. HARRIS, writes as follows:

"Please find enclosed 50 cents to renew my subscription for THE ACADEMY another year. I do not want to miss any of the numbers. Please send it for this present month, I am deeply attached to SALEM ACADEMY and feel that I could not do without the paper. How well do I remember the first copy that was issued in 1878, for it was during the pleasant year of our six Tennessee girls in the dear old first room of the ACADEMY, that it was first published by Mr. ZORN assisted by several committees of girls and teachers. With the very best wishes for its future I remain,

Yours respectfully,

MRS. W. B. HARRIS.

Dandridge, Tenn.

—We appreciate these kindly testimonials of interest in THE ACADEMY, and it is one of our dearest pleasures thus to meet with our widely scattered Alumnae, here around the maternal board, to interchange greetings, to inquire after those who have failed to report themselves, and to contribute our quota of information for their enjoyment. Our circle of Correspondents for this month is drawn from various sections of our country, from a dear old saint who is resting in the eve of a good and noble life in Ohio, from a bright and happy maiden in Pennsylvania, whose life stretches out in pleasing perspective before her, from a wife and mother in Washington City, busy with social and domestic duties, from another in Georgia, who is also nobly fulfilling the oftentimes arduous duties of a wise and loving mother, from others in Mississippi, in South Carolina, in Tennessee, who have taken up their work bravely and cheerfully; from all these varying sections, from almost every condition of life we meet here, bound together by the mystic chain of affection for each other, and for our Alma Mater. With Tiny Tim we say "God bless us, every one!"

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—ANNE SWANN, it appears, has gone to Kansas City, Mo., to visit her sister RACHEL, Mrs. J. A. Moore.

—We sympathize deeply with Miss PHOEBE TURNER in the loss of her father, Rev. Wm. Turner, who died suddenly while returning from preaching a sermon at Friendship, on April 6th.

—JULIA SMITH, Greenville, Tenn., was called home by the serious illness of her father, on March 22d. FLORENCE CUMMINGS also went home, summoned by her mother's extreme illness.

—Miss LIZZIE THOMAS, of Jefferson, N. C., called in to see us about the middle of March. She had been visiting MATTIE SPENCER, and other friends, and called by to spend some time with her sister, CARRIE, who is now a pupil of the ACADEMY.

—Miss Mary L. Booth, the talented editress of Harper's Bazaar, died March 5th, of bronchial affection, in New York. Her accomplishments and great literary abilities were of special use in building up this world-renowned periodical, as only a woman's hand could so direct and build up a woman's journal. Her salary was $8,000 a year, rather more than most women receive in the editorial line.

—We are sorry to note the death of Mrs. A. Reich, a most estimable lady and mother of Mrs. Christ Fogle, a member of our Alumnae Association. Our circle is a wide-spread organization, but its members are linked together by mutual sympathy in joy and in sorrow, in pleasure and in pain.

—We are under obligations to Mrs. Dr. Ingram, of Pine Bluff, Ark., for the obituary of an esteemed Alumna, probably until now, the oldest living member on our lists, as she was here in 1816. Her name was Mrs. Mary Watkins Saunders, of North Alabama. She wrote a very interesting letter of old time reminiscences to Mr. John W. Fries, about the time of our last Alumnae meeting. It came just too late to be communicated then, but was published in the next ACADEMY. Thus, one by one, our older members are being gathered into the garner of the sky; we wait yet a little longer, but how little not one of us may know.

—In the obituary notices of The Moravian, we see the death of Mrs. Delilah Ward, (m. n. HICKS), aged about 65 years, in Sequoia District, Indian Territory. She was a member of the Moravian congregation at Springplace, Cherokee Nation. Rev. J. B. Leinbach adds: "She had been a pupil of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, and up to her death entertained a high regard for the associations formed during those days."

When she was a little girl her dying mother gave her into the charge of the late Mrs. S. D. Vogler, then a missionary's wife in that region. Mrs. Vogler cared for her faithfully, together with her own children, and it was through this connection that she came to be educated at Salem, and an affectionate correspondence was carried on in later years. By a remarkable coincidence Mrs. Ward died on January 8th, the same day on which Mrs. Vogler entered into her eternal rest.

—Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL gave a very enjoyable reception to the teachers of the ACADEMY recently.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—By special request the Programme of our late Mendelssohn evening, March 9th, was repeated on March 16th, the proceeds to be applied to "The Home," a worthy charity of Salem. Quite a good audience attended, the Chapel being comfortably filled.

—The N. C. Teacher for March gives a list of the teachers who intend to take a European trip at the close of the N. C. Teachers' Assembly at Morehead City, July 2nd. Some 90 names are given, a choice company of Teachers, both gentlemen and ladies who certainly will enjoy such a tour to its fullest extent.

—The fourth number of the University Magazine is before us, and a handsome and creditable periodical it is. A fine heliotype portrait of Judge Robert P. Dick ornaments the frontispiece. Mrs. Cornelia P. Spencer gives an interesting account of "old times in Chapel Hill," including sketches of Profs. Fetter and Hubbard, besides other articles of importance.

—Messrs. Brown and Brown, apothecaries of Winston, N. C., kindly sent a large number of little sample parcels to the ACADEMY, which were carefully distributed among the different room companies. They consisted of neat little packages of Palmer's India Bonquet Soap, powder, tiny bottles of perfumes of different kinds, and perfumed rose-buds, (artificial). They created quite a stir in the establishment, which for a time was redolent with choice odors. One package of course is small, but when it runs up into the hundreds it must take a quantity.

—The Seniors have had a trip to the Pilot Mountain in contemplation for some time. Mr. CLEWELL gave them the promise, and school-girls have excellent memories for a promise duly made and recorded. No doubt it will be an enjoyable time, and as they have worked with especial faithfulness during the now rapidly waning school year, we think they deserve the recreation fully. The Pilot Mountain is a unique feature, lying in a neighboring county, Surry, it lifts its castellated pinnacles, skyward, the larger being over 300 feet above the rest of the mountain; it is unconnected with the Saurra Mountains, in Stokes, and stands a monument of natural grandeur and beauty, a lonely sentinel to guard the Enchanted ground, the "Land of the Sky."

—The various arrangements of the Senior Class, tending toward the close of the school year are in an unusual state of advancement; the class picture instead of being taken a few days before Commencement was taken already in February, owing to Dr. RONDTHALER'S contemplated absence. Class rings have been received, and are worn with pardonable pride for they are truly handsome, second only in importance to engagement rings. Class paper has also been received. Different styles of Commencement invitations have been, and are being discussed. The essay bugbear is yet a very present trouble, but, in the words of the motto in Achmet's signet ring "Even this must pass away." Last year's seniors know just how we feel, in view of this all important Commencement season, and next year we can look back with similar sensations while the incoming class is floundering in the bog.

—"The Man about town," a pleasant and chatty writer in the New York Star has the following about Mr. John Boner, a native of Salem, and a poet of no mean rank. "Going through 17th Street not long ago, I met the poet John H. Boner, of North Carolina, going into the Century Building where he occupies a sub-editorial chair in the dictionary department. A tall man—taller than the average, about 40 years of age, his long auburn side whiskers, and dark blue eyes make him a conspicuous figure anywhere. For many years he lived in Washington where he occupied a Government position, and where he published a volume of poems, "Whispering Pines," wherein are no superfluous verses, and the reader can almost fancy he hears the breezes in the pines, so lulling is the rhythmic cadence of the verse. Coming to this city about two years ago, he found many congenial souls among the literary set, and is a prominent member of the Authors' Club, and lives in a cozy little flat in Harlem.

—The work done in the Studio during the year could not of course be brought down to the Chapel, but the Studio was tastefully arranged, and an exhibition of a choice, a recherche collection of work displayed March 21st, which afforded great pleasure to every refined taste.

Besides the varied entertainments gotten up by the several departments of the ACADEMY, and by the several societies, we have had interesting renditions from without. Rev. Mr. Pearson the great Evangelist of the South, visited us early in the term and gave us one of his inimitable Bible talks in the ACADEMY Chapel, during his memorable revival services in Winston last September. Rev. W. H. Millburn the blind man eloquent treated us to a polished lecture on Richard Brinsley Sheridan, with several other interesting evenings of varying exercises, so that we may look back to this year as eminently interesting and improving in many respects. We anticipate several evenings still to be given before the close of the term.

—During the past winter we of the ACADEMY have had a series of first class lectures and entertainments of various kinds for pleasure and for profit. These entertainments were fair exponents of the work done in the different departments of the school. Professor WURRESCHKE gave a chemical lecture November 3d, illustrating his remarks by choice and beautiful experiments on December 8th. Professor MARKGRAFF gave a Beethoven evening consisting of a sketch of the great composer's life, the character of his music and varied selections from his noted works. DR. RONDTHALER as the representative of the Literary Department gave a lecture on his travels generally. Mr. Du Four delivered an ornate and able lecture on the city of Florence. On March 9th and 16th, Professor MARKGRAFF gave his second Mendelssohn evening, and on March 30th, Miss EVANS gave a Schubert entertainment which was one of the most enjoyable evenings devoted to song that we ever spent. The peculiarly sweet and expressive character of Schubert's songs made it an evening long to be remembered.

—Dr. RONDTHALER and Howard arrived safely at Glasgow, Scotland, after a rough and perilous voyage of 17 days, rather a long time for this rapid age. Their many friends were extremely anxious but happily they at length reached the other side of the Atlantic. Instead of sailing straight on, they beat about among floating masses of ice for a week, between New York and St. Johns, Newfoundland; here their steamer the Devonia was compelled to stop, for an additional supply of coal, but after these unpleasant experiences, the voyage passed off without any unusual features.

From Glasgow, they went to London, where they spent some days, then to Paris, from thence to Genoa, later they go to Pisa, spend three days in Florence, 5 in Rome, thence to Brindisi, to Athens, over to Alexandria, Egypt, to Cairo, next to Joppa, and lastly to the Holy Land. If all goes well they hope to be in Jerusalem by April 16th. What a glorious treat it must be to a man of Dr. RONDTHALER'S mind, to spend an Easter season in the very localities where the greatest of all tragedies, the life and death of Jesus Christ were consummated;—to spend the Maundy Thursday eve, amid the olive shades of Gethsemane, to stand on Good Friday on Calvary.

Subscriptions.

Prof G Markgraff, Academy; Mrs Eugene Kapp, Bethania, N C; Mrs Annie Newton, Adamsville, S C; Mrs J A Thom, China Grove, Miss Ida E Holland, Dallas, N C; Miss F Norfleet, Roxobel, Bertie Co, N C; Mrs M D Phillips, Dalton, N C; Miss Daisy Clishy, Macon, Ga; Mrs C W Kellinger, Norfolk, Va; Miss Mary Smith, Coxville, N C; Miss Jennie Sieger, F W Leimbach, Bethlehem, Pa; Miss Emma Maul, Kewanee, Ill; Mrs J A Jones, Bethania, N C; Miss C A Lamkin, Mrs A M McKenzie, Summit, Miss; Rev J F McCuiston, Salem, N C; Mrs F C Minung, Mrs M E Jenkins, Miss Ella Shore, Miss Mary Welfare, Mrs J. M Fries, Salem, N C; Mrs T A Garner, Wesson, Miss; Miss Annie Boyd, Magnolia, Miss; Mrs Dr Hill, Arcadia, N C; Mrs L J Ingram, Wadesboro, N C; Miss Roxie Armfield, Greensboro, N C; Mrs B F Moore, Adamsville, N C; Mrs W F Pate, Laurell Hill, S C; Miss Sallie Gibson, Rock Hill, S C; Miss Luta Bewley, Anderson, S C; Mrs Sue Draughn, Tarboro, N C; Mrs W W Moore, Hampden Sidney, Va; Miss Fannie McDowell, Island Ford, N C; C T Pfohl, Mrs T Spaug, Mrs F H Fries, Mrs D H Starbuck, Mrs C S Hauser, Miss Theresa Peterson, Miss Lou Shaffner, Dr J W Hunter, Mrs H E Fries, J A Lineback, A C Vogler, Mrs C H Fogle, Miss Sophie Butner, Salem, N C; Mrs Dr Bogle, Midland, Tenn; Mrs Shelton, Mrs Frank Miller, Winston, N C.

Splinters.

—A colored boy taking a box to the store-room, says, "Here, Mrs. Carmichael, are your redstracks (extracts)."

—Scene at street corner as several room companies go past to walk. One admiring swain to another: "See, here, Boh; there's a leak sprung in heaven, for just look at the angels!"

—The mania for collecting a million of stamps appears to be increasing: one enthusiastic collector says she never puts a stamp on a letter but what she wishes she were at the other end of the line to receive it. The collecting has been reduced to a science, almost;—one young lady says they skin them and cook them.

Married.

GALLION—FAIN.—In Dandridge, Tenn., Mar. 26, Dr. J. T. GALLION to Miss LILA FAIN.

Died.

SAUNDERS.—In Courtland, Ala., Feb. 6, Mrs. MARY WATKINS SAUNDERS, wife of Col. James E. Saunders.

Obituary.

From an Alabama paper.

Mrs. MARY W. SAUNDERS. It was in the year 1834 that I became acquainted with the elegant and refined Christian family of Col. James F. Saunders, in the Courtland Valley. For more than fifty years I have known Brother Saunders and his devoted wife, and for the whole of that time I have appreciated them as among the most refined and cultivated people whose acquaintance I have ever formed. Now the sad news is brought that Sister SAUNDERS has departed. The hospitable mansion at Rocky Hill, Lawrence County, Ala., is in mourning; for, on Feb. 6, 1889, she ceased to adorn it by her living presence, her bright intelligence, and her genial intelligence. Her illness was of short duration, lasting only five days. She was 81 years old, and had been the devoted wife of Colonel James E. Saunders for more than sixty-four years. She was the daughter of Col. Robert and Mrs. Prudence Watkins, and was educated partly at the great Moravian School for Young Ladies, at Salem, N. C. She finished her education at the Nashville Female Academy, when Miss Payson was one of the prominent teachers—some sixty-five years ago. At the Mountain Spring Camp-meeting, in 1828, she was powerfully converted, and joined the Methodist Church. There she obtained the witness of the Spirit, which she carried in her bosom to the close of her life. She belonged to an old Methodist family, some of whom had heard the Gospel from the lips of John Wesley. From the day of her conversion to the day of her death she led a life of joy and peace. Ever bright and cheerful, she let her light shine on her home as well as in the Church. Only a few weeks ago she accepted a most pressing invitation to make them a visit and recuperate my health. Belonging to a family of wealth and position, she had every opportunity and many inducements to mingle in society, and attend balls, parties, and theatres, but she held aloof from them all, and never entered one after her conversion. A life so pure and self-denying was succeeded by a death of holy triumph. She sent loving messages to children and grandchildren to meet her in heaven. She uttered words of love and devotion to her husband, who was sitting by her side. She then said, "Husband, I am almost gone." When he repeated the lines,

"Hide me, O my Saviour, hide, Till the storm of life be past"

she attempted to fill out the stanza, and repeated, in an indistinct voice,

"Safe into the haven guide,
O receive my soul at last!"

These were her last words. Thus lived and thus died one of the patriarchs of North Alabama Methodism.

R. H. RIVERS.

✻*MISS EMMI L. LEINBACH,*✻
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

LADIES' SHOPPING AND PURCHASING AGENT,

ALSO AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about
$75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.

146 WEST 16th ST., NEW YORK CITY.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leimbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She mites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician; she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal,
Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

EASTER
NOVELTIES

— AT THE —

✻ $ALEM ✻ BOOKSTORE. ✻

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical. $1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies.

Address,
THE SCHOOLTEACHER,
WINSTON, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

MONEY

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere; Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLINARD & BROOKES. —

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., MAY, 1889.

NUMBER 96.

APRIL.

BY MISS LUTA BEWLEEV.

Showery, shadowy, witching month
Sweet with the breath of Spring;
Borne on the wings of the wind you come,
A rainbow sky you bring.
Telling of golden, sunlit days,
Of twilight cool and long,
Of silvery notes from thrilling throats
Filling the air with song.
Welcome! We greet
The showers fleet,
The flowerets sweet!

See how you smile! And again you hide
Your face in a mist of tears,
'Till swift from the sun a message comes,
You know the word it bears;
Lo! Golden light transforms the tears
To diamonds, wondrous fair,
And the world knows naught but happiness
Bathed in the sunlight clear.
Silvery light
Caught from the bright
World of delight.

Welcome! sweet herald of summer fair,
With the message of light and love;
Dropped in a shower to us—and then
Back to the skies above
Fickle may be as the wind that called you
From the heavens serene,
Yet sweet as syren's whisper of old,
And fair as love's young dream.
Brief is your reign,
Sweeter your strain,
Welcome again!

From the Anderson, S. C., Intelligencer.

NOVELISTS.

THE first place among American novelists is universally conceded to Nathaniel Hawthorne, of Massachusetts, who died in 1864. His mystic, pre-Raphaelite vein but gives him an added charm in such works as The Marble Faun, where Donatello's soul is elaborated, is wrought within him by remorse for crime, as Undine's soul was formed by love for the Knight Huldbrand, her husband. The Scarlet Letter probably is next in merit.

James Fenimore Cooper, of New York, ranks next, principally for his Leather Stocking Tales, in which the colonial times and border life and warfare with the Indians are graphically depicted. They have a fixed, local value, unlike so many books of to-day that like rockets of the hour are noted and pass away in a short time.

After these two we have a host of writers, such as William D. Howells, originally from Ohio, Julian Hawthorne, son of Nathaniel, but not nearly so original as his father, and Henry James, Jr. These, at this time, represent the Boston element of our literature. Howells' works are character sketches, yet they lack cohesion and unity. The strongest and best novels are wrought about some central fact or truth or character, and make a strongly defined impression on the mind, but his works are spiritless, water-color sketches, gathered loosely into a portfolio. Henry James, Jr., in his Daisy Miller, affixed a stigma to all American girls abroad, who probably are very different from his ideal.

Bret Harte and Joaquin Miller acquired some celebrity as delineators of wild California scenes; there is a liberal admixture of rough language, lapsing into occasional profanity, but with it a pathos that touches and charms in spite of roughness. The Luck of Roaring Camp, First Families of the Sierras are fair samples.

Edward Eggleston has wrought in the line of The Hoosier Schoolmaster until it is nearly exhausted, but this work will remain a correct picture of the rude beginnings of life in the north central States of the Union.

Edward Payson Roe, of New York, was one of the most prolific writers from 1872, when he gave up preaching for novel writing, till his death in 1888. His works are strikingly similar so far as the main features are concerned: a young lady is generally in duty bound to one gentleman, but manages to break those bonds and follow the dictates of a later choice. Still, he pleased the popular taste as a more powerful writer would scarcely be able to do. Barriers Burned Away, his first, was suggested by the great Chicago fire; The Earth Trembled idealized the earthquake which devastated Charleston. Nature's Serial Story is a natural history of the woods and fields on the banks of the Hudson, with sufficient love-making to make it palatable.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe is old and feeble: past her three-score years and ten, her working days are over. Uncle Tom's Cabin the most popular American story published, has little intrinsic merit, but happened to strike a responsive chord of popular feeling at a time when the prejudice for and against slavery was at fever heat, in 1850. Old Town Folks is a finer piece of work, yet it is rarely heard of.

The sisters, Susan and Anne Warner, who lived on an island in the Hudson, nearly opposite West Point, began a series of semi-religious novels, such as Wide, Wide World, Queechy, &c., but their day is over.

Dr. J. G. Holland was, perhaps, considering all things, the most generally read American writer of this age. His poems and essays became the leading literature of their day. Of his novels, Sevenoaks ranks first.

Mrs. A. D. Whitney, of New England, writes works of a healthful tone as opposed to sensationalism. Hitherto, Real Folks are examples.

Mrs. Terhune (Marion Harland), of New Jersey, wrote pleasing romances, such as Alone, Hidden Path, &c.

Miss Louisa Alcott was, perhaps, the most pleasing and wholesome writer for the young of our day; she died in 1888, leaving Little Women, Little Men, Old Fashioned Girl &c., as a legacy to her age.

Mrs. E. D. Southworth, of Maryland, is said to be 65 years old, and to have written 65 novels, one for each year of her life. She can hardly be said to belong to the present time.

The trend of American literature has for some time been decidedly Southern. Dialect tales of different kinds are appreciated and called for. Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett heads the list. Coming from her native England, at the age of 14, with her father's family to East Tennessee, she there grew up, married Dr. Burnett, and became noted through her short stories for The Century. Louisiana, Esmeralda are tales of North Carolina life; then That Lass 'o Lowrie's showed her acquaintance with the coal-mining population of England. Later she removed to Washington City, where Through One Administration was followed by Little Lord Fauntleroy, the most charming picture of child nature in literature.

Miss Constance Fenimore Woolson, a grand-niece of James Fenimore Cooper, is a growing writer. Anne is her best work. East Angels was rather a disappointment from its impracticable heroine, Garda Thorne.

Miss Fisher, of Salisbury, N. C., daughter of the lamented Col. Fisher, who fell early in our late Civil War, wrote various entertaining stories of Southern life and character. Since her marriage to Professor Tiernan we hear nothing of her. Morton House was good, and her Land of the Sky has become a guide-book of Western North Carolina.

George Cable, who has been termed "the Louisiana yankee," writes pleasant dialect stories of the Acadians, the French Creole element of New Orleans. His northern parentage does not add to his popularity, though The Grandissimes, Madame Delphine, &c., are charming bits of writing.

In 1866 Augusta Evans, now Mrs. Wilson, of Mobile, Ala., began to delight the rather jaded reading public with new sensations in St. Elmo, Beulah, Infelice, Vashti, &c. She has her mannerisms, and it is necessary to have a classical dictionary within easy reach in order to read her works understandingly, yet she still holds her own in a fastidious age. At the Mercy of Tiberius is her last, though since her marriage she does not write much.

The number of Southern writers of stories of the times before the war, of the old South, and of the transition South, is increasingly large. Thomas Nelson Page, a young lawyer of Richmond, Va., has made a reputation by such tales as Uncle Edinburg's Drowndin', Mch Lady, &c.

Charles Egbert Craddock, is the nom de plume of Miss Mary Murfree, of Tennessee, who has become noted through In the Tennessee Mountains, Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountains, &c.

Amelie Rives has acquired a certain notoriety by a semi-torrid style as illustrated in The Quick and the Dead, Virginia of Virginia, also a red-hot, sulphurous tragedy, Herod and Mariamne; the beauty of the writer, her wealth, her talents, and her recent marriage to Mr. Chandler, a wealthy Virginian, have added to this notoriety.

Some writers are known to us chiefly by one strikingly popular work: such was

The Lamplighter, which charmed the reading public in 1854; it was written by Miss Maria Cummins, daughter of Judge Cummins, of Salem, Mass. She died in 1866, and though she wrote various works after The Lamplighter, none appealed to the popular heart like this wholesome, simple story. Miss Blanche Willis Howard, of Maine, pleased the public fancy by a sprightly little romance, entitled One Summer, about 1877. It was followed by Aunt Serena, and others, but none became popular save the first. Gen. Lew Wallace, U. S. Minister to Turkey, and a general of the army during the late Civil War, wrote Ben-Hur, a Tale of the Christ, which has become a classic. His later works are scarcely mentioned. Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson's Ramona has likewise become a classic, and the death of the lamented authoress places the book next to Ben-Hur in the estimation of the reading world. John Habberton, of New York, made a decided hit in Helen's Babies, which produced scores of imitators, but none worth recording, none which survived.

Apart from English and American novelists, the list is not very large. Alexandre Dumas, pere, Victor Hugo, Eugene Sue and Madame Dudevant (George Sand) stand at the head of French novelists. Hugo's Les Miserables, and Italie or Corinne of De Stael are classics. The modern French school, Zola, Daudet, Gaboriau, Greville, are not fit reading for young or old.

Goethe's Wilhelm Meister is a German classic. Eugenie John, who wrote as E. Marlitt, died in 1888. Gold Elsie, Old Ma'n's Secret, are her best works. Friedrich Spielhagen wrote From Night to Light, Hammer and Anvil, and Problematic Characters; Berthold Auerbach, On the Heights, Little Barefoot, &c. Miss Muhlbach (Frau Mundt) wrote a series of historical novels, but they are not first-class.

Hans Christian Andersen has shed a lustre over Danish literature, and his tales are translated into every tongue. Hjalmar Hjarth Boyesen is a native of Denmark, though he has been a citizen of the United States for some years.

Bjornstjorn Bjornson is a Norwegian novelist of some note. Ivan Tourgenieff and Count Tolstoi have brought Russian literature before the public in their stories of Russian life and character, but Russian literature, like its trade and manufactures, is but in its earlier stages. Russia is a vast, undeveloped realm, whose powers will be displayed in the future.

The Euterpean Society.

BY MISSES HATTIE SUTTON AND JANIE WHITNER.

IT may be of interest to the former members and friends of the Euterpean Society, who are no longer within ACADEMY limits, to know that this organization which they cherished in its infancy and brought safely through some of its earlier critical stages, is still growing and highly prosperous.

September 12th, the first Friday evening after the girls had returned for the opening term, the usual Society meeting was held in the Chapel, under the new corps of officers, who had been chosen at the last meeting of the Society held before Commencement. The President was Miss EMILY HAZLEHURST; Vice-President, Miss ANNE STAPLES; Secretary, Miss HATTIE SUTTON; Treasurer, Miss JANIE WHITNER. Under their charge the Society flourished greatly, and no change was made until the latter part of January, when the following young ladies were chosen for the pleasant, but at the same time, responsible duties devolving upon them by their election:

Miss HATTIE SUTTON was elected President; Miss JANIE WHITNER, Vice-President; Miss MARY FITZPATRICK, Secretary; Miss MARGUERITE DUFOUR, Treasurer; Misses E. ROLLINS and M. TRIMMER, Janitors.

The attempts to secure a Society Hall were at length crowned with success. Mr. CLEWELL kindly gave them the north Commercial room on the fourth floor, after having it handsomely renovated, walls tinted, &c. After obtaining a hall, the next thought was how to raise money to furnish it neatly. The officers accordingly, with considerable trepidation, undertook the management of a Public Entertainment, given in the ACADEMY Chapel on the evening of Feb. 22d, and consisting of tableau scenes, charades, music, &c.

Our friends were pleased to pronounce it a perfect success, and we felt amply repaid for our exertions especially since the neat little sum of $50 was added to the amount already in the treasury. Curtains, chairs, a stove, president's table, etc., were purchased, as well as a part payment made on a new piano bought some time previously.

With the close of the school-year we shall give the Society, with all its belongings, over into the hands of the new officers and members, feeling honestly proud of its successful growth and improvement under our efforts, and hoping that it will continue to grow from year to year, and become an ever increasing power in the ACADEMY.

The Hesperian Society.

BY MISS JULIA MEACHUM.

SOON after the organization of the Euterpean Society in the fall of 1887, a number of the Seniors and Specials discussed the advisability of forming a sister society. After consultation with our Principal it was finally agreed that it would be well for our school to have two Societies, and that the natural opposition and rivalry between the two would be beneficial to both.

Accordingly, early in September, the Hesperian Society was regularly organized, a suitable motto chosen, officers elected and other necessary arrangements made. The first regular meeting was held in the Junior Middle Class room, in which place we continued to meet during '87 and '88. Among those who were actively engaged in its organization were Misses BAHNSON, PADDISON, HOLT, ATKINSON, GIBBS and SMITH. The programme evenings during the whole of last year, were confined exclusively to the members of the Society and its honorary members.

Owing to unavoidable interruptions we failed to have the election of new officers at the close of last year, so that our Society was left in a partially unorganized condition at the opening of the present school session, but measures were at once taken in September to bind up the broken threads; a meeting was called, new officers elected, and, since this time, every thing has progressed in the most satisfactory manner.

The entertainment given in the Chapel, on the 5th of April last, was well attended, and proved to be a success in every respect, and it will long be remembered by the Society as one of the most pleasant features of the year '89. The proceeds were used in furnishing our new hall, which is quite a neat room on the first floor.

The officers at present are Misses LIDA FAIN, President; JULIA MEACHUM, Vice-President; LOLA WELLS, Secretary; LOULA BRIDGERS, Critic; ANNE BOURDEAUX and MARY PRETLOW, Janitors.

We have labored faithfully, with the view of establishing a society which shall continue to prosper long after the girls that form it now have left the ACADEMY for their distant homes, and in glancing backward over the years that have passed we feel that we can say that the hours we have spent in the Society work are among the most gratifying and pleasant of our school-life. So may it be, and may we not be the only ones to feel this, but may the school, whose good we have ever had in view, be proud to acknowledge and cherish its Hesperian Society.

The Seniors' Excursion to the Pilot.

BY MISS MARY FITZPATRICK.

SOME months ago Mr. CLEWELL promised the Seniors that when the warm Spring days came they should take a pleasure trip to the mountains. For weeks before the time arrived it was our daily topic of conversation, and after long anticipation the day came for us to start. By 8 o'clock, Tuesday morning, the 23rd of April, we were comfortably seated in the wagons, ready for three days of genuine fun.

Several interesting places through which we passed are worthy of note. At Bethabara, or Old Town, all alighted from the conveyances and walked through the town; we enjoyed a ramble through the graveyard, which is at the top of a strikingly beautiful hill. The grave and tall granite monument of Matthew Stach, the first Moravian missionary to Greenland, made this place peculiarly interesting to us. From there we proceeded through the old fort grounds to the church, which is now 136 years old; after a few moments spent in examining the quaint old building, we returned to the wagons and jostled on toward Bethania, where we dined.

We reached Dalton about 5 o'clock, P. M. After an early supper, horses were saddled for us, and we began, two by two, to take short rides. This was, indeed, immense fun for us, but we dare say that the horses had had better times in their lives, as each girl tried to excel her predecessor in swiftness.

In the evening, the girls amused themselves with singing, playing, dancing, chatting, &c., until half-past ten, when they bade Mr. C—— and others good-night, expecting to rise at an early hour on the morrow to view the glorious sunrise on the Pilot.

Imagine the disappointment and distress when we awoke to find the sky heavily clouded over. We, indeed, arose sadder and wiser girls that morn. But, in spite of the weather, we prepared to take our trip to the mountain. Several members of the party took horses in preference to their seats in the wagons, but before the end of their journey was reached they would willingly,—oh, too gladly,—have returned to their former places. Before the foot of the mountain was reached the sun began to show his face now and then from behind a cloud, to let us know that he would soon be on hand. A looker-on would undoubtedly have enjoyed the ascent of the mountain rather more than we did. Many of us thought that mortals never were so wearied. Every tree in our reach was embraced; hands eagerly grasped every shrub and arms were extended to every root for help. After laborious climbing, the summit was reached, then came the time for heart-quaking.

The pinnacle is truly awe-inspiring, but when the attempt is made to ascend it the feeling deepens more and more. All, however, gained the top of the pinnacle. Mr. C—— attributed our success not to our bravery, but to our obedience, and said that we were so accustomed to obeying that the commands were followed almost unconsciously by us. After wandering from rock to rock on top of the pinnacle, we began to make our slow descent.

We entered Dalton late in the afternoon, laden with laurels, trailing arbutus, &c., well pleased with the scenery of the mountain and well nigh tired out.

The preceding day had proved to be one of singular beauty, and it was, therefore with not a little regret that we found on awaking Thursday morning that it was raining, but not enough to prevent our return to the ACADEMY. We accordingly bade adieu to the beautiful scenery of the mountains and slowly wended our way homeward.

The trip was one never to be forgotten by the girls who composed our party, and in glancing backward over the years of our school-life, our trip to the Pilot will be one of the most pleasant remembrances of the senior year.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., MAY, 1889.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—The change in our Commencement Programme as duly announced, was effected in order to secure the presence of Daniel C. Gilman, LL. D., the distinguished and scholarly President of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., and of Mr. Charles Lee Smith, Instructor in the same notable institution, who will take the degree of Ph. D. very shortly, and whose recent work on "Education in North Carolina" has given him name and fame. With these gentlemen, and the Rev. Thos. H. McCallie, D. D., of Chattanooga, Tenn., the preacher of the Baccalaureate Sermon, in connection with the strong Programme, elsewhere given, we feel that we have provided a treat for our friends and patrons, and have arranged for a most brilliant and successful Commencement season.

PROGRAMME.

Friday, May 31, 1889. 8 P. M.
GRAND CONCERT.

Sunday, June 2, 10:30 A. M.
BACCALAUREATE SERMON.
REV. THOMAS H. MCCALLIE, D. D.,
Of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Monday, June 3.
2 P. M. ART EXHIBIT.
3 P. M. ALUMNÆ MEETING.
8 P. M. READING OF ESSAYS BY GRADUATING CLASS.

Tuesday, June 4.
3 P. M. COMMENCEMENT.

ADDRESS BY

CHARLES LEE SMITH, Esq.

Fellow by Courtesy of the Johns Hopkins University and Instructor in History.

DIPLOMAS WILL BE PRESENTED BY

DANIEL C. GILMAN, LL. D.

President of the Johns Hopkins University.
Baltimore, Md.

S P. M. MENDELSSOHN'S ORATORIO
ST. PAUL

will be given by a chorus of one hundred and twenty voices, accompanied by the Salem Orchestra.

Soloist: Miss K. W. EVANS

Director: PROFESSOR GEORGE MARKGRAFF

Tempus Fugit.

Yea, verily; it seems but a very little while since we bade our last Seniors, the class of '88, farewell, and now, ere another visit of THE ACADEMY, the bustle of Commencement, the worry, the anxiety, the joy of greeting dear friends, the sad parting, will all be over and the vacation quiet will brood over halls and study parlors, dormitories, piazzas and grounds. "Swifter than a weaver's shuttle" seems hardly applicable to human life at the time, but looking back over a section, a year, or years, we can fully subscribe to it.

GREETING.

To the Alumnae Association of Salem Female Academy:

The Executive Committee of your Association held a conference for the purpose of completing arrangements for the Annual Meeting of the Association, and as a result beg leave to submit the following:

1. The time and place of the Annual Meeting will be Monday, June 3rd, 1889, at 3 o'clock, P. M., in the Chapel of the Moravian Church.

2. A carefully devised programme is being prepared, consisting of a number of papers to be read during the meeting, covering portions of the past history of the ACADEMY; the present development of its work; the object and aim of the Alumnae Society; letters and greetings from members who cannot be present will be read, as well as other features of interest.

3. Your Committee would beg leave, furthermore to call attention of members to Article V of the Constitution, which says: "Every member of the Alumnae Association shall be required to subscribe to THE ACADEMY, as that journal will be the means of inter-communication. As this subscription is the only financial requisite in connection with the membership we would earnestly request any who have not complied with this requirement, to do so at once.

Finally we appeal to all old pupils who have not yet joined the Society to send in their names, before the approaching meeting. We also request each member to aid us in making the Monday afternoon meeting one of the most enjoyable features of Commencement week. This can be done by coming promptly at the hour named, prepared to enjoy the programme, and adding to it whatever will be of interest to those who have come from a distance.

With fraternal greetings,

E. A. LEHMAN,
President.

MRS. W. B. GLENN,
MRS. R. BELO,
MRS. J. W. FRIES,
MRS. A. HALL,
MISS J. RAGSDALE,
Ex. Committee.

The Calisthenic Drill.

THE annual Calisthenic Drill of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY took place on Thursday and Friday, May 9th and 10th, in the ACADEMY Chapel. The draping of the 3 calisthenic colors, red, cream and blue, brightened the hall and made a very pretty combination. The exercises were performed with accuracy and spirit, and were a decided success from beginning to close.

We copy from the programme as follows: 1. Plain Marching. 2. Recitation. 3. Free Calisthenics. 4. Little Waiters. 5. Recitation. 6. Marching. 7. Haydn's Kinder Symphony. 8. Dumb Bell Drill. 9. Recitation. 10. Wand Drill. 11. Recitation. 12. Broom Drill. 13. Figure in honor of Class of '89.

"The Little Waiters" was especially pleasing: children always do these things well in their child-like unconsciousness. The bright red and black costumes set off the different girls who engaged in the Broom Drill, and made it a very pretty feature of the evening. SADIE RUMBROUGH, who gave the word of command, made her tones ring out with the precision of a practiced officer. When the last figure, the Class of '89 was formed, the whole class sang "Guadcamus igitur."

Various recitations were given with spirit and with pathos. Among those who recited were: RACHEL SIMS, "St. Michael's"; NELLIE BLAIR, "High Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire"; MARY PFOHL, "The Painter of Seville"; EMMA ROLLINS, "The Legend of Bregenz"; ANNE BOURDEAUX, "The Directors' Visit to the School;" ELLIE STRUP, "The House Maid."

—On Saturday evening, April 12th, Prof. L. B. Wureschke gave the school the closing lecture of the season, his subject being the West Indies, a subject which he handled con amore, since as he said "Et ego in Arcadia vixi."

Letter from Dr. Rondthaler.

We present, with great pleasure, a letter from our beloved pastor and former Principal, Dr. RONDTHALER, who is now travelling in the Orient.

ATHENS, Greece, April 10, 1889.

You asked me, before I left Salem, to send an occasional note to THE ACADEMY, and, at this distant point of my journey I wish, in part, at least, to fulfil my promise. We are, indeed, far away. The relative time of day reminds me of that. I am writing at half-past eight in the evening, but with you the sun is still high in the heavens and the school-girls have scarcely more than finished their first afternoon hour. How often my thoughts wander back to the Academy precincts and I think with pleasure of scholars whom I am yet to teach, if God so will, while a tinge of sadness comes over my mind when I think of dear pupils whom I am to teach no more! Not only the time of day, but by the very calendar, I am reminded of my distance from home. I picked up a Greek newspaper this evening to see if there was any American news, and I found it dated for this day under the heading, March 29th. For here in Greece, which belongs to Oriental Christendom, the Latin reform of the calendar was never accepted, and they are therefore twelve days behind the Western nations in their reckoning of time. So completely have I dropped out of the old world in which I used to live that even Blums' Almanac, while it would cheer me with its quaint, familiar face, would give me no help in measuring the current year.

To-day we have taken one of the loveliest railroad rides I can remember ever to have had. It extended over nine hours. We started on the west coast of Greece, at Patras, and ended at Athens, near the eastern extremity of the country. We had the Corinthian Gulf on our left hand all morning, and the Saronic Gulf most of the afternoon. In the course of the morning the gleaming snow fields of Parnassus rose before us, and this afternoon the Parthenon caught our excited eyes as the train rounded into sight of the far-famed Athenian Acropolis. In one day we have seen the lofty village, under the citadel hill, which represents all that is left of that great Corinth to which Paul addressed two of his inspired epistles, and we have looked upon Mar's Hill where he preached that memorable sermon which is epitomized in the Acts of the Apostles. And over all this landscape of nine hours' succession there has been poured the lovely air and verdure and wealth of blossom, which have reminded me more of a Carolina Spring than any other day since leaving home.

This evening, in the early twilight, we took our first walk in Athens, past the neat, white, royal palace, where the fashion of the city was displaying itself, past the great Corinthian columns of Hadrian's temple, to Jupiter, which is the second largest ever built, down to the banks of the Ilissos, which is revered wherever Athenian history and literature are known throughout the world.

It flows between walls, some seventeen paces apart, intended to contain these impetuous waters when swollen to flood height by winter rains. The pebbly bottom shows how the stream of the Ilissos then rushes from the near mountains to the near sea. But now, already in the early Spring, the stream purls along softly, no wider than our little branch which runs through the Academy Pleasure Grounds. Sycamore trees, clad in their first fresh green, line its banks; box has recently been planted in terraces beside the classic margins. Here and there the native acanthus spreads its tough long leaves as a kind of artistic hedge for the illustrious stream. Several little bridges span the pebbly bed, leading to summer gardens, for the spot is a favorite resort to-day as it was more than two thousand years ago. Beyond the stream rises a steep and shrubby cliff, and beyond that the long stony wall of Hymettus, famous for its honey. It was along Ilissos that, according to the poetical legend, the lovely maiden, Oreithyia, was gathering flowers when the rude North Wind, smitten by her charms, carried her off to his far wintry home. It was here, too, that Plato imagined his talkers gathered in his great dialogue, entitled Phaedros. With the music of this stream in their ears and its green turf under their feet, they spoke of the highest themes to which uninspired men have ever been able to attain, and filled their heathen darkness with the first dim rays of what has risen upon us as clear Gospel light concerning God and immortality. As we walked up and down the banks of old Ilissos, and looked upon its little pools and tiny current, over which a girl's step could easily leap, I was reminded how the very smallest things of earth are glorified when genius shines upon them and especially when they come to be associated with the thoughts and strivings of some beautiful soul.

With kindest regards to Principal, teachers and pupils,

Yours, sincerely,

EDWARD RONDTHALER.

Correspondence.

—Our first communication for this month is in the beautiful chirography of a dear friend the valedictorian of the class of 1880, LORENA BOBBITT, now Mrs. Dr. Hunt, of Oxford, N. C.

—“My subscription to THE ACADEMY expired in November, and it is my desire to renew it without delay. The paper is a source of much pleasure to me, and I read every word in it from beginning to end. Even before the expiration of my subscription I remembered how rapidly the year was drawing to a close, and intended forwarding money as it fell due, but other duties pressing on me just then caused me to be somewhat negligent. My interest in the old school home increases instead of diminishing as the years roll by, and my love for the old roof-tree is still strong and true. Neither the joys nor the cares which come with later life can erase from my mind the memory of the happy days, months and years spent beneath the roof of dear old SALEM ACADEMY, and my heart's best wishes will always be with her for her prosperity and happiness in all the years to come.

Enclosed you will find the stamps for my yearly subscription. Please send me the last number. I would like to have my name enrolled as a member of the Alumnae Association, at a meeting of which I will hope sometimes to be present. With best love to my former Pastor and Teachers, I am

Affectionately,

MRS. J. G. HUNT,
(LORENA BOBBITT.)

Oxford, N. C.

—Our next is from Mrs. Dr. Kernan formerly Miss SOPHIE KREMER, a well-known and esteemed teacher of years ago.

“Enclosed you will find my subscription for another year: mine expired with the December number for which many thanks, as I would not like to miss a single one. The many cares and duties incident to a large family, and preparations for the Holidays when my boys and girls fly to the home nest, caused me to forget that my time had expired.

Dr. Kernan has recently been appointed one of the physicians of the new State Lunatic Asylum for the Southern part of Virginia, and has already gone to take charge of his work. As I will soon follow him please change my address for future numbers to Marion, Va., S. W. Lunatic Asylum.

I shall probably there renew old acquaintance and friendship with old Salem pupils, as there are several in the neighborhood, and if they are not already subscribers will take pleasure in showing them my papers. In this county is a dear old lady, Mrs. Carter, formerly ELIZA SMITH, to whom I send mine for perusal. She was there when my own dear mother was a teacher in the ACADEMY. She enjoys the papers so much particularly when an old familiar though perhaps now forgotten name meets her eye, and she never tires of recalling her happy Salem life, and incidents of experience connected therewith. She speaks of Mrs. DENKE or rather Miss STEINER, Miss KRAMSCH, Miss CRIST, Miss MEINUNG and others, long since entered into their eternal rest. With best wishes for the prosperity of all and everything connected with the ACADEMY, I remain

S. K. KERNAN.

Lebanon, Va.

—MAGGIE DAVID writes a few lines, we would be glad to hear at greater length from her.

“Please continue THE ACADEMY for another year. I find too much pleasure in reading it to do without it. Enclosed find 50 cents the subscription price for the dear little paper.

Very sincerely,

MAGGIE DAVID.

Bennettsville, S. C.

—We also have a short communication from MAGGIE MCKINNON.

“I received a notice a few days ago telling me that my subscription had expired, and I hasten to renew it as I do not want to miss a single copy of the dear little paper. It is a most welcome visitor to my home. Enclosed you will find 50 cents to renew my subscription. With much love to yourself, all the other teachers and DR. RONDTHALER, &c. Wishing you much success, I am

Your true friend,

MAGGIE MCKINNON.

Plainview, N. C.

—From LAURA STOKES we are also glad to hear:

"Enclosed find Postal Note for ACADEMY. I am sorry it was neglected for I could not for an instant think of having it stopped.

I correspond with a few of the old girls, but through THE ACADEMY I hear from most of them. I believe the class of '88 made out to meet again in the ACADEMY at the expiration of five years, but I do not think I can wait that long so I have decided to come up next Commencement.

Please remember me to Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL, and all the Teachers.

Very sincerely,

LAURA F. STOKES.

Danville, Va.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—LIDA FAIN went home May 10.

—Sallie Barber Ross has named her little girl Edna.

—Miss HATTIE SWIFT is still in New York improving herself in vocal music.

—Thanks to Misses MATTIE NICHOLLS and SUSIE SHIELDS for invitation to Temperance Anniversary at Scotland Neck.

—Mrs. Robert Daniels (MARY WILLIAMS,) now lives at Panther Creek on her farm. Her Louise is said to be a little beauty.

—Rev. Mr. Davis, the talented Presbyterian minister of Winston, filled the pulpit of the Moravian Church, Sunday night, May 5th. His sermon was very good.

—Mr. and Mrs. Du Four left Salem on April 5th, after a stay of about 4 months. They had become so identified with the place that it seems as if old friends had gone away.

—We were told that JENNIE RAGSDALE was visiting her sister IDA about Easter. IDA, Mrs. Dr. Hill, of Arcadia, N. C., has two dear little children, the eldest Louise and little Fred.

—MOLLIE MOTLEY went and got married without letting us know. Her husband Mr. Plonk is a prosperous young merchant of King's Mountain. MOLLIE is very handsomely situated.

—Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Moore, of Hampden-Sidney College, Va., with their two interesting little ones, are spending some time at Mrs. L. M. Fries'. Miss IDA MOORE is with her mother in the ACADEMY.

—Mrs. Sarah Davidson aged 91 died in Charlotte, March 3rd. She was no doubt our oldest Alumna, and had been blind and bed-ridden for some time. Her nieces tended her last days faithfully.

—Several new names have been presented for membership in the Alumnae Association, viz: Mrs. G. W. Pickle, Mrs. George A. Fain, of Dandridge, Tenn., and Mrs. Lula Cannon Parker, of Sylva, N. C.

—We acknowledge, with thanks, an invitation of Mrs. Col. J. D. Graham (GEORGIA SANDERS) to the Commencement Exercises of the Summer Institute. They have quite an extended programme, Art Reception, &c.

—By some mistake, Miss IDA VAIL was spoken of in a late number of THE ACADEMY as teaching in the Thompson Orphanage. It is her sister CORA who is teaching there. IDA is out North in Philadelphia; has been there since October last.

—We are glad to hear that some of our Tennessee friends will be here at Commencement, viz: Mrs. W. B. Harris (ALICE WOODSIDES), Mrs. George A. Fain (ELIZA MORE), Mrs. G. W. Pickle (MINNIE FAIN), of Dandridge, and Mrs. Logan (MARIA EARNEST), of Knoxville.

—We are pleased to hear that Mrs. Wm. H. Patterson, (CORNELIA GRAHAM) of Philadelphia, Pa., will be here at Commencement. Her two little daughters Louise and Percy returned to Winston with their sister Lucy, Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, several weeks ago.

—Mrs. C. M. Winkler, of Corsicana, Texas, Mrs. Bea. Markgraft's mother arrived here on Maundy Thursday last with her youngest daughter, who attends school in the ACADEMY as a day scholar. They are staying at Prof. MARKGRAFF'S nearly opposite Fogle Brothers' Mills.

—We hear that KATE OLLINGER is to visit ELLA CATHCART, and that in all probability they will both attend Commencement. JENNIE SIEGER and LIZZIE WOLLE are coming on too, very soon, so that we anticipate a delightful time. Miss MATTIE ERWIN, of Staten Island, N. Y., will be present and many more we trust.

—We are sorry to learn that Mrs. W. P. Thomas died at her home in Jefferson, Ashe Co., on Thursday, April 18th. Mrs. Thomas had many relatives in Salem. Her two daughters, LIZZIE and CARRIE, were in Salem, the former on a visit and the latter at school, till the dangerous illness of their mother called them home. They, however, reached home before her death.

—Rev. Robert H. Morrison, D.D., of Lincoln County, N. C., died at his home, aged 91 years. Dr. Morrison was the father of Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, Mrs. D. H. Hill, Mrs. Col. J. E. Brown of Charlotte, Mrs. Avery of Morganton, Alumnae of the ACADEMY. He was a warm friend of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, and delivered the address at the closing exercises, the Public Examination, in 1848.

—Among the visiting friends here at Easter were Mr. and Mrs. Waddell, Asheville, N. C.; Mr. Ycargan, of Texas, (PRAISE'S father); Mrs. Penn Lardner, (ANNIE GIBBON) with her niece, Mrs. Fagg and Miss BESSIE, of Asheville, N. C.; Misses BLANCHE ARMFIELD, of Jamestown, N. C., SALLIE JONES, High Point, LAURA DICKS, Walkertown, LOUISE HUNT, Lexington; Mr. and Mrs. Hicks, of Raleigh, were the guests of Mr. W. A. Shultz.

—We see in the Greensboro Workman that Miss JULIA BALLINGER a former pupil of the ACADEMY is soon to return to North Carolina from Mexico, where she has been teaching a Mission School. Her sister Mrs. Laura Winston who has been absent some time as a missionary of the Society of Friends in Mexico, having been relieved by the arrival of her successor in the work, reached Greensboro recently, accompanied by her daughter Lonnie. Julia will remain at her school in Mexico until the close of the session in May, when she too will return to N. C., principally on account of the death of her mother, which occurred some months ago.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—The Schubert Evening was repeated for the benefit of the Twin City Hospital, on Friday, April 11th.

—The "Orphan's Friend" under the energetic supervision of Miss Mamie Hatchett is becoming increasingly interesting from week to week.

—Professor Alonzo Tripp lectured in the ACADEMY Chapel on April 22nd, Easter Monday evening. The attendance was small as it was a holiday. The Professor lectured here some 15 or 20 years ago on these same subjects.

—The exterior both of the ACADEMY building and of South Hall is receiving a much needed coat of paint. The several shades of brown are tasteful and relieve the eye rather better than the white and green to which we have been so long accustomed.

—Several have recently inquired about the price of the Badge Pins of the Alumnae Association. They are priced six dollars, and may be obtained at any time by addressing Mrs. H. E. Fries, Salem, N. C., the member of the Badge Committee who has the matter in charge.

—A new feature of our Easter services consisted in little printed slips containing the numbers and first line of hymns to be sung during the exercises. Those were distributed to each one upon entering the church, and were serviceable in finding the hymns without undue delay.

—Mr. H. E. Fries offered a prize, a Badge-pin of the Alumnae Association for the most satisfactory essay concerning a Moravian Christmas, written by a school-girl. The prize was given by him to MARGUERITE DU FOUR. The other two essayists received each a neat paper knife.

—The "pig pen puzzle" has run its epidemic course among us too. What a trifle sometimes seems to amuse and interest. It was a good thing, no doubt, for the inventor, and there is no danger that any person will become insane from its intricacy as was the case with the noted "15" puzzle.

—The Seniors had a very enjoyable trip to the Pilot immediately after Easter. They started Tuesday, April 23d, stopped at Mr. Dalton's where they fared sumptuously, and received every possible attention. On Wednesday they mounted the Pilot, to the top of the Large Pinnacle, returned to Mr. Dalton's, and on Thursday afternoon arrived at the ACADEMY. On Friday they rested, so as to be quite ready for school the next week.

—The weather during the Easter week was very fine, unusually so, but the early Easter Sunday morning service was rather a bitter disappointment. First as a light shower had fallen, we assembled in the church, then, the authorities for all resolved to go to the graveyard; by the time we were fairly started it began again to rain, and when we got into the Avenue, a down-pour became imminent, so we turned the ACADEMY girls back, as they were scarcely prepared for rain. The majority of the people kept on and were pretty well drenched. It is the first time in 10 years that we have had bad weather, during that early service.

—The honors for the approaching Commencement were announced in Chapel service on May 1st; they are as follows: Salutatory, Miss MARY E. FRIES, Salem, N. C.; Valedictory, Miss HATTIE C. SUTTON, Fayetteville, N. C. The two Causa Honoris Honors, to Misses MARY M. FITZPATRICK, Mt. Pleasant, Texas, and EMILY HAZLEHURST, Macon, Ga. The three Honor Essays to Misses JULIA MEACHUM, Anderson, Tex.; C. ETTA SHAFFNER, Salem, N. C., and MARY H. PFOHL, Columbus, Ga. The class will go down in the history of the school as the most equal, even class, in point of scholarship and conduct that we have ever had, and their record is a most creditable one.

—Tuesday, April 30th, was a national holiday, and of course, was kept by us. At 9 o'clock we assembled in the church where we had a service of praise and thanksgiving conducted by Rev. J. H. CLEWELL, assisted by Rev. J. F. McCuiston and L. B. WURRESCHKE. After that the ACADEMY girls filed out to our picnic grounds near the railroad, east of Salem, where they had a nice picnic dinner. By the time this was attended to Mr. Fogle drove up with his teams, to take the first installment out for a drive, ending up at the ACADEMY. Then he went back for a second load, and a third which finished up the day. The evening was spent by the girls quietly in their rooms.

—A letter from ANNE SWANN reports her almost recovered from her nervous ailment of Christmas. She is visiting her sister RACHEL, Mrs. J. A. Moore, in Kansas City, Mo., where she has been since the middle of March. She reports RACHEL as having an elegant home, with everything that heart could wish, all modern appliances, electric bells, speaking tubes, &c. The wood-work is very handsome, the parlors being finished in mahogany, the stairs, of oak, the dining-room walnut, and the Library, oak. A bronze knight at the foot of the stairway surmounts the newel post, bearing a torch, which is unique and more suitable than the elaborate chandeliers of the rooms. But best of all is the choice treasure of this home, a lovely little girl of 9 months; she has as yet received no name of her own.

—The names of our Graduates of '89 are as follows: Misses LOULIE BRIDGERS, Tarboro, N. C.; MARGUERITE DU FOUR, Geneva, Switzerland; KITTY R. FAIN, Dandridge, Tenn.; LIDA FAIN, Mossy Creek, Tenn.; MINNIE F. FARMER, News Ferry, Va.; MARY and BIRT FITZPATRICK, Mt. Pleasant, Texas; JULIA H. FLAKE, Beverly, N. C.; MARY E. FRIES, Salem, N. C.; BIRDIE V. GOSLEN, Salem, N. C.; EMILY A. HAZLEHURST, Macon, Ga.; BERTA M. LINDSEY, Reidsville, N. C.; JULIA MEACHUM, Anderson, Texas; MARY H. PFOHL, Columbus, Ga.; DAISY RUFF, Ridge-way, S. C.; C. ETTA SHAFFNER, CARRIE C. SHELTON, CARRIE E. STOCKTON, Salem, N. C.; M. JANIE SHERILLE, Bennettsville, S. C.; ANNIE J. STAPLES, Reidsville, N. C.; HATTIE C. SUTTON, Fayetteville, N. C.; LOLA C. WELLS, Wilson, N. C.; S. JANIE WHITNER, Fort Reed, Fla.; BESSIE B. WINKLER, Salem, N. C.

Married.

PLONK—MOTLEY.—On Feb. 27, Mr. PLONK, of King's Mountain, N. C., to Miss MOLLIE MOTLEY, of Lawsonville, N. C.

COATES—BURDEN.—On April 30, in Macon, Ga., Mr. GEO. W. COATES to Miss IDA, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burden.

Died.

JENNINGS.—On May 9th, Mrs. E. H. JENNINGS, (nee CLAUDIA WHEELER) of consump-tion. Her age was about 25 years.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady graduate of the COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT of Salem Female Academy. Is acquainted with Book-Keeping, Phonography and Type-Writing. Address W.—care of The Academy, Salem, N. C. May—June.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady as Phonographer. Address C.—care of The Academy, Salem, N. C.

A French Summer Home.

A UNIQUE opportunity is on hand for any young ladies who, after a School-Course in the theory of the French Language, would be desirous to complete it through a few months' practice. Mr. and Mrs. A. Du Four, well known in Salem, where they spent last winter, will open on JUNE THE 15th, a select Summer School in their charming country place, in the Western North Carolina mountains, 6 miles from Hendersonville, and 18 miles from Asheville. Mr. DuFour is, as we well know, a man of culture and refinement; he will, of course, instruct his lady-boarders daily in his native language, but the main advantage for them is to be derived from the fact that the French is spoken exclusively in Mr. Du Four's family, which will afford excellent practical training. Climate, scenery, opportunities for mountain trips, etc., everything concurs to make Mr. DuFour's prospected summer-home a most desirable one. A season with him will be equivalent to a sojourn in France, at much less expense, and in a section the loveliness of which is known to every one. Pianos in the house. Terms will be found very moderate. We take pleasure in commending Mr. A. DuFour's intentions to all the patrons of this paper. Applicants would do wisely to write at once to Mr. A. DU FOUR, MILL'S RIVER, N. C., as he cannot accommodate more than 5 or 6 boarders in all.

—* MISS EMMA H. LEINBACH, *—
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

LADIES' SHOPPING AND PURCHASING AGENT,

ALSO AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.

146 WEST 16th ST., NEW YORK CITY.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician; she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal,
Salem Female Academy,
Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.

For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the

East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble ballast, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going or returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and wellfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address
B. W. WRENN,
G. P. A.,

JNO. L. MILAM,
D. P. A.

Knoxville, Tenn.

C. A. DeSAUSSURE,
A. G. P. A.,
Memphis, Tenn.

ST. LOUIS,
ARKANSAS &
TEXAS RAILWAY.

→ COTTON × BELT × ROUTE. ←

The Direct Line between the Educational
Centres of the South-East and
Arkansas and Texas.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN POINTS ON
THIS LINE AND

Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Atlanta.

PULLMAN BUFFET SLEEPERS, FREE RECLINING
CHAIR CARS, ALL THE COMFORTS AND
CONVENIENCES OF MODERN TRAVEL.

On advice being sent to any of the following,
an Agent of this Company will meet all pupils at the various junction points, en route, and render any assistance or information necessary.

For further information, address

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield.
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical.
$1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies.
Address,

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,
WINSTON, N. C.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere:
Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then
will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLINARD & BROOKES. —

WM. T. VOGLER,
JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.
REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

— FOUNDED 1802. —

Salem Female Academy.

SALEM, N. C.

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

ADVANTAGES.

Healthy location, ample grounds, well-arranged Infirmary.

Careful discipline. Two teachers in charge of each Room Company. Commodious study parlors. Well-aired, warmed and lighted dormitories, with separate sleeping alcoves for each pupil, and convenient wash-rooms on the same floor.

A graded course of thorough Academic instruction. Classes never overcrowded. Twenty-four professors and teachers. Much attention to the wants of the individual scholar.
Large library and reading-room.

Unusually well-equipped Music, Art, Linguistic and Commercial Departments, under the most competent teachers.

Religious instruction, which is simple, careful and unsectarian. Has been trusted in by members of all Christian denominations for more than three-fourths of a century.

Charges, which are as low as the advantages offered by the Institution will permit.

Send for Catalogue.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY,
Salem, North Carolina.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., JUNE, 1889.

NUMBER 97.

Commencement, 1889.

SWIFTER than a weaver's shuttle,' is aptly applied to the occurrences of human life, and with peculiar appropriateness to the regularly recurring closing periods of Academy life. The Commencement of 1888 had but just faded from sight, when the commencement of '89 demanded attention.

The time of the various exercises of commencement week had been changed from our first announcement, in order to accommodate ourselves to the movements of Dr. Gilman, the noted President of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, one of the foremost educators, and men of letters in the country. Due at Chapel Hill on the 5th of June, he proposed to be with us on the afternoon of the 4th, but, "L'homme propose, et Dieu dispose."—The fearful rain-storms which brought destruction and death in their wake, and laid the whole north in mourning, so cut off all railway communication, that the Doctor's engagements at both places were cancelled, without human volition. Dr. Charles Lee Smith, Fellow by Courtesy of Johns Hopkins, and an honored son of whom the old North State is justly proud, made his way to us, through great difficulties, and he gave us a most scholarly, ornate and polished address. The address was published, but we cannot reproduce the earnestness, the magnetic power of the living presence, the eloquence of this young apostle of the New South.

The regular Concert, instead of being held on Monday, June 3d, came off on Friday night, May 31st. The Baccalaureate Sermon was preached on Sunday, June 2nd, by Rev. Thomas McCallie, D. D., a distinguished Presbyterian divine of Chattanooga, Tennessee.

On Monday, at 2 o'clock, P. M., the Art Exhibit opened, in the Academy chapel. At 3 o'clock the Alumnae meeting was held in the home chapel. On Monday at 8 o'clock, P. M., the Seniors' Essays were read. The Commencement took place on Tuesday afternoon, and Mendelssohn's grand Oratorio "St. Paul," was performed on Tuesday night, 8 o'clock, closing the most brilliant and successful programme we have ever had.

Commencement weather is generally favorable, and this year was no exception. A heavy rain-storm came up on Tuesday evening, but it was over in time to enable the music loving audience to gather for the closing Oratorio, at night. The heavy rains which had brought disaster, ruin, and death to other sections, only effectually laid the dust, and cooled the atmosphere. The number of visiting friends, patrons and alumnae, was largely in advance of former years, and the whole series of performances was brilliant and successful throughout.

It was evident last year that the Academy chapel was entirely too small for the crowds of people who attend, so the exercises were all held in the church. A large platform extended quite across the church; beginning at the pulpit wall, it came nearly as far front as the south side door, and seated the entire school. Elaborate decorations were impossible, but the scenic effect of the whole was very fine. The Senior class colors, white and gold were effectually displayed in the neat and artistic draping and festooning around the platform. By the expressed wishes of the class, no flowers were sent, but white lilies were bestowed wherever space allowed,

THE CONCERT.

The Concert of Friday evening, May 31, was successful and enjoyable. The marked improvement, in the musical department, is gratifying. It is not probable that the rendition of such compositions as "Athalie" "Samson," and this year of Mendelssohn's grand oratorio of "St. Paul," would be attempted any where in the South, outside of the large cities.

The first number of the programme was a Piano Duett, "Spanish Dances," (Mozart) by Misses Sallie Smith and Sarah Cheatham. A vocal quintette followed: "Stars the night Adorning," (Weckerlin) by Misses L. Sutton, Cannady, King, N. Blair and DuFour. Next, piano solo, "Jeunesse Doree, (Smith,) Miss Birdie Goslen. "Cansonette de Concert," (Haydn-Viardot.) Miss M. Fitzpatrick. Piano Duett, "Les Colombes Messageres," (Schubert.) Misses N. Griffiss and D. Rayner. Vocal Duett, "Sweet Zephyr," (Mozart) Misses B. Fitzpatrick and DuFour. Piano Solo, "Etude," op 14, No 1. (Ravina.) Miss Louie Siddall. Vocal Solo, "La Fioraja," (Bevignani.) Miss Pace. Piano Duett, "Les Dames de Seville," (Schubert.) Misses Ella Hege and Almeida McGregor. Vocal Solo, "Waldgreusse," (Reinecke) Miss Lillie Clark, Violin obligato, Mr. John L. Butner. Piano Solo, "Polonaise op. 26, No. 1. (Chopin,) Miss Hattie Sutton. Vocal Trio, "Hearts Light as Air," (Grieg) Misses Pace, Hazlehurst and Blair. Piano Duett, "Grand Septuor. (Beethoven,) Misses Kittie Fain and A. VanVleck. Vocal Solo, "Le Reveil" (Weckerlin.) Miss Mary Penn. Piano Solo. Sonata in A flat with variations. (Beethoven) Miss Florence Settle. Vocal Duett. "Aubade a la Fiancee," (Czibulka) Misses Whitner and Hazlehurst. Piano Duett. "Triumph Marsch," (Beethoven) Misses Rogers and N. Blair. Vocal Solo. "My Heart with Joy," (Ricci) Miss H. Ruff. Piano Solo, Concerto No 2, (Beethoven.) Miss Nellie Cramer, with Orchestral accompaniment. Vocal Solo, "Staccato Polka" (Mulder) Miss Addie Laciari. Piano Duett, "Trot du Cavalier." (Spindler.) Misses Hazlehurst and Whitner. The last number was a Four Part Chorus, "Song of the Triton." (Molloy.) Twelve voices.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

On Sunday, June 2nd, Rev. Thomas McCallie, D. D., a noted Presbyterian divine of Chattanooga, Tenn., preached an earnest, practical sermon, in terse vigorous English, on the beautiful words of Ruth, 1, 16: "Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest, I will go, and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God, my God."

He told the touching story of Ruth's devotion, in beautiful language, holding up the character of Ruth as a model for young women; applying the story, in its adaptation to our own times. He became very eloquent on Ruth's confession of faith, and her loyalty to the God of her chosen people; a virtuous life, purity of character and nobleness of purpose, were given as the crowning glories of womanhood. There was an utter absence of all mawkish sentimentality, but good, earnest advice to the young, about entering upon their lifework, all in stirring, well chosen language.

The music, under Prof. Markgraf's direction, was especially good on the occasion. Dr. Bahnon's generous donation of water-lilies, enabled us to decorate the platform entirely with these fragrant blossoms, surmounted by several tall spikes of the common white lily of our gardens.—As the pond lilies also represented the class colors, each senior was adorned with them, the bright gold of the stamens, and the creamy tint of the petals, formed an exquisite combination.

THE ART EXHIBIT.

The Art exhibit, which was formerly opened in South Hall (old Academy), was this year transferred to the Academy chapel, and the ampler accommodations made the whole show to better advantage. The tastefulness and size of this fine display may well make Miss Siewers, the Art teacher, proud of her year's work. Soon all this bric-a-brac, these tidies, lambrequins, paintings, mirrors, &c., will be doing their legitimate work in beautifying individual homes, all over the south, and in developing true artistic tastes. We shall give the list of art-work elsewhere. The Book keeping sets were displayed on a separate table, and were marvels of neat work. The results of short hand and telegraphy teaching cannot be displayed here, but they are showing themselves in efficient work in offices and places of business in various sections, in this and other states.

THE ALUMNÆ ASSOCIATION.

This rapidly growing Association, was organized in 1887, and has become one of the most pleasing features, the very kernel of Commencement exercises. The annual meeting was held in the chapel of the Moravian Church on Monday, 3 o'clock P. M. Between two and three hundred alumnæ were present, with a limited number of invited guests. The entente cordiale of the meeting was very enjoyable. After the call to order, Miss Lehman, the President, welcomed the members and friends in a short address, after which letters of greeting were read, one from Mrs. Major Brown, Winston, N. C., another from the Rev. Robert de Schweinitz, the esteemed Principal of 30 years ago; Mrs. Mary Hendricks read a letter from the absent Vice President, Mrs. Alston, of Hagood, S. C., Mrs. W. B. Glenn read a pleasing communication from Mrs. Stella Neil Slappey, of Marshallville, Ga., A number of Historical papers were then read.

Two of our oldest living alumnæ, Mrs. E. Kremer, of Salem, and Mrs. Sturdivant, of Charlotte, were present; each one had prepared a paper of reminiscences of her times, Mrs. Kremer of 1826, and Mrs. Sturdivant of 1836, which gave great pleasure to the meeting. We cherish these dear old friends, for alas! their number is so small now, and yearly becoming less.—The third paper was to have been read by Mrs. William Patterson, (Cornelia Graham, 1855,) of Philadelphia, Pa., but as she did not reach Salem in time, her daughter, Mrs. Lindsay Patterson, (the Salutatorian of '82.) read it instead. The fourth paper was from Mrs. Thompson, (Lucy Malone, 1865,) of Tusculumbia, Ala., and was read by Miss Mattie Erwin, of New York. A touchingly sweet poem "Retrospect," by Miss Luta Bewley, Anderson, S. C., was read by Miss Connie Pfohl. Paper No. 5, was written and read by Miss Annie Pittman; practical, terse, and to the point, on the different ways of increasing class feeling by organized effort. Paper No 6, by Miss Jennie Sieger, in beautiful language spoke of the pleasures of Class reunions, and of extending them. Paper No. 7. by Miss Theo. Fitzgerald, of Danville, Va., advanced various ideas for the improvement of the Association, and of increasing its numbers. An 8th paper was read by Mrs. P. Hanes, of Winston, stating in a plain, simple manner how the alumnæ might and should show their affection for their alma mater, by their works: by starting a library fund, by donating books sending curiosities, stones, plants, anything to assist in forming a museum of natural objects for study.

The Alumnæ Song, composed, both words and music, by Miss A. VanVleck, for the Association last year, and now become an established feature of each meeting, was sung, the solo by Miss Alice Rondthaler, the members who were familiar with it joining in the chorus. Printed copies of the words were circulated. Business matters were next taken up. An amendment to clause 3 of the Constitution was proposed and passed. Miss Maria Vogler was chosen President of the Association for the coming year, and Miss Gertrude Siewers, Secretary. The Vice Presidents are Mrs. J. A. Bitting, Winston;

Mrs. Dr. Wiseman, Farmington, N. C.; Mrs. F. H. Fries, Salem; Mrs. William Patterson, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Georgia Bowe Wright, Columbia, S. C. Members of the Executive Board are: Mrs. Dr. Shaffner, Salem; Mrs. A. B. Goirell, Winston; Misses Laura Lemly and Mary Zevely, Salem; Miss Kate Ollinger, Milton, Fla.

Rev. J. H. Clewell then took the chair, and closed the meeting with a Moravian lovefeast. A pleasing incident marked the close of the meeting. Mr. J. C. Griffiss, of Chattanooga, started the Library Fund with a donation of $20. Later another donation of $30 was handed in by Mr. H. E. Fries, showing a spirit of liberality delightful to contemplate. The fund is hence to be designated "The Griffiss Library Fund.

SENIORS' ESSAYS.

The number of Seniors' Essays was not so large this year; 14 were read, but the Commencement exercises throughout were too lengthy. The evening was opened by a 4 part Chorus, Invitation to the Dance, (Oesten). Then came the first group of Essays: "The Changes of Time," by Miss Bessie Winkler, Salem; "Meteors," Miss Janie Sherille, Bennettsville, S. C.; "The Rough Diamond and Polished Paste," Miss M. Farmer, News Ferry, Va. Piano Solo, Concerto, No. 3 (Beethoven), Miss Kate Miller, with orchestral accompaniment. Vocal solo, Santa Lucia (Braga), Miss N. Cramer. The next group of Essays: "Be Practical," Miss Birdie Goslen, Salem; "Lights and Shadows," Miss Carrie Shelton, Salem. "A Voyage," Miss Bert Lindsey, Reidsville, was not read. "Lost Opportunities," Miss Daisy Ruff, Ridgeway, S. C. Vocal Trio, Mio Madre (Campana), Misses B. Fitzpatrick, Settle and H. Sutton. Piano Solo, Concerto, No. 3 (Beethoven), Miss Du Four, with orchestral accompaniment. A third group of Essays: "Echoes," Miss L. Wells, Wilson; "On the Summits," Miss M. Du Four, Switzerland; "Sanctified Ignorance or Unsanctified Knowledge," Miss J. Flake, Beverly, N. C. Piano Solo, Hungarian Rhapsodie, No. 1 (Liszt), Miss M. Fitzpatrick. Vocal Solo, Angel's Serenade (Braga), Miss M. DuFour; Violin obligato, Mr. J. L. Butner. A fourth group of Essays: "Hurry," Miss L. Bridgers, Tarboro, was not read; "Fame," Miss B. Fitzgerald, Mt. Pleasant, Texas; "An Essay," Miss Annie Staples, Reids-ville, N. C. Vocal Solo, With Verdure Clad (Haydn), Miss F. Settle. Piano Duet, Spanish Dances (Moszkowsky), Misses L. Wells and J. Meachum. The last group of Essays: "To-morrow Never Comes," Miss C. Stockton, Salem; "Contrasts," Miss J. Whitner, Ft. Reed, Fla.; "Man Becomes Great by Labor," Miss K. Fain, Dandridge, Tenn. Piano Solo, Old Folks at Home (Wilson), Miss Ada Evans. Vocal Oetette, Lullaby (Brahms).

COMMENCEMENT DAY.

The Academic procession formed in the lower corridor, on Tuesday, 3 o'clock, P. M.; it consisted of the Seniors, 22 in number, the prospective Seniors of '90, the Trustees, Principal, Ministers, &c., and preceded by little May Johnson and Maggie Gunn, each bearing a silver salver of Diplomas, filed out at the north door of the Academy, into the large church door, up the aisle, on the platform, to the lively strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March. A Piano Duet opened the exercises, Symphonie, No. 2 (Beethoven), Misses M. Peterson and L. Hege. Rev. R. P. Lineback, of the Board of Trustees, then read a Psalm, followed by an earnest prayer by Rev. H. A. Brown, Baptist minister in Winston. An Octette, The Gypsies, (Schumann), followed. Miss Mary Fries read the Salutatory, after which came a Vocal Solo, Bel Raggio (Rossini), by Miss K. W. Evans, the vocal teacher. A group of three Honor Essays followed: "Happiness," by Miss Mary Pfohl, Columbus, Ga.; "Shining Lights," Miss Etta Shaffner, Salem; "Rest," Miss Julia Meachum, Anderson, Texas. A Piano Solo, Concerto in D Minor (Bach), Miss Selma Krulshik, with orchestral accompaniment. Vocal Duo, Les Bohemiennes (Brahms - Viardot), Misses Laclair and Cramer. The two Causa Honoris Essays were next read, "Chromatics," by Miss M. Fitzpatrick, Mt. Pleasant, Texas, and "Dux Femina Facti," by Miss Hazlehurst, Macon, Ga. These two young ladies were then called forward and had the Causa Honoris ribbons pinned on them by the the Salutatorian and Valedictorian.

The second part opened with a 4 part Chorus, "Whirl and Twirl" (Wagner). Then Piano Solo, Concerto in G Minor (Mendelssohn), Miss Laclair. Dr. Charles Lee Smith, a young North Carolinian, now delivered the address before the Graduates. It was a fine effort; accomplished scholar that he is, though a very young man, every word thrilled his audience. The address will be given elsewhere so we will not mar it by quotations.

Dr. W. W. Moore, of Hampden-Sidney, Va., then presented the Diplomas after a short address, one of the most chaste, eloquent and forceful efforts we have ever listened to. Impromptu as it was, we do not think it could have been better. A sudden storm coming on, the rapidly darkening church made it necessary to dismiss the audience, to meet once more in the closing concert at 8 o'clock that night.

THE CLOSING ORATORIO.

The rain having subsided, a large and attentive audience gathered once more in the church for the enjoyment of Mendelssohn's grand Oratorio, St. Paul, a magnificent masterpiece. A portion of it was given with full orchestral accompaniment to 120 voices, one of the grandest efforts we have ever enjoyed. Prof. Markgraff may well be proud of this chef d'oeuvre. During the intermission, Rev. J. H. Clewell, the Principal, delivered a short farewell address to the Graduates of '89. Miss Hattie Sutton, of Fayetteville, N. C., read the Valedictory. "The Farewell Song," composed by Prof. Markgraff, was sung, and the Hallelujah Chorus, by Handel, closed the evening, brimfull of the highest musical enjoyment.

Thus the Academy closed her 87th Annual Session, one of the most successful in her annals. As we look back over the past year, with its varied experiences, our hearts are filled with gratitude to God, who has so successfully led and prospered us. We look with pride and pleasure at the material improvements of the twelve months. One year ago the new Annex Hall was scarcely dreamed of. Commenced during the last days of August, it rose as if by magic, and by November 17th it was ready to be occupied by our 2 youngest room companies of pupils. The old Annex has been renovated, and used for class work: the 2 largest buildings. Main Hall and South Hall have both donned a gala dress of neat and tasteful colors in honor of Commencement.

All together, the successful closing exercises, the prosperous, well-rounded year, call for an especial tribute of gratitude to the Giver of every good and perfect gift.

—Mrs. Clara Dargan McLean, now of Charlottesville, Va., has a novel in press in New York, entitled "Light o' Love."

—We are indebted to Mrs. Mary J. Phillips, of Ouchita Parish, La., a dear old friend of the long ago, for the following obituary, copied from a New York city paper:

"On Tuesday last, in New York city, Mrs. Dr. Doric G. Ball died at a venerable age. The deceased was, for the greater part of her life, a resident of the city, and had hosts of friends in this State. She was born in Alabama in 1815, and was the daughter of Robert Jemison and Sarah Mims, both representatives of prominent Alabama families. Her brother, Robert Jemison, was for some years a member of Congress from that State, and her nephew is Mayor Jemison, the present head of the municipal government of Tuscaloosa.

Miss Jemison was educated in the Moravian College at Salem, N. C., and when quite young married the late Dr. Ball,

In 1849 they came to New Orleans, and Dr. Ball soon gained an enviable reputation in his profession. In the early part of her life Mrs. Ball gave considerable attention to literature, and for a long time was a regular and popular contributor to Harper's Magazine. In 1870 she was appointed State Librarian, and for a number of years was keeper of the city archives.

Mrs. Ball was the mother of six children, among whom are Sister Fidelia, member of a religious order, Mrs. N. S. Torrey, Mrs. Dr. Barnes, and Mr. Doric Ball, at whose home in New York she expired. Mrs. Ball was a noble, energetic woman, who, in her time, filled a large and useful sphere of duty, and who carved her memory on the hearts of all who knew her.

—There will be a general exodus of teachers this vacation. Misses Emma Chitty, Constance Pfohl and Alma Carmichael intend visiting friends and relatives in Indiana and Illinois. Miss L. Shaffner probably goes to the mountains of Western N. C. Miss S. Shaffner is visiting in Columbia, S. C. Miss Alice Rondthaler will attend a summer school of languages. Mrs. Rondthaler, accompanies her part of the way to visit relatives. Miss Lula Tate left immediately after Commencement, and will probably not return next session. Misses Lehman and Siewers will sail for Europe July 4th. Miss Lizzie Heisler, who has spent the past year in Los Angeles, California, intends to return in time for the opening of the Fall Term.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., JUNE, 1889.

*Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.*

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers
constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable
in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—The 88th Annual Session of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY begins on Thursday, August 29th. Entrance Examinations begin on August 27th.

—Mr. CLEWELL, Principal of the ACADEMY, will take an extended trip through the States of South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas during the month of July. He hopes to meet many of our friends, and make new ones, likewise.

—The ACADEMY has been acting somewhat like an ancient maiden lady who wishes to make herself younger than she really is. Founded in 1802, the school actually enters upon her 88th Annual Session in August, instead of her 86th. Just why this discrepancy has been permitted all these years it would be difficult to say, unless it is in accordance with the Moravian custom of always taking less than they are entitled to, rather than more. The call to take charge of a new Boarding School was extended to Rev. SAMUEL KRAMSCH, minister at Friedberg, N. C., October 31, 1802, which is hence celebrated as Founder's Day. 1804 is the date of the entrance of the first boarding pupils.

—We of the ACADEMY extend our grateful thanks to the many friends in both towns who labored so faithfully to make the Commencement a success;— to the Salem Orchestra, the singers, the representatives of the press in this and other States, the railroad officials, the telegraph operators, the ushers and assistants, the citizens of Salem and Winston, who freely gave their time and energy, to one and all we return our most hearty thanks. It is at such a time that we fully realize the loyalty and devotion of our people to the ACADEMY; the work was all con amore, and far beyond any mere monied value.

—Commencement, with all its rush and whirl of duties and pleasures, is gone, and we are settling down to vacation quiet. All the poetry and sentiment which were so plentiful during the last weeks have now given place to the plain prose of pails, brooms and whitewash brushes. Last summer the establishment was closed, but this vacation five young ladies remain to wake the echoes with their cheery voices.

Our best wishes accompany those who have gone out from us for a season, to return with the cool September breezes. We join with them in their pleasures, in the deep joy of their home-coming, and add our best wishes for health and enjoyment during the vacation.

To the graduates, those who return no more, we say "Farewell" with saddened hearts. May the teachings of your Alma Mater be ever present with you in joy and in sorrow, and may you ever hold her in loving remembrance.

We cherish the memory of our Alumnae, and follow their course with increasing interest, and among all the commencement joys none were so deep, so delightful as the greeting so many of our former pupils who gathered once more around the maternal board, as hand clasped hand and eye met eye in loving re-union.

—Our Commencement was pre-eminently a young men's Commencement as far as the principal figures were concerned. Rev. J. H. CLEWELL, the Principal, is a young man; Professor MARKGRAFF, the head of our Music department, is a young man, full of energy and verve; Dr. CHAS. LEE SMITH, the speaker, is very young in years, but not in mental acquisitions; Dr. W. W. MOORE, who presented the Diplomas in such a chaste and elegant address, is a young man; and so is Mr. H. E. FRIES, to whose untiring zeal and energy the success of so many practical details is owing. All these are representative men of the glorious New South, which we love no less than the Old South of so many tender recollections and associations.

The Library Fund.

It is with great pleasure that we chronicle the beginning of the "GRIFFISS LIBRARY FUND," which received its name from the liberal-minded gentleman, Mr. J. C. GRIFFISS, of Chattanooga, Tenn., whose kindly thought has begun this good work in SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. Mr. H. E. FRIES, of Salem, another large-hearted Southerner, added $30 to the fund, and we doubt not others will follow.

—Among the reporters of our Commencement we noted Messrs. M. I. Stewart, J. C. Stewart, R. Carmichael, Stone, C. Crist, W. Crist, H. Shaffner, H. Boggs, N. Patterson, G. Webb, V. Long, G. H. Rights, Eller, Gorman and Foy.

A RETROSPECT.

BY MISS LUTA BEWLEY.

For the Alumnae Association of Salem Female Academy.

Out from the stillness that falls like a glory,
A fancy, a magical power
Sweeps o'er my heart like a beautiful daydream,

And steals for its own the hour.
Back,—on the wings of the idealistic
A retrospect is borne,
Circean sweetness within it containing,
Cheering the heart forlorn.

Hark! Once again hear the silvery voices,
Echo from Memory's choir,
Dear golden days of the long past recalling,
Days that were bright with youth's fire!
Stripped of the sadness, the heart-fevered throbbing,
Fraught with a charm so blest,
Lent from an Eden,—a far-off Elysium,
Of purest, of perfect rest.

Now through the halls of the dear Alma Mater
My way I slowly wind;
Fancy,—with touch that is light as Love's whisper,
Brushes the mist from the mind.
Lo! from my heart all the Lethean shadows
Vanish and flee away,
Like as a dream comes the Past to the Present,
And lives again in to-day.

Ah! how I love the sweet days gone forever,
Passed in thy storied halls!
Beautiful days—that are gilded with brightness
Whereon no shadow falls!
And should I forget those blest hours of gladness,

That sweetest memories bring,
Then let me for solace, for happiness vanished,
A miserere sing.

—A friend, Miss Sallie Jernigan, inquired for Maud Wester. Can any one inform us concerning her whereabouts?

SALUTATORY.

MISS MARY E. FRIES, OF SALEM, N. C.

"O Cæsar, we, who are about to die, Salute thee!" was the gladiators' cry
In the arena—standing face to face
With death, and with the Roman populace."

How gladly on this happy graduation day do we change this thought—and as we stand face to face with life, and so large a circle of sympathising friends, salute you. Would that it were in our power to-day, to use as our messengers the little sprites, which Pope describes as always hovering about us, and bid them whisper our greetings into each individual ear, and "crown you with our welcome as with flowers."

Among the friends who have honored us and the occasion by their presence, we are happy to greet the Rev. THOMAS H. McCALLIE, of Tennessee, the eloquent preacher of our Baccalaureate Sermon, as we had hoped to welcome Dr. GILMAN, President of Johns Hopkins University, whose name and fame are national,—as we do Dr. CHARLES LEE SMITH, whom we are proud to claim as a son of the Old North State. We shall ever associate their names with this day, and our diplomas will be doubly valuable when written o'er with such remembrances.

As we hope to be cordially received by future graduates, so I, in the name of the class of '89, would greet the Alumnæ on this first and last occasion when it is our right and privilege to welcome our friends to the Commencements of the S. F. A. And though we are inexperienced, and but ill-prepared to join your number, we also would ask from you a greeting for ourselves, and a welcome into the band of those who have finished their school-days, and have taken their places in the world, with the various duties and responsibilities which come in every path of life.

We may carry the contrast with the gladiators still further. They, by severe discipline, and hard labor, prepared themselves to be "butchered to make a Roman holiday;" we by the training received in our school-days, have been making preparation for an active, busy life, and concerning the hardships and difficulties which we have encountered in this course, we have been able to say with Æneas, "Forsan et hæc olim meminisse juvabit." His fondest hopes were more than realized. He became the founder of that race, whose very name struck terror to thousands of souls, whose eagles soared triumphant over many a glorious battle-field, and whose thirst for dominion and power would not be satisfied until they had conquered every known country of the globe. If, in after ages, Æneas could have looked down upon all the glories and victories of the Romans, he would have declared, that truly it pleased him to remember every misfortune, which was a means of leading him to Italy and his descendants to such triumphs after him.

In our school world, there were daily battles fought, and daily victories won; there were joys, there were sorrows; there were frolics, and "fits of the blues;" there were times of loud and joyous laughter, and times of bitter wailing. There were days when the lessons were well recited, and days when they were not; and though our school life, while we were living it, was of so varied a nature, later we will look back upon it solely with pleasure; the hard places, the bitter experiences will have faded away, while the pleasant times will stand forth in bold relief.

In the great world when a grand success has been achieved, sometimes the greatest difficulties and misfortunes which have led to the glorious result, are remembered with the greatest pleasure. The glory and honor of that moment in which Cornwallis surrendered his sword, was more than enough to compensate our Revolutionary fathers for the terrible hardships which they were obliged to undergo, in that coldest of all cold winters at Valley Forge. How the weary, home-sick, heart-sick soldiers must have looked back and rejoiced with an inexpressible joy, as they exclaimed: "We have fought, but we have won; we have suffered, but we are free!" How that cry of freedom has rung down through the ages, making the sufferings of our noble fathers seem not too great a price for such joy as this.

Now, as our preparatory grades of school life pass by, and the life that we have so long dreamed of begins, there will be many things for us "to do and dare," many things for us to endure, but whatever may come, the joy and happiness of this Commencement Day will never be blotted from our remembrance. It is fitly termed "Commencement Day," for it is to us the beginning of a new scene of time, a new series of duties. We go our several ways, and others, the class of '90, will occupy our places as we leave the stage; next year one of their number will greet the assembled company as I have tried to do, and thus the shifting diorama moves on bearing us with it. The golden years are approaching; we hear their resonant tramp, their hands are extended to us, full of glorious promises. We see on their gleaming banners the message of good will to all who "Worthy purposes fulfill;

With steady heart their course pursue,
Determinately, strong and true;
And prove to the world, with error rife,
How grand may be a woman's life."

VALEDICTORY.

MISS HATTIE SUTTON, Fayetteville, N. C.

The close of any one period of our lives brings with it serious, anxious thought. There is a world of meaning, of pathos, in the little word "Gone." It presupposes the passing away of something dear and precious,—something to which we cling, whether it be a living friend or a section of time. And it is with mingled emotions that we stand, as it were, on the threshold of our lives, and look back to what is irrevocably gone, and forward to the great, the oncoming future! which is, hour by hour, changing into the present.

On this our commencement day life appears very bright and joyous. It is a day of days to us, upon which we trust the choicest benediction of heaven rests, as it is shot to the very core with pulsing waves of deep and gladsome feeling.

Our last school year has gone—gone with its opportunities, its pleasures, its eares, and as the farewell words are trembling on our lips, we feel that we have come to one of the supreme moments in the experience of separation, when bonds are to be severed and sweet companionships surrendered.

As the tide of time floats us out of this secure and sheltered haven into the great open sea of life, we would fain put out a detaining hand, as we see the joys, the sorrows, the affections of school life, slipping from us into the shades of the inexorable past. We are about to leave our Alma Mater, so full of historic interest and precious memories. Generations of grandmothers, of mothers and daughters turn their faces towards this Mecca, to this shrine, where the jewel of knowledge first flashed its glory upon their eyes, and kindled noble aspirations, some of them to reach "beyond the stars."

After months and years of peculiar advantages, we stand where so many have stood before us, to glance with retrospective vision to the past, and forward where fancy sits on her imperial throne.

To-day 24 new names are added to the roll of graduates of the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. Seven different States are represented in our class sisterhood, and one of our number hails from far off Switzerland. The noble company which we join to-day have gone their several ways, to take up their share of the world's burdens, and do their part of the world's work. We trust that they may never have cause to be ashamed of us as we join the ranks of the Daughters of Alma Mater, and go forth to fill our varied spheres of usefulness.

As we look into that great, that magic land, the Future, a thousand resolves stir in our hearts. We would be so much and do so much. We know in this world nothing is ever given without its full equivalent; if we would be something we must work for it. There is no royal road to learning, nor is there a royal road to anything that is desirable or worth having. Let us "do the next thing," and do it as if it were the only thing on earth to be done. But what good measure we receive, pressed down and shaken together, when we do our very best unstintingly and unparingly! What a largess of recompense we gain!

Our class motto, "Vestigia Nulla Retrorsum," tells us there are no backward steps, there is no returning. We are leaving our morning land of preparation, and must press on toward the noontide of effort, if we would have the serene blessedness of life's evening, of the golden sunset hour.

Several years ago there was a good deal said of composite photography, where a group, a family, a whole class were photographed as one face, and that face retained and reflected the traits of all. So does a class of graduates crystallize the characteristics of each member into a photograph of the whole, and the class goes down as a unit in the history of the institution. Our class of twenty-four has been a remarkably even one, working shoulder to shoulder, and while it was pleasant thus to be working for the same ends, it makes the parting hour all the harder, and it is with peculiar sadness that we say "Farewell."

We trust that the incoming class of '90 will formulate itself early, and by a mental composite photograph, stamp earnest devotion to duty on features and on work. The consciousness of duty faithfully performed is worth more than anything else, when the parting hour comes as come it must to one and all. Then you will have no vain sighs over wasted opportunities, no backward steps to regret.

My classmates! the last sands are trickling in the glass of our united lives, and we must, ere long, be borne North, South, East and West, to our several homes. We know that though we may meet some day, some time, some where, we can never be quite the same. New interests, new cares, new pleasures, new lines of work will have left their traces on heart and brow; and if we should meet in four, five or ten years, our first thought would be that of the poet:

But ye! ye are changed since we met you last,
There is something bright from your features pass'd."

There is no sweet without its bitter, there is no joy without its accompanying pain. This day so bright and joyous is saddened by the thought that farewells and parting words must be spoken. But though we will be separated here for a brief time, with our class motto ever in view, we will press on till our life work all done, we shall enjoy a greater commencement day, where no farewell words are to be spoken, and we will then begin a life of peace and happiness to last throughout all eternity in yonder Home of the Blest!

♦ ♦ ♦
Paper Read by Mrs. Sturdivant at Alumnae Association Meeting.

More than half a century has come and gone since Ann and Eliza Myers entered the dear old Academy, and I, as Ann Myers, stand before you to-day to brush away the cob-webs that time has gathered on memory's tablet.

"Oft in the stilly night,
Ere slumber's chain has bound me,
Fond memory brings the light
Of other days around me."

I come with a few leaves to lay on our mother's shrine. Her praises have been sung for nearly one hundred years. Our mothers drank at her fountain; my mother, Sarah Pickett, was one of the earliest girls; she came soon after the corner-stone was laid. Now, I doubt not, some are here who are the great great grandchildren of the girls of the long, long ago. This dear old Academy stands to-day an example of all that is grand and progressive. The peer of any in this broad Southern land, and, in point of modern training, superior to them all.

The first of the year 1834 found me an inmate of this Academy; I remained till June, 1836; my number on the school register is 1450; now the number is many thousands. I entered the 2d room, Miss Stauber and Miss Minung, teachers. At that time Bishop Bechler was temporary Principal until the arrival of Rev. Mr. Jacobson, the honored father of Mrs. Rondthaler. Mr. Jacobson turned over a new leaf; we saw no more pewter dishes. The dining room was in the basement; we put on airs in having white porcelain dishes. From pewter mugs we had white mugs from which to drink our milk. The white sand was no more sprinkled over the floors. "What a change has come over the spirit of my dream!" Then each room had one long table, each girl had a drawer in this table. This table had on it three or four tallow candles. What a contrast; now every turn in these grand halls is ablaze with light and denotes improvements that have kept pace with this fast age. I congratulate you on this wonderful change. Miss Stauber taught grammar and she taught it well. The second year I was here I was moved to the first room, taught by Misses Kramsch and Crist. Who can forget at that date Daddy Bagge, who also came for us to go to the tavern when any of our friends arrived; who can forget Rebecca Wimbish, of Virginia, with her wonderful fine voice that would more than fill a large church, nor can we forget Martha Ann Irwin, with her sweet, flute-like voice, as she warbled the ballads of "Auld Lang Syne." We had royalty in our midst. The chief of the Cherokee tribe of Indians, John Ross, sent his daughter; also John Rogers, chief of the Choctaw Indians, sent two of his daughters. What a pretty girl Arabella Alston was; I hope the shadows of life have passed lightly over her fair brow. I have often met Mrs. Rawlinson, nee Jane Moore; we always talk of our school days; a lovely gentle woman she is. She has lately passed through sorrow's dark cloud. Mrs. Judge Wells, nee Eliza Covington, of Kentucky, has "grown old gracefully." Martha Kendall, a staid Quaker girl out of her teens was my day-keeper. She did most of the bringing of the water. In that day the water was not all through the Academy as it is now, but we brought the water from the street. Martha did most of the bringing of the water, and I did my share of the laughing and talking, and, ladies, I am still talking! A new chapel was built connecting the Academy with the building in the rear. Our table was served from the Sisters' House; good, substantial food. We wore caps to church; how queer our bright faces must have looked in those old lady caps? The Sister House has not changed much outwardly. How well I remember the Easter service and all that pertains to the church. The festivals where they served a large bun and a mug of good coffee. The first and second room girls sat in the gallery in the church; well I remember the gentlemanly and scholarly teacher of the Male Academy, Mr. Fries, come in church with his class of boys. His assistant was the organist, and a handsome young man he was. Some of us had sweethearts in that day if you don't have them now, although it was against the rules of the school.

In conclusion, I must say, it has been a life-long pleasure, the memory of my school-days in Salem Academy; happy am I to be here to-day, to lay my mite on our dear mother's altar, although but few faces are familiar to me, as most of my class have "passed over the river." All hail to our Alumnae Association! many of her daughters have filled honored places, even in the White House, Mrs. James K. Polk, was the first lady of the land, is still living, and is one of the honored members of our Alumnae.

'Tis a pleasure in my old age to greet you. God bless our Alma Mater. I repeat, 't is no meaningless word to say it gives me pleasure, but "Pleasures are like poppies spread,

You seize the flower, the bloom is shed."

---

Correspondence.

---

To the Alumnae Association of Salem Female Academy:

DEAR AND RESPECTED FRIENDS:—It was with no little gratification that I received the flattering invitation of your Executive Committee, to be present at your annual meeting on June 3d next, and to address you on that occasion. It would indeed afford me great pleasure to meet with the Alumnae of my dear old FEMALE ACADEMY, and greet so many of my former pupils, but a variety of circumstances, both of an official and personal nature, will make it impossible for me to leave home at this time.

Deeply as I regret this on my own account, it is perhaps rather a cause of congratulation for your association, because I am rapidly growing to be a garrulous old man, who, if he were to address you, would probably weary you by fighting his old school battles over again, in the oft told tales of the olden times. Thus, if it were at all admissible to suppose that any of the fair ladies who constitute the Alumnae Association could grow old,—so old, I mean, as to be able to remember the time when I took charge of the ACADEMY,—I should ask them to contrast the present elegant appointments and modern conveniences of the ACADEMY with what these were 36 years ago. If then there were any such un-supposable older ladies among your number, they would doubtless remember that old Academy building which was demolished to make room for the present structure and recalling its dingy old rooms and their wonderful primeval contrivances for the accommodation of the pupils, they would anew be impressed with the fact, that progress, improvement and "Excelsior" have ever been the mottoes of their good old Alma Mater. And what is true of these external matters, is no less true—at least in many respects of the literary and scholastic standard of the Institution. And yet,—appealing again to these suppositious older ladies among the Alumnae, I would ask them whether they did not then, and do not now, esteem and love that old Alma Mater just as highly and dearly as any of a younger generation can possibly do. And just here, my friends, I find a chief cause for being proud of our dear old Institution, because, almost invariably, all those who have ever graduated from its walls,—be it in modern, or be it in the olden times,—retain for it a most tender and loving remembrance,—for, very sure am I, that hundreds and hundreds of the matrons and maidens of the South, rise up this very day and call their Salem Alma Mater blessed!

But, dear friends, I find myself doing precisely what I did not intend to, and am inflicting upon you a prosy epistle, whereas I simply wished to return to you sincere thanks for your kind invitation, and express my regrets at not being able to be present at your meeting.

That this gathering may prove most profitable and enjoyable in every respect is the sincere wish of

Very truly and respectfully yours,

ROBT. DE SCHWEINITZ.

May 27th, Bethlehem, Penn.

—As the day of our Alumnae meeting approaches, I am wishing that I could be carried up bodily, as I am spiritually, to dear old Salem. How my heart with fond emotion clings to the memory of the two happy years I spent there! And, to prove my faith by my works in my dear old Alma Mater, I intend, (D. V.) to send you my two girls in August; and although we will miss them sadly, I shall feel no more uneasiness in regard to their health, or religious training, than if they were at the home of their very grandmothers.

Will you, by the commencement of school, have made your European tour and be at your accustomed place? I hope so; for I wish you a safe voyage, and a realization of all your anticipated pleasures of travel, in a land, with whose geography and history you are so familiar, having enjoyed teaching it for the past thirty years. Ah! the changes the great wheel of Time has wrought since I sat in your class, and you took us (your astronomy class) out on top of the Academy building, to study the stars! I must tell you that I have little time to indulge my fondness for that study at present. I had a picture taken (of myself) yesterday, for my oldest boy's 18th birthday, as I was just twice his age. Like Cornelia, mother of the Gracchi, I point to my seven as my jewels, hoping they will grow up into noble Christian men and women, and you might well conclude that these are literally my jewels; for it is obvious that after the expense incident to raising seven, there is little left for the mother's jewelry! Yes, the clock in the steeple has struck 20 years away since I bade adieu to Misses Stauber, Pfohl, Shaffners, Vogler, Reichel, Fogle and yourself, and lastly to dear old Mr. GRUNERT, at the door of the stage that carried us over to High Point. Alas! would all those dear familiar faces greet me, were I to meet in one grand, glorious reunion.

If I can get a recess from home, I shall endeavor to be with you all at your next meeting; until then I bid you, and all the dear friends who remember me an affectionate good bye.

STELLA NEIL SLAPPEY.

Marshallville, Ga.

To the Alumnae Association of Salem Female Academy:

MY FRIENDS:—Having been notified by your President of the early meeting of the Alumnae, I find myself forced to forego the pleasure fondly anticipated of being with you on that occasion. Nothing short of a duty I feel to be imperative would induce me to give it up; but I find myself compelled to take my only child to New York to consult an oculist, and it is unfortunate that I should have to go at this very time.

It is with feelings akin to sadness and of great disappointment, that I must send you greeting, instead of speaking to you, as I had hoped to do; but it is none the less a greeting warm and sincere; a fond renewal of my love and friendship for one and all of you.

To these, my friends of "the long ago" I would say, when you gather together, remember me! as one, though absent in the flesh, ever present in the spirit; to those, whom I have not yet known, the fond hope that we may meet ere very long, and all unite in the beautiful rite at once so touching and so appropriate, because of the scenes recalled through it of bygone days, and hallowed by sacred memories, our solemn "love-Feast;" presented at our last meeting, and which, no doubt, will be repeated at the coming reunion.

I have done what I could towards hunting up members of our Alumnae, and wherever they were found, inducing them to join, persuading others, outsiders, to attend the meeting now called. It grieves me, beloved friends that I should not be there; but so it is that "our fondest hopes oft gang alee" and I can only hope that this meeting may be marked by that spirit of perfect unanimity of feeling and loyalty to the dear old Salem of our youthful days, as characterized in our last one, and may the Father who has allowed the ACADEMY to go forward and prosper, as few others have, the God whom we have acknowledged as its Ruler and watchword, to continue His mercies, that at our next meeting the roll call may be doubled. I pray that no mute response from the silent land, may give warning that the Reaper Death has been busy thinning out the ranks of the Alumnae meeting of the "S. F. A.," of 1890. Then, (D. V.) I shall be with you.

With kind regards to each and every one of our body, I remain, as ever, your faithful friend and co-worker.

EMMA B. ALSTON.

May 28th, Hagood, S. C.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Many of the Seniors' graduating presents were unusually handsome this year, watches, diamonds, rings, &c.

—The Hampden-Sidney College Magazine recently came upon our table; it is a worthy representative of that honored Institution, of whose work it is so able an exponent.

—The five girls remaining for vacation are Misses Reba Campbell, Sadie Sittig, Houston, Texas; Anne L. Stuart, Marlin, Texas; Willie Lee Lutz, Greenwood Miss.; Mary McKeown, Brooksville, Florida.

—Any subscriber to "THE ACADEMY" who would like to have complete files for the closing year, may be accommodated with odd numbers by applying to the Editors, and specifying the numbers desired.

—A Post Graduate course is being formulated and arranged for the fall term of the Academy; some of our graduates and specials have signified their intention to return and carry on their studies with the view of obtaining a degree.

—Rev. H. A. Brown of the Baptist Church Winston, filled the pulpit of the Moravian church, on Sunday night, May 19th, and preached an able and impressive sermon on the words "Keep thy heart with all diligence for out of it are the issues of life."

—We are under many obligations to Mrs. Cappie Craig, (Cappie Henry) of Greenwood Miss., for a number of Cape Jessamine blossoms; these fragrant mementoes of friendship reached us on Tuesday evening, just before the seniors' reading, and were in an almost perfect state of preservation.

—Rev. Thomas McCallie, D. D., the eloquent preacher of our Baccalaureate Sermon and Mr. J. C. Griffiss, of Chattanooga, Tenn., were the esteemed guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Ebert, of Salem; Dr. Charles L. Smith, of Dr. H. T. Bahnson's; Dr. W. W. Moore and family are staying at Mrs. L. M. Fries', Mrs. Moore's mother.

—As the hotel accommodations of Winston are quite inadequate for a crowded occasion, and those of Salem are entirely wanting, a number of private families took boarders and visitors during the rush of commencement. Dr. J. A. Butner's house was filled to its utmost capacity, so was Prof. Lineback's, Dr. Swift's, Mrs. Crossland's and others.

—On the evening of May 28th, Mr. and Mrs. Clewell gave a reception to the Seniors, members of the Senior Middle Class, and Special Students of the Academy, the whole numbering about 130. They had a most delightful evening with the company, the brightness and evident happiness everywhere visible, not forgetting the elegant collation which though last was not least in appreciative enjoyment.

—We still have on hand some of the pictures of our three large buildings as given in the new Catalogue, and any one who wishes them either for framing, or for scrap albums, will be supplied on application, free of charge.

The valuable pamphlet "How to get to Salem," compiled by Mr. Clewell, will also be furnished to any applicant.

—Mr. Clewell's house was a busy hive during the commencement season; passing along at any hour of the day or night, almost, it was crowded with patrons and friends, while the busy click of the type-writer and telegraphic instruments were heard above the hum and bustle of conversation, and girlish laughter.

—We are happy to note that one of our new commercial graduates in Book-keeping and shorthand, Miss Wureschke, obtained a position at once in the large and flourishing Dry Goods establishment of Rosenbacher Brothers, Winston, N. C., and entered on her duties. Our graduates in this growing department are doing us credit in this and other states. Miss Annie Belle May of Rock Hill, S. C., also entered upon her office duties on reaching home. We are proud to chronicle such energy and success.

—One of the most pleasing little incidents of commencement occurred on the evening of Seniors' Essays. When Miss Daisy Ruff had returned to her seat after reading her essay on "Lost Opportunities," Mr. Clewell recalled her, saying that the call to come to the office had never been an unpleasant experience for her, so she need have no fears in coming forward now, in this her golden opportunity, which her father designed to make doubly pleasant by presenting her with a handsome gold watch.

Miss Daisy came forward, received the watch gracefully, returning to her seat amid long continued applause.

—The new Catalogue for 1888-'89 is one of the neatest pieces of work we have seen in some time. The typography is unusually clear and good, and the general make up is a credit to the institution. Four engravings of the principal Academy Buildings make it a real souvenir to former pupils.—There is a front view of the Main Hall, or New Academy, and a rear view, besides a good picture of the South Hall, or "old Academy," a stately well proportioned building, and the new Annex Hall. Any desiring catalogues, please apply to the Principal, and they will be supplied at once.

—The two Literary Societies of the school the Euterpean and Hesperian, held their closing meeting together in the Academy Chapel on Friday night, May 24th. Afterward they adjourned to the dining room where an elegant collation was spread and appreciatively enjoyed. The harmony existing between the two societies is a noticeable feature and it is much to their credit that while agreeing to disagree, they can thus meet in social converse, and spend an evening in joint exercises. Both these societies have made an enviable record during the past year, and the members leave the societies, at the close, in a thoroughly organized and equipped condition, with well furnished halls, and a general spirit of amity and progress.

—The names of graduates in the Special Department, are Annie Belle May, Rock Hill, S. C., in Short-Hand and Book-keeping; Lee Wureschke, Short Hand and Book-keeping; Minnie Mickey, Addie Miller, Addie Fries, Salem, N. C. Addie Laciari, Mauch Chunk, Pa., Mary Pfohl, Columbus, Ga., Emma Rollins, Asheville, Daisy Little, Little Rock, Ark. Una Epes, Epes Station, Ala. Georgia Dalton, Dalton, Ga., in Book-keeping. Misses Emma Cooper, Salem, Viola Gunter, Gastonia, N. C., Emma Hardee, Rockledge Fla., Gladys Crawford, Galveston, Texas, in Telegraphy. In Short Hand, the most difficult of the commercial branches, we find Miss Mattie Fain, Mossy Creek, Tenn., Loulie Bridgers, Tarboro, N. C., Ada Johnson, Asheville, N. C. besides several who were mentioned in connection with the Book-keeping: Misses Lee Wureschke, Salem, and Anne Bell May, Rock Hill, S. C.

The graduates in Music are Misses Nellie Cramer, Thomasville, N. C.; Ada Evans, Milledgeville, Ga.; M. DuFour, Hendersonville, N. C.; Mary Fitzpatrick, Mt. Pleasant, Texas; Addie Laciari, Mauch Chunk, Pa.; Kate Miller, Rutherfordton, N. C.; Florence Settle, Galveston, Texas; Mary Peterson, Salem, N. C., making the whole number of diplomas issued this year to be eleven Book-keeping; eight Music; five Short-hand, four Telegraphy; Twenty-four regular Academic diplomas. Total, fifty-two.

—Found! A class ring. The loser will please apply to editor of THE ACADEMY and prove her property.

—Lucille Armfield did not enjoy Commencement as well as the other girls. She unfortunately took measles, and though it was not at all a severe case, she felt very lonely as the sole girlish occupant of the infirmary at a time when no one can take time to be sick.

—Mrs. Clewell and family and the vacation girls will spend some eight or ten days at Carolina Beach during July, and later will go to the Pilot Mountain for some days.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick, of Mt. Pleasant, Tex., were domiciled at Prof. Markgraff's during Commencement.

—Miss Kate Furman, of Sumter, S. C., an old friend and pupil, spent some time at Prof. E. W. Lineback's, including the commencement days.

—Mr. and Mrs. Allen Morris (Florrie Gibson), arrived in Winston during Commencement week. Their many friends and relatives were most happy to greet them.

—Misses Emma and Mattie Barber visited Miss Bessie Pfohl the week before Commencement. They were sorry to be compelled to return home before the exercises.

—We are very sorry to chronicle, June 1st, the death of little Willie Barber, son of Col. and Mrs. Thos. Barber (Mary Belle Gray), a sprightly boy of 6 or 7 years of age.

—Miss Anne Hill, of Raleigh, spent Commencement with Miss Lula Purnell at Miss M. Zevely's. On Saturday, June 8, she went to Farmington, on a visit to her former classmate, Miss Mattie Bahnson.

—Mrs. S. A. Pace, of Corsicana, Tex., Therese's mother, with two little children, came to Salem early in May, and hoarded at Mrs. Crossland's till after Commencement, when she returned home with Therese.

—Mrs. Georgia Bowe Wright, of Columbia, S. C., was the guest of Mrs. Dr. Shaffner during Commencement; after the exercises were over Miss Sallie Shaffner accompanied Mrs. Wright to her home in Columbia to spend some time.

—We acknowledge with pleasure the reception of cards to the wedding of Miss Carro Stewart, of Albion, Ills., to Mr. Joel Birmingham Churchill. Carro was a graduate of the Academy in vocal culture in June, 1882, and had an exquisitely sweet voice.

—Miss Hattie Swift returned from New York where she had been improving in vocal culture, just in time for Commencement. Thus one friend after the other dropped in, and the whole week was a series of delighted recognitions, of greeting friends and classmates.

—Miss Mattie Erwin, of Staten Island, N. Y., came to Salem for Commencement partly in fulfilment of a long-standing promise to be present at the graduation of some of her young friends. She first spent a short time in Raleigh with Miss Janie Ward before coming to Salem. Miss Ward will be with us a few weeks later.

—In the midst of Commencement preparation came a telegram summoning Bert and Edna Lindsey, of Reidsville, home to the bedside of their dying father, Mr. William Lindsey. They found him unconscious, and after lingering in this condition several days, he passed away from earth. Truly, in the midst of life we are in death. We sympathize deeply with our bereaved companions.

—Mr. Penn (Mary's father) was prevented from attending Commencement by a sad casualty. His large tobacco warehouse, which was to be the mammoth establishment of Danville, fell under the wind and storm of May 10, crushing to death 7 men, while others were seriously injured. Had it not happened providentially on Decoration day, when the majority of employees and laborers were absent, the loss of life would have been enormous. Immediately upon this sad calamity, treading upon its very heels, follows the most awful catastrophe of the century, the Johnstown tragedy in Pennsylvania, where by the breaking of an immense dam, a city of 30,000 inhabitants was deluged, and all along the course of the destroying element the lives sacrificed run up into many thousands. It is too awful for comment. Great calamities strike us dumb.

—One of the most pleasing experiences of the late Commencement week was the meeting of old friends and Alumnae who had gathered from far and near. Among the Alumnae were Mrs. Sturdivant, of Charlotte, N. C., a pupil of the ACADEMY 54 years ago. It is sad to think how rapidly that generation is passing away,—how few are yet remaining. Another old friend was Mrs. Geo. Fain, (Eliza Moore, 1848), Dandridge, Tenn. Her daughter, Kitty Fain, was one of the graduates. Mrs. Boyd, perhaps better known as Mary McCall, 1855, Darlington, S. C. Mrs. Georgia Bowe Wright, Columbia, S. C., was fairer and younger looking than on her previous visit. Time is very kind to her. Mrs. R. P. Lineback (Sallie Blum), Bethania, N. C.; Mrs. Dr. Wiseman, Farmington, N. C.; Misses Jennie Sieger, Lizzie Wolle, Bethlehem, Pa.; Ida Moore, Hampden-Sidney, Va.; Theo Fitzgerald, Danville, Va.; Kate Furman, Sumter, S. C.; Kate Ollinger, Milton, Fla.; Ella Cathcart, Winnsboro, S. C.; Mrs. Strickland (Lilian Lehman), Bethania, N. C.; Misses Tillie Harmon, Minnie Beard, Kernersville, N. C.; Jennie Ragsdale, Jamestown, N. C.; Mrs. J. G. Staples (Ella Holt), Misses Anne Hill, Lula Purnell, Lizzie Hicks, Raleigh, N. C.; Mamie Thomas, Thomasville, N. C.; Stella Nissen, Waughtown, N. C.; Mattie and Maggie Spencer, Spencer, Va.; Mamie Flake, Beverly, N. C.; Sallie Craige, Gastonia, N. C.; Mary Boyd, May Sue Motley, Reidsville, N. C.; Mrs. Robt. Daniel (Mary Williams), Panther Creek, N. C.; Mrs. Jesse Carter, (Ella Vogler), Madison, N. C.

—Among the many visiting friends and patrons who thronged the Twin-cities during Commencement were Rev. Thos. McCallie, D. D., Mr. J. C. Griffiss, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Dr. Charles Lee Smith, Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, Md.; Hon. Thomas Sutton and wife, Fayetteville, N. C.; Mr. A. T. Ruff, Mr. Chivvis Wray, Ridgway, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Fitzpatrick, Mt. Pleasant, Texas; Mr. A. Du Four, Hendersonville, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wells, Wilson, N. C.; Mr. C. Moses, Newberry, S. C.; Mr. Rayner, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. R. P. Lineback and wife, Bethania, N. C.; Mr. E. R. Whitner, Sanford, Fla.; Miss S. Randolph, Tampa, Fla.; Mrs. Addison, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Wm. Hazlehurst, Macon, Ga.; Mrs. A. N. Chaffin, Foster Falls, Va.; Col. L. H. Yeagan, New York; Mr. S. B. Pretlow, Franklin, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Staples, Mr. Eugene Watts, Reidsville, N. C.; Mrs. Laciari, Mauch Chunk, Pa.; Mr. Pierce, Tazewell, Va.; Mrs. S. A. Pace and children, Corsicana, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. McCanless, Salisbury, N. C.; Dr. Fitzhugh, Atlanta, Ga.; Dr. W. W. Moore and family, Hampden-Sidney, Va.; Mr. D. Moore, Miss A. Breeden, Bennettsville, S. C.; Mrs. W. B. Creight, Winnsboro, S. C.; Mr. S. Newton, Adamsville, S. C.; Mrs. Baxter and son, Sparta, Ga.; Mrs. J. Cramer, Mr. Stuart Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Thomas, Thomasville, N. C.; Mr. Cummings, Aspen Grove, N. C.; Major and Mrs. John Crenshaw, Wake Forest, N. C.; Mr. W. Flake, Miss Flake, Mr. and Miss Hicks, Mr. W. A. Parker, Raleigh, N. C.; Mr. and Miss Farmer, News Ferry, Va.; Miss Petty, New Garden, N. C.; Mr. Fagg, Asheville, N. C.; Miss Ingram, Pine Bluff, Ark.; Mr. Cheatham, Trinity College, N C; Mr J Sloan, Reidsville, N C; Mr Clark, Danville, Va; Mr L Brower, Liberty, N C; Mrs Craig, Gastonia, N C; Dr and Mrs Strickland, Miss Emma Kapp, Bethania, N C; Mr Dalton, Dalton, N C; Mr and Mrs Robt Daniels, Panther Creek, N C.

Duties to Our Alma Mater.

[The following article was read by Mrs. Pleas. Hanes at the Alumnae meeting, and a pleasant incident following, was the starting of the Griffiss Library Fund, spoken of elsewhere. A number of friends signified their intention to add to the fund, and promised contributions to the various needs named in the article. We commend the careful examination of the paper to all our friends.—ED. ACADEMY.]

We live in a stirring, bustling, transition time. Everything in the South is building up; every business, every interest that is worth anything at all, is being pushed to its utmost.

Our Alma Mater, the ACADEMY, must take advantage of this tide of onward movement. How shall we assist her? How shall we, the Alumnae of one of the oldest and best institutions of learning in the South, do our duty to her? We have heard the obligation expressed, again and again.

1st. We should be a credit to her. Then, we owe it to her to do all we can to bring her claims for patronage before the general public. If we know parties who have daughters to educate, let us tell them of the advantages which SALEM ACADEMY will afford them. Let us tell them of her thoroughness, of the superiority of her training, and by word and deed recommend the ACADEMY as the very place for them.

2nd. We can assist in the circulation of THE ACADEMY the accredited organ of our Association as well as of the school. Let us subscribe ourselves, and induce others to do so.

3rd. We can help to build up the Academy Library. A good foundation has been laid, but it must be built up; it must grow and increase. Some of us have volumes that we might donate to the Library,—let us give them a more extended field of usefulness than they will have reposing on our private shelves, where perhaps they are never read. How much good our unused books might do for us! The ACADEMY will gladly receive any donations of books, or periodicals, if it be one volume, or twenty. Let us send them on. Some friends have begun this laudable work, and have sent valuable books and maps to the Library.

Our Alumnae who live in and near our great cities, might bring the needs and claims of the Academy Library to the notice of book publishing firms, like Harper's, Lippincott's, Appleton's, &c., and perhaps induce them to send occasional donations of books.

4th. A Library Fund ought to be started. If the beginning were made it would grow. It is a beginning that is needed. It was said of Alexander the Great that in his rapid whirl of conquest over the world, he never forgot or neglected to send rare plants, manuscripts, stones, animals, anything rare and curious to his old tutor Aristotle, the philosopher. Let us do as much for the ACADEMY, and when in travelling we see anything that would help to build up a Museum of Natural objects let us send it to the ACADEMY. She will thank us for it, be the donation large or small, and will hold the donor in grateful remembrance. When we read of Smith, Vassar, Wellesley, and other wealthy institutions receiving gifts of $10,000, $20,000 or $100,000 let us think what a power the ACADEMY might become if fully armed and equipped by the kindness and gratitude of her Alumnae.

Finally, when we come to the closing duties of life, the disposal of our property by will, let us not forget our Alma Mater, but consider how we might rear more enduring memorials to our memory, or to those of our loved ones, than the mere sculptured marble, or granite shaft.

Splinters.

—A skimmed rabbit! Something new.

—The oldest family on earth—the Adamases.

—“What is a phantom?” “It is a ship.”
“Why, you goose, it is a chicken.”

—Small girl to teacher—“Please explain to me what ‘Logimores’ are? I mean the things the Seniors recite to Mr. C—.”

Married.

CHURCHILL—STEWART.—In Albion, Illinois, May 22d, in the Presbyterian Church, Mr. JOEL BIRMINGHAM CHURCHILL to Miss CARRO L. STEWART.

ANOERSON—GENTRY.—In Spartanburg, S. C., Miss MILORED GENTRY ('87) to Mr. LIONEL ANOERSON, of Richmond, Va.

CANSLER—SCOTT.—In the 1st Presbyterian church of Charlotte, N. C., on Tuesday, June 4, Miss LILLIE SCOTT to Mr. E. T. CANSLER.

SPRINGS—ALEXANDER.—In Charlotte, N. C., in February, Mr. JOHN SPRINGS to Miss ELLA ALEXANDER.

What Our Brethren of the Press Say of Us.

Among the many kind notices given us by our newspaper friends, we quote a few:

“Situated as the school is, about half way between the extreme North, North-west and Florida, it is no wonder that the pupils from the northern and western States should increase from year to year. Many persons spending their winters in Florida here find a safe, pleasant and comfortable home for their daughters.”—Philadelphia Times.

“The results of the Session of 1888-1889 as exhibited in the whole series of Commencement entertainments must be most satisfactory to our entire community. As a brilliant yet true setting for the jewel of completed school duties the Commencement of '89 must stand alone until eclipsed. The Academic, the Art, the Music departments are in superb condition, and their exhibited work gives us great pleasure.”—The People's Press.

“The large and commodious college building is eminently adapted to the purposes for which it was erected. It is well-heated, well ventilated, with water in every room, while a thorough system of sewerage keeps the premises in the best sanitary condition.

The grounds are beyond doubt the coolest, most beautiful and charming to be found at any school on the American continent. Many acres of them are in their natural state, with scenery unsurpassed, the only modern innovations being the water fountains, gravelled walks, benches and pavilions. They are simply glorious, and every young lady there will tell you so.”—Sentinel.

“It is the general opinion that a more attractive program seldom greets an audience at Salem Female Academy Commencement than that of '89.

The new Annex Hall was generally admired, although its secluded location does not show it to the advantage it deserves.”—Republican.

“The number of applications is nearly double what it was last year, and the probability is that another large building will be erected during vacation. The school is on a regular boom.”—Danville Register.

“During the last few years the Faculty of this Institution have added to its regular course a thoroughly equipped business department in which young ladies can be instructed in Book-keeping, Phonography and telegraphy. It is gratifying to note that the graduates of this department already fill many important positions in prominent business houses and also in other schools throughout the South."—Knoxville Tribune.

"The grand climax was reserved for Tuesday night, when the sea of school-girl faces, the violins, the pianos, and the cumbersome bass viol were all thrown together in the Oratorio St. Paul, by Mendelssohn. To have heard this would have repaid the traveller for a trip across an entire continent."—Progressive Farmer.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1866.

- 4515 FANNIE BIRD. — 1858.
Brother, W. S. Bird, Eutaw, Ala.
- 4516 MARIA GARRETT. — 1851.
- 4517 EMMA B. GARRETT. — 1853.
Guardian, B. Guley, Eutaw, Ala.
- 4518 MATTIE FONTAINE. — 1851.
C. U. Fontaine, Wytheville, Va.
- 4519 SALLIE E. LEHMAN. — 1849.
Mother, Mrs. A. S. Lehman, Bethania, N. C.
- 4520 LIZZIE CARTMELL. — 1853.
Robert H. Cartmell, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4521 MARY WILMA MYERS. — 1852.
Dr. Albert Myers, White's Store, N. C.
- 4522 LIZZIE BARRETT. — 1852.
W. J. Barrett, Kinston, N. C.
- 4523 MOLLIE HUBBARD. — 1850.
- 4524 MAGNOLIA HUBBARD. — 1852.
Uncle, John R. Branner, Mossy Creek, Tenn.
- 4525 BETTIE P. MCCALL. — 1854.
D. T. McCall, Calhoun, Ala.
- 4525 ELLEN McLEMORE. — 1851.
- 4527 REBECCA McLEMORE. — 1853.
Uncle, Dr. U. McCall, Benton, Ala.
- 4528 MINNIE HAMILTON. — 1852.
Dr. Wm. Hamilton, Greenville, Tenn.
- 4529 MARY SPIVEY. — 1855.
Wm. C. Spivey, Greenville, Ala.
- 4530 LUCIE WOOLFOLK. — 1849.
- 4531 JOHNGELINE WOOLFOLK. — 1852.
Uncle, Wm. G. Woolfolk, Columbus, Ga.
- 4532 MARGARET WALKER. — 1851.
Mother, Mrs. C. M. Walker, Columbus, Ga.
- 4533 AGNES RANKIN. — 1849.
- 4534 HENRIETTA RANKIN. — 1851.
James Rankin, Columbus, Ga.
- 4535 BELL BOOHER. — 1849.
D. L. Booher, Columbus, Ga.
- 4536 EMMA MOORE. — 1852.
Guardian, W. S. Hanna, Selma, Ala.
- 4537 LAURA CALMES. — 1853.
J. M. Calmes, Liberty, S. C.
- 4538 HALLIE EVANS. — 1850.
Col. Evans, Washington, Tex.
- 4539 ELIZABETH HOBSON. — 1850.
- 4540 ALICE HOBSON. — 1852.
- 4541 HARRIET HOBSON. — 1854.
Albert Hobson, Brandou, Miss.

- 4542 MARTHA E. GLASGOW. — 1848.
Uncle, Theo. Edwards, Goldsboro, N. C.
- 4543 MARY E. GRISWOLD. — 1848.
J. B. Griswold, Goldsboro, N. C.
- 4544 MINNIE GILMER. — 1853.
James J. Gilmer, Montgomery, Ala.
- 4545 MOLLIE B. GORDON. — 1853.
Andrew B. Gordon, Eatonton, Ga.
- 4546 ADDIE G. DAWSON. — 1850.
Uncle, Andrew B. Gordon, Eatonton, Ga.
- 4547 FLORENCE A. REID. — 1849.
Col. A. S. Reid, Eatonton, Ga.
- 4548 GEORGIA E. JENKINS. — 1851.
Robt. C. Jenkins, Eatonton, Ga.
- 4549 ANNIE E. WYNNIE. — 1850.
R. J. Wynne, Eatonton, Ga.
- 4550 TRYPHOSA M. ROSSER. — 1853.
D. Rosser, Eatonton, Ga.
- 4551 ABBIE B. CLARK. — 1853.
E. R. Clark, Christiansburg, Va.
- 4552 NETTIE M. WILSON. — 1852.
Thomas Wilson, Christiansburg, Va.
- 4552 MARY TALLULAH SPIVEY. — 1852.
James A. Spivey, Montezuma, Ala.
- 4553 MARY PENN. — 1853.
George W. Penn, Mayo Forge, Va.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady as Phonographer.
Address _____
C.—care of The Academy,
Salem, N. C.

A French Summer Home.

A UNIQUE opportunity is on hand for any young ladies who, after a School-Course in the theory of the French Language, would be desirous to complete it through a few months' practice. Mr. and Mrs. A. Du Four, well known in Salem, where they spent last winter, will open on JUNE 15th, a select Summer School in their charming country place, in the Western North Carolina mountains, 6 miles from Hendersonville, and 18 miles from Asheville. Mr. DuFour is, as we well know, a man of culture and refinement; he will, of course, instruct his lady-boarders daily in his native language, but the main advantage for them is to be derived from the fact that the French is spoken exclusively in Mr. Du Four's family, which will afford excellent practical training. Climate, scenery, opportunities for mountain trips, etc., everything concurs to make Mr. DuFour's projected summer-home a most desirable one. A season with him will be equivalent to a sojourn in France, at much less expense, and in a section the loveliness of which is known to every one. Piano in the house. Terms will be found very moderate. We take pleasure in commending Mr. A. DuFour's intentions to all the patrons of this paper. Applicants would do wisely to write at once to Mr. A. DU FOUR, MILL'S RIVER, N. C., as he cannot accommodate more than 5 or 6 boarders in all.

SPENCERIAN
STEEL PENS

Are the Best,
IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF
Durability, Evenness of Point, and Workmanship.
Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail, on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. 8
IVISON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway,
New York.

CHEAP BOOKS,

ALL KINDS OF
PLAIN & FANCY STATIONERY,
AT
BLUM'S BOOKSTORE,
SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA.

THE SHORT LINE FROM
CHATTANOOGA and BIRMINGHAM

TO
NEW ORLEANS,

Where direct connection is made with the SOUTHERN PACIFIC and TEXAS & PACIFIC R.R.'S, for Texas, Mexico and California, THE SHORT LINE via VICKSBURG and SHREVEPORT to TEXAS, MEXICO and CALIFORNIA, NEW MEXICO, COLORADO and the P.A.R. WEST. Close connection made at Shreveport without transfer through the City.

From TEXAS to the
NORTH AND EAST,
Via SHREVEPORT.

Close connections without transfer through the City. Leave Shreveport 7:00 A. M. Through Sleeping Cars to ATLANTA via BIRMINGHAM making direct connections for SAVANNAH, AUGUSTA, CHARLESTON, AND POINTS IN Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and the East, Connecting at MERIDIAN with Main Line Trains. J. C. GAULT, CINCINNATI, O. D. C. EDWARDS, Gen'l Mgr. G. P. & T. A.

BINCHAM SCHOOL.

(Established in 1793.)
is PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys, in AGE, in the high standing of its PATRONS, in AREA OF PATRONAGE, and in equipment for PHYSICAL CULTURE. Location in the COUNTRY. Organization MILITARY.
The 6th Annual Year will begin Sept. 1, 1889.
Maj. R. BINGHAM, Supt.
Bingham School P. O., Orange Co., N. C.

—* MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH, —*
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

LADIES' SHOPPING AND PURCHASING AGENT,

ALSO AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF
PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.
Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
146 WEST 16th ST., NEW YORK CITY.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,— she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal,
Salem Female Academy;
Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with
an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.
For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,

G. P. A.,

St. Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the

East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble ballast, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going or returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and welfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address

B. W. WRENN,
G. P. A.,

JNO. L. MILAM,
D. P. A.

Knoxville, Tenn.

C. A. DESAUSSEURE,
A. G. P. A.,

Memphis, Tenn.

ST. LOUIS,
ARKANSAS &
TEXAS RAILWAY.

→ COTTON × BELT × ROUTE. ←

The Direct Line between the Educational
Centres of the South-East and
Arkansas and Texas.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN POINTS ON
THIS LINE AND

Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Atlanta.

PULLMAN BUFFET SLEEPERS, FREE RECLINING
CHAIR CARS, ALL THE COMFORTS AND
CONVENIENCES OF MODERN TRAVEL.

On advice being sent to any of the following,
an Agent of this Company will meet all pupils
at the various junction points, en route, and render any assistance or information necessary.

For further information, address

D. MILLER,
General Pass. Agent.

E. W. LaBEAUME,
Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield.
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF
OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical.
$1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies.

Address,

THE SCHOOLTEACHER.

WINSTON, N. C.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere;
Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then
will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

CLINARD & BROOKES.

WM. T. VOGLER,
JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,

CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

— FOUNDED 1802. —

Salem Female Academy.

SALEM, N. C.

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

— O —
ADVANTAGES.

Healthy location, ample grounds, well-arranged infirmary.

Careful discipline. Two teachers in charge of each Room Company. Commodious study parlors. Well-aired, warmed and lighted dormitories, with separate sleeping alcoves for each pupil, and convenient wash-rooms on the same floor.

A graded course of thorough Academic instruction. Classes never overcrowded. Twenty-four professors and teachers. Much attention to the wants of the individual scholar.
Large library and reading-room.

Unusually well-equipped Music, Art, Linguistic and Commercial Departments, under the most competent teachers.

Religious instruction, which is simple, careful and unsectarian. Has been trusted in by members of all Christian denominations for more than three-fourths of a century.

Charges, which are as low as the advantages
offered by the Institution will permit.

Send for Catalogue.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY,
Salem, North Carolina.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XI.

SALEM, N. C., SEPTEMBER, 1889.

NUMBER 98.

A NEW SCHOOL YEAR.

THE contrast between the close of a school year in late Spring and the beginning of another year in early Autumn is very marked. Tired and weary the student places the examinations, the essays, the long list of studies to one side; the vacation rest seems so inviting, the union with friends at home so delightful that the verdict if given within the first week of vacation would doubtless be that this experience might be extended indefinitely. The teacher enjoys the vacation relaxation no less. The strain of responsibility is suddenly removed. Vexed questions which formerly appeared perhaps weekly, now fail to make their appearance. And as new scenes and experiences and enjoyments present themselves on the vacation journeys undertaken, the verdict would doubtless be much the same as that of the pupil if given before the middle of June.

Now, however, we find ourselves in the middle of August. Two months have passed. Certain indications point to a change in the position of affairs. From letters received we hear that one is counting the days until the pleasant reunion with classmates and teachers shall take place. Another has enjoyed vacation but desires work once more to begin. Teachers, too, return with lines of care gone, the troubles of the past year are in the background, and cheerfully they approach the opening day. To one who has carefully studied the month of June as compared with September, the change seems like magic.

The time passes steadily, and "opening day" is at hand. A few pupils have arrived early in order to be examined. Each train now brings large additions and soon all the rooms are open, every worker is in place, and slowly the ponderous machinery begins to move, as the three hundred workers seek their respective grades and positions. The "old pupils" find little trouble at this point. The Senoir Middles of last year know that the dignity of the Senoir room rests upon them. The First Preparatory pupil feels scarcely less responsible entrance into the Academic Department. But what shall we say of the scores of new pupils. Suppose the great object has been obtained; suppose entrance into the desired class has been gained; granted that the house is large and comfortable, the park beautiful, the girls kind, the teachers considerate,—all to no purpose, that dreadful disease homesickness will make its way in, and while on one side we see the happiest reunions, on the other we behold the most desolate and hopeless victims of this dreaded but very transitory school girl's trouble.

We pass over one week. To one unaccustomed to the scene it would appear impossible to bring order out of such chaos save by months of patient toil. The numbers so large; many pupils in need of special instruction in Latin, in Geometry, in History or some other study; the new pupil violating one household rule after the other in perfect innocence; the gigantic "practice plan" to be arranged; the "special pupils" to be assigned to departments and teachers, and a thousand other details to be attended to. We find ourselves at the end of the first week, and behold the change! The work has emerged from the confusion. The "collection bell" is understood, and is readily distinguished from the "dinner bell," "chapel bell,"—and many other bells. The first step in art has been taken, and already ambition shows in the distance dim visions of paintings to be proudly shown to parents as the results of the year's labors, or the familiar home parlor appears in imagination decked with lambrequin or tidy of almost oriental richness or design. The first lessons in music are finished and the possibilities of the future receive the rosy tinge, so attractive that even the keen edge of home sickness is blunted. Thus throughout the various departments, each has its attractions, its difficulties, its hard beginnings, but what are difficulties when the worker is fresh from the long vacation rest? The individuals are busy, the classes formed, the New Year's work has been started.

There is one marked peculiarity about a school year, not recognized by a casual observer. Just as each individual has a number of marked characteristics, differing from even the nearest friend, so each school year has a marked character of its own. It might seem that the general form of government successful one year would necessarily be successful another year. This is not necessarily the case. Seldom are the main features alike in any two years. One year it is soon apparent that an unusually large number of pupils are professing christians, and the school authorities welcome the fact, since this is far more healthful than the strictest code of rules. Again it may appear that a large number of pupils are inclined to indulge in mischief. Perhaps the tone of the year will appear at once to be overwhelmingly that of pure refinement,—perhaps a group will appear which threatens to introduce many undesirable features. Be this as it may, our system is such that seldom does a pupil leave the ACADEMY without having been strongly influenced for good, as to manners, habits and health, as well as in the matter of intellectual improvement. To repeat, however, each year is stamped with its peculiar characteristics, and most earnestly are these characteristics sought for during the early days of the new school year.

Little notice is henceforward taken of passing time. The golden rod and purple asters are gathered; the autumn leaves in all their variegated colors deck study parlors as well as forest; the first frost nips the tender plants, even the light snow flake makes its appearance and yet the little school world seems unconscious of the flight of time. Some one may be so fond of arithmetic that October 1st she is able to tell you the number of seconds till June 5th. But this receives little practical notice. The "golden 4's" are given to the successful aspirants November 1st, yet it is an event without special reference to time. Only when Christmas approaches, happy holly-crowned Christmas, when the rooms are decked with evergreen, the tables laden with presents, the box room filled to its utmost capacity, and above all the precious story of the incarnation of the world's Savior is repeated in song and sermon,—then at Christmas time the pupil seems to be aroused, and realize that the top of the hill has been obtained, and that the new school year is no longer described by that title, but that henceforward all things point to its close. It is an interesting epoch, this dropping the title "new" from the words "school year." The character of the year has become firmly fixed. The careless pupil realizes that lost ground must be regained. The industrious student rejoices in 4 or nearly that number on the report, and as the festivities of the Christmas season pass away and the merry bells bid January 1st a cheery welcome, the NEW SCHOOL YEAR is a thing of the past.

Our Trip to Carolina Beach.

BY MISS SADIE SITTIG.

ON the morning of July 9th our summer party set out from Salem to spend a week at Carolina Beach. The company consisted of the following persons: Mr. and Mrs. Clewell, with John and Clarence, their two children; Misses Lizzie Wolle and Jennie Sieger, of Bethlehem, Penn.; Reba Campbell, Mary McKeown, Annie Stuart, Willie Lutz, and the writer.

The weather in the morning was very pleasant, but by noon it became quite warm. After travelling all day we reached Wilmington, took a conveyance and started to the Beach that evening; but as we had been delayed one hour and a half we were too late to catch the boat. Turning back we went to the Orton Hotel, and after supper we sat on the porch awhile, but retired very soon. After a pleasant night's rest we arose at seven, and having breakfasted, went to the river to take the steamer. A pleasant hour's trip down the Cape Fear river brought us to the pier, and on leaving the boat we entered an open car which conveyed us to Carolina Beach. Before reaching the hotel we could hear the dashing of the waves on the shore, and could smell the salt air. The sun shone on the water so brightly that it dazzled us. The breakers were so rough that we were afraid to go bathing at that time, but after some hesitation we decided to do so; there were life-lines in the water, to which we clung very faithfully at first. On first going in one feels very much frightened; the waves are so strong that they often toss the bathers high up on the beach, and it is very embarrassing to find one's self seated among the company of visitors who are watching the bathers. Notwithstanding these little episodes we were so much infatuated with the water that we were sorry indeed when the time for our bath had expired. In the evening we met some girls from Fayetteville, and took a stroll up and down the beach, returning to the piazza of the hotel. We enjoyed the beautiful sight of moon-rise on the ocean, which was grand beyond description. After a few songs together we went to our rooms, to have a frolic with the mosquitoes. Next morning some of us went out walking, and in the evening in the surf again, which was more pleasant than at first, since we were learning to ride the waves and swim a little. Music and dancing in the hotel added life to the scene, and as night drew on, oh! how I wished to be in the surf, but nobody dared go in because of the huge breakers. The next morning a few of us walked down the beach; on the way we saw petrified wood, shells of all shape, size and form; sea-weed and sponge were seen washed up on the shore. Porpoises are often sighted rising up to the surface. Not far from the hotel was the skeleton of a whale found near Wilmington. On Sunday we passed a very quiet day, no religious service being held. In the morning it rained very hard, but after it had ceased the clouds over the ocean were very beautiful.

Next day, Monday, was known as the colored people's day, and large excursions arrived from Wilmington.

The week having thus pleasantly passed we enjoyed a cool, quiet journey home, and were glad once more to enter the old familiar halls of the Academy.

Scotland, England and France.

[We give below the first of a series of letters from Miss Lehman's pen, and shall from time to time welcome and enjoy the account of what she saw, heard and experienced while abroad.]

THROUGH the kindness, the energy, and the executive ability of Major E. Harrell, of Raleigh, the North Carolina Teachers' Association, including 150 professors and teachers, principally from the old North State, were enabled to make a most satisfactory and improving European tour during the months of July and August. Thus a long cherished wish was realized of seeing the interesting localities of the old world, of standing on spots made sacred by the deeds of the great and mighty, and of looking upon the splendors and glories of an older civilization than ours.

We can, however, only give a meagre outline-sketch of the tour in these limits, hoping to treat of individual scenes, places, and experiences at greater length in the future.

A voyage across the Atlantic is naturally not the most delightful experience in the world to one who is sea-sick all the way, but it was forgotten when the beauties of the Irish and Scotch coast began to loom upon the horizon. Tory Island, on the northwest of Ireland, was the first land that greeted our weary eyes on the morning of the twelfth day. We passed a succession of beautiful panoramic views, as island after island, town after town, grew more and more distinct, then gave place to others.

At 5 o'clock P. M. we reached Greenock, the port of Glasgow, where the Custom House officials boarded our vessel, and in a most polite and gentlemanly manner examined our luggage. Naturally, a party of teachers will not carry much tobacco, liquors, or cigars, so that nothing contraband was found that amounted to anything.

Reaching Glasgow that night we were glad to rest without being "rocked in the cradle of the deep." From Glasgow we took the next day for a delightful excursion to Ayr, and Burns' Land generally visiting the cottage where Burns was born, Alloway Kirk, Tom O'Shanter's Bridge, straying "along the banks of the Bonnie Doon," and scenes of beauty.

Returning to Glasgow for the night, we set out next day going by rail to Balloch; we there took the fine steamer, "the Queen," and sailed about forty miles over Loch Lamond, amid the finest mountain scenery in Scotland—lovely beyond description; adjectives were soon exhausted, and we settle down to a deep enjoyment, which penetrates the very recesses of the soul. Having crossed the loch, we took carriages at Inversnaid Hotel for a drive over the hills, past steep walks and peat bogs, or cuts, through spicy heather and delicate flowers. At Stronochlachter we came to Loch Katrine, where we took the steamer "Rob Roy," sailing past "Ellen's Isle," "Rob Roy's Cave," and other places of such beauty that we could only gaze in silent wonder and admiration of Nature's lavish generosity. The spirit of "The Lady of the Lake" seemed to brood over the scene. At the other end of the lake we took carriages and drove through "the Trossacks," the loveliest mountain gorge in the world. Fern and heather, crag and field covered the foothills, while Ben A'an, Ben Neir, Ben Lomond, and half a hundred others point skyward.

Taking Stirling Castle by the way we visited the church of Grey Friars, stood where Mary Queen of Scots was crowned; on the battlements of the castle we saw the site of the battle of Bannockburn, and some ten others, more or less noted in early Scottish times.

We rested in Edinboro that night, and early on Sunday morning opened our eyes on what looked like pictures of the great Athenian Acropolis. It was Edinboro Castle, which frowned down upon us from the cliff. Our hotel on Princes' street lay in a fine locality. The beautiful east and west Princes' Street Gardens were on the opposite side, with the noted Scott monument at the upper end. Calton Hill, with Nelson's monument, fills up the northern view, and we were not slow to avail ourselves of its vicinage.

On Monday we went through Holy-Rood Palace, where every spot seemed pervaded with the sighs of the ill-fated Mary Queen of Scots, and David Rizzio. Faith is required to see the blood-stains in the apartment where the tragedy of Rizzio's death was consummated, but we saw the work-box, mirror, basket, bed, &c., of Mary, the private staircase along which the murderers of Rizzio came, as well as other memorial places. The Castle was duly visited, where we saw the regalia of Scotland, St. Giles' Cathedral, where John Knox preached. We passed his statue, the heart in the pavement that marks the old site of the Heart of Mid Lothian; and thoughts of Jeanie and Effie Deans were strangely commingled with visions of stern John Knox, as we passed his house, with the quaint inscription over the doorway: "LVF, GOD, HND, YR NJGH TBOR AS YRSEL."

We passed the new Talbooth and statues innumerable on our way back to our hotel.

From Edinboro a small company of us went to Melrose Abbey, spending the night with the wondrously fine ruins just outside our window. Unfortunately there was no moonlight, otherwise we might have been inspired to write a "Lay of a First Minstrel." We sat on Sir Walter Scott's favorite seat in the Abbey, but alas! no inspiration came. We drove out some three miles to Abbotsford, in the cool breezy morning, through lovely lanes bordered by hawthorn hedges, under over-arching avenues of carefully kept trees, with frost glimmering on the leaves.

The weather was so cool that we shivered in flannel dresses and heavy shawls!

Rejoining our large party of 105 at Carlisle, we journeyed on to London. Here we took a drive of forty-four miles through the most noted localities of the great metropolis. We took lunch at the celebrated Kew Gardens, where we visited the palm, fern, orchid, and lily houses, and many more. We saw the noted water-lily of the Amazon, the Victoria Regia, with great platter-shaped leaves six feet in diameter, and so many beautiful plants and flowers, nature and art everywhere combining to produce the most satisfactory results.

St. Paul's Cathedral is a noted temple of fame for England's mighty dead, as well as a temple of Christian worship. Monuments and shrines follow in such profusion that it was difficult to avoid confusing them. This apotheosis of great warriors, of great writers, of musicians, painters, sculptors, preachers, philanthropists—all of all who have done something praiseworthy for their fellows is causing the youth of England to burn with desire to emulate their deeds and become worthy of such ancestry.

From St. Paul's, which was quite near our hotel, we went to Westminster Abbey, where every spot is holy ground. All tread softly here and speak with bated breath, as they stand on monuments and tombs of the greatest and noblest of all time, while all around, above and beneath are inscribed names of noble men. From Poet's Corner we went to the various chapels, passing tombs, monuments, of figures of kings and queens. The tombs of Edward I., of Philippa, of the long line of chivalric kings and noble queens, of Mary Queen of Scots, of Elizabeth, of countless tombs, the occupants all reposing in the silent majesty of death—all are calculated to quiet and solemnize the most frivolous and thoughtless nature.

The other sights and scenes of London were visited in due time, the magnificent Albert Memorial in Hyde Park, the finest memorial in the civilized world, Crystal Palace, where, among other attractions, "Midsummer Night's Dream" was performed as a ballet, beautiful as fairy land itself; several concerts, closing with fireworks on the grounds in honor of the marriage of the grand-daughter of the Queen. The Tower, with its grim walls, the Regalia of England, its arms and equipments, the spots made notable by great crimes, like the murder of the two young princesses, the execution of Anne Boleyn, &c., is a grand and gloomy place to visit, but nothing is so impressive to me as Westminster Abbey.

The Parliament buildings, the various palaces, Buckingham, St. James, Marlborough House, the Parks, British Museum, with its grim antiquities, dating back to the world's infancy; Madame Tussaud's Wax-works, with its chamber of horrors, all were visited, but can only be mentioned. We hope to describe them each in detail as time and opportunity allow.

The Shah of Persia appeared to follow us from place to place, from Glasgow to Edinboro (where he received the freedom of the city), from Edinboro to London, and from London to Paris, but thus far only individual members of our party have seen him. After waiting a long time, also, in London to see the royal wedding procession, some of the party saw it, but all the distinguished parties were in closed carriages.

From London we also visited Windsor Castle and Palace, and as the Queen and royal family were in London we were permitted to see all the fine apartments, also two noble chapels. St. George's Chapel, rich in monuments and stained glass, and the Albert Monumental Chapel containing a magnificent tomb of Prince Albert, his effigy lying on top, an excellent likeness, though his remains are not interred there. The second grand tomb is that of the late Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, son of Victoria. His remains are here.

From Windsor several of us branched off to Stoke Page's churchyard, where Gray wrote his immortal elegy. It is a lovely place; the church is old and quaint (750 years old), and the churchyard, with its "rugged elms and yew trees," is beautifully romantic. Gray's monument is close by, and his tomb with his mother's near the church.

From London we went to Paris, crossing the channel, that dread of the seasick, on a lovely day, beautiful as a poet's dream. In Paris we took the usual drives to all the places of note, stopping to visit some, leaving others to be seen by smaller companies, as the individual taste preferred.

The Exposition is a grand affair, almost too gigantic. The Eiffel Tower overtops all Paris, and is visible for miles and miles. We drove out to the remains of St. Cloud and there saw the tower above all other spires and domes. From St. Cloud we went to the palace of Versailles, passing from room to room, each one more splendid than the other: the grand hall where the Emperor Wilhelm, of Prussia, was crowned in 1871; the apartments from which the ill-fated Marie Antoinette fled early on that fateful morning; the Grand Trianon, the magnificent State carriages of Napoleon I., of Charles X., &c.; the painting and statues, from Clevis and Charles Martel, down to the last Marshal of France, who died in 1835. Thence we went to the great Sevres porcelain manufactory; on another day we visited the Gobelins Tapestry Works, Notre Dame, Palais Royal, Pantheon; also, the Louve, the Madeleine, Church of St. Etienne, Place de la Concord, Obelisk of Luxor, where the guillotine stood during the great Revolution; Arc de Triomphe, Hotel des Invalides, the tomb of Napoleon, &c.

The remainder of the tour must wait for another time.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., SEPTEMBER, 1889.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

--The last available space has now been occupied by the large school of the present year, and the use of the Salem church has kindly been given to us by the Board of Elders and the Board of Trustees for religious purposes. This state of affairs plainly points to one of two facts,—either the Academy must limit its numbers to the present size of the school, or an additional building must be erected in the near future. Everything points to the latter position.

—The post graduate course has been opened with a class of nine, and we believe this step will mark an epoch in the history of one feature of our institution, possibly an epoch in the history of higher education in the South. We will have more to say upon the subject next month.

—Several members of our Faculty have spent some time in foreign lands, and quite a number in various parts of our own country during the past months. We hope to present our readers from time to time with a number of letters for THE ACADEMY, which will enable us to thus share with them the pleasures of their vacation-tours. We call special attention to the two letters found elsewhere in this issue.

Experiences on the Mediterranean.

[Dr. RONDTHALER has furnished us with an interesting account of his experiences on the Mediterranean, and we know that our readers will find this first letter a pleasant foretaste of other promised communications describing scenes in the Doctor's extended journey in Southern Europe, Egypt and the Holy Land.]

My dear Brother Clewell:—

In your favor of July 23d, which I was happy to receive in London, you ask for a letter to THE ACADEMY which shall have a bearing upon my Mediterranean tour. Your request brings up the picture of that fair and interesting sea before my eyes. I remember my first sight of it from Genoa,—how, beyond the terrace-like city, beyond the light-houses at either end of the enclosed harbor, it gleamed away in the distance. I remember how beautifully it reflected the sun in the bay of Naples, girt round with olive planted heights and overshadowed by the smoking top of the great cone of Vesuvius. I remember how, in the clear brightness of the early morning, its waves washed the memorable sea-walls of Rhodes; how its coolness fanned the hot breath of the African sands at Alexandria; how sweet and quiet its waters were on a radiant Sabbath evening in the beautiful harbor of Mytilene. Who can describe the blueness of its waters when the sun shines on them? It is as if a million or more of painters had emptied out their paint-pots on the surrounding waters. Who can exaggerate the interest one feels in a sea washing all the shores of ancient story? And who can help being thrilled with the thought that the Savior of the world often looked out on this very sea, and that the apostles of His love crossed it hither and thither in bearing the message of His mercy to Jew and to Gentile?

But, lest my readers be too deeply smitten with the desire of traversing these waters, let me devote my article to an account of the drawbacks which attend a journey over there. Let me give it to you in several pictures clearly imprinted on my memory. Here we are at Brindisi, in Southern Italy, where Virgil died. And no wonder, if he struck the disconsolate place in such dreary, chilly, wet weather as we did. We are waiting for the Austrian Lloyd steamer, which is to be in about midnight, but is several hours late. At last her lights are made out in the dim distance of a wet night over a dark harbor. We have bought our boat tickets at Cook's Hotel, and have paid a good, round price for them. We have taken our seats on the wet boat-bench, and have waited until we shivered from head to foot. We have been rowed out into the darkness and then informed by our rascally boatmen that it will take an extra fee to carry us to the steamer. For fear of being left behind, the most of the passengers hasten to satisfy the brigands into whose hands they have fallen. The boat is rowed up to the step-ladder. Amid a great confusion we clamber on the deck, and for lack of a berth, are content to lay ourselves down where we can to get a little sleep before morning.

Or again, our vessel is lying off a Grecian port, in a fair landscape. But she anchors a mile away from the shore and the sea is very rough this morning.

Our steamer is surrounded by a small navy of boats, whose oarsmen are clamorous for custom. We accomplish the gymnastic feat of getting down the ladder and totter to our seat in an uneasy tossing skiff. A portmanteau has been flung down after us (happily not ours), which misses the boat altogether, but which is successfully fished out of the water. The question now is, which out of a dozen boats is to get the most passengers. To this end they all charge up to the foot of the ladder, in the fashion of ancient war-ships, each endeavoring to get nearest the down-coming passengers. Meanwhile, those who are already seated are being tossed up and down like india-rubber balls on the waves, and their ears are filled with the unintelligible din of a strange tongue, and the perilous balance of their boat is still more disturbed by the lithe figures which scamper over it with the ease and agility which can only be compared to the movements of mischievous monkeys. At last the battle is decided, and our boat, heavily laden with baggage and with passengers, starts for the shore. It mounts the wave, which is something exhilarating, but when it goes so deep down into the hollow that each time it seems to be an open question whether it will ever come up again. The ladies take each other's hands and hold their breath, and look unutterable things, until the heavily-loaded boat staggers up on the crest of the wave once more.

On the shore we are waited upon by what seems to be all the gathered ragamuffins of creation, clothed in what look like the cast-off tatters of the whole world. The boatmen demand an extra fee. The ragamuffins seek to master the baggage. Happy are they who can flee most swiftly through the custom-house, and up the street to the nearest hotel. Thus we laud in classic Greece.

But all landing scenes are outdone by those enacted in Palestine. We had heard of the landing at Joppa, and found that its peculiarities had not been overdrawn.

Here there comes a little fleet of boats to greet the steamer lying half a mile from the shore. They are manned by half-naked Arabs. They yell, they rush from boat to boat, they climb over the ship's deck by any rope that hangs over the side. They are nimble as squirrels and wild as if escaped from the dangerous ward of an insane asylum. Our good fortune is to get into a quiet boat, manned by Cook's oarsmen, and from this safe vantage-ground we watch the struggle. The passengers are fought for in pitched battle. On the middle of the ship-ladder a burly boatman struggles hard to pitch another into the sea. The passengers hastily retreat back into the ship until this worst brawl shall be over. Gradually the cry dies down as each one finds a place in a boat. We are rowed ashore. Some are landed on a narrow plank; others are carried through the breakers on men's shoulders. Here a second crowd awaits them more clamorous than the first. Then comes the Turkish custom-house examination, where each official needs see what personal profit he can make out of its injustice and confusion. Then we press along the narrow street, where camels, donkeys, dirty wares protruding from filthy stores. Arabs in every variety of clothing and of nakedness contend together for the narrow dusty space. We flee as Lot and his daughters did to ward Zoar. We hasten like men whose lives are at stake, and it is only when we reach our inn in the green orange groves which surround Joppa that we can take time to think that we are in the land of the Bible, and that this is actually Good Friday afternoon.

London, August 13, 1889.

Alumna News.

There is nothing more gratifying to us than the confidence which our Alumnae impose in the Academy, and which is shown by the large number of pupils now in attendance, daughters of our former scholars. To illustrate this we give below a list of names, together with the mother's name before marriage. We may have omitted some from the list, but many of our readers will find interest in examining those which we have secured:

BEULAH and ALICE SLAPPEY, of Marshallville, Ga., daughters of Mrs. J. C. Slappey (Stella Neil), '68 and '69.

FANNIE NEILL, of Rogersville, Tenn., daughter of Mrs. J. B. Neill (Lady Belvins).

LENNIE PRICE, of Rogersville, Tenn., daughter of Mrs. J. L. Price (Sidney Tryle), '48.

BETTIE COX, of Sedge Garden, N. C., daughter of Mrs. R. L. Cox (Sue Barrow), deceased.

ANNIE COVINGTON, of Goldsboro, N. C., daughter of Mrs. J. G. W. Cobb (Alice Emanuel).

NETTIE DUNLAP, of Paris, N. C., daughter of Mrs. J. J. Dunlap (Charlotte Virginia Little).

EDNA BRUSSELL, of Gulf, N. C., daughter of Mrs. W. S. Brussell (Kate Buie), deceased.

JESSIE and JOHNIE CATES, of Maryville, Tenn., daughter of Mrs. J. W. Cates (Mary Brabson), '58. Will be here Commencement.

OLLIE FAIN, of Dandridge, Tenn., daughter of Mrs. G. A. Fain (Eliza Moore.)

MARY, FANNIE and ANNIE MOORE, of Huntersville, N. C., daughters of Mrs. J. W. Moore (Maggie Gibbon), deceased.

BERTA BEARD, of Corsicana, Tex., daughter of Mrs. M. S. Beard (Mary Lang), '71-'73.

MATTIE WILLIAMS, of Steedsville, N. C., daughter of Mrs. B. C. Williams (Sallie Norman), '60.

MARTHA JEFFREYS, of Neuse, N. C., daughter of Mrs. R. W. Jeffreys (Alvarado Jeffreys). Grandmother here in '34; room-mate of Mrs. Sturdivant.

BEULAH SANOERLIN, of Raleigh, N. C., daughter of Mrs. G. W. Sanderlin (Eliza Wooten), '61.

ADDIE LINEBACK, of Bethania, N. C., daughter of Mrs. R. P. Lineback (Sallie Blum).

CARRIE OLLINGER, of Milton, Fla., daughter of Mrs. Joseph Ollinger (Sallie Bachelor), '60.

LUCIA SWANSON, of Tuskegee, Ala., daughter of Mrs. M. L. Swanson (Ida Hand), '69.

GRAY WARNER, of Chattanooga, Tenn., daughter of Mrs. J. H. Warner (Alice Horde).

ELLA HINSHAW, of Winston, N. C., daughter of Mrs. G. W. Hinshaw (Emma Miller).

Chronicle and Gossip.

—The terrace in front of Annex Hall has been nicely sodded.

—The front windows of Main Hall have received neat wire screens.

—Severe rains during the summer did great damage in the pleasure grounds.

—The vacation girls went on several fishing and pic-nic excursions during the months of July and August.

—The trip to the seashore was a very pleasant journey for the vacation pupils. An account of the trip will be found elsewhere.

—The dining-room has had a thorough overhauling, and with the improvements which have been added is more attractive than ever.

—The Linoleum on the lower floor in Main Hall is much admired. It is plain brown body six feet wide, with a bright nine-inch border.

—The Senior sleeping-hall in the wing of main hall has been ceiled, the continued wet weather having caused a part of the plastering to fall.

—The Belo House has again been opened, and many of our patrons avail themselves of its proximity to the school, and find a comfortable stopping place there.

—The illumination in front of the church on the evening of the Children's Festival was very beautiful, an occasion long to be remembered by the little ones.

—SUE BORDEN was summoned home soon after her return to Salem by the sad intelligence of her sister's death. Her many friends and companions duly sympathize with her.

—The welcome home service tendered Dr. RONDTHALER on Sunday, September 8th was a very interesting and enjoyable occasion. The pupils of the Academy attended the love-feast.

—Miss HELEN BAKER, of New Jersey, has taken the position of instructor in Natural Science, and has commenced her work with Post Graduates, Seniors and Senior Middle Class.

—The Senior Class will this year number nearly forty, about thirty-four of whom will be boarders. It seems like a large number, but our school has become large, reaching nearly 300, or perhaps exceeding that number.

—We were pleased to greet an unusually large number of the parents and friends of the pupils on the occasion of the opening of the term. Their visits are always welcome, and we trust have been pleasant and satisfactory to them.

—The unusual amount of items this month connected with the opening of school crowds out the correspondence department, but we will next month resume the publication of a number of the welcome and interesting letters received from our Alumnae.

—Rev. Brown, of the Winston Baptist church, Rev. Norman, of the Methodist, and Rev. Davis, of the Presbyterian church, occupied the pulpit of the Moravian church each on one evening during the summer, and their sermons were listened to by large congregations.

—Mrs. W. E. Christian, nee Julia Jackson, only child of Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, died in Charlotte on the 30th of August.

We were also grieved to learn of the death of MARY WEATHERLY's mother.

THE ACADEMY extends its sincere sympathy to these mourning friends.

—Mr. CLEWELL visited Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi, but was prevented from continuing his journey to Texas and other States by severe illness. Having returned to Salem he spent the entire summer as an invalid, but has sufficiently recovered by September 1st to assume the office duties once more.

—Mr. C. B. PFOHL has accepted a position in Mr. CLEWELL's office, and will relieve this overburdened department of the Academy. Professor WURRESCHKE still retains the position of book-keeper, and Miss CLARK of stenographer. As the correspondence is at times unusually heavy Miss JENKINS also occasionally assists as stenographer.

—New brussels carpets were placed in the 5th and 3d rooms, and the pupils seem much pleased with the handsome appearance of the same. While examining them a few days since we were told by a 4th-Room girl standing near that they had the finest carpet, the best teachers, and the handsomest girls of any room in the Academy. We have not as yet taken a vote on these questions.

—Several concerts were given in the Academy chapel during the summer. One by some young people in Salem, the proceeds to be used for charitable purposes; a second by a number of orphans from the Oxford Asylum, and a third by the Salem Orchestra, assisted Miss Emma Lineback, the talented daughter of Professor E. W. Lineback. To this latter occasion the pupils of the Academy were invited by the Orchestra.

—The unusually large attendance this year has led to quite a number of changes in the Academy household, the most marked one being the necessity of using the chapel as a sleeping-hall. The Trustees of the Moravian church kindly tendered the Salem church for religious services, and the school chapel has had the platform removed and has been filled with alcoves. It is now one of the finest dormitories in the school; but many regretted to see the familiar hall converted into anything else than what it has been for the past thirty-four years.

—The class of Post Graduates consists of nine members, viz: GERTRUDE JENKINS, class of '83; BESSIE PFOHL, class of '86; DAISY CLISBY and ADDIE FRIES, class of '88; EMILY HAZLEHURST, MARY FRIES, CARRIE SHELTON, BERDIE GOSLEN, and ETTA SHAFFNER, class of '89. All of these have sufficient energy and ability to gain the coveted degree A. B., if health is spared. The instructors consist of Miss BAKER, Miss LEHMAN, Miss L. SHAFFNER, Miss ALICE RONDTHALER, Dr. RONDTHALER, and we hope to add Professor Blair's name to the faculty, for a course of special lectures.

—The eighth room in Main Hall has been converted into a study-parlor. There are now ten rooms in use as study-parlors, and are in charge of the following teachers: North Senior and South Senior, Miss LEHMAN; 3d Room, Miss SALLIE SHAFFNER and Miss BAKER; 4th Room, Miss LOU SHAFFNER and Miss MARY MINUNG; 5th Room, Miss ELLA SHORE and Miss CONNIE PFOHL; 6th Room, Miss ANNIE PITTMAN and Miss ELIZA CLARK; 7th Room, Miss ALMA CARMICHAEL and Miss EMMA COOPER; 8th Room, Miss CARRIE JONES and Miss CLAUDE WINKLER; 9th Room, Miss EMMA CHITTY and Miss LIZZIE LEINBACH; 10th Room, Mrs. SMITH and Miss LIZZIE HEISLER.

—It was a pleasant duty to welcome our Teachers and Professors from their various vacation journeys. Misses CHITTY, CARMICHAEL and PFOHL were among the first to reach Salem from Indiana and the West; Misses LOU and SALLIE SHAFFNER came from their mountain sojourn, and were followed by Mrs. Rondthaler and Miss ALICE from New England, Miss COOPER from Tennessee, and Miss ELLA SHORE from North Carolina. Dr. RONDTHALER returned from Europe and Palestine some days after the opening of school, and Miss GERTRUDE SEIWEERS having spent some time in New York after her return from Europe, assumed control of the studio the second week of school. From New York Miss EVANS arrived one of the first days of opening, Miss LIZZIE HEISLER from California, and the last to arrive was Miss LEHMAN, she having extended her European tour to Rome.

The following is a list of pupils who were in attendance last year, and who have returned to resume their studies:

Dora Cox,	Lizzie Dell Sutton,
Lavinia Rogers,	Martha Jeffreys,
Fannie Creight,	Mattie Williams,
Mamie Jefferies,	Mamie Whitsett,
Mabel Peterkin,	Addie Lineback,
Jessi: Peterkin,	Lizzie Newton,
Lizzie Kime,	Bettie Cox,
Reba Campbell,	Annie Reid,
Willie Lutz,	Lucile Reid,
Sadie Sittig,	Annie Moore,
Mary McKeown,	Mary Moore,
Annie Stuart,	Fanny Moore,
Sadie Dunn,	Annie Sloan,
Mary Pretlow,	Maud Harris,
Fanny Pretlow,	Mamie Cannady,
Maggie Graham,	Lillie Rogers,
Edna Ingram,	Camille Hunt,
Lidie Irby,	Emma Rollins,
Annie Bourdeaux,	Mary Penn,
Lucile Armeield,	Edna Lindsey,
Gladys Crawford,	Carrie Wray,
Lizzie Fitzgerald,	Fanny Wray,
Georgia Baxter,	Nellie Griffiss,
Ava Stroup,	Etta Taylor,
Praise Yeargan,	Lena Chaffin,
Hattie Haugabook,	Martha Pierce,
Theresa Pace,	Minnie Fagg,
Almeida McGregor,	Sue Borden,
Jeanie Smith,	Lena Fields,
Tibbie Wommack,	Virginia McMurray,
Ora Kennedy,	May Johnson,
Lillian Thompson,	Katharine Waddell,
Florence Cummings,	Mamie Waddell,
Minnie Trimmier,	Claudia Dicks,
Evie Thomas,	Sallie Smith,
Hetty Jarnagin,	Swan Brower,
Nettie Dunlap,	Bertha Hicks,
Sarah Cheatham,	Sue Johnsen,
Sallie McLean

In addition to the above list Grey Warner, who left in '87, and Lillian Dicks, who left same year, have returned.

Daisy Clisby, who graduated in '88, and Emily Hazlehurst, class of '89, will join the Post Graduate Class.

We give a list of the pupils who enter the Academy for the first time the present session:

Annie Perkins, North Carolina.
Helen Perkins, " " Carrie Ollinger, Florida.
Anna Adams, " "

Edna Russell, North Carolina.
Mattie White, " "
Carrie Edwards, " "
Mattie Waddell, " "
Annie Green, South Carolina.
Fay McMullin, Virginia.
Lillie Hodnot, " " Narcie Taylor, " "
Berta Gravely, " "
Amelia Wood, Georgia.
Annie Makepeace, North Carolina.
Susie Gulick, Washington, D. C.
Lucia Swanson, Alabama.
Bessie Ponder, " "
Alice Locke, New York.
Mary McCauley, North Carolina.
Lilly Newbury, " " Tallu Robbins, " "
Lillian Crenshaw, Georgia.
Ora Thomson, South Carolina.
Alice Thomson, " "
Jessie Cates, Tennessee.
Johnie Cates, " "
May Broadfoot, North Carolina.
Alice Drake, Georgia.
Floried Hall, " "
Rosa Ellis, North Carolina.
Eula Cox, " "
Agnes Brownson, Texas.
Mattie Epes, Alabama.
Beulah Slappey, Georgia.
Alice Slappey, " "
Cleora Hewson, Texas.
Carrie Taylor, " "
Huberta Read, " "
Susie Booth, Virginia.
Fanny Pace, Texas.
Linnie Price, Tennessee.
Fanny Neill, " "
Ollie Fair, " "
Beulah Sanderlin, North Carolina.
Laura Whitner, Florida.
Eloise McGill, North Carolina.
Mary Helm, Mississippi.
Mattie Mason, North Carolina.
Mary Goff, " "
Fanny Goff, " "
Assenie Goff, " "
Mary Miller, " "
Christy Waddell, South Carolina.
Alice Gillespie, Tennessee.
Alice Wells, " "
Mary Chaffin, Virginia.
Annie Covington, North Carolina.
Sue Heard, Georgia.
Annie Carrier, North Carolina.
DeWitte Ashe, Texas.
Maggie Smith, Georgia.
Alice Bryan, North Carolina.
Mamie Odeneal, Mississippi.
Agnes Erwin, South Carolina.

WANTED—Position as music teacher in school or private family by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address K. M., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED. A position as teacher by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address B., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, unless whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*— I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1866.

- 4555 ANNA HARALSON. — 1850.
Colonel W. B. Haralson, Hayneville, Ala.
- 4556 ELLEN REID. — 1850.
Henry P. Reid, Hayneville, Ala.
- 4557 LIPPIE REID. — 1852.
Henry P. Reid, Hayneville, Ala.
- 1867.
- 4558 CATH. LENORA FLADGER. — 1852.
R. B. Fladger, Mars Hill, S. C.
- 4559 SARAH ELLRN FLADGER. — 1853.
R. B. Fladger, Mars Hill, S. C.
- 4560 SARAH LOU. — 1851.
P. H. Loud, Jonesboro, Ga.
- 4561 ALICE MILLER. — 1849.
John S. Miller, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4562 KATIE MILLER. — 1852.
John S. Miller, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4563 MARY ELLEN DUNCAN. — 1851.
Step. Father, L. H. Durham, Wood Station, Ga.
- 4564 ISABELLA REESE DURHAM. — 1854.
L. H. Durham, Wood Station, Ga.
- 4565 ANNA ELIZA MOORE. — 1851.
William A. Moore, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4566 SALLIE E. MOORE. — 1853.
William A. Moore, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4567 MATTIE DANIEL. — 1852.
John J. Daniel, Hayneville, Ala.
- 4568 JULIA HAMILTON. — 1851.
Dr. B. Hamilton, Acworth, Ga.
- 4569 TULULA P. BELL. — 1851.
Sanford L. Bell, Dalton, Ga.
- 4570 TULULA WHITMAN. — 1853.
William L. Whitman, Ringgold, Ga.
- 4571 LAURA FOWLER. — 1853.
Josiah Fowler, Double Horn, Tex.
- 4572 CORA FOWLER. — 1855.
Josiah Fowler, Double Horn, Tex.
- 4573 EMMA BROOKS JONES. — 1854.
William H. Jones, Hayneville, Ala.
- 4574 ROBERTA POWELL. — 1852.
Sister, Sallie E. Powell, Montgomery, Ala.
- 4575 LOU M. EGGLESTON. — 1851.
Major E. C. Eggleston, Columbus, Miss.
- 4576 ELIZA BLACK. — 1853.
Grandfather, Henry McClenaghan, Marion, S. C.
- 4577 ANNA V. DE MOVILLE. — 1851.
Peter DeMolive, Boligee, Ala.
- 4578 VIRGINIA S. TAYLOR. — 1851.
Colonel James W. Taylor, Eutaw, Ala.
- 4579 MARY F. POINDEXTER. — 1849.
Brother, G. W. Poindexter, Old Richmond, N. C.
- 4580 ANNIE S. COCKE. — 1854.
James T. B. Cocke, Brandon, Miss.
- 4581 MARGARET E. COCKE. — 1855.
James T. B. Cocke, Brandon, Miss.
- 4582 LOU HILL. — — — — —
Mrs. Hill, Brandon, Miss.
- 4583 ELLA V. HOLT. — 1853.
Mrs. E. A. Holt, Locust Hill, N. C.
- 4584 BETTIE FANNY PENN. — 1852.
James C. Penn, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4585 LUCY F. GUNN. — 1851.
James Gunn, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4586 ALICE F. JOHNSTON. — 1852.
Thomas D. Johnston, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4587 MOLLIE E. WILEY. — 1852.
F. A. Wiley, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 4588 E. VIRGINIA HENKIN. — 1850.
A. K. Fenix, Pelham, N. C.
- 4589 LUCY M. MERIWETHER. — 1856.
Matilda A. Meriwether, Monticello, Ga.
- 4590 SUSIE C. GOOLSBY. — 1852.
Cardin Goolsby, Monticello, Ga.
- 4591 MAGGIE SHAW. — 1854.
Mrs. Mary J. Shaw, Winstonsboro, S. C.

- 4592 MINNIE McLEMORE. — 1856.
Uncle, Dr. H. C. McCall, Benton, Ala.
- 4593 ANNA McCONNELL. — 1852.
Henry B. McConnell, Ackworth, Ga.
- 4594 MINNIE MOORE. — 1852.
Moses Moore, Battleboro, N. C.
- 4595 EUGENIA COLEMAN. — 1853.
George W. Coleman, Clayton, Ala.
- 4596 EMMA MORRIS. — 1853.
D. Morris, Georgetown, Ga.
- 4597 MOLLIE McGRUDER. — 1851.
Dr. James T. McGruder, Georgetown, Ga.

Died.

In Salem, N. C., June 29, 1889, Mrs. MIRANDA ROSALIA CRIST, in 11 Kecklin, aged 7 years, 4 months and 14 days.
In the Sisters' Home, in this place, September 9th, Miss HENRIETTA LINEBACK; aged 58 years, 9 months and 3 days.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA
SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.
The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California. Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping Cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western R. A., Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S. - E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236, Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady as Phonographer.
Address _____
C.—care of The Academy,
Salem, N. C.

A French Summer Home.

A UNIQUE opportunity is on hand for any young ladies who, after a School-Course in the theory of the French Language, would be desirous to complete it through a few months' practice. Mr. and Mrs. A. Du Four, well known in Salem, where they spent last winter, will open on JUNE THE 15th, a select Summer School in their charming country place, in the Western North Carolina mountains, 6 miles from Hendersonville, and 18 miles from Asheville. Mr. DuFour is, as we well know, a man of culture and refinement; he will, of course, instruct his lady-boarders daily in his native language, but the main advantage for them is to be derived from the fact that the French is spoken exclusively in Mr. Du Four's family, which will afford excellent practical training. Climate, scenery, opportunities for mountain trips, etc., everything concurs to make Mr. DuFour's projected summer-home a most desirable one. A season with him will be equivalent to a sojourn in France, at much less expense, and in a section the loveliness of which is known to every one. Piano in the house. Terms will be found very moderate. We take pleasure in commending Mr. A. DuFour's intentions to all the patrons of this paper. Applicants would do wisely to write at once to Mr. A. DU FOUR, MILL'S RIVER, N. C., as he cannot accommodate more than 5 or 6 boarders in all.

SPENCERIAN
STEEL PENS
Are the Best,

IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF
Durability, Evenness of Point, and Workmanship.

Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail, on receipt of 10 cents in stamp. Ask for card No. 8.
IVISON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway, New York.

THE SHORT LINE FROM
CHATTAHOOGA AND BIRMINGHAM
TO
NEW ORLEANS,
Where direct connection is made with the SOUTHERN PACIFIC and TEXAS & PACIFIC RYS, for Texas, Mexico and California, THE SHORT LINE via VICKSBURG and SHREVEPORT to TEXAS, MEXICO and CALIFORNIA, NEW MEXICO, COLORADO and the FAR WEST. Close connection made at Shreveport without transfer through the City.

From TEXAS to the
NORTH AND EAST,
Via SHRV PORT.

Close connections without transfer through the City. Leave Shreveport 7:00 A. M. Through Sleeping Cars to ATLANTA via BIRMINGHAM making direct connections for SAVANNAH, AUGUSTA, CHARLESTON, AND POINT IN Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and the East, Connecting at MERIDIAN with Main Line Trains. J. C. GAULT, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS, Gen'l Mgr. G. P. & T. A.

BINGHAM SCHOOL.

(Established in 1793.)
is PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys, in AGE, in the high standing of its PATRONS, in AREA OF PATRONAGE, and in equipment for PHYSICAL CULTURE. Location in the COUNTRY. Organization MILITARY.
The 96th Annual Year will begin Sept. 1, 1889.
Maj. R. BINGH M, Supt.
Bingham School P. O., Orange Co., N. C.

→* MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH,*←
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF
PIANOS,
NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
Tompkinsville, Staten Island, N. Y.
CARE OF MRS. VOLLER.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal,
Salem Female Academy,
Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with
an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.
For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the

East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble ballast, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going of returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and welfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address

B. W. WRENN, JNO. L. MILAM,
G. P. A., D. P. A.,
Knoxville, Tenn.

C. A. DESAUSURE,
A. G. P. A.,
Memphis, Tenn.

ST. LOUIS,
ARKANSAS &
TEXAS RAILWAY.

⇒ COTTON × BELT × ROUTE. ⇐

The Direct Line between the Educational
Centres of the South-East and
Arkansas and Texas.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN POINTS ON
THIS LINE AND

Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Atlanta.

PULLMAN BUFFET SLEEPERS, FREE RECLINING
CHAIR CARS, ALL THE COMFORTS AND
CONVENIENCES OF MODERN TRAVEL.

On advice being sent to any of the following,
an Agent of this Company will meet all pupils
at the various junction points, en route, and render any assistance or information necessary.

For further information, address

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield.
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical.
$1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies.

Address,

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,
WINSTON, N. C.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

MONEY

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere;
Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then
will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLINARD & BROOKES. —

WM. T. VOGLER,
JEWELLER,
Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.
REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

— FOUNDED 1802. —

Salem Female Academy.
SALEM, N. C.

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

ADVANTAGES.

Healthy location, ample grounds, well-arranged infirmary.

Careful discipline. Two teachers in charge of each Room Company. Commodious study parlors. Well-aired, warmed and lighted dormitories, with separate sleeping alcoves for each pupil, and convenient wash-rooms on the same floor.

A graded course of thorough Academic instruction. Classes never overcrowded. Twenty-four professors and teachers. Much attention to the wants of the individual scholar.
Large library and reading-room.

Unusually well-equipped Music, Art, Linguistic and Commercial Departments, under the most competent teachers.

Religious instruction, which is simple, careful and unsectarian. Has been trusted in by members of all Christian denominations for more than three-fourths of a century.

Charges, which are as low as the advantages
offered by the Institution will permit.

Send for Catalogue.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY,
Salem, North Carolina.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., OCTOBER, 1889.

NUMBER 99.

— FOUNDED 1802. —

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA.

This old and well-known Institution is at present instructing about 300 students, and has the following separate and well equipped departments:—

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, extending over 3 years.

COLLEGE COURSE, extending over 4 years.

POST GRADUATE COURSE (degree of A. B.), extending over 1 year.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

SCHOOL OF ART.

SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

Full information as to any department will be furnished upon application to

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

OUR THREE CHAPELS.

MANY tender memories cluster around the place where we meet to worship God. This is more especially noticeable in connection with our ACADEMY CHAPEL: social and religious feelings combine to make it a place to be fondly remembered, particularly in later years, when we have perhaps been tossed about and buffeted by the storms of fate, and recur with deep affection to the peaceful, well-ordered haven of our school-life.

The regular morning service of song, of prayer, and of Bible reading, has been the formal opening of the ACADEMY school-day for many years, and a day without this golden edge, a day begun without this sweet observance, was sure to be all wrong throughout. Then too, other services were held in the chapel, solely for the pupils, thus uniting devotional and social instincts in a pleasing manner. In earlier times, when the public church services were largely conducted in the German language, the Principal of the ACADEMY, as the pastor of his own little flock, preached for the pupils in their chapel, in English. In the course of time, the English superseded the German, and naturally the pupils attended regular preaching in the church with the congregation, though they always had a catechetical service, kept by the Principal in the chapel, on Sunday afternoons.

Thus far, the ACADEMY has had three chapels,—and in almost every case, the chapel was occupied as a dormitory when it became too small for its original purpose. This was the case with the chapel of the congregation, in the old Congregation House, which became a school dormitory when the chapel was built which now adjoins the church; it was also the case with our first school chapel, and now again with our last one.

The first chapel belonging exclusively to the school, consisted of an addition built in 1824 on the north side of the South Hall, or old ACADEMY, on the second floor. The day of consecration was marked among other services, by a love feast, and henceforth became an anniversary day, entitled "the Chapel Festival"—a time to which many pupils looked back as their spiritual birthday, a time of deep religious impressions and of choicest blessings. The chapel festival was discontinued about the year 1853. When this chapel became too small for the rapidly growing school, it was first used as a dormitory for the adjoining first room. Later it was an embroidery-room, drawing-room or studio, music-room, the first reading-room established by Mr. Zörn in 1878, a Senior room, and now it is once more a dormitory, having evidently gone the whole round of useful occupation.

The second chapel, now in part used as the Professor's music-room, was built in 1835, and connected the rear of the old ACADEMY with the former sick-rooms and house keeper's domain.

The third and last chapel was erected in 1856-'57. When our main ACADEMY was erected on the site of the old Congregation House, it was built with a frontage of 100 feet, and with two wings, a north wing or extension, containing a dormitory, infirmary, matron's rooms, &c., and a corresponding south wing, 77 feet by 44, the first floor to be utilized as a dining hall, the second as a chapel. The main building was completed and occupied in 1856; the lower floor of the south wing was formally opened as a dining hall in February, 1857, but a terrible epidemic of measles which broke out in the spring, so retarded the work on the chapel that it was not consecrated for divine worship until Ascension Day, May 21st, 1857. The usual Ascension sermon was preached in the church in the forenoon; in the afternoon at 3 o'clock the solemn dedication exercises were held by Bishop Geo. F. Bahnson, who preached a stirring sermon on the words "In Salem is his tabernacle," Psalm, 76:2. Rev. Robert DeSchweinitz offered a beautiful and touching prayer. Professor E. W. Leinbach prepared a fine chorus for the occasion, in the rendition of which he was assisted by friends and musicians from town. The occasion was one long to be remembered.

Many precious memories come thronging back as we glance with retrospective eye over the years during which this chapel has been the very centre of our social and devotional life. While the church was being renovated and frescoed in 1883 the regular meetings of the congregation were held here in our chapel. Here several were received into church membership; one of our teachers among the number, was baptized, and thus received into the fellowship of the congregation, as she had long been enshrined in our affections. That she has since been called to the General Assembly and church of the first born above, is but another link in the chain of precious associations connected with this chapel.

Our concerts and commencement exercises were held here, until the increasingly great audiences made it impossible. Sweet strains of music have filled its walls;—commencement essays, salutations and valedictories have been read there, causing many a young heart to swell with gratification at success achieved and applause fairly won. One of our pupils, especially noticeable on her graduation, was called from earth, as the leaves, then so bright in their midsummer beauty and splendor, were falling to the ground in autumn. And so we might go on with reminiscences. Principals, teachers, and pupils have been there, have done their work, and passed away, some to other spheres of usefulness and duty—others, to the silent land from which not even the faintest whisper returns to tell us of the loved and lost, the early dead.

For some time it has been evident that a new chapel was fast becoming a necessity. At our last Commencement, held in the church, even that edifice was not near large enough.

In 1888 the increasingly large number of pupils entering the ACADEMY necessitated the building of the new Annex Hall, but as it was at once filled, and every alcove in our establishment being occupied, a new dormitory became necessary. Accordingly, with the opening of the present term, the chapel was taken for that purpose, and alcoved as are all the other dormitories. The Seniors proffered a request for it which was granted; and if any sacred influences still linger within its walls, their slumbers should be doubly blest; we do not, however, recall any cases in which it is difficult to get to sleep; the difficulty usually lies in the opposite direction and the rising bell is any thing but a welcome sound.

SWITZERLAND.

TRAVELLING, in our day, has been reduced to a fine art; it is so systematically arranged that you may purchase a series of tickets for a tour all over Europe, Asia, or even parts of Africa, with hotel coupons for meals and lodging, so that you need expend very little ready money later, except for servants' fees and incidental omnibus or cab fares. We obtained our tickets at the tourist agency of Messrs. Gaze in Paris, but would certainly purchase Cook's, if we travelled again. The terms are very nearly the same, and while we saw Mr. Gaze's interpreter at Paris only, we met Cook's everywhere, and were several times largely indebted to him for kind assistance and gentlemanly courtesy: particularly at Pisa, where we glad for his help, as well as for that of a young Englishman, a teacher on his way to his school in Alexandria, Egypt. We hope that his kindness to two strangers will be amply recompensed to him in his distant home. Continual fees are most annoying to an American, but in "Rome we must do as the Romans," and so the abuse goes on from year to year; each tourist mutters "curses not loud but deep,"—and then pays the fee. A recent traveller said to a friend, "I came to Europe for change and rest. The servants got all the change, and the hotel keeps the rest."

Our large party of N. C. Teachers retraced their steps from Paris to London and Glasgow, and thence sailed for home, but several smaller parties extended their tour to Switzerland, and some to Italy; this second part of the trip was by far the most interesting and enjoyable, as it took in those wonders of nature in Switzerland, and those grand old Italian and German cities of which we had dreamed for years,—and when we stood amid their beauty and glory, we felt like the Queen of Sheba of old, "the half had not been told us." The itinerary of the tour taken by myself and a friend, from Paris, was as follows: we went by way of Dijon and Macon through central and south-eastern France to Geneva, from Geneva by diligence to Chamounix, Mt. Blanc, the Mer de Glace, the Tete Noir to Martigny, to Chillon Castle, Vevey, Lausanne, and back to Geneva, making an entire circuit of the lake. From Geneva we turned our steps southward to Italy, through the Mt. Cenis tunnel to Genoa the Superb, running along the beautiful Riviera to Pisa, while the waters of the Mediterranean sparkled and dimpled in the moonlight, soft and lovely as fairy land. From Pisa with its wonderful Leaning Tower, its Cathedral or Duomo and Baptistery we reached Rome, the Eternal city, with all her glories past and present. Next we came to Florence (or Fierenze, as they term it) nestling on the Arno, and enjoyed all her magnificent art treasures and architectural beauties. Then Venice, the sea Cybele, "the queen of the Adriatic, throned on her hundred isles," appeared with her old historic associations, her palaces, her canals, gondolas and treasures of art. From Venice we turned due west, passing through Verona, the home of Romeo and Juliet, to Milan, through the lovely Italian Lake region by Como and Lugano to Lucerne, along the St. Gotthard railway, through the grandest mountain scenery of the world, passing through 64 tunnels in one day, the St. Gotthard, the longest railway tunnel in the world, being the 26th of that series. We skirted along Lake Lucerne, past immense boulders of breccia, or conglomerate pudding stone, where the Titans might have amused themselves in the world's infancy by piling up these unique masses in mud-pie fashion. Every foot around the lovely lake is marked by memories of William Tell, the patriot hero,—his chapel, his haunts, all are pointed out. Under the shadow of Mt. Pilatus, lies Lucerne with its attractions, the great Lion of Thorwaldsen, carved on the cliff, the grand Glacier or Gletscher Garden, the Rhigi railway; thence we went through Carlsruhe, Baden, Mannheim and sped on to Mainz on the Rhine. Here we took a steamer, the "Kaiser Wilhelm," and sailed through another wonderland, past "Bingen, dear Bingen," Bishop Hatto's Mouse Tower, "the castled crag of Drachenfels," "die Katze," the National Monument in memory of the Franco-Prussian War, as Germania keeps "die Wacht am Rhein," the ruined castle of Rolandseck, the island of Nonnenwerth, Neuwied, Apollinarisberg, Koenigs-winter, Stolzenfels, Weisenthurm, Bacharach, "die Loreley," Ehrenbreitstein, the Gibraltar of the Rhine, "Coblenz, where the Moselle pours its waters into the Rhine, along vine-clad, terraced hills, and castellated ruins, to Cologne. Here the most romantic Rhine scenery ends, and we took the swifter train, through Brussels to Antwerp over the flat Flemish country where countless wind mills reared their giant arms against the sky. In Antwerp we enjoyed Ruben's grandly realistic paintings, the Cathedral, and other places rich in treasure. Crossing the North Sea by steamer to Harwich we were soon in London. On our way northward we turned aside to pay our tribute at Shakespere's shrine, in the lovely village of Stratford-on-Avon. From Glasgow we set sail for home, where we arrived after encountering the severest equinoctial storms that have been known for years. When we saw what havoc the storm-king had made on the New Jersey coast,—how one gallant vessel after the other was wrecked, how Coney Island was desolated, and how Atlantic City suffered, we could only thank God with full hearts, for the great deliverance vouchsafed to us when so many others lost their lives.

Switzerland,—with its ice-clad mountain peaks, "glorious as the gates of Heaven beneath the keen, full moon,"—its lakes, blue as the heavens which are mirrored in their clear depths, its hardy, industrious peasantry whose lives are a hand-to-hand struggle with nature for a scanty livelihood,—surely deserves more than the passing notice which I can give it. A volume would not suffice to do it justice, much less a short, newspaper article which must confine itself to a meagre, outline sketch.

Geneva, the home of Calvin, of Rousseau, the adopted home of so many children of genius, is a delightful city. Our hotel, D'Angleterre, fronted the lake, just where the river Rhone emerges from its blue depths. Rousseau's island, ornamented by many statues, of which his is the finest, is a lovely resort, a kind of park, and is continually thronged with people. A little distance above our hotel stood an elegant pavilion-like structure with a fine statue of Duke Charles II. of Brunswick, at the entrance of a handsome public garden or park, with fountains, grottoes, beautiful plants, and shrubs. The city is full of shops, crowded with watches, bric-a-brac, wood carvings, precious stones, cat's eyes, tiger's eyes, lapis lazuli, agates, carnelians, sapphires, &c., as indeed is every Swiss town and hamlet. All seem to make their sole living out of tourists.

From Geneva we went by diligence over fine, macadamized roads to Chamounix, a day's drive through mountain scenery so grand, so awe-inspiring that words seemed poor and out of place. To right and to left rose the foot hills of the Swiss and Italian Alps, while Alp rose behind Alp, in ever increasing grandeur and glory. About noon the snow-capped head of Mt. Blanc, the monarch of the system, came into view, growing clearer and more sharply defined, as we proceeded past numberless glaciers, with streams flowing down the mountain side like silver strands. We crossed the river Arve at least a dozen times, as it swirled and foamed in its rocky bed, the chalky waters unlike any river we had as yet seen. We involuntarily quoted Coleridge—

"The Arve and Arveiron at thy base Rave ceaselessly while thou, dread mountains form Risest from forth thy silent sea of pines how silently!
Around thee and above deep is the sky and black,
Transpicuous deep, an ebon mass. Methinks thou piercest it
As with a wedge, but when I look again it seems
Thy own calm home, thy crystal shrine,
Thy habitation from Eternity!"

Reaching the village of Chamounix about 5 o'clock P. M., we still had time to see something of the place as it nestles in a beautiful valley, shut in by Mt. Blanc and half a hundred other lofty peaks. Two-thirds of the houses in the place are bric-a-brac shops. Spending the very chilly night at the Hotel de Mt. Blanc, we set out early the next morning on mule back, attended by a guide, to climb to the Mer de Glace. We reached the hostelry at this wonderful glacier about 10 o'clock. Here we found a number of tourists, some crossing the Mer de Glace, alpenstock in hand; some ladies were being carefully led by guides over the slippery parts. Returning to Chamounix by noon we set out over the Tete Noir Pass, to Martigny in a charabanc, a comfortable two seated carriage. We ascended by an excellent road, one terrace above the other, higher and still higher, till after reaching the fifth terrace we could look straight down and see the place from which we had started. Pink and purple Rhexias, Grass of Parnassus, blue bells, small Alpine pinks, Silenes, heather, and single red poppies dotted the road sides.

At length we came to the Tete Noir (or black head), itself a sort of old man of the mountain, a grim profile head; we passed through it in a tunnel, winding in and out amid sublime scenery. Towards evening as we slowly ascended to the loftiest part of our route, we saw, in the distance, the Bernese Oberland, the Gemmi, the Wetterhorn, Finster Aarhorn, the Jungfrau or Virgin Alp, and uncounted peaks, which seemed to kiss the sky, as their crystal summits were tinted with the lovely roseate hue of the setting sun, the beautiful Alpen-glow! Shivering with cold, we descended the sloping mountain road, and reached Martigny for a late dinner at the Hotel Du Clerc, about 9 o'clock P. M. Two young ladies had come in our carriage from Chatelard, beyond the Tete Noir;—they were on their way to the great festival of the Vignerons or Vine growers held in Vevey every 10 years, and begged us to stay with them and enjoy the fete. They could scarcely understand how we could resist the manifold attractions of the festival, but our time was too limited to stop over there.

The next morning we took the train at the pretty little mountain town of Martigny from which the Simplon road leads past the Great St. Bernard. By 10 o'clock we reached Lake Lemman and the familiar outlines of Chillon Castle were before us.

"Lake Lemman flows by Chillon's walls,
A thousand feet in depth below
Its massy waters meet and flow."

So sang Byron long ago, and as the wonderful beauty of the place broke upon us, we could well understand why so many men and women of genius have lived here. We stood in Bonnard's dungeon, saw the stone column to which he was chained, saw the circle worn in the hard ground by his restless feet. We peered down into the sharp, jagged depths of an oubliette, and wondered how human beings could be so atrociously cruel to their fellow men.

Resuming our journey by rail we passed through Vevey, which was all ablaze with red, yellow and blue bunting; the white Swiss cross on red ground was every where displayed; festoons of evergreens with flowers were bestowed wherever there was room. Immense crowds of people gaily dressed, bands of music, the glare and fanfare of the military, all formed a picture of bright, of unique enjoyment, never to be forgotten. One pretty town on the lake side after the other was passed, the lake being dotted from end to end, and it was with eyes and mind satiated with beauty that we returned to Geneva as an objective point, ere we set out upon our Italian tour.

—The 19th of September, Mr. CLEWELL'S birthday, has been a holiday during the past few years. This year was no exception. When the Principal and his family entered the school dining-room, they found an elegant silver service, consisting of salver and five other pieces of handsome design, on the table, and beside it a pyramid of choice cut flowers. The beautiful and valuable gift was acknowledged by a short address, and the day formally announced as a holiday. The weather was simply perfect,—an ideal day. Several teams were engaged to give the girls a ride in town and in the neighboring country, and this portion of the programme was fully appreciated. The dinner, too, was a success. A number of invited guests were present, and, after a short but hearty address by Dr. RONDTHALER, the repast was partaken of. The evening was spent in quiet games and reading in the various study parlors.

—Quite a time elapsed after the opening of the term before the furniture of the new (8th) room was received. Now, however, that the new tables, nickle-plated gas fixtures and the velvet carpet have been placed in the room the residents claim that they have the parlor of the School. The individual pupils have added many handsome ornaments.

—Annex Hall is now quite full, there being 32 pupils domiciled in that building.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., OCTOBER, 1889.

*Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.*

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

PLEASE let all members of the Alumnæ Association bear in mind the clause of the Constitution which requires every member to be a subscriber to THE ACADEMY.

WE earnestly request any subscriber who fails to receive THE ACADEMY to notify us of the month missed, and we will cheerfully forward a second copy.

A NUMBER of pictures of the buildings of the ACADEMY are still on hand and we will take pleasure in forwarding them to the address of all who desire us to do so.

Professor W. A. BLAIR will begin his course of lectures on Pedagogics on Wednesday, October 16, before the Post Graduates.

Mrs. Kremer's very interesting paper, read before the Alumnæ Society, will appear next month.

THE beauty and success of our alcove system is nowhere more fully demonstrated than in the Chapel recently converted into a dormitory. The alcoves are of the standard size, all being alike. Since the work has been completed the room presents a most attractive appearance. We believe that the highest possible good has been attained in connection with boarding school life by means of this system. The pupil has a room to herself, yet the entire room company is still under the care and supervision of its teacher. Hence, the possibility of being subjected to many of the dangers which are usually connected with a school girl's life disappear. In addition to the utility of the alcove system it has also become plain that it is popular, and this fact adds to its strength.

WE have already noted the pleasing increase in our school in the matter of attendance, and the same spirit seems to have made its way into the life of our school paper. With pleasure we note that while the number required five years ago was only three hundred, we this year print eight hundred, and hope to need one thousand by the end of the school year. This increase, too, is in the face of a strict cash subscription rule. We could readily have doubled the list of subscribers had we not made this rule, but we knew the life of THE ACADEMY would be short if the basis on which it was run was not solid and substantial. The result has been that it has proved self-supporting during the past five years, and hence, we note with great satisfaction, the large number of friends who have placed their names on our list as paid subscribers.

THE ACADEMY has also grown in other respects. We began with a small 4-page paper, five years ago this month, with the history of the second chapter in the life of the paper. As the number of interests increased, the size of the paper was doubled, and still further increased to twelve pages with the June numbers. We now find that its present size is too small to justly represent the various interests it is called upon to set forth; in addition, the one page of advertisements has been increased to two, and we find that many of our patriotic readers consider this an encroachment. Criticism like this pleases us, for it shows that the efforts which have been put forth in the past are kindly appreciated by our friends. Therefore, after our present issue, we will probably enlarge the paper, either by placing a cover on the same, or by adding four more pages to the reading matter. The cover will enable us to place all advertisements on the front and back inside cover pages, or the additional four pages would give us the desired space. At present THE ACADEMY is favored by our correspondence from abroad, the Alumnæ matters, the news of the school, the Library's growing interests,—in fact, a list of interests which has been growing and broadening each year.

We return thanks to our many readers for their kind support, and trust that the already liberal encouragement may continue and even be increased and strengthened.

—The Music Department is unusually full this year, in fact the same may be said of all the special schools in the Institution.

Correspondence.

—Last month our correspondence from the Alumnæ was crowded out, but we hope to be able to keep up this most interesting department of THE ACADEMY and meet from month to month in social converse around the board of our Alma Mater.

Our first communication is from Mrs. Slaughter, nee JOSEPHINE PEARSON, of Green Hill, Texas. It has been on hand for some time, but it is none the less valuable on that account. Letters from old friends are like good wine;—age does not impair their flavor but rather improves them.

"Your notice reminding me that my subscription has expired was received; sickness was the cause of the delay. I attended school at the ACADEMY in 1858, from that time to May, 1860, and it seems as if I am now writing to my old home. I was in the 8th room at first, and my teachers were Miss SOPHIE KREMER and Miss AUGUSTA STOLZENBACH, then Miss MAGGIE SIEWERS, and Miss MARIA VOGELER. Then I removed to the 7th room where Misses CARRIE SIEWERS and AMELIA STEINER were my teachers.

Three of my cousins were there at school in 1859 and 60, M. E. PEARSON and SALLIE PEARSON. They are both dead. ELIZA is living in Mississippi, and is Mrs. Kennedy. MOLLIE never married. SALLIE married Dr. Vinyard, of Arkansas, and left 3 little children. I went to school with ELIZA and SIDNEY SKIDMORE. A cousin of theirs told me SIDNEY was dead, and ELIZA was a widow, but I have forgotten her name.

I would like so much to know about LAURA BIRD, LAURA BARROW (POKIE), VIC. CADE, LAURA QUINN, DESDA JONES, JEANIE LUNDAY, JANIE LOW, ANNA TURNER, JENNIE WINSTON, EMMA and SALLIE LENOIR, JODIE HOOKS, CARRIE ZIMMERMAN, EUGENIA COLEY, and a host of other dear friends. I saw the name of a dear friend in the June number of THE ACADEMY, Mrs. Alston, formerly EMMA SANDERS. I wrote to her, and received a dear letter a short time since. It made me have a jolly good cry to read a letter from her after a separation of 27 years. I would be happy to receive letters from any who remember me.

Two of my young friends were in the ACADEMY recently, Misses MAMIE and BIRT FITZPATRICK of Mt. Pleasant, Texas. My dear, sainted mother attended SALEM ACADEMY in 1837, and '38. Her name was ELIZABETH A. BROWN, of Georgia. She and her niece, MARTHA BRANNER, went there in a carriage, as there were no railroads in their time. Her favorite teacher was Miss T. W. BELO, who later married a Mr. Siddall. Ma named a niece after Mrs. Siddall. I went to see Mrs. Siddall; MARY came after me; I had a delightful time and a splendid supper. Miss JOE SIDDALL wrote in my album, and Miss MAGGIE SIEWERS wrote my name in beautiful letters; I still have it and prize it highly.

I also have a piece of embroidery work on canvass, which my mother did, and it is as bright as ever; it has a white pigeon eating, while a colored one drinks water out of a bowl of roses. I also have some of my mother's paintings. I married Professor W. R. M. Slaughter, 23 years ago. I have 2 sons, Alfred and Pearson, and 3 daughters, Carrie, Bessie and Zenobia. Carrie is married and has a daughter named Thalia. I will close my lengthy letter, but I thought perhaps some one would like to hear of me, as I would be glad to hear from any one of my old friends and school-mates.

With much love to all, and best wishes for THE ACADEMY, I remain,

Yours truly,

JOE SLAUGHTER.

Green Hill, Texas.

We are happy to receive just such pleasant letters from our old friends, telling us of themselves and their acquaintances. If all would bear in mind how glad they are to hear from their schoolmates, we could have many more such letters. Our next is from another dear friend, HATTIE GOFORTH, now a widow, Mrs. Hill. We sympathize deeply with her in the death of her father.

"I wish to renew my subscription to THE ACADEMY, for since receiving the first copy, sent me by my dear friend, Miss SOPHIE BUTNER, I feel I cannot do without it. I look eagerly in each number for news of my friends of long ago. The letter from Mrs. Dr. Wiley in a past number, encouraged me much; I wish I had more of her glad and joyous spirit to enable me to bear more patiently and cheerfully the many trials through which I have been called to pass in the past years, and that I may be content to toil on and wait the Father's time for making known the wherefore.

I see news of old pupils is solicited. I met BETTIE SNOW, now Mrs. Geo. F. Crush, this summer. Her home is in Washington City. Her sister MARY married, and died, leaving 2 little girls who are now accomplished young ladies; one of them married a short time ago. NERVE RILEY is now Mrs. Wm. Watterson of Rogersville, Tenn., and has a family of unusually interesting children. She was one of my best friends. EMMA BARTON married Mr. Smith, a Presbyterian minister who is now in Atlanta, Ga. She died several years since, leaving 3 small children. JENNIE MCFARLANO married EMMA's brother of Chattanooga. HATTIE MCFARLANO married Mr. Davis of this place, and died 7 months afterwards in November, 1869.

I met LUCY KYLE (Mrs. Shotwell) last fall. I think her home is in Rogersville. MARY S. MOFFETT is Mrs. Robert Crouch, SUE's brother, and lives near Russellville, Tenn. I would like to hear from HELEN DE SCHWEINITZ, and many others who were at school in 1863, '64, and '65. I would also like to have my name on the Alumnae list. I still hope to visit Salem at some future day, and shall ever rejoice to hear of the increasing prosperity of the school. With best wishes for all connected with the dear old ACADEMY,

I remain yours, &c.,

HATTIE GOFORTH HILL.

Bristol, Tenn.

—We give the following pleasant letter from a former pupil, and would be very glad to know her maiden name. We remember them at school, — and it is difficult to realize that they are wives and mothers.

"I had the pleasure (a few days since) of receiving the first copy of THE ACADEMY I had ever seen. And as I glanced over its pages and saw so many familiar names of the long ago, a flood of emotion poured over my soul, no words of any language can describe. Thirty-seven years have passed since I roamed a happy school girl amid the classic halls of "Our Alma Mater." Ah! the rush of the sweet memories that come o'er me as I write these words,—I would I could once again wander among those scenes of my youthful days. Again, feel the thrill of joy and hope which pervaded my whole being. But, alas! never more can we feel those hopes which spring eternal in the heart of youth alone. The evening shadows of our life can only be brightened up by the reflected halo of its morn.

I notice one paragraph in THE ACADEMY, you say you will send pictures of the three buildings (for framing). Will you be so kind as to honor me with them?

With every wish for the continued prosperity of my once loved home, I am

Respectfully yours,

MRS. C. E. LIPFORD.

Kinards, Newberry County, S. C.

—Our next is from a well remembered pupil of the past, PALLIE PRIOR. It is a very gratifying thing to hear from such dear friends.

"Please pardon a stranger for taking the liberty of writing a few lines to yourself. I am an old pupil of the ACADEMY, and my happiest school days were spent there. I seldom ever hear from my dear old school, but last week had the pleasure of reading for a few moments the paper named THE ACADEMY, and what pleasant memories were recalled when reading the Commencement exercises; Mr. DE SCHWEINITZ's letter to the Alumnae Association, gave me much pleasure, as he was President of the ACADEMY when I was there, and he was so fatherly and kind to all of his pupils, and all of them loved him. I shall always think with pleasure of the two happy years I spent in the dear old ACADEMY,—1856 and 1857. In referring to the register you will find my entrance into your school, Nov. 1855, PALLIE F. PRIOR, now Mrs. Frank Coleman. My object in writing this is to get a Catalogue of the school. I have no children to educate, but for my own pleasure, and I have friends also, who would like to see the Catalogue. If it will not trouble you too much please let me know what the paper (THE ACADEMY) costs a year; I want to subscribe for it, and will send the money as soon as I learn. Would like to get a picture, large enough to frame, of the ACADEMY buildings also, if I can learn the price. I should prize a picture of the buildings very highly.

Will close, hoping I have not trespassed upon your time too long, and my best wishes that the best school in the United States will continue to prosper in future as it has in the past, for I certainly think Salem can boast of the best School.

Respectfully,

MRS. FRANK COLEMAN.

Sharon, Madison Co., Miss.

—The writer of the following letter has since sent us her daughter, a precious charge,—doubly so when one of the second, and in some cases, the third generation is educated here.

"I received a copy of THE ACADEMY a week or two since. I read it with much pleasure and delight.

I was a pupil of '69 and '70. How my heart clings to the memory of the time spent in Salem.

It has been 18 or 19 years since I bid farewell to Misses VOGLER, LEHMAN, STEINER, SHAFFNER, SENSEMAN and others. I can see dear Mr. GRUNERT with his smiling face and extended hand as he stood at the stage door and said "good-bye, God bless you."

Will you be kind enough to forward me a new Catalogue and the pamphlet, "How to get to Salem." If you have any of the pictures of the three large buildings on hand please forward with Catalogue, &c. I would appreciate them very much indeed.

Very truly,

MRS. M. L. SWANSON,
nee IOA HAND.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—A number of pupils are taking guitar and violin lessons.

—Miss PITTMAN and Mr. PFOHL have finished the music plan.

—The circus did not favor us even with a glimpse of the procession.

—Morning prayers are now held in the Chapel of the Moravian church.

—We note with pleasure the beautiful flowers which ornament many of the study parlors.

—The Post Graduate Department is fully up to the deserved standard, and fine work is being done.

—An unusually fresh, green foliage covers the orange trees, but the blossoms and fruit seem to disappear!

—Judging by the smoke and fumes issuing from the Laboratory the chemistry classes are hard at work.

—BERTA GRAVELY returned home with her father to recuperate. She has been quite sick since her arrival.

—Work is being done on the Square in front of the ACADEMY, and the hill beside the Belo House is being cut down.

—Cedar Avenue, the lovely walk in front of the graveyard, never looked more beautiful than it does at the present time.

—We call attention to the new advertisements in this issue of the New Home Sewing Machine and the Hammond Type Writer.

—MARY and FANNY PRETLOW have moved to the Principal's house in order to make room for the unexpected new comer within the school.

—Professor MARKGRAFF's music room has been divided into two, the Professor occupying one and the Techniphone finding a place in the other.

—The District Convention of the Y. M. C. A. met in Winston, Sept 27th, and one evening session being held in the Salem church the ACADEMY pupils attended.

—“North Senior” and “South Senior” are the inscriptions on two silver plates which replace “1” and “2” on the doors of the rooms occupied by the graduating class.

—Various colored globes have been placed on the gas fixtures in the dining-rooms and halls. The opal, crimson, amber and other colors blend together and produce a soft but very pleasing light.

—In our Alumnae News last month we stated that “BERTA BEARD, of Corsicana, Texas, was daughter of Mrs. M. S. Beard.” The item should have been “BERTA READ, daughter of Mrs. M. S. Read.”

—The hall beneath the dining room will be converted into a large gymnasium. The size will be about 40x80 feet and will furnish a much needed place where the superfluous spirits of the pupils may be expended.

—The rigid rules regarding subdued conversation in the dining room is a great relief to us all. Even moderately loud talking would be a tax on weak nerves should two hundred engage in it within the same room.

—The sad news of the sudden death of ALLIE and ERMA CORDILL's little brother reached us on Friday last. It was a severe shock to the girls, so soon after their arrival, and they had the sympathy of all about them.

—The Board of Trustees made a formal visitation through the buildings during September. They seemed to be convinced that the necessity of a new building which will increase the capacity of the ACADEMY is apparent.

—We extend our sincere sympathy to Misses MARIA and REGINA VOGLER in the departure of their mother. The death of the true Christian, however, is always a victory, especially so when as in the present instance the pilgrim was thus freed from severe and long continued bodily suffering.

—We hope to have news from time to time regarding the doings of our two Societies. Of course we do not expect to be received into the mysteries of their recent sessions, but we hear rumors of contemplated entertainments, &c., and shall be pleased to know more of the results of the work accomplished.

—A marked improvement in town is the raising of the houses and the sidewalk between Fries, Giersh & Senseman's store and Dr. Shaffner's residence. Many of the trees have been removed, and property on the entire section will be thereby very greatly enhanced in value.

—The number of pupils in attendance at present is as follows:

Boarders,	- - -	161
Day pupils,	- - -	70
Special pupils,	- - -	30
Total,	- - -	261

—Since our last number was printed the following pupils (former and new) have entered the ACADEMY:

Carrie Francisco, Tennessee.
Kate Moses, Virginia.
Mag. Gunn, Georgia.
Alice Rawlings, Tennessee.
Grace Locke, New York.
Mamie Dyden, Tennessee.
Mattie Trout, Virginia.
Allie Cordill, Louisiana.
Erma Cordill, “
Pattie Johnston, North Carolina.
Mary Crater, “

By an oversight Ella Hinshaw's name was omitted from list given in September.

Our Library.

—We note with pleasure the increasing popularity of the Library. It is a good sign.

—The study time of the post graduates is about equally divided between the Laboratory and Library, and they seem happy in their work.

—Paper files now hold the magazines and papers in their place in the reading room and confusion has no longer a place on the tables.

—A new closet section has been placed on the north wall of the front reading room, with neat sections for individual books. The workmanship is handsome, and was done by Fogle Bros. The new case has a capacity of 300 volumes, and will be devoted to new books as they are received into the Library, and also to choice fiction. The books placed in these sections dare not be taken from the Library room.

—It will be remembered that our friend, Mr. John C. Griffiss, started a fund for the Library, which is called The Griffiss Library Fund, the interest only of which will be used in the purchase of books. Mr. H. E. Fries has added a donation of $30. to Mr. Griffiss' kind gift, and we will be pleased to acknowledge other contributions. We trust this may in time become a large endowment for this important department of our School.

—We would call attention to the promises of a number of our friends who have signified their intention to deposit reference books and other works in our Library. The depositors may write the following on the fly leaf and the benefit will be given to the school:

“This book is deposited by ———, and is subject to his demand.”

Friends living at a distance can send the works by express, and we will acknowledge the books thus contributed in the next issue of THE ACADEMY.

—The following books have been placed in our Library since our last issue:

Kenilworth,	Scott.
St. Ronan's Well,	“
Guy Mannering,	“
Anne of Geierstein,	“
Fortunes of Nigel,	“
Count Robert of Paris,	“
Peveril of the Peak,	“
The Betrothed,	“
The Monastery,	“
The Abbot,	“
Black Dwarf,	“
Old Mortality,	“
Quentin Durward,	“
Rob Roy,	“
Heart of Midlothian,	“
Fair Maid of Perth,	“
The Antiquary,	“
Ivanhoe,	“
The Talisman,	“
Waverly,	“
Woodstock,	“
Red Gauntlet,	“
The Pirate,	“
Bride of Lammermoor,	“
Legend of Montrose.	“

- Chronicles of the Canongate, “
- Old Curiosity Shop, Dickens.
- Hard Times, “
- Barnaby Rudge, “
- Edwin Drood, “
- Child's History of England, “
- Bleak House, “
- Our Mutual Friend, “
- Dombey and Son, “
- Martin Chuzzlewit, “
- Tale of Two Cities, “
- Sketches by Boz, “
- Pickwick Papers, “
- Nicholas Nickleby, “
- Pictures from Italy, “
- American Notes, “
- Little Dorrit, “
- Christmas Books, “
- Reprinted Pieces, “
- Great Expectations, “
- Uncommercial Traveller, “
- Les Miserables, Victor Hugo.
- Jo's Boys, L. M. Alcott.
- Little Women, L. M. Alcott.
- The Earth Trembled, E. P. Roe.
- Picciola, Saintine.
- Representative Men, Emerson.
- Ben Hur, Wallace.
- In the Tennessee Mountains, Craddock.
- Three Vassar Girls in France, Champney.
- The Prophet of the Smoky Mountains, Craddock.
- Jesame and Lillies, Ruskin.
- Dictionary of Music and Musicians, Grove.
- Letters and Social Aims, Emerson.
- Undine and Sintram, Fouque.
- Old Fashioned Girl, L. M. Alcott.
- The First Napoleon, Ropes.
- Little Men, L. M. Alcott.
- The Vicar of Wakefield, Goldsmith.
- Rasselas, Johnson.
- Paul and Virginia, St. Pierre.
- Mr. Isaacs, Crawford.
- Eight Cousins, L. M. Alcott.
- Nature's Serial Story, E. P. Roe.
- Ramona, Helen Jackson.
- King of Golden River, Ruskin.
- Stories from Herodotus, Church.
- Romola, George Eliot.
- The Fair God, Wallace.
- Three Vassar Girls in Italy, Champney.

—Mrs. J. G. Rawlings, of Chattanooga, accompanied her daughter, ALICE, to Salem and spent some days with us.

—Dr. Hume, of Chapel Hill, paid us a visit during the sessions of the Convention of the Y. M. C. A., and made an address to the pupils in the Sunday afternoon service.

—Hon. H. I. and Mrs. Trout, of Roanoke, Va., visited the ACADEMY in September, and left Miss——, as a pupil. Mr. Trout is President of the Roanoke & Southern Railroad, in which Salem and Winston are at present so much interested.

Married.

POU—WALKER.—In the Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 9th, Mr. JAMES H. POU to Miss ANNE WALKER.

LONG—MURPHY.—On October 2d, in the Episcopal church of Reidsville, N. C., Mr. VERNON W. LONG, of the Western Sentinel, Winston, to Miss H. DAISY MURPHY, of Burlington, N. C. Our best wishes attend them in their united lives.

Died.

BROWN.—At Piedmont Springs, August 8th, Mrs. Major T. J. BROWN, of Winston, perhaps better known to former pupils as RETTA HALL. She was a most estimable and engaging lady, a power in the social and domestic circle, and her unexpected demise in the very prime of life has cast a gloom over the twin communities where she was known and loved by all.

HENRY W. MILLER,

STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
Price, complete with two type wheels, $100.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.

Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.

Send for Catalogue.

WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives, 9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

Miss PHEBE TURNER, Winston, N. C.

WANTED.—Position as music teacher in school or private family by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address K. M., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.—A position as teacher by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address B., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady as Phonographer.
Address

C.—care of The Academy, Salem, N. C.

BINCHAM SCHOOL.

(Established in 1793.)

is PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys, in AGE, in the high standing of its PATRONS, in AREA OF PATRONAGE, and in equipment for PHYSICAL CULTURE. LOCATION in the COUNTRY. Organization MILITARY.

The 90th Annual Year will begin Sept. 1, 1889.

Maj. R. BINGH M, Supt.
Bingham School P. O., Orange Co., N. C.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California.

Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ky. Guide, write to

R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S. - E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236, Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

*-MISS EMMA I. LEINBACH,*-
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.

Tompkinsville, Staten Island, N. Y.

CARE OF MRS. VOLLER.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician. she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

SPENCERIAN STEEL PENS

Are the Best,

IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF Durability, Evenness of Point, and Workmanship.

Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail, on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. 2.

WILSON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway, New York.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Mr. Woodell, of Raleigh, visited MATTIE last week.

—Mr. Cordill, of Como, La., brought ALLE and ERMA, his nieces, who entered the 10th Room. Mr. Cordill returned to Baton Rouge.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with
an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.
For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,

G. P. A.,

St. Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the

East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble ballast, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going or returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and welfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address

B. W. WRENN, JNO. L. MILAM,
G. P. A., Knoxville, Tenn. D. P. A.

C. A. DESAUSSURE,
A. G. P. A.,
Memphis, Tenn.

ST. LOUIS,
ARKANSAS &
TEXAS RAILWAY.

→ COTTON × BELT × ROUTE. ←

The Direct Line between the Educational
Centres of the South-East and
Arkansas and Texas.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN POINTS ON
THIS LINE AND

Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Atlanta.

PULLMAN BUFFET SLEEPERS, FREE RECLINING
CHAIR CARS, ALL THE COMFORTS AND
CONVENIENCES OF MODERN TRAVEL.

On advice being sent to any of the following,
an Agent of this Company will meet all pupils
at the various junction points, en route, and render any assistance or information necessary.

For further information, address

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield.
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical.
$1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies.

Address,
THE SCHOOLTEACHER,
WINSTON, N. C.

THE SHORT LINE FROM
CHATTANOOGA and BIRMINGHAM

TO
NEW ORLEANS,

Where direct connection is made with the SOUTHERN PACIFIC and TEXAS & PACIFIC RYS, for
Texas, Mexico and California,
THE SHORT LINE via VICKSBURG and SHREVE
PORT to TEXAS, MEXICO and CALIFORNIA,
NEW MEXICO, COLORADO and the FAR
WEST. Close connection made at Shreveport without transfer through the City.

From TEXAS to the
NORTH AND EAST,
Via SHREVEPORT.

Close connections without transfer through the City.
Leave Shreveport 7:00 A. M.

Through Sleeping Cars to ATLANTA via, BIRMING-HAM making direct connections for

SAVANNAH, AUGUSTA, CHARLESTON,
AND POINTS IN

Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and the East,
Connecting at MERIDIAN with Main Line Trains.
J. C. GAULT, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS,
Gen'l Mgr. G. P. & T. A.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere;
Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then
will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLINARD & BROOKES. —

WM. T. VOGLER,
JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., NOVEMBER, 1889.

NUMBER 100.

— FOUNDED 1802. —

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA.

This old and well-known Institution is at present instructing about 300 students, and has the following separate and well equipped departments:—

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, extending over 3 years.

COLLEGE COURSE, extending over 4 years.

POST GRADUATE COURSE (degree of A. B.), extending over 1 year.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

SCHOOL OF ART.

SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

Full information as to any department will be furnished upon application to

Rev. JOHN H CLEWELL, Principal.

ITALY.

BY MISS LEHMAN.

"It is a goodly sight to see
What heaven hath done for this delicious land!
What fruits of fragrance blush on every tree!
What goodly prospects o'er the hills expand!"

And when we add to the attractions of Nature what man has done for this delightful region, in art, in painting, in sculpture and in architecture, we are lost in admiration. The Italian cities teem with æsthetic treasures, glorious creations of human genius that border on the divine. The history of modern Europe radiates from Italy, from Rome, as its legitimate centre. Here "the steady Romans shook the world" from this their vantage ground. From the golden milestone in its centre, its powerful influence shaped the history, the literature and the art of the world. From Florence and Venice the Renaissance kindled the electric flame of genius in England, in the glories of the Elizabethan Age: their art treasures are of fabulous worth, and it was with peculiar feelings that we walked their streets, loitered amid their galleries of art, and dreamed of their past glory and greatness.

In the last number of THE ACADEMY we had returned to Geneva, after making the entire circuit of Lac Leman: from thence we set out for sunny Italy, through the Mont Cenis tunnel, by way of Turin and Genoa to Pisa. Our route lay through a lovely section, with Alps to right and left. As we came lower down into the fertile fields of Piedmont, we were charmed with their productiveness and soft beauty. We saw corn fields for the first time since leaving America, but it was evidently grown solely for fodder, for, though planted in rows, it stood as thickly as wheat, and was not more than half as tall as our corn. Vines were gracefully festooned from tree to tree (probably olive trees) in rows across long fields, so different from the rocky terraces of Switzerland and the Rhine.

We reached Pisa in the early Sabbath morning, and, after breakfast at our hotel de la Minerve, a short distance from the station, we sallied forth, utterly ignorant of the Italian tongue, to find the famous Leaning Tower. After various directions, but imperfectly understood, we crossed the river Arno on a handsome bridge, and walking through streets lined with elegant stores, bric-a-brac shops filled with lovely creations in Parian and Carrara marbles, we saw the great tower before us. The Tower, the Duomo or Cathedral and Baptistry are side by side, and form a trio of noble buildings not to be surpassed. The Cathedral, which stands in the centre, with the Bell Tower or Campanile on the right, and the Baptistry on the left, was consecrated in 1118, and is of the Tuscan-Gothic architecture, of white and of reddish marbles, with columns and arches, with a noble dome lined with Cimabue's mosaics. The elegant gilded and panelled ceiling, the groined arches, the bronze doors by John of Bologna, and 12 altars and side chapels designed by Michelangelo, all form a magnificent whole. Among massive silver candelabra swings a rusty bronze lamp, like a large lantern, which is valued more highly than aught else, for it is the very lamp whose regular oscillations gave Galileo Galilei the idea of the pendulum clock over 300 years ago.

The Baptistry is 100 feet in diameter, 190 feet high, of marble most exquisitely carved into every conceivable form. Inside is the finest pulpit in the world, praised even by Ruskin; the marble looks like lace-work. The pulpit is 6-sided, and rests on alternate lambs and lions, with other symbolic figures. The font near by is almost as lovely; the whole was the work of Nicolo Pisani in 1260. Only one pulpit, among the hundreds we saw, could at all compare therewith, and that was in the Florentine church of Santa Croce.

The Leaning Tower (which is the Bell Tower of the Cathedral) is 179 feet high, and leans 13 feet from the perpendicular. It consists of 8 stories, each surrounded by a colonnade of marble pillars beautifully carved: it has 7 bells, which were chiming for service all the time we were there. A balustrade of marble surrounds the Tower. Going down several steps you enter a door, and thence ascend to the top, where you have a fine view of the city. The medieval custom of having a separate bell tower, as well as a baptistry, was a fine conception; at least, it gave opportunity for the erection of three magnificent structures instead of one.

The Campo Santo, or Cemetery, of Pisa is also very fine; it is filled with many ship-loads of earth from Mt. Calvary, in Palestine. A cloistered hall, or piazza, 424 feet long and 145 broad, surrounds it. It has also 62 beautiful windows opening on the green court within. The walls are decorated with curious 14th century frescoes of Bible history, some of Giotto's and some of Orcagno's. There is no Sabbath in Pisa, nor any where else on the Continent; the usual avocations of life are carried on without any intermission.

We left Pisa at 5 o'clock P. M., for Rome, where we arrived at 1 o'clock, A. M. There is but one Rome in the world, and our peculiar sensations were simply indescribable. We entered the city after midnight, yet fountains were sending up great feathery masses of spray which, in the bright electric lights looked fleecy and opaline: long flights of marble stairs, palaces, churches, statues, obelisks, elegant stores and shops, ladies and gentlemen thronging the streets, all made an ensemble of artistic beauty which we can never forget. On we drove past the vast circular dome of the Pantheon, past an Egyptian obelisk on the back of an elephant of porphyry, to the Hotel de la Minerve, an old palace of the Conti family, a handsome building still, even when it is no doubt but a shadow of its former beauty. It was very admirably situated for us, next the Pantheon, and in front of the old church, Santa Maria sopra Minerve, where a temple of Minerva once stood. In this church Galileo, when 70 years old, took oath on bended knee that the Copernican theory of the motion of the earth around the sun was false; "it does move, though," he said as he arose. The cool waters falling into the large basin of the fountain in the court-yard murmured musically. The dining-hall is still a regal apartment, with its frescoes and statues. We occupied an elegant suite of rooms, a private parlor, bed-room and dressing-room, with frescoes and elegantly corniced ceilings.

The next morning we set out to find St. Peter's Cathedral and the Vatican as the first places to be visited. We walked through a few narrow streets to a street car track or tramway, and from thence we drove, for 3 pence, over the fine Ponte San Angelo to St. Peter's. This bridge, built by Adrian, has 2 great statues of St. Peter and St. Paul, besides 10 colossal angels. The circular fortification to our right, with the Italian flag floating over it, was the famous Castle of San Angelo, also built by Adrian, who destined it to be his mausoleum; the Antonines are buried here. Later it was used as a prison: Beatrice Cenci was tortured here, as well as others. We alighted at the magnificent marble colonnade which encloses the large oval of the Piazza San Pietro on 2 sides; the Cathedral joining the 2 ends and filling up the west side. This colonnade, built by Bernini in 1667, consists of 284 marble columns and 88 pilasters of the Doric order, each 42 feet high, which form 3 passage ways, the middle one for a carriage way, the outer ones for pedestrians. The top of the entablature or balustrade is ornamented with 162 statues of saints and martyrs. In the middle of the Piazza, or Square, stands an obelisk brought to Rome from Egypt under Caligula 39 A. C. On each side is a noble fountain, 46 feet high. The Cathedral entrance is from the front, while the Vatican entrance is to the right of this colonnade.

The Vatican is the largest palace in the world, and the richest in respect to its art treasures: it adjoins St. Peter's on the right. We walked up the colonnade on the right of the Piazza to a place where the gorgeously attired Papal guards were lounging about in their red and yellow costumes, designed by Michelangelo, and never since changed. A professional guide, who spoke a sort of English, stepped forward and offered his services, naming his charges, 2 francs, little enough for all he said and showed us. He obtained a permit and then escorted us through one grand Loggia of paintings after the other. Of the 20 courts and 11,000 rooms and halls of the Vatican we can only note Raphael's Stanze: here we saw "The Transfiguration," his masterpiece, and next to it the only painting worthy of that exalted vicinage, Domenichino's "Death of St. Jerome." Raphael's 4 stanze contain his noblest frescoes, Parnassus, School of Athens, Attila, Liberation of St. Peter, etc. Works of Fra Angelico, Guido, and countless others, were all about us. We ascended the Scala Regia, the finest staircase in the world, to the Sistine Chapel, named for Pope Sixtus 4th. The magnificent ceiling, was frescoed by Michelangelo, in pictures of the Creation, Fall, Deluge, Prophets and Sybils, and on the altar wall is his terrible, incomparable painting, The Last Judgment, 64 feet wide. Here, too, the costly Jubilee presents of Pope Leo 13th were displayed. We expressed a desire to our guide to see the Pope if it were possible. His answer was, "O, he is only a man like anybody else, only he has the nose very big." Seeing from our faces that he had not expressed himself in the most elegant English, he asked us what words had better be used in such and such a case. The galleries of sculpture in the Vatican are closed at 1 o'clock P. M., and ere we were aware of it they were closed and we had to leave.

We next wended our way to St. Peter's. It would be a hopeless task to describe it. After writing a volume it would still fail to give a correct conception to one who had never seen it. The lofty portico has a colossal statue of Constantine on the right, and Charlemagne on the left: entering the bronze doors we stood in the largest, grandest church in the world. Here are 30 altars, 148 columns of ancient Rome, an inlaid marble pavement, the disk of red and black porphyry on which the Emperors stood to be crowned, the magnificently gilded, vaulted domes, upheld by Corinthian pillars, while the keystone of every arch is emblazoned with the papal tiara and the great keys of St. Peter. We looked up and saw around the central dome the frieze bearing this inscription: "Tu es Petrus, et super hanc Petram edificabo ecclesiam meam," (Thou art Peter, and on this rock I will build my Church). The first Cathedral was built by Constantine in 326, on the site of Nero's circus, where Peter and Paul are supposed to have been put to death. Charlemagne and many popes were crowned here. Raphael, Michelangelo, Bernini, &c., ornamented this church. It cost $60,000,000, and took 126 years, the time of 28 popes, to build it.

As we walked up the nave we crossed ourselves with holy water from an elegant font, then passed on by colossal statues of saints and apostles to the famous bronze statue of St. Peter of which the great toe has been worn away by the kisses of the faithful; we noted the canopy of the high altar, 95 feet high over the tomb of St. Peter, which is approached by a double flight of steps of Greek marble; at the foot of the steps the marble figure of Pope Pius 6th kneels in his pontifical robes, facing the door of the tomb. An elegant balustrade surrounds the whole thing, and on the top 112 lamps are ever kept burning day and night. There are 30 gorgeous side chapels, tombs of 137 popes, of Marie Sobieski, of several Stuart princes, and of Queen Christina, the eccentric daughter of Gustavus Adolphus, who resigned crown, country and the Protestant faith, and died in Rome. At length, we were dazed with the splendor and magnificence all about us, and hurried our steps in another direction.

Hiring a cab, we set out for a drive through the most interesting part of old Rome. We first stopped at the Piazza de Campidoglio, the famed locality of the old Capitol: nothing now remains of those days but the place and the memories which come thronging up thick and fast. The hill consists of three parts, that on which the 9th century church of Ara Coeli is built, that on which the Piazza of the Capitol extends, and, lastly, that on which stands the Caffarelli palace. Here Romulus first opened an asylum for refugees; a little farther on the Rape of the Sabines took place; here the Tarpeian rock stood; here Brutus "rendered public reasons for Caesar's death." Here, later, Petrarca and other poets were laurel-crowned. Here, too, Gibbon conceived his grand idea of the "Decline and Fall of Rome," as he listened to the chanting of the monks in the church of Ara Coeli. No other spots on earth, save those hallowed by the footsteps of the Son of God, are so sacred. One approach to the summit of the hill of the Piazza del Campidoglio is on the left by the church of Santa Maria Ara Coeli, by a fine flight of 124 steps. On these steps Tiberius Gracchus was killed. Here, 1500 years later, Rienzi fell covered with a hundred wounds. To the left of a cool, covered way, is a cage where wolves were kept as the favorites of the city, but the last wolves died a few years ago, and were never replaced. The second approach to the piazza is at the front, and consists of another magnificent flight of asphalt steps, called La cordonnata. At the bottom are two lions of Egyptian porphyry; at the top are 2 large groups, statues of the horse-taming Dioscuri, Castor and Pollux, each standing by a colossal rearing horse. The anterior part between the steps is closed by a balustrade on which rise the two trophies of Marius and the statues of Constantine and his son, Constans. This noble piazza, planned by Michelangelo, is surrounded on 3 sides by palaces; on the left by the Capitoline Museum, where are seen, among other treasures, the Faun of Praxiteles, the Dying Gladiator, the Venus. In the middle of the piazza rises the noble equestrian statue of the Emperor Marcus Aurelius, belonging to the remote period of Rome. Of this horse Michelangelo said: "He is alive! he lives and breathes!"

Back of this grand statue rises the facade of the Senatorial Palace, with a magnificent flight of stairs and balustrade, also by Michelangelo. A noble fountain extends across the front, representing on one side the colossal river god, Tiber, with attendant nymphs, and on the other the Nile God, similarly attended: above them stands the Genius of Rome triumphant. High over the Capitol, at the head of the before named steps, is the church of Ara Coeli, so called from a legend in which it was said that as Augustus was about to be apotheosized, the Virgin Mary and child Jesus appeared to him, upon which he fell on his knees, and there erected the Heavenly Altar to his celestial visitor. The outside of the church is old and plain, but within it is very ornate. Here is the tomb of St. Helena; here, too, in the sacristy is kept the sacred Bambino (child), an olive wood image of the child Jesus, about 2 feet high, the sight of which is said to cure the worst diseases. Its magnificent silk dress was liberally encrusted with diamonds, large emeralds, rubies, etc. This holy image was kept in a niche on the altar, enclosed in two caskets, one within the other for greater security: as the priest unlocked each one he bowed, crossed himself, intoning prayers, which were responded to by an old woman, a keeper of the door, who fell on her knees also. An Italian lady, who was present, kissed the image but we did not.

Passing to the front of this piazza we saw an immense century plant in bloom. The tall spike, some 10 or 15 feet high, had perhaps 100 pendent, yellowish bells on it, resembling the flowers of its near relative, the Yucca plant of Mexico, often seen in our gardens. In the rear of the piazza the road turns to the left to the Mamertine Prison, as well as to the church of San Pietro in Vinculo (St. Peter in chains). Here are seen St. Peter's chains, but what is of more interest, Angelo's statue of Moses on the tomb of Julius 2d.

Descending from the Capitol, on the south-east side, we reached the vast Forum Romanorum. We first came to the well preserved arch of Septimius Severus, erected in 203 A. D. in honor of his victories over the Parthians. The arch itself is of Pentelican marble, though it is very brown and weather-beaten now. It has 3 arches: the central one, under which the conqueror passed, is the largest: there are 2 side arches, while the front is decorated with 4 large fluted columns, and over the arches are bas-reliefs of the great victories of Severus. Next are the 3 columns which remain of the Temple of Vespasian; 8 granite columns of the Temple of Saturn; 3 pillars of the Temple of Castor and Pollux; 3 arches of the Basilica of Constantine; 6 columns of the Temple of Faustina. Passing on from one mighty ruin to the others, we reach the Arch of Titus (Arc di Tito), on which is carved the 7-branched golden candlestick of the Jews, captured by Titus. This memorable arch is at the head of the Via Sacra which led from the Southern gate of Rome to the Capitol, and was the route by which triumphal processions passed to the Temple of Jupiter.

Beyond the Arch of Titus is the Coliseum, the great Flavian amphitheatre, which once seated 100,000 spectators. As we stood and gazed upon it, we almost imagined we could hear the hoarse cry: "The Christians to the lions!" or could see the manly form of the gladiator, who, "while he consented to death, yet watched the thumbs of the audience furtively for permission to live."

"While stands the Coliseum Rome shall stand!
When falls the Coliseum Rome shall fall!
And when Rome falls,—the world!"

That day is still somewhat distant if we consider the massive thickness of its walls and arches. The world need not, as yet, be specially uneasy.

On the north side of the arch of Titus is the arch of Constantine, the best preserved of all the Roman arches. It was erected in 311, after Constantine's victory over Maxentius. The arch has also 3 apertures,—the central arcade and 2 side arches; there are numerous fluted columns with statues of Dacian prisoners and various bas-reliefs on the sides of the arches.

These wonders of Rome were all within easy walking distance of our hotel, as we ascertained on that first day; so we visited them again, and obtained a better and clearer knowledge of them than one inspection could give. The glorious Forum of Trajan next demanded attention. Here arises a forest of broken columns and shafts, rows of granite bases of statues on which the Goth, the Vandal, war, flood and fire wreaked their stern will long ago until only one is left. The stately column of Trajan, erected 111 A. C., is covered by a spiral band of bas-reliefs commemorative of the Dacian wars. There are 2500 figures of men, besides horses, arms, trophies, etc. The inside can be entered by means of stairs, 184 steps. The statue of St. Peter is now on top in place of that of Trajan.

The church of San Giovanni in Laterano (St. John of Lateran) was visited next. This church takes precedence even of St. Peter in some things. Most of the Popes are crowned here. In the piazza in front of this distinguished shrine is the largest and oldest of the numerous obelisks of Rome. It is old even here and it is 153 feet high, while our Central Park column is only 79.

Near the Lateran, in a small church, is the Scala Santa, or sacred staircase, which is never ascended except on the knees. It consists of a flight of 28 marble steps, brought to Rome by the ubiquitous Helena from the house of Pilate in Jerusalem,—and hence trodden by our Saviour's feet. These steps are covered with wood to prevent them from being worn by the knees and lips of devotees. There are 5 staircases, running up side by side in a row, this sacred way being the central one. People going up on their knees then walk down one of the adjoining flights. Two persons were going up, slowly and laboriously, saying a certain number of prayers on each step, and then devoutly pressing their lips to it ere they moved to the next. "They think they shall be heard for their much speaking" Alas! for such profane mummery in a Christian church! It was this very staircase that Luther was mounting on his knees when the words, "the just shall live by his faith," rang in his ears like a warning bell; he arose and walked down, "a free man in Christ Jesus."

We extended our drive to the city walls in order to visit the graves of Shelly and Keats, who lie at the foot of the Pyramid of Caius Cestus "on a slope of green access," but, though we strolled through the Protestant Campo Santo, similar to that of Pisa, we could not make our Italian driver understand what we wanted,—and so we returned to our hotel.

The next day we set out on foot, visiting various churches, the Jesuit church, "del Gesu," one of the richest and most gorgeous among the 300 churches of Rome. Among its treasured relics is the arm of the great apostle, Francis Xavier; here, too, is the magnificent sarcophagus of Ignaz Loyola, the founder of the Society of Jesus. Surely, if he and Xavier had imagined what a crop of dragon's teeth they were sowing they would have stopped short ere they took their vows on the moonlit height of Montmartre. The coffin of St. Ignaz is of bronze, and is liberally encrusted with precious stones. The altar is magnificently rich, the columns of lapis lazuli and gilded bronze. The world is represented by a globe of lapis-lazuli, the largest single piece ever found. In a niche beside the altar is St. Ignaz, surrounded by angels, a group of figures of solid silver. The ceiling of the church is elegantly adorned with frescoes, mosaics and gilding.

The Pantheon, next door to our hotel, we visited 3 times: it approaches nearest to perfect preservation of the ancient buildings of Rome. It was erected 27 B. C. by Agrippa, and used as a museum of the gods of conquered nations. In 608 it was consecrated as a Christian church. Used at one time as a fortress, it was despoiled of the magnificent brass ceiling of the portico; 450,000 pounds of brass were taken to ornament St. Peter's and to cast cannon for San Angelo. The Pantheon is 140 feet in diameter, lighted only by a circular opening in the dome, 30 feet in diameter. Here we found, as in other churches, side chapels, tombs of the illustrious dead, especially painters. Raphael the Divine is buried here, as well as his betrothed; they died within 3 months of each other. The most prominent tomb is that of Vittorio Emanuele, the unifier of Italy and the idol of the Italian people. Wreaths of immortelles, of laurel, of oak, of bronze, of silver, of fresh flowers are heaped all about the great bronze sarcophagus, and soldiers stand guard day and night as a regular labor of love.

The world is, after all very small; in the Pantheon we met Mr. Woodward and Dr. Anderson, our late travelling companions to Paris. At our hotel we saw Mrs. Von Buhlow and our genial friend, Mrs. Pendleton, and others. It is delightful to see familiar faces where all else is strange and foreign. A visit to the lovely fountain of Trevi was next undertaken. A man on the street kindly went with us and set us in the right way: we found so many kindly people who would put themselves to considerable inconvenience to direct us even when we could not understand their language. The Italians were, to us, much more courteous and obliging than the French. The grand old Fountain of Trevi was made in 1762; whoever drinks of its waters is sure to return to Rome (at least they will desire to do so). "Auf Wiedersehen" is repeated by its murmuring waters as they purl from the mouths of sea-horses, tritons and dolphins. The fountain is built against the front of the Palazzo Poli; in the centre is a colossal marble statue of Neptune, standing in a car, formed of a large sea-shell, drawn by sea-horses and driven by tritons. The grand niche is formed by Ionic columns and various statues, Abundance on the right and Health on the left. Various bas-reliefs are also seen. Over the columns the 4 seasons are represented. The water is deliciously cool as it tumbles into the vast basin below.

The Quirinal Palace, the residence of King Umberto, is a handsome building outwardly; but, as the King was living there at the time, we were not admitted to the inside: however, we had seen the Palace of Versailles in all its splendor, the Great Trianon, Windsor Palace, &c., and there is considerable sameness in their elegant appointments. The Piazza del Quirinal, or Monte Cavallo, is beautiful. The large statues of Castor and Pollux, with their fiery steeds, ornament the centre, where a colossal fountain sends up its waters. An obelisk rises in the central basin of the fountain. The Piazza Navona is ornamented by a series of 3 fountains; in the central one, also surmounted by an obelisk, a sort of rock or tufa opens on 4 sides, on which are 4 colossal statues representing the Danube, the Ganges, the Nile and the Rio de la Plata. The other 2 have Neptune with nymphs and tritons.

The Piazza Colonna is the centre of modern Rome, and is about half way up the Corso, the great thoroughfare, the Broadway of Rome. Palaces surround the piazza; in the centre stands the fine column of Marcus Aurelius, ornamented with bas-reliefs that record the wars of this glorious emperor with the Marcomanni, the bas-reliefs wind spirally around the column, like that of Trajan; on the top is a bronze gilt statue of St. Paul. We then drove out to the Pincian Hill, the noted resort of the Romans, which overlooks the whole city. We passed through the fine Piazza del Popolo, in the centre of which is another obelisk from Heliopolis. The piazza is formed by 2 semi-circles, with colossal marble groups, and is closed in by elegant buildings. Here are exquisite fountains, with symbolic marble groups, Neptune with his trident, the Tiber, etc. A fine road leads up to the top of Monte Pincio, and as we ascend the magnificent panoramic view of Rome becomes broader and more extended. We see the imposing cupola of St. Peter's and the Vatican, the circular fortress of San Angelo, the dome of the Pantheon, the column of Trajan, the Coliseum, elegant villas dotted here and there, the yellow Tiber flowing between, while the white line of the Appian way stretches out in the distant south-east. As we ascend to the top of the hill we pass 2 rostral columns from the Temple of Vesta, and in the niches are statues of Hygeia, of the Genius of the Fine Arts, and of Peace. On the balustrade that bounds the loftiest terrace are busts of famous Italians, Roman emperors, apostles and saints, noted men from Dante, Savonarola, Arnold of Brescia, down to Garibaldi and Cavour, with a large equestrian statue of Victor Emanuel. An elegant cafe and casino crown the top, in the midst of ornamental grounds, with palms, tropical shrubs, aloes, cacti, ribbon beds, etc. The famed gardens of Lucullus were once here, and it was a great resort of the earlier Roman emperors.

Rome contains so many Romes,—Rome of the ancient Republic, Rome of the Cæsars, early Christian Rome, Rome of the Popes, and the Rome of to-day, King Umberto's capital. One of these Romes is occupation enough for a thoughtful tourist; how about the others! where Romulus stood, where Cæsar fell, where Cicero spoke, where Titus triumphed, where Augustus reigned, where Paul preached? My readers will, therefore, pardon me for a somewhat sketchy outline. It was with great reluctance that we prepared to leave the Eternal City, even though we had Florence the Beautiful in immediate prospect. "There is but one Rome in the whole world."

In our next we will continue Italy, with special reference to Florence, Venice and Milan.

Voice Production.

BY MISS KATHARINE W. EVANS.

THERE are few exclamations more commonly heard than the despairing one, "How I wish I could sing!"

Now, this is, in most cases, an unnecessary regret, and would become as rare as it is now common if the proper methods for developing and controlling the voice were more thoroughly understood.

With few exceptions every human being has a voice which is used, with more or less facility, as a means of communicating the different states of the mind.

Any voice which can express varied emotions in language can, without great difficulty, be taught to express them in song. All that is necessary is a competent teacher, a willing and enthusiastic pupil, and time.

Song, or the singing voice, differs from speech only that it is a higher development of the same power; singing being simply musical speaking. In these days when to sing is the rule and to sing well the exception, every one should know something of the mechanism of this—the most beautiful of all instruments—the voice.

Before the invention of the laryngoscope, an instrument for examining the throat, by Manuel Garcia, the father of Mme. Viardot-Garcia, whose exercises we use, a perfect understanding of the larynx, vocal cords and voice mechanism was impossible, but now it is not only used by physicians in treating diseases of the throat, but it is also used by the leading teachers in training the voice with the best results.

Correct breathing is the foundation of all good singing, and the excessive use of breath is the great and almost universal cause of bad singing.

Until thoroughly conversant with the art of breathing, and able not only to take but also to retain the air so that no portion escapes except as used in tone formation, it will be impossible for a singer to produce that evenness, purity and roundness of tone which distinguishes the cultured singer. Having mentioned two or three of the requirements necessary for singing, I will endeavor to answer a question which has very often been asked me, that is: at what age should one commence having vocal instruction?

The most celebrated singers of this century have sung in public at a very early age: Mme. Malibran (Maria Garcia) at thirteen; Mme. Viardot-Garcia at fifteen; Sontag at twelve; Artot and Patti even younger. Of course, these artists had received the most careful and thorough training from the best teachers,—generally relatives who were musicians,—and when making their debuts were almost finished artists. When taking from a careful and competent teacher I do not think nine or ten years of age too young, for the voice is much easier put under control then, and great power and flexibility of tone will be found to result from such early training. Sir Morell Mackenzie, in the Contemporary Review, says: "With regard to the question when should the training of the voice be begun, I am strongly of the opinion that training can hardly begin too early. Of course, the kind and amount of practice that are necessary in an adult would be monstrous in a young child, but there is no reason why even at the age of six or seven the right method of voice production should not be taught." The sooner the right way of using the voice is taught the more easy will it be to guard against the contraction of bad habits, which can only be corrected at a later period with infinite trouble.

To conclude: Singing is an art which can be taught as the other arts can, if only a thorough, practical method for producing tones be taught, and proper means be adopted to correct the varied defects of different voices. This, with time, will overcome all obstacles.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Mrs. Heard, of Elberton, Ga., returned to her home last month.

—Mr. J. M. Gambill made a short visit to WILLIE and BLOOMFIELD—middle of October.

—Miss HATTIE SWIFT is again at home, having enjoyed a visit to friends in the New England States

—Col. Coleman, of Union Co., S. C., accompanied his daughter MINNIE to Salem, and spent half a day with us.

—Mr. McAden, of Charlotte, paid us a visit some days since, and spent some time in examining the register from 1825 to 1835.

—We see from the papers that one of our pupils of last term, living a few miles from Salem, Miss KATE OGBURN, has gone and got married.

—LUCILE REID has returned to her home in Wentworth, being troubled with an affliction of the eyes. We hope to see her again by Christmas.

—Mrs. Josephine Slaughter, of Green Hill, Texas, a dear friend of past years, mentions among other pleasing items that she heard of one of our old girls recently, Miss MARY WALKER, 1858, now Mrs. Dr. Staples, of Sherman, Texas.

—Marriages and deaths supplement each other with startling rapidity in this kaleidoscopic world of changes. A letter from a friend informs us of the death of Mrs. David Stokes, nee FANNIE POWELL, of Battleboro, N. C. She gave us no particulars, however, only the bare announcement. Mrs. Stokes was a member of our Alumnæ Association.

—We are pleased to note the presence of Mrs. Calander Smith (LOU GRUNERT), a former pupil and teacher, the daughter of a lamented Ex-Principal of the ACADEMY, Rev. M. E. GRUNERT, in our town. She, with her husband and two fine boys, will spend the winter in our midst. The last few years they have spent in the West Indies.

—We were very pleased to read a story in the Anderson, (S. C.,) Intelligencer, from the facile pen of a dear friend, Miss LUTA BEWLEY, of Anderson, S. C. The title of the story is "Kiesee and Waseenee," an Indian legend, a charming little prose poem. It reflects credit on the author, who, we prophesy, will make her mark upon the literature of our Southland. We have published several of her poems in THE ACADEMY in the past.

—A friend and former schoolmate, Mrs. Kirke, nee LOULA GIBBS, inquires of KYLE PACE, ZETA ROGERS and MATTIE CALDWELL. KYLE is living in Waco, Texas; her younger sister, FANNIE LOU PACE, is here at school now. ZETA ROGERS is living in Macon, Ga. MATTIE CALDWELL, the same faithful, steady power in her circle, is living in Concord, N. C. When we last had a letter from her, she was visiting her schoolmate, Mrs. Schell, nee MANTIE MACOMSON.

—The following items have been sent us by a friend:

MARY ANN SPEED, Mecklenburg, Va. Mr. Epperson, Guardian. Entered 1811.

LUCY PETWAY, Halifax Co., N. C. Mark H. Petway, father. Entered 1843.

PATTIE JONES, Warren Co., N. C. Entered, 1851, by her father, Jos. S. Jones, who is a son of MARY ANN SPEED, and the husband of LUCY PETWAY.

PATTIE JONES married Mr. Jonas Williams. She died in July, leaving ten children.

—As there seemed to be some doubt about the proprietorship of the chairs in the institution, Mat has branded the Library chairs with a large "L." The dining-room chairs have "D. R." and the class-room "C. R."

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., NOVEMBER, 1889.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

WE this month give to our readers our enlarged ACADEMY. Consisting of twelve pages it will no longer properly deserve the name "our little paper." This enlarged form will enable us more fully to present to our readers the growing interests of the School; the able and welcome contributions from our friends can be given in larger numbers and more at length, and we hope to place before our readers at least two pages of news fresh from the busy life of the School of the present day. Everything which we furnish our readers will be original, and while, in general, it will be devoted to the interests of our institution, the contributions are often of a general nature, and hence of interest to readers who have never been within the Institution. We would once more thank our many friends for their kind support in the past, and we promise to endeavor to always make THE ACADEMY a welcome visitor.

THE enlarged form of THE ACADEMY has entailed considerable additional expense upon the publication of the paper. The subscription price remains the same; although the number of pages furnished is now 120 per year, the price is only 50 cents. We merely mention this in order to add the hope that our friends may be willing to work for us in the matter of new subscribers;—or, if this happens to catch the eye of a former subscriber, will you not help us by again joining the ranks of the present subscribers? The difficulty is, not that our friends are unwilling to furnish the small amount of the subscription, but because the matter is delayed and then forgotten. At our office we will use every effort to bring THE ACADEMY before our friends and trust that the members of the Alumnae Society, the other pupils of former years, and the friends in Salem and Winston will give us much practical help in the work.

TO OUR FRIENDS IN THE TWIN-CITY.

WE send a number of copies of THE ACADEMY to friends in our two towns, Salem and Winston, who are not subscribers, but who, doubtless, would appreciate this visitor to their homes. In setting forth the interests of our growing institution, THE ACADEMY really advocates the interests of our towns. Not only is the school an important financial portion of the town, but what is of far greater weight, it enables our citizens to secure for their children opportunities for instruction in a plain, solid education, as well as in Music, Art, Languages, Commercial branches, etc., such as could only be obtained at a very great cost and the temporary separation from friends and home, if the school did not exist in this community. Hence we feel that not only does THE ACADEMY strongly appeal to our friends in the towns for support because of its value as a school newspaper, but also because of the fact that it advocates the interests of this important town enterprise, SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. Therefore we will greatly appreciate the receipt of the names and subscriptions of more friends in town, and trust that this appeal may stir up many old pupils, present pupils, business men and others to add their names to our list. At the same time we return thanks to our large number of subscribers whose names and support have already aided us in the past.

The Academy of Long Ago.

Written by MRS. ELIZA KREMER, for the Alumnae Meeting, June 3d, 1889.

BY request I will write down a few reminiscences of the "long ago" of the time-honored ACADEMY. The task is not all pleasant to me, but it may be of some interest to those who are fond of stories of the "olden time."

Most of those I knew and loved, yea, nearly all the friends of my youth have gone to their rest, but their loved faces are yet present to me, and memory bears the sound of their youthful voices.

I will go back to the year 1826. Of the teachers only two are left, one an octogenarian living in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, the other still here at Salem, taking rapid strides to catch up with the years of her aged friend. Of the scholars I am certain of but one still living, Mrs. Judge Carter (nee ELIZA SMITH), now residing in Abingdon, Virginia.

The ACADEMY was then in its infancy, but at the same time mothered over 100 daughters, some boarding out in town in private families. Three rooms on the first and three on the second floor were occupied as dwelling and classrooms. The third floor was the general dormitory, the dining-rooms were in the basement.

In the year 1824 an addition was added to the main building; the lower story to be used for an embroidery room, the second the Chapel, and the third the dormitory. On the 24th of September the Chapel was solemnly dedicated as a place of divine worship, and for a number of years this day was annually celebrated as a festive day, having a service of prayer and praise in the morning and lovefeast in the afternoon. At night the service was in the church, the singing-class taking the place of the regular church choir.

The services of these festive days were made a blessing to many a young heart and were the birth of a christian life to not a few. Numerous and important changes have taken place in every department connected with the ACADEMY since. The day-keepers in those far-off days had quite responsible duties to attend to, and became quite expert in handling the broom and performing little domestic duties. The study evenings were not brightened by brilliant gaslight—we had not progressed farther than the tallow-dips;—it was the duty of the day-keepers to have the candles placed ready on the tables by the time the evening shadows fell, and all was done cheerfully and a pride taken in having the name of being the neatest and most efficient day-keeper.

The beautiful play-grounds of the present day with all their accessories, were yet in the far distant future. A large garden some little distance from the ACADEMY was, during the summer session, a place for recreation after school-hours, each room division having an appointed plot where they could plant and cultivate flowers and many, with an innate love for such work, would be busy, with trowel in hand, striving to have her plot the most beautiful. The second room girls mostly gained the prize; their teacher, Miss STEINER, better known in later days as Mrs. DENKE, was the botany teacher, and her love and enthusiasm for the science inspired her scholars.

There was a large pavillion in the upper part of the garden, encircled by climbing roses, the lovely little Multiflora. This little climber has also passed away and is succeeded by sisters of loftier names and more brilliant colors; here, such as did not take interest in gardening, would sit, in clusters, with books or embroidery in hand. The hill-side was laid off in terraces and winding walks.

At that date the "iron-horse" had not been put in harness, and scholars were brought in private conveyances. Some even came from Tennessee on horseback. Saratoga trunks were then not in use, neither were they needed, a lady's wardrobe was very simple in those days. A bundle of clothing hung to the pommel of the saddle, the remainder carried in saddle bags by the gentleman who brought the scholar.

The annual public examinations took place about the last of May or first of June, lasted two days, and were kept in the church. The week previous was taken up with examinations by the Principal, each class and study examined in the presence of the whole school. Parents and friends would come in their private carriages, and would stop three or four days to be with their dear ones, for the shortness of the vacations did not permit the scholars to visit their homes.

Those were vacations of two weeks; they did not become wearisome; the call to buckle on the harness came on very quickly, but was then as readily adjusted as at the present day after a long rest.

Christmas was a season of great enjoyment to the inmates of the ACADEMY. Where we now have the Sunday School entertainments we had our Christmas dialogues, prepared by the Principal, the discourse relating to the birth and life of the Saviour, interspersed with anthems suitable to the occasion. The Chapel was always beautifully decorated with transparent inscriptions and beautiful oil paintings representing the birth of Christ; these were framed by our different evergreens. I can yet hear the voice of a dear scholar singing the sweet anthem, and another loved one speaking of the golden streets of Jerusalem, who, ere another Christmas came, had entered the Pearly Gates.

"Thou child Divine, Emanuel," &c.,

There may we all, the past and the present, join in one united song of praise and thanksgiving.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—SUSIE BOOTH was summoned home by the sickness of her father.

—The dining-room has received a large ornamental furnace. Three-year old John asked: "Is it a locomotive?"

—Our Art pupils all deny having the honor of the raging steed recently painted in the studio attached to them.

—We were glad to welcome ADDIE LACIAR back to the ACADEMY. She will devote special attention to vocal music.

—The lumber for the covered walk between Annex Hall and Main Hall has been received, and the work will soon be commenced.

—Fresh fish and oysters are now received each week, and though they betoken the decline of the ice cream interest, are none the less welcome.

—On Saturday, Oct. 14, ANNIE STUART received the sad intelligence of the death of her father in Texas. The sympathy of every one went out to her, but sweet as sympathy is it cannot relieve a blow like this. Mr. Stuart was Probate Judge of Falls county.

—WILLIE and BLOOMFIELD GAMBRILL arrived on the 5th of October, the former to take a special course, the latter to pursue the regular college course.

—An unusual interest exists in the Language Department. A large number of new and excellent Latin, French and German books have been introduced.

—Having passed the number 160 boarders it will be necessary to open another room. Five years ago six rooms readily accommodated all those in attendance.

—When the members of the Students' Tour returned, Saturday, Nov. 9, about midnight, a large number of their companions were awaiting their arrival. The meeting was certainly a lively one.

—An unusual number of deaths have occurred among the friends of our pupils this year. Both MINNIE TRIMMIE and CLAUDE and LILLIAN DICKS were called home to attend the funeral of a grandmother.

—Pearson's sermons in Rock Hill, which were of great power, have all been reported for the Herald by Misses CAMMIE BLACK and NANNIE WOOD, accomplished young stenographers, and a very full and comprehensive synopsis of each will appear in our columns, if we should not publish them without abbreviation. The first of the series, which is only a synopsis, may be found on our first page. It was reported by Miss CAMMIE BLACK.—Rock Hill Herald.

—The following is a list of the rooms as furnished by one of our pupils:

North Senior.
South Senior.
Third Room.
Fourth " Fifth " Sixth " Seventh " Eighth " Ninth " Tenth " Eleventh " Post "

Our informant thinks that the last name should be at the head, but as she belongs to said room modestly placed it where it is.

—Professor BLAIR has commenced his lectures on Normal School work, and in addition to the Post Graduates, his lectures are attended by a number of teachers and pupils from the various schools within our institution. Great interest is being manifested, but it is not to be wondered at, since everything the Professor undertakes he makes a success of. In his opening lecture he alluded to the great work done by the Moravian Bishop Comenius, in his day, for advanced education; he also made mention of the fact that Bishop Comenius had the Presidency of Harvard College tendered him. We rejoice to welcome Professor BLAIR into our Faculty, and believe he will add much to the success of our Post Graduate course.

—The work on the Gymnasium is progressing as rapidly as is possible with so difficult a task. A wall three feet in height has been placed under the entire foundation of the chapel building; the brick columns are being replaced by neat iron pillars, and in order to increase the height of the room the floor has been dropped 2½ feet. The proximity of the Gymnasium to the dining-room will enable the pupils to make this the place for promenading after meals, and will thus withdraw and render more quiet the halls in the main buildings. The peculiar position will permit of an endless amount of noise and romping without annoyance to any one. The large size of the Gymnasium admits of the possibility of roller skating, tricycle riding, etc., and for tableaux, charades, etc., it will be the place. Within a few weeks this much needed place will be added to our school outfit, and will be welcomed by all.

—The lecture delivered by Dr. RONDTHALER on Tuesday evening, November 14, for the benefit of East Salem Sunday School, was a very enjoyable one for the large audience gathered in the Salem church. The lecture treated of oriental life and customs, and was illustrated by a number of young persons attired in oriental costumes, which were brought by Dr. RONDTHALER from Palestine. The first illustration placed before the audience was the oriental woman in the ordinary walk of life, with the robe and veil, grinding at the mill. The second was the farmer and shepherd with sickle and staff; the third, the robber of the desert; the fourth, the Pharisee, and the last the woman of Bethlehem. About 70 pupils from the ACADEMY attended.

—Since our last issue the following pupils have arrived:

HELEN RUFF, South Carolina.
MINNIE SHANDS, " "
AGNES COLEMAN, " "
IDA WALLACE, " "

—We will appreciate the receipt of school news items from teachers or pupils at any time.

—A number of items relative to our Library, now in so flourishing a condition, have been crowded out. They will appear next month.

—The following is the Lehigh University (South Bethlehem, Pa.) "yell," by means of which the students of that institution paid their respects to the members of our Students' Tour as we passed their chapter house :

Hoo! Rah! Ray!
Hoo! Rah! Ray!
Ray! Ray! Ray!

The students of Johns Hopkins University (Baltimore) also greeted our party with their official "yell," but we failed to get a copy of the same.

THE SENIORS' PICNIC.—The sixteen Seniors who did not join the party on their northern trip, together with some of the Post Graduates, had a delightful picnic on Wednesday, Nov. 6th, at historic Old Town, where the first Moravian settlement in North Carolina was made in 1753. Mr. FOGLE was ready, in front of the ACADEMY, with five carriages, when morning prayer was over, and we were soon on our way in the crisp morning air. The day was bright and beautiful, the sky being of the deep, intense blue which is seldom seen outside of October.

Dr. RONDTHALER and Howard, Rev. C. Smythe and wife (LOUIE GRUNERT), Mr. CHARLES PFOHL, Mrs. CARMICHAEL and Miss LEHMAN accompanied the girls. On arriving at the quaint Old Town church, with its soft, green, grassy surroundings, we first explored its every nook and corner, and then took a walk to the neighboring graveyard, situated on a lovely hill. In the centre of the enclosed ground stood a granite shaft to the memory of Mattheus Stach, the first missionary to Greenland: it overtops the square, flat slabs which according to early Moravian custom present a pleasing uniformity.

Returning from our stroll, we found that Mrs. CARMICHAEL and Mr. PFOHL had been arranging a sumptuous dinner for us, which was enjoyed as only school-girls do enjoy such a spread. Miss CHITTY and Miss LINEBACK had also driven up there in search of ferns, and altogether we had a most enjoyable day, returning in the evening twilight in time for supper.

OUR HOLIDAY.—Our annual holiday comes as near to Founder's Day, October 31st, as the weather will permit. The anticipated holiday had, of course, been the subject of alternate hopes and fears during the first week of Mr. CLEWELL's Northern trip. The sun and moon were studied anxiously (perhaps invoked!), but the weather proved implacable: it would rain. It was suggested that we telegraph Mr. CLEWELL to try and influence Old Probabilities in Washington to express us several successive days of sunshine, C. O. D., but somehow it was neglected. The second week was kinder,—so, on Tuesday morning, November 5th, Dr. RONDTHALER announced the holiday in chapel service, though it was not dry enough to spend the whole day in the woods.

At 10 o'clock Dr. RONDTHALER collected the whole school (numbering over 250) in the yard, where they played all sorts of games till towards noon. Then we went to our lovely play-grounds, where Mrs. CARMICHAEL spread a bountiful picnic dinner in the large summer-house: this was finished off with Miss Lydia Fogle's excellent coffee, and the usual Moravian sugar-cake. Dr. RONDTHALER then proposed an afternoon ramble, with as many as were so inclined: 147 responded to the call, and, each one provided with a lunch, they strolled off with the Doctor into the woods east of Salem, after nuts, leaves, or, perhaps, a few late persimmons.

The day was an ideally beautiful Autumn one, when Summer seems to have stolen back on tiptoe to see how we were getting along without her, sending her farewell sighs through the brightly-carpeted, leafy woods. When the long procession returned to the ACADEMY in the evening, we all felt that the day had been well spent.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.

—The Choral Class is making great progress with Mozart's Requiem Mass, under Professor MARKGRAFF's efficient direction.

—The Vocal Class is unusually large this year, there being at present seventy-four pupils in that department. Many Conservatories of Music do not have so many.

—It is to be regretted that the pupils in Music will not be able to hear the fine Concert to be given in Winston by the Boston Symphony Club, December 2d. Hearing good music is in itself an education.

—The first Musical of the year was given October 24th, by pupils of Miss EVANS and Professor MARKGRAFF. Through the courtesy of the Euterpean Society their hall was used and filled to overflowing by an appreciative audience. The following was the programme :

1. Piano Duet. Spanische Tanze.....Mozzkowski.
Misses OLLINGER and ADAMS.
2. Vocal Duet. The Alpine Rose.....Sieber.
Miss RONDTHALER.
3. Piano Solo. Transcription of Annie Laurie.....Ryder.
Miss COVINGTON.
4. Violin Solo. Traumerie.....Schumann.
Miss GRACE LOCKE.
5. Vocal Solo. Florian's Song.....Godard.
Miss DELPHINE HALL.
6. Piano Solo. Stelluzzi.....Kontski.
Miss FRANCISKA.
7. Vocal Solo. Selnsucht.....Rubinstein.
Miss HAZLEHURST.
8. Piano Solo. Selected.....
Miss OLLINGER.
9. Vocal Solo. He was a Prince.....Lynes.
Miss LILLIE ROGERS.
10. Violin Solo. Confidence.....Mendelssohn.
Miss LOCKE.
11. Vocal Solo. Forget Me Not.....F. v. Suppe.
Miss MARY PENN.

The Students' Tour to Northern Cities.

DURING the past years it has been customary for our Seniors to plan a trip to the mountains, or to some point of interest within the State, in order to use the occasion as a farewell class journey. This year a number of circumstances combined to make the class trip a longer one than usual, and finally caused it to develop into the Students' Tour, covering the field of instruction as well as pleasure. Students' tours are common in European countries, but have as yet not become general in the United States; in fact, they are unusual. Hence, when the programme of an educational trip, covering two weeks and extending over 1500 or 2000 miles, was suggested, the undertaking seemed very great. Our patrons seemed much pleased with the proposition when it was placed before them, and early in November the following names had been entered for the journey:

ANNIE BORDEAUX,	BLOOMFIELD GAMBRILL,
REBA CAMPBELL,	MARTHA PIERCE,
MINNIE FAGG,	EMMA ROLLINS,
MAGGIE GRAHAM,	MINNIE TRIMMIE,
NELLIE GRIFFISS,	MINNIE WHITSETT,
LYDIE IRBY,	FANNIE WRAY,
HETTY JARNAGIN,	SWAN BROWER,
ORA KENNEDY,	HELEN RUFF,
TERESA PACK,

These names, together with Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL and little CLARENCE, composed the party. Miss EVANS accompanied us as far as Washington, also GERTRUDE JENKINS. The former continued her journey to New York without delay, the latter did not go farther than Washington.

The time selected was November, because the pupils are in more robust health than in the Spring, and the studies can more readily be dropped and resumed again at this season than during the pressure of the closing work of the year. The extent and object of the Tour was to examine the cities of Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, and also to visit other points of interest near to the above named places.

Capt. R. A. Jenkins, who represents the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in our State, kindly made all preparatory arrangements, such as securing a special car for the party, and also providing escort for us in the various cities. His interest in the comfort and pleasure of the students was untiring, and throughout the entire journey we were constantly reminded of his thoughtful care in the preparations made in advance for our reception and entertainment.

Monday, Oct. 28th, was the time agreed upon for the start, and Saturday, Nov. 9th, the date for the return. To Washington was given Oct. 29, 30, 31. To Baltimore, Nov. 1. No New York, Nov. 2, 3, 4, 5. To Philadelphia, Nov. 6, 7, 8. Seldom has a party been the recipients of so many kind attentions, and seldom has a more appreciative party been on the road. As it is the intention of THE ACADEMY to allow the pupils to give their own story of the enjoyments we will not attempt to enumerate the names of persons or the kind attentions in these preparatory remarks. All will be given as the narrative is unfolded during the coming months.

The journey from Salem to Washington occupied Monday, Oct. 28th, and also a portion of the evening, owing to an unavoidable delay. The narrative of this portion of the tour is given by THERESA PACE, who describes it as follows:

THE JOURNEY FROM SALEM TO WASHINGTON.

AT last the long expected hour had arrived, and after an early morning meal our party started through the silent streets toward the depot. The party was escorted by a large number of pupils; Dr. RONDTHALER and Mr. PROHL also accompanying us to the station. Here there was found to be waiting for us a special car, kindly provided by the Richmond & Danville Railroad; because of this courtesy we were enabled to travel to Washington without change, and, having no one but our party in the car, we were free to spend our time as we desired, joining often in games, tableaux, and often in "animated conversation." Seldom is a start made under more favorable circumstances. The weather was perfect, the girls well and happy, the morning delightful. Amid the waving of handkerchiefs and the good wishes of friends the train pulled out from the Salem-Winston depot and we were on the journey. Greensboro was passed, and there we had a moment to shake hands with CLAUDIA and LILIAN DICKS, and also to receive the good wishes of Mr. Whitsett, who was waiting for the party. Reidsville, too, was passed, and at this point a number of friends were awaiting us. Mrs. Lindsay and Mrs. Harris left our car at this point, and only by special effort on the part of Mr. Jenkins and Mr. CLEWELL was NELLIE saved from being left also. Danville was soon reached, and although the hour was still early, all enjoyed the lunch which was brought on the train.

As the train sped along the lovely valleys of old Virginia we were beginning to look forward to what would soon be the close of our first day's trip, when, alas! we were informed that hours would elapse ere we could proceed. This was distressing; but, receiving the news philosophically, the party proceeded to find amusement of one kind or another. Mr. CLEWELL was comfortably seated in the car reading the morning paper, when MINNIE called to him, and as he raised the window, she exclaimed, with her characteristic energy: "Oh, Mr. CLEWELL, there is the loveliest old gentleman out here! He has brought us some apples and cider, his mother was a Salem girl, and HE IS A DEMOCRAT!" The gentleman thus described was the Hon. John L. Hurt, and his mother, now a very old lady living at Halifax C. H., Va., was NANCY S. LINN. Mr. Hurt added to the courtesies already alluded to by inviting our company to his home near by. Being uncertain as to the time our train would start we could not venture. But Mr. Hurt was not to be put off, and so, after disappearing for a time, he was again seen, this time riding from the old homestead on the hill, and followed by two darkies bearing baskets. And those baskets! The chicken, and biscuit, and preserves, and pickles! One and all voted that it was the most royal feast ever offered to hungry school girls.

At last news was received that the bridge had been repaired, and we were again speeding northward. Not a little amusement was created when ANNIE innocently remarked: "Mr. Jenkins, how far is it to the bad place?" "Eight miles," was the answer; but the "bad place" was safely passed and no one left behind.

When Charlottesville was reached all were in good trim for supper, and as a natural consequence of a hearty meal the party was more quiet. When the bright lights of the city of Washington loomed up before us, however, all was at once stirred and excitement, and although it was 10 o'clock at night the dome of the capital could be discerned and also the noble shaft of the Washington monument. The broad and beautiful avenues assumed shape before us as we passed into the city proper, but all was again lost as we found ourselves in the hospitable rooms of the Metropolitan Hotel, and gentle sleep closed the eyes of the weary party.

What the Press says of Our Students' Tour.

We were pleased to note the warm words spoken by a number of papers in regard to our Students' Tour, an account of which is commenced on another page. We return thanks for the kind words spoken, and our only regret is that lack of space prevents our reproducing more of the notices. Our readers will doubtless read the same with interest.

From the Philadelphia Times.

FAIR PUPILS ON A JAUNT.

SUNNY FACES FROM THE FAMOUS VASSAR OF THE SOUTH.

A FIRST TRIP TO THE NORTH.

The Points of Interest in Philadelphia to be Inspected by the Visiting Students To-Day.

Something like a sensation was caused among the many bachelors at the Aldine hotel last night by the arrival in one party of twenty or more young ladies, whose appearance indicated, without reference to the register, that they were daughters of the sunny South. Although the Aldine is a favorite resort of the ladies, it is not often that a score of them arrive at once, all of them young and with the grace and brightness of debutantes.

The bachelors were surprised and occasionally peeped from around the corridors at the pretty sight as the new guests gathered in the handsome drawing rooms shortly after their arrival. The incident set the hotel in quite a flutter, and even the bell-boys were spruced up and the waiters had given more attention than usual to their hair.

The bevy of young ladies who are students of Salem Academy in North Carolina, a sister institution of the Moravian school at Bethlehem, arrived at 8 o'clock by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and were met at the station by C. R. Mackenzie, the passenger agent of the company, who showed the party many courtesies.

DAUGHTERS OF THE SOUTH.

At the hotel rooms had been engaged for them and supper for the entire party was served in a daintily decorated dining room reserved for their exclusive use. With them is the principal of the school, Rev. John H. Clewell, and his wife, Mrs. Clewell, the chaperone of the party.

Among them are the daughters of some of the best known and most prosperous families in the South and they are an unusually intelligent and attractive group of young ladies, who will ere long be belles in the society of the several States which they represent. Included among them are Miss Annie Bourdeaux, of Meridian, Miss.; Miss Reba Campbell, of Houston, Texas; Miss Minnie Fagg and Miss Emma Rollins, of Asheville, N. C.; Miss Minnie Graham, of Forest, Miss.; Miss Bloomfield Gambrell, of Roanoke, Va.; Miss Nellie Griffiss, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss Lydia Irby, of Clinton, S. C.; Miss Hettie Jarnagin, of Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Ora Kennedy, of Mexia, Texas; Miss Martha Peirce, of Clinton, S. C.; Miss Theresa Pace, of Corsicana, Texas; Miss Helen Ruff, of Ridgeway, S. C.; Miss Minnie Timmier, of Spartanburg, S. C.; Miss Minnie Whitsett, of Graham, N. C.; Miss Fannie Wray, of Knoxville, Tenn., and Miss Swann Brower, of Liberty, N. C.

A FAMOUS SCHOOL.

The school they come from is the Vassar of the South, and many noted women have been educated there. When the young ladies were received by the President and Mrs. Harrison, in Washington, reference was made to the fact that two ladies who have presided in the White House were graduates of the Salem School,—Mrs. Polk and Mrs. Patterson. The trip is a purely educational one, in order to allow the young ladies to see the large cities and travel over parts of the country about which they are very familiar in geography, but not otherwise.

They expect to spend to-day and to-morrow in the city viewing its places of interest and to-morrow will go to Bethlehem, Pa. When asked by Professor Clewell last night where they preferred to go first the young ladies exclaimed in a chorus, "Wanamaker's."

From the Philadelphia Call.

CHARMING VISITORS.

SALEM ACADEMY STUDENTS SEE THE CITY'S SIGHTS.

Young Ladies Belonging to the First Families of the South, Call at Wanamaker's, Independence Hall, and the Mayor's Office.

The new stairway leading to the machinery department at Wanamaker's, which has been built for the accommodation of the Pan-American delegates on the occasion of their visit next week, was put to good preparatory use to-day.

The score of young lady students from Salem Academy, in North Carolina, the "Vassar of the South," who arrived in Philadelphia yesterday, made the first public use of it this morning.

Salem Academy is one of the oldest institutions of its kind, and its patronage is drawn from the F. F. S.—first families of the South. The visit is an educational one, whose object is to familiarize the students with the larger cities of the North.

THE LADIES OF THE PARTY.

[Here follow the names and residences.]

They are chaperoned by the Rev. John H. Clewell, the principal, with his wife and son. This trip is a ten days' one, and the party has already seen Washington, Baltimore and New York.

ON THEIR TRAVELS TO-DAY.

At 10:30 this morning this bevy of youthfulness—brunettes all—was engaged in animated chatter in the drawing-room of the Aldine, when Professor Clewell entered. He had just interviewed the cashier, and remarked:

"Ladies, I have seen the cashier. Let us to business and Wanamaker's."

There was an instant cessation of gossip. His fair auditors gathered about like butterflies in a clover patch and promptly profited by Mr. Clewell's interview.

"Now, let us go," the principal remarked as the last fair applicant snapped her portmonnaie. So said, so done. In two minutes they were on Chestnut street, with eyes sparkling and parted lips, each inhaling the fresh morning air.

"What is that handsome place?" inquired one, as the party approaching Broad street came in view of the Guarantee Life Insurance Building.

The required information was furnished by Agent C. R. Mackenzie—for the Baltimore & Ohio and the Philadelphia & Reading Roads are doing all they can to make the trip a success.

As the ladies crossed Broad street Mr. Mackenzie remarked quietly:

"There's the City Hall."

A chorus of "Ohs!" of admiration was quelled by the sight of Wanamaker's, where they were soon in the private office of Mr. Robert C. Ogden, the Postmaster General's partner.

They were gazing with interest on the portraits of George W. Childs, Isaiah V. Williamson and other prominent Philadelphians when Mr. Ogden entered and welcomed them in a graceful speech.

SHOPPING AND LUNCHEON.

After the visit to the machinery department the ladies separated to do their shopping. Laden with purchases they returned to the hotel and at 1 o'clock had luncheon.

The afternoon was devoted to visits to Colonel A. K. McClure, George W. Childs and the Drexel Banking House. Mayor Fitler had departed when they arrived at Fifth and Chestnut streets, and the party entered Independence Hall and patriotically observed the museum mementoes.

The visitors pass to-morrow at Bethlehem, Pa., to see the Lehigh University and the Moravian School. They return to this city in the evening, and after seeing the workings of the Mint on Friday return home in the afternoon.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

SOUTHERN YOUNG LADIES.

A PARTY FROM SALEM, N. C., FEMALE ACADEMY VISIT PHILADELPHIA.

A party of twenty from the Salem Female Academy, of Salem, N. C., one of the oldest and most prominent educational institutions in the South, arrived in the city last evening in a special car over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. They were received by Agent C. R. Mackenzie and quartered at the Aldine Hotel.

The number includes seventeen young ladies of the senior class, accompanied by the Rev. J. H. Clewell, a professor in the college, his wife and son. The trip is for educational purposes, and is a portion of the year's school work. They started out a week ago last Monday, first visiting Washington. While at the capital they were received by President Harrison, being introduced by Congressman Ewart.

During the visit it was mentioned to the President that among the graduates in by-gone years was Mrs. James K. Polk, who is still living. Upon this they were shown a portrait of the lady in the Executive Mansion. They were also shown the principal apartments, and were received by Secretary Tracy. The party next went to Baltimore and then to New York and West Point, leaving for Philadelphia yesterday afternoon.

The young ladies are:

[Here follow the names and residences.]

To-day the young ladies will visit various points of interest about the city, including the Public Ledger building. To-morrow they will go to Bethlehem, and will leave for home over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad on Friday evening.

THE SOUTHERN SCHOOL GIRLS.

They Call at Wanamaker's, Newspaper Offices, and Independence Hall.

The young lady pupils of the Salem Female Academy, of Salem, N. C., who are visiting this city, yesterday went to many points of interest. Accompanied by C. R. Mackenzie, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, they visited Wanamaker's in the morning, where they were received by Mr. R. C. Ogden, who showed them through the entire establishment.

After luncheon they walked down Chestnut street, stopping at the Record and Times offices. At the latter they had an interview with Colonel A. K. McClure, whom they asked to lecture at their commencement next spring. Colonel McClure said he could hardly decide just now, though he thought he would deliver an address if nothing prevented when the time came. At the Public Ledger office the party was received by Colonel M. Richards Muckle, in the absence of Mr. Childs. Colonel Muckle invited them into Mr. Child's private office, where they spent some time in examining the rare objects there, and also presented each young lady with a souvenir.

They next visited Independence Hall, remaining quite awhile in the museum, and afterwards climbed to the steeple, where the various landmarks were pointed out to them. In the evening they were entertained at the Grand Opera House as the guests of Manager Kelly.

To-day they take a special train to Bethlehem, where they will visit the Lehigh University and the Young Ladies' Seminary, returning to the city about 6 P. M.

This evening they will go to the Broad Street Theatre upon the invitation of Manager Zimmerman.

After visiting a number of places to-morrow they will leave the city by a special train for the South.

Splinters Gathered by the Room Companies.

Fourth Room.

—Said a little girl to her teacher: "Please, ma'am, show me how to do these consolation (cancellation) sums."

—Geometry teacher (pointing to an inscribed angle), "What is this?" "An inspired angle."

—"What is the difference between Miss — and a ditcher?" "He ditches the land, and she lands in the ditch."

—Look at those fine vocal singers!

—More than we can say, we are truly glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL and the absent Seniors back again.

Married.

GLADSTONE—OGBURN.—On October 16th, by Rev. S. H. Helsabeck, Mr. WALTER R. GLADSTONE to Miss KATE OGBURN, of Forsyth County, N. C.

BRADY—CRAIG.—October 9th, Mr. ARCHIBALD BRADY, Postmaster of Charlotte, N. C., to Miss SALLIE CRAIG, of Gastonia, N. C.

BLACK—TUCKER.—October 10th, Mr. LUNSFORD P. BLACK to Miss MOLLIE TUCKER, of Taylor, Texas.

BRATTON—COOK.—October 22d, Mr. JOHN BRATTON to Miss MARY A. COOK, daughter of Mr. G. W. D. Cook, of Atlanta, Ga.

SMITH—JONES.—October 24th, Professor CHARLES LEE SMITH, of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, to Miss SALLIE JONES, of High Point, N. C.

Died.

STOKES.—In Battleboro, N. C., Mrs. DAVID STOKES, nee FANNY POWELL.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1867.

- 4578 ALMIRA SHOUB. — 1850.
Elias Shoub, Bethania, N. C.
- 4599 NORA VESTAL. — 1849.
Calvin Vestal, Egypt, N. C.
- 4600 KATE BUIE. — 1847.
R. M. Buié, Egypt, N. C.
- 4601 KATE O. STEEDMAN. — 1848.
Guardian, R. M. Buié, Egypt, N. C.
- 4602 LUCY B. THORPE. — 1855.
- 4603 ANNIE R. THORPE. — 1868.
R. E. Thorp, Oak Hill, N. C.
- 4604 LUCY CALLOWAY. — 1852.
Thomas H. Calloway, Cleveland, Tenn.
- 4605 ALICE OSMENT. — 1852.
John Osmont, Cleveland, Tenn.
- 4606 MATTIE BOYD. — 1849.
- 4607 THERESA BOYD. — 1853.
George Boyd, Benton, Tenn.
- 4608 ANNIS KYLER. — 1853.
A. A. Kyle, Rogersville, Tenn.
- 4609 LIDA KYLE. — 1854.
General W. C. Kyle, Rogersville, Tenn.
- 4610 SALLIE PHIPPS. — 1849.
Wesley Phipps, Surghinsville, Tenn.
- 4611 MAGGIE WHITE. — 1852.
Wm. White, Rogersville, Tenn.
- 4612 ANNIE BELL JORDAN. — 1852.
George W. Jordan, Hawkinsville, Ga.
- 4613 HENRIE WEBSTER. — 1852.
Pleasant Webster, Madison, N. C.
- 4614 SALLIE F. RAY. — 1859.
- 4615 MATTIE J. RAY. — 185.
William C. Ray, Montgomery, Ala.
- 4616 MOLLIE A. JOHNSON. — 1854.
Judge J. F. Johnson, Montgomery, Ala.
- 4617 MARIA D. SMITH. — 1854.
A. J. Smith, Mount Morry, Montgomery, Ala.
- 4618 ALICE BARRINGER. — 1853.
E. G. L. Barringer, Edinboro, N. C.
- 4619 LUCY A. WEBSTER. — 1855.
Grandfather, Pleasant Webster, Madison, N. C.
- 4620 JHANETTE MALLOY. — 1849.
Duncan Malloy, Midway, Ala.
- 4621 CORNELIA ELLEN SLAUGHTER. — 1859.
Bradley Slaughter, Eatonton, Ga.
- 4622 FANNIE POWELL. — 1857.
- 4623 LOU D. POWELL. — 1855.
Jesse H. Powell, Battleboro, N. C.
- 4624 STELLA NEIL. — 1852.
Sacring Neil, Fort Valley, Ga.
- 4625 MARY F. HIBBLER. — 1852.
James L. Hibbler, Cooksville, Miss.

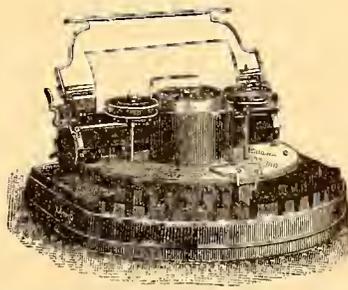

- 4626 MARY BELL. — 1852.
James Bell, Warsaw, Ala.
- 4627 MARY SCOTT MOFFETT. — 1853.
John Simpson Moffett, Knoxville, Tenn.
- 4628 MARY HORTENSIA WHITEHEAD. — 1855.
Dr. Wm. H. Whitehead, Indian Spring, Ga.
- 4629 LAURA GOOLSBY. — 1855.
Robert Goolsby, Saltville, Va.
- 4630 C. ROSA WITHERS. — 1855.
M. M. Withers, Davidson College, N. C.
- 4631 MARY A. JOHNSON. — 1852.
Step-father, W. A. Brown, Davidson College, N. C.
- 4632 LIZZIE W. MOLTEN. — 1850.
- 4633 SALLIE C. MOLTEN. — 1852.
Col. Chas. H. Molten, Moutgomery, Ala.
- 4634 ROSALIE E. LEHMAN. — 1855.
Frederic Lehman, Albany, Ga.
- 4635 FANNIE TAYLOR. — 1854.
Uncle, Allen DeBerry, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4636 ELLA HURT. — 1853.
Uncle, R. B. Hurt, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4637 REBECCA F. HURT. — 1853.
Father, R. B. Hurt, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4638 NANNIE SMITH. — 1855.
W. G. Smith, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4639 ALICE ROUNTREE. — 1852.
R. H. Rountree, Kingston, N. C.
- 4640 MARIA R. WALPOLE. — 1853.
H. E. Walpole, Mobile, Ala.
- 4641 MARCELLA MOBLEY. — 1853.
Edward V. Mobley, Oakland, S. C.
- 4642 HATTIE GANDY. — 1851.
Uncle, J. E. Gandy, Society Hill, S. C.
- 4643 LUCY JANE BELL. — 1852.
B. B. Bell, Warsaw, Ala.
- 4644 MARY ELIZABETH JONES. — 1854.
Jason G. Jones, Montgomery, Ala.
- 4645 MARY CAHILL. — 1851.
J. J. Cahill, Newton, N. C.
- 4646 ELLA CAHILL. — 1853.
- 4647 LULA P. DILLARD. — 1853.
- 4648 NANNIE DILLARD. — 1855.
Jas. R. Dillard, Montgomery, Ala.

HENRY W. MILLER,

STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

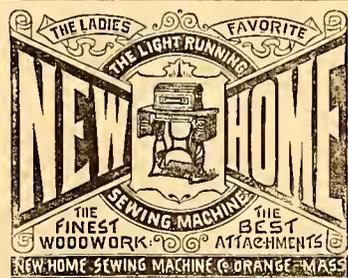

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
Price, complete with two type wheels, $500.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.

Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.

Send for Catalogue.

WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

Miss PHEBE TURNER, Winston, N. C.

WANTED.—Position as music teacher in school or private family by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address K. M., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.—A position as teacher by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address B., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady as Phonographer.

Address
C.—care of The Academy,
Salem, N. C.

BINCHAM SCHOOL.

(Established in 1793.)

is PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys, in AGE, in the high standing of its PATRONS, in AREA of PATRONAGE, and in equipment for PHYSICAL CULTURE. Location in the COUNTRY. Organization MILITARY.

The 96th Annual Year will begin Sept. 1, 1889.

Maj. R. BINGH M, Supt.
Bingham School P. O., Orange Co., N. C.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA
SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California.

Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via the Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G.S.—E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236, Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass. & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

—* MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH, *—

(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up. Tompkins Island, Staten Island, N. Y.

CARE OF MRS VOLLER.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal,

Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

SPENCERIAN
STEEL PENS
Are the Best,

IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF Durability, Evenness of Point, and Workmanship.

Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail, on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. 4.

IVISON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway, New York.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with
an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.

For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,

G. P. A.,

St. Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the

East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble ballast, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going or returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and welfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address

B. W. WRENN,
G. P. A.,

JNO. L. MILAM,
D. P. A.

Knoxville, Tenn.

C. A. DESAUSSEUR,

A. G. P. A.,
Memphis, Tenn.

ST. LOUIS,
ARKANSAS &
TEXAS RAILWAY.

→ COTTON × BELT × ROUTE. ←

The Direct Line between the Educational
Centres of the South-East and
Arkansas and Texas.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN POINTS ON
THIS LINE AND

Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Atlanta.

PULLMAN BUFFET SLEEPERS, FREE RECLINING
CHAIR CARS, ALL THE COMFORTS AND
CONVENIENCES OF MODERN TRAVEL.

On advice being sent to any of the following,
an Agent of this Company will meet all pupils
at the various junction points, en route, and render any assistance or information necessary.

For further information, address

D. MILLER,
General Pass. Agent.

E. W. LaBEAUME,
Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison,
Gen. Agt.
Memphis, Tenn.

S. G. Warner,
Trav. Agt.
Memphis, Tenn.

W. H. Winfield,
Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Texarkana, Tex.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

THE SCHOOLTEACHER,

A Monthly Journal of Education, devoted to the interests of Teachers, Schools and Education in general. It has a long list of distinguished educators as contributors. Its articles on pedagogy are crisp and eminently practical.
$1.00 a year; 5 copies, $4.00. Send for sample copies.

Address,
THE SCHOOLTEACHER,
WINSTON, N. C.

THE SHORT LINE FROM
CHATTANOOGA and BIRMINGHAM
TO
NEW ORLEANS,
Where direct connection is made with the SOUTHERN PACIFIC and TEXAS & PACIFIC R'YS, for
Texas, Mexico and California.
THE SHORT LINE via VICKSBURG and SHREVE-
PORT TO TEXAS, MEXICO and CALIFORNIA,
NEW MEXICO, COLORADO and the FAR
WEST. Close connection made at Shreveport without transfer through the City.

From TEXAS to the
NORTH AND EAST,
Via SHREVEPORT.

Close connections without transfer through the City.
Leave Shreveport 7:00 A. M.

Through Sleeping Cars to ATLANTA via BIRMING-HAM making direct connections for

SAVANNAH, AUGUSTA, CHARLESTON,
AND POINTS IN

Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and the East,
Connecting at MERIDIAN with Main Line Trains.

J. C. GAULT, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS,
Gen'l Mgr. G. P. & T. A.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

MONEY

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere;
Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then
will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLINDARD & BROOKES. —

WM. T. VOGLER,
JEWELLER,
Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., DECEMBER, 1889.

NUMBER 101.

FOUNDED 1802.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA.

This old and well-known Institution is at present instructing about 300 students, and has the following separate and well equipped departments:—

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, extending over 3 years.

COLLEGE COURSE, extending over 4 years.

POST GRADUATE COURSE (degree of A. B.), extending over 1 year.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

SCHOOL OF ART.

SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

Full information as to any department will be furnished upon application to

Rev. JOHN H CLEWELL, Principal.

CHRISTMAS.

BY MISS ADELAIDE FRIES.

Now the sweet-toned bells are ringing
Christmas chimes,
And the sound of happy voices
Upward climbs,

Till the air throbs fast with gladness,
Banishing all thought of sadness
By the mystic, merry madness
Of the times.

Though the Winter rules severely,
Grim and tall,
Nature still has wondrous treasures
Within call;

And the earth, her joy to show,
Dons a robe of ermine snow,
And her frosty lace would throw
Over all.

Pines their branches proudly tossing
Toward the sky,
With the rich green of the cedars,
Fondly vie;

Hollies crimson berries bear;
Mistletoe displays with care
All its waxen berries fair,
Hung on high.

In one full triumphant chorus
Nature sings,
And the censer of her homage Gently swings;
That in rich, unstinted measure
She may show the holy pleasure,
Show the happy, joyous pleasure
Christmas brings.

—The Thanksgiving decoration in the Salem church was very elaborate, consisting of fruits and flowers. The church was filled to its utmost capacity at the morning service, and Dr. RONDTHALER delivered a very forcible sermon. He spoke of the danger of abusing the special privileges which we enjoy as a nation and toward which we are drifting as a country in very many respects.

CHRISTMAS IN SALEM FIFTY YEARS AGO.

BY MRS. ELIZA KREMER.

Dear Brother Clewell:

As you wish me to write a few incidents of by-gone days, I will, though hesitatingly, endeavor to do so. In the late number of THE ACADEMY I saw the name of one dear to me, a scholar of the "long ago," and that she still holds in loving remembrance the days spent in her Alma Mater, which was shown by her son's kind attentions to you and your company of young ladies on your tour North. I look back through a long vista of years to the time when she was an inmate of the ACADEMY, and it brings to memory most vividly incidents of the past.

In reference to Christmas, our Church services were very similar to those of the present day. On Christmas Eve we had Lovefeast, with song, prayer and reading of the "old, old story," ever new and ever precious. As is still the custom in our dearly loved Moravian Christmas worship, near the close of this service, during the singing of a hymn, trays of lighted wax tapers are brought in and distributed among the children and pupils of the ACADEMY, emblematic of the light of Gospel truth shining upon the darkness of a heathen world.

This festive season was then, as now, looked forward to with pleasing anticipation as a rest from school duties and for holiday enjoyments.

There was no need on Christmas morning to sound the rising-bell, for, long before the usual hour, the "sleep-hall" was astir and anxious whispers were heard on every side, "is it not time to get up?" When the call came there was a rush to the rooms to view the tables, where, on the previous evening, the Principal and teachers had distributed for each girl a package of cakes, nuts and confectionery, with a lighted taper at each desk. There was scarce time to enjoy breakfast so eager were they to return to their rooms; then there was an exchange of presents from one to another.

After the Christmas morning sermon in the church, the afternoon was spent by the scholars in going from room to room, seeing, comparing and admiring the different decorations, and preparing for the entertainment to be given at night in the Chapel. Here a large and beautiful decoration was displayed, on which the faithful teachers had spent days of labor, and for which wagon-loads of evergreens had been brought from a great distance.

The entertainment consisted of dialogues and recitations relating to the birth and life of the Saviour, and interspersed with solos and choruses. The chief music teacher of the time was at the piano, accompanied by a violin and violoncello. The violin player was the grandfather of two of the present teachers, and the 'cellist the grandfather of an able minister in a Moravian church North.

The beautiful custom of Christmas decorations was no doubt inherited from our German ancestors, so that in almost every house in town children were made happy by having a "putz." Some were on a very extensive plan, representing landscape scenery, with hills and rocks and fountains. Then there was the well-known shepherd, dressed in Oriental costume, with his flock and faithful watch-dog before him, and the familiar Noah's Ark, from which animals, known and unknown, issued in pairs. There was also sometimes a cave, or little house, representing the place of the nativity, with the mother and child, a manger, &c. It was a happy time for children to go from house to house, to see and admire the various decorations, and every door was thrown open for them. Our town was at that time by no means as large as it is now. From the upper end of the avenue one passed into the thick forest, and the mill stream was the southern boundary of the town. Since that long past our town has spread to the north, south, east and west, and now that we have so large a sister town so closely connected with us, we might almost forget that this is still old Salem. Times, manners and customs change, but memories and joys of Christmas can never fade, and to the few left of the days of long ago, if any there be, these few reminiscences of the Christmas days of old, may prove a pleasant "looking backward."

SAILING ALONG THE SHORES OF ASIA.

BY REV. EDWARD RONDHALER, D. D.

BRIGHT landscapes, stirring historical associations, and placid and sunny seas rise to my remembrance as I pen this title to my article. And around the whole recollection there is poured a sweet sense of restfulness in strong contrast with the heat and toil and anxieties of our horse-back ride through the Holy Land.

Our steamer was the Vesta, belonging to the Austrian Lloyd. She was not very large, but comfortably arranged, and the many hours spent under the awning-covered deck will always be pleasantly remembered.

We embarked at Haifa on a moon-lit night in May. We left behind us the pleasant German colony in which we had spent our last Sunday in Palestine, under the shadow of Mt. Carmel, jutting out into the sea. Under the care of the cawiss of the American vice-consul, our escape from the noise and confusion of a Turkish seaport was very comfortably made, and we were rowed out a half-mile to the point where our steamer was anchored. It was the broad bay of Acre, the very name of which recalls the story of the Crusades. The gallant deeds of Richard Cœur de Lion are connected with the town of Acre, whose lights gleam out faintly on the north side of the bay. Over the same seas, with a nobler purpose, came the Apostle Paul on his last journey to Jerusalem. Acre is the ancient Ptolemais, at which his vessel stopped a day, giving him an opportunity to salute the brethren who dwelt there. Thence his ship crossed the waters in which our vessel now lies in the moonlight. His frame of mind was pictured in the answer which he gave to his friends at Cæsarea, his next stopping place: "What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus."

As we walk the deck of our Austrian steamer on that evening, there arises a feeling of thankful restfulness which can never be forgotten. The journey in the Holy Land is over. It has succeeded beyond expectation. The burning sun of Samaria and Galilee, the long hours in the saddle, the broken nights' rest, the dangers from robbers to our little party, the fatigues from which we roused ourselves to see all that could be seen in sites of marvelous biblical interest, the howling for backshish—all these and other necessary drawbacks lie in the past, while the happy results of the journey will remain a lasting possession. The steamer embarkation on May 13th, in the Bay of Acre, has been the event on which our journey from America and back again has hung as on a pivot. It has been the long subject of plans and of prayers, and God, in his goodness, has brought us safely to the set hour and place and vessel. As on the the heavenly shore souls will take their retrospect of earth, and admire the manner in which God's providential appointments were timed and carried out, so on this moon-lit night in the Bay of Acre, we reviewed the events of our peculiar journey with touched and grateful hearts.

During the night we sailed along the old Phœnician coast and, of course, missed the sight of Tyre and of Sidon. The morning found us in the harbor of Beirut. Here we went ashore and spent the day amid the delightful courtesies of the Presbyterian Mission. We saw something of their noble work in college, printing press, school and church; we stood with hallowed thoughts beside the graves of the founders of this work for God in the old Bible lands; we took with us memorable impressions of the refinement, devotion and hospitality of a mission-home, that of Dr. Eddy, and, in the evening, sailed farther on our course to Cyprus, whither, in a later article, we may invite our ACADEMY readers to accompany us as we journey on toward Constantinople.

THE STUDENTS' TOUR TO NORTHERN CITIES.

ACOOL, bracing morning greeted us as we left the Metropolitan Hotel, Washington. Our party were all well and in good spirits, and we felt that a fine beginning had been made. The account of the visit to Washington will not be given in exactly the order of events as to time. In general, we would say of our visit to this city that we received attention from many friends. Among the large number we mention the names of Hon. H. G. Ewart, Member of Congress; Mr. W. B. Gulick, (SUSIE GULICK'S father,) State, War and Navy Departments; Rev. Herman Jacobson and Mr. G. R. Shultz, Post Office Department; Mr. Percy G.

Smith, Baltimore & Ohio Railway; Mr. Willis, Hall, Jr., (SADIE HALL'S brother,) and during the first days of our stay in the city Captain R. A. Jenkins remained, and was untiring in his attentions to our party. To these and the many other friends from whom we received attention, we return our thanks, and we believe that seldom has a party been the recipient of a like number of courtesies. In this issue we give first an account of the trip to Mt. Vernon.

Our Trip to Mt. Vernon.

BY MISS LYDIE T. IRBY.

"YOUNG ladies" had been repeated several times by Mr. CLEWELL before any response whatever was given from the interior, but when his moving call had almost risen to a despairing wail we thought it best to come back to mother earth for some hours, and reluctantly bidding Morpheus and his "fickle pensioners" a short farewell. It was not long before we were laughing at the rain drops as they spattered our noses, and spoiled the bangs of MINNIE, and BLOOMFIELD "our unaffected beauties," but before we were well started down to the river, the rain had given place to a fine mist, but this also was soon laughed away by the beams from the brilliant face of Sol, who was too eager to participate in the school girl's frolic to remain longer absent. At ten o'clock we all arrived at the landing and in a few minutes we found ourselves sailing down the Potomac; we all seated ourselves on deck and could scarcely refrain from a longing desire to "trip the light fantastic toe" to the lovely music that was doubly appreciated as it was on the water. It was impossible for the high spirits of our crowd to allow themselves to be seated long, and I am afraid we somewhat shocked a few staid couples who were brave enough to bid defiance to rheumatic pains, and remain in the damp air of the deck.

"What troupe is that?" "Where did they play last?" were some of the many remarks that fell upon our amused ears. MAGGIE, while passing through a rather narrow doorway, was confronted by the Captain, who demanded in a savage voice where our "boss man" was. She was highly indignant at him for speaking of us as if we had been a crowd of convicts: as there was no escape she answered, "below." He was dumfounded, but as MAG was in turn becoming savage-looking, he gave one glance at a small pocket knife she held and fled in search of protection and Mr. CLEWELL who was our "boss man." By this time we were somewhat quieted by the sound of a tolling bell, which is always sounded on the arrival of the boat at Mt. Vernon. Gathering up our wraps, umbrellas, etc., we landed; separating into parties we started out to see the sights of the home of Washington. We were met by the courteous Supt. who pointed out all the places of interest to us. To the left of the road is a hill, abounding with different kinds of flowers; at the head of the walk on the way up to the house is the tomb of him, "who was first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." The tomb is a plain brick structure; the front of the tomb is unpretending, with wide, arching gateway, and double iron gates, above which, upon a plain marble slab, is this inscription: "Within This Enclosure Rest The Remains of Gen. George Washington." In the vault on the left are the remains of Martha, his wife. The first building reached after the ascent is a large old barn, erected by Lawrence Washington, the brother of the Gen. A very little distance off is the dwelling-house, which is a wooden building. Entering the main hall the first object of interest is the "Key of the Bastle," presented to Washington by Lafayette. Passing through the East Parlor we entered the "Banquet Hall." Many curiosities we saw in this room, one of the most interesting being an old arm-chair, which was brought over in the Mayflower.

Visiting all of the rooms we at last arrived at the room in which the great man died, known as the Virginia room; every article of furniture in that room was used by Gen. Washington. The bedstead is the one upon which he died. At 3:30 o'clock we all gathered on the porch to start back to the landing. At 3:45 we started back to Washington. Very soon we saw the outskirts of the city, and gathered our souvenirs together. Mr. CLEWELL had promised us a Tally-ho ride and at the landing we were met by Mr. Shultz and our Tally-ho, and had a very pleasant drive through the streets and city parks.

Immediately connected with the experiences described above is the Tally Ho ride.

Our Tally-ho Ride.

BY MISS MAGGIE GRAHAM.

BACK again from the country villa, the beautiful, historical Mt. Vernon, the home of the "Father of Our Country." We were met by our promised Tally-ho coach which we intended using on a visit to Arlington Heights. After landing we saw a ladder, and as Mr. CLEWELL said "mount," we took him at his word and began our climb to the summit of some unseen object, no one knew where to, nor whether we would complete our "mounting" before Xmas or not. But Lydie, one of our smaller girls, had finished the long ascent and peeping laughingly over the side of the coach told us that there was an end to that ladder and if we would but come she assured us we would only land among the tree tops. Outwardly brave and composed we began to take our places laughing at those who had not yet summoned up courage enough to trust themselves on such a height. At last we were driving away as fast as our large horses could speed. "Sal-va-ation Ar-r-r-my," "Sal-vation Army," repeatedly screamed the little boot-blacks and street arabs near the river. They shouted and laughed, but soon we were dodging the naked limbs of the trees which tried to stop our laughter and merriment with their bony fingers. Just around the corner we were met by a long funeral procession. For a few minutes we were quiet, but our skillful Jehu soon disentangled our novel conveyance from the midst of the blocked street cars and vehicles of all kinds and again we were sailing through the air with our driver and horses somewhere in the streets below. We met President and Mrs. Harrison, but from our elevated position we were almost unable to see them.

For once we were the chief attraction of people of Washington, one and all stopped to gaze upon our party—even in the busy streets of that city. "The Band, the Band," another street urchin cried.

One portly dame of hoary locks was so much engrossed with the sight that she stood by the steps of a street car which she had intended entering when she saw our party coming, so that poodle, old lady and all were pulled in by the irate conductor. The last we saw of her she was still in a state of surprise with mouth and eyes both distended in speechless surprise.

We hoped no very serious harm was done to the dear madame. Oh! the lovely park! Mr. Shultz who had kindly pointed out the various places of interest showed us the entrance of Arlington Heights, the home of Gen. R. E. Lee. The name is dear to the heart of every Southern girl. But we were doomed to disappointment, for it was too late to drive as far as Arlington. With a parting look at the beautiful scenery we were driven back through the streets of Washington. We were somewhat consoled by a promise from Mr. CLEWELL that we should go to Arlington when we come back through Washington.

We were saluted by some other appellations as we entered Penn. Avenue and Mrs. CLEWELL somewhat despairingly asked, "What next, girls?" "Dinner," wailed little CLARENCE. This was not exactly what Mrs. C. thought we would be called, but in our hearts we all felt as if we would be reduced to cannibalism if we remained much longer in our present ravenous condition. Penn. Avenue was beautiful by night; we had a splendid view from the summit of our coach. Thousands of electric lights shone up and down the beautiful street displaying its loveliness to the best advantage. Again we were compelled to trust ourselves to the ladder, but thoughts of warmth and our dinner cheered us on, and we were able to make our descent in safety. In a few minutes we were warming our chilled hands before the fire in the cosy drawing-room before descending to a late dinner.

Our very interesting visit to the White House follows:

Our Visit to the White House.

BY MISS ANNIE BOURDEAUX.

WE reached the White House just fifteen minutes before 10 o'clock, and were conducted to the Reception Room to await the appearance of the President. We entertained ourselves while waiting by watching the different places as they came in and took their places; and in observing the costly furnishings of the room. At 10 o'clock the President appeared, and took his stand near the door leading into the main hall. As he did so, there was a lull in conversation, and the crowd moved forward to pay their respects to the head of our great nation. We were to have a private reception so remained until the others had passed out. Congressman Ewart then introduced our party. As he did so he mentioned that two ladies of the White House had been educated at the Academy. After all of the girls had shaken hands with the President, little CLARENCE walked up and piped out in clear tones, "Howdy do, Mr. President?" to which he responded, "Very well, my lad." President Harrison escorted us to the Green Room and pointed out to us the portraits of Mrs. Polk, Mrs. Tyler and Mrs. Hayes; then introduced us to one of the guides, who very kindly showed us over the principal rooms, which have been closed to visitors since Arthur's administration. The Green Room is very elegantly furnished, as are the others that we saw; but particularly noticeable are a pair of beautiful Venice vases, selected by Mrs. Hayes, and a lamp by Mrs. Cleveland. We next passed into the Blue Room, which is the finest one in the Mansion. It was in this room that President Cleveland was married, and in here is to be found the old clock of Napoleon. Then came the Red Room, where the family receive all of their friends. This room is especially bright and cheerful, and contains a life size portrait of President Arthur. We were then ushered into the State Dining Room, where so many noted persons of this and other nations have dined. The furniture is the same used in Gen. Jackson's time. The seats occupied by the king and queen of the Hawaiian Islands, when dining with President Cleveland, were pointed out to us, also the one used by Don Pedro, the exiled Emperor of Brazil. We would gladly have remained here longer, but time forbade, and we passed through the lovely hall out into the broad walk, and gradually wended our way to the gate where we had entered. Mr. CLEWELL made the startling announcement that some day we might become ladies of the White House.

The Boston Symphony Concert.

THROUGH the efforts of Messrs. B. Pfohl, D. Butner and W. P. Ormsby, the above club was secured to visit our towns on December 2d. Owing to the fact that our Gymnasium Hall is not yet completed, we gave up the idea of hearing this musical treat. The Committee, however, secured the use of the Home Chapel, and arranged for an afternoon concert for the benefit of Salem Female Academy. At 3 o'clock the following artists arrived: Mons. Alfred De Seve, Violin Virtuoso; Mr. Joseph Lapini, Violinist; Mr. Richard Stoelzer, Viola and Viola d'Amour; Mr. Otto Langey, Violoncello Soloist; Mr. Fred Lax, Flute and Flageolet Virtuoso; Mr. J. Fasshauer, Contra Bass.

The concert was one of the most enjoyable we have had for many months. The smoothness, richness and perfection of the execution betokened the fact that we were enjoying music from finished artists. The audience, too, were in full sympathy with the performers, and hearty applause greeted each selection. The following is the programme:

1. Invitation a la Valse ..... Weber.
BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRAL CLUB.
2. Flute Solo. Caprice on Paganini's Witches Dance..... Fred Lax.
MR. FRED LAX.
3. a.—Spanish Bolero. La veritable Mano'a... Bourgeois.
b.—Comin' thro' the Rye.
MISS AUGUSTA OHRSTROM.
4. Slumber Song..... Alfred De Seve.
BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRAL CLUB.
5. Viola d'Amour Solo. Reverie..... Stoelzer,
MR. RICHARD STOELZER.
6. Violin Solo. Gypsy Dances..... Sarasate.
MONS. ALFRED DE SEVE.
7. Violoncello Solo. Souvenir de Spa. Fantasie... Serais.
MR. OTTO LANGEY.
8. Swedish Song.
MISS AUGUSTA OHRSTROM.
9. a.—Serenata..... Langey.
b.—Hungarian Dance..... Brahms.
BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRAL CLUB.

We feel under obligations to all who aided in securing this educatory treat for the school. The voluntary gift which the Principal returned the Committee for the courtesy was quite liberal, and, although the guarantee which they had given this famous organization was large, still, we learn, that they secured enough to escape financial loss, and our school and community has had a rare musical treat.

A Little Girl's Letter.

The following letter was received by one of our Instructors, from a bright little girl in Rochester, N. Y., and doubtless our readers will deem it worthy of a place in our columns. The dog spoken of was certainly excusable for "being sick some weeks":

ROCHESTER, Nov. 12th, '89.

Dear Miss Evans:—

We went to the Thousand Islands last summer and when we got back I had to commence school. I am in the highest grade at public school. I am studying Algebra and like it very much. I have not taken any music lessons since last Christmas, it is almost a year but it does not seem half as long.

Mama has been sick and I am not feeling well. I did not go to school this morning, I had such a headache.

Last month the 24th was Fred's birthday, he was 17 years old. We gave him a little surprise party. We spent quite a pleasant evening; we had supper served at 10 o'clock; the last ones went home at twelve. We had speaking and singing besides playing games.

I do not know whether Mama told you we had a dog. But we have:—he's a large Newfoundland dog. He came to us last winter one night, and we took him in not intending to keep him. We advertised in the paper, and a good many people that had lost a dog came to see if this one was theirs. Last summer he got run over by the street cars, broke his leg, made a deep hole in his head, and had his tail run over, he was very sick for three or four weeks.

Well, I cannot write any more, as I must get ready for school.

I hope you are well. I should like to come down where you are at very much.

Yours, with love,

EDITH.

Write and ask Mama if I can't come; tell her everything I would have to do. She would not want me to miss my school. Couldn't I go there?

—The members of the Students' Tour are under obligations to Mr. B. F. Bond for many courtesies during their trip, and bearing his name in mind, the reader will appreciate the following lines, which we attribute to Mr. C. R. McKenzie, the genial and polite "bachelor" gentleman, who was so untiring in his attentions while the party was in Philadelphia.

Those twenty young ladies of Salem
Have spirits that ne'er seem to fail 'em;
They laugh and they joke,
Declare they'll go broke,
As BOND has been given to bail 'em.

—A fire escape will soon be placed in position at the rear of the Senior's dormitory. A faithful night watchman makes us feel safe when we awake in the midst of a stormy winter's night, but still every additional precaution which renders our buildings safe and comfortable is heartily welcomed.

Our Library.

—A number of comfortable "leisure" chairs have been placed in the Library. A notice appears on each one which seems to indicate the sad fate of some predecessors.

—The library continues to be crowded both day and evening. A large order for new and attractive works for the "new book" department has been handed in to Mr. CLEWELL by the Librarian, and the arrival of the books will be welcomed by the many visitors.

—It gives us pleasure to acknowledge the addition of a number of new books, donated by friends, and we trust the good work will go on. We need more room than we now have, but that is a common cry throughout the school. Room will come in time, and meanwhile we will be pleased to receive additions to the "Griffiss Fund," or volumes for our shelves.

—The light window shades recently placed in the Library add much to the comfort of those who visit the rooms, softening the sunlight but not entirely banishing it.

—Among the new books placed in the Library during the past month, we notice the following:

Chambers' Encyclopædic. Vol. IV. This volume begins with Dyonysius and contains the various articles to Friction. The Maps and plates are very fine, and the entire work is an excellent addition to our large collection of reference books.

Encyclopædia Britannica. Vol. XXV. Index. The Index is a great aid in finding desired information in this great work, and will be welcomed by those who use it most frequently.

Annual Report of the Bureau of Ethnology. J. W. Powell, Director. This work was forwarded to our Library from Washington, and is a book of reference and also a work of general interest.

The most marked addition for the month is the Riverside Natural History, a work bound in twelve volumes, and published by Houghton, Mifflin & Company, Boston. It is probably the most elaborate, complete and interesting work of its kind ever issued from the press, and we gladly give it room on our shelves. The colored plates are unusually fine, and both the engravings and letter-press in general are in the highest style of the art. The books contain a picture and a description of almost every creature known to science, and we shall be pleased to have our friends in town make use of this work if they desire to gain special information regarding any special bird, animal, or reptile. The following are the titles of the various volumes:

- I. The Lower Invertebrates.
- II. " " "
- III. Crustacea and Insects.
- IV. " " "
- V. Fishes and Reptiles.
- VI. " " "
- VII. Birds.
- VIII. " " "
- IX. Mammals.
- X. " " "
- XI. Man.
- XII. " " "

—Mr. J. A. Lineback has presented our Library with a number of pamphlets on Forestry and Forest Conditions of the Rocky Mountains.

—Professor Blair has placed a number of rare books, concerning subjects treated in his lectures, on the reference shelf. We notice, among others, Comenius' famous Orbis Pictus, a copy of which we hope to secure for ourselves, but which is not easily obtained. The Professor has promised to aid us in the acquisition of this work.

—Adler's German and English Dictionary (large edition) will be welcomed.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—We notice a number of friendly comments by the Press concerning Miss LEHMAN'S letter in our last issue. Thank you, gentlemen, for your kind words.

—The Winston Sentinel says: "Aard right here we want to bet a year's subscription that if the members of the Students' Tour drank any coffee in the White House, it didn't compare with that which they get in the ACADEMY every day."

—We thank the Republican for the following very neighborly notice:—

"THE ACADEMY, of Salem Female Academy, comes to us for November, enlarged to twelve pages. It is the best printed, brightest and most interesting school publication that comes to our office, and reflects credit upon the fair creatures who contribute to its columns. Every scholar of this Institution should be a subscriber, as it would prove an admirable connecting link each month with the Academy and its pupils of the past and present. Only 50 cents per annum.

—AMELIA LOEPER, of Walnut Cove, N. C., has entered the New Room, and will pursue a special course in Music and Art.

—Mr. James Brower, who recently took charge of the Male Academy, is doing excellent work, and has a very encouraging outlook for the institution. Miss LEWIS is assisting him in his duties.

—Mrs. CLEWELL celebrated her birthday on December 5th, and was the recipient of a number of pleasing remembrances of the day.

—The Gymnasium will probably be completed by December 15th.

—Mrs. A. V. Winkler, mother of Mrs. Markgraff, has a pamphlet in press in the interests of Salem and Winston. A sketch and engraving of Salem Female Academy will appear among its pages. Messrs. L. V. & E. T. Blum, the Academy's printers, have the work in hand, and its composition and press-work will be first-class in every respect.

—The Moravian, speaking of our enlarged paper, politely remarks:

"THE ACADEMY. — We extend our hearty congratulations to the Editors and Managers of THE ACADEMY, the monthly publication of our Church School at Salem, N. C. Its current issue is one of twelve pages, a marked enlargement, which we understand is to be permanent. As a sign of prosperity it is particularly gratifying."

—Miss PAMELA BYNUM has accepted a position in the ACADEMY as Miss CLARK'S successor in the 6th Room, and will begin her duties January 2, 1890. Miss BYNUM is a graduate of the ACADEMY, and held a very high position while here as a student. We welcome her as a member of the Faculty.

—Miss ELIZA CLARK has gone the way of the world. She left the institution on November 21, and if the reader will refer to the marriage notices the cause of her departure will be discovered. Miss CLARK has been engaged as room teacher in connection with the 6th Room, and spent the mornings as stenographer in Mr. CLEWELL'S office. During the afternoon she instructed a considerable number of pupils in shorthand. She was in every sense of the word a faithful laborer in the midst of our busy school life, and the good wishes of her hosts of friends go with her as she enters upon this new stage of life experiences.

—PATTY JOHNSON left, on Thanksgiving Day, for her home. She will take a position as teacher, January 1.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., DECEMBER, 1889.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

DR. RONDTHALER gives us a "gem" from his travels, and has promised us from time to time sketches of his summer tour which we will welcome with great pleasure.

OUR December number partakes somewhat of a Christmas issue, as will be seen from the poem on the first page, which ADELAIDE FRIES has kindly contributed, and the article from Mrs. KREMER, which will no doubt bring up many a train of memory among our older readers.

A GLIMPSE into the past is always a pleasant thing, and we would welcome communications from our Alumnae either in Salem or elsewhere, treating of any particular period or event in the school's history. Mrs. KRAMER's letter is a good beginning, and we hope to receive others from time to time.

WE are informed that a movement is on foot to give to our school and communities a winter evening series of lectures and concerts, commencing after Christmas. If the plans are matured the series will be made up of home and school talent, and we feel certain will be welcomed and heartily supported by the citizens of the Twin-City.

A CAREFUL examination of the Chronicle and Gossip department will show that a number of new friends have become interested in sending us news for our columns. Miss GERTRUDE SIEWERS has promised us information in regard to the Art Departments; Miss SALLIE SHAFFNER will represent the Commercial Department; Miss EVANS has been furnishing items setting forth the work in the large Music Department; Miss ALICE RONDTHALER will keep us posted as to the Language Department and Miss BAKER the Natural Science work. Besides this, other friends have come to the aid of our enlarged paper, among them the various room companies. We trust that each room company will ere long be represented in every number of THE ACADEMY, and thus give to our readers a glimpse of their school-life.

CHRISTMAS.

WITH this number we send to our many readers our Christmas greeting. The happy season is rapidly approaching and already in the midst of the school-life the plans of the celebration are being formed. Mysterious packages are stored away in unaccountable corners, to be brought out on the ever welcome Christmas eve; earnest faces appear in the office to ask, "On what day may I start home?" the designs for room company decorations are discussed; "what will the box from home contain" fills the minds; the stores are eagerly besieged; the studio is worked to its full extent,—and in the midst of this general expectation we can almost see the beautiful holly and mistletoe and almost smell the fragrance of the pine.

Why should Christmas not be a happy season? The human mind naturally turns towards that which is new; the newspapers bind the world together as one family; the new book, the new government, the new experience,—everything that is new has a glow and brightness about it which meets with a welcome response in the human heart. The birth of Christ marked a new epoch in the history of the world. Nothing had ever been experienced like it, in the history of the nations. New and strange this holy message of "Peace on earth, good will to men." Simple, easily understood, and yet more potent than the accumulated forces of earthly wisdom, power and development is suddenly blazed forth in the darkness of our sinful world, and has stood there to be gazed at and loved and sought for by living men and dying men, and has always blessed those who have looked upon it. The sinful world remains a stern fact. The Christmas star has also remained as a fixed fact, and whenever we turn as a race toward the special remembrance of this gift, we recognize that it is new, different from our natural development, according to the human experience. Well does the Star of Bethlehem emblemize the Christmas season; well do we fill our homes and sanctuaries with the immortal evergreen; well do we give gifts, to remind ourselves of our great gift,—the child Jesus; well do our brightest songs swell forth in this gladsome time; Christmas is the birthday of our new world, our Christian civilization, and we do well to raise it high above all other seasons as to happiness and posterity.

Christmas in the Academy has always seemed to unite the joys of many homes in one. The buildings seem like one vast bower of evergreens. In past years the decorations were of a different nature from those of the present day. The writer of this article can well remember twenty-five years ago when passing from one room to another amid the almost bewildering splendors of transparencies, illuminated pictures, miniature landscapes, caves, grottos; scripture representations; and crowds of friends admiring and rejoicing. This has changed. Now the rooms are not less elaborately decorated, but the costly gifts from homes and friends are one of the chief attractions, and the individual is brought more prominently forward, while the united general effort is lost sight of. Still the season is the same. The happiness is the same. The precious remembrance of the birth of the world's Saviour is the same.

The Academy approaches the Christmas season and the close of the year with much to be thankful for, since its venerable age has not caused it to lose its strength, or to contract its usefulness. With its rooms and halls filled to overflowing, its faculty strong and ever strengthening, it sends to all its friends—to the gray-haired grandmother, to the mother in the prime of life, to the recent graduate just entering upon real life, to the pupils now within its walls, to those who are preparing to enter in the future,—yes, to fathers and husbands, to sons and brothers, to one and all, we send this greeting from our venerable school home,

GOD BLESS YOU, ONE AND ALL.

Correspondence.

Our monthly meeting around the board of our Alma Mater, through the Correspondence columns of THE ACADEMY, is a source of great pleasure to all of Salem's daughters. Occasionally a name comes up that we have not heard of for years and years, and with it a flood of recollections. This is the case with the following communication from a pupil of the long ago, MATTIE MCDANIEL, of Arkadelphia, Arkansas. She says:

"To-day in looking through some old treasures, THE ACADEMY fell under my eyes, and thoughts of other days came crowding upon my mind, the bright happy, days of school-life in old Salem. Our loved President, Mr. R. DESCHWEINITZ, Mrs. DENKE, Miss STAUBER, Miss PFOHL, Miss BRIETZ, as well as my beloved music teacher, Miss SMITH, have, no doubt, entered into their heavenly rest and received the plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servants!"

From 1854 to 1857 LAFAYETTE MCCLURE and I alone represented this State; I sometimes thought we attracted attention because we were from "way down in Arkansaw." Among my loved friends was LAURA HERRINGTON, of Woodville, Miss., afterwards Mrs. Montgomery. During the war I lost her address. I would like to know, through THE ACADEMY, if "Sis" NESBITT, of Spartanburg, S. C., MAGGIE COGGIN, of South Lovel, N. C., SALLIE WEBSTER, of Madison, N. C., MAGGIE MORRISON, of Estillville, Va., are among the living. The last named was indeed one of the most gifted and talented girls in school. Should any of these remember the name of MATTIE MCDANIEL, I would enjoy a letter from them. Nothing could afford me more pleasure than to meet you all in June, but the distance and feeble health will prevent. Please send me the April, May and June numbers of THE ACADEMY, and from this time on I will be a subscriber.

My address is

Mrs. M. A. ROWLAND.

Arkadelphia, Ark.

—Our next is from Miss AGNES M. THOMAS:

Some friend has forwarded THE ACADEMY to me, the contents of which I eagerly devoured, as I was for two years a pupil of the Salem Academy. It brought back vividly to my mind scenes and events of long, long ago. My twin sister, NANNIE H. THOMAS (who is now in heaven), and I were pupils while the Rev. Mr. BLECK was principal of the School. Time passes, and with it people come and go, so I find only a few familiar names in THE ACADEMY. I would like to have one of the pictures of the building which you said were still on hand: if all are disposed of please send me one of your new Catalogues and oblige an old pupil.

AGNES N. THOMAS.

Pamplin City, Va.

—A graduate of '89, MARY PFOHL, of Columbus, Ga., writes as follows:

The other day I suddenly awoke to the fact that school had commenced once more, and it was almost time for the September ACADEMY to appear, which reminded me that I had not sent in my subscription. As Miss LEHMAN has not yet returned from Europe, to my knowledge, I supposed you would be the proper person to send it to. I have spent a most delightful summer, but now that school has begun again I often think of the pleasant hours we spent together in the Senior class room, and almost wish we could have some of them over again.

Please send me two catalogues. I would be glad to be remembered to Dr. RONDTHALER and Miss LEHMAN. Give my kindest regards to Mrs. CLEWELL, accepting them also for yourself.

Your affectionate pupil,

MARY H. PFOHL.

Columbus, Ga.

—We were glad to hear of the whereabouts of a pupil of past years, JOSEPHINE JOHNSON:

Please send me a Catalogue of the School. I am an old student of the Academy of 1861. My maiden name was JOSEPHINE JOHNSON. Rev. ROBERT DE SCHWEINITZ was president during the four years I was an inmate of the school.

Respectfully,

Mrs. M. J. BARKSDALE.

Goshen Springs, Rankin Co., Miss.

—Miss EMMA SCHIFF, of Charlotte, sends us an interesting communication:

On my return home last week I was glad to find, among other mail matter, THE ACADEMY, and I took my first leisure moments to peruse it. The two letters were very entertaining. I felt especially interested in them because I hope to make a similar tour in the near future. I enjoyed a seven weeks' vacation, spending 5 of them in Atlantic City, N. J., and 2 with my sister, Mrs. Prince, in Washington, D. C. In Atlantic City, among other experiences, was the fearful storm that was so destructive all along the coast. We (my mother and I) were fortunate and yet unfortunate in the selection of a boarding place, fortunate in being able to view so grand a scene: we were only half a block from the beach, and unfortunate in being exposed to the full fury of the storm, both from the north-east and from the ocean. We found it especially disturbing at night: we lost two night's rest through its thundering noise.

It was not the first cyclonic storm we had been through. I will not encroach on your time by entering into a description of its horrors, nor its grandeur. Your own trip, no doubt, supplied you with experiences of a similar nature.

I was glad to note that the dear old Academy halls were so well filled with pupils, and hope it may ever have as many as its rooms can hold. It seems strange to picture the chapel as a sleeping-hall. I will enclose stamps for the renewal of my subscription for THE ACADEMY, and will enclose a tin-type of myself: it is as true as tin-types generally are.

Hoping that you are well, I am,

With much love,

M. EMMA SCHIFF.

707 E. Trade St., Charlotte, N. C.

—Our next is from far-off New Mexico:

I received a reminder from Salem that my subscription to THE ACADEMY had expired, so enclose 50 cents for another year of the paper. I would not be without it now. It is a link which binds me to the past. I read everything it contains except the ads. The list of all the pupils has reached the names of many who were in school with me, MAUD PHILLIPS, LADY BLEVINS, ROSA BRYAN and others. [LADY BLEVINS has a daughter, FANNIE NEILL, in the Academy now.—Eds. ACADEMY.]

I had a pleasant surprise last summer in meeting GUSSIE SHANNON in Denning, New Mexico, about 50 miles from my home. She has been in charge of the Public School there since last autumn, and has given great satisfaction to the patrons: she will teach there again this year. She is the first Salem girl I had met in a long time. I was very glad to hear you were going to take a trip to Europe. You will enjoy it I know, and you certainly deserve the rest and the pleasure.

I would be glad to write more, but have just recovered from an attack of illness, and my eyes are still very weak.

Yours, with fond remembrance,

MAUD A. FIELDER (CLEGG).

Silver City, New Mexico.

—We were glad to hear from JANIE SHERILLE, among others of our late graduates. She says:

It is useless to ask you if you had a pleasant vacation, for I know you had a most delightful time. I hope to see more of your tour in the next ACADEMY. I was busily engaged in reading your sketch in the last paper when I came to a sentence saying it would be continued in the next number of the paper. It is a long time to wait.

I am certainly glad to know that everything is moving on so nicely in school this year. Perhaps you remember with what interest we all used to read THE ACADEMY when we were there, and I can assure you that mine is more welcome now than it ever was before. Those were happy days, and I trust that every girl there now may look back to her school days in Salem as one of the most pleasant periods of her life.

I would like to come back and see how everything looks. I think I have an idea of many changes, but the chapel as a dormitory is one that I will have to see first in order to have an idea of its appearance. It does not seem natural to think of marches any where else than to the chapel for morning prayer, or for drill in calisthenics.

I saw Dr. Butner the other day, and it made me real homesick for Salem to hear him talk so much of the school.

I suppose I had better stop, though it is hard to, for I feel almost as if I were there. Please let me know when my subscription for THE ACADEMY is out. I will be glad to hear from you at any time, and so, with much love, will say good-bye.

As ever, one of your old girls,

JANIE SHERILLE.

Bennettsville, S. C.

—The next is a joint letter from two dear pupils:

After a long absence we have come once more to have a short talk with our dear old friend, and though this letter is from both of us, MATTIE says I must do the writing and act as spokesman.

I have been spending the summer here with Mama at Mercer, and MATTIE joined our happy circle two weeks ago on her return from Atlanta. We are all delighted to have her with us again.

We speak often, yes, very often, of our happy school-life, and the warm friendships formed while at Salem. I never meet an Alumna of our dear Alma Mater (and we are proud to be numbered among her daughters,) but speaks lovingly of her school-days spent at the Academy. My husband is traveling this summer in the interest of the Interdenominational S. S. work for the State. We have a sweet little girl whom we call Louise. She is now 8 months old, and is very interesting with her cute little ways and baby tricks; she is naturally the pet of the household.

Enclosed please find $1.00 to pay for THE ACADEMY for MATTIE and myself.

With many kind wishes for the success of our dear old Alma Mater, in which we shall ever feel a warm interest,

We are, lovingly, your girls,

MATTIE L. CALDWELL.

Concord, N. C.

M. LOUISE MACOMSON SCHELL.

Mercer, S. C.

—An extract from a letter of a dear pupil of 25 years ago, brings back many old memories. Her daughter is now a pupil here:

I received your catalogue and other papers some time ago. My daughter has been an orphan ever since she was 3 years old. She is now 16, and is very talented in music. My maiden name was ALICE EMANUEL, from Marlboro, S. C., and I was a pupil of your school in company with the WEATHERLY girls from that place from 1864 till June, 1866. I have two younger daughters whom I wish to educate at your school as soon as they are old enough.

Very respectfully,

Mrs. J. G. COBB.

Goldsboro, N. C.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—A pleasing souvenir of the Students' Tour was presented to each room Company in the form of a neatly framed picture. The pictures were purchased in Philadelphia, and were placed in the large room in Main Hall for several days previous to being sent to the rooms. From cards placed in the neat oak frames we noticed the following titles:

"The First Step,"	for the	10th	Room.
"Alderney,"	" "	9th	" "
"In Harvest Time,"	" "	8th	" "
"Haymakers' Lunch,"	" "	7th	" "
"At the Spring,"	" "	6th	" "
"Rising Moon,"	" "	5th	" "
"The Fisherman's Love,"	" "	4th	" "
"Rustic Felicity,"	" "	3d	" "
"Love or Country,"	" "	New	" "
"Cynthia,"	" "	North Sen'	r.
"Engaged,"	" "	South	" "

—A number of members of the large Senior Middle Class have determined to devote two years to the task assigned this somewhat heavily burdened class. The new division will be known as Senior Middle C, the other two divisions are A and B. This step is to be highly commended, and betokens a very healthy spirit in the Academic department. The result will give us improved scholarship, we believe, in each instance.

—The covered walk leading from Annex Hall to Main Hall has been completed, and now affords shelter to the young ladies when passing between the two buildings. A speaking tube will be placed beneath the roof of this covered walk and in this way the office will be connected with Annex Hall as well as with Main Hall. The distance from the Principal's office to Annex Hall will be about 400 feet.

—Work on the new Gymnasium has been pushed very rapidly during the past month. The excavation is completed, the large iron pillars have been placed in position, what was known in the past as the "coffee kitchen" has been moved up stairs, and the gymnasium floor will cover about 3300 square feet. The entrance to the gymnasium will be a double one, steps leading down from the north and side door of the dining-room. A special flight of stairs will give access to the rear of the dining-room because of the removal of the steps which formerly led from the coffee kitchen to the dining-room. The fire escape from the senior sleeping-hall will rest upon the platform connected with the steps alluded to. We hope within a few days to be able to take possession of this new hall, and all agree that it will be a most valuable addition to our school, especially in view of its present large attendance.

—Thanksgiving Day was spent very pleasantly by the young ladies within the ACADEMY. After supper the dining-room was cleared, and as the gymnasium is not yet open for use, a large number of the pupils gathered in the former place and spent the evening very pleasantly. Others remained in the study parlors, engaged in conversation, writing letters, working on Christmas presents, etc. Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL kept open house that evening, and quite a number of the young ladies called, spending the time in trying the new games recently brought from New York, and in pleasant conversation. All in all the day was a very successful one, and the turkey contributed its full share towards the enjoyment of the same.

—Dr. and Mrs. RONDTHALER, Miss ALICE and Howard were the guests of the school on Thanksgiving Day.

—Miss GERTRUDE JENKINS has accepted the position of stenographer in Mr. CLEWELL'S office, and between the present time and next summer will also continue Miss CLARK'S work with the students of short-hand.

—MAY BROADFOOT and FANNY COVINGTON visited Fayetteville during the Centennial, and report having had a very good time.

—The first snow of the season made its appearance on Thanksgiving Day. The mind naturally turns towards Christmas when indications of the near approach of winter are seen, and already the feeling that the happy season is near at hand may be discerned here and there throughout the school. In sharp distinction to the above, however, was a most magnificent collection of late roses, gathered from the Principal's house garden. These roses were as large, perfect and richly tinted as could possibly be found in June.

—"The Home" was very substantially remembered, in the way of sugar, rice, beans and meat, on Thanksgiving Day, by the two circles of "King's Daughters," organized among our boarding pupils.

—We return thanks to HATTIE SUTTON for an invitation to the reception tendered Miss Winnie Davis, daughter of Hon. Jefferson Davis, at the Fayetteville Centennial, November 20, 1889.

—An Inter-Society debate was held November 28th in the Philanthropic Hall, Davidson College, and we acknowledge the courtesy of the Committee who kindly sent us an invitation.

—The ladies of the Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association gave a thanksgiving dinner in the rooms of the Association, and THE ACADEMY was kindly remembered. Sorry we could not attend, but suppose justice was done the traditional turkey.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.

—One young lady astonished her friends by telling them she had joined Miss EVANS' Low Light (Lorelei) Club.

—Can the neighbors of the S. F. A. be said to be acquainted — by ear — with the vocal pupils of the institution?

—We are all anxiously waiting for the new hall to be finished. The musical lectures and other entertainments which made last year such an instructive one musically are greatly missed. There are several concerts fully prepared only waiting for some hall in which they can be given.

—The study of the Guitar seems to be very popular this year, and the dulcet sounds are heard proceeding from all corners of the ACADEMY.

—Members of the Lorelei Club are the following:

- |                   |                  |
|-------------------|------------------|
| Daisy Clisby,     | Annie Francisco, |
| Addie Laciard,    | Annie Jones,     |
| Emily Hazlehurst, | Lily Rogers,     |
| Mary Penn,        | Helen Ruff,      |
| Nellie Blair,     | Annie Covington. |

—Miss ADDIE LACIARD has commenced instruction in Vocal Music, and will probably soon have quite a large class.

—Last month the advanced pupils organized the "Lorelei Club" for the purpose of advanced musical instruction, ensemble singing and the study of the history of music. Some of the articles prepared by the members for the weekly meetings are most interesting, and selections from them will be published from month to month. The subjects last week were: The Beginnings of Opera; Pegolesi; Palestrina; The Motette and Mass.

LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT.

—The Post Graduates have been studying French a la Methode Naturelle for the past three months. They have now taken up one of Erckmann-Chatrion's well-known historical romances.

—Our youngest scholars in the language Department, Misses N. and K. WADDELL, M. and S. JOHNSON, GUNN and LUTZ, have mastered one of La Fontaine's fables.

—The new French game, fresh from Paris, is quite a favorite with some of the private classes.

—"Mlle Solange," by Francois de Julliot, one of the latest Romans Choisis, and a work crowned by the French Academy, is being enjoyed by Misses PRETLOW, CRAWFORD and MORER.

—The students of "la belle languie" number at the present 110.

—Cæsar, Virgil and Cicero are forming the subjects under consideration in the various Latin classes. The Seniors are taking Virgil earlier than any of their predecessors.

—German phrases are beginning to be very aptly used by some of students.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT.

Miss GERTRUDE JENKINS has attained such skill in the use of the Typewriter that she now takes the correspondence of the ACADEMY office on the typewriter at once from dictation, instead of by the double process of shorthand first and then copying upon the machine.

—While Mr. CLEWELL and party were North, Miss GLADYS CRAWFORD, one of our pupils in telegraphy, sent the messages from the ACADEMY over our private line to the Winston office, whence they were forwarded to Baltimore, New York, &c.

—The Commercial Department is unusually active; the noisy click of the Telegraph instruments and Typewriters; the pupils engaged in buying and selling in the book-keeping section; and the busy pens and pencils of the stenographers reminds one of a business house rather than of the school-room.

ART DEPARTMENT.

—What a good thing it is that the Studio is on the fourth floor of old S. F. A.: all work emanating therefrom must necessarily be "high art."

—An atmosphere of secrecy and intrigue pervades the Studio just now. Christmas draws near and various and sundry are the gifts preparing.

—Chrysanthemums have been levied on this Fall, and have been painted in every color and attitude. One always appreciates a flower better after the careful study necessary to produce its characteristic beauties. It seems to live and breathe before one, and possesses a subtle elusiveness of its own that tantalizes while it lures the student on.

Splinters Gathered by the Room Companies.

From the 3rd Room.

—One of our brightest young ladies distinguished herself the other day, in the Geometry class. Teacher: "How do you know that angle to be a right angle?" Young lady (with a confident wag of the head): "By hypotenuse."

—(Young lady, with a volume of Shakespeare under her arm). Mr. — addresses her: "I hear they have been laying in quite a supply of 'Lamb's Tales' at the ACADEMY." Young lady: "Oh, have they? What are they going to do with them?" Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise.

—If the services of a locksmith (Locke-Smith) are required for these jokes, call at the 3d Room.

—A young lady "wrapt up" in art was seen tearing from the studio to see a monkey and bag pipes. Do you suppose she wished to sketch from nature?

—The Psyche of the 3rd Room is on all occasions heard to exclaim. "Oh, shucks!" We would like to ask, is this characteristic of Psyche?

—We learn much in these progressive times. When Absalom wanted to be proclaimed king, he sent "spices" throughout the tribes of Israel (II. Sam. 10ch. 15v.) so they tell us in the third room.

From the 6th Room.

—"Slang" papers have been introduced into several of the room companies, and seem quite profitable.

—Our room has been ornamented with a number of pot-plants, which gives a cheerful aspect to the room.

—While preparing to attend the lecture on "Oriental Customs," the question was asked: "Will we sit in the conjugation (congregation)?" The effect of an over-worked brain. Teachers, beware!

—We feel the loss of our teacher very much, but join in best wishes for her happiness.

—Pupil—"What does mezzo-forte mean?" Music Professor—"Mezzo is middle or half. Do you know what forte means?" Pupil—"Yes." Music Professor—"Well, if you know what forte means, and mezzo signifies half, what is mezzo-forte?" Pupil, (triumphantly)—"Oh, yes, I know; it means twenty!"

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—LIZZIE WOLLE and JENNIE SEIGER, (Class of '87,) are spending the winter in the West Indies.

—Mrs Price visited her daughter, LINNIE, last month.

—A notice from Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Hopkins (DORA ADAMS), Atlanta, Ga., announces the arrival of a young lady at their home, Miss Dora Flournoy Hopkins.

—The following items were gathered by Miss SALLIE SHAFNER during her recent visit South, and have been handed to us:

Mrs. Townsend furnished the history of the Douglas family.

Laura Douglas is Mrs. J. Hardy, Columbia, S. C. SALLIE DOUGLAS is Mrs. Townsend, Union, S. C. ELMIRA DOUGLAS is Mrs. Moore, Wallaceville, S. C. ANNIE DOUGLAS is Mrs. Epes, Union, S. C. G— and JANE DOUGLAS live in Union, S. C.

ELMIRA JETER lives in Union, S. C. JANE JETER is Mrs. Douglas, also of Union.

ANN SARTER is Mrs. Bates, of Union, S. C. SALLIE SIMS is Mrs. Adolp. Lyles, Herbert, S. C.

EMMA LYLES is Mrs. Thomas, Herbert, S. C. Mrs. Col. Wiley furnishes the following notices:

JESSIE HENDERSON (1854) is Mrs. J. A. Fitzgerald, Newberry C. H., S. C.

JULIA SPRINGS is Mrs. Henry Gibson, of Columbia, S. C.

FANNIE HIGGINS is Mrs. Dr. Mackintosh, of Newberry, S. C.

ELMIRA HARDY, of Union, was Mrs. John Frost, of Columbia, S. C. She died May, 1889.

MARY HUSON is Mrs. John S. Wiley, of Columbia, S. C. Her only son lives in Salt Lake City, Utah. MARY HUSON lived in the ACADEMY from 1854 to 1859, and spent her vacations there. At the same time her brother was a pupil of the Salem Boys' School. She lives in a beautiful old Southern home in Columbia, with her husband and her niece.

SALLIE ROGERS is Mrs. Wm. Sloan, of Salt Lake City, Utah. She has three children. Visited her mother in Columbia last year.

MISSOURI WILLIFORD is Mrs. Minnaugh, of Columbia, S. C. She had three little girls, Jessie, 6 years old, Lucille, 4 years, and a baby. In July Jessie died after a short illness.

—The following items were obtained from Mrs Dr. Kernan:

PAULINE HULL is Mrs. W. Staley, Marion, Va. Was here in 1857.

VICTORIA HULL was Mrs. Dr. Apperson, and died in 1855.

MISSOURI THOMAS is Mrs. Maj. Pendleton. COLUMBIA THOMAS is Mrs. Look. Both of Marion, Va.

Subscriptions Received.

Miss Sallie Shaffner, Miss Laura Dicks, Mrs William Holman, Mrs A D Prince, Mrs M J Hill, Mrs Brown McCallum. Mrs J A Vance, Mr H W Fries, Mrs R A Ayers, Mrs Dora Adams Hopkins, Miss J Sherille, D Settle, Miss Kate Jones, Mrs Dr Read, Mrs C W Vogler, Mr W A Brown, Mrs J G Hunt, Miss Mary A Neil, Mrs W B Harris, Mrs C A Hege, Miss Mattie Williams, Miss Hattie Sutton, Miss Mary Fitzpatrick, Miss Lizzie Fitzgerald, Mrs U E Seybt, Mrs J N Wood, Miss Loula Kirke, Mrs E T Moore, Miss Jennie Reynolds, Miss Mary Paschal, Mrs Dr Kernan, Miss Maggie David, Mrs C M Howze, Miss C F Hunnicutt, Mrs W T Brown, Mrs G H Rights, Miss Addie Laciari, Miss Ida Moore, Miss Maggie McKinnon, Mrs Henrietta Bewley, Mr Samuel A Goodman, Miss Pamela C Goodman, Miss Laura Stokes, Miss A P Brown, Clinard & Brookes, Miss Pamela Bynum, Mr J W Biting, Mrs Dr R H Speight, Mrs Jas A Gray, Mr George D Shore, Miss Eddie Hunnicutt, Miss Myra Cabannis, Miss Lula Parker, Miss Mattie Barron, Mrs Anna L Mead, Mrs G W Pickle, Mrs M A Rowland, Mrs Idus L Fielder, Miss Julia Flake, Miss Rachel Simms, Mrs M L Early, Mrs Thos M Holt, Mrs Mary Rice, Miss Eugenia Nunnally, Mrs J W Cates, Mrs J M Fort, Mrs A P Phillips, Mrs Mollie Patterson, Mrs Anne Hall, Mrs N Wadley, Mrs L W Martin, Miss A Pittmann, Mrs A Matthews, Lieut H R Lenly, Mrs Wm Patterson, Miss Mary Atkinson, Miss Mary Gorrell, Mrs M J Phillips, Mrs Rosa Norfleet, Mrs R L Patterson, Mrs W C Wright, Miss Theo Fitzgerald, Miss Kate Furman, Miss Mattie Erwin, Miss Carrie Jones, Mrs Mary Leville, Mrs Ann Sturdivant, Mrs H A Lineback, E H Austin, Rev E S Wolle, Miss Alice Miller, Miss Mattie Spencer, Mr J W Biting, Miss Flora Lott, Mrs E C Williams, Mrs Eliza Kremer, Mrs Chas E Stevenson, Miss Pattie Coleman, Mrs W M Earnhardt.

Married.

WARD—HARRIS.—In Winston, Nov. 14th, Mr. CHARLES D. WARD, of Davie County, N. C., to Miss DORA HARRIS.

KETCHIN—CATHCART.—In Winnsboro, S. C., November 27th, Mr. H. E. KETCHIN to Miss ELLA CATHCART.

CROUSE—VOGLER.—In Salem, November 21st, Mr. J. CROUSE to Miss MARY ANNA VOGLER.

MICHAL—LENOIR.—At the Chapel of Rest, near Lenoir, N. C., October 17th, Mr. J. McD. MICHAL to Miss MARY LENOIR, (Class of '84).

BROWN—CLARK.—At the home of the bride, Little Rock, S. C., November 27, by Rev. J. E. Dunlop, Mr. WILLIAM A. BROWN to Miss ELIZA CLARK, (Class of '88).

APPLE—SCOTT.—In Milton, N. C., on November 12th, Mr. R. D. APPLE to Miss A. FLORENCE SCOTT.

WILLIAMSON—THOMPSON.—In Winston, on November 22d, Mr. ROBERT WILLIAMSON to Miss MINNIE THOMPSON.

Obituary.

—Miss PAULINA FOGLE, so long known as the faithful and efficient House-keeper of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, died suddenly of heart disease, on Friday evening, November 22.

She had been visiting relatives in the upper end of town, and was returning with her nephew Mr. C. Fogle, and her sister, Miss Lydia; as they reached the upper end of the graveyard avenue, she suddenly complained of extreme weariness and inability to proceed. She was placed in a chair, but before medical aid could be summoned her spirit had departed. All who knew her perceived that she was a sincere and simple-hearted disciple of Him "who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." Her great faithfulness to her duty was her leading trait. "She hath done what she could," was aptly chosen by Dr. RONDTHALER as the text of her funeral discourse. Her age was 78 years.

Funeral Notice of Mrs. J. G. M. Ramsay.

From the Charlotte Chronicle.

The Knoxville Daily Tribune of October 16th contains the following notice of Mrs. Dr. RAMSAY's funeral:

"The funeral of the venerable Mrs. Dr. J. G. M. RAMSAY occurred from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Brock, East Cumberland street, yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Dr. Park officiating. The services were unusually impressive, and were witnessed by a large circle of relatives and friends.

"The interment was held at the Lebanon graveyard, three miles from the city, and the deceased was laid by the side of the famous historian who had preceded her into the spirit land so many years before.

"And so, side by side, these two notable characters sleep, united even in death."

About two weeks since The Chronicle published a notice of Mrs. RAMSAY'S 87th birthday celebration. Mrs. RAMSAY was a daughter of John Crozier, of Knoxville, Tenn., was educated at Salem, N. C., about 1816, in the class with Mrs. James K. Polk and Mrs. Johnson (mother of Capt. James F. and Gen. R. C. Johnson). Mrs. RAMSAY, then MARGARET BERTEN CROZIER, travelled to Salem, N. C., on horseback. She was a close student all her life. She was learned in the history of the world, and in her old age was visited by many of the ripe scholars of America. A few years since Mr. Bancroft went to see her. She retained all her conversational powers to the last. Mrs. RAMSAY'S Christian life was an example to all around her.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

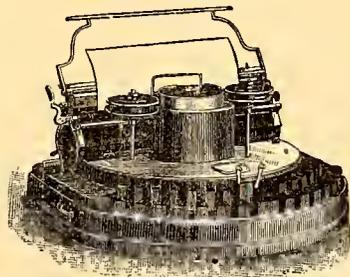

1867.

- 4649 SALLIE HARMON. — 1850.
Father, Theo. F. Harmon, Bush River, S. C.
- 4650 ANS ELIZA HILL. — 1850.
John G. Hill, Germantown, N. C.
- 4651 M. HELEN MOORE. — 1853.
James G. Moore, Newton Station, Miss.
- 4652 ANN ESTELLE HENTZ. — 1854.
William R. Hentz, Pomaria, N. C.
- 4653 SARAH ROSABEL BROWN. — 1854.
Mich. Brown, Colesville, N. C.
- 4654 ANNA P. POWELL. — 1853.
Joseph S. Powell, Hurtsville, Ala.
- 4655 KATE HAYLEY. — 1853.
Wm. A. Hayley, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4656 MINNIE GOODE. 1852.
Guardian, Dr. J. W. Mercer, Georgetown, Ga.
- 4657 JOSIE E. WARREN. — 1851.
Hon. L. C. A. Warren, Georgetown, S. C.
- 4658 MARY DARGAN. — 1851.
Sister, Clara Dargan, Winnsboro, S. C.
- 4659 NORA BUTLER. — 1854.
Grandfather, Dr. W. E. Butler, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4660 MATTIE BOON. — 1852.
John J. Boon, Jackson, Tenn.
- 4661 VIRGINIA INGE. — 1853.
Major Wm. B. Inge, Forkland, Ala.
- 4662 ANNA BLOCKER. — 1853.
4663 JULIA BLOCKER. — 1853.
Col. John R. Blocker, Forkland, Ala.
- 4664 JULIA FERRISS. — 1851.
Brother, William Perkins, Eutaw, Ala.
- 4665 NANNIE WATROUS. — 1855.
John C. Watrous, Galveston, Tex.
- 4666 ELIZA H. HUMPHREY. — 1857.
Col. L. W. Humphrey, Goldsboro, N. C.
- 4667 JENNIE P. WALL. — 1855.
Uncle, Hy. C. Wall, Rockingham, N. C.
- 4668 WILLA LEAK. — 1856.
Wm. C. Leak, Rockingham, N. C.
- 4669 JENNIE TUCKER. — 1852.
Wm. F. Tucker, Houston, Miss.
- 4670 LILLA MYERS. — 1856.
Simon Myers, Houston, Miss.
- 4671 SALLIE ROPER. — 1854.
Col. James F. Roper, Laurinburg, N. C.
- 4672 EMILIE F. ASKEW. — 1854.
Wm. F. Askew, Raleigh, N. C.
- 4673 MAGGIE MERCER. — 1852.
Dr. James R. Mercer, Joyner's Depot, N. C.

- 4674 RUTH BRIDGERS. — 1854.
Col. John L. Bridgers, Tarboro, N. C.
- 4675 SARAH SHERROD. — 1852.
J. M. Sherrad, Hamilton, N. C.
- 4676 SARAH L. CHERRY. — 1854.
M. L. Cherry, Tarboro, N. C.
- 4677 MARY ORME. — 1854.
W. P. Orme, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4678 MITTIE BROWN. — 1853.
W. R. Brown, Port Valley, Ga.
- 4679 HALLIE M. ATKINS. — 1853.
Col. B. F. Atkins, Richmond, Texas.
- 4680 MARY LEDBETTER. — 1856.
John F. Ledbetter, Little's Mill, N. C.
- 4681 VIRGINIA ELIZABETH MATTHEWS. — 1854.
4682 SALLIE MATTHEWS. — 1856.
Dr. J. F. Matthews, Walkertown, N. C.
- 4683 MOLLIE S. WAY. — 1853.
Dr. E. F. Way, Hawkinsville, Ga.
- 4684 MINNIE S. MANNING. — 1855.
Guardian, J. L. Warren, Perry, Ga.
- 4685 MARY F. TATE. 1851.
4686 CAROLINE TATE. — 1851.
Robert M. Tate, Bellevue, Ala.
- 4687 NANNIE SANDERS. — 1844.
Grandmother, Mrs. Sophia Ross, Uniontown, Ala.
- 4688 KATE HURLEY. — 1852.
C. S. Hurley, Brenham, Texas.
- 4689 LIDIE FRANCES VANCE. — 1854.
4690 M. ELLA VANCE. — 1855.
David Vance, Martin Depot, S. C.
- 4691 ROSA PEARSON. — 1851.
Brother, Robert Pearson, Clayton, Ala.
- 4692 SALLIE ANN LONG. — 1856.
Grandfather, Branch Penick, Vanceville, N. C.
- 4693 LUCY W. SPENCER. — 1854.
D. H. Spencer, Horsepasture, Va.
- 4694 SALLIE DUNCAN. — 1853.
John P. Duncan, Clinton, S. C.
- 4695 VITERIA MADORA BRIGGS. — 1853.
R. P. Briggs, Clinton, S. C.
- 4696 GEORGIA STEELE. — 1846.
Thos. Steele, Little Rock, Arkansas.

HENRY W. MILLER,
STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer
RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
Price, complete with two type wheels, $100.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.
Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.
Send for Catalogue.
WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

Miss PHEBE TURNER, Winston, N. C.

WANTED.—Position as music teacher in school or private family by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address K. M., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.—A position as teacher by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address B., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady as Phonographer.
Address
C.—care of The Academy,
Salem, N. C.

BINGHAM SCHOOL.

(Established in 1793.)
is PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys, in AGE, in the high standing of its PATRONS, in AREA of PATRONAGE, and in equipment for PHYSICAL CULTURE. Location in the COUNTRY. Organization MILITARY.
The 96th Annual Year will begin Sept. 1, 1889.
Maj. R. BINGHAM, Supt.
Bingham School P. O., Orange Co., N. C.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA
SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.
The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker
To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. "The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California.
Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to
R. A. WILLIAMS, G.S.-E.T.P.A., P.O. Box 236, Atlanta, Ga.
S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass. & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

*MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH,***
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF
PIANOS,
NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.
Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
Tompkinsville, Staten Island, N. Y.
CARE OF MRS. YOLLER.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.
JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.
Salem Female Academy,
Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

SPENCERIAN
STEEL PENS
Are the Best,

IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF
Durability, Evenness of Point, and Workmanship.
Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail, on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. &
IVISON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway, New York.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with
an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.

For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the

East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble ballast, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going or returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and welfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address
B. W. WRENN,
G. P. A.,

JNO. L. MILAM,
D. P. A.

Knoxville, Tenn.

C. A. DeSAUSSURE,
A. G. P. A.
Memphis, Tenn.

ST. LOUIS,
ARKANSAS &
TEXAS RAILWAY.

→ COTTON × BELT × ROUTE. ←

The Direct Line between the Educational
Centres of the South-East and
Arkansas and Texas.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN POINTS ON
THIS LINE AND

Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Atlanta.

PULLMAN BUFFET SLEEPERS, FREE RECLINING
CHAIR CARS, ALL THE COMFORTS AND
CONVENIENCES OF MODERN TRAVEL.

On advice being sent to any of the following,
an Agent of this Company will meet all pupils
at the various junction points, en route, and render any assistance or information necessary.

For further information, address

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield,
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.

GRANDEST DISPLAY
OF

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

BLUMS' PARLOR.

ALL THE NOVELTIES OF CHRISTMAS IN CARDS,
BOOKS FANCY GOODS, PAPERS, NOVELTIES, ILLUMINATED BOOKS FOR YOUNG AND OLD, STANDARD AUTHORS CHEAP.

Miss CARRIE CRIST in charge.

DON'T NEGLECT TO CALL.

SALEM, N. C.

THE SHORT LINE FROM
CHATTANOOGA and BIRMINGHAM
TO

NEW ORLEANS,

Where direct connection is made with the SOUTHERN PACIFIC and TEXAS & PACIFIC RY'S, for
Texas, Mexico and California,
THE SHORT LINE via VICKSBURG and SHREVE
PORT to TEXAS, MEXICO and CALIFORNIA,
NEW MEXICO, COLORADO and the FAR
WEST. Close connection made at Shreveport without transfer through the City.

From TEXAS to the
NORTH AND EAST,
Via SHREVEPORT.

Close connections without transfer through the City.
Leave Shreveport 7:00 A. M.

Through Sleeping Cars to ATLANTA via BIRMING-HAM making direct connections for

SAVANNAH, AUGUSTA, CHARLESTON,
AND POINTS IN

Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and the East,
Connecting at MERIDIAN with Main Line Trains.

J. C. GAULT, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS,
Gen'l Mgr. G. P. & T. A.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere;
Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then
will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLINARD & BROOKES. —

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,

CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., JANUARY 1890.

NUMBER 102.

— FOUNDED 1802. —

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA.

This old and well-known Institution is at present instructing about 300 students, and has the following separate and well equipped departments:—

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, extending over 3 years.

COLLEGE COURSE, extending over 4 years.

POST GRADUATE COURSE (degree of A. B.), extending over 1 year.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

SCHOOL OF ART.

SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

Full information as to any department will be furnished upon application to

Rev. JOHN H CLEWELL, Principal.

FLORENCE.

BY MISS LEHMAN.

"Here the Etruscan Athens claims and keeps
A softer feeling for her fairy halls;
Girt by her theatre of hills she reaps
Her corn, and wine, and oil,—and Plenty leaps
To laughing life with her redundant horn.
Along the banks where smiling Arno sweeps
Was modern Luxury of Commerce born,
And buried Learning rose, redeemed to a new morn."

There is nothing on earth so charming, so satisfying to every fibre of our æsthetic nature as the noble old Italian cities, Rome, Florence and Venice. We are dazzled, drunk with beauty; the heart swells with its fulness, and we stand as captives chained to the triumphal car of Art. But when we see their stately palaces, their glorious works of art, and then turn to the lower classes, content and besotted in their degradation, we can only exclaim with the poet, "Italia! oh, Italia! thou hast the fatal gift of beauty!"

The railway journey between Rome and Florence we made in the night, leaving Rome at 11 P. M., and reaching the Grand Hotel Florence et Washington at 6:30 in the morning, but there were no specially interesting features on the way to make a day trip more desirable. Florence is well surnamed "the Beautiful," as she lies on both sides of the river Arno: the name Fierenze, given by an Italian tongue, sounds little like the Florence of English-speaking people. Our hotel lay right on the beautiful Quai, or promenade, the Lung' Arno, and as we sat at breakfast, we saw the fishermen, in their little boats, with dip-nets fishing in the river: on the opposite bank, women were down at the water's edge, doing their regular washing. Our rooms at the hotel were very pleasant, consisting of a suite of rooms, with a balcony, which enabled us to enjoy the sights and sounds so novel and so interesting.

After breakfast, where we met a number of American ladies and gentlemen, we set out to explore the lovely city by the help of a local guide-book, couched, however, in wonderful English. Four elegant bridges crossed the river in sight of our hotel; we walked along the Lung' Arno, lined with bric-a-brac shops of loveliest mosaics, the work for which Florence is most celebrated: its shops are the finest in the world. We made our way to the Piazza della Signoria, the historic and the business centre of the city. Here Savonarola, the grand old man, was hanged and then burned, in 1498. Here stands the Palazzo Vecchio, the old Capitol of the Republic, and the residence of Cosmo di Medici. At the entrance is Bandinelli's colossal group of "Hercules and Cacus." The court is adorned with sculpture and fountains. The great hall is frescoed, and contains Passaglio's statue of Savonarola. Near the palace is the magnificent "Fountain of Neptune": the statue of Neptune in the centre is 20 feet high; the horses attached to his car are very spirited, and equally so are the tritons, nymphs, nereids, &c. To the right of this noble fountain is an equestrian statue of Cosmo di Medici, by John of Bologna. On the south side of the square is the Loggia dei Lanzi, called D'Orcagno from the architect. This is an open, vaulted hall, beautiful in itself, as well as for the masterpieces of sculpture there enshrined. The original object of this Loggia was to provide a place for the magistrates when they wished to convoke the people. Among the lovely groups of statuary are "Ajax Dying," "Rape of the Sabines," "Hercules and the Centaur," "Perseus," by Benvenuto Cellini, "Judith," by Donatello, "The Rape of Polyxena," 2 colossal marble lions, and many other figures, the mention of which would fill a page.

Adjoining this magnificent Loggia is the Portico degli Uffizzi, the entrance to the great Uffizzi palace and art galleries, the finest in the world, founded by the Medici. The names of the statues and paintings of this Gallery, which, joined to the Pitti Gallery on the opposite side of the river, is nearly two miles in extent, would fill a large volume. Among its countless halls, the one known as The Tribune is the sanctum sanctorum of this temple of art. Hawthorne says: "It is the richest room in the world,—a heart that draws all hearts to it." It contains "The Venus di Medici," "The Dancing Faun," "The Wrestlers," "The Apollina," and other master-pieces of ancient art. Besides the great works of M. Angelo, Raphael, Titian, Correggio and others, there are all sorts of collections of gems, of Italo-Greco vases, of coins, of 30,000 drawings by great Italian masters, and every imaginable article of beauty. There is also a grand Library with rare old Manuscripts.

The Pitti Palace is on the other side of the Arno, built by Luca Pitti, in 1440, and enlarged by the Medici. The Picture Gallery is connected with the Uffizzi Gallery by a covered way over the Ponte Vecchio, a fine old bridge. Here the artist revels like a bee amid rarest treasures and sighs with excess of riches. It would be a hopeless task to give names of the works of art here stored away, in this realm of delights. I counted 680 portraits of Medici and other distinguished men in the gallery over the bridge; they were 3 deep on the walls. We crossed 6 halls of statuary and paintings to get to the Pitti or Palatine Gallery, and were astounded at the richness and beauty all around. The halls were paved with mosaic figures of choicest polished marbles, of porphyry, of lapis-lazuli, of malachite, every rich tint combined with more than royal magnificence. There were tall vases of Sevres, or Malachite cabinets, inlaid with richest mosaic work, much finer than those we saw at Windsor and Versailles Palaces, too gorgeous even for emperors and kings. In the Hall of Saturn we noted the famous "Madonna della Seggiola (the Madonna of the Chair)", by Raphael, which an artist was copying at the time, but it is impossible to give even the names of the various halls, as the Hall of Flora, of Prometheus, of Jupiter, of Venus, the Corridor of the Columns, the Poetti Gallery, &c.

We next turned our steps to the Duomo or Cathedral; here, too, is a noble trio of buildings, the Duomo, the Campanile and the Baptistery, (built like the great monuments of Venice also are) of brick, and then covered over with slabs of choicest colored marbles of every hue and tint. To describe them would take page after page, exhausting writer and reader, and then the half would not have been told. Of this noble Duomo Michelangelo said, when he viewed it before working upon St. Peter's: "Surpass it I cannot; imitate it I will not." The Baptistery is a poem in marble, with its glorious bronze doors, of which Angelo enthusiastically said: "These are worthy to be the Gates of Paradise." Here every Florentine has been baptized from Dante and Lorenzo il Magnifico to the wee mortal born but yesterday.

The great Florentine Pantheon comes next, the church of Santa Croce, with a colossal statue of Dante in the centre of the Piazza which fronts it.

"In Santa Croce's holy precincts lie Ashes which make it holier, dust which is Even in itself an immortality. Here repose Angelo, Alfieri's bones, and his
The starry Galileo, with his woes,
Here Machiavelli's earth returned to whence it rose;
Ungrateful Florence! Dante sleeps afar!
And Santa Croce wants his mighty dust;
Yet for this want more noted."

Florence bitterly laments the folly of her old Guelphic and Ghibelline factions, which burned Savonarola and banished Dante. His ashes rest in Ravenna; though Florence has tried hard to get them, they are justly denied her. The church of Santa Croce contains the finest marble pulpit in Italy and certainly in the world. A young Italian guide explained the tombs and monuments to us very well, considering the fact that he had only studied English 3 months. In the Bonaparte chapel are the tombs of Caroline, the wife of Joseph and Julia Clara, the daughter of Lucien, besides other noted tombs. Ugo Foscolo's grave is here; he was mentioned by Dante in his Divina Comedia.

Returning to our hotel for the night, thoroughly tired out, we took the next morning for a drive about the environs of Florence. We passed over the Arno by the Ponte St. Trinita, a handsome stone bridge, ornamented with statues, thence drove through the Porto Romano, or Roman Gate, for Florence is a walled city, out the Viale Machiavelli, past the lovely Tivoli Gardens, to the Piazza of Galileo, where Galileo's old square observatory tops the hill, to the church of San Miniato, thence to the still more elevated Piazza of Michelangelo, with its colossal bronze statue of the young David. We alighted in this noble Piazza to examine the monument, which contains other marble figures of Day and Night, Dawn and Daylight, etc. The panoramic view of Florence from this elevated place is transcendently beautiful. We looked down terrace after terrace of a fine road, a regular Boulevard, winding around the hill crowned by this Piazza, and bordered with trees, olives, horsechestnuts, etc. No wonder Florence is termed the Beautiful! She well deserves it, la bella Firenze, as she nestles in the lovely Val d' Arno, the river winding through her fairest portions! Fiesole, Val-lambrosa, and half a hundred other towns and villages were dotted all about; in the background lay the blue Alban hills, while back of those the dark Appenines almost touched the skies that bent over them so lovingly. The Boboli Gardens, the pride of Florence, lay to our left as we descended from terrace to terrace. The massy walls of the city were to our right, with their deep moats and strong defences. In front of us, and a little to the right, rose the Palazzo Vecchio, the Uffizi Palace, and the Immortal Three, the Baptistery, Campanile and Cathedral. A little farther on the marble walls of Santa Croce gleamed; the Pitti Palace was on this side of the river. The homes of Michelangelo, of Dante, of Amerigo Vespucci, of Galileo, of Machiavelli, giants among modern pigmies, are all marked by tablets.

After the delightful morning drive we visited the Protestant cemetery, where we found the tomb of Mrs. Elizabeth Barrett Browning, the gifted poet, whose poet-husband, Robert Browning, then yet alive, has now, too, crossed the silent river. A simple, marble cenotaph, with a lyric cut in relief, and the letters "E. B. B., Obit. 1861," is all that marks her resting-place. We saw, too, the graves of Theodore Parker, Arthur Hugh Clough, Walter Savage Landor, etc. In the afternoon we walked to the Boboli Gardens, the famous Grotto of Neptune, the Amphitheatre, Pitti Palace, &c., but time and space forbid a more extended notice.

Christmas in the Academy.

BY ANNIE BOURDEAUX.

SCHOOL closed for the holidays Friday the 20th, but we did not begin decorating until Monday, as Saturday and Sunday were needed for rest. Monday morning, bright and early, in the best humors possible, the girls from the various room companies, with baskets, started to the play-grounds to obtain a goodly supply of evergreens to adorn and brighten up their rooms for the joyous Christmas season; the girls of each company declaring that their room would be the prettiest. After a little while the girls began to return with their baskets well filled with all that the play-grounds afforded and which would serve to liven up and make more cheerful their rooms. Almost the entire day was spent in decorating and brightening up the different study parlors, each company having a different design. Monday night was spent very pleasantly in reading and quiet converse. Christmas Eve is one of the happiest holidays, owing to the two lovefeasts which are always held in the church on that day. Then too, we see the church decorated for the first time, which is always appropriate and beautiful, but was especially so this year. Directly above the pulpit in large evergreen letters is, "Glory to God in the Highest," on the south gallery, "Peace on Earth," and on the north gallery, "Good will to Men." Below the inscription above the altar is a cross made of evergreens with a golden crown on it, below this is a picture of the nativity of Christ, lighted from the back. From either side of this cross large festoons fall in very graceful loops and then extend the entire length of the gallery. In the center of the church a large bell made of evergreens is suspended ready to "Ring out the old, ring in the new." This also is surrounded with festoons of evergreens in the form of a square. In the afternoon is the lovefeast for the younger children, which is thoroughly enjoyed by all who attend. After the little ones have partaken of the lovefeast a lighted taper is given each of them, a beautiful emblem of Christ as the light of this world. The older children and adults have their lovefeast in the evening, when the church is filled to overflowing. The service is very interesting and makes a lasting impression on the minds of all those who participate.

Christmas morning dawned bright and clear. The girls after a hasty toilet, hurried to their rooms to see what "Santa" had left them during the night. Words of admiration came from all lips in such expressions as, "Oh, how lovely!" "Isn't this beautiful!" After breakfast the study parlors are thrown open and the girls go from one to the other to look at and admire the decorations and presents. Starting at the North Senior we find over the door as we enter, S. F. A. in large letters made of glass surrounded with cedar. In one of the north corners Shakespere is crowned with laurel, in the other is a pile of books with the bird of wisdom perched upon them. A guitar is gracefully suspended by a rope of evergreens; near the centre is hung a large bunch of mistletoe, of which the unsuspecting visitor has to be careful lest he (?) be caught and have to pay the penalty. Passing on we next come to the South Senior which is very artistically decorated. Above the door we notice, I. H. S. instead of S. F. A. In one of the south corners is a fine bust of Niobe, tastefully decorated with laurel and ivy; on the side a statue of Beethoven holding a roll of music; the presents are displayed on the west side of the room, under a bunch of holly with its red berries. The pictures are becomingly draped with ivy and periwinkle. After wishing the occupants a Merry Christmas, we went over to the Third room. This room has no Christmas tree, as do all of the others except the two Seniors. The decorations here are not as elaborate as are some of the others, but the room did not suffer, and is withall very pretty. Next came the Fourth room, which is one of the brightest rooms in the house, and did not take much decorating to make it look Christmas-like. The Christmas tree is in the south side and over the door we noticed the beautiful holly. Leaving this we then go to the Special room, which we find to have the most home-like appearance of all that we had visited. "Santa" had deposited an ample supply of presents here, which were displayed to an advantage, and left the impression that though there were many none should be forgotten. We have now finished with the second floor so go down to the first. The Fifth room is the first that we visit down here. On entering we notice the beautifully decorated Christmas tree in the north side of the room, and over the door "Happy New Year" in large gilt letters. The many gifts are shown on a table draped in white looped with evergreens. After wishing the girls a joyous day we go to the Sixth room. The motto of this room is Gratulamur Omnes, the pictures are decorated with spruce and cedar; The presents are not on one table, but scattered about at the different girls' places. Ere we had finished here one of the Seventh room girls came and asked us to go with her to look at her room, which she said was the prettiest in the house. We followed and found the room very beautiful indeed. A large festoon is looped from one gas jet to the other, and on a red back ground in gilt is "Merry Christmas," which did much to brighten up the room. Instead of putting the tree on a table here as did the others, it stands on the floor, which is covered with moss around the foot of the tree and for some distance out; over the door is a harp made of evergreens. Leaving this we were next invited to the Eighth room which is decorated very much as the others, having the Christmas tree very brightly ornamented and the pictures well hung with laurel and cedar. From here we hastened over to Annex Hall as it is nearly church time. Everything over here is very bright and Christmas like. The girls of the two rooms have made the whole building as cheerful as possible and seemed to be as happy and contented as we would wish to see young girls. Just as we reached Main Hall the joyous Christmas bells chimed out and called us to church, where we heard a good sermon by Dr. RONDTHALER, and joined in the Christmas Liturgy. Afterwards came the Christmas dinner, the dining-room is darkened and dimly lighted by gas and the little tapers. Mr. CLEWELL wished us a Merry Christmas, and then invited us over during the afternoon to see his decorations. He suggested that instead of one asking God's blessing we should all lift up our voices with our hearts and join in singing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." After dinner we went over to see what Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL had done to make the little folks happy and find that everything has been contrived that would interest and amuse the children. Passing through the parlor which is filled with girls amusing themselves with the nice games Mr. CLEWELL recently purchased, we come into the room where the presents are displayed, and the one that has been so extensively decorated. Behold! there is the old castle, and a cave of wild animals; a little further down is the old water mill, and as the water gave out while we were looking on, we were forcibly reminded that, "The the mill will never grind with the waters that have passed." Over on the other side baby John is amusing himself by fishing in a little lake. Just above this is the "Old Log Cabin in the Lane." Bidding Mrs. CLEWELL good-bye we returned to the Academy, where we found Dr. RONDTHALER, who had come to make us a Christmas visit. Wednesday night we attend a concert in the church, given by the Home Sunday School. The entertainment was entitled "The First Christmas," and was very much enjoyed by all. Thursday was spent just as the girls chose, some reading, others practicing, and all enjoying themselves as only school girls can. Thursday evening we again go to a concert in the church given by the Elm Street Sunday School; this also proved to be an enjoyable occasion. Friday and Saturday were spent very much as Thursday had been. Sunday we went to church and heard a very good sermon by Mr. McCUISTON. Sunday night Dr. RONDTHALER preached his fifth in a series of sermons on King David. Monday night the Salem Orchestra gave a concert in the Gymnasium Hall, which we attended and enjoyed to the fullest extent. Tuesday afternoon the children's closing meeting was held; in the evening at 8 o'clock the Memorabilia was read. At 11:30 o'clock we went to the church to watch the old year out and the new one in. Just as the clock struck the first stroke of twelve organ and instruments triumphantly proclaimed the birth of the new. Thus ended our joyous and happy holidays, the evening of this day being devoted to a pleasant reception tendered the pupils and teachers by Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL.

Our Studio.

FORMER pupils will remember the Drawing-room as being on the fourth floor of the new building. But the Academy Kaleidoscope has been turned several times since then, and the Drawing-room, ("Studio" now), has been shaken over into the fourth floor of the north wing, two stories above the Infirmary. The old Drawing-room is partitioned, one part being the Commercial-room and the other the hall of the Euterpean Society. The present Studio was formerly partitioned off into three compartments with a narrow passage way, and were used as trunk-rooms. The walls seem almost to speak (walls are said to have ears, why not tongues?) of surreptitious larks, when contraband provisions were smuggled into them and partaken of by whispering culprits seated on trunks and boxes.

The aspect of things is very different now. The large room with three north windows looking out on the church roof is admirably adapted to its purpose. Two curtains prevent different light on the casts and objects to be drawn or painted, by giving each alcove only the light from one window.

While the Art students are not quite high enough to receive the school noises transmuted into soft music, the strains of the long suffering pianos in the practicing rooms are far off and mercifully faint.

There are plaster casts of the best Antiques, Venus de Milo, Apollo, Diana, Psyche and a number of others, from which the more advanced pupils are working, while the geometrical casts sit about in groups trying not to mind it when they are squinted at out of one eye, gauged with a ruler and often have very uncomplimentary pictures made of them.

Although so near the old church clock, students seldom hear it strike the quarters, and often exclaim, "There I've worked at this an hour and hav'nt it right yet," verifying the line of the Poet,

"Art is long and time is fleeting."

CIRCULAR LETTER.

To the Citizens of Salem and Winston:

During the past months I have given considerable thought to the matter of the Musical and Literary Entertainments of the Winter, and have had occasion to very carefully measure the amount of interest and talent which exists at the present time in our communities. I have, also, been interested in the past in the visits which talented combinations have made to our towns, and believe that such visits have greatly benefitted and stimulated the interest in music. These two lines of thought have resulted in several clearly marked conclusions, which I think almost every one will agree with me are correct.

First. Every first class organization which has visited our communities in the past has thoroughly worked up an interest in our midst, has brought us something good, has told us in many ways that they had something good, has aroused a keen desire on the part of our citizens to enjoy the treat, and has in every instance received as much money (or nearly as much) as our home societies receive throughout the entire season.

Second. Our home organizations have labored earnestly and faithfully, and have attained a point of excellence which gives them the front rank in our State, and which causes every citizen of our towns to feel proud of their success. But when public entertainments are given the advertising is more modest, the interest is not so easily aroused, because it is a home organization, and the support seems to be lacking and the interest, wanting because the financial results are not as great as is the case when strangers come into our midst.

Third. Without in any way discounting the concerts and financial support of visiting musicians and musical organizations, I have felt that something more could be done for the financial support of our ORCHESTRA and PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY if the appeal were made a little more strongly to our people, the advertising methods made more thorough, the public informed more fully as to what the entertainments will consist of, in short, the same "stir" made in regard to our home talent that is made by our shrewd friends from the great cities.

Fourth. Some leadership was needed, and in answer to the question, "Who shall lead?" there seemed none more fitted than the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, an institution which is under such extraordinary obligations to both the ORCHESTRA and the PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY for numberless favors in the past, and which owes so much to the patriotic support of the communities in which it is situated. Feeling this to be the true situation, the undersigned, in the name of the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, suggested to the Professors of the institution and to the two Societies named, the plan of a winter evening course of entertainments, and the proposition met with the approval of all. I then discussed the subject with a number of our citizens, and here, too, a hearty endorsement was given. Therefore, the WINTER EVENING COURSE OF ENTERTAINMENTS was formally decided upon, and the Committees appointed, who now submit to the public the letter which follows, and officially conduct the entire management of the Course. I would state in conclusion that the larger portion of the funds will go to the two Societies named, and the part which would naturally fall to the school for the outlays for gas and other incidental expenses, will be donated to the "Griffiss Library Fund." Hence, every dollar of the proceeds of this purely home enterprise will be devoted to good and permanent home interests. Trusting that by this effort some pleasure may be given to our communities and some support to our Societies which otherwise would not have been given,

I remain, very sincerely,

JOHN H. CLEWELL,

Principal of Salem Female Academy.

ANNOUNCEMENT

OF THE

COMMITTEE REGARDING THE

Winter Evening Course of Entertainments.

The Committee offers to the public seven entertainments during the months of January, February, March and April. The entertainments will be given in the Gymnasium Hall of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, and below will be found a brief sketch of the course.

NO I.

JANUARY 31, 1890.

SALEM ORCHESTRA.

The first Concert in the Winter Evening Course will be given by the SALEM ORCHESTRA, and will consist of a programme of entirely new selections. The ORCHESTRA, at present, consists of 18 members, the following being a list of the instruments used:

3 1st Violins,	1 Clarinet,	1 Cornet,
3 2d Violins,	2 Flutes,	1 Trombone,
3 Violas,	1 'Cello,	2 Fr. Horns.
	1 Bass Violin,

In addition to the general excellence of the individual performers, there is a marked advantage gained by full orchestral effects, such as no small number of performers can attain, however excellent the performance. The Director and members of the ORCHESTRA will make up a programme with great care and will add all features possible in order to make this, the opening of the Course, worthy of the support which we trust will be given to it.

NO. 2.

FEBRUARY 14, 1890.

LECTURE by Rev. EDWARD RONDTHALER, D. D.

Subject:—GREECE.

No one can hear the classic name of this famous country mentioned without feeling pleasure in looking forward to this portion of the Winter Evening Course. Aside from the great historical interest, Doctor RONDTHALER'S recent visit will enable him to add double interest and vividness to his treatment of the subject, and every one should endeavor to be present at the above date.

NO. 3.

FEBRUARY 28, 1890.

Concert by SALEM PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

This SOCIETY comes before the public regularly once a season, and always brings something good with it. This year it has been studying portions of the a ballad founded on Danish legends. The wierd legends, which almost resemble the forms of the evening mists in their wild and fantastic shapes, always thrill the reader, but never so strongly as when presented by the musician with a full chorus.

ERL KING'S DAUGHTER,

The SOCIETY will also give selections from Comala, another production of Gade, and akin to the above. This introduces the audience to a succession of scenes of love and romance; battle and carnage; death and lamentation.

Both of these poems will afford a pleasing evening in the Course.

NO. 4.

MARCH 14, 1890.

MOZART EVENING, by Prof. G. MARKGRAFF.

The evening will be introduced by a short lecture by the Professor, which will be followed by a series of selections from the works of the great composer. The concert will contain as a portion of the programme, the famous Requiem, rendered by the full Choral Class of the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, Misses EVANS and CARMICHAEL and Messrs. VOGLER and EBERT taking the place of chief soloists, and the SALEM ORCHESTRA accompanying this entire portion of the programme. Those who will study the life of this famous composer, and especially the history of the Requiem, cannot fail to look forward to this evening as one of prospective rare enjoyment.

NO. 5.

MARCH 28, 1890.

CONCERT, by Miss KATHARINE W. EVANS, consisting of an evening with the Oratorios. Choice selections will be given from The Creation, Messiah, Elijah, Rossini's Stabat Mater, Gounod's Redemption and Barnby's Rebekah. The extraordinary interest which exists in this flourishing department of the ACADEMY at the present time, and the peculiarly wide and rich field from which the selections will be made, will form a welcome announcement to the public in this fifth part of our Winter Evening Course.

NO. 6.

APRIL 11, 1890.

*LECTURE by Prof. WM. A. BLAIR.
Subject:—ROME.*

The Committee feels certain that our communities will welcome the popular and successful Principal of the Winston Graded School, who also is at present regularly lecturing to the Post Graduates in the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY on Psychology and the Science of Teaching,—we repeat that our communities will welcome Professor BLAIR at the above date. The lecture will be based chiefly upon his recent visit to the great city of Rome, and contain among other interesting materials many stories and legends which he gathered during his stay in Italy. This portion of the course will fully sustain the high order of that already announced, and will be both profitable and pleasant for all who attend.

NO. 7.

APRIL 25, 1890.

The Course will be closed with a Grand Concert by the SALEM ORCHESTRA, for which a fine programme will be arranged and which will form a fitting close to the series.

Price of tickets will be $2.00 for the Seven Concerts and Lectures. Children, under 16 years, half price.

Reserved chairs may be secured for the entire Course without extra charge. Also for single evenings.

Price of admission at the door will be 50 cents for each Concert and Lecture, when season tickets have not been purchased. Children half price as above.

Season tickets may now be had at the office of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, and at Browns' Drug Store, Winston, where a diagram of hall will be found.

All the entertainments will begin at 8 o'clock sharp.

Tickets will be transferable, i. e., if you cannot attend hand your ticket to some friend for that entertainment.

All right to control of the hall remains with the authorities of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

The Committee appeals to every patriotic citizen of our towns to support the Course described above. Come yourself; bring your family with you; bring your friends! What better gift could be given to a faithful employee than a season ticket? The seven evenings will give him "a week" of rare pleasure, and the end of the winter will find him none the worse for the elevating enjoyment. Therefore, support the Course, and you will aid a worthy cause and attend a series of high-class performances.

Respectfully submitted by the Committee.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Ch'm'n.
GEORGE MARKGRAFF,
MISS KATHARINE W. EVANS.
B. J. PFOHL,
W. P. ORMSBY,
WILLIAM PETERSON,
EUGENE EBERT,
GEORGE RIGHTS,
FRANK VOGLER.
J. N. ATWATER.

—Dr. R. H. Lewis, of Raleigh, has sent us a copy of his pamphlet, entitled "Higher Medical Education and How to Secure It." This address was read before the Alumnae Association of the University of Maryland.

—Prof. Wurreeschke has presented us with a series of views of Moravian Churches in Ireland, with Portrait, Map and 43 Sketches in 21 Plates. The sketches are by E. M. C. Upper Wortley, Leeds, England, and form the 19th number in a series entitled "Moravian Chapels, Preaching Houses and Boarding Schools."

—Walter D. Moses & Co., Richmond, Va., dealers in Pianos, Organs and Music, have placed on our table a very handsome series of views of American cities.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., JANUARY, 1890.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence

Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—We will have something to say of the Boston Quintette Club concert next month.

—See HARPER BROTHERS advertisement elsewhere; also Mrs. HANSLEY'S Hotel announcement.

WE welcome Mr. A. DuFour as a contributor to our columns, and trust that we may often hear from him in the future. See his article in another column.

MISS ANNIE BOURDEAUX has furnished us with an account of the manner in which Christmas was spent by those who remained within the school. It is a pleasing sketch, and will bring up happy memories in the case of many an old pupil of our venerable institution.

—Several matters of unusual interest in our school life must be passed over this month, with brief mention. Among them we note the following:

The opening of the Gymnasium by an Entertainment under the direction of the Euterpean Society.

The decision of the Board of Trustees to erect a large new building in order to meet the needs of the growing Institution.

The continuation of the account of our Student's Tour will have to wait until the February number of THE ACADEMY.

--We call special attention to the circular relative to the Winter Evening Course of Entertainments found on another page of THE ACADEMY. Entertainments of this class do much towards educating the pupils, as well as the community. The entire arrangement is a strong one, uniting as it does the musical power of School, Orchestra and Philharmonic, and also enlisting the intellectual powers of men like Dr. RONDTHALER and Prof. BLAIR. We hope the communities will support the movement, and that we may also see from time to time the faces of our nearer patrons in the audience.

HENRY W. GRADY.

THE sudden and unexpected death of this gifted young Southerner was announced and listened to no where with more genuine regret than in the ACADEMY. His broad, philanthropic views had given to him a national reputation, and the esteem in which he was held in the South was rivalled only by the high position which he occupied in the minds and hearts of our friends in the North. He was filled with the most marked energy in the development of his State, yet he was free from the rash and headstrong tendencies that so often injure the work of otherwise aggressive men. Everything he took in hand was successful, and yet the quiet modesty of the man was in marked contrast to his burning zeal. His position in the matter of temperance bound him still more closely to the thousands who are holding up the banner of this mighty cause, while his shrewd and far-reaching utterances on great political questions caused the exchanges in the northern cities to lower their flags to half mast in respect to his memory. In the newspaper work his success was phenomenal, as the Atlanta Constitution testifies to-day. In fact, when his character is examined from any standpoint, the results are such as we have already described.

HENRY W. GRADY was a particularly warm friend of the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. He looked upon our venerable institution as one of the great features in the development of the South, having sent forth during nearly nine decades more than 10,000 young women, carefully and conservatively trained, in the great majority of cases, to carry the influences of their school training into prominent and influential homes. In response to an invitation sent him early last Spring he had consented to deliver the annual address to the Graduating Class of 1889. After the arrangements had been made he discovered that the date conflicted with a previous engagement, and our school and communities were deprived of the privilege of doing him honor.

All lament his early death; great is the loss to his home, his State, his Southland, yes, his entire country,—but the world is better because of his life. Hence, as the chapter of his active life closes, let us say of this beloved son of our beloved land,

Requiescat in pace.

The Electric Piano.

BY MR. A. DU FOUR.

A lawyer, Dr. Eisenmann, of Berlin, is the inventor of that wonderful instrument, described as follows by the Magdeburger Zeitung:

“A transversal iron bar is placed at a distance of eight centimetres above the strings. A magnet corresponding to each string, and intended to attract it, is fastened on the bar, and communicates by a special wire with the generator placed under the piano, as well as with the special key to which it belongs. A most ingenious mechanism allows the electric current to pass whenever key or pedal are pressed upon into the magnet above the string, suddenly attracting the latter. This attraction would, of course, fasten the string to the magnet; but another attraction, of wonderful simplicity, which adheres to the sounding board, loosens the string, which is again, and alternately, attracted and repulsed.

The sound produced is admirable; one might compare it, for the high keys, to the æolian harp, for the medium to those of a cello, for the bass strings to the full and powerful voice of an organ.

What is more important still, the sound may be protracted for any length of time and with any degree of force. On the pianos, the sound dies away slowly after the key has been pressed. But in the electric piano the string vibrates as long as the current passes. One may easily foresee what influence this fact alone may have, in the future, on the composition of piano-music. A lawyer has thus solved the problem of the indefinite protraction of sound, which haunted Cladny, the founder of modern acoustics.

This improvement, it is said, will be such that it may be added to any piano without damaging the instrument. The sound obtained is of nearly supernatural beauty, such as no actual instrument can produce, and the whole structure is so simple that it does not in the least impair the exterior beauty of the piano.

Electricity is on the eve of revolutionizing piano music: such is the verdict of competent judges about Dr. Eisenmann's invention.”

I should remark, in conclusion, that this improvement will remove the standing objections of many fastidious critics about piano music as compared with other instruments. It has been often said, with too much emphasis, perhaps, that the pianist can but strike the keys, and has to leave the instrument to sound for itself afterwards,—whereas, the violinist, for instance, in keeping his fingers on the strings, remains in permanent and intimate communion with his instrument. One may see, by what has just been said, how this element of excellence will no more be wanting in what we may perhaps call, without exaggeration, “the piano of the future.”

Correspondence.

—Our first letter for the month is from Mrs. B. F. Ward, formerly MARY HARDEMAN, of Mississippi.

Many thanks to some kind friend for sending me a copy of THE ACADEMY. Having been a pupil of the Academy for 5 years, I left there in 1866, and naturally feel a great interest in all things pertaining to the school. I presume from the fact of your being a young man, you must be a brother of Miss MAGGIE CLEWELL, of whom I have most pleasant recollections as being a friend of young folks. AGNES DESCHWEINITZ, now Mrs. J. W. Fries, was one of my best friends. HELEN PURNELL, now Mrs. Ed. Foltz, also a Salem girl lives near here, and takes a lively interest in all things pertaining to the school. Neither she nor I have daughters to send you, but would be glad to see you. I would be pleased to receive one of the new catalogues.

I must force myself to conclude, as I do not wish to encroach further upon your time.

Yours truly,
MRS. B. F. WARD.

Winona, Miss.

—Our next is from one of our old friends, one however, whose heart is as warm and young as ever.

Enclosed you will find 50 cents, my subscription to THE ACADEMY. I would not have neglected renewing it so long, but have been confined to my bed the whole winter and am only now sitting up a short time each day. I have missed the dear ACADEMY, and although I rarely see the names of any of my school-mates, of 1825 or '26, still my interest in reading the names of former residents is gratifying. I shall keep up my subscription as long as I live,—which can be but a few years longer at best, as I am now nearly 78 years old.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. MARY (STAMPS) RICE.

—Mrs. Kirke, (LULA GIBBS) writes as follows :

Seeing the notice in THE ACADEMY, stating that any one who had failed to receive a former number would be supplied, I send in mine for the September number. I am always so much interested in anything that transpires in dear old Salem, that I regret to miss a copy, especially as it is my only source of information. I am much pleased to note the ever increasing prosperity of the school.

Give my love to Misses LEHMAN, SIEMERS and SHAFNER ; I shall ever hold them in affectionate remembrance. I would so much like to hear from KYLE PACE, ZETA ROGERS, MATTIE CALDWELL, or any of my old school-mates.

Hoping I have not trespassed too much on your time, I remain,

Yours truly,
LOULA GIBBS KIRKE.

Bentonla, Miss.

—Mrs. J. M. Fort (CAMMIE DANCY) favors us with a few lines :

Enclosed find the money for the dear little paper for another year. I have neglected it for some time, as I have been so busy attending a meeting at our church for over 4 weeks. I always try to be at my post ; somehow I contracted a fearful cold and sore throat. I feel that I cannot do without THE ACADEMY, for I see the names of some of the dear friends I knew years ago. I would so love to visit dear old Salem, but it is so far from here, and I am a great home body, I cannot leave my husband and 2 boys to go anywhere.

Wishing the Salem friends every happiness.

I remain as ever,
MRS. J. M. FORT.

Paris, Texas.

The following is from Mrs. Paul Moore, of Lancaster, S. C.; we would be very pleased to learn her maiden name :

Would THE ACADEMY please send to one of her old pupils one of the pictures of the Academy Buildings, and a Catalogue. My subscription to THE ACADEMY expired some time ago, and I will renew it at the close of vacation. I would also like to become a member of the Alumnæ Association.

Yours, &c.,
MRS. PAUL MOORE.

Lancaster, S. C.

—LOULIE BRIDGERS, one of our late graduates, writes as follows :

I knew you would have much work on hand when you returned from Europe so that I waited awhile, but suppose the hardest tug is over by this time. The summer which I know must have been delightful to you, has passed quietly and pleasantly for me. Three weeks I spent in a most delightful visit to LIDA and KITTY; unfortunately ANNE had not yet returned from her Western visit to her sister. LOLA WELLS and JULIA SMITH were also there.

The October number of THE ACADEMY has just come, and I am very glad to hear that it is to be enlarged. I suppose you have noticed the death of a former Salem girl, also a member of the Alumnæ Association, Mrs. David Stokes, nee FANNY POWELL. Enclosed please find Postoffice Order for the renewal of my subscription to THE ACADEMY. If you have any more of the pictures for framing, would be glad to have one.

With much love,
SALLIE BRIDGERS.

Tarboro, N. C.

—Our next is from Mrs. Craig, (CAPPIE HENRY), a dear friend of some years ago :

I wrote to you more than a year ago, but learned from W. LUTZ that you did not receive my letter. I know you have not much time for correspondence, but I thought I would write again to congratulate you on your safe return from Europe. I was glad to learn of your safe arrival, for it seemed so far away when the ocean rolled between. I used sometimes to dream of such a voyage, but home duties give me but little leisure to dream. I have, as you know, 2 dark-eyed boys, one four, and the other 1 year old.

There are many old Academy pupils around us : Mrs. Sturdevant, formerly Miss PURNELL, lives in this county ; Mrs. George, who was FANNY TARVER, is now well, and lives at Carrolton. Mrs. Purnell Merriwether lives on the river above us. Mrs. W. S. Barry, formerly SALLIE ZEARN, lives in Huntsville, Ala. Mrs. B. F. Ward, MARY HARDEMAN, lives in Winona, Miss. She has 4 children.

Our town is improving very fast. Two railroads cross here, and there is talk of another.

I had hoped to visit Salem the past summer, but was disappointed ; perhaps some day I may do so. It will be a great pleasure to hunt up my old friends again. I had a letter from LUCY SIMS from Dallas, Texas.

Has my subscription to THE ACADEMY expired? My paper did not come last month. I wish to renew it if the time is up.

If you have time please write me about Miss SALLIE VOGLER and Miss STEINER. How glad I would be to have any of my dear old teachers make me a visit. Could you not do so? Hoping that you may find time to write to me, I am,

Yours affectionately,

CAPPIE H. CRAIG.

Greenwood, Miss.

—Mrs. J. G. Hunt (LORENA BOBBITT) writes as follows, in her usual pleasing way :

My subscription expired with the November number, and I write to renew it, ere the time for the next issue, as I do not wish to miss a single number.

I find Miss LEHMAN's letters very interesting indeed, and hope they will continue for some time to come. In every copy of the dear little paper I see some familiar name or names, which brings to mind so forcibly those with whom I was associated during my happy school life.

Please find enclosed my subscription for another year and accept my best wishes for a Happy Christmas to one and all, and the success and prosperity of THE ACADEMY.

Affectionately,

MRS. J. G. HUNT.

Oxford, N. C.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

List of pupils who spent Christmas with home friends :

Christie Waddell went to Blackburn, S. C.; N. Taylor to Danville, Va.; Tillie Hodnett, to Martinsville, Va.; Mary Miller to Goldsboro, N. C.; Mattie Trout to Roanoke, Va.; Sue Heard to Elberton, Ga.; M. Odeneal to Reidsville, N. C.; M. Helm to Reidsville, N. C.; Lily Newberry, to Magnolia, N. C.; Aggie Erwin, Gutherville, N. C.; Beulah Sanderlin, to Raleigh, N. C.; Evie Thomas to Raleigh, N. C.; Lillian Vicks to Randleman, N. C.; Claude Vicks to Randleman, N. C.; Sallie Robbins to Lexington, N. C.; Edna Russell to Gulf, N. C.; Sallie McLean to McCall, S. C.; Grace Locke to Winston, N. C.; Lucille Armfield to High Point, N. C.; Mary Penn to Danville, Va.; L. Fitzgerald to Danville, Va.; Edna Lindsey to Reidsville, N. C.; Maud Harris to Reidsville, N. C.; Annie Reid to Wentworth, N. C.; Lillian Thompson to Raleigh, N. C.; F. Creight to Winnsboro, S. C.; Lula Peyton to Greensboro, N. C.; Mattie Woodell to Raleigh, N. C.; Mary McCauley to Chapel Hill, N. C.; Anna Goff, Fannie Goff, Mary Goff to Dalton, N. C.; DeWitt Ashe to Raleigh, N. C.; Sarah Cheatham to Oxford, N. C.; Lizzie Keime to Liberty, N. C.; Orah and Alice Thompson to Gaffney City, S. C.; Mattie White to Winnsboro, S. C.; Carrie Edwards to Apex, N. C.; Carrie Taylor to Bingham, N. C.; Rosa Ellis to Oak Ridge, N. C.; Annie Green to Columbia, S. C.; May Broadfoot, Annie Covington and Eloise McGill to Fayetteville, N. C.; Annie Coleman to Asheville, N. C.; Minnie Whitsett to Graham, N. C.; Mamie Cannady to Oxford, N. C.; S. Brower, Liberty, N. C.; L. Newton, to Bennettsville, S. C.; C. Hunt to Lexington, N. C.; M. Fagg to Asheville, N. C.; D. Sutton to Fayetteville, N. C.; F. Wray, to Knoxville, Tenn.; C. Wray to Shelby, N. C.; F. Cummings, B. Hicks and Sadie Dunn to Raleigh, N. C.; Kate Moses to Richmond, Va.; Dora Cox to Cedar Falls, N. C.; Annie Makepeace to Franklinville, N. C.; Ella Taylor to Oxford, N. C.; Eula Cox to Dunn, N. C.

—Bishop John F. Hurst, of the M. E. Church, who resides at Washington, D. C., made a short visit to Salem, and among other points examined the ACADEMY. He is well versed in Moravian history——President John B. Burwell, of Peace Institute, paid the ACADEMY a visit and looked through the buildings and grounds. We were pleased to see him, and trust that he may soon honor us with a longer visit.

—Mrs. Richardson, of Reidsville, paid MARY HELM and MAMIE ODENEAL a short visit on the 11th, and attended the Song Recital.

—Many thanks for photographs recently received from Mrs. Frank Earnest (JODIE WAUGH), Catulla, Texas, of her two boys, Frank Waugh, aged 4 years, and Felix Albert, aged 1 year; also from Mrs. W. Brown (REBECCA MARKS), Winston, of her little daughter, a prospective graduate of 1900; from Mrs. S. Pritchett (FLORENCE McCANDLESS), Danville, Va., of her large baby boy, and from Mrs. J. Wyatt (MARY HICKS), Raleigh, N. C., of her three, Willie, Louise and the baby. These grandchildren of the ACADEMY are all affectionately remembered.

—Among various Christmas tokens of remembrance, we received a neat book of pressed Rocky Mountain flowers, valuable in themselves and still more valuable as a token of friendship; we were not able to ascertain the donor's name, but trust that our unknown friend will accept many thanks.

—Mrs. Mattie Bahnson, (MATTIE BARBER) spent some days in Salem recently.

—JANIE SHERRILLE, of Bennettsville, spent a few days with her numerous friends last month. The "Alma Mater" always welcomes her former pupils.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—The Entertainment given by the European Society before Christmas was a grand success and quite a handsome sum was realized for their treasury.

—The following pupils have arrived within the past month :

LAURA JONES, Texas.

MARGARET DUFOUR, Geneva, Switzerland.

CHRISTIANA FADYEN, North Carolina.

NANNIE CANNON, North Carolina.

LUCY WADDELL, South Carolina.

MARY LUCKY, Tennessee.

—The six little folks who sang solos at the Christmas Home Sunday School Cantata, among them our little Clarence, seem to have given pleasure to all who heard them.

—From the Richmond Daily Times we clip the following: "The Senate Conference was called to order and Hon. John L. Hurt was nominated chairman, and the first business being the election of President pro tempore, Mr. Hurt received this distinction by acclamation." Mr. Hurt, it will be remembered, is the son of NANCY S. LINN, and is the gentleman who showed the members of the Students' Tour such marked and acceptable attentions when their car was detained at Hurt's Store, Va.

—Mr. Robert Carmichael has published a pamphlet entitled, "The industries of Winston, Salem, N. C."

—AGNES COLEMAN returned from her home in South Carolina, and left at ye editor's sanctum a box of home-dried figs, which for delicacy of flavor surpassed those found in the market from foreign lands.

—We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to the wedding of BESSIE MAY FAGG to Mr. Wallace F. Maxwell, in Asheville. The ACADEMY extends its best wishes and trusts that life may be filled with happiness for them.

From the Senior Room.

—The Seniors wish the readers to distinctly understand that the following items were gathered by them but that they are not the originators of the same. In fact, we might say of all the items that when the names of the contributors is placed above the news it only indicates that they have kindly secured them for the paper from any portion of our school world.

—The Seniors feel quite proud of their enfant; they think of getting a "go-cart" for the dear creature, as it was discovered crawling over the floor to-day.

—Miss A— expressed a desire to recite painting to Miss SIEWERS.

—Teacher—"Is the Colossus of Rhodes still standing?" Pupil (eagerly—"Yes'm."

—Girl No. 1—“Oh, girls, Miss H— has the loveliest painting you ever saw !” Girl No. 2—“What is it?” Girl No. 1—“Isaac offering up Joseph.”

—Teacher—“Mention 2 church fathers of the fifth century.” Pupil—St. Augustine and St. Ambrosia.”

—A certain young lady wishing to attend a recent concert inquired what the initiation fee would be. It was probably the same party who declared that the Euterpean concert initiated the new Gymnasium Hall.

A number of young ladies were watching the sunset from their room window, when one innocently asked: “In what direction does the sun set in Salem, any how?”

From the Third Room.

—Will some one furnish an answer to the following questions: 1. Who was the first man to express his thoughts in written language? 2. What is the origin of the word “Yankee?” 3. What is the origin of the word “Mouchoir.”

—While in the photograph gallery some days since an instantaneous picture had just been taken, when an onlooker enthusiastically exclaimed: “That is the funniest spontaneous process I ever saw.”

From the Eighth Room.

—1st Girl—“What is the plural of sheep?” 2d Girl—“Oh, of course, goats.”

—Six girls remained in the 8th Room during the Christmas recess.

—Our room girls take a great interest in roller skating.

—The teachers’ table in our room was unusually well filled at Christmas; nor was the pupils’ table neglected.

—We are glad to welcome the absent members of our room company back to their school home.

Day Scholar Department.

—Senior Middle C now meets in the Library room of the church.

—AGNES FOGLE has returned from a visit to relatives and friends in Texas.

—NELLIE and TATE BLAIR visited friends in Durham during December.

—BESSIE PURNELL spent the Christmas recess with her parents in Raleigh, N. C.

—BESSIE PURNELL, MAMIE BARROW and LOUIE SIDDALL have consented to furnish items for the ACADEMY from the Day Scholar Department, and any one knowing anything which will serve as news for our journal will confer a favor by handing the item to either of the above.

MUSICAL NOTES.

—The musical feast which Mr. CLEWELL and his assistants have been planning for the winter was very pleasantly introduced by the concert given by the Boston Quintette Club.

—Friday afternoon of last week Miss EVANS’ pupils gave a recital when the following programme was rendered:

1. Heaven will teach the song.....Gounod.
Miss E. SIDDALL.
2. My darling was so fair.....Taubert.
Miss A. JONES.
3. A Summer Shower.....Marzials.
Miss FAY McMULLEN.
4. O, Fatima.....Weber.
Miss FRANCISCO.
5. Piano Solo. Wedding March.....Mendelssohn.
Miss M. CONRAD.
6. Sweetheart.....A. L. Powell.
Miss LILLIE ROGERS.
7. Angel at the Window.....Tours.
Miss C. MICKEY.
8. Last Night.....K. Jernif.
Miss JESSIE CATES.
9. An Old Garden.....Hope Temple.
Miss T. PACE.
10. Piano Solo. Polacca Brillante.....Weber.
Miss JONES.
11. Flower may hide its lovely face.....Osgood.
Miss L. HEGE.
12. Dorum Pure.....S. Scuderi.
Miss HELEN RUFF.

—The following is the programme of the Complimentary Concert given by the Salem Orchestra in Gymnasium Hall, Monday evening, December 30, 1889:

1. Zaragoza March.....Ortega.
2. O! Fair Dove, O! Fond Dove. Overture.....Schlegel.
3. Blue Danube Waltzes.....Strauss.
4. Vocal Solo. Lost and Saved.
Mrs. ROSA FRIES.
5. Selections from “Erminie”.....Jakobowsky.
6. On the Wing. Galop.....Herrmann.
7. Twin-City March.....Markgraff.
8. Vocal Solo. Who’s at my Window.....Osborne.
Mrs. ROSA FRIES.
9. Loin du Bal.....Gillet.
10. Piano Solo. Blue Bells of Scotland.....Kuhe.
Mr. C. P. GARRATT.
11. Amelia Schottische.....Neibig.
12. Shower of Gold. Galop.....Herrmann.

—The pupils who remained in the school during the holidays enjoyed most thoroughly the Concert given by the Orchestra on the 30th. The vocal numbers by Mrs. Fries were especially pleasing.

—There have been several additions to the vocal class since Christmas. We are glad to welcome Miss DUFOUR.

—We understand that several of Professor MARKGRAFF’S pupils will soon be playing with the Orchestra. It will be fine practice for them.

—One of the music pupils upon her return was seen carefully assisting a guitar from the omnibus. Miss VAN VLECK will soon be organizing a guitar club. As they are all the rage, the sooner the better.

LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT.

—French verbs will be prominently under discussion during the month of January, from the Post Graduates down to the lowest classes.

—The threads of study in our Language Department have been gathered up quite readily this session; the holidays seem to have acted as a stimulus.

—French Loto is one way of acquiring fluency in the numbers, often so difficult to be learned.

—To all our friends we would say: “Nous vous souhaiton une bonne annee.”

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT.

—In closing business before the holidays the merchants in the Book-keeping Department found that each had made a net gain of more than one hundred dollars.

—Mr. Pendleton, the genial operator at Winston, joins our line to the main wire at noon, and we hear the solemn “tick, tick,” of the clock at the National Observatory at Washington, D. C., for one minute, then a pause, when the 12 o’clock signal is given and our clocks and watches are “set” according to correct time.

—Last week Miss GERTRUDE JENKINS reported, in Greensboro, the proceedings of an important trial. What better testimony could be given of the practical workings of our Commercial Department? Miss JENKINS is a member of the Post Graduate Class.

—The Telegraphy classes which were taught in Mr. CLEWELL’S private study room have found a permanent place in the room south of the Hesperian Society Hall. Two keys have been placed on opposite sides of the room and one has been put beyond the partition, which will give the operators the advantage of not seeing each other and necessitate close attention to sound.

ART DEPARTMENT.

—Pupils in Drawing and Painting leave their work in the Studio until Commencement when an Art Reception is held. Pieces of Needlework, however, are distributed to their owners at Christmas, and sent home as holiday gifts. Besides doing the embroidery, pupils are taught to make up the different articles, and in this way are inveigled into learning plain sewing without knowing it.

—ALICE GILLESPIE sent out several dainty sackets and a table scarf of olive felt and plush, with jonquils wrought in rope silk and the metal threads now so much in vogue.

—FAY McMULLEN, WILLIE GAMBRILL, LIZZIE FITZGERALD, ANNA ADAMS, MAMIE JEFFERIES, MAUD HARRIS, KATHERINE WADDELL, MATTIE MACON, ALICE and ORA THOMSON had tray covers, table center, toilette sets, &c., showing a variety of the new stitches on linen and satteen, done in the beautiful wash silks, which are a great improvement on the old threads.

—Besides dainty work on linen, BEULAH SLAPPEY showed a table top of soft, greenish grey felt, worked with delicately tinted pink roses in half Kensington stitch, the edges button-holed and cut.

—SALLIE SMITH had a daintily pretty bureau scarf of bolting cloth, worked with filo floss in a powdered pattern of forget-me-nots, the whole lined with light blue satin.

—DAISY CLISEY is far enough advanced to design in part her own pretty work, and has cushions for chairs and hammock in the new patterns. A large cream-tinted linen square, with a heavy leaf pattern around it, had the leaves outlined with white cord, button-holed on with yellow silk, the leaves being filled up with a variety of stitches in different shades of yellow. The peculiar application gave a metallic effect, beautiful glints of copper and gold, and will put the finishing touch to the cherry wood and brass stand for which it is intended.

—Other elaborate pieces are yet in their frames, and the girls will be pleased to show them to you, one and all, in June.

Our Library.

—A new and very neat edition of Shakespeare has been placed in the Library, for handy reference of students of this great writer. The difficulty in nearly all editions of Shakespeare is, that if the print is large the volume is also large and heavy; if the size of the book is so as to make its weight no objection the print is too small. These objections are done away with by the edition referred to, which is printed in '12 neat, small volumes, good print, and with notes attached to each volume. The plays are distributed as follows:

- Vol. 1.—Two Gentlemen of Verona; Comedy of Errors; Love's Labor's Lost; All's Well That Ends Well.
- Vol. 2.—Midsummer Night's Dream; Taming of the Shrew; Merchant of Venice; Much Ado About Nothing.
- Vol. 3.—Merry Wives of Windsor; Twelfth Night; As You Like It; Measure for Measure.
- Vol. 4.—A Winter's Tale; The Tempest; King John; Richard II.
- Vol. 5.—King Henry IV, Part 1; Part 2; King Henry V.
- Vol. 6.—King Henry VI, Part 1; Part 2; King Richard III.
- Vol. 7.—King Henry VIII; Romeo and Juliet; Hamlet, Prince of Denmark.
- Vol. 8.—Cymbeline; Othello; King Lear.
- Vol. 9.—Macbeth; Timon of Athens; Troilus and Cressida.
- Vol. 10.—Coriolanus; Julius Cesar; Antony and Cleopatra; Titus Andronicus.
- Vol. 11.—Poems and Life.
- Vol. 12.—Studies of Shakespeare.

DONATIONS RECEIVED.—Cash gift from Hon. H. E. Fries, $30.00.

Taking this gift, handed us a few days since as a "text," we will preach a short sermon, to wit: Would it not be a praiseworthy thing for our Alumnae Society to take this special work in hand, and swell the amount, before next Commencement, to a creditable foundation for the endowment fund. As will be seen elsewhere, efforts are being made to this end, and we will gladly receive and turn over to the proper authorities gifts, large or small, for this fund. Money given to the "Griffiss Library Fund" will be placed on interest and only the interest used. Let us keep the ball rolling!

—Mr. J. A. Lineback has presented the Library with the following works:

Santa Clara County, California.
Reports of North Carolina Horticultural Society for 1885-1886.

Report of Commissioner of Agriculture, 1888.

Transactions of American Horticultural Society. 1886. Vol. I.

Michigan Horticultural Society. 1885-1886. 2 Volumes.

Transactions of Mississippi Valley Horticultural Society. 1886. Vol. 2.

—We acknowledge receipt of No. 1, Vol. 1, Voices of Peace, a publication of Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C. It contains 46 pages of reading matter, is neatly printed, and we welcome it into our circle of educational papers and magazines. May it have a long and useful life.

—A very interesting "Life of Napoleon" has been received, placed on the new-book shelf and is often referred to.

—The last number of The Speculum, Bethlehem, Pa., has come to hand, filled as usual with good things.

—Souvenir. Twin-Cities. Winston-Salem, Forsyth County, N. C. By Mrs. A. V. Winkler, Salem, N. C., price 25 cents, contains a sketch of many historical facts, and a description of the present growth of the cities named. Sent to any address on receipt of price.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*I feel like one
Who trades alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1867.

- 4697 ALICE BARNES. — 1853.
Wm. Barnes, Montgomery, Ala.
- 4698 ANNA HODGE. — 1858.
M. C. Hodge, Raleigh, N. C.
- 4699 MARY G. THOMPSON. — 1856.
O. R. Thompson, Winstonsboro, S. C.
- 4700 TOMOCOLEK WARREN. — 1853.
L. C. A. Warren, Georgetown, Ga.
- 4701 MARIA WINCOFF. — 1854.
R. Wincoff, Concord, N. C.
- 4702 LAURA LOUISA JOHNSTON. —
Robt. W. Johnston, Cottle Creek, N. C.
- 4703 BETTIE E. McEACHERN. — 1853.
Jos. E. McEachern, Concord, N. C.
- 4704 MOLLIE MILDRED HILL. — 1852.
John G. Hill, Georgetown, N. C.
- 4705 CLARA ANNETTA FOLK. — 1855.
Dr. Hy. M. Folk, Leesville, S. C.
- 4706 LOU WINSTEAD. — 1852.
Uncle and Guard, C. S. Winstead, R. xboro, N. C.
- 4707 HARTIE ELIZA MARTIN. — 1854.
J. D. Martin, Aytzsville, N. C.
- 4708 MARION NOTTINGHAM. — 1854.
Dr. C. B. Nottingham, Macon, Ga.
- 4709 HELEN R. OWENS. — 1855.
Judge H. E. Owens, Abbeville, Ala.
- 4710 MOLLIE J. H. McALLISTER. — 1855.
Grandfather, Gen. A. C. Gordon, Abbeville, Ala.
- 4711 MARY KINNIE ROGERS. — 1853.
- 4712 SARAH CATHARINE (KITTIE) ROGERS. — 1855.
Hy. C. Rogers, Sheltonville, Ga.
- 4713 EMMA T. JOHNSON. — 1852.
D. C. Williams, Van Buren, Ark.
- 4714 EMMA R. SMITH. — 1853.
Brother, Will C. Jarnagin, Home, Tenn.
- 4715 BETTIE COOMBS. — 1855.
- 4716 CHARLOTTE COOMBS. — 1857.
Father, J. R. Coombs, Cool Spring, Ga.
- 4717 VIOLA JOHNS. — 1856.
Grandfather, Dr. D. W. Hammond, Macon, Ga.
- 4718 MARY M. FERGUSON. — 1854.
Jas. R. Ferguson, Augusta, Ark.
- 4719 ANNE MARTIN. — 1855.
- 4720 LAURA McCURDY. — 1855.
J. M. McCurdy, Augusta, Ark.
- 4721 CORA MCKAY. — 1855.
Neil McKay, Summerville, N. C.
- 4722 GUSSIE SHANNON. — 1855.
C. C. Shannon, Okolona, Miss.
- 4723 ABBIE CARR. — 1853.
Elias Carr, Goldsboro, N. C.
- 4724 MARY H. BRADLEY. —
- 4725 FLORENCE RESSPASS. — 1854.
John P. Repass, Washington, N. C.

- 4726 NELLIE LIGON. — 1852.
Capt. R. F. Ligon, Tuskegee, Ala.
- 4727 IDA HAND. — 1855
Mother, Lucia Hand, Tuskegee, Ala.
- 4728 MARY CARMIE DANCY. — 1852.
- 4729 DELLA A. DANCY. — 1852.
Aunt, Mrs. Mary M. De Ellington, Tuskegee, Ala.
- 4730 MAMIE P. PITTS. — 1853.
C. A. Pitts, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4731 MATTIE BANKS. — 1853.
Hy Banks, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4732 JULIA M. LOWRY. — 1853.
W. M. Lowry, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4733 LILLIAN FOOTE — 1855.
Major Jas. H. Foote, Raleigh, N. C.
- 4734 PAMELIA CLAYTON VANCE. — 1852.
David Vance, Martin's Depot, S. C.
- 4735 MARY VIRGINIA FLEMING. — 1853.
- 4736 HELEN FLEMING. — 1855.
William Fleming, Columbus, Ga.
- 4737 MOLLIE BOZEMAN. — 1853.
C. M. Bozeman, Hawkinsville, Ga.
- 4738 CORNELIA A. CONEY. — 1852.
Guardian, C. M. Bozeman, Hawkinsville, Ga.
- 4739 MARIA E. WOOD. — 1852.
S. G. Wood, Gish's Mill, Va.
- 4740 MARY MARGARET BYNUM. — 1853.
Ben Bynum, Germantown, N. C.
- 4741 MINNIE NOEL. — 1854.
C. J. Noel, Wytheville, Va.

Died.

-- Little EDNA FETTER, a member of our Day School Department died a few days since and was laid to rest on Sunday afternoon. Her death is mourned by her little companions and we extend our deepest sympathy to her afflicted parents.

HENRY W. MILLER,

STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.

Price, complete with two type wheels, $100.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.

Fine Lihen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.

Send for Catalogue.

WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

THE LADIES' FAVORITE
THE LIGHT RUNNING
NEW HOME
THE BEST ATTACHMENTS
THE FINEST WOODWORK
HOME SEWING MACHINE (ORANGE - MASS)
CHICAGO, ILL. 28 UNION SQUARE, N.Y. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
ST. LOUIS, MO. FOR SALE BY DALLAS, TEX.

Miss PHEBE TURNER, Winston, N. C.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

It would be a difficult matter to decide which of Harper's periodicals to take for the coming year, if there were not an admirable and really inexpensive solution of the problem in sending a combined subscription for all four. Each is independent and complete in itself, and, if taken alone, seems to satisfy all one's desires for what a periodical can bring; and yet no one of the four, when they are taken together, seems to be superfluous. HARPER'S MAGAZINE is international in scope, but American in enterprise; HARPER'S WEEKLY has become indispensable as the citizen's illustrated paper; HARPER'S BAZAR remains the leading fashion and home journal; and HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE has never been surpassed as an illustrated weekly for boys and girls.

—Boston Globe.

Now is the Time to Subscribe.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

Per Year:

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.....	Postage Free, $4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, .....	" 4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR.....	" 4 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, .....	" 2 00

Booksellers and Postmasters usually receive subscriptions. Subscriptions sent direct to the Publishers should be accompanied by Post Office Money Order or Draft. When no time is specified, Subscriptions will begin with the current number.

Published by HARPER & BROTHERS, N. Y.

WANTED.—Position as music teacher in school or private family by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address K. M., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.—A position as teacher by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address B., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady as Phonographer.

Address

C.—care of The Academy,
Salem, N. C.

BINGHAM SCHOOL.

(Established in 1793.)

is PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys, in AGE, in the high standing of its PATRONS, in AREA OF PATRONAGE, and in equipment for PHYSICAL CULTURE. Location in the COUNTRY. Organization MILITARY.

The 96th Annual Year will begin Sept. 1, 1889

Maj. R. BINGHAM, Supt.
Bingham School P. O., Orange Co., N. C.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California.

Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S. - E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236, Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass. & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

—* MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH, *—

(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.

155 Lexington Avenue New York.

CARE OF MRS VOLLER.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, and she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

SPENCERIAN STEEL PENS

Are the Best,

IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF Durability, Evenness of Point, and Workmanship.

Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail, on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. 8. IIVISON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway, New York.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with
an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.

For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,

G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the

East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble ballast, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going or returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and welfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address

B. W. WRENN, JNO. L. MILAM,
G. P. A., Knoxville, Tenn. D. P. A.

C. A. DESAUSSURE,
A. G. P. A.,
Memphis, Tenn.

BELO HOUSE.

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House
in the well known and popular former Belo
House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan, '90-19.

ST. LOUIS,
ARKANSAS &
TEXAS RAILWAY.

→ COTTON × BELT × ROUTE. ←

The Direct Line between the Educational
Centres of the South-East and
Arkansas and Texas.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN POINTS ON
THIS LINE AND

Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Atlanta.

PULLMAN BUFFET SLEEPERS, FREE RECLINING
CHAIR CARS, ALL THE COMFORTS AND
CONVENIENCES OF MODERN TRAVEL.

On advice being sent to any of the following,
an Agent of this Company will meet all pupils
at the various junction points, en route, and
render any assistance or information necessary.
For further information, address

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield.
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

THE SHUKI LINE FROM CHATTANOOGA AND BIRMINGHAM
TO

NEW ORLEANS,

Where direct connection is made with the SOUTHERN PACIFIC AND TEXAS & PACIFIC RY'S, for
Texas, Mexico and California,
THE SHORT LINE via VICKSBURG and SHREVE-
PORT to TEXAS, MEXICO and CALIFORNIA,
NEW MEXICO, COLORADO and the FAR
WEST. Close connection made at Shreveport without transfer through the City

From TEXAS to the
NORTH AND EAST,
Via SHREVEPORT.

Close connections without transfer through the City.
Leave Shreveport 7:00 A. M.
Through Sleeping Cars to ATLANTA via BIRMING-HAM making direct connections for

SAVANNAH, AUGUSTA, CHARLESTON,
AND POINTS IN

Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and the East,
Connecting at MERIDIAN with Main Line Trains.
J. C. GAULT, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS,
Gen'l Mgr. G. P. & T. A.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere;
Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then
will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

— CLINARD & BROOKES. —

WM. T. VOGLER,
JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Willow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND!

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., FEBRUARY, 1890.

NUMBER 103.

FOUNDED 1802.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA.

This old and well-known Institution is at present instructing about 300 students, and has the following separate and well equipped departments:—

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, extending over 3 years.

COLLEGE COURSE, extending over 4 years.

POST GRADUATE COURSE (degree of A. B.), extending over 1 year.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

SCHOOL OF ART.

SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

Full information as to any department will be furnished upon application to

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

JAMAICA.

BY MISSES JENNIE SIEGER AND LIZZIE WOLLE.

[The following communication is made up partly from a letter sent by the two young ladies to THE ACADEMY and partly from a private letter from JENNIE SIEGER to a friend. This will explain the fact that "we" is used, and again, "I." The two form a very acceptable communication.—ED. ACADEMY.]

THE November and December ACADEMIES which were so welcome and interesting, were, at the same time, silent reminders of an obligation which each of us should feel she was under to her Alma Mater, viz: of contributing her quota to the columns of THE ACADEMY.

Would that it were in my power to write and tell you of the beauties of this Island, as could Miss LEHMAN or Dr. RONDTHALER, but until they visit it, this poor attempt must suffice, and for detail I will refer all interested to an article on "New and Old Jamaica," published in the January and February numbers of Harper's Monthly.

After one of the most enjoyable voyages imaginable, on a smooth sea for the entire seven days, we steamed into port, sorry and yet glad to bid good-bye to our good ship Athos.

The harbor of Kingston, in the soft and rosy light of that Saturday morning, made a picture never to be forgotten, with the mountains looming up as the background, gray and velvety, giving the effect of papier-mache rocks, and the intense green of the palms and undergrowth skirting the very edge of the water; and the wharf, thronged with eager, expectant darkies, lent to it the additional charm, namely, life. Kingston is quite a city, but it was so hot and dusty that we were not favorably impressed; in fact, only remained in town several hours, during which the time was pleasantly passed at a pretty place, known as Park Lodge, (of which, by the by, there is an illustration in the January Harper, spoken of as a well-known lodging-house). But it is hardly fair to judge a place under such circumstances; as since we are here, we have heard such favorable reports of the town that, I am sure, we, too, will appreciate it when we again visit the place. Everything is decidedly English, as were the carriages (or cars) which conveyed us from Kingston to Parus (seventeen miles distant from Newport), where we took buggies for the remainder of the way. The drive up the mountain was beautiful, all was so novel. Our home is typically tropical, and as cosy as can be. The situation up here among the mountains, at an elevation of 2500 feet, is delightful,—never uncomfortably hot, an idea usually associated with Jamaica, — and, above all, we have no horrid vermin to contend with; occasionally we see a baby lizard creep across the veranda, and a stray roach, but "only that and nothing more."

The fruit defies description, for it is so luscious; oranges, pines, jelly-nuts (or cocoanuts before the white meat becomes hardened) are such as we never dream of at home. How we wish it were in our power to send the girls at the ACADEMY a big treat, for I am sure they would enjoy it as much as we do. As yet we have not travelled about extensively, our jaunts being within a radius of ten miles, save one memorable trip made to the coast of the old Caribbean Sea. Monday morning we were up bright and early, and by half past eight were ready to start on our journey. Yardley Chase, the home of the estate where our friends live, is 25 miles distant. The morning was a perfect one, and we were all in the best of spirits. How we did enjoy driving along the lovely roads! The sides of the road were everywhere overgrown with tropical plants; it winds in and out among the mountains, oftentimes only wide enough for a carriage. At such places it was particularly lovely, since the bamboos almost meet overhead. The bamboo resembles our willow, only the foliage is a great deal more graceful. Instead of having one great trunk it has a number of reeds, and from these the willowy branches shoot out. The logwood is another pretty tree, and with its small leaves, reminds one of the hawthorne. Many of the plants which in our colder climate are considered rare and valuable hot house products, here are seen in all their natural richness and grandeur. When we reached the mountain top we held our breath in wonder and admiration, for, oh, the sight looking down 2300 feet into the savannahs or lowlands! We had never seen such a sight, and it is hard to picture it to the mind unless it has been actually seen. The roads seem like tiny threads winding in and out, but as there is no vegetation, only a dry heath, they are easily distinguishable. The hills in Jamaica remind one of "the brook," i. e., they seem to go on forever. As we descend into the lowlands, the change in the atmosphere was quite perceptible, the heat becoming like that of August. Along these roads were little rocky hills, covered with aloes, especially the dildo, which grows up perfectly straight, and resemble columns in their regularity. These places reminded us of the oases of the desert. Down in these lowlands is Lititz, a Moravian mission station, and is a very pretty place. The house and church are surrounded with cocoanut palms and many other beautiful trees, among them the lovely cottonwood. We were glad to get out of the heat, but only got "out of the frying-pan into the fire," as it were. This was the ascent of another range of mountains. Slowly and patiently we made our way upward, and at length the top was reached. Here another surprise awaited us, for, instead of looking down into the valley, we beheld the sea stretching in front of us. Oh! but the sight was grand! We now entered a two-mile lane, shady and pretty enough to be called an avenue. At the end of this drive we found ourselves at Mr. Forbes' home, Yardley Chase. We were welcomed very kindly, and shown to our rooms. It was about 3 p. m., and after resting a little while, we started to the cliff, about one hundred yards or more from the house. Until we reached the edge, or at least a point where the view is unobstructed, we had to climb up and down, in and out among palms, but mostly cactus and aloes, which reached far above our heads. Fortunately, Mr. Forbes sent a colored man to clear the way with his machete. It certainly was a strange sensation, climbing among the tropical plants, and we enjoyed it. When we reached the edge the view was more than fine, so far above the lower landscape. But I dare not exhaust my adjectives, or I will not be able to do justice to the next point we visited. While standing on the rocks we noticed below us some pretty red flowers, and our wish for them was anticipated by Mr. Forbes, who had them brought to us. They proved to be the loveliest Orchids, the first of the kind we had seen, as this is not the proper season for them. We spent about an hour at the point of which we are now speaking, and then passed down a steep incline to a place known as "Lover's Leap." The ground takes the form of a promontory, and as we approached we thought of nothing save the sea. But that was not all! As we neared the edge we looked down eighteen hundred feet, nearly perpendicular, ending in a tiny bit of beach. Oh! how grand it was! The palms at the edge of the shore seemed like shrubbery, and the breakers, as they rolled in, seemed only like white lines. The roar of the ocean could not be heard at the distance we were. To place the capstone on this scene the sun was just setting. I doubt if a grander and more glorious scene could be found anywhere in the world. We left the place before the colors had entirely faded, as we wanted the last impression to be as lovely as the first.

At nine o'clock next morning we resumed our journey to Pedro, twelve miles beyond. The drive to the beach was even more interesting and tropical than the rides of which we have already spoken. The roads were lined with aloes, and the trees covered with "Old Man's Beard," or the hanging gray moss. The beach is a rocky coral reef, against which the waves dashed, sending up a beautiful spray. The same afternoon we walked along the beach until we reached the sandy portion, and here we gathered the most beautiful shells. The value of these mementoes will be greatly enhanced when, in later years, they bring before the mind the lovely spot at which they were gathered. We remained at Pedros until Thursday, leaving at 10 a. m., and after a ride over the long, long hills, we reached our present home at six in the evening, tired out, but oh, so glad that we had undertaken the journey.

Next month LIZZIE and I are going over to St. Anne's Bay, on the north side, which, strange to say, is far more tropical than this south side; and there, too, we will find lots to interest us. I feel as if I could go on forever, telling of our pleasures and enjoyments, but am confident I have already gone beyond the allotted space, and so will leave room for some one else. Would that that some one were one of our girls of '87.

A Word from the Natural Philosophy Department.

BY MISS GERTRUDE E. JENKINS.

WE have, as yet, chosen no formal class motto, but the one that comes into daily use, and, perhaps, particularly in the study of Natural Philosophy, is one which on the face of it shows discouragement, but at the same time an underlying effort to improve: "Je ne comprends pas."

We thought perhaps some of our friends not having had this department brought especially to mind, may also not comprehend the full extent of it without some word to call it to mind. We have no textbooks, but have the nucleus for a good library in the Reading Room for reference in this department, and prepare our lessons by individual research. If our study, for instance, is to calculate the velocity of a body down an inclined plane, we go to Deschanel, who is full of lines and angles and problems; if we need clear explanation and simple illustration, Arnot is waiting for us; for general study take Daniel, (the large, solid work we have is called his text-book, and if this is his text-book what must his treatise be!). As a reserve force you will find on our shelves, Sprague, Haven and Peck's Ganot.

We feel that we have valuable books to work with, but naturally the list is incomplete, and we hope the next Post Graduate Class will have a much larger array of these helpful but awe-inspiring volumes.

The two essays on Atmosphere, given below, come from this department, but were by no means written with a view to publication, nor were they polished in any way, simply prepared in the ordinary course of study.

The Atmosphere.

BY MISS BESSIE PFOHL.

THE atmosphere, or air, is the gaseous fluid which we breathe and which exists in every substance, entering the minutest pores. It has all the essential properties of matter, impenetrability, compressibility, elasticity, and weight.

The particles of the air, like those of all elastic fluids, mutually repel each other, and the atmosphere would therefore spread out and become exceedingly rare if it were not for the attraction of the earth, which prevents it from extending over more than fifty miles from its surface and gives it weight. As the atmosphere has weight it exerts a pressure upon all bodies on the surface of the earth. This is called atmospheric pressure, and is equal to the weight of the column of air resting on the body. The lowest strata of the air is the densest, as it has the greatest quantity of air pressing on it from above. At the level of the sea the atmospheric pressure is fifteen pounds to the square inch. On a man of ordinary size it is about 30,000 pounds. This enormous weight is not felt, however, as it is counterbalanced by the air within the body. The rarity of the atmosphere is painfully felt upon the tops of high mountains where the external air being diminished, that which is within the body expands, causing the delicate blood-vessels to burst and the blood to issue from the nose and ears.

The pressure of the atmosphere varies at different times and places. To measure it the barometer is used. This instrument was invented about the middle of the seventeenth century, by the French philosopher, Pascal. It was the result of a celebrated experiment made by Torricelli, the friend and pupil of Galileo. It has been used for predicting changes of weather, and, as it can be relied on with tolerable certainty at sea, is exceedingly useful to sailors.

The atmosphere was the principal agent in changing the surface of our earth; by disintegrating the rock, in connection with solar heat starting vegetation, then causing the decay of organic substances, and so forming soil for more profuse growth and by furnishing sustenance for all forms of life.

The functions of the atmosphere are: to conduct sound-waves; to moderate the heat of the sun; to carry the waters of the ocean over the land in the form of clouds or vapors; to act as a mechanical force, and to support vegetation and all animal life by the element, oxygen.

Meteorology is the science which treats of the phenomena of the atmosphere to which belong winds, clouds, fog, dew, rain, snow and hail.

Wind is the air set in motion. The portions of the atmosphere which are nearest the hotter regions of the earth become heated and rarefied, and rising, leave a vacuum, which is immediately filled by currents of cooler air, which are called winds.

The atmosphere always contains more or less moisture, which is derived from the surface of the earth by evaporation. When the air is cooler than the earth, the moisture becomes partially condensed and is then rendered visible, either as fog or clouds. When the moisture is condensed near the earth, fog is the result; when in the upper region of the atmosphere, clouds.

Dew is formed by the moisture of the atmosphere becoming condensed and deposited on the surface of any object colder than itself with which it comes in contact.

Frost is frozen dew.

Rain is moisture taken up in the form of vapor and returned in drops. When two clouds of different temperature mingle, they cannot retain as much moisture as when separate, the vesicles of vapor blending together form drops.

Snow is the watery particles of the atmosphere frozen in a crystalline form.

Hail is frozen rain, and is produced by an intense degree of cold in the atmosphere.

By a partial refraction of the most refrangible rays of the sun a blue color is given to the sky, while the clouds receive their color from the reflection of light upon the particles of floating vapor.

—The Catalogue of Oak Ridge Institute has been placed before us, and shows a very flourishing condition of affairs. The typography is very neat, ### Atmosphere.

BY MISS MARY E. FRIES.

"'Tis but a base, ignoble mind
That mounts no higher than a bird can soar."

But our thoughts shall wander far into the space above us, and we shall learn something of that light blue tinted envelope which so gracefully encircles the earth. This dainty covering is called the atmosphere, and we will see, first, of what it is composed, and then, some of its characteristics.

The air, or atmosphere, is made up of oxygen and nitrogen, with a small quantity of carbonic acid and watery vapour; it is charged with electricity at all times, and on summer days are seen magnificent displays, which show what quantities of the electricity exist.

That air has weight can be shown by weighing a jar first filled with air, then having extracted the air weigh the jar again, and the difference will be very noticeable.

The form which the atmosphere assumes is that of an oblate spheroid, caused by the united action of gravity, the centrifugal force, and the greater expansion of the air about the equator, owing to the more intense heat of the sun at that place.

It is thought that the atmosphere extends about 45 miles from the surface of the earth, and that this mass exerts a pressure equal to 15 lbs. to every square inch. Some of the applications of this atmospheric pressure are the common water-pump, the siphon, and the barometer.

Archimedes' law as to the weight of a solid immersed in a liquid, is as readily applied to a solid weighed in air; for that it loses weight equal to that of its own bulk of air can be shown by weighing the same object in a vacuum.

To this buoyancy of the atmosphere are due the ascents of balloons. What voyages have been made in this vast sea! and what heights have been attained! Gay Lussac reached the height of 23,000 feet, and Mr. Glaisher did not stop until he had ascended  $7\frac{1}{2}$  miles. What scenes the aeronaut beholds! The world spread out beneath him, those fleecy mountains of clouds rising about him, and, as he looks out from his little vessel at night, with only the blue sky above him, shining with its innumerable hosts, he may feel inclined to say with Byron:—

"Oh, thou beautiful
And unimaginable Ether! and Ye multiplying masses of increased
And still increasing lights! what are ye? what
Is this blue wilderness of interminable
Air, where ye roll along as I have seen
The leaves along the limpid streams of Eden?
Is your course measured for ye? Or do ye Sweep on in your unbounded revelry
Through an aerial universe of endless
Expansion, at which my soul aches to think,
Intoxicated with Eternity?"

A Plea for Cast Drawing.

DRAWING from Casts has taken the place of copying the Flat in all schools where new methods of teaching are investigated and adopted if they are proved to be better than the old. In many minds there is considerable resistance to be overcome, and the teacher who insists that this is the best way to learn Drawing often has occasion to feel herself a reformer who has come on the scene of action before the scene is prepared for her.

A pupil who has not considered the subject, naturally thinks the main object in taking drawing lessons is to carry away a number of pictures, the larger the better, which shall adorn home walls and call forth flattering comment. How delightful it will be when she agrees with her teacher that one group of simple geometrical figures, correctly drawn and shaded from casts, is worth more than a dozen copied pictures.

What is the object of drawing at any rate? Not one in a hundred of girls will ever make an artist, but every one in a hundred is more competent for any work coming to her in the future, if her eye is a trained organ and her hand a trained member, the former to see what should be done and how, and the latter to execute faithfully.

So much for the practical benefits; and who can estimate the enlarging and refining influences of "Art as she is studied?" The more we see, and see appreciatively, the greater our enjoyment of this glorious world, the more we realize how good God is, as well as how great, for beside creating all manner of objects for our use, he has also considered it well to make them beautiful and interesting at the same time. The more we enjoy God's creations, the nearer we are drawn to Him who is the essence of Art, the Divine Artist Himself.

As "order is Heaven's first law," it is interesting to observe how this is also true of Antique Sculpture. In the Apollo, for instance, there is not a random line or form, each contains a motif, and is constructed according to rules of Art, which, when you have the key, are undeviatingly true and harmonious. While in the human face we are constantly observing crookedness and defect, here all is correct in form and proportion; every wisp of hair is an ornament, every fold of drapery contains a thought, and while there is not a charm of mobility, there is a calm and perfection about these grand old art treasures which are profoundly delightful and satisfying to the enthusiastic art student.

Casts are particularly advantageous for the beginner, because they are so obliging as to remain the same for any length of time. For one who has not learned the use of his tools, or has acquired as yet no technical skill, it would be folly to begin on anything changeable or perishable; it would not remain the same until erasures and corrections were re-erased and re-corrected, and much time would be wasted.

When the forms are correctly produced on paper, there remains the shading, and and this is just as much a harmony as any musical composition, the only difference being that one is perceived through "eye servant," and the other through "ear servant." For there is but one Art,—music, painting, poetry, all are governed by the same laws, in all are found high lights, middle tints and sombre shadows setting off each other. Holding the key of their construction means inexhaustible delight for the holder, no lonely or unhappy moments with a world full of suggestive bits, beautiful and grotesque forms, exquisite tints and colors crowding every avenue to the mind with pleasurable impressions and messages.

A word of advice to beginners in drawing: do not feel the time lost that is spent in studying Cast-drawing. Having had a thorough drill in it, you can copy anything you choose from the Flat, although by that time you will find it tiresome, mechanical work to reproduce, and will not value a picture that is copied. You are well prepared to draw from Nature, and your outlook on all around will be so enlarged and so deepened in the way of enjoyment that you will bless the day you began, and congratulate yourself on the perseverance which led you to continue.

—We acknowledge the receipt of a pamphlet entitled, "Church Unity," by Rev. H. S. Hoffman, D. D., of the Reformed Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, Penn.

Shakespeare in Paris.

BY MR. A. DU FOUR.

IT might be of some interest to our readers to know that Shakespeare is becoming at last acclimatized on the French stage. It took time, indeed, and it was to take time. Such a fact could take place, as is self-understood, only in an age of cosmopolitanism. After several rather futile efforts to produce Shakesperian plays in the Parisian theatres, "Much Ado About Nothing," translated, or adapted by M. Paul Meurice, met with some success, and the "Merchant of Venice," lately translated, or rather transposed, by M. Edmond Harancourt, has conquered the suffrage of all. I used the word transposed because M. Harancourt's is a free translation. He tried to imbue himself with Shakespeare's thought and intentions, and then closing the book, as might be figuratively said, thought them over in good and thoroughly French verses; the only way to do justice, both to his model and to his own language.

This success of "Shylock," and the much remarked performance of Wagner's "Lohengrin" (in French) at Geneva, Switzerland, have been the two dramatic events in the French-speaking world.

Music Department.

WE have enjoyed an unusual number of musical treats during the past weeks, and as some of our neighboring editors seem to have greatly enjoyed them, as well as we who live in the institution, we will give our readers what they had to say of the various occasions. First we quote from "Pen-Stick," who writes for the Press:

"THE BOSTON QUINTETTE CLUB'S CONCERT AT GYMNASIUM HALL.—The appearance of the Boston Quintette Club at the above hall on the evening of January 8th was a source of great delight to our music lovers. The performance of each artist was quite up to our anticipations, and the ensemble playing, under Mr. Louis Blumenberg's direction, was up to that high standard a company must have that he appears with. Of his own exquisite 'cello solos highest praise must be said. The grace, the delicacy, the masterly bowing, the noble tone, the wonderful execution, all place him at the front of any artists we have yet heard. His third appearance here has paved the way, we hope, to many others. Herr Burose's flute playing was very fine, and the sustained note, in Popp's Fantaisie, fairly paralyzed the audience. Mr.

John Rhodes' violin solos were marked by a broadness of tone, a facility of fingering, an intensity of expression that were very pleasing. Miss Carpenter, the soprano solo singer, has been heard here before; equally well trained in the rendition of operatic and ballad songs, her efforts were very satisfactory to the audience, who gave her very warm encores after each selection. The absence of white-haired Father Ryan from the club we noted with regret, but increasing years have rendered the fatigues of a tour well nigh impossible, and hence, we will probably hear him no more. Twenty-one years ago "Pen-Stick" heard him and his famous club for the first time, where the roar of train and mill and river is ever heard,—in Pennsylvania,—and since then many meetings have taken place. The members of the club might change, but there always remained the head, Thomas Ryan, a figure that has squarely stood up for the best and purest in his art, and to whom we music-lovers of the South are indebted forever. His mantle has fallen on Mr. Blumenberg's shoulders, and right worthily will it be worn."

The same correspondent, writing for the same paper, says:

"ANOTHER BRILLIANT EVENING.—The Loreley Club of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY is composed of ten of the young lady pupils of that institution, viz: 1st Soprano—Misses LACIAR, RUFF and CLISBY; 2d Soprano—Misses ROGERS, COVINGTON and HAZLEHURST; 1st Alto—Misses DUFOUR and BLAIR; 2d Alto—Misses FRANCISCO and JONES. Their director is Miss KATHARINE W. EVANS. Four-part songs, duets and solos, with orchestral selections, made up the programme last Friday evening, when the Club gave a Concert in the Gymnasium Hall of the ACADEMY to a large number of their town friends. Of the performances we are happy to say that they were in keeping with the general excellence of everything done at the ACADEMY. The voices were clear and fresh, the music selected to suit a critical taste, and the director abundantly able to inspire correct rendition. Miss EVANS is a most conscientious teacher, and the club members very faithfully reproduced her work. There was no sacrifice of minutiae for effect, but the work of each one was a persistent, remaining fact. The ACADEMY is very fortunate in thus having her musical talent consolidated in the Loreley Club.

"As to the Orchestra, "Pen-Stick" must confess to a little fear that their appearance so soon after the magnificent concert of the Boston Quintette, would be—well, rather contrastive, but Prof. MARKGRAFF'S direction was so clear-cut and vigorous, the response of the instruments so sympathetic and intelligent, that fear gave way to delight, and we never heard them play with more spirit and intuition. A grand feature of this part of the programme was the piano playing (in connection with the orchestra) of two of the young ladies in the Figaro Overture, and another two in the Menuetto from "Hansel and Gretel," and the young lady violinist, about whom we shall have something more to say next week, as she is to appear on Friday night as a solo-player at the ACADEMY's mid-winter concert. The benefits of this kind of work are inestimable. So, then the concert was completely successful in every part."

The reporter of the Twin-City Daily, speaking of our Mid-Winter Concert (a programme of which is given below), has the following to say in the issue of Saturday, January 25 :

"THE MID-WINTER CONCERT.—It has been the custom at the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY for the past few years to give what is termed a Mid-Winter Concert. These concerts are given principally with a view of demonstrating what advances have been made by the scholars in the music department (vocal and instrumental). The event is looked forward to with a great deal of pleasant anticipation both by the participants and those who are favored with an invitation to attend, as there is no charge for admission, this being one time and one place when and where money will not buy you an entrance.

"This concert came off last night in the SALEM ACADEMY. The large Gymnasium Hall was packed with a refined and sympathetic audience. The ACADEMY girls were there in full force, with a joyous sparkle in the eye, and the rosy tint of health upon the cheek, blooming beauties, happy in the home of their temporary adoption. The frequency with which their white hands clapped together at the conclusion of most of the pieces gave some faint conception of the real pleasures these sweet melodies were awakening in their young hearts.

"The programme was admirably arranged, embracing selections from some of the world-renowned authors, classic music, soul-thrilling in its beatific melody. The first piece was that rendered by the Salem Orchestra, 'The Calif of Bagdad.' We would that the old Calif himself had been there to listen to the sweet, rhythmic strains of this fantastic old composition so admirably executed by this unrivalled combination.

"The four-part song, so difficult and yet so beautifully harmonized by Mr. Buck, was, perhaps the most pretentious vocal selection of the evening. The Loreley Club deserve credit for attacking so difficult a composition.

"'A Ride for Life,' by Misses ROGERS and SITTIG, was vigorous, healthful and enjoyable. It was so close a finish that both were declared victors.

"Miss PACE was fully up to her usual excellence when she rendered the vocal solo, 'Frau Nachtligall.'

"The Zampa Overture' for two pianos and four performers was rendered with fine discrimination of phrasing. Had the allegro movements been a little more vivacious, we doubt if the rendition could have excelled by professionals.

"'Gaily chant the summer birds' was sung by Miss PENN in that captivating bravura style that always characterizes this popular favorite.

"'Grossmutterchen,' the violin solo by Miss GRACE LOCKE, was the piece de resistance of the evening. Miss LOCKE played with charming grace, so softly sweet we could seem to hear the violin say to the bow, 'If music be the food of love play on.'

"'A Night in May,' so exquisitely sung by Miss LACIAR, who plays as agreeably as she sings, was as brightly sparkling as a day in June. Miss LACIAR gives promise of an enviable musical future.

"Want of space forbids our dwelling on the other numbers of the programme, all of which were skillfully and delightfully executed. The concert was the most brilliant and most successful ever given in the ACADEMY, and dates the dawning of an era of unrivalled musical training in this world-famous institute.

"And, by the way, the school is now enjoying an unprecedented patronage. After building a large annex a year ago, and furnishing the chapel for use as a dormitory, it is now found necessary to erect another large building.

PROGRAMME.

1. Orchestra. Calif of Bagdad. Overture.....Boildieu.
SALEM ORCHESTRA.
Piano—Misses DUFOUR and L. FIELDS.
2. Piano Solo. Drei Romances. (For left hand only.)
Miss A. WELLS.
3. Four-Part Song. Annie Laurie. Harmonized by Buck.
LORELEY CLUB.
4. Piano Duo. A Ride for Life.....Blake.
Misses ROGERS and S. SITTIG.
5. Vocal Solo. "Frau Nachtligall".....Taubert.
Miss T. PACE.
6. Piano Solo. Polonaise in A.....Chopin.
Miss S. SMITH.
7. Vocal Solo. "Pur Dicesi".....Lotti.
Miss HAZLEHURST.
8. Piano Quartette. Zampa. Overture.....Herold.
1 Piano—Misses A. LACIAR and C. FRANCISCO.
2 Piano—Misses C. OLLINGER and A. ADAMS.
9. Vocal Solo. Gaily Chant the Summer Birds...DePrima
Miss PENN.
10. Piano Duo. Radiense. Grande Valse.....Gottschalk.
Misses A. MILLER and A. CARMICHAEL.
11. Vocal Duet. Echoes.....Moir.
Misses FRANCISCO and A. JONES.
12. Piano Solo. In the Mountains.....Lange.
Miss O. FAIN.
13. Violin Solo. Grossmutterchen.....Langer.
Miss GRACE LOCKE.
Accompanied by SALEM ORCHESTRA.
Assisted by Miss W. GAMBILL.
14. Piano Solo. Les Sylphes. Valse.....Bachmann.
Miss S. HEARD.
15. Vocal Solo. A Night in May.....Lacome.
Miss LACIAR.
16. Piano Duo. Selections. Midsummer Night's Dream.....Mendelssohn.
Misses E. and A. SHORE.
17. Piano Solo. Song Without Words. No. 3c.Mendelssohn.
Miss L. SIDDALL.
18. Vocal Quartette. Estudiantina.....Lacome.
Misses FRANCISCO, DUFOUR, LACIAR and JONES.
19. Orchestra. Menuetto and Trio from Sinfonie,
'Hansel and Gretel'.....Haydn.
SALEM ORCHESTRA.
Piano—Misses A. BROWNSON and D. ASHE.

List of Members of the Alumnae Association.

- Ayers, Mrs Col R A, Victoria Morrison, Estellville, Va.
Alston, Mrs J A, Emma Sanders, Hagood, S C.
Adams, Miss Dora, Mrs Alex Hopkins, Atlanta, Ga.
Armfield, Miss Blanche Jamestown, N C.
Armfield, Miss Roxie Greensboro, N C.
Ackerman, Miss Lula Salem, N C.
Ackarman, Miss Ellie Salem, N C.
Belo, Mrs Robt, Mattie Williams, Salem, N C.
Buxton, Mrs J C, Aggie Belo, Winston, N C.
Buford, Mrs Chas, Ellen Zevely, Winston, N C.
Butner, Miss Sophie Salem, N C.
Bahnsen, Mrs Dr, Emma Fries, Salem, N C.
Bynum, Miss Pamela Winston, N C.
Brown, Miss Jessie Salem, N C.
Brown, Miss Willie Jerusalem, N C.
Bewley, Miss Luta Anderson, S C.
Bewley, Miss Nellie Anderson, S C.
Bahnsen, Miss Mattie Farmington, N C.
Boyd, Miss Annie Summit, Miss.
Barnard, Mrs W U, Cordie Sluder, Asheville, N C.
Booth, Mrs Dr, Anna Clewell, Oxford, N C.
Bitting, Mrs J A, Louise Wilson, Winston, N C.
Beard, Miss Minnie, Kernersville, N C.
Bell, Mrs J R, Jane Ramsour, Smith Grove, N C.
Bogle, Mrs Dr, Mattie Boyd, Midland, Texas.
Borum, Mrs L, Lilly Hilliard,
Butner, Miss Effie Salem, N C.
Butner, Miss Maud Salem, N C.
Bridgers, Miss Loulie Tarboro, N C.
Brown, Mrs Will, Rebecca Marks, Winston, N C.
Brown, Miss Bettie Winston, N C.
Chitty, Miss Elizabeth Salem, N C.
Conrad, Miss Julia Lewisville, N C.
Conrad, Miss Cora Lewisville, N C.
Cooper, Miss Emma Salem, N C.
Craig, Miss Sallie E Gastonia, N C.
Carmichael, Miss Alma Salem, N C.
Clinard, Mrs E E, Bessie Brown, Winston, N C.
Cathcart, Miss Ella, Mrs Ketchin, Winnsboro, N C.
Caldwell, Miss Mattie Concord, N C.
Craige, Mrs, Cassie Henry, Greenwood, Miss.
Clewell, Mrs J H, Alice Wolle, Salem, N C.
Clark, Miss Eliza Little Rock, S C.
Clisby, Miss Daisy Macon, Ga.
Clemmons, Mrs E T, Hattie Butner, Asheville, N C.
Crist, Miss Carrie Salem, N C.
Clement, Mrs J M Mocksville, N C.
Connor, Mrs J S, Miriam Lumpkin.
Carter, Mrs Jessie, Ella Vogler, Madison, N C.
Chitty, Miss Emma Salem, N C.
Carmichael, Mrs E, Eliza Vierling, Salem, N C.
Coleman, Mrs Frank, Pattie Price, Sharon, Madison Co, Miss.
Draper, Mrs W W, Emma E Moore, Atlanta, Ga.
Dunn, Mrs Dora Neuse, Wake Co, N C.
David, Miss Della Bennettsville, S C.
David, Miss Maggie Bennettsville, S C.
Deadrick, Miss Lula Jonesboro, Tenn.
Dwive, Miss Mamie, Winston, N C.
Dodson, Miss Ada Winston, N C.
Dalton, Mrs. Dr, Louise Bitting, Winston, N C.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., FEBRUARY, 1890.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—We welcome Mr. Du Four in another short but very interesting sketch.

—We call special attention to the article entitled "A Plea for Cast Drawing." It is carefully written, and contains many thoughts good for those who are not artists in the technical sense of the word.

—We have received several communications from our Alumnae and undergraduates, some of which we present this issue, and others will appear next month. This interest is very encouraging to us, and we trust many more will come forward and aid us to furnish something of interest to every reader.

—Among our contributions we welcome an interesting letter from the West Indies, by JENNIE SIEGER and LIZZIE WOLLE ('87) which covers a field from which we do not often hear.

The essays from the Natural Philosophy Department are crisp and fresh, and will be found worthy of a careful perusal.

—The Constitution of the Alumnae Society says that every member (or at least every family) shall be a subscriber to THE ACADEMY. Have you sent in your subscription?

THE GRIFFISS LIBRARY FUND.

WE call attention to the handsome and unexpected trust donation given by the Young Men's Christian Union to the Griffiss Library Fund. The conditions on which this amount has been placed in our hands are that we will within twelve months open the library, under some restrictions, to the public. Whether we will be able to carry out this is for the future to decide, but the intention of the gift, in trust, remains, in the meantime, the same, and we will, therefore, use the pleasing announcement as the subject of a few remarks to our friends.

This is the third donation to the Griffiss

Fund, and why should it not be followed by many others in the near future? We propose to publish during the next months a list of the growing members of the Alumnae Association. Even without being aware of the social strength and influence represented by the Alumnae Society, the passing reader will see that even in simple numbers it is attaining great power. But it is also a well-recognized fact that nothing welds together a company so thoroughly and so happily as a common work and a common interest. Now that the Griffiss Library Fund has been started, and presupposing that all will agree to the worthy object of the Fund,—could the Alumnae do a better work for the Alma Mater than by placing the ultimate goal of $10,000 as the size of the fund, and then steadily and persistently working toward the goal? Let the work begin in a small way, by gifts of small amounts,—fifty cents, one dollar, five dollars. Who can say that additions will not be made as unexpectedly as was the recent donation of $80, or as Mr. Fries' gift, or even the first gift made by Mr. Griffiss, and from whom, as the first donor, the fund has been named?

It is a certain fact that careful financiers like best to place money where money already is found. If the Alumnae will heartily enter into this work and secure one-half of the above sum, may we not hope that at one step the remaining half may be donated by some kind-hearted, generous friend? The day is not far distant when our wealthier citizens will recognize the necessity of endowing our southern schools. Business in the South is rapidly coming to the front rank; so, too, manufactures; so all interests. The schools can only take the highest position when aided by endowments. Who shall take the lead? Will not small gifts pave the way for larger donations? If so, why not begin by giving the hearty continuation to the Griffiss Library Fund already commenced? Let us hear from the pens of some of our Alumnae on this subject.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

THE opening of the Gymnasium has again given an impetus to the somewhat languishing condition of the physical culture within the ACADEMY. The Gymnasium is open at all times, and it is seldom free from the hearty, ringing shout and laugh of the healthy girl. During the past weeks the roller skate seems to have led in the sports, and although there are occasional sprains and bruises, yet the per cent. is very small compared with the beneficial results. It is, indeed, a charming sight to see the grace and skill with which some can glide over the floor, though those who have observed most say the beginner is often the most entertaining to the spectator.

Beside the free sports are also to be classed the daily calisthenic drill and marches. These are less violent, but carry with them many weighty benefits,—the chief of which is the regular, systematic exercise of the entire body. Then, too, there is a certain refinement in the movements of large numbers. This is seen in the noble bearing of the regular soldier. The same grace of movement is often noticed in individuals, in a marked manner, when the Calisthenic Class has been engaged in its regular drills for three months or more.

Nor should we forget the Gymnasium as an escape valve for the superfluous life of the school. It must make its appearance somewhere, either in the halls, the yard, or the rooms. In winter the Gymnasium is the natural place, and here it is certainly found!

The secondary use to which we have put our Gymnasium, viz: that of a Concert Hall is not so great a success, but in the temporary loss of a chapel the Gymnasium is serving us a good turn. The chief difficulty is the loss of scenic effect. The stage being lower, by necessity, the full view of the performers is not gained, and hence much is lost throughout the performance. The various evenings recently given have, however, been eminently successful, the entrance between the Main and South Halls is a convenient one, and we believe before the winter is over many will have become attached to this recent addition to our buildings.

As a Gymnasium it most certainly is invaluable.

Correspondence.

—Our first letter for the month hails from the land of oranges and flowers:

Your notice reminding me of the expiration of my subscription to THE ACADEMY is at hand. I assure you I had no idea of giving up a paper whose monthly arrival affords me so much pleasure. I enclose $1.00 for two years.

I am teaching in Titusville this year; have the Assistant's place in our school. My 46 pupils keep me busy, especially at the end of each month, when examination papers are to be corrected.

Please remember me kindly to Mrs. CLEWELL, Dr. and Mrs. RONDTHALER and the teachers.

Very sincerely,

KATE PADDISON.

Titusville, Fla.

—I have been intending to write to you for some time, ever since your return from Europe, but have been prevented by my uncle's illness. I received THE ACADEMY and was so very interested in the description of your trip. I would so enjoy hearing you tell of the many wonders you saw.

I often think of the many pleasant hours I spent in Salem, especially during my Senior year. I know our class appreciated your interest in our progress and welfare as much or more than any you have had, or ever will have.

I send you my subscription for THE ACADEMY, and hope to hear from you before long. Remember me kindly to Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL, and to all the teachers.

Affectionately,

ANNIE STAPLES.

Reidsville, N. C.

—No doubt you will be surprised to hear from me: though I have never written to you since I left the dear old Academy, I have not forgotten you, and will always remember your kindness. I enclose you a picture of myself, husband and children. I was married in 1874 to Dr. A. H. Byrd, a brother to FANNIE BYRD, and have 6 children, 2 boys and 4 girls, whom I wish to entrust to your teaching as soon as they are old enough.

My sister ANNIE married Dr. T. A. Turpin, and is now living in Tallulah, La. She has 2 little girls. Her oldest daughter died last spring, aged 15. Annie's health gave way after her death, and she now confined to her room with dropsy. FANNIE BYRD is unmarried, and is living in Eutaw with her mother. Sister VICTORIA is also unmarried, and has devoted herself to raising sister LAURA'S orphans, who were left when quite small.

I have seen several copies of THE ACADEMY and wish to become a subscriber. As Christmas draws near how vividly my mind recalls the happy Christmas I spent in Salem. Give my love to all my dear old teachers; would that I had time and space to send a message to each one. How sorry I was to hear of Mr. GRUNERT'S death.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and hoping to hear from you soon.

I am your affectionate pupil,

JULIA BLOCKER BYRD.

Burton's Hill, Greene Co., Ala.

—After all these years have you stamped the seal of forgetfulness on the name of one whose thoughts have never ceased to hover around you and dear old Salem? Echo answers "No."

"How cruelly sweet are the echoes that start, Whose memory plays an old tune on the heart" and live over again those happy by-gone days spent in Salem, my girlhood's Eden, where I was so happy and saw the future only through colored glances.

I left the Academy in my 17th year, and fully intended returning, but one of my eyes became badly inflamed, and my attending physician (the gentleman I married) advised father not to send me to school for a year or two; however, I travelled a good deal, learned many important lessons from observation, and found great comfort in music, thanks to dear, impulsive Miss REICHEL and kind, patient Miss BRIETZ.

Father lived to educate his children (3 sons and 4 daughters), and see them married, except the youngest. Amid all our prosperity and happiness, in March, 1882, God saw fit to cast the deepest gloom upon us in taking away our idolized father. It was the most trying ordeal of my life. But why make sad these pages with my troubles!

It has been some time since you have heard from EMMIE: I intended to educate her in Salem, but her health was too delicate to send her away from home. She went to a fine college in this State, but after she entered the senior class her health failed so rapidly we persuaded her to give up all and come home. Three eminent physicians advised her to travel, and she went from place to place till her health improved. In 1887 she was married to Dr. Robert L. Harley, of Barnwell. It was a hard matter to give my only child away, and I did not either till Dr. Harley promised to make this his home. Their child was one year old the 10th of last month; his name is Robert Jennings; has golden hair and blue eyes. His grandfather thinks there never was such a smart boy. Of course he is a great pet, for we have not had a baby in the house since Emmie was born.

I received a card from cousin CARRIE LANHAM some time since; she wrote that in a recent letter from Salem some of her friends had inquired about me. It is sweet to be remembered by our friends, and it would be a very great pleasure for me to visit dear old Salem. I proposed to CARRIE that we would attend Commencement there this summer. I used to take THE ACADEMY, but our mails were so irregular and so many copies failed to reach me that I never subscribed again. I always receive a copy at Commencement, and it does my heart good to read it, and see the names of friends I have not met for years.

There is a Mr. Lineback of your town who comes to this State sometimes to tune pianos. Is he a relative of Prof. E. W. Lineback, who was my principal music teacher? I would certainly have him tune my piano (because he is a Salemite), but I never hear of his being here till he is gone. Does the same old church clock still chime the hours? What would I not give to sit in that dear old church, and hear the grand, solemn sound of that blessed organ! Do the girls yet go walking and shopping? I used to enjoy those shopping days and come back loaded with good things. Miss REICHEL once asked me "if my papa's money grew on the trees?" I was rather extravagant. I saw in THE ACADEMY a letter from Mr. DESCHWEINITZ, which was read before the Alumnae Association, and was delighted. I also read a letter written by Stella Slappey. Was her maiden name STELLA NEIL? Are you the Miss VOGLER who was chosen President of the Association? Tell me something more about the Association. I would like to see a copy of the Constitution. Please write soon, a long, long letter; anything from your pen will be a great delight to me. With best wishes for your health, happiness and prosperity, I remain,

Yours truly,

MARY E. JENNINGS.

Plum Branch, S. C.

—As I have been from home some time my two last ACADEMIES reached me at the same time. I sat down in a large chair in the hall and, notwithstanding the ringing of the dinner bell, I perused every line without stopping. While reading of the annual holiday I could almost see the girls playing games and drinking the good coffee which Miss Fogle always makes. I think the Students' Tour is enjoyable and beneficial. I would so much like to visit my Alma Mater and see the changes which have been made since I left there. I am teaching school in Fort Barnwell, a little village on the Neuse river, 20 miles from Newberne. I have a pleasant school of 24 pupils, but it will close this week on account of the bad crops. I see you will send pictures of the 3 buildings for framing. Will you please send them to me. With love and best wishes for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year,

I am, as ever,

MARY V. SMITH.

Coville, N. C.

An unknown friend sent THE ACADEMY to me. I send thanks. I see that any one who wishes pictures of the buildings can have them on application. Please send them to me. I am an old pupil of '39 and '40, and hope to greet some of you next Commencement, though I will be a stranger to teachers and scholars, but shall not forget the Library. With best wishes for our Alma Mater,

E. B. ALLISON.

Turnersburg, N. C.

—Pardon me for my delay in renewing subscription to THE ACADEMY. It is a welcome visitor, and mother, too, is much interested, for she often sees familiar names that remind her of the past. Her name was SUE BLACKBURN; she was there with Col. Covington's girls, and she is devoted to the Academy, as much as I am.

How we all envied those girls who went North. It made me wish we were seniors too. With much love to Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL,

I remain, yours, &c.,

LAURA DICKS.

Walkertown, N. C.

—After days of anticipation, we at last received THE ACADEMY. I have just finished reading your most interesting letter, which, I assure you, no one could have enjoyed more than I. We had a very pleasant vacation, and fully expected to return to Salem; but since we are deprived of that pleasure, I am going to continue my studies, practice and read during the winter, and try to return to S. F. A. in the autumn of 1890. I shall use the article you wrote in one of the ACADEMIES about "What to Read," as my guide for this winter's reading.

I often think back and see where we girls could have assisted you in your many duties, but we were thoughtless. Taking all things into consideration, last year was certainly the most pleasant one of my life. It makes me sad to think of the old familiar chapel, where we have spent so many happy hours together, being changed into a dormitory. My best love to Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL, Dr. RONDHALER and all other friends. I would be much delighted to hear from you real soon. With much love, your little friend,

BIRT FITZPATRICK.

Mt. Pleasant, Texas.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

ANNIE MAKEPEACE spent Sunday with friends.

—Mrs. Heard is spending some time at the Belo House.

—LILY HODNETT and NARCIE TAYLOR were in Mt. Airy a few days recently.

—HATTIE HAUGHBOOK returned to her home in Georgia, but we look for her again in September.

—IDA WALLACE has completed the work she had allotted herself, and has returned to her home.

—The following pupils have arrived since our last issue: JOHNSIE ALEXANDER, BESSIE WEDDINGTON and LILIAN DAY.

—EMILY HAZLEHURST was detained in Macon some days after Christmas, and also SUE HEARD in Elberton, but both are again at their school duties.

—Several patrons have visited our towns recently: Mr. Cannon, of Concord; Mr. Waddill, of Bennettsville; Mrs. Weddington, of Charlotte, and Mr. Osborne, of Durham. All were with us a longer or shorter time, and inspected the institution.

—Mr. Wells, of Chattanooga, paid us a pleasant visit on the occasion of his trip to Salem. We were sorry to say good-bye to ALICE, but trust that her contemplated visit to Hot Springs, Ark., may entirely restore her and enable her to again resume her studies in the ACADEMY.

—The graduates of our Commercial Department are doing exceptionally good work in the varied positions of trust and usefulness, which they are filling with credit to us as well as themselves. A recent letter gives the information that MATTIE FAIN is teaching Phonography, or Shorthand, in the Carson Union College, Mossy Creek, Tenn. LIDA FAIN is teaching also, but not Shorthand.

—A very pleasant surprise was given us in the shape of a box of Mexican curiosities received a few days ago, from Mrs. Frank Earnest (JODIE WAUGH), of Laredo, Texas. Among them were photographs of Apache Indians, of an adobe Jacal (as some of the native residences are termed), of a group of Cacti, growing two or three times the height of a man; some Aztec pottery, a little pitcher and bowl, and a piloncillo (pee-lon-see-yo), a sort of whistle formed like an ear of corn, a perfect imitation; some Mexican sugar, resembling maple sugar, and a beautiful rug, the skin of a leopard-cat. Few experiences are so delightful as these, to be so kindly remembered by former pupils who are nearly 2000 miles away, engaged in the pressing duties of a useful, busy life. Just before Christmas Mrs. Earnest sent to us the photographs of her two handsome boys, Frank Waugh, a fine boy of 6, brimfull of vitality, and Felix Albert, aged 1 year.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Dr. RONDHALER has kindly conducted the chapel services during Mr. CLEWELL's recent indisposition.

—A number of teachers of the ACADEMY were entertained socially by Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL, on Thursday evening last.

—The fourteenth Annual Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association will be held in Goldsboro, March 13-16.

—Saturday, February 1st, a number of girls from different room companies took a "straw ride" to Bethabara, some six miles north of Salem, and seemed to have had a good time. Mr. PFOHL had the party in charge.

—In another column we give a notice of the marriage of Miss LULA TATE, of Graham, and would join the good wishes of THE ACADEMY to the host of other friends, who send congratulations to this popular recent member of the teaching force of the ACADEMY.

—We have had an unusually warm winter thus far. In fact there has been no winter at all, everything seeming to indicate the presence of Spring, or even early Summer. Just as we go to press a light fall of snow tells us that the almanac is right in regard to the season, but perhaps before the paper reaches our readers the lilacs will be putting forth buds.

—Dr. RONDTHALER's lecture on "Greece" will be delivered as the second in the course of Winter Evening Entertainments, on Friday next, February 14th, and will be an opportunity to hear an eloquent description of this classic land from one who has so recently visited the country in person, that no one should miss who can possibly attend on the evening named.

—Miss CONNIE PFÖHL has been compelled to take a temporary vacation on account of her health. We trust that she may soon recover fully so as to resume her responsible duties in the school. In the meantime Miss FOGLE will assume her room company duties in the Fifth Room, and Miss WARD who is on a visit to Salem will take charge of her class work.

—The recent terrible affliction which fell upon Secretary Tracy in the loss of his wife and daughter in the burning house in Washington, has called forth an unusual amount of sympathy within the school. While the members of the Students Tour were in Washington recently they received a number of courtesies from the Secretary, and they look upon this part of the Washington visit with peculiar pleasure.

—The erection of the new Hall north of the Church will not be commenced as early as was at first anticipated, since so large a building could not possibly be completed in one season. The house known as the "Prof WURRESCHKE home" will be removed in early summer and the ground cleared preparatory to laying the foundation for the large new Hall.

—That portion of the street immediately in front of the Belo House has been greatly improved during the past months. The houses on the opposite side of the street have been raised up some feet and also the side walk. The steep hill in front of the old land office has been cut down, and Church street also graded down. This has very greatly improved this section of the town and makes the approach to the Avenue of Cedars more beautiful, than it was before.

- A very great improvement is being made in the work now in progress on the square in front of the ACADEMY. A beautiful granite curbing has been brought from the eastern portion of the State, and is being placed in position so as to mark out a generous walk around the entire plot of ground. The ground is being thoroughly cultivated and will be sown in lawn grass. It is proposed to place an electric light in the centre, and a number of other improvements will be added. The square has always been a lovely spot, but we believe by the time our friends come to see us in June next it will be unusually attractive in its new dress.

—To even a passing observer it must be apparent that the Music Department of the ACADEMY is in an unusually healthy and flourishing condition. The rapidity with which fine and finished concerts have been following each other without exhausting the powers of the Department; the skill of individual performers; the general interest manifested, yea, we may say the positive enthusiasm of many, all goes to prove the above assertion. The faculty at present is as follows:

Professor GEORGE MARKGRAFF, Instrumental Music and Violin Instruction.

Miss KATHARINE W. EVANS, Vocal.

Miss ADDIE LACIAR, Assistant Vocal.

Miss VEST, Instrumental.

Miss CARMICHAEL, "

Miss A. VAN VLECK, "

Miss HAGEN, "

Miss L. VAN VLECK, Guitar.

The Vocal Department has never seemed stronger than it is at the present time. Miss EVANS has the faculty of showing to almost every one of her pupils that she is the happy possessor of a voice, and that the voice is capable of cultivation. But more than this, she has succeeded in filling a considerable number with so much enthusiasm that by the close of this, her second year with us, we believe she will have enabled some to have fulfilled the necessary requirements of graduation in vocal music. THE ACADEMY congratulates Miss EVANS on the results of her labors in this department, and trusts that still greater laurels may await her in the future.

—An unusually large amount of labor devolves on Professor MARKGRAFF in connection with the concerts now in course of preparation. But this worthy and talented gentleman does not seem to suffer from the strain, but always has a cheerful smile as if the double duties were no task at all.

—The following warm letter has been received from a former Salemite, and some of our readers will remember the writer as the gentleman who delivered the interesting and thrilling lecture in the ACADEMY Chapel, on the subject of the Greeley Expedition Relief Party, and their trials and difficulties. The letter which follows is dated in France.

U. S. S. ENTERPRISE,
December 16, 1890.

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.:

So ably conducted a paper certainly deserves the patronage and encouragement of every true Salemite, and I am ashamed to be so late in coming to the front. Come to me for one year from January next, care of Mr. W. A. Lemly, President of Wachovia National Bank, Winston, N. C., to whom please apply for amount of subscription.

Respectfully,
SAM. C. LEMLY,
Lieutenant U. S. N.

—The first of the Winter Evening Course of Entertainments took place in the Gymnasium Hall of the ACADEMY on the evening of January 31st, and was an occasion of rare musical enjoyment to all who were present. The concert was given by the famous Salem Orchestra, and was fully up to the standard of their excellent entertainments in the past. Mrs. Rosa Fries was the vocal soloist of the evening, and was welcomed in the manner that our audiences always greet her, and her interpretation of the songs on the programme was as sympathetic and beautiful as is always the case with this favorite of the Salem concerts. Mr. Sam Mickey on the cornet, and Mr. Harry Mickey on the trombone, were also successful soloists of the evening, and were warmly called for a second time. Miss LOCKE again captivated the audience by her skilful handling of the violin bow, and added much to the enjoyment of the evening. The concert was certainly a success, and if this is a promise of the remainder of the Course, the citizens of the twin-cities, and also the inmates of the ACADEMY, have a rich treat in store for the winter.

Day Scholar Department.

—MINNIE GOOLSEY has entered the ACADEMY.

—“What is si (if)?” “It is a subjunction!”

—AOA FOGLE accompanied her father to New Mexico.

—BESSIE HALL is attending school in a private institution in Virginia.

—BESSIE PURNELL has been detained in Raleigh on account of sickness.

—ALICE LOCKE is now with her sister in Winston, and is therefore for the present a member of the day scholar department.

—“What is the difference between cost and price?” was recently asked in class of a pupil. “The price is what you pay for it, and the cost is what you get for it.”

Our Library.

Books Received.

Report of the Commissioner of Education, 1887-1888, a complete and exhaustive volume of statistics and character of the schools and colleges of the United States.

The Inventory of new books has been received, and many hearts are happy. The department of new books is now full, and it is not an uncommon thing to find every chair in the Library occupied and the benefit of this new lot of books being enjoyed by all. The following is the list:

POEMS.

Chaucer, Spenser, Lowell, Burns, Moore, Mrs. Brownin.

PEDAGOGICS. 10 VOLS.

1. Elements of Pedagogy. White.
2. On Teaching. Page. (Payne.)
3. Compayre's Hist. of Pedag. Payne.
4. Lectures on Education. Payne.
5. Art of School Management. Baldwin.
6. Talks on Teaching. Parker.
7. Mistakes in Teaching. Hughes.
8. Grubbe's Method of Teaching Arithmetic. Seeley.
9. Child and Nature. Frye.
10. Method of Teaching History. G. Stanley Hall.

BIOGRAPHY. 32 VOLS.

1. Marie Antoinette. Jacob Abbott.
2. Hortense. “ “
3. Cleopatra. “ “
4. Madame Roland. “ “
5. Josephine. “ “
6. Alfred the Great. “ “
7. William the Conqueror. “ “
8. Richard I. “ “
9. Richard II. “ “
10. Margaret of Anjou. “ “
11. Peter the Great. “ “
12. Alexander the Great. “ “
13. Darius the Great. “ “
14. Xerxes the Great. “ “
15. Ghenghis Khan. “ “
16. Cyrus the Great. “ “
17. Romu us. “ “
18. Pyrrhus. “ “
19. Hannibal. “ “
20. Nero. “ “
21. Julius Caesar. “ “
22. Hernando Cortez. “ “
23. King Philip. “ “
24. Louis XIV of France. “ “
25. Joseph Bonaparte. “ “
26. Henry IV of France. “ “
27. Louis Phillippe. “ “

28. Charles I of England. Jacob Abbott.
29. Charles II of England. “ “
30. Richard III. “ “
31. Queen Elizabeth of Eng. “ “
32. Mary Queen of Scots. “ “

PLUTARCH'S LIVES. Langhorne's Translation.

- Vol. I. Roman Section.
- Vol. II. Roman Section.
- Vol. I. Grecian Section.
- Vol. II. Grecian Section.

MISCELLANEOUS. Fiction.

1. John Ward, Preacher. M. DeLand.
2. Zenobia, Queen of Palmyra. Wm. Ware.
3. Don Quixote. Cervantes.
4. Schoenburg Cotta Family. Mrs. Charles.
5. Jan Vedder's Wife. Mrs. Barr.
6. Hitherto. Mrs. Whitney.

1. Sketch Book. Irving.
2. Koran. Sales.
3. Life of Christ. Dr. Geikie.
4. Seven Lamps of Architecture. Ruskin.
5. Ethics of the Dust. Ruskin.
6. Shepherd's Calendar.

- Days of Bruce.
- Deserted Jesse.
- Tessa Wadsworth's Discipline.
- Nan.
- Vassar Girls in England.
- 'Test of Clay.

Received for the Griffiss Library Fund.

In trust from the Young Men's Christian Union,	$80.00
Previously acknowledged,	50.00
Total,	$130.00

The Orbis Pictus of John Amos Comenius, C. W. Bardun, Syracuse, N. Y., 1887. This remarkable work, of which we will have something to say later, has now been secured for our Library, and it is well worth a careful examination.

The Annual Cyclopaedia, 1888, New Series, Vol XIII. D. Appleton & Co, 1889.

Index to the Annual Cyclopaedia, 1886-1887. D. Appleton & Co.

Married.

STOCKARD-TATE.—Oh Wednesday, January 2a, 1890, at Graham, N. C., Mr. HENRY JEROME STOCKARD to Miss MARGARET LULA TATE.

—*—For Young Writers and Speakers—*

“A DECADE OF ORATORY.”

PRICE, CLOTH, $1.00.

A beautiful and substantial little book containing eleven orations which have been awarded the annual $100.00 Kirk prize at Northwestern University—the highest honor in the gift of the institution. It irth many times its price to young writers and speakers. Shows what styles of oratory are successful before mature judges. A study of these orations may bring you prizes or honor in your own school. Address

UNIVERSITY PRESS CO., Evanston, Ills.

THIS SPACE IS THE PROPERTY OF

W. P. ORMSBY

FOR ADVERTISING THE

LIGHT-RUNNING

Domestic Sewing Machine,

— AND —

ORGANS, PIANOS,

— AND —

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

APPLY FOR INFORMATION,

MAIN STREET, SALEM, N. C.

SCHOULER'S
RACKET STORE

HAS JUST BEEN MUCH ENLARGED
AND A

-:- COMPLETE STOCK -:-

OF NEW STANDARD GOODS ADDED.
CUSTOMERS WILL FIND THIS

A VERITABLE BAZAAR.

WHERE EVERY THING CAN BE PUR-CHASED AND AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

SCHOULER'S
MILLINERY
ESTABLISHMENT

WILL NOW SELL THEIR LARGE STOCK OF

FELT HATS

AT AND BELOW COST.

FRENCH FELT SCHOOL HATS,

—AT 25c. WORTH 75c.—

A NICE ASSORTMENT OF

VALENTINES,

VERY, VERY CHEAP!

HENRY W. MILLER,

STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
Price, complete with two type wheels, $100.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.

Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Typewriter Ribbons. Office Specialties.

Send for Catalogue.

WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Tallow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

HARPER'S READERS.

They are popular because they meet the requirements of advanced educational ideas in supplying—

1. Pure, interesting and appropriate child-literature.
2. A grading corresponding to the growth of the child's mind.
3. An abundance of work, entertaining as well as instructive.
4. An influence upon child-life, always healthy, moral, and elevating.
5. A beauty of type, engraving, and binding, which will educate the taste.
6. A price lower, per page, than any other series of readers published.

From W. H. PAYNE, Chancellor of the University of Nashville, Nashville, Tenn.:

An examination of Harper's Readers convinces me of their great excellence both in respect of plan and matter; and I regard them as the highest ideal yet reached of a series of reading books for use in the public schools of this country.

From H. A. GUDGER, President of the Board of Education, Asheville, N. C.:

Harper's Readers are used in our public schools and give perfect satisfaction. Indeed, I regard them as the very best books in use.

From Miss STELLA S. BEARD, Principal of Female College, Laurens, S. C.:

Harper's Fifth Reader is the finest thing of the kind I have ever seen.

From WASHINGTON CATLETT, Principal of Cape Fear Academy, Wilmington, N. C.:

I had supposed that no improvement could be made in School Readers, but in this recent issue I find a most decided advance in every department. The illustrations are gems of art, the typography clear and attractive, the binding most durable and handsome. And what is of most importance, the methods involve the most approved ideas upon the subject. The matter is attractive to the child, while the grading of lessons is both scientific and practical.

Harper's First Reader,	144	24 cts.
Harper's Second Reader,	208	36 "
Harper's Third Reader,	316	48 "
Harper's Fourth Reader,	420	60 "
Harper's Fifth Reader,	510	90 "

Liberal discounts on supplies for introduction.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers.

Franklin Square, New York.

WANTED.—Position as music teacher in school or private family by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address K. M., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.—A position as teacher by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address B., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady as Phonographer.
Address

C.—care of The Academy,
Salem, N. C.

BINGHAM SCHOOL.

(Established in 1793.)

is PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys, in AGE, in the high standing of its PATRONS, in AREA OF PATRONAGE, and in equipment for PHYSICAL CULTURE. Location in the COUNTRY. Organization MILITARY.

The 96th Annual Year will begin Sept. 1, 1889.

Maj. R. BINGHAM, Supt.
Bingham School P. O., Orange Co., N. C.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA
SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California.

Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Vaco, Texas, without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S. - E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236, Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass. & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

→* MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH,*←
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about

$75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.

155 Lexington Avenue New York.

CARE OF MRS VOLLER.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

SPENCERIAN
STEEL PENS
Are the Best,

IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF
Durability, Evenness of
Point, and Workmanship.

Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail, on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. 3
IVISON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway, New York.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with
an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.

For complete Itinery of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the

East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble ballast, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going or returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and welfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address
B. W. WRENN, JNO. L. MILAM,
G. P. A., Knoxville, Tenn. D. P. A.

C. A. DESAUSURE,
A. G. P. A.
Memphis, Tenn.

BELO HOUSE.

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House
in the well known and popular former Belo
House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates,
day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan, '90—1y.

ST. LOUIS,
ARKANSAS &
TEXAS RAILWAY.

COTTON X BELT X ROUTE.

The Direct Line between the Educational
Centres of the South-East and
Arkansas and Texas.

NO CHANGE OF CARS BETWEEN POINTS ON
THIS LINE AND

Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Atlanta.

PULLMAN BUFFET SLEEPERS, FREE RECLINING
CHAIR CARS, ALL THE COMFORTS AND
CONVENIENCES OF MODERN TRAVEL.

On advice being sent to any of the following,
an Agent of this Company will meet all pupils
at the various junction points, en route, and
render any assistance or information necessary.
For further information, address

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield.
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

OF

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.
Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

THE SHORT LINE FROM
CHATTANOOGA and BIRMINGHAM

TO
NEW ORLEANS,

Where direct connection is made with the SOUTHERN PACIFIC and TEXAS & PACIFIC RY'S, for
Texas, Mexico and California,
THE SHORT LINE via VICKSBURG and SHREVE-
PORT to TEXAS, MEXICO and CALIFORNIA.
NEW MEXICO, COLORADO and the FAR
WEST. Close connection made at Shreveport without transfer through the City.

From TEXAS to the
NORTH AND EAST,
Via SHREVEPORT.

Close connections without transfer through the City.
Leave Shreveport 7:00 A. M.
Through Sleeping Cars to ATLANTA via, BIRMING-HAM making direct connections for

SAVANNAH, AUGUSTA, CHARLESTON, AND PORTS IN

Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and the East,
Connecting at MERIDIAN with Main Line Trains.
J. C. GAULT, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS,
Gen'l Mgt. G. P. & T. A.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere;
Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then
will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

CLINARD & BROOKES.

WM. T. VOGLER,

JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., MARCH, 1890.

NUMBER 104.

FOUNDED 1802.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA.

This old and well-known Institution is at present instructing about 300 students, and has the following separate and well equipped departments:—

PREPARATORY SCHOOL, extending over 3 years.

COLLEGE COURSE, extending over 4 years.

POST GRADUATE COURSE (degree of A. B.), extending over 1 year.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

SCHOOL OF ART.

SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

Full information as to any department will be furnished upon application to

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

THE STUDENTS' TOUR TO NORTHERN CITIES.

SOME time has elapsed since we took up the thread of our narrative of the tour made recently by the young ladies of the Senior Class. When last we were with the party the White House had just been inspected, and the special courtesies which the President and others had shown the members were of a nature to ever make that visit a pleasant page in memory's book. As the gateway was passed it became evident that if the sight-seeing was to be profitably continued the party must tarry somewhere long enough to satisfy the cravings of hunger. We made our wants known to Mr. Gulick, and he escorted us to a restaurant, where a hasty lunch was partaken of, and then once more we started on the tour of the day. The weather was simply superb, and any one who has taken the walk around the open space in the rear of the White House will readily understand the pleasure of the party as we slowly wended our way toward the great Washington monument. It was in the midst of this walk that little Clarence caused a great deal of amusement by an accident and the manner in which he dealt with the same. He was running in and out among the party, when by a mis-step he stumbled and rolled out into the dust. Fearing that he might be hurt several of the party started to assist him, and almost immediately a head was seen to rise from the dust, and a face appeared with an expression which seemed to say that all things earthly are only vanity, but still the words were brave as he earnestly exclaimed, "Would you like to see me do that again, girls?" And now the great monument is only a few hundred yards from us, and one and another is heard to exclaim, "I will never go to the top of that place!" But we will let one of the party take up the narrative at this point:

THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

BY HETTY JARNIGIN.

"On the afternoon of October 30th, our party went to the great Washington Monument. Although it can be seen in almost any part of the city, towering above all surrounding objects, still none of us had been greatly impressed with its wonderful height till we stood near it. On entering, we were disappointed to find that we must wait quite a while before the elevator would descend. Mr. CLEWELL, with a few of the girls, walked up the 900 steps. The majority, however, waited for the elevator. Nine minutes are required for the ascent, but to people whose nerves are affected by being suspended several hundred feet above the ground, the time seems more like 90 minutes. The top was safely reached, and when we looked from the windows the sight almost took our breath away. The houses looked like toys, and the people like small insects. The view is fine in clear weather, but unfortunately this day was hazy.

"A number of the girls walked down in order to notice more carefully the walls of the monument. From the top to within 200 feet of the base, the walls are composed of the plain white marble: then come 40 feet of red and white marble, the different colored blocks being arranged alternately. The walls of the lower part of the shaft are ornamented with blocks of marble presented by various nations, states, cities, societies, military companies, etc. Some of the blocks are beautifully carved; all bear some interesting inscription. So we felt amply repaid for our wearying walk down the steps. When we reached the last step we found Mr. CLEWELL waiting for us. No time was given for rest, but we hurried on to the Smithsonian Institute."

It would be impossible for us to even begin a description of the visit to the National Museum and the Smithsonian Institute. The time was short, but even the shortness of the time did not prevent a rich feast for the party as they went in and out among the relics and the curiosities; the mummies and the inscriptions; the animals and reptiles; the specimens of those things that are rare and interesting gathered from every clime. Suffice it to say that when the hotel had been reached the late dinner was most welcome and the waiters were kept busy for an unusually long time. But it had been a glorious day, one that the party will long remember with pleasure.

Much could be added to the account of the stay in Washington, but as we are following the journey as the letters of the young ladies depict it, we must draw this chapter to a close, since we find upon referring to our portfolio that the Washington letters have been exhausted. Of course, our friends will understand that we did all that could possibly be done in the way of sight-seeing in so short a time. That wonderful and majestic building, the Capitol, received a half-day of our time, but no one was found in the party who was willing to attempt an account of what was seen within that half day. The programme also included the Botanical Gardens, the famous Corcoran Art Gallery, the Pension Office, Patent Office, Post Office, and a score of other points, each with its peculiar attractions and enjoyments.

It is Friday morning and the party had said farewell to beautiful Washington, with its smooth streets, its palatial buildings and its hosts of attractions,—the Baltimore & Ohio depot had been reached, and we take possession of the elegant private car which this company has placed at our disposal. The bell is sounded, the steam is hissing as the engine seems impatient to begin its journey towards the busy city of Baltimore, our next objective point. Mr. S. B. Hege is the gentlemanly escort kindly sent us by the railroad company to take charge of the company from Washington to Baltimore. No one would have thought that a mile a minute was the rate at which we were speeding toward our destination, yet so it was, and in less than three-quarters of an hour the 42 miles were passed over, and Mr. Hege informed us that we were entering the city of Baltimore. But we will let another take up the thread at this point and narrate briefly what we saw in this city :

A PLEASANT DAY IN BALTIMORE.

BY FANNIE E. WRAY.

"After a pleasant hour's ride from Washington, on Friday morning we rolled into Baltimore, where we were met by Mr. C. R. Webb, and afterwards by Mr. Carson, who conducted us to some of the most interesting parts of the city. We visited "Woman's College," and were taken through the building by several of the faculty. At every corner we could see a crowd of girls peeping and laughing, wondering, I suppose, what institution we were representing. After seeing their new dormitory, which is now being erected, we went to the Washington Monument. Although the one in Washington is almost twice as high as this one, we were much more fatigued when we reached the top than was the case in the former. Some of our party stayed quite a while in "Peabody Institute," while the others went to "Johns Hopkins University." We had the pleasure of meeting there Mr. Charles Lee Smith, who delivered our address last Commencement. We have a claim somewhat upon him, having been educated in the Old North State, and about a week before this time he had joined himself in wedlock to one of our fair sisters. Some of the young men gave us the yell. From the University we went to the "Peabody Library," in order to join the remainder of our party to go to Camden station, where an elegant dinner of everything a school-girl could wish was served in first-class style. We girls from North and South Carolina and Tennessee were glad to see such nice large oysters set before us,—it was quite a treat. After this delightful dinner we started on our way to the great metropolis. We only got a faint glimpse of Baltimore, but that was sufficient to make a lasting impression upon our memories."

We do not wish to make any of our readers envious, nor do we desire any one to read what follows, about ten or eleven o'clock at night, after having eaten only a light supper. Still, we feel that the account of the visit to Baltimore would be incomplete if we did not try to impress upon our friends some idea of the magnificent repast which the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad provided as a compliment to the party. The bill of fare, which is given below, was printed in a most neat and attractive form, in various colors, and with illustrations from Washington gracefully worked in with tempting viands, palm leaves, etc.

1st page.

B. & O. MENU.

ITINERARY.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C.

— TO —

WASHINGTON,

BALTIMORE,

PHILADELPHIA

and NEW YORK.

OCTOBER 26 TO NOVEMBER 9, 1889.

2nd Page.

ITINERARY.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

October 28th—31st, Metropolitan Hotel.

BALTIMORE, MD.

Nov. 1st, Camden Station Dining Rooms.

NEW YORK,

November 2d—5th, Ashland House.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.,

November 6th—8th, Hotel Aldine.

November 9th,

"HOME, SWEET HOME," WITH VARIATIONS.

3rd page.

MENU.

OYSTERS.

Horn Harbors, on half shell.

SOUP.

Oyster.

FISH.

Boiled Bass, Egg Sauce.

ROAST.

Turkey, Cranberry Sauce.

Rib Beef. Lamb, Currant Jelly.

ENTREE.

Fried Oysters.

SALAD.

Potato.

VEGETABLES.

Mashed Potatoes. Sweet Potatoes. Tomatoes.

Lima Beans. French Peas. Turnips.

DESSERT.

Vanilla Ice Cream. Fruit.

FRENCH COFFEE.

DINNER, Baltimore, November 1st, 1889.

1th page.

The B. & O. RAILROAD

is the

ONLY LINE

running

THROUGH TRAINS

via

WASHINGTON,

East and West.

Mr. Hege left the party at Baltimore, and Mr. Geo. R. Webb became the escort. As the gentlemen are so far away it is not improper for us to say that they were both possessed of a generous share of good looks, and those who are more or less acquainted with the ways of school girls will not be surprised to know that the party were soon planning to discover if the escort was married or single. Doubtless few can imagine how quickly and yet how innocently this knowledge can be obtained by the average school girl. Thus it was that the interesting information was obtained. We were crossing the basin at the upper end of the bay and Mr. Webb had invited a number of the party to step out of the car to the floor of the barge. As they stood looking down at the water a few common-place remarks were made, when one of the young ladies addressed a question to Mr. Webb, and the following conversation took place :

Young lady—"Is the water deep at this point?"

Mr. W.—"Oh, yes; very deep."

Young lady—"Would a person drown if she should fall in?"

Mr. W.—"Most assuredly, unless she could swim."

Young Lady—"Would you jump into the water and rescue me if I should throw myself overboard?"

(And then there was a perceptible increase of interest as all the party awaited the answer to this innocent (?) question.)

Mr. W.—"Why, no! I would throw you a rope, but I could not risk my life under such circumstances, since I have a wife and two children to take care of."

Those of us who remained in the car noticed a slight shade of seriousness on the faces of the party when they returned to the midst of their companions, and when the conversation was repeated to us we attributed the seriousness to the contemplation of the awful possibility of falling overboard! As we had no more pos-tive information we must leave our readers to draw their own conclusions.

Soon the darkness of night was about us, and we beheld the party, one by one, fall asleep, for the day had been a weary one, and while peace and quiet reigned within the comfortable car the busy engine was bearing us forward, faster than the fleet wings of the wind, toward our destination, and as we rushed by town and village the stream of fire and smoke shot high in air, the shrill whistle screamed warnings to stations and crossings. Wilmington was reached and passed, so, too, Philadelphia, and still the party continued to enjoy their well deserved rest, and why should we disturb them? We will not do so, but will quietly leave them and our subject at the same time.

The City of Chattanooga.

BY MISS NELLIE GRIFFISS.

THE city of Chattanooga, Hamilton County, Tennessee, is situated on the south bank of the Tennessee river, and in full view of grand old Lookout Mountain, made historical by numerous battles fought on its sides and in its neighborhood during the late war.

At the breaking out of the war Chattanooga was a thriving little place, with fair prospects for a bright future, but at the close of that war, which proved disastrous to so many of our southern towns, its manufactures were wrecked, the inhabitants scattered, buildings destroyed, and Chattanooga was nothing more than a military post, without buildings and without inhabitants. Chattanooga now has the claim of being the future great city of the South. It has very desirable business locations, is a great railroad centre, has large mineral resources, an extensive commerce on the river, which has been greatly increased in the past year by the removal of Muscle Shoals, a remarkable formation of lime; it is also one of the healthiest cities in the world.

There are many points of interest in and about the city. The scenery on and around Lookout Mountain is especially beautiful. The grandeur of its scenery, the cool, bracing breezes, and easy access, render Lookout a very popular summer resort. Missionary and Walden's Ridges also have very pleasant locations for summer homes, frequented principally by the people of Chattanooga.

The business of Chattanooga is carried on mostly on Market Street, a very beautiful street, extending from the river to Tenth Street. Being paved with asphalt it renders driving very pleasant. Block after block of beautiful structures line the sides of this street. Loveman, Richardson and Phoenix blocks are three of the most imposing. Crossing Market are 8th and 9th Streets. The Adams block is a very handsome stone building on 8th. On 9th St. is the Chattanooga Union Depot, one of the finest depots to be found anywhere in the South. Just opposite the depot is the Read House, one of the first hotels in the city.

The business of Chattanooga is growing so rapidly that many of the citizens are building their homes in the suburbs of the city. Some of the residences are exceedingly handsome, built by wealthy men who have invested their money in and around Chattanooga.

Just across the river is a small town, called Hill City, a growing little place: we have great hopes that Chattanooga one day will be the New York of the South and Hill City the Brooklyn.

John Henry Boner.

BY MISS CARRIE SHELTON.

AMONG the first poets of our day stands John Henry Boner; born the son of Moravian parents in Salem, N. C., where his childhood and boyhood were spent. Leaving his native town about the close of the war, he went to Raleigh, where he held the position of Reading Clerk in the Legislature of '68. Afterwards, having married a Raleigh lady in the meantime, he lived in Washington, D. C., for a number of years.

His talent lies in sensuous descriptions of natural scenery, with occasional flashes of passionate genius that remind one of Edgar Allan Poe in his tamer moods. He has published a volume of poems, entitled Whispering Pines, the name being taken from one of the poems.

"The Silver Wedding" is among his best; in which he describes the meeting of the Shenandoah and Potomac rivers at Harper's Ferry, Virginia. The lordly Potomac is represented as a gay cavalier coming down from the mountains to meet the fair Shenandoah, "the nymph of the valley." They are wed in Nature's Cathedral, and then go dancing, hand in hand, through the mountain gate.

In the poem, "Moonrise in the Pines," while he waits in the forest for the moon,

"Lo! a light in the east opalescent
Softly suffuses the sky,
Where flocculent clouds are quiescent,
Where like froth on the ocean they lie;
Like foam on the beach they crimple
Where the wave has spent its swirl,
Like the curve of a shell they dimple
Into iridescent pearl."

"Home from Camp-meeting," "Moon-Loved Land," "Gather Leaves and Grasses," and "City Bells" are also favorites in this collection.

Mr. Boner is, at present, employed on the staff of The Century, and his last poem, on "Poe's Cottage at Fordham," published in the November number of that magazine, is well up to his standard; in this he speaks of that undoubted genius,—

"No singer of old story
Luting accustomed lays,
No harper for new glory,
No mendicant for praise;
He struck high chords and splendid,
Wherein were fiercely blended
Tones that unfinished ended
With his unfinished days."

German Opera.

BY MISS MARGUERITE DU FOUR.

THE German Opera is known among musical historians as the Romantic School. The invention of the romantic school has been most unanimously ascribed to Weber. However, a claim was brought forward in favor of Spohr; it is true that Spohr's greatest triumph, Faust, was completed in 1813, while Weber's masterpiece, Der Freischutz, was not produced until 1821.

As early as 1806, Weber had given good promise of what was to come in a decidedly romantic opera, Rubenzahl, written for the theatre at Breslau, but never publicly performed.

On the whole the full honor must be accorded to Weber. Gluck made an important mark also in the early German opera.

Mozart's works, which had an inclination to Italian style, were Zauberflote, Il Seraglio and Don Juan, the latter being altogether in Italian style. Beethoven's Fidelio, and a great many of Weber's, viz: Oberon, Euryanthe, Larche Marchne, Lortzing, are the main constituents of the German opera. As regards its characteristics the German opera differs both from the Italian and the French, but more from the latter. The three may be thus classified: French—rhythm, Italian—melody, German—harmony.

The French opera is very rhythmical and full of life; declamatory and dramatic, full of recitatives, the base resting almost entirely on one note. The Italian opera is full of melody, made up almost wholly of melodies and choruses, with a light, dancing accompaniment. German opera is all for the music, sometimes very little rhythm is observed, harmony being the main thing.

The Euterpean Society.

THINKING that the friends and absent members of our Society would like to know its present condition, I write the following items, knowing that THE ACADEMY will reach many of them.

The Library, which we are now starting, has already been furnished with Dickens and some of Louise Alcott's works, and will, no doubt, prove quite an addition to the Society. Miss EMMA ROLLINS, our Bookworm, was elected Librarian at our last meeting.

At our recent election of officers, Miss ANNIE SLOAN was chosen President; Miss DELL SUTTON, Vice President; Miss MAGGIE GRAHAM, Secretary; Miss CAMILLE HUNT, Treasurer; Miss LENA FIELDS, Door-keeper, and Misses C. HEWSON and A. SLAPPEY, Janitors.

The retiring officers were Misses G. CRAWFORD, C. WRAY, E. ROLLINS, M. FAGG, L. PEYTON, A. BRONSON and C. HEWSON. They had all served two terms, and it was with a sad heart that we gave them up, but sincerely hope their successors will not fall behind them in good qualities.

We had been waiting some time for the completion of the Gymnasium Hall to give our first entertainment, which came off just before the Christmas holidays. So we "christened" the Hall, and realized quite a neat sum, which we immediately paid on our piano debt.

We have gotten our badges which are much admired. The design is a scroll with a quill across it, and a harp in one corner; diagonally across the scroll is a band with our motto, Viribus Unitis engraved upon it. We would say that if any old members desire badges, we will be delighted to fill their order. We will also gladly receive any donations to our Library.

Our Library.

DEAR Friends, who read this paper, with me ex-pupils of Salem Female Academy, lend me your eyes just long enough to convey several ideas to your heads and hearts for further consideration and action.

You know that while it is sweet to be remembered it is equally sad to be forgotten, and would it not be a good plan to prevent the latter unhappy possibility by setting up a little memorial for ourselves in a rather public place? The Academy Library, for instance.

This important adjunct to educational work shows strong symptoms of renewed growth. Several gentlemen have come forward handsomely, and have agreeably demonstrated that their interest goes deeper than their hearts—even to their pockets.

Would it not be possible for us to do something, too, in a very acceptable, if smaller, way?

The majority of us possess limited purses on which there are unlimited demands, but we have seen in our life-work, made up as it is of so many small details, that trifles often amount to great things in the end. Here are two propositions which may suggest better plans to some one else.

Let a former pupil, if she has a book suitable for the Library and not already contained in it (and that she could readily ascertain), write her name and address on the fly-leaf, and donate it. Apropos of which I shall hand in with this paper a book, entitled "Physiology and Hygiene," by Hatfield, a practical treatise without hard names to frighten the unscientific. It is most interesting and helpful, calling the human body "the house in which we live," and telling how to make and keep it a "fit temple for the in-dwelling God."

Or we may prefer another way. I, for one, hereby give two dollars (that is by no means a limit) for the purchase of so ne desirable book at that price, to be selected by a Library Committee.

It cannot fail being an agreeable sensation to have a memorial set up for us while we live happily on. Moreover, this will be such a pleasant chain, uniting pupils of the Past, Present and Future, and looking over the Library, by and by, many names will be found to recall old pleasures and acquaintances.

Good books are the best companions, and it will be delightful to think that if we cannot be authors ourselves we can, in this way, disseminate the treasures of master minds.

Writing our name in a good book and having it placed on the shelves is the same as saying, "these are my sentiments, too," and we can at the same time demonstrate that out of our own aspirations for knowledge and general culture, has sprung the desire to further the advancement of others, acting on the glorious principle,—each for the other and God for us all.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

—A Decade of Oratory is a neat, handsomely bound volume, containing eleven orations which received the Kirk prize at the North-western University. Published by the University Press Co., Evanston, Illinois.

—We have received the following new books from Allyn & Bacon, Publishers, Boston:

Gradatim, an easy Latin Translation Book for Beginners, by Heatley and Kingdon, and revised by Scudder.

First Latin Book, designed as a manual of progressive exercises and systematic drill in the elements of Latin, and introductory to Cæsar's Commentaries on the Gallic War, by Comstock.

Cæsar's Gallic War, with an Introduction, Notes and Vocabulary, by Kelsey.

German Reader, for Beginners, with Notes and Vocabulary, by Brandt.

First French Course, of Rules and Exercises for Beginners, by Chardenal.

Ancient Greece, from the Earliest Times down to 146 B. C., by Pennell.

All of the above books are new and advanced in style, and are worthy of careful examination by those interested in the above subjects.

—From Messrs. F. & H. Fries we have received "Report of the Commissioner of Labor," 2 vols., 1879.

—Messrs. Harper & Brothers, whose advertisement will be found on another page, have sent us the following works:

Fairy Tales, by Rolfe, being one of the series in English Classics for school reading.

First Book in Physiology and Hygiene, by Kellogg, a simple but interesting work for younger pupils.

Manual of Penmanship, by Shaylor, adapted to accompany Harper's New Graded Copy Books.

Animal Life in the Sea and on the Land, a Zoology for Young People, by Sarah Cooper.

—Stanley in Africa, and Other Travelers, Pioneers and Explorers, by Boyd. J. H. Moore & Co., Philadelphia.

Received for the Griffiss Library Fund:

From Miss Gertrude Sewers $ 2 00
Previously acknowledged, 130 00
$132 00

—“Presented to Salem Female Academy, by Gertrude Sewers, Salem, N. C., February 26, 1890,” is written on the fly-leaf of Hatfield's Physiology and Hygiene.

—From Ginn & Co. we have received Wentworth's Primary Arithmetic.

Graded German Lessons, by Collar.

Grammar School Arithmetic, by Wentworth.

—We acknowledge receipt of Superintendent's report of Eastern N. C. Insane Asylum, Goldsboro, N. C., from Dr. J. F. Miller, M. D.

Extinction of a Noble Race.

BY MR. A. DUFOUR.

EVERYBODY, I think, has read about Montezuma, or rather Montheuzoma, the ruler of the Aztec Empire, who after having hospitably received F. Cortez, was treacherously imprisoned by him, kept as a hostage, and finally starved himself to death at Mexico, in the year 1520.

His eldest son was made a Spanish count, and one of his descendants died at New Orleans in the year 1836; but the last male scion of that imperial race, Don Antonio Maria Marcilla de Teruel Montezuma y Navarro, Grandee of Spain, Count and Duke of Montezuma de Tultengo, Marquis of Tenebron, etc., the ninth lineal descendant of Cortez' victim, has died at Madrid, in the first days of last month, February, 1890.

—Professor Ford, the elocutionist, of New York city, appeared before a Salem audience for the third time, and made for himself more friends than ever. His entertainment was first-class in every respect, and we will always welcome him. The proceeds of the entertainment were for the Young Men's Christian Association of Salem-Winston.

—A light fall of snow, March 1st, made the hearts of many glad.

Members of Alumna Association.

- Dicks, Miss Laura Walkertown, N. C.
- Du Four, Miss Marguerite Geneva, Switz.
- Ector, Mrs Dr, Phebe J Brown, Winston, N. C.
- Ebert, Mrs E A, Dora Starbuck, Salem, N. C.
- Eccles, Miss Maggie Clemmonsville, N. C.
- Earnest, Mrs Frank, Jodie Waugh, Cotulla, Texas.
- Erwin, Miss Mattie Staten Island.
- Fries, Mrs L M, Lisetta Vogler, Salem, N. C.
- Fries, Mrs J W, Agnes de Schweinitz, Salem, N. C.
- Fries, Mrs F, Anna de Schweinitz, Salem, N. C.
- Fries, Mrs H E, Rosa Mickey, Salem, N. C.
- Fogle, Miss Mary Ann Salem, N. C.
- Fogle, Mrs Chas, Antoinette Butner, Salem, N. C.
- Fogle, Mrs Christian, Emma Reich, Salem, N. C.
- Fielder, Mrs Idus, Maud Clegg, Silver City, New Mexico.
- Fitzgerald, Miss Theo L North Danville, Va.
- Fries, Miss Addie Salem, N. C.
- Flournoy, Miss Nina Shreveport, La.
- Fisher, Miss Emma Salem, N. C.
- Fisher, Miss Louie Salem, N. C.
- Fisher, Mrs Fannie Salem, N. C.
- Fain, Mrs Geo, Eliza Moore, Dandridge, Tenn.
- Fain, Miss Kittie Dandridge, Tenn
- Fitzpatrick, Miss Mary Mt. Pleasant, Tex.
- Fitzpatrick, Miss Bert Mt. Pleasant, Tex.
- Fries, Miss Mary Salem, N. C.
- Furman, Miss Kate Sumpter, S. C.
- Graham, Mrs Col J D, Georgia Sanders, Sumpter, S. C.
- Gilmer, Mrs J E, Laura Lash, Winston, N. C.
- Gaither, Mrs Lash, Florence Clement, Mocksville, N. C.
- Glenn, Mrs W B, Sallie Matthews, Winston, N. C.
- Gibson, Mrs Eliza, Phifer, Concord, N. C.
- George, Mrs Col, Eliz Lash, Wenonda, Va.
- Gorrell, Mrs A B, Miss Wilson, Winston, N. C.
- Gorrell, Miss Mary Winston, N. C.
- Gibson, Miss Sallie Rockhill, S. C.
- Hyman, Mrs, Mollie Hilliard, Winston, N. C.
- Heisler, Miss Lizzie Salem, N. C.
- Hicks, Miss Julia Raleigh, N. C.
- Hicks, Miss Lizzie Raleigh, N. C.
- Hunter, Mrs Dr, Josephine Siddall, Salem, N. C.
- Hege, Mrs C A, Fannie Spough, Salem, N. C.
- Hauser, Miss Agnes Salem, N. C.
- Hopkins, Mrs Alex, Dora Adams, Atlanta, Ga.
- Hanes, Mrs P C, Lizora Fortune, Winston, N. C.
- Hine, Miss Della Winston, N. C.
- Hall, Miss Sadie Salem, N. C.
- Hamlin, Miss Cora Winston, N. C.
- Hudson, Mrs W J, B Grier, Wolfesville, N. C.
- Hill, Miss Alice, Germanton, N. C.
- Hill, Miss Annie, Raleigh, N. C.
- Holt, Miss Fannie, Graham, N. C.
- Hunnicut, Miss Eddie, Atlanta, Ga.
- Hunnicut, Miss Sallie F Atlanta, Ga.
- Hendricks, Mrs Robert, Mary Hunter, Salem, N. C.
- Hairston, Mrs, Bettie Dobson, Wenonda, Va.
- Hanson, Miss Annie Macon, Ga.
- Hall, Mrs Gaither, Anne Jones, Hickory, N. C.

- Hall, Miss Delphine Salem, N. C.
- Harris, Mrs, Alice Woodsides, Tamped, Tenn.
- Hemsath, Mrs Chas, Ada Lineback, Bethlehem, Pa.
- Hunt, Mrs, Lorena Bobbitt, Oxford, N. C.
- Hauser, Mrs C S, Miss Benzien, Salem, N. C.
- Hege, Miss Lula, Salem, N. C.
- Hazlehurst, Miss Emily Macon, Ga.
- Joyner, Mrs J P, Addie Kirkpatrick, La Grange, N. C.
- Jones, Mrs Dr B, Julia Conrad, Bethania, N. C.
- Jones, Miss Kate Bethania, N. C.
- Jenkins, Mrs R, Maggie Clewell, Salem, N. C.
- Jenkins, Miss Gertrude Salem, N. C.
- Jones, Miss Annie Salem, N. C.
- Jones, Miss Carrie Salem, N. C.
- Jones, Mrs Dr A, N Dalton, Walnut Cove, N. C.
- Kapp, Mrs J H, Sallie Lehman, Bethania, N. C.
- Kernan, Mrs Dr, Sophie Kremer, Lebanon, Va.

Subscriptions Received.

- Mrs. J. F. Drake, Wadesboro, N. C.; Miss Carrie Vest, Stony Ridge, N. C.; Mr. Timothy Vogler, Salem, N. C.; Mrs. L. B. Winkler, Stockton, Cal.; Mrs. J. H. Tise, Salem, N. C.; Mrs. C. Dargan McLean, Charlottesville, Va.; Mrs. Emma Letman, Bethania, N. C.; Miss Sophie Butner, Salem, N. C.; Dr. Wm. M. Clark, Kittrells, N. C.; Miss Lula Gray, Sedge Garden, N. C.; Mrs. E. W. Lineback, Salem, N. C.; Mr. H. V. Lineback, New York City; Miss Hattie Smith, Williston, S. C.; Miss Lyda David, Bennettsville, S. C.; Mrs. J. D. Cox, Redallia, N. C.; Mrs. Frank Earnest, Laredo, Texas; Miss L. Armfield, High Point, N. C.; Miss A. Adams, Bagdad, Florida; Miss S. Borden, Goldsboro, N. C.; Miss A. Bordeaux, Meridian, Miss; Miss S. Brower, Liberty, N. C.; Mrs. G. Baxter, Sparta, N. C.; Miss D. Cox, Cedar Falls, N. C.; Miss Enla Cox, Dunn, N. C.; Miss A. Covington, Goldsboro, N. C.; Miss L. Crunshaw, Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Lena Chapin, Foster Falls, Va.; Miss Lizzie Chapin, Foster Falls, Va.; Miss F. Cummings, Aspen Grove, N. C.; Miss F. Creight, Wainsboro, S. C.; Miss A. Carrier, Asheville, N. C.; Miss G. Crawford, Galveston, Texas; Miss M. Canady, Wilton, N. C.; Miss R. Campbell, Honston, Texas; Miss A. Drake, Griffin, Ga.; Miss C. Edwards, Apex, N. C.; Miss A. Erwin, Gouthrieville, N. C.; Miss M. Epes, Ala.; Miss O. Fain, Dandridge, Tenn.; Miss M. Figg, Asheville, N. C.; Miss L. Fitzgerald, North Danville, Va.; Miss A. Francois, Greenville, S. C.; Miss A. Fogle, Salem, N. C.; Miss A. Gillespie, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss Anne G een, Columbia, S. C.; Miss Susie Guick, Washington, D. C.; Miss M. Graham, Forest, Miss.; Miss N. Griffiss, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss M. Gunn, La Ville, Ga.; Miss L. Heisler, Salem, N. C.; Miss Mary Helm, Jackson, Miss.; Miss Maud Harris, Reidsville, N. C.; Miss Camille Hunt, Lexington, N. C.; Miss Clara Hewson, Orange, Texas; Miss Floride Hall, Griffin, Ga.; Miss L. Hodnett, Martinsville, Va.; Miss Lizzie Irby, Clinton, S. C.; Miss Edna Ingram, Pine Bluff, Ark.; Miss Hattie Johnston, Brinkleyville, N. C.; Miss Hettie Jarnagin, Mossy Creek, Tenn.; Miss Carrie Jones, Salem, N. C.; Miss Mary Jefferies, Home, S. C.; Miss Ora Kennedy, Mexia, Texas; Miss Lizzie Kime, Liberty, N. C.; Miss Willie Lutz, Greenwood, Miss.; Miss Lizzie Luelack, Salem, N. C.; Miss Kate Moses, Richmond, Va.; Miss V. McMurray, Wadesboro, N. C.; Miss A. Makepeace, Franklinsville, N. C.; Miss Eloise McGill, Fayetteville, N. C.; Miss Mary Miller, Goldsboro, N. C.; Miss Mary McKeown, Brooksville, Fla.; Miss A. McGregor, Waco, Texas; Miss Annie Moore, Huntersville, N. C.; Miss Fay McCullen, Marion, Va.; Miss Mattie Mason, Gibsonville, N. C.; Miss Sallie McLean, McColls, S. C.; Miss Fannie Neil, Rogersville, Tenn.; Miss L. B. Newberry, Magnolia, N. C.; Miss C. Ollinger, Milton, Fla.; Miss M. Odeneal, Jackson, Miss.; Miss Letmie Price, Rogersville, Tenn.; Miss A. Pittman, Salem, N. C.; Miss Bessie Ponder, Tuskegee, Ala.; Miss M. Pierce, Taxewell, Va.; Miss Theresa Pace, Corsicana, Texas; Miss L. Peyton, Greensboro, N. C.; Miss M. Penn, Danville, Va.; Miss A. Perkins, Greenville, N. C.; Miss M. Petekin, Drake, S. C.; Miss Lavinia Rogers, Macon, Ga.; Miss E. Rollins, Marshall, N. C.; Miss Hubert Read, Corsicana, Texas; Miss A. Stunt, Durango, Texas; Miss Ava Stroup, Anona, Texas; Miss J. Smith, Mexia, Texas; Miss Ella Shore, Salem, N. C.; Miss S. Smith, York, Penn.; Miss A. Sloan, Reidsville, N. C.; Miss S. Sittig, Houston, Texas; Miss L. Shaffner, Salem, N. C.; Miss S. Shaffner, Salem, N. C.; Miss L. Thompson, Raleigh, N. C.; Miss M. Trimmer, Spartanburg, S. C.; Miss C. Taylor, Texarkana, Texas; Miss O. Thompson, Gaffney City, S. C.; Miss N. Taylor, Martinsville, Va.; Miss Htta Taylor, Oxford, N. C.; Miss K. Waddell, Asheville, N. C.; Miss F. Wray, Knoxville, Tenn.; Miss Carrie Wray, Shelby, N. C.; Miss C. Waddell, Blacksburg, S. C.; Miss T. Womack, Mexia, Texas; Miss M. Whitsett, Graham, N. C.; Miss L. Whitner, Fort Read, Fla.; Miss M. White, Wainsboro, S. C.; Miss M. Woodell, Raleigh, N. C.; Miss A. Wells, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss G. Warner, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss S. Vest, Salem, N. C.; Miss Addie Lacier, Mauch Chunk, Penn.; Miss Emma Cooper, Salem, N. C.; Miss Daisy Clisby, Macon, Ga.; Miss E. Hazlehurst, Macon, Ga.;

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., MARCH, 1890.

*Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.*

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers
constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence

MISS EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—Again we return thanks to the many friends who have come to our aid in furnishing in THE ACADEMY something to please everybody.

—Miss LEHMAN'S Notes of Travel on her late European tour are now in press, and will be published in a pamphlet of about 125 pages.

—We will be pleased to send catalogues or copies of THE ACADEMY to any friends who desire information relative to the school, if they will send us names on a postal card.

—We call attention to the communication signed "ALUMNA," and rejoice to know that the name and memory of another one of our esteemed former pupils has received this lasting tribute. Indeed can it be truly said that such monuments are more lasting than those of stone or brass.

—We call attention to the advertisement of the Souvenir of the Twin Cities, Winston-Salem. Mrs. Winkler, the author, is the widow of the late Judge C. M. Winkler of the Court of Appeals, Texas, and Colonel of the 4th Texas Regiment, Hood's Brigade. She was editor for 3 years of a Texas magazine, entitled Prairie Flower, previous to her residence in Salem.

—We are rapidly nearing the close of the term, and every thing begins to assume the aspect peculiar to the season. Seniors look unusually wise and correspondingly solemn. The tardy scholar is seen to begin hastily "brushing up," to avoid the possibility of not passing, and the pleasing anticipation of soon again meeting friends and loved ones begins to cast its shadow before it.

THAT LIBRARY FUND.

WE trust that all our readers who feel an interest in the welfare of our Institution will read the earnest, stirring appeal made by Miss SIEWERS, in another column, to the members of the Alumnae Association. She has not only told us what she thinks the Alumnae can do, but she has taken another step, she has also acted. When the book and the money, (acknowledged elsewhere,) and the communication were placed on our sanctum table it is needless to say that we were gratified at the same, since it seemed to promise a great deal for the future. How small the effort is to the individual, and yet how much in the aggregate as to result!

We think Miss SIEWERS' suggestion in regard to the register of the name in the Library is a good one. How pleasing it would be to many of our pupils to take from the shelf a book, and methinks she can be heard to exclaim, "Why, Mama presented this book to the Library; here is her name in the book!"

It is in itself a small matter to place a book on the shelf of a large library, but no part of the collection would be more interesting than that which, together with the books, brought up the names and thereby also the faces of beloved former pupils.

Who will follow the suggestion which the esteemed Secretary of the Alumnae Association has made?

A NOBLE GIFT.

WE see in the Philadelphia Keystone an account of a noble charity, worthy of the source from which it has sprung. At a meeting of the Grand Masonic Lodge of Pennsylvania, held in the Masonic Temple on December 27th, the Grand Treasurer, Thomas K. Patton, surprised the Lodge by a gift of $25,000 as a memorial of affectionate remembrance of his lamented wife, Ellen H. Graham Patton, who died some time ago. This fund is for the relief of widows of 45 years and over, whose husbands were Master Masons in good standing in that Lodge. Primarily and chiefly, this munificent gift is intended as a memorial of the donor's now sainted wife: the tribute is to woman as woman, and to woman as related by marital ties to members of the Masonic fraternity. The charity is known as the "Thomas R. Patton Memorial Charity Fund." Mr. Patton is acting wisely and nobly in thus establishing this, with other benefactions, during his lifetime, when he can see and judge how the money is applied. He has performed the wisest and noblest act any man can do, and has erected a monument to a beloved wife more enduring than brass or granite.

Mrs. Patton, as ELLEN GRAHAM, was a highly esteemed Alumna of Salem Female Academy in 1855-'56. She and her sister, CORNELIA, now Mrs. William Patterson, of Philadelphia, were greatly beloved here where their school days were spent. Modest and retiring, yet outspoken and firm in their devotion to what is true, noble and upright, they left a record, a fragrant memorial of all that is best and noblest in woman. It is with peculiar pride and pleasure that we record such a charity in honor of one known and loved among us.

It reminds us also of our duty as the Alumnae of Salem Female Academy, to bestir ourselves, to do what we can towards equipping our Alma Mater for enlarged usefulness; she has done a grand work in the past 86 years, and now let us see to it that she keeps her proud position as the leader in the great work of the higher education of the women of the South. Now is the time, as one new department after the other is added to the Academy, and as the older ones are being raised to a higher level. The Commercial Course, the Art Department, the Post Graduate Course, the Griffiss Library Fund, have all been commenced within the past 10 years, and shall we let them languish for want of proper encouragement and support? The glorious record of the past forbids it; the vast army of our 10,000 Alumnae who have spread their influence over countless homes, who have shaped and molded and refined society, who have made the name of a Southern gentlewoman a synonym of all that is best in human nature,—all these forbid it.

Scholarships should be established: every Alumna should try to enlist the interest of those who are blessed with ample means; nowhere could benefactions or donations be bestowed with more effect, with more blessing than just here. With increased facilities the Academy would then become a greater power still in our beloved Southland, preparing our young women for the duties of an active, a busy a noble life.

AN ALUMNA.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—CHRISTIANA MCFADYEN returned home end of February.

—Mrs. Richardson, of Reidsville, paid us a visit early in March.

—Professor MARKGRAFF made a hurried visit to Charlotte some days since.

—Mr. Trout and Mr. Gambill, of Roanoke, were in Salem and paid the ACADEMY a visit.

—We hear from Mrs. Emery that Ellen McLemore Crowder died, but no particulars were given.

—Miss BYNAM was compelled to leave her duties a short time in order to recover from a slight attack of illness.

—Miss MARY MEINUNG is at present detained at home by the sickness of her mother, and Miss FLORENCE MEINUNG has assumed her duties.

—I FAISE YEARGAN is a niece of BETTIE YEARGAN who attended school in the Academy in 1855. She is now Mrs. Bettie Y. Taylor, of Hendersonville, N. C.

—Among the many notable Alumnae of the Academy, the members of the Goodman family, Tyler, Texas, certainly deserve more than a passing mention. Miss PAMELIA JEFFERIES, 1827, was the wife of Dr. Goodman, Sr., and over 60 blood relations of the family have been educated here, beginning with the Misses MOORE from Spartanburg, S. C., in 1809.

—We are truly sorry to hear of the death of a dear friend and pupil of the past, Mrs. W. W. Felts, better known among us as DELLA DANCY. Her bright, winsome disposition endeared her to schoolmates and teachers while she was a school-girl. As a wife and mother her death has left an aching void that can never be filled. Her sister, CAMMIE, Mrs. J. M. Fort, is well-nigh heart broken. The sisters were especially devoted to each other; they lived quite near, just on opposite sides of the street, in Paris, Texas. Mrs. Felts left, as far as we know, a son 12 years old, a daughter 5, another son 2 years old, and a little babe of two weeks. May our Heavenly Father sustain her bereaved family in this their bitter sorrow.

—Owing to the rain and mud the Washington's Birthday ride was postponed.

Correspondence.

Our first letter for the month is from Mrs. Emery, better known, perhaps, as KATE HAYLEY, now of Memphis, Tenn.:

—You doubtless have inferred from my tardiness in renewing my subscription to THE ACADEMY that I had lost interest in one of the sweetest homes a motherless girl ever had. Not so, however. I have recently moved into my new home, and with the usual cares which accompany all our earthly treasures, I have unintentionally neglected writing. I enjoy every number of the little paper, particularly those containing letters from Miss LEHMAN. Two years ago I joined a History and Literature Class, and Miss LEHMAN'S letter from Rome was read before the Club and highly appreciated. We have been delving in Latin translations for the past year.

Last summer, while on the Virginia coast, I met ANNIE MARTIN and her sister JESSIE, now Mrs. Churchill, of Little Rock. We spent several weeks together, and I found them charming. ANNIE has improved every hour of her single-blessedness, and JESSIE was married quite young; she is very delicate, but sweet and patient with it all. JULIA BLOCKER'S letter gave me great pleasure, and anything from STELLA NEIL or MAUD CLEGG is hailed with delight. I must acknowledge I feel the least bit jealous when I think of the many improvements added to the Academy since my day, and sometimes long to be a girl again to enjoy the advantages.

Yours, &c.,

KATE HAYLEY EMERY.

424 Washington St., Memphis, Tenn.

—As the new year advances my thoughts are constantly reverting to the dear old S. F. A., and among the first things I am a debtor for a long and pleasant communication. We had a very enjoyable week during the Christmas holidays. After the novelty of Christmas morning had worn off I wanted to be back in Salem to see how the girls were enjoying themselves. The day was warm, quite a contrast with the last Christmas I spent in Salem: we had services, of course, in the morning, then at night we enjoyed a Cantata, "Santa Claus' Prize, and Who Won It," rendered by the Methodist Sunday School. Nature favored us with warm, bright weather until New Year's day, since which time we have nothing but rain and mud.

BIRT and I have been reading a very interesting historical novel, one of Miss Muhlbach's. I see from THE ACADEMY that you have added some valuable books to the Library. The graduates of '89 were one year too early. How are the societies progressing? I have heard but little from them; I hope the Euterpeans will complete the furnishing of their hall this year. If every thing continues to improve as rapidly as it has since last June, I am afraid we would not recognize the old home when we return for our re-union.

I attended a very interesting Japanese party on Friday night. The attendants were dressed in Japanese costumes, the house was decorated with fans and parasols, and we had rice and tea for refreshments. Have you had many entertainments in the Academy this session?

With much love, I am

Yours, affectionately,

MARY FITZPATRICK.

Mt. Pleasant, Texas.

—I acknowledge the receipt of The Souvenir with thanks. I have looked through it with much interest, and think it will very well answer the purpose for which it was intended. There are some statements not quite correct, which in such works are to be overlooked. One, you may pardon me for pointing out, about the Fire Engine received from Germany in 1785, and said to be the first one brought to America. "La Grippe" has had me in the house for some time, so while convalescing I looked over my ancient treasures in the shape of old letters back as far as 1756. I came across the original subscription paper for the first fire engine brought to Bethlehem. The paper is dated 1761, and contains the names of 25 subscribers, total amount subscribed 70 pounds sterling, over 350 dollars. In 1863 our Bethlehem church diary says: "November. To-day our handsome new fire-engine arrived from London, on the brig ———, care of Capt. Jacobson." So you see the "Old Perse," still in existence and shown as a relic, antedates yours by over 20 years. The machine that you show was called a Butterfass, of which there were a number in Bethlehem long before the hand-engine from London arrived. I point out this because I accidentally came across the old documents, which are, of course, intensely interesting. The last ACADEMY shows a gratifying step in advancing the musical interests of your town. I congratulate you on your musical programme.

Will you kindly send me one of your school catalogues.

Very truly, your friend,

JOSEPH A. RICE.

Bethlehem, Pa.

—Please find enclosed 50 cents to renew my subscription to THE ACADEMY, beginning with the January number. I anxiously look in each number for news of the dear old girls of '77 and '78. I often see such glad and happy letters in THE ACADEMY and wish that I had more of their joyous spirit. I saw a notice in THE ACADEMY that there were pictures of the buildings on hand. Will you please have them forwarded to me?

I saw CYNTHIA SWANN to-day. She is well and cheerful, and is now teaching in the college here, seems to enjoy her work, and the scholars are warmly attached to her. MARIA FAIN has been quite sick, but is better, and will return to Atlanta as soon as she is well enough: her health, until the past two weeks has been better than in a number of years. How much I should like to visit dear old Salem! I hope to have that pleasure sometime.

With much love,

affectionately yours,

Mrs. W. B. HARRIS,

(ALICE WOODSIDES.)

Dandridge, Tenn.

—Thanks for the copies of THE ACADEMY. It is certainly an exceptionally bright school paper, and I take pleasure in enclosing a subscription to help it along. I was very sorry that I could not see more of you and Mrs. CLEWELL and the young ladies while you were here. I intended to accompany them to the Zoo, but was prevented by business matters. If they come again I would try and redeem my reputation for hospitality. I think you deserve congratulations on the evident prosperity of the Academy, and extending such, I am, Yours, with best wishes for a Merry Christmas.

JAMES E. BECK.

Philadelphia, Pa.

—Your favor received, and I now answer you for my wife who is too sick to do so. We will certainly send Katie Louise in February, to remain four years. You cannot tell me anything about Salem I do not already know. I had three sisters educated there, and know whereof I speak. It is the only safe school in America. I will feel just as certain of my daughter there as at home. I will send another daughter in six months, and also an adopted daughter.

I will give the addresses of two of my sisters, as there may be some who remember them. LUCIE P. FREEMAN is Mrs. Holland, of Macon, Georgia. THERESA THOMAS FREEMAN is Mrs. Andrews, of Belton, Texas. The other is travelling somewhere, so I do not remember her office. They were at Salem from 1852, I think, till 1856, when they came home, and to-day they cannot help shedding tears over dear old Salem. I thought some of the former pupils might be interested, so I give them.

I remain yours, &c.,

E. B. FREEMAN.

Rome, Ga.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—We are always pleased to receive kind words from a friend, and give below a letter to the Salem Press, and which seems to indicate that the request made to Mrs. Winkler to aid and assist in entertaining the young ladies was not an unpleasant one. THE ACADEMY returns thanks to the writer for the kind expressions.

RECEPTION AT PRESIDENT CLEWELL'S.

"In the social life of Salem Female Academy there has been no more enjoyable event than the reception of Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL to the young ladies of the outgoing and incoming Senior Classes, the graduates of this year and those who expect to arrive at that dignity in 1891.

"The spacious rooms of the President's house, five in number, on the lower floor, were all thrown open to the guests, tastily decorated with wreaths and festoons of evergreens about doors, windows and the large, old-fashioned mantels, which, with the flashing lights, gave the impression of some fairy like palace, where the Goddess of Contentment held queenly sway.

"Soon the bright young beauties of the Academy began to arrive, when the tall clock in the reception room reached the hour of eight, and after a brief visit to the dressing rooms above stairs, descended to pay their respects to their Principle and his wife, who cordially welcomed them to the hospitalities of the evening. The young ladies, numbering between seventy-five and one hundred (we were too much lost in admiration to count correctly) were handsomely attired in evening dresses of white and contrasting colors, forming a galaxy of youth and loveliness rarely to be met with upon other occasions.

"Very gracefully Mrs. CLEWELL glided amongst her guests, and soon all felt at home in her genial presence. Conversation, vocal and instrumental music, and various games engaged their attention until the hour when supper was announced when each sought a partner, tables were arranged in dining-room, sitting-room, &c., and, with lady-like deportment, all did full duty to the tempting bill of fare of oysters, salads, sandwiches, varieties of cake, fruit, candies, raisins, and cream.

"We, who happened to be of the few honored by an invitation to attend the reception, looked around at the gay, smiling faces, the healthy forms of these daughters of the South, gathered here under the Academy's roof, and thought there was no fairer sight in all the land, while the merry jest, the gay repartee, the modulated tones of earnest discussion, all told of the perfect training they had received.

"Personally, contact with the unsullied heart of youth, carried us back to the mystic land of the past, and gave us a new lease of life. We thought of the host as one of his admirers said at Commencement two years ago—'Mr. CLEWELL is the right man in the right place,' and then added with regard to the hostess, 'Mrs. CLEWELL is certainly the right woman in the right place.'

"A FRIEND."

—Professor Gus Rich, known as the "Wizard of the Blue Ridge," gave one of his entertainments in Gymnasium Hall as the chief feature of the Tuesday holiday. Both boarders and day-scholars were invited, and the hall was filled to its utmost. The magic was fully up to the Professor's well known skill, and the company was much amused to hear the involuntary exclamations at the delusions. The little folks became very enthusiastic to see French cabbage turned into French candy, and the magic hen, the wonderful hat, &c., all came in for their share of interest. The Royal Marionettes closed the evening, and then the enthusiasm of the first row knew no restraint. Old and young seemed to have had a pleasant hour with our friend, the Wizard, and hope to see him again in the future.

—Miss WARD is doing excellent work in the Calisthenic drill.

—The orange trees in the hall are specially green and beautiful.

—We noticed quite a number of badges for "King Daughters" recently going into the School.

—We were shown a beautiful cluster of Arbutus in February, an unusually early date for this delicate little flower.

—The Seniors are very busy with designs and samples of rings, paper, monograms, mottos, etc., etc.

—The concert to have been given by the Philharmonic Society, February 28, was postponed till a later date.

—Washington's Birthday falling on Saturday this year, the following Tuesday was given to the School as a holiday.

—Miss EVANS' Vocal Recital and also Prof. MARKGRAFF'S Instrumental Musicale were very enjoyable and profitable occasions.

—Miss EVANS has translated a number of gems from German songs, and had the same published by W. H. Boner & Co., Philadelphia.

—We extend our good wishes to ETTA TATE, whose marriage is elsewhere noted, and trust that a long and happy life may attend their union.

—Mr. CLEWELL has been paying official visits to a large number of classes during the past week, and seems much pleased with the work done.

We return thanks to Messrs. Montague & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., (mfrs. of Fire Brick, Sewer Pipe, &c.,) for a neat, vest-pocket memorandum book.

—Mr. Howard Rondthaler delivered an address before the Y. M. C. A., Feb. 27th. His topic was "Street Scenes in Cairo." We return thanks for an invitation.

—A very successful concert was given in Brown's Opera House for the benefit of the Episcopal church, Winston. Miss EVANS was very active in connection with the same.

—The pupils of the ACADEMY have been specially active in aiding the Salem Congregation in the beautiful choral tunes which are being used in the Sunday evening services.

—Does this come from the Laboratory? or do our friends in that department decline the honor of originating the following? "What happens to sugar when you put it in tea?" "It revolves!"

—A number of young people from Salem gave a Longfellow evening in the Home Chapel, for benefit of The Home, Main St., Salem. A Supper at the Belo House for same purpose was very successful.

—Rev. EDWARD RONDTHALER, D. D., delivered a lecture in Winston, Friday, March 7th, for the benefit of the Twin City Hospital, subject, "Egypt." We return thanks to the Committee for the courtesy of an invitation to same.

—A number of the trees in the rear court have been trimmed and topped. Some of the girls thought the act was almost a "shame," but the grounds have only profited by the pruning. So, too, is it often in the training of character!

—The Hesperian Society is happy in the arrival of an elegant piano from New York. Both Hesperian and Euterpean Societies are now supplied with fine instruments, and are collecting a library. Let us hear from them more frequently in THE ACADEMY.

—Dr. RONDTHALER delivered a lecture on "Greece," in Gymnasium Hall, February 14, it being one of the regular Winter Evening Course. That it was a masterpiece is scarcely necessary for us to repeat, as all who are acquainted with this scholarly gentleman expect nothing else from him. He took his hearers step by step with him from the time the party landed, through Southern Greece to the immortal Athens, and described with zeal and beauty the grandeur of even the ruins of the great city. No one could listen to this finished lecture without feeling a renewed interest in that sunny, vine-clad land, and all feel under obligations to the Doctor for the enjoyable and instructive evening.

STUDIO NOTES.

—HETTY JARNAGIN has just finished a drawing from the cast, a panel with grapes and leaves in high relief, which shows good head and hand work.

—FANNIE PRETLOW'S drawing of the cast, "Young Augustus," is ready for the Studio wall, and is an admirable reproduction of the noble young head.

—Pupils drawing from the Antique are inclined to plagiarize a little, and lament when school girl meets Greek then comes the tug of war.

—The girls are framing their plaques themselves, and the sound of the tack-hammer is the latest Studio music. The result is a neat, plush-covered frame at half the cost of a ready made one. Some people have the knack of "hitting the nail on the head;" this the girls do to perfection,—but, unfortunately, it is the kind attached to the end of each finger.

From the Third Room.

—Party No. 1 to party No. 2:—"Say: I wish you would point Miss Battercakes out to me some day?" (Substitute "Johnnie" for "Batter" and you'll have the name.)

—Brilliant Arithmetic pupil, (working a reduction example) to teacher: "Please will you explain how you introduce Denominate numbers."

From the Fourth Room.

—Good-bye Lucy come to see us sometimes.

—Miss MARY MINUNG has been detained at home for two weeks on account of the illness of her mother. Miss FLORENCE E. MINUNG has kindly filled her place.

—"What are you reading?" "The Koran." "Oh! is it a pretty story?"

—Dante now graces one of the brackets in our room and from his corner looks down on the jolly girls and wishes he had not died so soon. "Oh my!"

During the last few days the crashing of limbs and falling of trees in the pleasure-grounds made us say, "Woodman, spare that tree!"

From the Fifth Room.

—Why should the 5th Room be the best disciplined room in the house? Because it is kept in "Ward."

—A pupil in Geometry on reading "Ext.-Int." exclaimed: "Where are the External-Internal angles?"

—One of the girls sauntered into the room repeating, "Honor to whom honor is due," and another jumped up and cried: "That's Shakespeare, ain't it?"

—The question was asked in one of the Arithmetic classes, "By what table are we weighed?" One young lady brightly replied: "By Apothecary's!"

—Some one made the remark that our first knowledge of history was in 4,000, and one of our particularly bright girls inquired if it was B. C.

From the Seventh Room.

—Ask one of the 7th Room girls why she will always remember the night of March 1st, and she will tell you because it was "Shorely" a pleasant "good night."

—There has been seen in the Library, quite recently, a white hyacinth. Consequences—Indifference and blushes by one of the girls when passing one of the "Posts" of the ACADEMY.

—Teacher—"What will you do with the x in your example?"

Pupil—"I will illuminate (eliminate) it."

From the "Leritory."

—One of our girls having lost the rubber of her crutch is looking for a tack to put another on. Meets a Senior in the hall—asks her for a tack. The bright young Senior says she knows of no tack except herself; tells her she is aware of that fact, but still she will not do, as she is not sharp enough to drive in the rubber.

Married.

HOLT—TATE. — In Graham, N. C., on February 25, Mr. McBRIDE HOLT to Miss ETTA A. TATE.

POLLARD—BROWN. —February 11th, Mr. WILLIAM B. POLLARD to Miss MAGGIE BROWN, of Winston, N. C.

Died.

FELTS. —In Paris, Texas, Dec. 28, 1889, Mrs W. W. FELTS (DELLA DANCY).

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

*I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1867.

- 4742 NANNIE TALIAFERRO. — 1854.
Grandfather 1. J. Leftwick, Wytheville, Va.
- 4743 ANNA CARTER. —
- 4744 ELLA MILES. — 1853.
Mother, Mrs. Mary Miles, Graniteville, S. C.
- 4745 CARRIE NORFLEET. — 855.
R. Norfleet, Tarboro, N. C.
- 4746 SALLIE REBA WEBSTER. — 1855.
Pleasant Webster, Madison, N. C.
- 4747 OTHELLA COPELAND. — 1854.
L. W. Copeland, Clinton, S. C.
- 4748 FANNIE ROPER. — 1853.
Col. Jas. T. Roper, Laurinsburg, N. C.
- 4749 MARTHA E. FAIRLEY. — 1853.
R. M. Fairley, Laurinsburg, N. C.
- 4750 SALLIE GILCHRIST. — 1855.
Angus Fairley, Laurinsburg, N. C.
- 4751 MARY M. OERTEL. — 1853.
Rev. Johannes Oertel, Lenoir, N. C.
- 4752 MELISSA YATES. — 1853.
Alvis Yates, Cary, N. C.
- 4753 MARY ADAIR. — 1855.
G. W. Adair, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4754 MARY E. STEPHENS. — 1852.
John L. Hopkins, Atlanta, Ga.

- 4755 EMMA JOANNA ALEXANDER. — 1853.
- 4756 ELLA ALEXANDER. — 1855.
Thos. Alexander, Atlanta, Ga.
- 4757 LIZZIE PAYNE. — 1854.
Thos. Payne, Madison, N. C.
- 4758 MARY AUGUSTA NORTH. — 1857.
- 4759 MATTIE A. NORTH. — 1859.
Dr. G. Edwin Sussdorf, Macon, Ga.
- 4760 MARY D. CAMPBELL. — 1853.
B. F. Simmons, Troy, N. C.
- 4761 MARY DUSKY GIBSON. — 1853.
Col. Isaac Gibson, Germantown, N. C.
- 4762 IDA WINNINGHAM. — 1854.
Dr. Nat Wimmingham, Hernando, Miss.
- 4763 EMMA RICHARDS THORNTON. — 1853.
- 4764 LILLY THORNTON. — 1855.
Wm. C. Thornton, Hillsville, Va.
- 4765 MOLLIE DOMINICK. — 1857.
R. M. Dominick, Houston, Miss.
- 4766 ELLEN F. DENHAM. — 1854.
Jas. C. Denham, Eatonton, Ga.
- 4767 BETTIE C. CHADWICK. — 1855.
J. N. Chadwick, Chapel Hill, Texas.
- 4768 MARY E. COPELAND. — 1850.
- 47 9 REBECCA JANE COPELAND. — 1854.
G. P. Copeland, Clinton, S. C.
- 4770 CARRIE C. FOSTER. — 1854.
- 4771 LENA FOSTER. — 1855.
A. G. Foster, Madison, Ga.
- 4772 MAMIE STARR DUNHAM. — 1853.
I. S. Dunham, Van Buren, Ark.
- 4773 MAUD CLEGG. — 1853.
Geo. Austin, Van Buren, Ark.
- 4774 SALLIE K. WHITE. — 1852.
John P. White, Houston, Fla.
- 4775 FANNIE BALLARD. — 1853.
Mary Jane Ballard, Hallettsville, Texas.
- 4776 ELLA MCKINNEY. — 1855.
I. M. McKinney, Thomasville, Ga.
- 4777 AMANDA ALDERMAN. — 1855.
Josh Taylor, Thomasville, Ga.
- 4778 BETTIE B. MCKINNEY. — 1854.
Brooks McKinney, Pelham, N. C.
- 4779 ELLEN LASH. — 1854.
Thos. B. Lash, Bethunia, N. C.
- 4780 JESSIE RABB. — 1853.
J. G. Rabb, Wimsboro, S. C.
- 4781 REBECCA M CONVERS. — 1855.
M. L. Pritchett, Cartersville, Ga.
- 4782 ANNA PARKER. — 1855.
Jesse W. Parker, Whitakers, N. C.
- 4783 LARA GORDON. — 1854.
Frank Gordon, Galveston, Texas.
- 4784 MARY GORDON. — 1855.
- 4785 IDA GORDON. — 1856.
Jas. K. Gordon, Gordonsville, Ala.
- 4786 MOLLIE EMERSON. — 1855.
W. H. Emerson, Gordonsville, Ala.
- 4787 MARY BRADLEY. — 1854.
L. B. Bradley, Calhoun Station, Ala.
- 4788 ANNA MULLINS. — 1854.
D. H. Mullins, La Grange, Ga.
- 4789 TALLULAH A. CALLAWAY. — 1855.
- 4790 TERO CALLAWAY. — 1856.
C. B. Callaway, Macon, Ga.

WANTED.

Patrons of this paper, old students of Salem Female Academy, everybody interested in the history of the early Moravians of North Carolina to send for a copy of "TWIN-CITIES—WINSTON—SALEM." Price 25 cents. Stamps received. Address,

Mrs. A. V. WINKLER,
Salem, N. C.

Mar. '90—4m

✽—For Young Writers and Speakers—✽

"A DECADE OF ORATORY."

PRICE, CLOTH, $1.00.

A beautiful and substantial little book containing eleven orations which have awarded the annual $100.00 Kirk prize at Northwestern University—the highest honor in the gift of the institution. It worth many times its price to young writers and speakers. Shows what styles of oratory are successful before mature judges. A study of these orations may bring you prizes or honor in your own school. Address,

UNIVERSITY PRESS CO., Evanston, Ills.

"IN ECONOMY THERE IS WEALTH."

In the judicious expenditure of

there is Economy. In buying your goods of us you will find that you are expending your money

JUDICIOUSLY.

MORAL.—Come and see before buying elsewhere; Learn our Prices; Examine our Goods; Not until then will you be satisfied.

Respectfully,

—CLINDARD & BROOKES.—

BELO HOUSE.

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan, '90—1y.

WANTED.—A position as teacher by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address B., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

WANTED.

A position by a young lady as Phonographer. Address

C.—care of The Academy, Salem, N. C.

BINCHAM SCHOOL.

(Established in 1793.)

is PRE-EMINENT among Southern Boarding Schools for Boys, in AGE, in the high standing of its PATRONS, in AREA OF PATRONAGE, and in equipment for PHYSICAL CULTURE. Location in the COUNTRY. Organization MILITARY.

The 6th Annual Year will begin Sept. 1, 1889.

Maj. R. BINGHAM, Supt.
Bingham School P. O., Orange Co., N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER,
JEWELLER,
Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in
WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.
REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

- Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
- Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
- Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
- Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,
CHEAP BOOKS,

ALL KINDS OF
PLAIN & FANCY STATIONERY,

AT
BLUM'S BOOKSTORE,

SALEM, N. C.

SCHOULER'S
RACKET STORE

HAS JUST BEEN MUCH ENLARGED
AND A
-:- COMPLETE STOCK -:-
OF NEW STANDARD GOODS ADDED.
CUSTOMERS WILL FIND THIS
A VERITABLE BAZAAR.
WHERE EVERY THING CAN BE PUR-CHASED AND AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

SCHOULER'S
MILLINERY
ESTABLISHMENT
WILL NOW SELL THEIR LARGE STOCK OF
FELT HATS
AT AND BELOW COST.
FRENCH FELT SCHOOL HATS,
—AT 25c.. WORTH 75c.—

HENRY W. MILLER,
STATE AGENT FOR THE
Hammond Type Writer
RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
Price, complete with two type wheels, $100.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.
Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Typewriter Ribbons. Office Specialties.
Send for Catalogue.
WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

S. E. ALLEN,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in
Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.
CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,
WINSTON, N. C.
OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

ROLFE'S ENGLISH CLASSICS.

HARPER & BROS., Publishers, Franklin Square, N. Y.

SHAKESPEARE'S WORKS. This is the only illustrated school edition of Shakespeare in the world. It is the only school edition that gives a summary of the various readings and the critical comments of all the leading editors. Complete in forty volumes, as follows :

- The Tempest.
- Merchant of Venice.
- King Henry the Eighth.
- Julius Cæsar.
- Richard the Second.
- Macbeth.
- Midsummer-Night's Dream.
- King Henry the Fifth.
- King John.
- As You Like It.
- King Henry IV. Part I.
- King Henry IV. Part II.
- Hamlet.
- Much Ado About Nothing.
- Romeo and Juliet.
- Othello.
- Twelfth Night.
- All's Well that Ends Well.
- Coriolanus.
- Taming of the Shrew.
- Cymbeline.
- The Comedy of Errors.
- Antony and Cleopatra.
- Measure for Measure.
- Merry Wives of Windsor.
- Love's Labor's Lost.
- Timon of Athens.
- Two Gentlemen of Verona.
- Troilus and Cressida.
- Henry VI. Part I.
- Henry VI. Part II.
- Henry VI. Part III.
- Pericles, Prince of Tyre.
- The Two Noble Kinsmen.
- The Winter's Tale.
- Richard the Third.
- King Lear.
- Venus and Adonis, etc.
- Sonnets.
- Titus Andronicus.

Each of the above volumes has been edited with an Introduction and Copious
Notes, critical and explanatory, by WIL-LIAM J. ROLFE, Litt.D. Price, per volume, Paper, 40 cents; Cloth, 56 cents.
Sent postpaid to any address on receipt of the price. Liberal discounts offered to Schools on supplies for introduction. Correspondence solicited. Address,

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers
FRANKLIN SQUARE, New York City.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA
SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.
The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker
To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Barth
and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California.
Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas; without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to
R. A. WILLIAMS, G.S.-E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236, Atlanta, Ga.
S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass. & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

⇒* MISS EMMA I. LEINBACH, *←
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF
PIANOS,
NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.
Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about
$75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
155 Lexington Avenue New York.
CARE OF MRS. VOLLER.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal,
Salem Female Academy,
Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

WANTED.—Position as music teacher in school or private family by graduate of Salem Female Academy.
Address K. M., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

SPENCERIAN
STEEL PENS

Are the Best,
IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF
Durability, Evenness of
Point, and Workmanship.

Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. 8.
IVISON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway,
New York.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with
an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.

For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble dust, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going or returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and welfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address
B. W. WRENN, JNO. L. MILAM,
(G. P. A.), (G. P. A.),
Knoxville, Tenn.
C. A. DESAUSURE,
A. G. P. A.,
Memphis, Tenn.

THE BEAUTIFUL

NORTH.

The shortest and most direct line to Harrodsburg, Shelbyville, Lexington, Frankfort, Paris. Only 11 hours and 35 minutes Chattanooga to Louisville, only 17 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Boudoir Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England Points and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

SOUTH.

The only line Chattanooga to Birmingham, Meridian,
Jackson, Vicksburg, and Shreveport, making direct connections without omnibus transfer at Shreveport for Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston, Austin, Texas;
New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Mexico and California.
Shortest and Quickest Line to New Orleans, with solid Trains and Through Pullman Sleepers, making direct connections for Texas, Mexico and California. Close connection made en route for Memphis, Little Rock and Arkansas Points. Anniston, Columbus, Montgomery, Mobile, Natchez.

Passengers ticketed and Baggage checked through to destination.
For rates, Correct County Maps, and full information,
call at QUEEN & CRESCENT TICKET OFFICE,
READ HOUSE, or CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION,
CHAS. H. MILLS, Ticket Agt. C. S. BARETT, T. P. A.
Depot.
D. J. MULLANEY, Div. Pass. Agt., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. C. HARVEY, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS,
Vice Pres. G. P. & T. A.

THE

"COTTON BELT ROUTE"

St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railway,

Carries More Pupils to and from Arkansas and Texas
than all other lines to those States combined.

Why? Because this is the only line which has been furnished, as promised, elegant chair cars direct from the school to the scholar's home, and from the home back to school without changes en route. These cars are fitted up for this class of travel exclusively with retiring and toilet rooms, accompanied by an attentive porter and in charge of an Agent of the Company, who sees that the car is reserved for the use of the pupils only.

We have handled the First-Class Schools of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and other States for a series of years, and in no instance has any school, commencing with us,
patronized, subsequently, any other line.

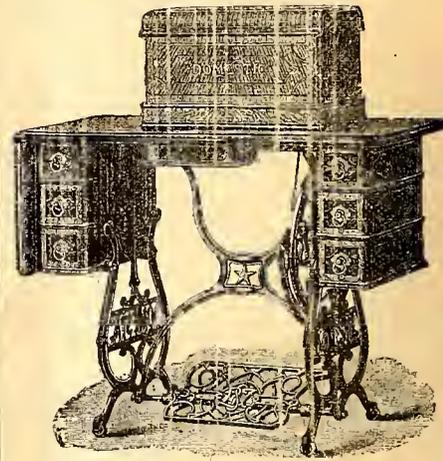

*This is the only line from Memphis running
Two Daily Trains through to Texas without change of cars, and without Omnibus Transfer in Memphis from Eastern Lines.*

Correspondence solicited from Principals of Schools and Parents concerning the safe conduct of scholars, by

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Witfield,
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.
W. G. Adams, Pass. Agent, Nashville, Tenn.

—:—"SOLD ON MERIT."—:—
THE LIGHT-RUNNING "DOMESTIC."

Do you need a Piano?

Do you need an Organ?

Do you need a Violin?

Do you need a Musical
Implement of any kind? Have you an old
Instrument you wish to exchange?

If so you will find it to your interest to call and consult the undersigned.

W. P. ORMSBY,

MAIN ST., - - SALEM, N. C.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.
WAR-RANTED FOR FIVE YEARS

STIEFF
PIANOS

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., APRIL, 1890.

NUMBER 105.

Loggia dei Lanzi, Florence.

[We give this beautiful view, one of the illustrations from Miss LEHMAN'S new work now in press, "Sketches of Travel." Any one desiring a copy of the book, when complete, may address Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C., for terms, &c.]

THE Loggia dei Lanzi, sometimes called D'Orcagno, from its architect, is an open vaulted hall, with 3 arches, and ornate entablature as shown in the illustration. It comes near to our idea of a Piazza, as it stands on the south side of the noted Piazza della Signoria, the historic and business centre of the city of Florence. On the east side this grand old Loggia adjoins the Uffizzi Palace, with its art galleries innumerable. The original object of the Loggia was to provide a place where the magistrates could convoke the people. Two colossal marble lions lie, one on each side of the principal entrance, while within are groups of bronze and marble of rare beauty. Here we see Ajax Dying, the Rape of the Sabinas, Hercules and the Centaur, Perseus, by Benvenuto Cellini, Judith, by Donatello, The Rape of Polyxena, etc., with memorial shields and trophies, making it more of an art gallery than a public place.

In front, on the east side of the Piazza della Signoria, is the equestrian statue of Cosmo di Medici, one of the most brilliant of those merchant dukes that made Florence so famous in the medieval time. Next to it is the great Fountain of Neptune, with a colossal figure of Neptune, 20 feet high, standing in a car drawn by sea-horses, tritons, etc. George Eliot in Romola, has made this place doubly famous. Here, Savon-orola, the grand old man, was hanged, in front of the Loggia, and then burned. The people who adored the Frate, placed so many flowers on the spot that the Gonfalonier ordered this fountain to be erected. As we look from the wealth of adornment

A Florida Home on the Ocklawaha River.

BY MISS M. E. VOGLER.

IN my recent tour through Florida, I spent several days so pleasantly in a typical Florida home on the banks of the Ocklawaha river, that I thought perhaps some of your readers would like to visit it with me, especially as some of them would recognize in its mistress, Mrs. Howard, their school-mate, the gentle little MOLLIE GIBSON of 1880-81.

Let us then go on board the little steamer, Astatula, which is lying at the Palatka wharf, and as soon as staterooms have been assigned us, take our seats on deck, as she is now beginning to move up the magnificent St. John's River. You will be surprised at its width even here, for it is only when we leave the middle of the stream, and sail near one of its banks, that you can distinctly see dwellings surrounded by orange trees, the golden fruit in bright contrast with the dark green of the foliage, forming lovely pictures when framed in by the glossy leaved Magnolias which grow upon the water's edge. The genial Captain joins us, and points out various places of especial interest.

At Weldaka we leave the broad St. Johns, and enter the narrow channel of the wonderful Ocklawaha, the like of which there is probably not another river in the world. Flowing through a vast cypress swamp in one exceedingly tortuous course, sometimes forming a double S as it winds in and out, the water clear as crystal, beautifully reflecting the tall all about us we are struck more forcibly than ever with the squalor and wretchedness of the common people. These Italian towns are so rich in old historic remains and art treasures, and yet so poor in all that concerns the advancement of humanity.

cypress trees, now bare of foliage, but every branch literally covered with the lovely grey Florida moss, which hangs in long festoons swaying in the breeze.

Perhaps you will be more interested, like that young Cincinnati lady on board, in looking for alligators, riveting her eyes upon every old log in hopes of seeing one take his sun-bath, but they are only turtles, craning their necks to see what monster is passing by. The girl from Chicago says she saw a number when she was on this river a few years ago. They are probably afraid to venture out of their hiding places since that brave but cruel Vassar girl shot one of them from the deck of a similar boat.

The sun has set, but get another wrap and remain on deck, for they are lighting the pitch pine on top of the pilot house, so that they can see to steer. See how fantastically beautiful the scene is now, lighted up by this lurid glare! The gay young voices that have been chatting so merrily are hushed into silent admiration. Later the boat hands collect on the lower deck, and entertain us with their evening serenade, and their musical selections in the negro dialect call forth peals of laughter from the crowd. The full moon is now high enough in the heavens that the pilot can steer by her light; the red fire dies out, and we are charmed with the change. In this soft light the cypress trees, enveloped in the grey moss, seem to be wrapped in their winding sheets; and the tall palmettos, with their crested heads, look like sentinels watching over them. We begin to feel weary, so we will let them sleep, and retire to our tiny staterooms to follow their example.

The Captain told us we must rise early as the boat would reach Grahamville before sunrise. We are up at the dawn of day, and hurry on deck to enjoy the scenery in the early morning light. The channel does not seem to be any narrower as we supposed it would be. The Captain informs us that we passed Cypress Gate, where the trees from the opposite side of the river meet overhead, during the night.

We are now passing Mr. Howard's groves, and a few more turns of the boat bring us to Grahamville wharf, sorry to arrive so early before the family is astir, when, what is our surprise to see a lady on the landing, who comes forward to meet us, gives us a cordial welcome, and we know at once it must be Mrs. Gibson, MOLLIE'S mother, and the young gentleman who is greeting us so kindly, is her only brother.

In going up the slight elevation to the house, we pass a store to our right, a large saw mill on our left. In front of the house is a large rose garden, with some rare roses in bloom; and on both sides and in the rear are orange trees, still laden with their golden fruit, and interspersed among them many of the beautiful palmettos.

The dwelling is a two-story frame building, with an observatory on top. On the south and west are double galleries, the lower containing many blooming plants.

We are taken into the family sitting-room, where a bright fire is burning on the hearth, and the rocking-chairs look very comfortable, but before you sit down look at the young alligators in the aquarium on the center table. While we are watching them creeping over the stones and shells and over each other, Mrs. Howard comes running in, and gives us all a very warm welcome to her home, expressing regret that she could not come to the landing to meet us, as she is not yet fully recovered from a recent attack of illness. She is a little thinner than she was while in Salem, otherwise entirely unchanged.

While chatting gaily we hear little footsteps on the stairs, and presently her little Sophie, a lovely girl of four years, comes shyly in to see Little Mamma's old friends, and soon after, Hatton, her bright, six-years old boy; but the king of the household, Baby Charlie, or Buster, as they all call him, a sturdy, curly-headed little fellow, does not feel inclined to shake hands with us yet. Mr. Howard and the whole family are so hospitable and kind that we soon feel quite at home.

You will find a basket of oranges in the sitting-room, and another in your bedroom, so that you can help yourself to the luscious fruit whenever you feel inclined, or you can walk in the grove and pluck it when you please.

Little Hatton and Sophie will show you all their pets: deer, guinea-pigs, white rabbits, three alligators in the yard, squirrels, canaries, mocking-bird in the bay-window in the dining-room, a cockatoo in one cage, and a very fine parrot in another.

One morning we go to the packing-house and try our skill in wrapping oranges for shipping: on another we take a drive for miles through the groves. One evening we walk through the vegetable garden, where there are acres of cabbages set out and other vegetables growing. On another we cross the river on the ferry, and walk on the causeway, which was made at great expense through the swamp, fully a mile in length. At several places the current was so strong they were compelled to bridge it. The water flows through these swamps and therefore does not become stagnant. We are greatly interested in the plants growing in the water. See this palmetto leaf that brother has cut for us, it is six feet in diameter and nearly circular.

Now let us go fishing in a rowboat. We have hooks and lines but no bait. Oh, that is easily obtained; row near the bank where that broad-leaved water plant is growing. They call the leaves bonnets; select one that is slightly worm-eaten, break open the leaf stalk and you find a white worm, a tempting morsel for a fish.

But we cannot enumerate all that these kind friends have done to make the time pass so quickly and pleasantly. We must now leave them, and I advise you all if you want to experience what true hospitality is, visit a Florida home.

Objective Teaching.

IN the onward march of education, and of improved methods for imparting it, let us consider for a moment what were the facilities for conveying exact knowledge to pupils even no longer ago than ten years, as compared with those of today. There are certain branches of unsurpassed importance taught daily in our schools, which have hitherto suffered greatly, in the hands of the most efficient teachers, for the lack of adequate and comprehensive illustration, because on such illustration depends any intelligent conception of them in the mind of the average pupil. As methods and facilities advance, these difficulties are overcome in an increasing ratio. The thinking, observing, progressive teacher finds that a pupil will learn more readily, and secure more lasting impressions from what he sees with his own eyes than if he has to draw on his imagination from the clearest description or explanation that may be given in a text-book, and hence it is that objective methods of presenting all subjects that are susceptible of them, are becoming more and more popular as time goes on and the genius of the age provides means. It is the province of this article to call the attention of the teachers of the South to two late inventions in the line of school apparatus which are beginning the work of a revolution in the presentation of the subjects of physiology and geography in our schools. These invaluable auxiliaries to the work of the army of advancing conservators of the educational interests of our country, are "Yaggy's Anatomical Study," and "Yaggy's Geographical Study," manufactured and published by the Western Publishing House, New York and Chicago. The "Anatomical Study" consists of a series of charts and manikins embracing complete and life-like superimposed diagrammatic plates exhibiting in the most perfect manner the human structure and all its features and organs properly intended for representation to pupils and students, not medical, in their exact positions and relations one to another. In addition, this "Study" contains a number of finely-executed plates forcibly and truthfully illustrating the abnormal conditions produced in the internal human organs by alcohol and narcotics. The originals of these plates were sketched from actual subjects on post-mortem examinations at the Washingtonian Home, in Chicago, the greatest inebriate asylum, perhaps, in the world. These representations if properly explained to boys, and girls, too, cannot fail of having a most lasting salutary effect. By the aid of this "Anatomical Study" more valuable information may be imparted in one term than by the ordinary methods in three years, and pupils will acquire such a practical knowledge of the structure of their bodies as will be of life-long importance to them. In the construction of this work the very best of materials are used, looking to substantial wear. The plate impressions are made on heavy, paper-faced linen, and are so placed that complete dissections may be made with perfect ease and at pleasure, while the whole "Study" is enclosed in a neat, cloth-covered board portfolio, so arranged that when opened up for use it forms an easel, that may be placed on a desk or table, or on the floor, and when not in use it may be neatly folded and put away free from dust and dirt.

The "Geographical Study" contains, in compact and portable form, a collection of information absolutely marvellous. One is made to wonder how a man could have conceived and carried out the design, so perfectly unique, of compassing such a vast amount of knowledge within a portfolio that may be easily handled by a lady teacher. It is truly multum in parvo, and is as necessary in every well-equipped school as is a telescope in an observatory. It contains the most beautiful set of School Maps, 36 x 48 inches, that we have ever seen, in which the author has happily avoided the objection of stuffing with unnecessary and confusing matter. There is to be found a novel and wonderfully ingenious and useful feature in the way of a Zone Map, in size the same as the outline maps, executed in the best style of the lithographic art in ten (10) colors, which illustrates in a very graphic manner the climates, peoples, industries and productions of the Earth, and the influences of climate upon civilization, by an intelligent grouping of figures and by strikingly artistic shading and coloring. There is a fine relief Map of the United States, constructed under the supervision of Professor Gannett, Chief U. S. Geographer, of the material known as lincresta-walton, showing the elevations and depressions of surface, the vast plains and prairies, the great chain of lakes, and the river systems forming the drainage of our own country. This map is hand-painted, the snow-capped peaks being made white, while the state boundaries and capitals are distinctly marked, and by the use of green the timber section is shown, the color being darkest where timber is densest, and then shaded down to show scarcity of timber and lack of it. And then by a map representing a half globe, all the external physical features of our planet, such as gulfs, bays, straits, peninsulas, promontories, rivers, lakes, falls, cataracts, hills, valleys, plains, plateaus, deserts, oases, volcanoes, volcanic sections, canyons, glaciers, etc., etc., are illustrated in colors and groups, in a most catching and natural way. Then, by a slight manipulation, the crust of the earth is removed, and we are given a fascinating view of the caves, the grottoes and the mines,—of the source and the principle of the artesian well—all the principles being truthfully portrayed, and their names and locations being given. Amongst other views there are two of the Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, one of Weyer's Cave in Virginia, one of the Blue Grotto in Naples, and one of the famed

Salt Mine in Polish Austria, which is 4000 feet below the surface of the earth and has a city of 2000 inhabitants in it. Teachers will remember this last as the mine in which scientists arrived at the knowledge of the increased temperature of the earth as the center is approached—the increase being one degree for every 50 feet after the first 55. Now a vertical cutting into the earth is deftly made, and a section of all the known stratifications is graphically shown, with all the ages and periods classified and stratified in regular order, and the effects of volcanic eruption vividly represented. Animal life, from the time it began, is intelligently pictured in all the succeeding ages down to the age of man. In giving this hurried reference to this invaluable collection of school apparatus, we come now to call attention to the features of Astronomical Geography embraced in "Yaggy's Geographical Study." These consist of the most simple and ingenious contrivances that have ever been invented for illustrating in ways to be readily understood by even the child-mind, all those astronomical conditions and phenomena so absolutely essential to an intelligent knowledge of Geography, such as the moon's phases, the daily motion or rotation of the earth on its axis, which causes day and night, and the relative time in different longitudes depending on this rotation; the yearly motion or revolution of the earth round the sun causing the changes of the seasons, the varieties of climate and productions in different latitudes, and the differences in the length of days and nights. By the simplest devices all these conditions may be shown in such a way that a child can readily comprehend them. A Planisphere of the northern heavens is included, in which all the constellations are clearly and distinctly traced out and named and the principal stars given; the milky way, the equator of the heavens, the ecliptic (crossing the equator at an angle of 23½ degrees), the zodiac and its signs, together with a unique device for showing what particular constellations and stars are visible to us at any particular hour or minute throughout the year.

We have extended this article to a much greater length than it was our intention at the outset to do, but we feel that the subjects deserve all that we have said and all we could say in far greater space. We believe we could not, perhaps, any more fittingly and forcibly emphasize our hearty approval of "Yaggy's Studies" than by saying that we have supplied SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY with one of each, the Anatomical and the Geographical Study at full regular prices, $30.00 for the former, and $60.00 for the latter, and on the purchase we are allowed but $5.00 for advertising, and that is for carrying the one-fourth column advertisement which will be found elsewhere in this issue of THE ACADEMY, for one year. It is a pleasure to us to be able to call the attention of teachers and school officers to such appliances as we have mentioned above. The Western Publishing House is represented in this State by Prof. J. M. Guiliams, formerly of the Florida Normal School at White Springs, Fla.

Une Critique de Peppino.

PAR LULA PEYTON — ANNIE REID.

LE Conte de Peppino est une bonne illustration de la vie Italienne dans la ville de New York. Le héros de ce petit conte est Peppino, un petit Italien, gamin d'environ, douze ans. Son occupation est celle d'un circur des bottes. Il avait deux frères, le plus âgé, Philippe, était le gentilhomme, de cette petite famille, gagnant sa vie comme joueur de violon sur les bateaux de passage. Le suivant en âge était Antonio, dont l'occupation était la même que celle de Peppino. Le dernier, notre petit héros, qui, quoique jeune, était décidément le génie de la famille. Son lieu de naissance était Viggiano, en Italie,—mais son séjour actuel est dans la rue Crosby à New York. Peppino était un circur des bottes le plus honnête et généreux du monde; pour donner un exemple de sa générosité—un jour, qu'il avait ciré les bottes d'une de ses pratiques, voyant que l'homme était dans l'embarras, parcequ'il n'avait point d'argent, il lui dit: "N'importe que la Madone soit avec vous." Dès lors cet homme et Peppino devinrent de très bons amis. Un jour étant envoyé par son ami pour encaisser un chèque dans une banque, il fut assez malheureux pour être ccrasé par une charrette, et sa jambe fut cassée. Il fut porté à l'hôpital, son ami était sous l'impression, qu'il s'était sauvé avec l'argent, mais il trouva bientôt, quel vrai ami, il avait en ce petit Peppino. Un jour qu'il passait devant l'hôpital, il entendit appeller par son nom et en regardant en haut, il vit Peppino et apprit, comment étant allé à sa chambre, il avait mis l'argent entre les feuilles d'un livre, sur la table, qu'ensuite l'accident en avait lieu. Il serait inutile de raconter toutesles circonstances de la vie de Peppino, ainsinou conclurons en disant que Peppino est encore engagé dans son travail avec l'espérance de posséder un jour une maison à Viggiano en pleine Italie du Sud.

The Mozart and Oratorio Concerts.

These two Concerts have been so highly spoken of that we feel sure our many friends will be pleased with the following reports, which appeared in The People's Press, of Salem:

It is very certain that the work of the Salem Orchestra has now reached the highest point of excellence ever attained by any similar organization in the South that we have any knowledge of. To play through two hours of such music as was given us on Friday evening last (the third in the Winter Evening Entertainments) without a sign of flagging or weariness was a task that would be trying to professionals, and yet this is what was done; there was no diminishment of energy, no lack of zealous interest noticeable any where throughout the entire evening. When we consider the different avocations of the members of the Orchestra,—in lumber, in iron, in leather, in cotton and woolen milling, in tin, in tobacco, &c.,—not spasmodically, but daily and heartily, we must feel that they deserve a high meed of praise. What a devotion to art these young men display when, after a day of laborious toil, instead of seeking the recreations most natural to employed young America, they earnestly and intelligently give their evenings to the study of the greatest works of the master minds of the musical world, whose efforts to tickle the vanity of the potentates of European monarchies remain to be presented for the edification, the uplifting of American kings and queens. It is this self-abnegation of the Orchestra which has always drawn from PEN-STICK his whole sympathy, aside from that which he naturally feels for any effort which tends to the improvement of his native town, and which, while it has often trembled for fear of failure, now reverses this, and trembles at success. For this last concert was so remarkable in its difficulties, in its exactions of time and patience, in its subtleties of expression, in its whole gamut of all that is noblest and most beautiful in music, that the successful accomplishment seems to leave no other height to climb, no other difficulty worthy to be overcome. Thus there may arise a feeling that now the strict discipline may be relaxed, the desire for perfection need no longer be so strong, and the steady endeavor give way to fatal lassitude.

In reality, there is no danger of such event. Our Orchestra, first of all, is modest. Pleased it is that its efforts are appreciated by the public, gratified that its success is inspiring to its learned and judicious Director, yet its claims have ever been presented with a conservatism, a prudence, that are the surest indications of its continued life and vigor. Long live the Salem Orchestra!

What a mother to our communities is Salem Female Academy! How much do her many blessed agencies and advantages contribute to those true pleasures which go so far in making up a happy and contented neighborhood! With what care does she always aid and foster those good works which tend to the leading of the mind into the channels of wisdom and the higher walks of life! Not holding her hands closed, but with palms wide extended, she does her utmost to further the educational interests of those without as well as those within her walls! To her our music-lovers of the two towns especially owe a lasting debt of gratitude we should always endeavor to repay in whatsoever way comes best! Her pupils, her concert halls, her professors, are always given to enhance the value of our entertainments, and nothing seems too great for her generosity. Long live Salem Female Academy!

Of the concert itself, the programme was made up entirely from compositions by Mozart, the Michael Angelo of Music. To him the melody of the Italian school came as readily as the harmony of the German, resulting in a blending of the two in a greater and more distinctive degree than in the works of any other composer. Bristling with difficulties, his work is always beautiful, flowing in unrestrained ease from bars of lovely melody into measures of glorious harmony. The programme below gives the examples presented, concluding with choruses from that sublime Requiem which, while intended for another, proved to be his own.

Of the direction of this masterly concert there is really nothing good enough to say. It was a labor of great magnitude, and only those who have undertaken such work know what it means. But Professor MARK-GRAFF's great abilities, his vast knowledge of and command over the most intricate technicalities, his keenly sympathetic temperament, and his ardent devotion to his art, make him the ideal conductor, and, hence, the honor of the successful concert remains most truly his own.

Miss K. W. EVANS, the highly accomplished Professor of the Academy's Vocal Music Department, sang her solos with that finish and ease of execution which she has so successfully imparted to her pupils. She was most heartily and deservedly honored.

Mr. Will Peterson's clarinet solo was the most ambitious effort yet made by this fine young musician, and we were delighted to see that his selection was so cleanly and artistically played.

As always Miss Locke charmed us with her violin playing. Her general stage appearance is so in keeping with the nicety of tone of her instrumentation that nothing is left to wish for.

A feature, and a prominent one, too, was the assistance given by the pupils of Prof. MARKGRAFF'S Music Department in the Academy. Two pianos and four different young ladies took part in each orchestral selection, adding greatly to the completeness of the whole.

The choruses of The Requiem were sung by the Academy's Singing Class, assisted by the gentlemen singers of the Philharmonic Society. This part, too, was done with excellent effect, the voices bringing out the sorrowful expressiveness of the music with great perfection and beauty.

Miss AMELIA VAN VLECK played the piano score in The Requiem choruses with much expression, and Pen-Stick can well imagine with what pleasurable emotions she assisted in this notable work. Equally delightful must it have been to the Orchestra's cello player, Prof. E. W. Lineback, who has done so much for the music of our town during many years of conscientious, faithful, musicianly work.

Another epoch in the musical history of Salem now begins. It promises results of far-reaching importance. Not a man, woman or child in the whole community but is interested in this future of events. For it will surely and certainly lead to other high endeavor in other walks of life in our beloved town. Long live Salem!

PEN-STICK.

c. Lacrymosa. Chorus.
 "Lacrymosa dies illa,
 Qua resurget ex favilla,
 Judicandus homo reus,
 Hinc ergo parce Dens,
 Pie Jesu, Domine,
 Dona eis requiem. Amen."

That time brings changes is again abundantly verified, as witness:

"The Oratorio of The Last Judgment, by Spohr, is in practice by the Salem Philharmonic Society. If practicable, the intention is to give it at Commencement, as part of the regular Commencement Concert. The Academy Singing Class would be united with the Philharmonic Society for the purpose. Efforts are being made to secure the services of an orchestra from Richmond, or elsewhere, for the accompaniment. This would, however, entail considerable expense, and, in order to defray this, it would probably be necessary to make a general charge for admission to the concert."—From The Academy, of March, 1884.

The italics are mine. And the facts are still further emphasized in that the Philharmonic Society is no longer a necessary adjunct, in its 1884 sense, to the rendering of oratorios of the masters in the Concerts of Salem Female Academy. The Academy now stands peerless and alone on the broad pedestal of musical cosmopolitanism. We question if there was ever a time in the history of the institution when its resources in every department were so well in hand. In music we see this most distinctly, and we welcome its radiance, for it permeates into every family in our towns, enlivening, ennobling the whole. Far we may be from the jewel-blazing halls of New York Metropolitan Opera House or Chicago Auditorium, where Patti and Tamagno reign supreme, yet here in our prospering yet humble Carolina town we enjoy those same divine melodies, rendered by those to whom the whole Southern country looks for its main guidance in the vast questions of State and National comity,—the young women of the South.

The Oratorio Concert was, of course, a successful one. Miss EVANS has the happy faculty of imbuing her pupils with her own enthusiasm for perfect work, and this, together with the warm sympathy of the audience, proclaims success. With the exception of the Orchestra and Prof. Clarence Brown, of the Music Department of the Winston Graded School, the performances were by the young ladies of the Academy. Their work was well done, in duet and in chorus, in time and in tone.

The event of the evening, however, was the "On thee each living soul awaits," from Haydn's Creation. Miss EVANS and Prof. Brown sang the opening duet beautifully. Prof. MARKGRAFF sang the bass solo, and the three professors then sang the trio together. Prof. Brown possesses a pure, well-cultivated voice, and he used it very artistically in the duet and trio. Prof. MARKGRAFF'S solo was magnificent, he has a noble voice, of wonderful compass. The demand for an encore was the most positive thing of the kind we have seen in some time.

The orchestra, in accompaniment and in symphony, sustained its usual reputation, and added vastly to the entertainment of the large audience present.

PEN-STICK.

1. Messiah. Pastoral Symphony.....Handel. SALEM ORCHESTRA.
2. Stabat Mater. "Quis est Homo.".....Rossini. Misses EVANS and LACIAR.
3. St. Paul. "The Lord is mindful of his own." Mendelssohn. Miss CARMICHAEL.
4. Elijah. "Lift thine eyes.".....Mendelssohn. Misses HAZLEHURST, ROGERS and DU FOUR.
5. Creation. "With verdure clad.".....Haydn. Miss LACIAR.
6. Athalie. "March of Priests.".....Mendelssohn. SALEM ORCHESTRA.
7. Creation. "On thee each living soul awaits." Haydn. Miss EVANS, Mr. C. B. BROWN and Prof. MARKGRAFF.
8. Hymn of Praise. "I waited for the Lord" Mendelssohn. Misses JONES and FRANCISCO.
9. Messiah. "Rejoice greatly.".....Handel. Miss EVANS.
10. Rebekah. Who shall be fleetest.....Barby. LORELEY CLUB. Solo—Miss A. RONDTHALER.
11. Saul. Dead March.....Handel. SALEM ORCHESTRA.
12. Stabat Mater.....Pergolesi. Solos—Misses RUFF and BLAIR. Sopranos—Misses LACIAR, RUFF, HAZLEHURST, COVINGTON and ROGERS. Altos—Misses FRANCISCO, JONES, DU FOUR and BLAIR.

Members of Alumna Association.

- Killett, Mrs. W, Callie Trice, Waco, Texas.
 Klemann, Mrs. N, Nannie Thomas, Wilmington, N. C.
 Kirke, Mrs, Lula Gibbs, Bentonla, Miss.
 Keehn, Mrs Susan, Salem, N. C.
 Kremer, Mrs E W, Eliza Vierling, Salem, N. C.
 Lehman, Miss E A, Salem, N. C.
 Lemly, Mrs H A, Amanda Conrad, Salem, N. C.
 Lemly, Miss Laura, "
 Lemly, Mrs W A, E DeSchweinitz, "
 Lineback, Mrs R P, S Blum, Bethania, N. C.
 Lineback, Miss Lizzie, " Lash, Miss Lily, "
 Lehman, Mrs E T, E Greider, " Lardner, Mrs, A Gibbon, Philadelphia, Pa.
 Lott, Miss Flora, Salem, N. C.
 Landquist, Miss Anna " Lineback, Miss Emma "
 Lewis, Miss Mary "
 Leavell, Mrs L E, M Creight, Winnsboro, S. C.
 Landquist, Mrs Mary, Pföhl, Salem, N. C.
 Lineback, Mrs H A, S James, " Lineback, Miss Mary, "
 Minor, Mrs J B, M Donnell, Wentworth, N. C.
 Macomson, Miss Mantie, Mrs J Schell, Gaffney City, S. C.
 Mayo, Miss Bennie, Tarboro, N. C.
 Meinung, Mrs Frank, Flora Shore, Salem, N. C.
 Murphy, Miss Daisy, Mrs V Long, Winston, N. C.
 Meinung, Miss Mary, Salem, N. C.
 McLean, Mrs, Clara Dargan, Burlington, N. C.
 Miller, Mrs Frank, Ida Wharton, Winston, N. C.
 Meinung, Miss Addie, Salem, N. C.
 Meinung, Miss Florence, "
 Moore, Mrs W W, Fries, Hampden-Sidney, Va.
 McLaurin, Miss Bettie, Clio, S. C.
 Miller, Miss Willie, Rock Hill, S. C.
 Moore, Miss Ida, Charlotte, N. C.
 McMasters, Mrs E B, Boatright, Winnsboro, S. C.
 McCliskey, Mrs S, Fowler, Belleville, Ark.
 Matthews, Mrs A, Salem, N. C.
 Mickey, Miss Carrie, "
 Meachum, Miss Julia, Anderson, Tex.
 Montague, Mrs Dr, Ella Starbuck, Winston, N. C.
 Moore, Mrs Paul, Annie Foster, Lancaster, S. C.
 Nunnally, Miss Alice, Ruffin, N. C.
 Nunnally, Miss Eugenia, "
 Newton, Mrs Anae Duncan, Bennettsville, S. C.
 Nissen, Mrs G E, S Stafford, Waughtown, N. C.
 Nissen, Miss Stella, Mrs H Montague, Winston, N. C.
 Norfleet, Mrs Rosa Lash, Salem, N. C.
 Nissen, Mrs Jno, L Ebert, "

1. Orchestra. Overture. Don Juan. Piano—Misses LACIAR, HAZLEHURST, DU FOUR and FRANCISCO.
2. Orchestra. Sinfonia in G Minor. Allegro molto. Piano—Misses DAY, CHEATHAM, OLLINGER and Adams.
3. Clarinet Solo. Larghetto from the Clarinet Quintette. Mr. WILL. PETERSON.
4. Orchestra. Sinfonia in E Flat. Menuetto and Trio. Piano—Misses FIELDS, WADDELL, BROWNSON, and BAXTER.
5. Vocal Solo. "Giunse al fin il momento." Recitative and Aria from Figaro. Miss K. W. EVANS.
6. Orchestra. Sinfonia in C. (Jupiter Sinfonia.) Menuetto and Trio. Piano—Misses FACE, PIERCE, ARMPFIELD and BOURDEAUX.
7. Violin Solo. Sonata for Violin and Piano. No. 7. Rondo. Violin—Miss GRACE LOCKE. Piano—Prof. MARKGRAFF.
8. Orchestra. Sinfonia in C. (Jupiter Sinfonia.) Allegro vivace. Piano—Misses CAS, ROLLINS, HEARD and WRAY.
9. Vocal Solo. Das Veilchen. Miss K. W. EVANS.
10. Orchestra. Overture. Die Zaubflöte. Piano—Misses LACIAR, HAZLEHURST, DU FOUR and FRANCISCO.

THE REQUIEM.

- a. Requiem Aeternam. Solo and Chorus. Solo—Miss K. W. EVANS.
 "Requiem aeternam dona eis, Domine, et lux perpetua luceat eis.
 Te decet hymnus, Deus, in Sion, et tibi reddetur votum in Jerusalem.
 Exaudi orationem meam, ad te omnis caro veniet.
 Kyrie eleison, Christe eleison."
- b. Dies Irae. Chorus.
 "Dies irae, dies illa
 Solvet saeculum in favilla
 Teste David cum Sibylla
 Quantus tremor est futurus,
 Quando iudex est venturus,
 Cuncta stricte discussurus."

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., APRIL, 1890

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence

MISS EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

CIRCULAR LETTER TO THE ALUMNÆ.

ON Saturday afternoon, February 8th, 1890, the Officers and Executive Committee of the Alumnae Association met to make arrangements for the meeting at the close of the school-year. There were present Mr. CLEWELL, Miss M. E. VOGLER, President, Mrs. J. A. BITTING, Vice President, Miss LAURA LEMLY, of the Executive Committee, and Miss GERTRUDE SIEWERS, Secretary.

The time set for the Alumnae meeting is Wednesday, June 4th, 3 P. M.

It was decided that four Alumnae be asked to read papers descriptive of Academy life in their day, extending as far back as possible. Six letters of greeting from other Alumnae, together with several papers on subjects of special interest to the Association, poems, music, discussion and a Lovefeast would complete the outline for the re-union exercises.

It was mentioned that at last year's meeting one of our Georgia Alumnae suggested that some special work be engaged in by the Association, such as the raising of a Scholarship Endowment Fund. The idea was thought a good one by all to whom it was mentioned, and is strongly recommended for further consideration. If the plan meets the approval of the Alumnae, a fund of $5,000 may be started, and when half the sum is raised, Mr. CLEWELL offers to receive the daughter of a member of the Association. It was the opinion of all present that nothing could be devised which would more surely bind the Association, (the proportions it is assuming call for a bond of some kind,) and it was suggested that outside the June assemblage, "THE ACADEMY" should be used as the medium for furthering the good work.

MISS M. E. VOGLER, Pres.

MISS GERTRUDE SIEWERS, Sec'y.

—Much very desirable matter has been crowded out this month, but we will print the May number earlier than usual, and will then furnish our readers with the points omitted in this issue.

—The full Commencement Programme cannot now be given, but unless otherwise directed by circumstances, the first concert will be given Friday, May 29, and the week will close Wednesday, June 4.

—A new department is being organized for the new year, which will receive the name of the Industrial Department, and will embrace, as two of the chief branches, Cooking and Dress-making. An effort will be made to give to this latest department the same solid position which has been attained by each effort of the school during the past years. Further notice of the plans will be given in a later issue.

THE STUDENTS' TOUR TO NORTHERN CITIES.

THE time spent in New York was Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. The chief points of interest were visited, including the great Brooklyn Bridge, the Statue of Liberty, Central Park, the great stores, a number of the churches and the Cathedral, a stroll up Fifth Avenue and down Broadway,—in the evenings a number of the party heard Booth, Jefferson and Modjeska,—in fact, the days were filled with so much sight-seeing that to attempt an account is utterly useless. We give two letters, which take us up the Hudson to West Point, and give us a glimpse of the famous Eden Musee.

In our next number we will spend a few days in Philadelphia, and then return the party to the Alma Mater.

OUR TRIP UP THE HUDSON.

BY MINNIE M. FAGG.

As our days were very precious while on our Northern tour we had set apart Saturday, Nov. 2nd, for our long dreamed of and brightly anticipated trip up the picturesque Hudson.

The first thing on awaking Saturday morning was to rush to the window to see—alas! all nature was in tears and as the long day wore on, the incessant drip, drip, drip of the morning, seemed to turn into torrents; we thought we had never seen it rain so, even in the mountains; of course the trip was deferred till Monday, the fourth. When Monday dawned, the sky was as serene and beautiful as the former had been dark and dismal.

On starting, we were as usual delayed by some of the girls who had to run back to get one more peep in the glass or give one more finishing touch to their bangs. We just did reach the train in time,—a few minutes more and we would have been the most disappointed party that were ever left by a train. It was about one P. M. when we left New York, not to sail up the river as we had hoped, but as this was impossible we enjoyed the magnificent ride to the best of our ability by gazing out of the windows of the car which wended its course on the banks of this romantic river. The car was kept in commotion the whole way, by the continual rushing from right to left, looking out on one side at the "sail-winged" river and the opposite bank lined with magnificent residences and famous homes of poets. We passed near Sunny Side, the beautiful home of Washington Irving, and near the home of the sisters, Susan and Anna Warner. Then all would run to the opposite side to see one of the many quaint little stations dotted along the banks of the Hudson. About half past three we arrived at West Point, the termination of our trip, and had but a short time to spend in looking over the great Military School of the United States. About five, our train came and we now turned our faces toward New York, not in the gale of the morning, for the fast approaching twilight cast a mantle of quietude over all and we settled ourselves to enjoy the beautiful moonlight ride down the Hudson. Looking down the river the brilliant rays of the fast sinking sun were reflected, casting a golden hue over the water; the upper part of the river reflected the silvery beams of the rising moon as in a mirror and as the sun sank deeper into the west, and its golden rays blended into the paler beams of the "gentle queen of night," we could see the flickering lights of the city in the distance, the light in the statue of Liberty of Bartholdi shining like a bright star above all the rest, and as we approached nearer the light became brighter and brighter until it could better be compared to the light of a star. The shades of evening now enfolded the earth and as Selene throws her soft, silvery beams o'er all the water, we were awakened from our blissful reverie by the noises of the city, and our beautiful moonlight ride down the Hudson was a thing of the past but one never to be forgotten. "O! river gentle as a wayward child, I saw thee mid the moonlit hills at rest. Capricious thing, with thine own beauty wild How didst thou still the throbbing of my breast?"

THE EDEN MUSEE.

BY MATTIE R. CAMPBELL.

Our intention, on leaving the hotel, was to visit this Musee, which contains a number of the most life-like wax-figures of the world. What we see at the entrance is but a foretaste of what is to come. We had long anticipated this visit, and our most sanguine expectations were fully realized. At the entrance we were much amused by a very undignified young lady tying her shoe, and the dignity of a number of our party was greatly shocked, but was reconciled on finding the supposed imprudent young person was only innocent wax instead of flesh and blood. The next thing that meets our eyes is a romantic and natural scene of Romeo and Juliet, with the thrilling words on Romeo's lips, "Farewell! farewell! one kiss and I'll descend!" Now we are touched with the farewell scene of Napoleon and Josephine. To the right we see another historical scene, the surrender of Gen. Lee's army. Next we notice a group of celebrated musicians, which we can appreciate the more, having studied their works.

A very striking assembly of European artists attracts us. One of the most interested spectators was wax, but appeared so life-like that MINNIE, by request of Mr. CLEWELL, asked him to stand aside; she said she would not make another mistake, and in her confusion thrust her umbrella, not into a wax figure, but into an actual being, and said, "get out of the way;" her confusion almost grew into anger when she found that this time the advance was met with a rebuke on behalf of the lady who was taken for wax. Next came the Chamber of Horrors, where we gazed upon criminal scenes; the scalping of the white man by the Indian; the history of a crime,—a mere boy in the act of robbing, his victim is aroused, and the thief plunges a dagger into his breast,—next we see the murderer struggling to escape from an officer,—the trial and conviction follow,—the gray-haired mother bids her son a last farewell,—and the scene closes with the gallows and executioner ready for the young criminal.

We also see the terrible Guillotine of the French Revolution, which shed so much innocent blood. Even in the midst of such realistic scenes, the frivolous school girl found the placard "Beware of Pick-pockets" a subject for laughter as she ran to Mr. CLEWELL, pocket book tightly held, for protection. It was only a "sell," after all. The well known Charlotte Corday is seen peering through her prison bars. But we will leave these blood curdling scenes, and repair to the Concert Hall, where our overstrained nerves may find relief in the "concord of sweet sounds." We then return to our hotel, our minds filled with all that we saw in the Eden Musee.

Correspondence.

—Our first communication for the month is from MOLLIE TUCKER, now Mrs. Dr. Black, of Taylor, Texas:

I have wanted for several weeks to write and send subscription for THE ACADEMY, which I so sadly miss, and have determined to do without no longer. I have had my paper so disconnectedly that I have lost sight of nearly all my Salem friends. Every time Dr. Black has his paper from his old home and enjoys reading it as he would a home letter, I long for THE ACADEMY that I might know of my many dear friends there. So I thought I would ask you to send me the paper dating from the first of the year, and sending me the back numbers.

Before I married I was continuously on the go, and so often had my papers lost in the mail, but now I am settled in my beautiful, happy home, and shall eagerly expect my paper.

I see from the papers that so many of the old girls are married. A letter from KATE OLLINGER shortly after my marriage was a perfect book of news. She told me of her visit to Salem, of you, and of the different teachers and girls.

My husband is not a native Texan; Tennessee is his home but he began his profession in this State four or five years ago. I had only known him a year when we were married.

I hear from Lula McEntire Clark often. She has been in very poor health. I enjoyed a visit to her very much, summer before last, and had intended to visit her again but for my marriage. GENE BITTING married only a few days after I did, but did not change her name; she is now Mrs.

Bitting, of Sherman, Texas. I think she married her cousin.

With best wishes for all my dear Salem friends,

I am, sincerely yours,

MOLLIE TUCKER BLACK.

—Your letter, with its enclosure of a copy of your letter to Wellesley College, reached me; please accept my warm thanks for the trouble you have taken on my account, for the particularly considerate way in which you have responded to my request. I hope I shall succeed in convincing the Wellesley people that I deserve all the nice things you say about me. If I go to Wellesley this year I shall be quite satisfied if I can only bring it about that the next Salem girl who wishes to enter Wellesley need only present her diploma from the Academy.

As I do not write often I trust that I shall not be taking up too much of your time if I tell you with what never-failing pleasure and pride I hear of the continued prosperity and progress of the Academy. Judging from the additions that are made each year to the course of study, I do not think it will be long until Southern girls can find an opportunity at home of acquiring all the culture they may wish for. It was an unexpected kindness on your part to permit me to read your kindly worded recommendation, and as such will be gratefully remembered by me.

Very sincerely,

CYNTHIA SWANN.

Dandridge, Tenn.

—Dear Old Friend:

These two years have passed so rapidly away that I can scarcely realize that it is time to renew my subscription. I get so much pleasure out of the dear little paper that I never want to miss a number. The correspondence column is first, then every other word is closely perused.

Whenever I meet a patron from Salem and know it that is enough for me; there is a kindred feeling that I have never seen, in any other school. At our State Fair last October I was examining the Florida exhibit, and I mentioned to a friend that I had seen some of those fruits growing at Salem. Capt. R. Paddison, who was in charge, asked me if I was from Salem? I replied, "No, sir; but it was my home for 3 years." We were soon the best of friends, and chatted for a good time. He said his daughter had been educated there, and told him to give her love to every Salem girl he saw. So I claimed my share, then. I think the school and its advantages are far superior to what they were in my time, but I doubt if they will ever have Principal or teachers to equal ours. How we all revered and loved Rev. ROBERT DESCHWEINITZ!

Please tell me if Miss MAGGIE CLEWELL is married, and if she is still living there; also Miss MARIA VOGLER and Miss STEINER. Enclosed is my subscription for two years.

With love and best wishes I must say good night,

Lovingly,

Mrs. DORA V. DUNN.

Neuse, A. C.

—The following extract is taken from a letter written by EMMA MCNEILL, now Mrs. Screws, of Montgomery, Ala.:

It has been quite a time since I heard from you, and I am really hungry to see something from your pen. I saw from THE ACADEMY that you were in Europe, but have heard nothing since. I know you enjoyed the trip, and took in all the beautiful sights of the grand old country.

I have been meditating over the past and recalling many dear friends lost to sight, but to memory fresh and green. Could you tell me about NANNIE FOSTER of Atlanta, ODESSA STRICKLAND, JUDITH SHEFFIELD, JENNIE THRASHER, of Atlanta, ADDIE DIXON, and any others you think of. You will doubtless remember SALLIE MCWHORTER, the beautiful blonde girl, who accompanied me to Salem. She is now living in Henrietta, Texas, and is a widow. She married her cousin, Mr. William Graham. I hear LELIA COWART is teaching in Texas.

Yours sincerely,

EMMA SCREWS.

13 McDonough St., Montgomery, Ala.

Personal Items.

[The date appended to the names of former pupils is uniformly that of entrance. Information respecting former pupils is solicited. Present P. O. address will be especially acceptable.]

—Miss VOGLER informs us she met MAGGIE EAGLETON and her sister, Mrs. Dunn (ALICE EAGLETON), at the Ocala House, in Ocala, Fla. The latter is boarding there, with her family, and MAGGIE is staying with them at present. They made many inquiries about Salem friends, especially their teachers, and wished to be kindly remembered to all. The basket of oranges and another of lovely flowers which she found in her room was a delicate attention from these dear old pupils that was greatly appreciated.

She also saw KATE PADDISON at her home in Titusville, on the Indian River. She leads a very busy life, teaches in the High School quite near her home, is an earnest worker in the Sunday School, "and, indeed," said the old gentleman, who gave Miss V. this information, "we would not know what to do without Miss Katie." She sends cordial greetings to all her friends, and hopes to meet them at Commencement in June.

—Miss RUTH WILSON, whose mother and grandmother were educated in Salem Female Academy, spent Easter in Winston-Salem.

—Thanks to Misses KATE and ALICE OLLINGER for copies of the New Orleans Picayune of Feb. 18th, containing Carnival illustrations. The "Krewe of Proteus" and the "Procession of Elf-Land" were very interesting. Among the Elves was a car of Elves of Ocean, Elves of Ferns, of Cobwebs, of the Marsh, of the Malaria, of Sound, of Light, of Vegetables, of Perfume, of Shells, of Dew, of Flowers, of Dreams, of Metals, etc. Another set was made up of Rulers of Ancient Thrones. After the Title Car came Rex, Uruk of Chaldea, Justinian of Byzantium, Shalmaneser of Assyria, Solomon of Israel, Ching-Wang of China, Zenobia of Palmyra, Rameses of Egypt, Alexander of Macedon, Abduraman of Spain, Cyazares of Media, Charlemagne of France, Genseric, the Vandal, of Africa, etc.

—We sympathize deeply with Mrs. Alex. Hopkins (DORA ADAMS), left by the death of her young husband a widow with a 4 months old babe. Mr. Hopkins was admitted to the Bar just one year ago, and now, at the early age of 24, he has left the changing scenes of time for the eternal Beyond. What an aching void is left in the hearts of loved ones, as the sun of his life has set long before the brilliant noontide!

—In the March ACADEMY we spoke of John H. Boner's poem on "Poe's Cottage at Fordham," which appeared in a late number of The Century. Mrs. C. Dargan Maclean has written quite a lengthy newspaper article, giving an account of a visit to the same locality where this gifted genius and his child-wife, Virginia Clemm, lived and died, and where his hallowed dust reposes. She says: "When the American people fully realize the fact that he ranks as the literary glory of America, will they not gather the relics of Edgar A. Poe, and bring them together in the cottage which was his last home, and which should be the pride and property of the nation? His genius was essentially southern; warm, glowing, passionate, intoxicating as the odor of his own jessamine blooms in the moist, sweet, summer night."

—Mrs. G. J. Drake, of Griffin, Ga.; Mrs. R. E. Waddell, of Blacksburg, S. C.; Mrs. Dr. S. J. Hinsdale and Mrs. Duffly, of Fayetteville, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Waddell, of Asheville, N. C.; Mr. Brower, of Liberty, N. C.; Mr. Green, of Columbus, S. C.; Mrs. Locke, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. J. J. Thomas, of Raleigh, N. C.; Mr. W. T. Hodnett, of Martinsville, Va.; Mr. A. J. Adams, of Florida; Mr. Lon Price, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. Day, of Durham, N. C., have visited relatives in the Academy recently. We were very much pleased to see them all.

—A few of the girls went home during the Easter recess, but nearly all have returned. CAMILLE HUNT, MATTIE WHITE, LILIAN DAY and FANNY MOORE are still at home.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—We made a recent trip over the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley R. R. This road now extends to Wilmington, and makes connection with the great Atlantic Coast Line. An entirely new route is thus opened to Salem from the South Atlantic States. The cars are comfortably fitted up, and the conductors whom we met are polite, attentive gentlemen. Passengers over this line reach Salem over the Roanoke & Southern Railway via Walnut Cove.

—Our Twin-City, as Winston-Salem are often termed, are making rapid strides of unusual prosperity. The Academy is benefited in many ways by this modern enterprise. The company now constructing the electric street railway have given us a branch line to the front door of our Institution, and patrons and friends stopping in Winston can reach the school with great ease in the future. As we write these lines a large force of workmen are tearing up the streets in front of the buildings preparatory to laying the track of the street railway.

—Mr. CLEWELL made a short visit to Fayetteville recently, and called upon the patrons in that growing place. HATTIE SUTTON ('89) was particularly attentive and extended many courtesies. Mr. CLEWELL acknowledges kindnesses shown him by Mrs. Hinsdale (MAY BRADFORD'S mother), and by Mrs. Cobb (ANNIE COVINGTON'S mother).

—At the recent Centennial celebration at Fayetteville, HATTIE SUTTON was one of a company of young ladies representing the different States of the Union. She represented Pennsylvania, and received from Governor Beaver, of that State, a handsome silk flag and also a shield, each beautifully decorated. The gift was accompanied by a very cordial letter from the Governor.

IMPROVING VACATION TIME. — Several persons in Winston-Salem, especially teachers, have availed themselves of Mr. A. Dufour's presence among us last winter, to grasp the occasion of having French lessons from a native French teacher. In a language the difficulty of which to Americans, consists chiefly in the proper pronunciation, such an occasion was an exceptional one. We hear that Mr. Dufour intends to open his country home, situated among the beautiful mountains of Western North Carolina, to a few select lady-pupils next summer. We cannot too highly commend such an opportunity to our readers, especially as we understand that Mr. Dufour, in whose family French is daily spoken, does not contemplate a school proper, but rather a mountain home for ladies, combining the advantages of French lessons and practice with the inducements and leisure of a quiet, attractive and healthful summer resort, the location of which makes it besides a most desirable centre for excursions.

THE ACADEMY will take pleasure in putting in communication with Mr. Dufour such persons who would avail themselves of this rare opportunity to be initiated in the French language, or to give a finish to their knowledge of the same.

—Within the next few weeks the Academy office will be connected with all parts of Winston and Salem by means of the telephone exchange which is now being organized. This will be a great convenience to us in the usual office work, and also to patrons and friends, especially during the busy Commencement season.

—A few days since Mr. Fritz Uhlenhaut, with Mr. McFarland and Mr. CLEWELL, located about 80 electric lights in the Academy halls, practice-rooms, dormitories and other portions of the buildings. It is probable that others will be placed later as the advisability becomes apparent. With the choice between gas and electric lights no one can fail to be suited, and strong or weak eyes carefully guarded.

—The improvements in the Salem square are now rapidly approaching completion. The beautiful granite curbing, the pure white walks, the rich, green sward, the majestic trees,—all will go far toward making it the most beautiful spot of the kind in the South.

—We are pleased to hear that MARGUERITE DUFOUR has enrolled her name as the first member of the Post Graduate class of next year. She spent some time with us after Christmas this year, but will regularly enter for the entire session in September next.

—The Philharmonic Concert, on Friday, April 11, was a very enjoyable evening, it being one of the regular Winter Evening Course. Our Music Department has been very full this month, and hence we can only mention this occasion, though it deserves a more extended criticism. We believe it was the most successful effort which the writer has ever heard this excellent Society make.

—Easter Monday was spent in various ways by the pupils in the Academy. The 4th Room drove out into the country, while other room companies walked into the neighboring woods and enjoyed private picnic. In the evening the 5th Room invited the entire school to the Gymnasium Hall, to an entertainment complementary to the rest of the school, consisting of music, vocal and instrumental, recitations and tableaux, one of the chief of which was “Mrs. Jarley’s Wax Work Figures.” The entertainment was very creditably planned, tastefully executed, and the entire day very pleasantly spent.

—We noticed an exceptionally large number of friends of pupils present during the Easter week.

—The Easter season was one of unusual solemnity and interest. The services were well attended, not only during the evening, but also Maundy-Thursdays, Good Friday and Great Sabbath. A particularly impressive service was that of Easter Sunday morning, when with thousands of friends and visitors the congregation repaired to the beautiful Moravian “God’s Acre,” and united in the Easter morning Litany. The sun-rise was grand and beautiful, and the display of floral offerings on the graves of loved ones were numerous. Dr. RONDTHALER delivered a powerful and impressive sermon at 10:30 a. m., Easter Sunday.

—Miss EVANS’ Musicales on Monday last, was a very enjoyable occasion. A number of invited guests were present and we regret being unable to present the programme which was very fine.

—The spelling match between the Junior and Junior Middle on Wednesday, April 2nd, was a very interesting hour.

—Prof. Blair’s lecture on Rome was postponed on account of the terrible storm raging at the hour appointed for the same. Prof. Blair was on hand and gave those who had gathered an excellent talk on his travels in Italy. We appreciated the talk and are anxiously awaiting the lecture.

—The two closing occasions of the Winter Evening Course are the Orchestra Concert and Prof. Blair’s Lecture on Rome. The former will be given April 25th, and the latter the week following.

STUDIO NOTES.

—Crayon portraits in various stages of ghostliness are receiving much attention just now, and girls are very careful to inform visitors, “it isn’t nearly finished,” when they are found at work. By and by, fathers, uncles and other relatives will have the rare pleasure of seeing themselves as others see them.

—Several pupils are working hard in the hope of being able to form an out-door sketching class later. There are some very pretty bits here and there about the grounds.

LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT.

—An extract, or critique, on our recently finished, Peppino, from the pens of Misses PEYTON and REID, is found in this number. Some of our former pupils will, no doubt, enjoy it.

—Latin tests with the Seniors have come to harrow up their souls; with the second ones just being gone through with.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS. ACADEMY.]

—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!

1867.

- 4791 MARY SPARKS. — 1852.
Mrs. M. Sparks, Centreville, La.
- 4792 MINNIE E. RYAN — 1857.
Dr. T. D. L. Ryan, Hawkinsville, Ga.
- 4793 MOLLIE KNIGHT CONNOR. — 1857.
Captain Dan Connor, Sugar Land, Texas.
- 4794 MARY LOU HIGH. — 1851.
W. L. High, Madison, Ga.
- 4795 EUGENIA MANN. — 1855.
James N. Mann, Madison, Ga.
- 4796 MARY JANE MACK. — 1856.
Rev. E. J. Mack, Springplace, Indian Territory.
- 4797 EMMA GRACE HILL. — 1852.
E. E. Hill, Edgefield, S. C.
- 4798 INA HILL. — 1854.
Dr. John Landrum, Edgefield, S. C.
- 4800 FANNIE SMYLEY. — 1853.
Guardian, C. M. May, Edgefield, S. C.
- 4801 CORA SMYLEY. — 1855.
A. J. Smyley, Edgefield, S. C.
- 4802 MARY MAY. — 1855.
C. M. May, Edgefield, S. C.
- 4803 LALLA E. TOMPKINS. — 1856.
D. E. Tompkins, Edgefield, S. C.
- 4804 JULIA PARKER. — 1852.
Dr. H. Parker, Edgefield, S. C.
- 4805 CHARLOTTE BETTIE NICHOLS.
John Nichols, Raleigh, N. C.
- 4806 MOLLIE REBECCA PARKER. — 1853.
J. H. Parker, Enfield, N. C.
- 4807 LAURA WALTER PARKER. — 1854.
J. H. Parker, Enfield, N. C.
- 4808 MARTHA EMILIE BACHELOR. — 1852.
Dr. L. W. Bachelor, Enfield, N. C.
- 4809 JULIA IRENE SIMPSON. — 1855.
Col. W. W. Simpson, Sparta, Ga.
- 4810 LOUISE LESLIE. — 1851.
- 4811 MOLLIE LESLIE. — 1853.
Thomas Leslie, Troup Factory, Ga.
- 4812 LULA DALLAS. — 1854.
H. W. Dallas, Jr., Troup Factory, Ga.
- 4813 SUDIE SMITH. — 1855.
Brooks Smith, Troup Factory, Ga.
- 4814 MARY JANE WORTH. — 1852.
- 4815 EUNICE VIRGINIA WORTH. — 1854.
B. G. Worth, Wilmington, N. C.
- 4816 NANNIE PARRISH. — 1854.
Dr. D. C. Parrish, Durham, N. C.
- 4817 MARTHA ALICE REYNOLDS. — 1855.
Charles J. Reynolds, Abbeville, Ala.
- 4818 KATE E. FURMAN. — 1857.
Dr. John H. Furman, Sumter, S. C.
- 4819 MARY LUCY LONG. — 1856.
- 4820 MATTIE YOUNG LONG. — 1860.
G. S. Long, Newnan, S. C.
- 4821 SALLIE JENKINS. — 1854.
Joseph D. Jenkins, Tarboro, N. C.
- 4822 MARGARET MADISON MERCER. — 1854.
William Mercer, Rocky Mount, N. C.
- 4823 DORA A. BALTHROP. — 1853.
J. W. Balthrop, Louisburg, N. C.
- 4824 TEMPERANCE BARNES. — 1854.
D. Barnes, Sparta, N. C.
- 4825 ELLEN G. BULLA. — 1854.
- 4826 NANNIE A. BULLA. — 1855.
J. R. Bulla, Asheboro, N. C.
- 4827 PAWNEE LARK. — 1854.
Andrew L. Lark, Chappell’s Depot, S. C.
- 4828 ELLEN LARK GUNTER. — 1858.
Andrew L. Lark, Chappell’s Depot, S. C.
- 4829 HATTIE WATSON. — 1854.
- 4830 NANNIE WATSON. — 1856.
J. N. Watson, Raleigh, N. C.
- 4831 MARY M. CLEMENT. — 1857.
J. W. Clement, Eastport, Miss.
- 4832 MARY LIZZIE ROBERTS. — 1854.
Thomas Roberts, Tallahassee, Florida.
- 4833 CARRIE BOAZMAN. — 1854.
John Boazman, 96 Depot, S. C.
- 4834 LIZZIE RUDD. — 1856.
Armstrong Rudd, Cross Hill, S. C.
- 4835 MARY C. MCCOWN. — 1863.
John C. McCown, Durham, N. C.
- 4836 CALLIE TRICE. — 1855.
W. B. Trice, Waco, Texas.
- 4837 KATIE DAY. — 1851.
- 4838 LIZZIE DAY. — 1853.
Julius Day, Pine House, S. C.
- 4839 LUCY T. WEBB. — 1853.
William P. Webb, Boydton, Va.
- 4840 SUE KELLY. — 1857.
J. B. McLaurin, Cllo, S. C.
- 4841 MARY MARGARET JONES. — 1854.
William A. Jones, Marion, Va.

Subscriptions Received.

Miss Mattie Caldwell, Concord, N. C.; Mrs M L Schell, Mrs Dr Read, Corsicana, Texas; Mrs W M Kellett, Waco, Texas; Miss Cora Lee Vail, Charlotte, N. C.; Miss Mary Pohl, Columbus, Ga.; Mrs Ann R Woodward, Cincinnati, Ohio; Miss O Warner, Bethlehem, Pa.; Mrs J H Minge, Fausdale, Ala.; Mrs M E Scarborough, Ridge Spring, S. C.; Mrs J P Wyatt, Mrs Dr Bufaloe, Miss Lizzie Hicks, Raleigh, N. C.; Miss Maggie R Blair, Black-Stock, S. C.; Miss Ella Cathcart, Winnsboro, S. C.; Miss Lizzie Clement, Mocksville, N. C.; Mrs J H Kapp, Bethania, N. C.; Miss Lola Miller, Hope, Indiana; Mrs S M Pritchett, Danville, Va.; Miss Carrie Crist, Mrs H A Lenly, Mrs F C Minung, Mrs J W Fries, Miss Amy Van Vleet, Miss Jane Wellfare, Mrs J G Sides, Miss T Peterson, Miss L Shaffner, Mr H W Shore, Mrs A A Spach, Mrs Susan Keebhn, Mrs C S Hauser, Salem, N. C.; Mrs J E Alston, Hagood, S. C.; Miss Emma Schiff, Charlotte, N. C.; Miss M DuFour, Hendersonville, N. C.; Mrs Mary Walker, Oxford, N. C.; Miss Lily Lash, Mrs Julia Jones, Bethania, N. C.; Mrs Dr Bogle, Midland, Tenn.; Mrs M B Roan, Yanceyville, N. C.; Mrs T H Harmon, Drummersville, N. C.; Miss Annie L Ogburn, Smith's X Roads, Va.; Mrs C W Kellinger, Norfolk, Va.; Miss Ida Holland, Dallas, N. C.; Miss Annie Staples, Reidsville, N. C.; Mrs C D McLean, Charlottesville, Va.; Mrs A O Lineback, Oaks, Ind Ter; Miss Carrie Riggs, Winston, N. C.; Miss Ella Thompson, Greenville, S. C.; Mrs J A Thom, China Grove, N. C.; Miss Lizzie Gibson, Rock Hill, S. C.; Mrs Dr Wisconsin, Miss Mattie Robinson, Farmington, S. C.; Miss Louie Bridges, Tarboro, N. C.; Mrs Josephine Slaughter, Green Hill, Tex.

HOTEL FOUNTAIN.

WINSTON, N. C.

The Leading Hotel of the Twin-Cities.

It will be Run in the Special Interest of the Travelling Public.

Table Supplied with All the Delicacies of the Season. Attentive Servants.

J. W. GRAY, form. Prop'r Cooper House, Statesville, N. C. Apr. 99-1y.

WANTED.

Patrons of this paper, old students of Salem Female Academy, everybody interested in the history of the early Moravians of North Carolina to send for a copy of "TWIN-CITIES - WINSTON - SALEM." Price 25 cents. Stamps received. Address, Mrs. A. V. WINKLER, Salem, N. C.

Mar. '90-4m

TO THE PATRONS OF SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway

offers first-class service between Winston and Salem and Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all other points on the Atlantic Coast Line, and Savannah, Florida and Western systems in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Solid trains run to Wilmington, where easy transfer is made by hack in the forenoon to the trains of the

Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley,

then a change of cars is made at Walnut Cove Union Station, arriving at Winston-Salem at 9:00 p. m. Those not securing through tickets can purchase tickets and re-check their baggage to Winston-Salem at Wilmington. From all stations on the Main Line of the CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY to Winston-Salem only one change of cars is necessary, at Walnut Cove Union Station.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE, Gen. Sup't, Gen. Pass. Ag't Greensboro, N. C. Fayetteville, N. C.

(REVISED EDITION.)

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia is a whole library of universal knowledge from the pen of the ablest scholars in America and Europe. It is accepted as high authority in our leading colleges.

IT IS NOT FOR THE FEW,

Like Appleton's, the Britannica, or the "International,"

BUT FOR ALL.

It has just been thoroughly revised at a cost of over $60,000, and three years' labor by forty editors, and over 2,000 renowned contributors.

It is in 8 convenient sized volumes.

No father can give to his child at school, or his son or daughter just entering the arena of life, anything that will be of more permanent benefit.

It is an education supplementary to that of the Schools.

"The next few years will witness a great change in educational ideas. The possibilities of self-culture are to be emphasized, and the means of aid and direction increased. After a careful examination of 'Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia,' I am convinced that while it is excellently adapted to the needs of professional and business men, it is eminently useful to the earnest, thorough self-educator.

"This work, with its corps of contributors, offers accurate articles on the widest range of subjects. To the value of trustworthy information is added the inspection of personality associated with great names.

I heartily commend this Cyclopaedia to all,

and especially to those who are pursuing self-set courses in the great university of life.

JOHN H. VINCENT, (Bishop), "Chancellor, Chataqua University."

Address, for particulars, terms and circulars,

A. J. JOHNSON & CO.,

11 Great Jones Street, N. Y.

Representatives wanted in every county.

From the Librarian of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

DEC. 16, 1889.—"There is perhaps no better test of the merit of a cyclopaedia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA has, during many years' experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language."

From Rev. Thos. Hill, D.D., LL.D., Ex-President of Harvard University.

PORTLAND, MAINE, Aug. 6, 1889.—"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA (revised edition) is an ever-present companion and friend, and I consult it very much more frequently than I do my Britannica, Appleton's, Webster's Unabridged, etc., etc., and very seldom fail to find in it just the kind and amount of information which I need."

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL. D., Librarian of Congress, Washington D. C.

"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference."

BELO-HOUSE.

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan, '90-1y.

"Bingham School

stands pre-eminent among Southern boarding Schools for Boys."—U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Combines more desirable qualities than any other with which I am acquainted."—Lieut. J. B. Batchelor, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

"There exists not the equal of this School in my opinion."—Capt. Henry Wygant, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

More than 100 pupils from other States, the largest number in a Southern School for boys from outside the State of location.

Address,

Maj. R. BINGHAM.

Bingham's School, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER, JEWELLER,
Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.
REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

OF

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS, LADIES' WORK BASKETS, FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs, Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters, Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,
CHEAP BOOKS,

ALL KINDS OF

PLAIN & FANCY STATIONERY,

AT

BLUM'S BOOKSTORE,

SALEM, N. C.

FRIENDS!

Have you visited D. D. SCHOULER'S Stores this season? If not, it will pay you to do so. His RACKET STORE is twice the size it was last year, and now has a very large stock of goods, including everything for the household or personal adornment, below market prices.

Special attention is called to the SHOE DEPARTMENT, and the carpets, oilcloth, and upholstery, which are remarkably cheap.

Mr. SCHOULER has been in New York many weeks, and when we say that, every one knows from past experience what bargains to expect.

SCHOULER'S Millinery Establishment wishes to thank its many patrons for their generous support, which has helped it to grow and prosper, and know that its efforts to give satisfaction in Goods, Styles and Prices have been appreciated. We have the LARGEST STOCK and the LOWEST PRICES in town.

SCHOULER'S MILLINERY ESTABLISHMENT,

3RD ST., SOUTH OF COURT HOUSE.

— 1500 HATS, —

Including every novelty of the season.

IMPORTED HATS, BONNETS, and TOQUES at reasonable prices.

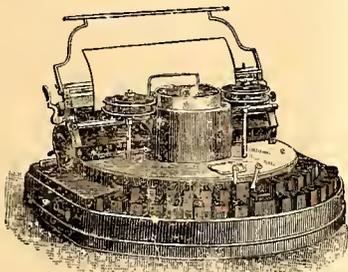

SPECIAL—One lot of Hats, fashionable shapes and good straws, 19 cents. — Children's beautiful fine satin Straws, trimmed, only 89 cents. — By far the largest stock of Ribbons, Laces, Flowers, and Hats, in this City, at lowest prices.

HENRY W. MILLER,

STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD. Price, complete with two type wheels, $100.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.

Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.

Send for Catalogue.

WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives, 9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,

CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKERS,

Compiled and Arranged by JAMES BALDWIN, PH.D., editor of "Harper's Readers."

JUST PUBLISHED.

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKER. FIRST BOOK.

PART I. ARBOR DAY.—Exercises in poetry and prose for Spring Festivals, Arbor Day, Flower Planting Day, and other similar occasions. With an introduction by GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

PART II.—MEMORIAL DAY.—Selections suitable for use in schools, and for public exercises in connection with the observances of Memorial, or Decoration Day.

12mo, Cloth, 240 pages; price, 60 cents.

IN PREPARATION.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. SECOND BOOK.—GRADED SELECTIONS. I. For First Reader Pupils. II. For Second Reader Pupils. III. For Third Reader Pupils. IV. For Fourth Reader Pupils. V. For Advanced Students and Public Readers.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. THIRD BOOK.—MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS especially adapted for use at morning "Opening Exercises." I. Life. II. Nature. III. Labor. IV. Laughter. V. Experience. VI. Duty. VII. Aspiration. VIII. Reverence. IX. Retrospection. Nearly two hundred selections.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. FOURTH BOOK.—PATRIOTIC SELECTIONS. I. Patriotism as a Principle of Life. II. Patriotism in "the Brave Days of Old." III. Our Country. IV. Our Flag. V. The Patriotic Citizen. VI. Washington's Birthday.

HARPER'S READERS.

The Most Successful School Books of this Century.

Prin. O. P. LEE, Edgefield Academy, S. C., says: "They are far superior to anything of the kind I have seen."

Prin. H. B. PARKER, Hampton Male and Female Academy, Ga., says: "We are perfectly delighted with the series."

Prin. M. N. WETMORE, Brunson, S. C., says: "I think them as near perfect in every way as books can be."

Hon. H. A. GUDGER, President of School Board, Asheville, N. C., says: "Harper's Readers are used in our public schools, and give perfect satisfaction."

Send for Price List and Terms for Introduction.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers

FRANKLIN SQUARE, New York City.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line: 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California

Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S. - E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236, Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

→* MISS EMMA L. LEINHACH, *← (OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about

$75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.

155 Lexington Avenue New York.

CARE OF MRS. VOLLER.

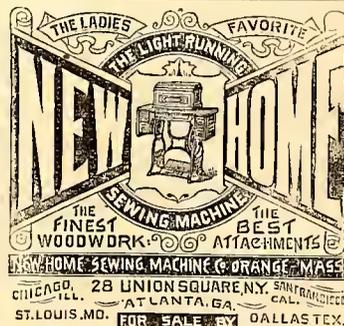

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinhach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

WANTED.—Position as music teacher in school or private family by graduate of Salem Female Academy. Address K. M., care of THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

SPENCERIAN STEEL PENS

Are the Best,

IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF Durability, Evenness of Point, and Workmanship.

Send for trial of 12 different styles by mail, on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. 2. WILSON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway, New York.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem,
N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis
to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East,
and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with
an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.
For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

WHY

They should travel via the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia

— AND —

Charleston & Memphis R. R.

TO AND FROM SCHOOL.

1st. Because it takes you through and via the noted
summer resorts of North Carolina and East Tennessee,
including Black Mountain, Asheville, Alexander, Hot Springs, Tate Springs, Knoxville and Chattanooga.

2d. Because the road bed is marble ballast, heavy steel rail, and free from dust.

3d. Because it is the shortest and quickest close connection and no transfers.

4th. Because it has the best train service, double daily trains, through coaches and Pullman Palace Cars on all trains.

Reliable Agents all at your service, either going or returning from school, to attend to the purchasing of tickets, checking baggage, and look after the comforts and welfare of scholars while en route.

For particulars address
B. W. WRENN, JNO. L. MILAM,
G. P. A., D. P. A.,
Knoxville, Tenn.
C. A. DESAUSURE,
A. G. P. A.,
Memphis, Tenn.

THE BEAUTIFUL

NORTH.

The shortest and most direct line to Harrodsburg, Shelbyville, Lexington, Frankfort, Paris. Only 11 hours and 35 minutes Chattanooga to Louisville, only 11 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Boudoir
Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England, Paris and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

SOUTH

The only line Chattanooga to Birmingham, Meridian,
Jackson, Vicksburg, and Shreveport, making direct connections Chattanooga to Louisville, only 11 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Boudoir
Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England, Paris and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

Passengers ticketed and Baggage checked through to destination.
For rates, Correct County Maps, and full information,
call at QUEEN & CRESCENT TICKET OFFICE,
READ HOUSE, or CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION,
CHAS. H. MILLS, Ticket Agt. C. S. BARRETT, T. P. A.
Depot.
D. J. MULLANEY, Div. Pass. Agt., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. C. HARVEY, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS,
Vice Pres. G. P. & T. A.

THE

“COTTON BELT ROUTE”

St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railway,
Carries More Pupils to and from Arkansas and Texas
than all other lines to those States combined.

Why? Because this is the only line which has furnished, as promised, elegant chair cars direct from the school to the scholar's home, and from the home back to school without changes en route. These cars are fitted up for this class of travel exclusively with retiring and toilet rooms, accompanied by an attentive porter and in charge of an Agent of the Company, who sees that the car is reserved for the use of the pupils only.

We have handled the First-Class Schools of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and other States for a series of years, and in no instance has any school, commencing with us,
patronized, subsequently, any other line.

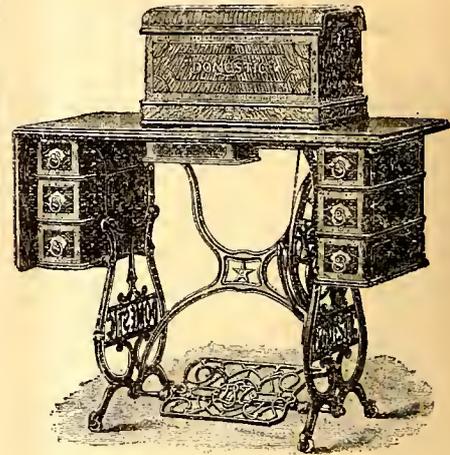

*This is the only line from Memphis running
Two Daily Trains through to Texas without change of cars, and without Omnibus Transfer in Memphis from Eastern Lines.*

Correspondence solicited from Principals of Schools and Parents concerning the safe conduct of scholars, by

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield,
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.
W. G. Adams, Pass. Agent, Nashville, Tenn.

—:— “SOLD ON MERIT.” —:—
THE LIGHT-RUNNING “DOMESTIC.”

Do you need a Piano?

Do you need an Organ?

Do you need a Violin?

Do you need a Musical Implement of any kind? Have you an old Instrument you wish to exchange?

If so you will find it to your interest to call and consult the undersigned.

W. P. ORMSBY,
MAIN ST., - - SALEM, N. C.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR WAR-
AIM RANTLE IS FOR
TO LIVE
EXCEL. YEAR

STIEFF
PIANOS

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., MAY, 1890.

NUMBER 106.

Edinboro.

BY MISS LEHMAN.

[We give this beautiful view, one of the illustrations from Miss LEHMAN'S new work now in press, "Sketches of Travel." Any one desiring a copy of the book, when complete, may address Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C., for terms, &c.]

EDINBORO, the metropolis of Scotland, is often termed the Modern Athens, from its learning as well as from the classical character of its buildings. The city lies 400 miles north of London, and takes its name from King Edwin of the 7th century, who founded the burg. It is romantically situated within a group of hills,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  miles from the Firth of Forth, and is divided into the Old Town and the New. The old town is made up of steep ascents, rugged and irregular. The northern part slopes towards the Firth,—the southern occupies the valley between Arthur's Seat and Castle Hill, the plain where Holyrood palace lies; the eastern is built on the ground about Calton Hill.

Our hotel, the Windsor, was admirably situated on Princess Street, the magnificent thoroughfare of modern Edinboro. The Castle, a grim, lonely sentinel, frowned on us from the opposite side of the Princess Street Gardens, looking like the Acropolis of Athens. These fine public parks, East and West Princess Street Gardens, are divided into two sections by the Mound, on which stand two handsome buildings, the Royal Institution and the National Gallery. The National Museum of Antiquities is kept here; John Knox's old pulpit, "the Solemn League and Covenant," signed in 1638 by the Earl of Montrose, and sealed by him with the blood of martyrdom, the Scottish Torture Maiden, the famous stool flung by Jenny Geddes at the rector of St. Giles when he first tried to read prayers,—all are here.

At the upper end of the Gardens is the chaste and elegant Scott Monument, (subject of our illustration,) the pride of Edinboro; they may well be proud of it. It was built in 1840, and its classic beauty reminds us more of the countless spires of leaves, while Maida, his favorite dog, lies at his feet. The structure is 200 feet high; a staircase leads to the top. Not far from this monument is a smaller one of Allen Ramsay, the poet; also statues of Dr. Livingstone, Adam Black, Christopher North, etc. The house in Edinboro where Scott was born is no longer standing. Scotland honors her great men nobly and well; it would be difficult to throw a stone in any of her thoroughfares without hitting a statue of Scott, Burns or Knox.

Calton Hill, with its monuments, filled up the fine view at the end of East Princess Street. It has a steep westerly front of 355 feet, and is crowned with public monuments above a well-built terrace. The Nelson monument is the most noted; there is also an unfinished National Monument in memory of the soldiers who fell in the Peninsular and Waterloo campaigns; it was begun in imitation of the Parthenon of Athens, but funds gave out. Lower down is the Burns Monument, much like the circular dome at the birthplace of the poet.

Holyrood Palace, so full of memories of Mary, Queen of Scots, lies in a plain, to the north of which rise the Salisbury Crags, of which the highest point, Arthur's Seat, is 900 feet above the sea-level. At the foot of these crags stands the humble cottage of Jeanie Deans, while a little further on is the church where her husband, Reuben Butler, ministered. Holyrood was founded by David I. in 1128, from a wonderful deliverance experienced while hunting here: a stag at bay was about to make short work of him, when the pious king suddenly thought of a piece of the true cross of Christ, which saved him. Of course, its noble picture

Milian Cathedral, as like daintiest lace-work they are outlined against the sapphire sky. The many niches of the structure are filled with the poet-novelist's famous heroes and heroines, Rob Roy, Fergus MacIvor, Waverly, and many more. Scott's statue is seen beneath the central canopy, where he is seated, book in hand, with one finger between the galleries, Lord Darnley's and Mary's rooms are interesting, but the chief interest centres in Mary's supper room, where David Rizzio, her Italian favorite, was stabbed at her feet. The blood-stains, or something like them, may still be seen on the floor.

After wandering through these rooms, we strolled along the Canongate, the great historic street of Edinboro, which runs east and west, one mile from Holyrood to Castle Hill. On the way we went into the old churchyard, where lie Adam Smith, author of The Wealth of Nature, Dr. Burney and Robert Ferguson, who first kindled the muse of Burns. As we walked along what memories came thronging up, of John Knox, of the Regent Murray, of Bothwell, of Captain Porteous, of Rob Roy, of Effie Deans. The houses preserve their ancient appearance, climbing heavenward, story upon story, as if anxious to get out of the dense, foul air. Evil smells almost suffocate us as we try to cross their narrow wynds; old armorial scutcheons were to be seen above doorways before which played the dirtiest little imps that could be found.

Ghosts of kings and queens walk here in the silent watches of the night. Down this steep street rode James 4th on his way to his death at Flodden Field; here the gallant Montrose was dragged on a hurdle to execution; here rode "the yellow-haired Aseanius," the young Pretender, dazzled by the gleam of his father's crown. Here Dr. Johnson and Boswell, his man Friday, walked out to the White Horse Inn. David Hume lived on this street. One day Robert Burns came down, with his wonderful black eyes, and stood by the grave of poor Ferguson. Here, too, limped the boy, Walter Scott, who later made every stone famous in his Chronicles of the Canongate and Heart of Mid Lothian. Here, too, the wit and fashion of Edinboro once centered, but, alas! things have changed. It is a sad commentary on greatness when we see part of John Knox's house used as a liquor shop.

The Castle of Edinboro is perched on a crag, and looks down on the city, the focus of any picture that could be made of it. It covers about six acres, and the rock on which it stands is 300 feet above the vale below, about like the large pinnacle of our own Pilot mountain. It has often been stubbornly fought for, and taken; but now it has no longer any special importance. It chiefly serves as a barrack for about 1200 infantry. There is much in Edinboro to admire, much of historic interest, much of literary worth.

"Fareweel, Edinburg, and a' your daughters fair,
Your Palace in the sheltered glen, your Castle
in the air,
Your rocky brow, your grassy knowls, and eke your mountain old;
Were I to tell your beauties a,' my tale would ne'er be told."

Color.

BY MISS ADDIE FRIES.

IMAGINE a world from which all color has been blotted out;—there may be graceful forms, breaths full of fragrance, pleasant sounds,—but all one unvarying, funereal blackness! Contrast with such a picture the lovely world about us, with its countless variations of tint and hue, and dare to say that color is an unimportant part of the grand handiwork of Nature!

Since the sunlight is the principal source of color, it should be first considered. The space between the earth and sun seems to be filled by a sea of almost inconceivably delicate fluid, called Ether, which is constantly agitated by waves of different sizes and properties, which strike upon the eye and cause the sensation of light, and so rapidly do they follow each other that thousands of millions enter the eye in a single second. For convenience a wave is usually represented by the straight line which marks its path and is called a Ray.

If a beam of light,—i. e. a bundle of mixed rays,—falls through a prism, the rays, as it were, sort themselves, and if caught upon a white screen form a band of brilliant colors, ranging from violet through indigo, blue, green, yellow and orange to red. The violet is the result of those rays whose length of wave is least, the red of the greatest, the others being intermediate. These have been called by some the primary colors, and their various combinations form all others. When we gaze upon the rainbow, thrown in a glorious arc against the sombre clouds, we see but the sunbeams caught by the drops of rain, and shattered by them as by a prism.

That attribute of substance which we call its color is in reality the power of choosing and absorbing certain rays from the light which falls upon its surface, while it reflects the rest; and we perceive the reflected not the absorbed rays. So when we admire the rich coloring of a rose we are only admiring the rays which have been rejected as unworthy to enter the delicate petals. If all the rays are reflected as they fall the object appears white, if all are absorbed black, though doubtless there is always more or less surface reflection of unbroken white light.

When light falls upon a surface covered with very minute, closely set grooves, or upon a film such as forms the soap-bubble, the rays are reflected in a disorderly manner, and give the varying hues that render so beautiful the mother-of-pearl, polished steel, and some feathers, in other words they produce Iridescence.

But there are other rays in the beam besides all these, rays invisible to the eye, but giving proof of their presence by their action. These rays are found at each end of the "Spectrum," as the bright band is called; those beyond the red are heat rays, their wave length is too great for visual perception; while those outside the violet are too short to be seen although they promote chemical action. When certain substances are exposed to these rays, they absorb them, and afterwards give them off so modified as to be visible. This phenomenon when it concerns the heat rays is called Calorescence, when it is the chemical rays that are transformed, Phosphorescence. The Phosphorescence of the sea however is due to the presence of tiny organisms, whose light-giving power is not clearly understood.

THE STUDENTS' TOUR TO NORTHERN CITIES.

WE introduce this final letter in our history of the Tour by giving a communication from Miss ROLLINS. The young ladies were very desirous of seeing the plays of Shakespeare by some of the famous actors, and the director of the party made arrangements for them to be provided with good escort. Their classroom work was thus rendered far more permanent when supplemented by a view of Booth and Mansfield as the actors. But the communication speaks for itself.

OUR THEATRES.

BY MISS EMMA ROLLINS.

Before leaving Salem for our Students' Tour Mr. CLEWELL made us happy by remarking: "If the young ladies wish to be so wicked and Mrs. C— will be so wicked as to accompany them, then they can go to the theatres." Well, it is only necessary to say we were so wicked, and enjoyed these acts of sinfulness very much. The first theatre we went to, in Washington, was to hear Rhea, in Josephine. Our knowledge of the history of the time, and especially the domestic life of Napoleon, was called to mind in the various acts. Rhea possessed a remarkably sweet voice, with a slight foreign accent. The death scene was a masterpiece! In a room in her palace surrounded by her friends and son and daughter, Eugene and Hortense, Josephine's mortal life ended. As the agonizing shriek, coming from a dying and broken heart, "Napoleon, my conqueror!" was heard, a curtain from the back was raised, and showed Napoleon landing from Elba. The joynt acclamations and cries of his followers, "Vive l'Empereur!" were in strong contrast to the quietude of the death-chamber, where Josephine, "his star," was dying.

Having been up very late for the two previous nights, Mr. C— did not wish the whole party to go out the next night, but consented for Congressman Ewart to take four of us out to see Held by the Enemy. On returning we rehearsed the play in our various rooms for the benefit of those girls who did not go. Perhaps it did not equal the original, but several of the girls were considerably "stage-struck" and gave the parts with much dramatic force, if not talent.

In New York we saw Booth and Mme. Modjeska in the Merchant of Venice. Having previously studied and paraphrased the play, we went prepared to enjoy it to the greatest extent. Nothing could be more beautiful than the serenade, given by Lorenzo and his friends, before the house of Shylock, when waiting for Jessica to appear. It would be useless to try and tell how much we enjoyed Booth's Shylock and Mme. Modjeska's Portia. They were simply perfect. As much as we disliked Shylock in the play, we could not refrain from pitying him when, bereft of all his earthly goods, deserted by his daughter, mocked and spurned by the Christians, he exclaims:

"Nay, take my life and all; pardon not that. You take my house when you do take the pity That doth sustain my house. You take my life When you do take the means whereby I live."

From the court-room we were rapidly carried to the beautiful moon-lit gardens of Portia's house. All gloomy feelings were dispelled as we followed the lover's quarrels, so gracefully maintained on both sides, about the rings, and the whole ends with the most exhilarating mirth. In New York we also heard Joe Jefferson in "The Rivals." As Bob Acres he kept the house in a general roar of laughter with his ridiculous actions and speeches. In Philadelphia we heard the Bostonians in "Pygmalion and Galatea." Marie Stone as Galatea, possessed a remarkably excellent voice, of wonderful compass and sweetness.

Among the many other courtesies we received in Philadelphia were complimentary tickets to the Broad Street Theatre to see Mansfield in "Richard III." The two little princes were charming and when we thought of the inhuman monster, who "waded through slaughter to a throne," who had them put to death, Richard became even more repulsive to us. The scene in which the ghosts of the persons Richard had murdered came and reproached him for his sinful acts was indeed horrible. We have no doubt but that each did "sit heavy on his soul" the next day. The terrible screams that issued from the tent where Richard was resting and the clanking of his iron armor as he jumped up and seized a dagger, seem to linger in our minds yet. The battle of Bosworth which followed, the next day, dethroned Richard, and in this battle he was killed. Pursued by his enemies and almost overcome by them, his life ended in a single combat with Richmond, afterwards King Henry VII.

Our theatre-going was certainly one of the most pleasant and interesting points of our trip.

The party left New York, being in possession of the elegant parlor car, Ferndiff. The run from New York was quickly made on the excellent B. & O. road, and we were in the Philadelphia depot in good time. In our November ACADEMY we gave a number of letters, containing a description of the Philadelphia visit, and hence it is not necessary to repeat the facts in this letter.

Thursday the party visited Bethlehem, the seat of our sister Moravian school, and situated about 56 miles north of Philadelphia. We will let Miss WHITSETT tell the story of this last little jaunt:

OUR TRIP TO BETHLEHEM, PA.

BY MISS MINNIE WHITSETT.

We left Philadelphia amid great excitement, for as was usually the case two or three girls were "ten minutes late," but we reached the Philadelphia & Reading depot in time, and were soon speeding along toward Bethlehem in our private car, kindly secured for us by Mr. McKenzie. Doubtless the reader can picture what a jolly crowd we were, a car filled with happy school girls, and everything being done to make us comfortable. Between Philadelphia and Bethlehem we were joined by Mr. William Sieger, father of JENNIE SIEGER, (class '87) and we also had with us Rev. Edward Wolle, (Mrs. CLEWELL's brother). These gentlemen did much to make the day a pleasant one.

The ride from Philadelphia to Bethlehem was about 90 minutes, and as we stopped at the Union depot, we found conveyances waiting to take us on our round of sightseeing. The first point visited was the great Bessemer Steel Mills. As we entered one of the great buildings, it is difficult to say whether awe, admiration or fear was the chief sensation; for amid the clank of machinery, the hissing of steam, the shrill shrieks of the little locomotives hurrying here and there,—amid all this the great retorts spread a lurid, yes, a blinding light over everything, and now and then filled the vast space with millions of sparks until the spectator unaccustomed to the scene feels himself dazed and bewildered. But we came to see the points of the great works, and although some of the girls withdrew, the larger part started forward amid these scenes, which for terrors might have well rivalled Dante's awful Inferno. We saw the melting of the steel, the moulding, the rolling of the steel rails, the sawing into proper lengths, yes we saw enough in that hour to fill a small volume.

From the rolling mills we drove to the great Lehigh University founded by Asa Packer, and endowed by him with so many millions. We spent an hour strolling amid the evenly trimmed lawns, going in and out of the magnificent Halls, Chapel, Library, Gymnasium, etc. Then took a drive amid the palatial residences of Fountain Hill, and finally found ourselves in the comfortable Eagle Hotel. The dinner was an elegant repast, and we did full justice to it.

After dinner Mr. Sieger announced that we had received an invitation from Mr. Robert Lockhart to visit his suit of rooms. On entering the rooms expressions of admiration escaped from every lip. Mr. Lockhart was waiting to receive us and told us that "he liked girls!" We then felt at home! Mr. L. kindly explained to us the history of the many beautiful and valuable articles; here we see a cut glass set which required more than two years to finish; near by is an exquisite China set which Mrs. Cleveland would have been the fortunate recipient of had her husband been elected to the Presidency a second time. From one object of interest to another we passed, when all too soon the announcement came from Mr. CLEWELL that we must away! We reluctantly follow, and find here as almost every where that much remains unseen.

We feel for our dear Mrs. CLEWELL when we pass her mother's home on Church street for we know how much she would like to have stepped in if only for a few moments. But the home friends are spending the Winter in the West Indies, and so no familiar face is to be seen. We then visited beautiful Nisky Hill Cemetery, where fair haired little Harold lies buried. Some of us remember his sweet, sunny face as he was accustomed to go in and out at the ACADEMY and Principal's House, and our sympathy for Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL is very strong as their recent bereavement is thus freshly brought before us by the little green mound.

Mr. Joseph Rice and Prof. E. G. Klose escorted us to the large Moravian church and Rev. Mr. Blickensderfer with Miss HELEN DESCHWEINITZ, daughter of Rev. ROBERT DESCHWEINITZ, former Principal of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, escorted us through the Bethlehem Seminary. These buildings remind us of home in many respects, and we enjoyed the inspection of the institution very much. The neighboring clock strikes four, and we are thus warned of the nearness of "train time." Having said farewell to our many kind friends we hasten to the depot, and as we once more enter our car, and look toward the old historic bridge we notice that a company of Seminary girls have come down to see us off. It is too late to do more than wave them an adieu as we speed away, and thus close one of our happy days. A short, easy run through a rich farming section, and we are again in Philadelphia. Like a picture stands out the pleasant visit to Bethlehem in the mind of the writer.

Friday dawned dark and wet, and seemed a suitable emblem of the feelings of the party when they contemplated the near close to this pleasant journey. Some of the party again visited Wannamaker's before lunch, and afterwards the entire company went to the Zoological Gardens, which contain the finest collection of wild animals in America. The short run from the city was made without special incident and the time spent amid the various houses containing lions, tigers, snakes, alligators, elephants and buffaloes was very interesting indeed. We could not help wondering at the lack of gratitude displayed by the monkeys when we saw little Clarence feeding one and saw this ungrateful animal snatch his cap from his head and tear it in shreds in a twinkling. Clarence was not to be consoled until another visit to Wannamaker's replaced the article.

It is now evening and seated in a sumptuous parlor car we are again on the wing and ere long again in the Metropolitan Hotel at Washington, where the last night was spent. Saturday morning dawned and it seemed as if the heavens were opened, the rain came down in such torrents. After a leisurely eaten breakfast we entered our private car for the last time, and begin the run which will once more land us at Salem. On the way Capt. Jenkins joins the party and helps to pleasantly close the trip toward which he contributed so much that was enjoyable. And as the shades of evening close around us and one after another falls asleep, (for we reach Salem after midnight) doubtless strangely mingled dreams fill the minds,—dreams of Washington and Mt. Vernon, of busy Baltimore and stately monuments, of the great Metropolis New York, with crowded streets and rushing elevated trains,—of West Point with its cadets and cannon, of Bethlehem with its melted steel and stately university and schools, of Philadelphia with its elegant hotel, old Independence Hall and beautiful shop windows,—yes, and between all these panoramas came trooping along the faces of accommodating friends, by scores, smiling and laboring to give us pleasure,—but hark!—that is the shrill locomotive whistle,—“Winston-Salem!” calls out the conductor, and as we rub our sleepy eyes, we know that home has been reached and that we have successfully reached the end of “The Student's Tour to Northern Cities.”

Chronicle and Gossip.

—“Through the courtesy of the Principal of the Academy, Rev. J. H. CLEWELL, we had the pleasure of witnessing a very interesting game of croquet played in the rear of the Academy on the pleasure grounds of that institution. It was a contest between the girls of two class rooms, 4th and 8th. The young ladies who took part were: Miss TAYLOR, of Texas, and Miss ELLIS, of North Carolina, for the 4th room; and Miss TROUT, of Virginia, and Miss HEARD, of Georgia, for the 8th room. It was a very spirited contest and resulted in the first of the three games being won by the 4th room. There were at least 160 girls present to witness the games. It was very amusing to note the enthusiasm or disappointment manifested by the girls as the success of the game would vary. Sometimes their enthusiasm would become so intense that they would give vent to their feelings by waving their handkerchiefs and shouting.”—Twin-City Daily.

—The spelling match between the first and second preparatory classes, Friday, April 18th, was a spirited one. The first preparatory was the victor, but the second preparatory struggled nobly for their side.

—Sunday, April 20th, the members of the Home Sunday School gave a very interesting programme, consisting of Infant class exercises and a meeting of the Juvenile Missionary Society. The Academy pupils were present.

—Our neighbor, the People's Press says:

“If the Electric Light Plant is ready in time, the Moravian church will be brilliantly lighted on the evenings of the ACADEMY Commencement Exercises. It is proposed to place 100 lights in the church in a shape to bring out the initial letters of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, “S. F. A.” The star to be placed in the midst of the circular motto will show the figures “90.” This display shows commendable energy on the part of the Principal, which will be highly appreciated by the friends of the institution. Let all our people old and young aid the Principal in sustaining the well earned reputation of the school in point of education and wholesome discipline, making it a pleasant home for the Southern school girl in every particular.

—May 1st a bevy of importunate but pleading faces besieged Mr. CLEWELL'S office, calling attention to the beautiful weather, the hard worked condition of the poor(?) pupils, and the general desirability of a holiday. Of course, such pleading could not be resisted, and after a few preparatory arrangements, the day was declared a holiday,—amid the pleasant hum of excitement which always accompanies such an announcement. It was agreed that the school should spend the day as the individuals should plan, and hence a variety of pleasures were sought for. Some went into the country, others sought the shady nooks in the park; some made good use of the tennis court and croquet grounds, and others quietly rested within the cool buildings. The day was a success,—in fact, holidays generally are!

—The large fountain for the square, donated by the citizens of Salem, has arrived and we trust it will be in place by Commencement. Two darkeys were recently noticed earnestly contemplating the excavation which has been prepared to receive the basin of the fountain, when one was heard to exclaim that without a doubt this was the turn-table for the new electric street railway.

—The Post Graduates gathered in full force at the romantic little nook, where the stream enters the park, and having taken possession of the large rock (occupied by so many hundreds of pupils during past years), Mr. Hough secured a picture of the class and its professors. This class picture will be interesting, because it is the first regularly organized Post Graduate Class of the institution.

—Rev. H. S. Newman recently made us a very pleasant call, and examined the Academy buildings.

The above design was furnished by Matthews, Northrup & Co., Buffalo, N. Y. and will, in future, serve as a general design or "trade mark" for the Institution. The design will bear close examination, and we trust that as time passes, and it appears on paper, envelopes, programmes and catalogues, it may be like a welcome visitor to the many friends of Salem Female Academy.

Our Library.

Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL :

Dear Sir :—

As one of the Class of '26, I take great pleasure in contributing the enclosed Twenty Dollars to the Griffiss Library Fund. I hope it will be accepted, together with my heartfelt wishes for the success of this most worthy undertaking.

Very sincerely yours,

AMELIA ROE WOODWARD,

E. Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, O.

April 18, 1890.

Contributions to the Griffiss Library Fund :

Mrs. Amelia Roe Woodward, Cincinnati, Ohio, - - - -	$ 20 00
Previously acknowledged, - - - -	115 34
Total, - - - -	$135 34

—The following books have been received :

The Story of the Invention and Manufacture of Steel Pens. A little work containing a very interesting account of the steel pen, by Henry Bore. Published by Ivison, Blakeman & Co., New York and Chicago.

Sheldon's Elementary Arithmetic, with oral and written exercises.

Sheldon's Complete Arithmetic, with oral and written exercises.

Stoddard's New and Intellectual Arithmetic, containing an extensive collection of practical questions on the general principles of Arithmetic, with concise and original methods of solution, which simplify many of the most important rules in written arithmetic. The three books named above are published by Sheldon & Co., New York.

A Short History of the Roman People, by William Fallen. Ginn & Co., Boston.

The History of Music, from the Christian era to the present time. By Ritter, Ditson & Co., Boston.

A Concise History of Music, from the commencement of the Christian era to the present time. By Hunt. Chas Scribner & Sons, New York.

—"HOW TO GET TO SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY" is a pamphlet which has become justly popular with those of our patrons who travel to or from Salem. The recent edition was published by Blums' Press Steam Print, and is one of the finest jobs ever gotten out by this excellent printing office. The book contains five views of the ACADEMY and grounds, eight maps of the chief Southern systems, with all needed information as to depots, charges, trains, rules for travelling, etc. The following lines are represented :

- Richmond & Danville Railroad.
- Queen & Crescent Route.
- Iron Mountain Route.
- East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad.
- Louisville & Nashville Railroad.
- Cotton Belt Route.
- Central Railroad of Georgia.
- Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.
- Roanoke & Southern Railway.
- Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroad.

The publication will be sent to any one free of cost on application, and is serviceable not only for those who come to Salem, but to any travellers in the South.

Subscriptions Received.

Mrs D H Starbuck, Winston, NC; Miss M E Vogler, Miss M A Fogle, Mr J A Lineback, Miss Hattie Swift, Dr J W Hunter, Mrs Geo E Nissen, Mrs Dora Ebert, Salem, N C; Mrs Ellen Montague, Winston, N C; Miss Lola Wells, Wilson, N C; Miss Kate Lark, Brewerton, S C; Miss Della Hine, Winston, S C; Miss Lula Deaderick, Knoxville, Tenn; Miss Minnie Farmer, News Ferry, Va; Miss Julia Meachum, Anderson, Texas; Mrs Marg Rice, Cole's Ferry, Va; Miss Alice Hill, Germantown, N C; Miss Roxie Arnold, Greensboro, N C; Miss H deSchweinitz, Bethlehem, Pa; Miss Nellie Cramer, Thomasville, N C; Mrs W H Hall, Mrs Florence Stockton, Mrs Hattie Clemmons, Miss Emma Cooper, Miss Anne Lundquist, Miss Jamie Whitner, Mrs M E Jenkins, Mrs L A Smyth, Mr H W Fries, Mr A F Pfohl, Mrs F H Fries, Mrs L M Fries, Miss Bessie Pfohl, Mrs H E Fries, B J Pfohl, Jno L Brietz, Miss Ada Dodson, Mrs E E Shelton, Miss Ella Shore, Miss Mary Welfare, Dr J F Shaffner, Dr N S Siewers, Mrs S E Hough, Mr W T Spaugb, Miss Pattie Beck, Miss Ella Hege, Mrs M E Ackerman, Miss A Steiner, Mrs E Carmichael, Mrs H S Crist, Mrs Jesse Carter, Miss Maud Butner, Miss Carrie Stockton, Miss Annie Hill, Raleigh, N C; Mrs W B Glenn, Winston, N C; Mrs Anne Duncan, Mrs Lizzie Gibson Moore, Adamsville, S C; Mrs W R Gladstone, Winston, N C; Mrs T A Wilson, Winston, N C; Mrs M E Wriston, Charlotte, N C; Miss Jennie Ragsdale, Jamestown, N C; Mrs Dr Hill, Arcadia, N C; Miss Laura Dicks, Walkertown, N C; Mr G R Shultz, Washington, D C; Miss Sallie Watkins, Winston, N C; Miss Mamie Thomas, Thomasville, N C; Miss A Laciari, Mauch Chunk, Pa; Mrs J G Hunt, Oxford, N C; Mrs W J Hudson, Wolfesville, N C; Mrs Emma Maul, Kewanee, Ill; Miss Kate Paddison, Titusville, Fla; Mrs E B McMasters, Winstboro, S C; Mrs V O Thompson, Winston, N C; Miss Mary Smith, Mexia, Texas; Mrs J E Gilmer, Winston, N C.

Members of Alumna Association.

- Nill, Mrs, Bristol, Tenn.
- Ollinger, Mrs J, S Batchelder, Milton, Fla.
- Ollinger, Miss Alice, "
- Ollinger, Miss Kate, "
- Ormsby, Mrs. Wm (Fleda) Fisher, Salem, N.C.
- Patterson, Mrs Col W, Cornelia Graham, Philadelphia, Pa.
- Pfohl, Miss Constance, Salem, N C.
- Pittman, Miss Annie, "
- Powell, Miss M, Mrs Tucker, Warrenton, N.C.
- Patterson, Mrs R L, Mary Fries, Salem, N C.
- Penn, Mrs Frank, Annie Spencer, Reidsville, N.C.
- Penn, Miss Kitty May, "
- Pumell, Mrs T R, Adelia Zevely, Raleigh, N.C.
- Phillips, Miss Alice, Jackson, Tenn.
- Patterson, Mrs Sam, Mary Seuseman, Yadkin Valley, N C.
- Paddison, Miss Kate, Titusville, Fla.
- Pinkston, Mrs Chas, Lily Jones, Salem, N C.
- Pfohl, Miss Bessie, "
- Phillips, Mrs Mary McGhee, Monroe, La.
- Parker, Mrs, Lula Cannon,
- Pickle, Mrs G W, Minnie Fain, Dandridge, Tenn.
- Pfohl, Mrs Chas, Mary Eberhard, Salem, N C.
- Pritchett, Mrs. Sam'l, Florence McCanless, Greensboro, N C.
- Pfohl, Miss Mary, Columbus, Ga.
- Pfohl, Mrs C T, Margaret Siewers, Salem, N.C.
- Pridgen, Mrs Mattie Eccles, Warsaw, N C.
- Patterson, Mrs J L, Lucy Patterson, Salem, NC.
- Reynolds, Miss Jeanie, Aberdeen, M ss.
- Rondthaler, Miss Alice, Salem, N C.
- Riggs, Miss Carrie, Winston, N C.
- Ragsdale, Miss Jennie, Jamestown, N C.
- Reade, Mrs Dr, Annie Lang, Corsicana, Tex.
- Richmond, Mrs Col, K Morrison, Estilville, Va.
- Ruff, Miss Daisy,
- Reid, Miss Nettie, Reidsville, N C.
- Starbuck, Mrs D H, E Blickensderfer, Salem, N.C.
- Shelton, Mrs Dr, Ellen Belo, "
- Steiner, Miss Amelia F, "
- Siewers, Miss Gertrude, "
- Shaffner, Mrs Dr, Carrie Fries, "
- Shaffner, Miss Louisa, "
- Shaffner, Miss Sallie, "
- Spencer, Miss Mattie, Spencer, Va.
- Shepherd, Miss Bettie, Winston, N C.
- Shore, Miss Ella, Salem, N C.
- Shore, Miss Addie, "
- Slappey, Mrs J S, Stella Neil, Marshallville, Ga.
- Sturdivant, Mrs A, Ann Myers, Charlotte, N C.
- Sherrod, Mrs L, Lou Mayo, Hamilton, N C.
- Stafford, Miss Jennie, Salem, N C.
- Stockton, Mrs. John, Florence Hall, "
- Siewers, Mrs Dr, Ellie DeSchweinitz, "
- Sieger, Miss Jennie, Bethlehem, Pa.
- Spencer, Miss Maggie, Spencer, Va.
- Stevenson, Mrs C, Sallie Kremer, Baltimore, Md.
- Smythe, Mrs Cal, Louie Grunert, Jamaica, W I.
- Stokes, Mrs D, Fannie Powell, Tarboro, N C.
- Strickland, Mrs Dr, L Lehman, Bethania, N C.
- DeSchweinitz, Miss Helen, Bethlehem, Pa.
- Smith, Miss Mary V, Coville, N C.
- Swift, Miss Hattie K, Salem, N C.
- Stokes, Miss Annie, Danville, Va.
- Stokes, Miss Laura,
- Scott, Miss Lily, Charlotte, N C.
- Shelton, Mrs Don, Louise Biting, Winston, NC.
- Schiff, Miss Emma, Charlotte, N C.
- Sherrille, Miss Janie, Bennettsville, S C.
- Staples, Miss Annie, Reidsville, N C.
- Shelton, Miss Carrie, Salem, N C.
- Shaffner, Miss Etta, "
- Stockton, Miss Carrie, "
- Sutton, Miss Hattie, Fayetteville, N C.
- Siddall, Mrs H, Ellen Hege, Salem, N C.
- Thomas, Mrs H, C Butner, Thomasville, N C.
- Tate, Miss Lula, Graham, N C.
- Tate, Miss Etta, "
- Thomas, Miss Mamie, Thomasville, N C.
- Thomas, Miss Lizzie, Jefferson, N C.
- Thom, Mrs J, Bettie Kimble, China Grove, NC.
- Tise, Mrs John, Salem, N C.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., MAY, 1890.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers
constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence

MISS EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—The following is the programme of Commencement :

Friday evening, May 30, Miss EVANS'
Concert.

Sunday morning, June 1, Baccalaureate
Sermon.

Monday evening, June 2, Senior's evening
(first night).

Tuesday afternoon, June 3, Meeting of the Alumnæ Association.

Tuesday afternoon, June 3, Art Exhibit.

Tuesday evening, June 3, Seniors' evening (second night).

Wednesday morning, June 4, Commencement.

Wednesday evening, June 4, Closing Concert.

—The Commencement Address before the Graduating Class will be delivered by the Hon. G. W. SANDERLIN, State Auditor. We feel that this popular gentleman's many friends will welcome this announcement, and that the warm reception he deserves will be accorded him.

—Rev. CHARLES W. BYRD, of Fayetteville, N. C., will deliver the Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday morning, June 1st. We are happy to make this announcement, and as one arrangement after the other is completed, this Commencement promises to be the most enjoyable the Institution has ever known.

—We have been promised an interesting sketch of the Davis School to be located in Winston-Salem for our next issue. THE ACADEMY extends a warm band of welcome to this popular school.

—Circulars announcing railroad rates will be sent on application to the Academy office.

—The plans for the new Industrial Department are being pushed forward as rapidly as possible, and we hope by our June issue to be able to make some announcement in regard to the plans of work.

—On another page will be found a letter from a writer who was in attendance as a pupil in the Academy sixty-four years ago, and one who still preserves a warm feeling for the Alma Mater. The practical interest which the letter shows is a matter of great encouragement. Miss SIEWERS' suggestion is being acted upon and has grown tenfold, and not two but twenty dollars is the amount credited on the Griffiss Library Fund. This indication of a growing interest in the Library is very gratifying, and we believe that it is a promise of what will be the tone of the coming Alumnæ meeting. As it is, the Academy is doing a great work, but its efficiency will be greatly strengthened by endowments, and towards this point more than one indication seems to be tending.

—We had hoped to present some communications from members of the Alumnæ Association relative to the approaching meeting, but the time between the issue of the last number of THE ACADEMY and the present one was so short that it was hardly possible to expect the same. However,
THE ACADEMY hopes every effort may be made to insure the success of the gathering, since it is rapidly becoming one of the most important gatherings during Commencement week. In fact the future of the Institution depends so greatly upon the cordial support of the Alumnæ, if it is to become broader and wider in its sphere of usefulness, that the importance of the Alumnæ meeting cannot be overestimated.
If looked upon in its true light no pains will be spared to insure its success and with this spirit to inspire it, 1890 will insure the grandest Alumnæ meeting thus far held.

—The bronze fountain, which is now being placed in the Academy Park, is situated at the foot of the steps leading to the small pavilion just south of the spring.
On the fountain is a small silver plate, with the following inscription :

PRESENTED BY

REV. EDWARD RONDTHALER.

1890.

This memento of Dr. RONDTHALER'S principalship of Salem Female Academy will remain in its position as generation after generation comes and goes. How greatly the interest in the stroll through the Park would be increased if other gifts were to be added by classes or individuals !

We recently passed through the magnificent park of one of our great universities, and stopped before an attractive flight of granite steps, presented as a memento by a graduating class. Every hillside could be improved and beautified in this way.
How the Alma Mater could be beautified by the gifts of her children ! Here could be placed a statue, there an iron bridge ; here a flight of granite steps, there an attractive fountain ; yes, many suggestions arise, and all within the reach of a class or even individual, and by these personal remembrances great interest would be added to the spot which naturally has received so many gifts from nature, and by these added charms each, with personal associations, would assume almost a sacred character, as did the sacred groves to the ancient nations. Dr. RONDTHALER has taken the lead in this matter. Who will follow ?

—"We look upon it as quite a mistake for newspapers to publish every piece of sensational news that comes within their reach. The Daily tries to publish the news, but we think it deserves as much credit for prudently avoiding some things as it does in saying some others. If there is a piece of information, the publication of which would unjustly injure a community, an institution, or an individual, we let such a piece of news alone, for invariably the innocent suffer from its publication, while only the morbid curiosity is gratified."—Twin City Daily.

The above is a plainly stated truth which we believe is not sufficiently appreciated by the communities in which we live.
Winston-Salem has, at the present time,
The Twin-City Daily, People's Press,
Western Sentinel, Union Republican, Piedmont Advertiser and The Schoolteacher.
These papers have within their power the ability to shape and fashion the communities' standing before the outside world.
We have often noted the fact that the position which these journals have taken is a very creditable one, in striving to place before the world the true interests of the towns, and in firmly withholding from their columns those personal matters which bring pain, sorrow and injury to others.
Journalism has become tainted in many towns and cities because of this conscienceless mode of crossing every barrier of restraint, entering homes, dragging private matters ruthlessly before the public, and all on the shallow plea that they are furnishing the news ; when, in reality, it is imposition of the crudest and coarsest character. We therefore repeat that the high-toned, elevated position which the press of these towns has taken is worthy of the special respect and gratitude of every citizen, and THE ACADEMY trusts the journalism of the Twin-Cities may ever retain this praiseworthy standard.

"Honor to whom honor is due."

Correspondence.

—Our first communication is from Miss HATTIE SUTTON, our late valedictorian :

Your most welcome letter was received some time ago. I wrote you last June, before you started for Europe, but thought my letter might have been misplaced in the bustle and excitement of getting off.

I have been spending some time with my grand-parents in Bladen county. Their home is situated on the site of Governor Johnson's Castle, and still retains the name given by him, Brompton.

I hope you have decided to have your Sketches of Travel printed, so that we may have the pleasure and benefit of reading it.

I have been reading a good deal this winter, and have been guided almost exclusively by your article, What Shall I Read? published in THE ACADEMY. I have loaned THE ACADEMY containing that piece to several different people this winter who said that was just what they had wanted for some time. I was much disappointed in not seeing one of your sketches in this month's ACADEMY; please write one on Scotland: I think that would be such an interesting subject. I hope to see you all at Commencement if nothing happens to prevent.

With much love,

HATTIE SUTTON.

Brompton, N. C.

—Your letter came to me several days before we left home, but I deferred answering it until we came up here, thinking I might find something of interest to tell you. The Chataqua opened on the 20th inst. We came up a few days after the opening, and hope to remain the entire session. Our stay thus far has been very pleasant, and we think we shall greatly enjoy our 4 weeks stay. The program is quite a fine one. There have been so many interesting lectures, concerts, readings, &c. Bishop John H. Vincent, the founder of Chataqua, has been here since the Assembly opened, and will remain over Sunday, preaching for us on that day. All are carried away with him; last night he lectured on That Boy, one of the finest lectures I ever heard. Though it was long he held his audience splendidly. I wish you could have been here; I know you would have enjoyed it: in fact, I think you would enjoy a trip to DeFuniak during the Assembly. Bishop Vincent is not, however, our only good speaker; there are many others. The elocutionist this year is very good; better than Prof. Ford, who has been here. Prof. Beal goes ahead of him, I think.

Last year KATE PADDISON spent a few days here, and I hope she will come again and bring her friend with her. Last year we came up just the day after she left, and we regretted it very much. The lake is a pretty sheet of water, not at all dangerous. There is a nice little yacht here; a party of us had a sail on her yesterday.

JENNIE'S and LIZZIE'S letter to THE ACADEMY was such a nice one! we enjoyed it very much. Some time ago we received pictures of MOLLIE TUCKER BLACK and her husband; she seems to be very happy. MYRA is still in far off Montana, but she writes me they expect to return to Texas in four or five months. She teaches yet, and seems to be real encouraged. ELLA and NELL are both married now; it seems strange to think of them so. ELLA and I still keep up our weekly correspondence.

Is your alligator still alive and doing well? I hope he will live. You ask me about their eggs and nests. I am sorry to say I know very little about them. The gentleman who brought your alligator to papa told him there were about 36 in that nest, so you see your little fellow has quite a number of brothers and sisters.

It is almost our dinner hour, so I must bid you good-bye.

With much love,

KATE OLLINGER.

DeFuniak, Fla.

—Our next is from Mrs. Hartstene, an old friend and pupil of the Academy in 1828. Her maiden name was MARTHA J. ROBERTS, of South Carolina:

I was truly surprised on Easter even to receive a letter with the postmark of dear old Salem, kindly written by yourself. I had not heard that Mrs. Wheat was there; she is an old friend of mine. How much I thought of old times that night! and wished to be there on Easter morning. I regret not being able to attend the Commencement. My granddaughter graduates about that time. I will make an effort to visit Salem during the summer. My husband was so fond of the salt water we rarely travelled up the country. I will cheerfully become a member of the Alumnae Association and subscribe to the Academy's monthly journal.

I met at Saratoga, last summer, two sisters, former pupils of Salem. They were there after I left. Their maiden name LYONS, from Alabama. At present they are not in the city, but when they return I will see them. They are both widows, Mrs. Prince and Mrs. Deas. I cannot think of more than two more who are now living. The terrible war has separated former friends. I am about moving but will send you my address. I will commence looking backwards, and give you some recollections of my school-life in that lovely country. Do remember me to any one that has any recollection of me.

Yours, with much esteem,

M. A. HARTSTENE.

230 West 44th St., New York.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Mrs. J. F. Sylvester (JULIA WOODS) is now residing in Anniston, Ala.

—The new Catalogue is now in press, and we will be pleased to send copies to any friends who may desire the same.

—We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to the marriage of Dr. Hamilton V. Horton to Miss Annie Laurie Cowles, April 30, 1890.

—In our last month's issue we placed the figures $30 as the regular price for "Yaggy's Anatomical Chart," when it should have been $35.

—We notice that The Schoolteacher is about to be reorganized, with an increased capital stock, and we wish for our neighbor success and prosperity in its work.

—The Annual Musical Festival at Petersburg, Va., will be held May 27-30. For information apply to Mr. W. P. McRae, Secretary, Petersburg, Va.

—The new tennis ground is a beauty. Three sides are enclosed by a large wire netting fence, 8 feet in height. The surface of the court is perfectly level and smooth, and the appearance of the grounds very attractive. The first game was played on Tuesday, April 30, and we believe it will become very popular.

—ANNIE DUNCAN, now Mrs. Newton, of Bennettsville, S. C., desires to obtain information about her schoolmates, FEETIE WILLINGHAM and ANNIE and SALLIE MULLINS.

—The publishers of the Youth's Companion, Boston, awarded the flag offered for the best essay written by a scholar, to Miss Coleman, of the Winston Graded School. We extend our congratulations.

—The Senior rings have come to hand, and are much admired. The design is a pansy, with "'90" on one of the petals. To the two sides of the flower is attached the band forming the ring. The entire ring is composed of plain gold.

—The Rev. Thomas Dixon, pastor of 23d Street Baptist Church, New York, has kindly presented a large number of the members of our Senior Class with a copy of his sermons and addresses. This is a graceful compliment and greatly appreciated by the pupils.

—The work on the Electric Street Railway has been pushed rapidly forward during the past weeks, and a very considerable portion of the track has been laid. The huge poles for the wires are being placed in position, and every effort is being put forward to speedily complete the work.

—The recent rains have caused vegetation to put forth, and the noble trees in the school park are beginning to cast a very refreshing shade. The grass in the newly improved square in front of the school is growing finely and presents a beautiful appearance.

—As will be seen from our marriage notices, HATTIE SWIFT was united in matrimony to Mr. D. W. Williard, on Wednesday, April 30, at Dr. Swift's residence in Salem. The wedding was attended by guests from home and from a distance, and in the evening the happy couple took the train on a bridal tour. THE ACADEMY extends its best wishes.

—The Senior Class paper is very fine this year. The stationery is of superior quality and the design is artistic, neat and attractive. It consists of a large '90, through which a pansy stem passes with the class flower,—the pansy. Below this is a graceful scroll, on which is printed the class motto "Centum pete finem." The color is royal purple. The design has been greatly admired.

—"Last night, in the Gymnasium Hall of the Academy, was held the last of the series of musical concerts embraced in the Winter Evening's Course. But because it was the last it was in no measure of less interest than others on the list. It was equal in excellence to any concert given by this justly famous musical combination. Mr. Will Peterson's clarinet solo, "Romance from Lucretia Borgia," was very sweet. Mr. Peterson was loudly encored. A violin solo, "Fantasie on Il Trovatore," by Mr. Sam Peterson, was finely executed and elicited much applause. He was called back. But the sweetest music of the evening was a vocal solo by Mrs. H. E. Fries, "Kellogg Waltzes," sung by special request. At the conclusion of this she was called back, and sang "The Song that Reached My Heart." Mrs. Fries has a very rich, sweet voice, full of melody. Our people are always delighted to hear her. "Russian Melodie," a violin duet by Miss Grace Locke and Mr. Bernard Wurrechke, was elegantly executed, eliciting prolonged applause. The entertainment was concluded by a fine rendition of the "Polish National Dance," by the orchestra. The entertainment was highly enjoyed by all present.—Twin-City Daily.

—Under the head of "Beautiful, if Realized," the Twin-City Daily says:

"If the electric light building (which is now in course of erection) is completed in time, it is proposed to put about 100 lights in the Moravian church for the Academy Commencement. These will be placed in circular shape, out of which will be made the letters 'S. F. A.' In the center will be a beautiful star with the figures '90.' The plan, if carried into effect, is a commendable one and will be in keeping with the very progressive ideas of Principal CLEWELL."

—Preparations are in progress to move back from the street the building which Prof. WURRECHKE has just vacated. This will make vacant the lot recently secured by the school, and will enable us to begin the erection of the new hall, as soon as may be deemed advisable. The improvements which will be added to the house which now stands on Church Street, but will then be beside Annex Hall, will place six fine rooms at the disposal of the school, and it is to be hoped that the extensive building operations may be deferred another year, in view of the additional acquisition of space alluded to.

—Since the match games in croquet this game has been revived with all its old time vigor, and gay parties may be seen at all times, eagerly practicing for prospective challenges.

—The following is a list of the Seniors for the year 1889-'90:

Mary Lucille Armfield, North Carolina; Annie L. Bordeaux, Mississippi; Sudie Borden, Swannanoa Brower, Fannie S. Butner, North Carolina; Mattie Rebecca Campbell, Texas; Mary B. Cannady, North Carolina; Lena Chaffin, Virginia; Grace Catherine Cooper, North Carolina; Pearl Gladys Crawford, Texas; Annie Florence Cummings, Minnie Marcella Fagg, North Carolina; Maggie C. Graham, Mississippi; Nellie Lyle Griffiss, Tennessee; Bessie Carter Hall, Camille H. Hunt, North Carolina; Lida Toccoa Irby, South Carolina; Hetty Shields Jarnagin, Tennessee; Mary R. Jefferies, South Carolina; Ora Andrew Kennedy, Texas; Minnie Salome Mickey, Adelaide Lavinia Miller, North Carolina; Lizzie Newton, South Carolina; Theresa Columbia Pace, Texas; Hennie Caroline Peterson, North Carolina; Martha D. Pierce, Mary A. T. Pretlow, Fannie M. Pretlow, Virginia; Emma Augusta Rollins, Ellen Josephine Siddall, Annie Lindsay Sloan, North Carolina; Jeanie M. Smith, Texas; Lizzie Dell Sutton, North Carolina; Minnie Trimmier, South Carolina; Octavia W. Wellons, Minnie L. Whitsette, North Carolina; Tibbie Womack, Texas; Carrie E. Wray, North Carolina; Fannie C. Wray, Tennessee.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.

The musical, given by Miss EVANS and the Misses VAN VLECKS' pupils, was a very enjoyable hour. The usual excellence of the vocal and instrumental selections was maintained throughout. The French recitation by Miss ALICE SLAPPEY, and the Guitar Trio by Misses SMITH, GAMBILL and MASON, were numbers which attracted unusual attention. The programme is given below:

1. Piano Trio. West End Polka.....D'Albert.
Misses SWANSON, SITTING and WOODSELL.
2. O Fatima.....Weber.
Miss SCHIAFFNER.
3. Sunrise.....Weckerlin.
Miss CHRISTIE WADDELL.
4. Hearst Thou.....Mattei.
Miss LULU PEYTON.
5. Promenade Sur L'Eau.....Conconc.
Miss LENA CHAFFIN.
6. Neath the green trees.....Masse.
Miss ANNIE JONES.
7. Kingdom of Love.....Rodney.
Miss EMMA ROLLINS.
8. Guitar Trio. Spanish March.
Misses SMITH, GAMBILL and MASON.

- 4879 LIZORA FORTUNE. — 1855.
Rev. John A. Fortune, Marlin, Texas.
- 4883 BLANCHIE AYCOCK. — 1853.
Rev. Th. P. Aycock, Marlin, Texas.
- 4881 MARY LANG. — 1854.
4882 ANNIE LANG. — 1856.
Capt. W. W. Lang, Marlin, Texas.
- 4883 FANNIE A. SIMONS. — 1855.
E. K. Simons, Lylesville, N. C.
- 4881 ANNE BOWEN. — 1854.
Colonel W. D. Bowen, Tuskegee, Ala.
- 4885 ARTIE WHEAT. — 1855.
Moses K. Wheat, Tuskegee, Ala.
- 4880 LIZZIE JONES. — 1861.
F. C. Jones, Newton, Ga.
- 4887 ANNA M. C. ANDERSON. — 1860.
Dr. John C. Anderson, Entlaw, Ala.
- 4888 MARY ELIZABETH CLANTON. — 1855.
George W. Clanton, Tenn's Store, Va.
- 4880 SARAH ANN HARDEMAN. — 1855.
4889 MARY LUCY HARDEMAN. — 1857.
Thomas Hardehan, Gruchada, Miss.
- 4891 R. ELLIE MARTIN. — 1855.
Wm. N. Martin, Ford's Store, Va.
- 4892 MARY ALICE GILLESPIE. — 1855.
4893 CORNELIA GILLESPIE GILLESPIE.
Col. J. C. Gillespie, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Married.

WILLIARD SWIFT—Wednesday, April 20, 3:30 P. M., at the residence of the bride's father, in Salem, Mr. DANIEL WHEELLOCK WILLIARD to Miss HATTIE KEYSER SWIFT.

A REVOLUTION.

In methods of teaching PHYSIOLOGY and GEOGRAPHY. More and better work done with the use of YAGGY'S STUDIES in one year than in three terms without them.

YAGGY'S GEOGRAPHICAL STUDY, comprising PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, GEOLOGICAL and ASTRONOMICAL Geography.

YAGGY'S ANATOMICAL STUDY, showing in a striking and original manner the structure and organs of the human body, full size, natural color; also a series of Object Lessons on the ruin of the body by intoxicants.

WHY FOLLOW THE OLD RUTS?

Adopt the above POPULAR, ORIGINAL and FASCINATING APPLIANCES and teach by the OBJECT METHOD

Circulars sent on application.

WESTERN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
No. 3 East 14th Street,
April 1890-ly. New York City.

WORCESTER'S DICTIONARY

"The highest authority known as to the use of the English language."

With or without Doulos's Patent Index.

The Standard of the Leading Publishers, Magazines, and Newspapers.

The Dictionary of the Scholar for Spelling, Pronunciation, and Accuracy in Definition.

Send for large Circular to the Publishers,
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,
PHILADELPHIA.

May, 1890. 1 Y.

(REVISED EDITION.)

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia is a whole library of universal knowledge from the pen of the ablest scholars in America and Europe. It is accepted as high authority in our leading colleges.

IT IS NOT FOR THE FEW,

Like Appleton's, the Britannica, or the "International,"

BUT FOR ALL.

It has just been thoroughly revised at a cost of over $60,000, and three years' labor by forty editors, and over 2,000 renowned contributors.

It is in 8 convenient sized volumes.

No father can give to his child at school, or his son or daughter just entering the arena of life, anything that will be of more permanent benefit.

It is an education supplementary to that of the Schools.

"The next few years will witness a great change in educational ideas. The possibilities of self-culture are to be emphasized, and the means of aid and direction increased. After a careful examination of 'Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia,' I am convinced that while it is excellently adapted to the needs of professional and business men, it is eminently useful to the earnest, thorough self-educator.

"This work, with its corps of contributors, offers accurate articles on the widest range of subjects. To the value of trustworthy information is added the inspection of personality associated with great names.

I heartily comment this Cyclopaedia to all,

and especially to those who are pursuing self-set courses in the great university of life.

JOHN H. VINCENT, (Bishop),
"Chancellor, Chatauqua University."

Address, for particulars, terms and circulars,

A. J. JOHNSON & CO.,

11 Great Jones Street, N. Y.

Representatives wanted in every county.

From the Librarian of Harvard University,
Cambridge, Mass.

Dec. 16, 1889.—"There is perhaps no better test of the merit of a cyclopaedia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA has, during many years' experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language."

From Rev. Thos. Hill, D.D., LL.D., Ex-President of Harvard University.

PORTLAND, MAINE, Aug. 6, 1889.—"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA (revised edition) is an ever-present companion and friend, and I consult it very much more frequently than I do my Britanica, Appleton's, Webster's Unabridged, etc., etc., and very seldom fail to find in it just the kind and amount of information which I need."

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL.D., Librarian of Congress, Washington D. C.

"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference."

* BELO HOUSE.*

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, of THE ACADEMY. Jan, '90-ly.

"Bingham School

stands pre-eminant among Southern boarding Schools for Boys."—U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Combines more desirable qualities than any other with which I am acquainted."—Lieut. J. B. Batchelor, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

"There exists not the equal of this School in my opinion."—Capt. Henry Wiggand, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

More than 100 pupils from other States, the largest number in a Southern School for boys from outside the State of location.

Address,

Maj. R. BINGHAM.

Bingham's School, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER, JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in—

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

—OF—

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES, AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT," AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

HOTEL FOUNTAIN.

WINSTON, N. C.

The Leading Hotel of the Twin-Cities.

It will be Run in the Special Interest of the Travelling Public.

Table Supplied with All the Delicacies of the Season,
Attentive Servants.

J. W. GRAY, form. Prof'r Cooper House, Statesville, N. C.

Apr. 29 ly.

FRIENDS!

Have you visited D. D. SCHOULER'S Stores this season? If not, it will pay you to do so. His RACKET STORE is twice the size it was last year, and now has a very large stock of goods, including everything for the household or personal adornment, below market prices.

Special attention is called to the SHOE DEPARTMENT, and the carpets, oilcloth, and upholstery, which are remarkably cheap.

Mr. SCHOULER has been in New York many weeks, and when we say that, every one knows from past experience what bargains to expect.

SCHOULER'S Millinery Establishment wishes to thank its many patrons for their generous support, which has helped it to grow and prosper, and know that its efforts to give satisfaction in Goods, Styles and Prices have been appreciated. We have the LARGEST STOCK and the LOWEST PRICES in town.

SCHOULER'S MILLINERY ESTABLISHMENT,
3RD ST., SOUTH OF COURT HOUSE.
— 1500 HATS, —

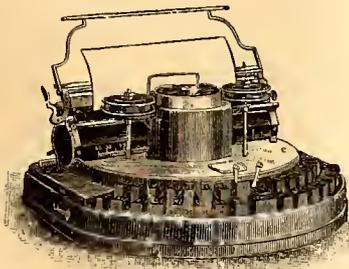

Including every novelty of the season.

IMPORTED HATS, BONNETS, and TOQUES at reasonable prices.

SPECIAL—One lot of Hats, fashionable shapes and good straws, 10 cents.—Children's beautiful fine satin Straws, trimmed, only 80 cents.—By far the largest stock of Ribbons, Laces, Flowers, and Hats, in the Twin City, at lowest prices.

HENRY W. MILLER,
STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer
RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
Price, complete with two type wheels, $100.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.

Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.

Send for Catalogue.

WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,
WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

HARPER'S
SCHOOL SPEAKERS,

Compiled and Arranged by JAMES BALDWIN, PH. D., editor of "Harper's Readers."

JUST PUBLISHED.

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKER.
FIRST BOOK.

PART I. ARBOR DAY.—Exercises in poetry and prose for Spring Festivals, Arbor Day, Flower Planting Day, and other similar occasions. With an introduction by GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

PART II.—MEMORIAL DAY.—Selections suitable for use in schools, and for public exercises in connection with the observances of Memorial, or Decoration Day.

12mo, Cloth, 240 pages; price, 60 cents.

IN PREPARATION.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. SECOND BOOK.—GRADED SELECTIONS. I. For First Reader Pupils. II. For Second Reader Pupils. III. For Third Reader Pupils. IV. For Fourth Reader Pupils. V. For Advanced Students and Public Readers.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. THIRD BOOK.—MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS especially adapted for use at morning "Opening Exercises." I. Life. II. Nature. III. Labor. IV. Laughter. V. Experience. VI. Duty. VII. Aspiration. VIII. Reverence. IX. Retrospection. Nearly two hundred selections.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. FOURTH BOOK.—PATRIOTIC SELECTIONS. I. Patriotism as a Principle of Life. II. Patriotism in "the Brave Days of Old." III. Our Country. IV. Our Flag. V. The Patriotic Citizen. VI. Washington's Birthday.

HARPER'S READERS.

The Most Successful School Books of this Century.

Prin. O. P. LEE, Edgefield Academy, S. C., says: "They are far superior to anything of the kind I have seen."

Prin. H. B. PARKER, Hampton Male and Female Academy, Ga., says: "We are perfectly delighted with the series."

Prin. M. N. WETMORE, Brunson, S. C., says: "I think them as near perfect in every way as books can be."

Hon. H. A. GUDGER, President of School Board, Asheville, N. C., says: "Harper's Readers are used in our public schools, and give perfect satisfaction."

Send for Price List and Terms for Introduction.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers

FRANKLIN SQUARE, New York City.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA
SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.
The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker To Dallas, Fort Worth, and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line. 172 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California. Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S., F. T. P. A., P. O. Box 226, Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

→ MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH, ←
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF "

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
155 Lexington Avenue New York.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal,
Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

SPENCERIAN
STEEL PENS

Are the Best,

IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF Durability, Evenness of Point, and Workmanship.

Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. 4.

WISON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway, New York.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway

offers first-class service between Winston and Salem and Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all other points on the Atlantic Coast Line, and Savannah Florida and Western systems in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Solid trains run to Wilmington, where easy transfer is made by hack in the forenoon to the trains of the

Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley,

then a change of cars is made at Walnut Cove Union Station, arriving at Winston-Salem at 9:00 p. m. Those not securing through tickets can purchase tickets and re-check their baggage to Winston-Salem at Wilmington. From all stations on the Main Line of the CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY to Winston-Salem only one change of cars is necessary, at Walnut Cove Union Station.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen. Sup't. Gen. Pass. Ag't
Greensboro, N. C. Fayetteville, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem, N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class. Sure connection by all lines from the East, and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School. For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED.

Patrons of this paper, old students of Salem Female Academy, everybody interested in the history of the early Moravians of North Carolina to send for a copy of "TWIN-CITIES - WINSTON - SALEM." Price 25 cents. Stamps received. Address,

Mrs. A. V. WINKLER,
Salem, N. C.

Mar. '90-411

NORTH.

The shortest and most direct line to Harrodsburg, Shelbyville, Lexington, Frankfort, Paris. Only 11 hours and 25 minutes Chattanooga to Louisville, only 11 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Boudoir Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England Points and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

SOUTH

The only line Chattanooga to Birmingham, Meridian, Jackson, Vicksburg, and Shreveport, making direct connections without transfer at Shreveport for Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston, Austin, Texas; New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Mexico and California. Shortest and Quickest Line to New Orleans, with solid Trains and Through Pullman Sleepers, making direct connections for Texas, Mexico and California. Close connection made en route for Memphis, Little Rock and Arkansas Points, Anniston, Columbus, Montgomery, Mobile, Natchez.

Passengers ticketed and Baggage checked through to destination. For rates, Correct County Maps, and full information, call at QUEEN & CRESCENT TICKET OFFICE, READ HOUSE, or CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION, CHAS. H. MILLS, Ticket Agt. C. S. BARRETT, T. P. A. Depot. Read House. D. J. MULLANEY, Div. Pass. Agt., Chattanooga, Tenn. C. C. HARVEY, Vice Pres. CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS, G. P. & T. A.

THE

"COTTON BELT ROUTE"

St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railway,
Carries More Pupils to and from Arkansas and Texas than all other lines to those States combined.

Why? Because this is the only line which has furnished, as promised, elegant chair cars direct from the school to the scholar's home, and from the home back to school without changes en route. These cars are fitted up for this class of travel exclusively with retiring and toilet rooms, accompanied by an attentive porter and in charge of an Agent of the Company, who sees that the car is reserved for the use of the pupils only.

We have handled the First-Class Schools of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and other States for a series of years, and in no instance has any school, commencing with us, patronized, subsequently, any other line.

This is the only line from Memphis running Two Daily Trains through to Texas without change of cars, and without Omnibus Transfer in Memphis from Eastern Lines.

Correspondence solicited from Principals of Schools and Parents concerning the safe conduct of scholars, by

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield,
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.
W. G. Adms, Pass. Agent, Nashville, Tenn.

:- "SOLD ON MERIT." :-
THE LIGHT-RUNNING "DOMESTIC."

Do you need a Piano?
Do you need an Organ?
Do you need a Violin?
Do you need a Musical Implement of any kind? Have you an old Instrument you wish to exchange?
If so you will find it to your interest to call and consult the undersigned.

W. P. ORMSBY,
MAIN ST., - - SALEM, N. C.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL. WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

STIEFF PIANOS

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., JUNE, 1890.

NUMBER 107.

SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY AND ITS PARK.

COMMENCEMENT, '90.

WHO shall attempt to tell faithfully the story of the Commencement Week! Who can depict the feelings of those who have been laboring and toiling toward a certain goal, some two, some three, some even five and six years, and who at last honestly, honorably and publicly put forth the hand and receive the prize! Who can convey in words the labor of the Music Department through the year, and now bringing its choicest fruits to the public, and in concert after concert triumphantly receiving the congratulations of warm and sympathetic friends! Who can express the satisfaction of the Art pupils, as their finished work is examined by one and another; of the Commercial student as real life opens before her, and the confident feeling fills the heart that this real life struggle can have nothing save victory in store! Who can properly paint the scene when the Alumna of last year sits down with the gray-haired matron, a graduate of more than half a century ago! We repeat, who can successfully tell the story of this remarkable week. Certainly the writer of this article cannot, unless our simple narrative receives the earnest sympathy of the reader, and between the lines the actual description will be read and enjoyed.

* * *

The Commencement was really ushered in by the Annual Banquet of the Hesperian and Euterpean Societies. The following invitations made their appearance just before the date named:

ANNUAL SOCIETY BANQUET.

THURSDAY, MAY 15, 1890.

8—10 P. M.

COMMITTEES:

EUTERPEAN SOCIETY.

Gladys Crawford,
Annie Sloan,
Emma Rollins,
Mary Miller,

HESPERIAN SOCIETY.

Fannie Wray,
Fannie Pretlow,
Bertha Hicks,
Susie Gulick,

Gymnasium Hall Entrance.

After an intellectual treat of some 30 minutes in Gymnasium Hall, all adjourned to the dining hall above. The guests consisted of the Trustees, Faculty, the Senior Class (those who were not present as members), the Salem Orchestra, the friends who aid in the chorus singing, the local newspaper fraternity, the young gentlemen who have aided as ushers, and in fact all of the ACADEMY'S workers who could be gathered together. About 200 sat down to the banquet. After the material portion of the programme had received sufficient attention—and we certainly feel that the Societies right royally did their whole duty in this respect,—the intellectual was again introduced and one address after the other was called for and heartily responded to. The daintily arranged tables, the bountiful repast, the ease and efficiency of the members who served the guests, the festoons of fresh-cut flowers,—all these things united to make the Annual Society Banquet a very enjoyable occasion.

* * *

Soon after this a select few received the following card, printed in gold, the color of the Post Graduate Class:

'90 TO '90.

POST GRADUATES TO SENIORS.

MAY 28, 1890. 8 P. M.

An Evening with the Classics.

THE "POSTEID."

1. Prologue. 2. Book I. (Extracts.)
3. Epilogue.

"Eat, drink, and be merry."

COMMITTEE:

Miss Adelaide Fries. Miss Gertrude Jenkins.

We will let a friend who was present on the occasion tell us of the evening and his impressions of the same:

THE POSTEID.

Special Corr. of State Chronicle.

Do you know what it is? Don't argue yourself ignorant because you do not! Even the Editor doesn't know until he reads beyond where you are just now. It is very simple and very pretty when you become acquainted with it. It is a product of that excellent and ancient school for girls, SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. A quaint and queer old town is Salem, and its "heart's pride" is not only good in tone and strong in accomplishments but it is in current with the most advanced demands of the truest education.

After completing its curriculum many of the graduates felt that though they had fulfilled their prescribed duties, they were not content, and wanted to go into special studies and become proficient in the highest branches. To do this they had recourse only to schools beyond the State limit or a denial to themselves of this gratification of reasonable ambition.

The trustees felt this was unfair and ought not to be permitted; so they ordained a Post Graduate Course and chose with discernment, Miss BAKER, a distinguished graduate of Vassar, to conduct this extraordinary line of studies. The first class was composed of eight young ladies, who have been successful under their fair professor to the satisfaction of her exaction and the wishes of the trustees. Their arduous tasks ended, The Posteid is the song of the trials and victories of the "posts," or post graduates.

In imitation of the Æneid, Dido sits in her grotto to hear in turn the spirits of the class. The queen is reproduced in Miss JENKINS, a young lady of distinguished vivacity of manner and address. The spirits were cast as follows:

Latin—Miss MARY FRIES.

Psychology—Miss ETTA SHAFFNER.

German—Miss BESSIE PFOHL.

Physics—Miss BIRDIE GOSLEN.

Literature—Miss CARRIE SHELTON.

French—Miss EMILY HAZLEHURST.

Chemistry—Miss ADELAIDE FRIES.

Each of these claims the golden ribbon—insignia of the class—as the decoration due for distinguished service in its particular field. The presentation of the cases in lines poetic, really poetic—was clever to a degree that would justify reproduction from prologue to epilogue, but even a newspaper sometimes lacks room to print what is best—when a campaign is flagrant. A few lines taken from the speech of each of the spirits will be interesting enough to make one wish that he had it all before him, as the writer has had the good fortune to have had.

The spirit of Latin says:

"Men call me good, and vulgar fame
Above the stars exalts my name;
Through my great fame did Cæsar rise.
The limits of whose victories
Are ocean, of whose fame—the skies."

The following description of Psyche, spoken by the spirit of Psychology, is worth remembering:

"Psyche, a maiden loved by Cupid,
Was adorned with beauty rare,
Youngest of three noble sisters,
In her charms divinely fair.
Many gathered, saw her, praised her,
Her a second Venus named;
Buildd altars, honored, worshipped,
And the Queen of Love defamed."

Germania's description of the laboratory is as follows, and it would be hard to put a better description in the restraints of verse:

"The first class sat in the Laboratory,
The only room at command just then.
I never have seen such a place before.
And I hope I may never again!
When we meekly asked Chemistra
Whence on earth these odors rare,
With a toss, she replied: 'H. 2S., I guess,'
And heartlessly left us there."

Physica reels off the following verses, which would do credit to Gilbert & Sullivan:

"But perpetual motion is never known
E'en in the mind of man,
For natural laziness soon prevails,
And brings it to a stand.

"I make the ball return to the earth
When thrown into the air;
The human body still cooler grows
When it coolly mounts a star."

Literature, among others, recites the following lines:

" Came a morning in the Springtime,
In the lovely month of May,
When the Posts hetrook themselves
To the pleasure-grounds away:
And they grouped themselves together,
And they wore their sweetest look,
For the time had come at last
When they would have their " pictures took."

Gallia gives the following description of a strike, which is well enough and ends as usual :

" Be calm, oh spirit! 'twas a bloodless fight,
And the day-time saw it instead of the night;
We struck for four pages instead of six,
And we stuck to our point like sealing-wax sticks.

But man'selle she smiled,
And the lessons she piled
On the heads of the Posts,
Till they looked like eight ghosts,
And wished they had died
Ere a strike they had tried."

Chemistra's statement of her great power would almost determine in her favor the coveted prize :

"I determine what constituents
In her haste,
In the universe' alembic
Nature placed.
Sort the ores that lie in hiding
In earth's lap, and by my guiding,
Men the true from false dividing Nothing waste.

" 'Tis my finger that has written Nature's book,
That the elements as letters
Deftly took.

To unnumbered combinations,
Adding still new variations
Till, with wondering awe, all nations
On me look."

The following retort to her claims by Dido is altogether good, and her decision is acquiesced in, and is about the only fair conclusion possible among so many lovely spirits, presenting their claims in such a charming manner :

" I've heard that posts in brass were sheathed,
I knew not that it lived and breathed;
Yet all things perfect I admire,
Even of modesty we tire,
And like the alchemists of old
I yet may change thy brass to gold."

Now the most interesting part of it is that these original verses were all written by the young ladies of the class, memorized and recited within ten days. There was present a select audience, consisting of the Senior Class of '90 as the special guests of the post graduates, the families of the graduates, and a few invited friends. After the exercises and congratulations had been extended to President CLEWELL, Miss BAKER and the Posts, an elegant collation was served. Altogether it was one of the most finished and unique performances the writer has ever had the good fortune to witness, and he has served out his sentence at graduating exercises.

* * *

Friday evening, May 30, Miss EVANS' Concert formally ushered in the Commencement Week. The scene in the large Moravian church in which the Commencement was this year held, was indeed a brilliant one. On the large and carefully arranged platform the bright, happy and tastily yet modestly attired pupils sat beneath a huge silver star, made up of scores of electric lights. This star contained the inscription :

S. F. A.
'90.

The light shed was one of soft and pleasant character, but so clear and pure that every feature of the performers was shown and every expression thus saved to the audience. On the right of the platform a special section was railed off for our friends of the newspapers, and on the left for the Salem Orchestra. A large and appreciative audience was present, and by a carefully arranged plan of gates and light fences, the auditorium and galleries were divided into sections and the usual crush and jam of these popular occasions was avoided. The character of the concert was fully up to what was expected from Miss EVANS' successful department. This able Professor of Vocal Music has labored tirelessly during the year, and the ease and finish of each pupil's performance was a surprise to many. We give the programme below :

1. Piano Duo. Oberon Fantasia.....Leybach.
Misses M. PEIRCE and T. PACE.
2. Chorus. Slumber On.....Gottschalk,
Misses SUTTON, WOMACK, BORDEN, MILLER, GRAHAM,
J. SMITH, BL. THOMAS, HEGE and N. BLAIR.
3. Vocal Solo. In Old Madrid.....Trotiere.
Miss N. BLAIR.
4. Piano Solo. O happy day.....Lange.
Miss M. CANNADY.
5. Vocal Solo. Il Sogno.....Abl.
Miss TH. PACE.
6. Piano Duo. Overture Semiramide.....Rossini.
Misses A. JONES and C. MICKEY.
7. Vocal Duet. Wauderer's Night Song.....Rubinstein, Misses JESSIE CATES and L. HEGE.
8. Piano Solo. Rondo Capriccioso.....Mendelssohn.
Miss S. CHEATHAM.
9. Vocal Solo. Merce, dilette amiche.....Verdi.
Miss ANNE JONES.
10. Piano Duo. File du Regiment.....Donizetti.
Misses M. WOODELL and S. SITTING.
11. Vocal Quartette. Ave Maria.....Abl
LORELEY CLUB.
12. Piano Solo. Rondo: Piano Concerto in C
Major.....Beethoven.
Miss SUE HEARD,
SALEM ORCHESTRA.
13. Vocal Solo. O mio Fernando. (Italian).....Donizetti.
Miss C. FRANCISCO.
14. Piano Duo. Festzug.....Jensen.
Misses A. BROWNSON and M. MASON.
15. Vocal Sextette. The Water Nymphs.....Smart.
Misses SUTTON, SIDDALL, BORDEN, C. THOMAS, HAZLEHURST, BL. THOMAS.
16. Piano Solo. Polish Dance.....Scharwenka.
Miss L. FIELDS.
17. Vocal Solo. Je suis Titania. (Italian).....Thomas.
Miss A. LACIAR.
18. Piano Solo. Rondo: Piano Concerto, E flat.....Beethoven.
Miss E. HAZLEHURST.
SALEM ORCHESTRA.
19. Vocal Duo. Two Nightingales.....Haeckell.
Misses A. COVINGTON and BL. THOMAS.
20. Piano Duo. Tarantella.....Lichner.
Misses S. HYMAN and M. CONRAD.

21. Vocal Solo. Alpine Rover.....Steinhagen.
Miss JOHNNIE CATES.
  22. Piano Duo. Fantasie, Op. 50.....Beethoven.
Misses E. COOPER and L. HEGE.
- * * *

During the entire week previous to Commencement Sunday, large numbers of friends were arriving, and long before the hour for the Baccalaureate Sermon, the church was filled to its utmost capacity. The air was fresh and cool, and the magnificent display of rare water lilies, kindly furnished by Dr. H. T. Bahnsen, added much to the general brightness of the occasion. The music was unusually fine. The Moravian church choir was assisted by the Salem Orchestra, all being under the direction of Professor MARK-GRAFF. The solo by Miss EVANS was clear and earnest, and many of Professor Leinbach's friends rejoiced to hear him again at the organ.

The programme of the morning service was as follows :

- Choir. Hallelujah.....Handel.
SALEM MORAVIAN CHURCH CHOIR.
SALEM ORCHESTRA. Organ: Prof. E. W. LEINBACH.
Baccalaureate Sermon by
Rev. CHARLES W. BYRD, of Fayetteville, N. C.
Solo. The Lord is my Life.....Marsh.
Miss KATHARINE W. EVANS.

The Twin-City Daily of Monday gave the following synopsis of the Rev. Mr. Byrd's earnest and eloquent sermon, and we quote from that paper :

Mr. Byrd took his text proper from the 1st chapter of Ruth, 14th and 16th verses :

"And Orphah kissed her mother-in-law, but Ruth clave unto her.

"And Ruth said, 'Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest I will go; and where thou lodgest I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.'"

The speaker then proceeded to relate the history and portray the character of Ruth—one of the noblest women with whom history has made us acquainted—and prefaced his remarks by observing that all her virtues are possibly attainable by all the daughters of Christianity.

First, we have her as a bride at the altar, pledging her love to Mahlon as long as they both shall live. Next we see her afflicted with widowhood.

Ruth up to this time had been an idolator. Her circumstances and life had been unfortunate and untoward for the attainment of the excellencies of character which she afterward exhibited. But, nevertheless, she possessed the qualities of a princess. It should be much easier for you, young ladies, so tenderly nurtured and carefully trained, to become modern Ruths than it was for this historic woman to develop and exhibit the traits of character which so distinguished her model womanhood.

Now see her, after the journey with Naomi, her mother-in-law, gleaming in the fields of the rich and influential Boaz. Observe, also, that Boaz, besides being rich and popular, was a man of God. See him as he moves among his employees, saying, "The Lord be with you;" and his servants answering, "The Lord bless thee!" What an example for the employers and the employed of to day—an example which if followed would settle at once all the differences now existing between capital and labor. Now Boaz notices Ruth and is kind to her, and when she enquires how it is that she finds favor in his sight, what does he answer? She is told that her devotion and faithfulness to Naomi have become known to him, and that he has been informed how she left her own people and her own country to come among a people of whom she knew not before—"the Lord recompense thy work and a full recompense be given thee of the Lord God of Israel, under whose wings thou art come to trust."

Next we have Ruth as the wife of Boaz—"So Boaz took Ruth and she was his wife." Mr. Byrd then proceeded to speak particularly of the character of Ruth, first alluding to her "depth of nature."

I do not say that this characteristic is more prevalent in men than in women, but I do say that the lack of it is more noticeable and more sadly felt in women than in men.

Ruth had a heart—a heart that glowed with the genuine fervor of feeling. And this heart-force, this heart-power is the power that rules the universe. How often one meets flippant, shallow-hearted women "on exhibition" in so-called society. Art regulates their dress and carriage and everything about them—even the very tones of their voices are artificial. We recognize their icy presence and flippant conversation wherever we go—women who remind us of nothing so much as the cold twinkling of a very distant star. Stoicisms instead of heartiness. God pity the life controlled by such a force!

What a contrast such characters present to Ruth—hence the necessity of heart culture.

One of the most discouraging symptoms of today is the tendency to cultivate the intellect at the expense of the heart. But, I am glad to be able to say, that no such tendency mars the fair name and fame of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. Cultivation of the mind at the expense of the heart may produce Lucrezia Borgias or George Eliots, but it does not turn out a Mary Lyon or an Elizabeth Fry.

Religion educates the heart.

Ruth's unselfish affection for her mother in law was one of her most commendable traits. The woman who cannot love unselfishly cannot love truly. Unselfish love is heaven-born and heaven-fed, and blesses all who come within its influence. Blessed are the homes which are presided over by the Ruths of this day!

A selfish heart cannot interpret an unselfish nature.

The speaker alluded to the great and unselfish love of the Empress Josephine, and declared it to be one of the greatest desires of his life to visit the palace Malmaison, near Paris, which had been hallowed by such love—where Josephine had lived and suffered and loved and died.

And he wanted to visit the tomb wreathed in immortelles by the hands of Napoleon's soldiers.

Physical power is compelled to pay devotion to the higher power of the heart.

Love is the corner-stone upon which Jesus Christ built His empire. If we would rear enduring monuments we must rear them in the hearts of men and women.

Mr. Byrd next alluded to Ruth's patient and untiring diligence, as illustrated by her doing physical labor in the fields of Boaz. In this connection he spoke of the fields of industry now for the first time being opened to and entered by women, and advised his hearers not to be discouraged if the labor proved hard. God needs "gleaners." If you cannot preach a sermon, you can read a chapter of the Bible to the illiterate, and you can help the poor and needy by the giving of alms. Do not be content to be a nobody because you cannot be a Caesar.

But Ruth's crowning excellence was her devoted piety.

Raised a heathen she recognized the superiority of the God of the Hebrews—recognized it so fully and heartily that the fact could never be effaced from her mind—and henceforth she was a worshipper of the only living and true God.

Human affection, however strong, is incomplete unless coupled with love for God, and when so coupled it is as a ladder with one end resting upon the earth and the other resting upon the open gate of Heaven.

Emulate, young ladies, the virtues of Ruth; let her God be your God, and remember how from one act she became the ancestress of King David and of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

May your feet be guided through Christian fields of golden grain to a full, rich harvest in Heaven!

In the evening of Commencement Sunday the regular church service was held by the pastor, Rev. EDWARD RONDTHALER, D.D., and after an earnest sermon he spoke most touching and eloquent words to those who had sat beneath his preaching for a longer or a shorter time, but were gathered, in some instances, for the last time forever in a Sunday service in the familiar old church.

* * *

Owing to the large number of Seniors in this year's Class, it was found necessary to occupy two evenings to introduce the individual members to the gathered friends. Each Senior had prepared a carefully written essay of 3 or 4 minutes, and these were read in the order given below. Mr. CLEWELL presided on these evenings, and with him on the platform were Dr. Rondthaler, Prof. W. A. Blair, Hon. G. W. Sanderlin, and Professors Thomson and Davis. The sympathy and interest of the audience on these two evenings was more than usual, and as the exercises were opened promptly they proved to be among the most pleasing of the entire week. We give the programmes of the evenings.

SENIORS' FIRST EVENING.

Monday, June 2. 8 o'clock, P. M.

Piano Duet. Scotch Dance.....	Chopin.
Misses N. BLAIR and M. FAGG.
Vocal Quartette. The Chapel.....	Kretzer.
LORELEY CLUB.
The Present Time.....	MISS ADDIE MILLER.
Chronic Grumblers.....	MISS LYDIE IRBY.
Music.....	MISS SUE BORDEN.
Piano Solo. Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 10.....	Liszt.
MISS A. JONES.
Vocal Solo. La Cofriusso.....	Mattci.
MISS H. RUFF.
Books as Companions.....	MISS FANNIE WRAY.
Life.....	MISS SWANNANOVA BROWER.
Influence.....	MISS FLORENCE CUMMINGS.
Masks.....	MISS FANNIE BUTNER.
Piano Duo. Mephisto Galop.....	Labitzky.
MISS O. FAIR and A. VANVLECK.
Guitar Trio. Prussian March.....	Classen.
MISS S. SMITH, W. GAMBELL and M. MASON.
The Nobility of Labor.....	MISS GRACE COOPER.
Humbugs.....	MISS MINNIE WHITSETT.
Female Heroism.....	MISS MARY JEFFERIES.
Little Troubles.....	MISS OCTAVIA WELLS.
Vocal Duet. The Angel.....	Rubinstein.
MISS S. PENN and E. HAZLEHURST.
Piano Duo. Carmen March.....	Sjoberg.
MISS S. B. WEDDINGTON and A. SLAFFEY.
The Oak is Not Felled by a Single Stroke.	MISS REBA CAMPBELL.
Fashionable Follies.....	MISS MINNIE MICKEY.
Habits.....	MISS MARTHA PEIRCE.
Life Is What We Make It.....	MISS ELLEN SIDBALL.
Violin Solo. Lorelei.....	Silcher.
MISS C. OLLINGER.
Piano Duo. Caprice Hongroise.....	Ketterer.
MISS S. L. ARMFIELD and JOHNNIE CATES.
Evening.....	MISS MINNIE TRIMMIE.
The Yesterdays of Life.....	MISS HENRIE PETERSON.
Piano Duet. Break of Day.....	Penning.
MISS S. BORDEN and M. MILLER.
SENIORS' SECOND EVENING.
Tuesday, June 3. 8 o'clock P. M.
Piano Duet. Meteor Grand Galop.....	Hollenhaupt.
MISS N. and T. BLAIR.
Chorus. Rustic Dance.....	Resch.
"Gently Scan Thy Brother Man".....	MISS ANNIE SLOAN.
Idols.....	MISS MINNIE FAGG.
Memory.....	MISS FANNIE PRELLOW.
Piano Duet. Song of the Waves.....	Kaff.
MISS S. DEWITT ASHE and GREY WARNER.

Vocal Duet. Now Waits the Gondoletta.....	Ricci.
MISS S. JOHNNIE CATES and C. THOMAS.
"The Quest of the Holy Grail".....	MISS LIZZIE D. SUTTON.
"The Light of Hope".....	MISS LENA CHAFFIN.
Listen Not to the Whispers of Fairy.....
MISS NELLIE GRIFFISS.
Superfluous Expressions.....	MISS TIBBIE WOMACK.
Piano Solo. Walter's Song.....	Lange.
MISS M. LOPER.
Piano Duo. Barber of Seville.....	Rossini.
MISS S. C. and F. WRAY.
To What Shore Shall I Steer My Bark.....	MISS LIZZIE NEWTON.
Ambition.....	MISS MARY PRELLOW.
Bridges That We Crossed.....	MISS JEANIE SMITH.
A Desire for Glory the Torch of the Mind.....	MISS GLADYS CRAWGORD.
Piano Solo. Oberon.....	Smith.
MISS A. MILLER.
Vocal Quartette. Lovely Night.....	Chvatal.
Sheepskin and Swiss Muslin.....	MISS THERESA PACE.
"I dreamed—and all was bright,"	MISS MARY CANNADY.
"I woke—and all was night."
Inventions of Our Age.....	MISS LUCILLE ARMFIELD.
Egotism.....	MISS ORA KENNEDY.
Guitar Song. There's nought here below.....	Van Vleck.
MISS S. T. PACE and BL. THOMAS.
Guitar. Misses N. CANNON and E. FRANKLIN.
The Poetic and the Prosaic.....	MISS CARRIE WRAY.
Pearls.....	MISS MAGGIE GRAHAM.
Piano Duo. Gestaendnis.....	Hofman.
MISS S. G. BAXTER and L. FIELDS.

* * *

A very enjoyable banquet was served on Monday evening in the ACADEMY dining-room. Owing to the large attendance of pupils the so-called Commencement dinner had to be omitted, since the dining-room was not large enough to accommodate the pupils and friends at one time. Hence the following invitations were sent out:

COMPLIMENTARY to the FRIENDS

who are so kindly aiding the Institution during Commencement, 1890.

MONDAY, JUNE 2. AFTER THE EVENING EXERCISES.

Gymnasium Hall Entrance.

The banquet was indeed an enjoyable one. The Seniors and Post Graduates presided, and no one need to wonder at the present prosperity of the school when he looked upon the 100 and more earnest workers, all outside the regular official faculty. There were addresses by Dr. Rondthaler, Prof. Blair and Lieut. Lemly, each in turn gracefully alluding to the extraordinary prosperity of the Institution, and thanking the musicians, the press reporters, the gentlemanly ushers, the representatives of the Telegraph and Electric Light Companies,—in fact, all who were in any way befriending the ACADEMY at this time.

The Art Exhibit was this year on the first floor of South Hall. The usual amount of good and satisfactory work was displayed in drawing, painting and needlework. But the portraits were the chief attraction. It was indeed interesting to see fathers and mothers enter the room and suddenly find themselves face to face with their own life-size pictures, executed with that peculiar exactness and skill which united both talent and love, and which gave to the pictures those finishing touches which were their distinguishing merit, and which will make them "a joy forever" in the various homes. Miss STEWERS is to be congratulated on the success of the Art Department during the past year.

* * *

Wednesday morning dawned bright and clear and cool. As the Commencement began at 9 o'clock, already at an early hour carriages and pedestrians filled the streets about the school. Promptly at the hour named the Academic procession moved into the church in the following order: Two little girls bearing silver salvers, on which were the diplomas; the Speaker, Faculty, Trustees and clergy of the two towns; Seniors, incoming Seniors, and finally the main body of the scholars. The scene was indeed an attractive one, with stage again rendered charming, not only by the bright, happy faces, but also with a profusion of pyramids and clusters and vases of the freshest and rarest water lilies, kindly donated by our genial friend, Dr. Bahnson. The programme for the morning was long, but we did not notice a weary look any where in the audience. The following is the programme:

- Orchestra. Lustspiel Overture.....Keler-Bela.
- Piano: Misses E. and A. SHORE.
- SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER.
- SALUTATORY.
- Miss HETTY JARNAGIN.
- Honor Essay—Miss ANNIE BOURDEAUX.
- Piano Solo. Sonate Pathetique.....Beethoven.
- Miss L. JENKINS.
- ADDRESS.
- Hon. G. W. SANDERLIN,
- State Auditor of North Carolina.
- Piano Duo. Overture. Pique Dame.....Suppe.
- Misses E. ROLLINS and A. BOURDEAUX.
- DIPLOMAS.
- Presented by Rev. E. RONDTHALER, D.D.
- Orchestra.
- VALEDICTORY.
- Miss EMMA ROLLINS.
- Orchestra. Roman March.....Gounod.

The Salutatory, by Miss HETTY JARNAGIN, we give in full. It was carefully prepared and well received:

SALUTATORY.

By Miss HETTIE JARNAGIN, of Tennessee.

IN this the high tide of the year when all nature rejoices in her June-clad loveliness, it becomes my duty, my happy privilege, to greet you, dear friends, with warmest words of welcome. It is a red-letter day to us, and we know that you sympathize with our joy and are ready to excuse our short-comings as we try to give all in this great audience a most affectionate welcome.

We are happy to greet the Hon. G. W. SANDERLIN, who will deliver our Literary Address, and other friends from Texas to the sea-board, who have honored us and the occasion with their presence.

To such of the Alumnae of Salem Female Academy who have once occupied the place we now occupy, who have left their various spheres of usefulness and duty to revisit their former haunts, we extend a most hearty greeting, and beg to express our hope that they will greatly enjoy their visit to their old school home and the Commencement exercises of their younger sisters. As they pass through the buildings where they once lived, and over the old familiar grounds, they have, no doubt, vividly recalled the past,—the time when they were light-hearted girls. The present occasion will especially touch a tender spot in the heart of each one. I am sure we have their cordial sympathy in all the happiness and sadness of this day.

We also warmly greet our parents and friends who have come from all parts of the country. These, our loved ones, do not need the assurance that their presence adds the greatest charm to this our graduating day.

We go to-day from the quiet, protected life of the Academy into the broad currents of the world. How we should like to lift the veil of futurity and catch a glimpse of these thirty-seven lives. What variety there will probably be among them! Some will be longer, some shorter; some honored and useful; some full of happiness, others less fortunate;—all having their share of disappointment and sorrow, as well as of satisfaction and joy.

The imagination would fain visit the realm of shadows sent out from some window of the soul on life's restless waters,—but it comes back wearily, with no olive leaf in its beak as a token of life beyond the closely bending horizon; not the faintest whisper reaches our ears as the countersign is passed into the heavenly camp, from star to star. Faith alone can build a bridge for us.

We hope that the training which we have received in this Institution will fit us the better to bear the troubles, overcome the obstacles, and enjoy the blessings and pleasures which will fall to our lot; for we feel that this has been the object of our instructors. Since the sphere of woman's work has become so much wider, there is a great deal more to look forward to than there was for our mothers and grandmothers,—a larger field of activity and also greater responsibilities; therefore we need careful preparation for what awaits us. It is for this purpose that our education is intended; not only that we may acquire so much knowledge of Latin or mathematic or history, but that we may learn the better to think, to form correct opinions.

We stand to-day where so many have stood before, and a number of bidders are setting forth their claims in glowing terms. The world makes brilliant offers of present joys,—the prospect is so alluring. Then comes the tempter with honeyed words, but the poison of asps is under his tongue, and as we bend to listen, the tender words of our Elder Brother are ringing like a silvery chime:

"Which will you choose, and which will you lose,
This life, or the life to be?
The figure was mine, but the choice is still thine,
Dear pilgrim, which of the three?"

Let us choose the better part, and then let us take up the nearest duty, trusting that our Heavenly Father will make the way plain to more conspicuous usefulness; we must first take care of our little garden plot, let the wider fields beckon as they may; for the little, daily duties are, after all, the true, heaven-sent opportunities. They test the metal in the character, and it is the part of true heroism to perform them aright. We look forward to a bright, busy and useful life, though we may be destitute of that talent which scales the heights sublime; ours may be the humble one, not the glorious ten, yet even that one may win another talent if its owner, instead of sitting down in the ashes of discontent, will but make of that one all that he may. And then what joy to lay it down at the Master's feet, and hear the reassuring words, "Well done!"

Dear friends, give us all the encouragement you can: let the wine of your approval be poured over the bow of our life's vessel as it sails out of this harbor, and let your smiles be the favoring sunshine that falls around and upon us in choicest benediction.

The Honor Essay, by Miss ANNIE BOURDEAUX, was also warmly applauded, but owing to lack of space in this issue, we will print it in the September number of THE ACADEMY.

The address by Hon. G. W. SANDERLIN, State Auditor, was a most happy effort of this genial and talented gentleman. We would like to give the entire address, but as our space is limited, and we have many things to speak of, we confine the report of this excellent oration to a synopsis given by the Twin-City Daily:

"The Importance and Dignity of Teaching as a Profession, and the Honor Due Teachers in Their High Calling."

It is a marked peculiarity of young people to live in the future. They are constantly building castles in the air—thinking about what they will do when they enter upon the active arena of life.

The old man says, "When I was a boy, I did so and so." But the boy says, "When I am a man I will do so and so." The young men and young women are thinking about the future—what it has in store for them, morally, socially, in reputation and in dollars and cents.

The future is a subject that very properly engages especially the attention of young ladies just leaving the college walls, and it is meet they should seriously consider the realities of life—the life upon which they are just entering.

Some may differ from me in thinking my subject a proper one to address to a class of graduating young ladies; but I am not here to discuss "the whereforeness of the thushness" of human phenomena.

I think it is very important that these young ladies should leave here with a proper appreciation of the services of those who have labored so earnestly and so long to fit them for the positions they will be called upon to fill—to fit them for the duties of life.

Whenever the pupil has been on the Bridge of Sighs, in the Slough of Despond, or felt the hand of the Giant of Despair, the teacher has been sympathetically with her.

The speaker then went on to commend and compliment the instructors of youth wherever found, and paid a deserved tribute to those of the Salem Female College. And then he proceeded to speak of the young ladies in general, and those of the S. F. A. in particular.

I have said it often before and I now say it again: It has always been a mystery to me to discover why the Almighty should have put Adam to sleep in order to get one of his ribs, with which to make a woman. Why, if Adam was anything like the young men of our day, he would have been willing to have had forty thousand ribs taken from his body for such a purpose—and would have borne the operation without wincing!

Mr. Sanderlin then returned to his subject and took up what he termed "the past, present and future tense of teaching," and discussed it in an exhaustive manner, to the edification of his hearers. Teachers are charged with the training of minor tal souls. We know how mind acts upon mind and matter and determines destiny.

To the teacher is given the greatest of opportunities for mind to influence mind. How well this influence has been exercised by the teachers of this college can be judged by the history of the noble deeds of the women who received their instruction here—scarcely equalled by that of any other college.

You may write epitaphs and legends upon brass and stone, but the most lasting and enduring of all are the lines inscribed upon the tablet of the immortal soul! Let all teachers be careful how they use the opportunity to make such lasting impressions upon the young minds committed to their care.

The speaker next spoke at length of the requisites of a good teacher. He should have patience, perseverance and discriminating judgment.

Teachers find their scholars coming under one of these four heads: The plodding ox, the stubborn mule, the speeding horse, or the soaring eagle. How well the characters of these animals describe the school, boys and girls. The dull and slow-moving one likened unto an ox; you have to keep after him continuously to make him move at all. The stubborn mule-like disposition of another, who must be coaxed and thrashed into obedience; the rapid-moving horse, boy or girl—always ready to go ahead, needing only to hear the command. And the eagle-soaring intellect of those who are constantly endeavoring to rise above all others, to learn everything possible about the mysteries of nature and science.

Now I would have come under the head of the ox with respect to some studies. Mathematics was the rock on which I stranded. If a herring and a half cost a cent and a half how many cents will twelve herrings cost? Why, eighteen cents, of course!

And I am afraid that if I were a school boy now I would not show up very well on pronunciation. I cannot get use to hearing my old friend Cicero called Kiekero.

The speaker at this point indulged in a great many witty remarks which convulsed the audience.

He then spoke of the great revival of interest in the subject of education in the South, and declared that the people South, rich and poor, have determined to educate their children. For this reason the Future Tense of the Teacher is most encouraging. It is going to be a profitable as well as honorable calling.

Our people recognize more than ever that the mind is the standard of the man.

The best savings bank in the world is the money laid away in the educated brains of your children. Science and religion are not enemies, but allies in education.

Mr. Sanderlin then beautifully quoted from the "Siege of Lucknow," and exclaimed:

Dinna ye hear the slogan?

Our beautiful Southland has for a quarter of a century been besieged by ignorance and struggling for deliverance.

Dinna ye hear the slogan?

It is the reverberating tramp of children in our primary and grammar schools, in our colleges and universities.

It means deliverance from the bonds of that worst of all slavery—the slavery of the mind and soul!

Then let us be up and doing. We should count time by heart beats. He lives best who feels most and acts best.

God bless the Teachers of our country, because of the noble character and blessed results of their calling. And Lappy should be he or she with whom teaching is a life work.

The presentation of the Diplomas was one of the chief features of the work. This ceremony was introduced with an address by Mr. CLEWELL, who spoke to the patrons of the year just closing and of the bright prospects for the approaching year, 1890-'91. Special stress was placed on the faithfulness of the professors and instructors, — the hearty support of the Trustees, the good will of the patrons, and last, but by no means least, the patriotism of the pupils. The entire school enrollment for the year, pupils and faculty, was 315. Mr. CLEWELL then added a few words of advice to those who would now leave the Institution, and gave them as his parting injunction that rule which he had tried to follow in the discharge of his own responsible and often perplexing duties: "Fearlessly discharge all the duties of life,—fearing God alone, and never flinch when the voice of duty calls."

Dr. RONDTHALER was then requested to present the diplomas and degrees which he did in a most graceful manner, having first addressed warm and earnest words to the classes. The diplomas will have double value in the future when it will be remembered that so friendly a hand as his presented them. The list of graduates is as follows:

M. Lucille Armfield,	Adelaide L. Miller,
Sndie M. Borden,	Lizzie Newton,
Swannanoa Brower,	Theresa C. Pace,
Annie L. Bourdeaux,	Martha E. Pearce,
Fannie S. Butler,	Hennie C. Peterson,
Mattie R. Campbell,	Fannie M. Prielow,
Mary Cannady,	Mary T. Prielow,
Leola Chaffin,	Emma A. Rollins,
Grace C. Cooper,	Ellen J. Siddall,
Pearl G. Crawford,	Annie L. Sloate,
A. Florence Cummings,	M. Jeanie Smith,
Minnie M. Fagg,	L. Dell Sutton,
Madge C. Graham,	Minnie Trimmer,
Nellie Lyle Griffin,	Octavia Wellous,
Lydia Toccos Irby,	Minnie Whitsett,
Hetty Janagin,	Tibbie S. Womack,
Mary R. Jefferies,	Carrie E. Wray,
Ora A. Kennedy,	Fannie E. Wray.
Minnie S. Mickey,

In Photography, or Shorthand.

Emma A. Rollins,	Sussie B. Gulick,
Lizzie D. Sutton,	Carrie E. Wray.
Sallie P. Smith,

Shorthand and Book-keeping.

Rosa M. Ellis,	Johinnie B. Cates.
Jessie D. Cates,

Book-Keeping.

Fayette McMullin,	Bettie Cox,
Ora E. Thomson,	Claudia A. Winkler,
Virginia L. McMurray,	Eulalie Cox.
Lydia E. Kime,

Telegraphy.

Elizabeth Newton,	Jennie T. Blair.
Fannie L. Creight,

Instrumental Music.

Anne Jones,	Adelaide L. Shore,
Ellen L. Shore,	Lizzie T. Jenkins,
Emma S. Cooper,	Sarah K. Cheatham.

Vocal and Instrumental.

Emily A. Hazlehurst,	Carrie J. Francisco.
----------------------	----------------------

Vocal Music.

Adelina D. Laciari.

The words of Dr. RONDTHALER while he was delivering the degree of A. B. to the eight young ladies of the Post Graduate Course were forcible and earnest, and this step in the history of the school may be looked upon as one filled with great possibilities for the future. The names of the Post Graduates are:

Gertrude Jenkins,	Carrie Shelton,
Bessie Pfohl,	Eta Shaffner,
Addie Fries,	Mary Fries,
Emily Hazlehurst,	Birdie Gosten.

The Valedictory was read by Miss EMMA ROLLINS, who has been a pupil in the ACADEMY for 6 years. One of the newspaper correspondents said of this effort: "The Valedictory was eloquently delivered (and when we say 'eloquently', we mean it). It was an address worthy of the occasion and highly creditable to the bright and charming young lady who delivered it in so becoming a manner. Before she concluded the tears of affection trickled down the cheeks of her class-mates,—tears which did them honor and evinced their love for their valedictorian." We give the Valedictory in full:

VALEDICTORY.

By Miss EMMA A. ROLLINS, of North Carolina.

TO-DAY we stand on the water-shed of Time; the Past is fading away in the distance; the Future lies before us, shrouded and veiled in mystery, and as we stand between these two eternities our thoughts naturally revert, in sadly sweet retrospect, to the Past, e'er we look with eager anticipation to the Future.

Year after year the number of workers increases who go forth from the ACADEMY, bearing their diplomas; eager to act their parts in the great drama of life. To-day thirty-seven new names go down on the records of this Institution; thirty-seven graduates join the noble band of over ten thousand Alumnæ who surround their Alma Mater like a guard of honor, keeping the light of interest and enthusiasm in her welfare burning brighter and brighter. Thirty-seven stand thus on the threshold of life, peering with keen insistence into the Future, but we reach forth a detaining hand to grasp the fast fleeting joys and pleasures of school-life before they vanish forever.

On this our graduation day we realize with particular force that time hurries on with resistless, relentless sweep, bearing us with it. The months seemed to flit past with noiseless steps. The great bell of Time swinging in the dome of space is tolling away our years. One by one they ring out upon the sweet, summer air, float away into eternity, and now we listen to the tolling of one more, the last of our school-years. Soon the sound will have died away, and this year will form a part of the eternal past. It seems such a brief space since last September, when, after the pleasant vacation, we once more clasped hands and uttered the happy words of greeting, and now so quickly the farewell words tremble on our lips.

"To know, to esteem, to love, then to part,
Make up life's tale to many a feeling heart."

This we realize in a peculiar manner to-day, when the tie of sisterly affection that has united our class must be severed forever. Our Senior year has gone never to return, gone with all its opportunities and pleasures, but its lessons and the friendliness of Principal, teachers and companions will be carried with us throughout our lives and soften many a hard experience by the remembrance of the days that are no more.

How many thoughts will cluster around the pansy,—our chosen class flower—the thought flower! The sight of it in future will evoke a host of memories and recall the faces of loved friends and class-mates.

At this the end of our school-life in SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY we naturally wonder what our future will be. We would all like to be so much and accomplish great ends. A path, a shining track lies before us,—as the Ancients called it the "Pathway of Souls," it gleams in the distance and beckons lovingly to us. What a glorious pathway it may be! To some of us it may seem like the Milky Way, in the vast depths of space, where star answers star, as they sentinel their nightly round, as deep calls unto deep. To others it may be a quiet woodland path: yet we find the same guiding Power penciling the flowers that holds the planets in their course.

When our hearts are troubled with lofty aspirations for lofty deeds let us remember that we are serving our age and time in performing the lowliest duty that lies near at hand as much as those who tread the high places of fame and heroic achievement. The instruction and discipline we received here have laid our foundations broad and deep, and now it lies with us to build upon them. The scaffolding of rules and restraints is taken away and hereafter we must stand or fall upon our own responsibilities. We hear the resonant tramp of the approaching years, beautiful in their mystery, and we wonder what they have in store for us. These riper, richer years of our lives are to be filled and rounded up with daily duties performed and daily victories won.

The six years that I have spent in this institution will form one of the sweetest tablets of memory, and I count it a most precious heritage that I have received her training. The kindness that has been shown me by Principal and teachers will always be remembered with a grateful heart. The people of Winston and Salem have become endeared to me, and it is with a heart overflowing with love and sorrow that I say,

"Farewell, my home, my home no longer now,
Witness of many a calm and happy day;
Farewell, my home, where many a day has past
In joys, whose lov'd remembrance long shall last."

And to the incoming class, the Class of '91, who will now fill the places that we have filled, and follow in the same line of work that we pursued, we take your hands in ours and before the "good-bye" is said we reluctantly give over our study-parlors and class-rooms to you. We beg you to begin your work in September with renewed energy and zeal: improve each moment as it flies and let no neglected opportunities witness against you. When a sovereign dies, "The king is dead! Long live the king!" is borne on the breeze. So, to-day, the Class of '90, which stood at the very centre of the Commencement Exercises, passes away, and "Long live the Class of '91" is heard.

My Classmates! What shall I say to you! how can I utter the parting words which will separate us for years, perhaps forever! The moments of our united years are numbered,—they are hurrying by like the shadow of a passing cloud. When the sun bends low on the western horizon at eventide we shall be gathered together for the last time in friendly intercourse in those rooms where so many happy hours have been spent. To-day our paths of life diverge,—you go your way, I go mine; we may meet again in after years, but the joy of meeting will be intermingled with pain, for perhaps against the name of one or the other the fatal asterisk of death will be set; and we will not be the same in the changing years. "Let us look not mournfully into the Past, it comes not back again. Let us go forth to meet the shadowy Future with a stout heart and without fear." The duties and responsibilities of life must be borne, and in our future lives may we reflect credit upon our Alma Mater whose teachings we have received. If it is God's will that we meet no more on earth there is a time, there is a place, on Canaan's happy shore, where severed friendships shall be once more renewed, and there may none of us fail to receive the diploma of Eternal Life,—but till then, Farewell!

To you, our dear Principal, who have been so ready to offer your sympathies when needed, and to rejoice with us in our pleasures, to you we owe a debt of gratitude and thanks. As we go forth to strive in the battle of life, we will meet with those who will scorn where you have offered friendly advice, those who will heap obstacles where you have cleared the way, and this makes it still more difficult to say with aching hearts and tearful eyes, Farewell!

Standing thus at the beginning of life's experiences we see one dear and familiar form, a form that has passed in and out among us for so many years, and we turn now to take a sad farewell of our friend, our guide, our pastor, who has called us from the valley of this world's ambitions to heights of nobler aims, who has led us with a kind and gentle hand to the knowledge of our Saviour's love, who has expounded to us those blessed truths, which like burning lamps, serve to light our earthly voyage till we safely glide into that port where "tempests never beat, nor billows roar."

And now to Principal, teachers, classmates and friends we must speak the parting words though tears impede our utterance, and we cannot find words to express our feeling. It must have been this that prompted our English ancestors to shorten the fervent prayer, "God be with you," into the choking sob, "Good-bye."

The music rendered by the Salem Orchestra on this occasion was unusually bright and attractive, as were the piano selections. The entire exercises of the morning will go down in history as one of the brightest and most pleasant of the long list of Commencements of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

At 12 o'clock the Speaker and Trustees sat down with the seniors and undergraduates to dinner, and the lengthy but brilliant exercises of the morning were a good preparation for the repast.

* * *

The Alumnae Meeting has been steadily gaining in force and power, and the crowded condition of the Home chapel made it plain that the next meeting must be conducted in a larger hall. In addition to the programme which is given below reports were read from the Badge Committee and the Griffiss Library Fund. As the result of a number of papers on the subject, it was decided to establish an Alumnae scholarship fund, and a subscription with that object in view was commenced with very marked success. The large number of Alumnae from points even as distant as Texas was a decided feature. We give below the programme in full. Several of the papers were not read, owing to the absence of members.

Call to Order.
Reading of Minutes.
Music.

Letters of Greeting:

1. Mrs. Jas. K. Polk, Polk Place, Tenn.
2. Mrs. Ann Lardner, Charlotte, N. C.
3. Mrs. Jos. Schell, Lake City, S. C.

Music.

Papers—Reminiscences of School Life:

1. Mrs. M. A. Hartstene, New York City.
2. Mrs. M. M. Scarborough, Ridge Spring, S. C.
3. Mrs. P. J. Ector, Winston, S. C.

Music.

4. Mrs. Dr. Kernan, Lebanon, Va.
5. Miss Kate Jones, Bethania, N. C.
6. Miss Kate Paddison, Titusville, Fla.

Music.

- Poem—Miss Addie Fries, Salem, N. C.
Unfinished Business.
Communications from Members.
General Business.
Alumnae Song.

Closing Exercises—Conducted by Dr. RONDTHALER.

The closing event of Commencement Week was the Grand Concert, under the charge of Professor MARKGRAFF. This talented and ambitious young Professor not only gave us a grand concert, but closed the same with that most difficult selection, Mozart's immortal Requiem. The concert was a fitting close to the successful Commencement Week. The programme was as follows:

1. Piano Duo. Overture. Tell ..... Rossini.
Misses C. OLLINGER and A. AOAMS.
2. Vocal Solo. La Zingarella ..... Campana.
Miss M. PENN.
3. Piano Solo. Cujus Animam.....Rossini-Liszt.
Miss S. SMITH.
4. Vocal Solo. La veritable Manola.
(French).....Bourgeois.
Miss E. HAZLEHURST.
5. Violin Solo. Allegro from Violin
Concerto in E Minor.....Mendelssohn.
Miss GRACE LOCKE.
SALEM ORCHESTRA.
6. Piano Solo. Rhapsodie Hongroise,
No. 10.....Liszt.
Miss A. COVINGTON.
7. Vocal Duet. La Notte.....Mililotti.
Misses A. LACIAR and A. JONES.
8. Violin Solo. Menuetto .....Boccherini.
Miss W. GAMBILL.
9. Piano Duet. Spanishe Taenize.....Moskowsky.
Misses O. WELONS and R. ELLIS.
10. Vocal Solo. Grande Valse.....Vanzano.
Miss KATHARINE W. EVANS.
SALEM ORCHESTRA.
11. Piano Solo. La Reveil du Lion.....Kontski.
Miss C. FRANCISCO.
12. Vocal Quartette. Estudiantina.....Lacome.
Misses LACIAR, HAZLEHURST, JONES and FRANCISCO.
13. Piano Solo. Allegro from Piano Concerto in C Major.....Beethoven.
Miss A. LACIAR.
SALEM ORCHESTRA.
14. Chorus. Faithful and True.....Wagner.

THE REQUIEM. Mozart.

CHORAL CLASS, assisted by SALEM ORCHESTRA, and Soloists, Miss EVANS, Miss CARMICHAEL, Professors MARKGRAFF and BROWN.

Piano—Miss A. VAN VLECK.

Tenor—Messrs. F. VOGLER, W. BOYO, A. LICH-TENTHALER, NOVITSKI, ARNOLO, J. CHICK.
Bass—Messrs. E. Ebert, N. ATWATER, R.
SPAUGH, W. SPAUGH and A. HAUSER.

* * *

In writing our story of the Commencement we have done so with a view to historically preserve the record of this happy week. Many, many interesting points were of necessity omitted, but in closing the account we do so by calling attention to some general features which were observed by PEN-STICK, a correspondent of the Salem Press, and which he describes as follows:

"There are certain details of the Commencement of '90 which it would be well to consider concisely and separately:

"First—The order and attention of the very large audiences present on each of the occasions. Such events are inherently of a joyous nature, and hence it is comparatively easy for there to be an excess of good feeling, ending in noisy hilarity. The absence of this latter phase was exceptionally noticeable, while the good humor of each and every one was free and unrestrained, adding a charm not surpassed by any other feature.

"Second—The increase in attendance as the different evenings came on was marked evidence of deeper interest than we have ever known. Eighty odd years ought, both by tradition and the evidence of things seen, to give us remembrances of the great Commencements of the past. Yet there is nothing to remind us of one like '90. Every available space,—church, vestibule, chapel, window, occupied by the cream of the great Southern country! Judges, lawyers, doctors, preachers, State officials, planters, manufacturers, belles of other days and belles of to-day, white-haired Alumnae of the classes of 40, 50, 60 years ago, the rising youth of both sexes, the large force of ushers,—who ever saw such magnificent gatherings in all this Piedmont country! They came from the far-away ranches and rapid-growing cities of Texas; the rich deltas of Louisiana; the cotton States—Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina; from the limpid springs and golden-hued groves of Florida; the great tobacco, cotton and manufacturing centres of North Carolina and Virginia; the iron-ribbed mountains and plains of Tennessee. Palace car and through car and special train brought them to participate with us in the annual exercises of that institution whose name is revered and loved all over this Southland as the second home of girlhood's happiest hours of many a matron, many a leader in the social life of intellectual circles.

"Third—The character of the entertainments. Good music is natural to SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. Founded on the thoroughness of the German school and kept strictly up to that standard through a decade more than threescore years and ten, it necessarily follows that the pupils should present finished work to their friends. When to this is added the intelligent and exacting instruction of the Professors in the Departments of Instrumental and Vocal Music, GEORGE MARKGRAFF and Miss KATHARINE W. EVANS, we understand why this Commencement was so very attractive and pleasing.

"In the Essays of the Seniors the high standard of the Graduating Course was most clearly exemplified, and to her, Miss LEHMAN, whose abilities in educational work especially fit her for this sphere of high duty, great praise is due. With clear views as to what the intellectual and religious future of the Seniors should be, there is always to be found in the results of her work the strong faith, the joyous hopefulness of well-disciplined and well-taught minds.

"We should not forget those other members of the ACADEMY's brilliant faculty, whose preparatory work has led up to the degree of A. B. in the Post Graduate Course and the diploma of the Academic and Music Departments. Their faithfulness, their perseverance, their capacity are none the less visible, for they builded on the strong foundation of thoroughness and of truth.

"And in the other departments good work was done. In the Language, in the Commercial, in the Art, the effort was constantly, strenuously made to produce that which shall be lasting and is the best.

"Fourth—The management of all this school machinery! The Principal of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, Rev. JOHN H. CLEWELL, native and to the manor born, knows no such word as failure. To him organizing capacity, faithfulness, probity, perseverance and success come naturally. No pains does he spare, no labor does he shirk, to advance the material interests of the 300 and more persons in his charge. Nothing does he leave undone to make this unsectarian school an honor to our community, our State, our Southland. And surely he feels a gratification at the warm support given him by his fellow-townsmen during the last few weeks especially. This feature is becoming a great factor in the ACADEMY's work, viz: that we feel each year more deeply and actively how much depends for us on the ACADEMY's prosperity; that our children have here advantages that are incomparable; that here education and religion, the pillars of civilized nations, are happily blended instead of sternly divided; that we can offer a safe home to all who desire their daughters to grow up in righteousness and wisdom.

"Fifth—That valuable adjunct of the ACADEMY—the Salem Orchestra. Always to be relied upon, equal to the most exacting demands, prompt to recognize and profit by the extraordinary opportunities the Concertos, the Oratorios, the Concerts give them, they combine the most admirable elements of staunch organization. They deserve our heartiest encouragement.

"When the Moravian Church at large looks over its cherished fields of educational work there must arise a special psalm of thanks to that benign Providence whose boundless mercy and loving kindness has been so signally bestowed upon SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY during the school-year closed by the Commencement of '90, and the Church should ever pray that the heavenly benediction may never be withdrawn. "Give to our God the glory."

"To all those for whom Pen-Stick had words of commendation and encouragement during the past six months and this Commencement season, he gives his best wishes for a happy vacation, whether on mountain side, or by ocean beach, or, much more wisely, in the loving home circle. His work has been made pleasant by the appreciation given, the kind word spoken.

"May we all again go through such perfect June days. PEN-STICK."

—We acknowledge a complimentary invitation to the excursion tendered the Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce, to Elkin, N. C.

—The Seniors were given a picnic May 6, as a compliment to the class. The party occupied some 4 or 5 vehicles, and went to the beautiful Friedberg church and grove. The day was fine, save a light afternoon shower, Mrs. CARMICHAEL's dinner was fully appreciated and the entire day unusually pleasant and enjoyable.

—We enjoyed a pleasant visit in May from Revs. Sieborger and Kern, missionaries of the Moravian Church on their way from Germany to Central America, via New Orleans. They addressed the pupils of the Academy and in the evening of the same day preached to a large audience in the church. Rev. Mr. Sieborger is a very able linguist and has just finished the translation of the Scriptures into the language of the Mosquito Coast Indians.

—About noon, May 13th, fire was discovered in the Extension, South Hall. Miss SALLIE McLEAN heroically entered the burning room and began successfully fighting the flames, while Miss CLAUDIA DICKS, with great presence of mind, quietly informed her teachers of the fact. Although the fire had made some progress, by the efforts of Miss McLEAN, reinforced by Mr. PFOHL, the flames were quenched without calling on the town fire department. Too great credit cannot be given to the young ladies for their presence of mind, whereby property was saved and possible panic averted. The precautions which the ACADEMY takes, supplemented by the efforts of a faithful night watchman, who patrols the building during the entire night, reduces the fire risk to a minimum, and if the same heroism exists throughout the pupils as that displayed at the recent threatened fire, almost all risk has disappeared.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., JUNE, 1890.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—The Fall Term of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY begins August 28th, 1890, 2 o'clock P. M. Entrance Examinations, August 26 and 27.

—A large number of subscriptions to THE ACADEMY expire with the next issue. We will esteem it a favor to have the subscriptions sent in now.

We will be pleased to have old pupils send us the names of neighbors who may be interested in seeing a copy of the Academy Catalogue, or "How to Get to Salem Female Academy."

—Pupils desiring to enter the Post Graduate Class in September are requested to forward their names at once, in order that all needed preparatory arrangements for the work may be made.

—We will in future have a new department in our paper, entitled "The Alumnae Scholarship," and invite communications from members and friends for the same. Communications may be addressed to Miss Lehman, the President, or to Miss Siewers, the Secretary.

—The new Catalogue and a copy of "How to Get to Salem Female Academy" will be sent to any one upon application. Do not hesitate to send us your name because you may not have a daughter to educate, but if, from a general interest in education, you would like to examine either or both of these publications, drop us a postal card giving your name and address.

—The Commencement article found elsewhere is full and exhaustive in the matter of the essentials. The programmes are given in full, since by these the general work of the school is judged. We also give a summary of both Baccalaureate Sermon and Literary Address, as well as the Salutatory and Valedictory. We believe the somewhat extended account will be welcome to our readers.

—The building for the new Industrial School (Dressmaking and Cooking) is being prepared during the summer. We are much gratified to notice the marked interest of many friends in this work, and feel certain it will be successful, for three reasons, viz: because the need for such instruction exists, because the interest in the department is so marked, and because we will spare no effort to make the instruction practical.

—The number of applications for admission next fall is unusually large for this time of the year. As we were compelled even last year to give up the chapel for additional school room, and as we have no chapel left to be similarly used, we will esteem it a favor if all former pupils who have not yet sent us their names, would do so at once, and all new pupils who will enter at the opening of next term, would also forward names in advance. We can then make comfortable preparations for all.

—THE ACADEMY would return special thanks to the large number of friends who aided in the success of Commencement. To the Boards of the Salem Congregation for the use of the church; to the newspaper representatives, who were so kind in their reports to the great public; to the Electric Light Company's representatives for their favors; to the representative of the Western Union Telegraph Company and his assistants; to the Railroad officials; to the efficient company of ushers; to the Salem Orchestra; to the Salem church choir; to the gentlemen singers in The Requiem; to all who in any way assisted, we herewith return the thanks of the Institution, and trust that they may always find their association with the Academy a pleasant one.

—"There is no success like success" is an old adage, and hence it is with a great deal of satisfaction that we look back upon the work done for the Library during the past year. Several hundred carefully selected books have been added; the beginning of an Endowment Fund has been made; an unusual amount of interest has been shown by the pupils, both for general reading and for careful study and research; the Library was well filled during almost every hour of the day and evening; the device for retaining the papers and magazines in their places has added to their popular value. Hence we may claim that the efforts put forth in this direction have been crowned with success. Such being the case will not our many friends decide to make the year 1890-'91 a still greater success? Let the "Our Library Department" in THE ACADEMY receive many contributions, and let the Library itself receive gifts of money and books, in the spirit of love and devotion shown by the recent Post Graduate Class.

The Alumnae Scholarship.

FOR the benefit of Alumnae not able to be present, some account of the new work undertaken by the Association may be acceptable. The members present at the last meeting unanimously agreed to cast a stone into the pool of Academy life and work, which will send out ever widening ripples even to the shores of Eternity. The Scholarship Endowment Fund is the beginning of a movement which, like the "quality of mercy is twice blessed, it bleseth him that gives and him that takes." As we look into the future and see not one but many pupils placed in the Academy through the efforts of its Alumnae, our hearts glow with anticipatory joy, for not only shall we be increasing the talent entrusted to us, but we secure refinement and burnishing for the talent of those who otherwise might be dwarfed for life by the lack of it.

Friends! we dare not say with sardonic indifference "Am I my brother's keeper"; rather with a glow of fruit-bearing enthusiasm feel, "I am my brother's keeper." Surely there is no better way for us as Alumnae to work for one another "In His Name," than to give as we have opportunity toward the education of the daughter of one of our number. Mr. Clewell told the Association that could they see the letters, of which he is in constant receipt, from mothers who plead for some way to be made by which their daughters may be admitted to the Academy, they would leave no effort unmade which would result in a provision for such cases, and he renewed his offer to receive a pupil as soon as $2,500 are raised.

The gifts of individuals so far vary from 25 cents to $20, so there is a place for all of us. Some preferred to give a larger sum at once, others a smaller one annually, and since the meeting the Secretary feels that she has suddenly become Treasurer as well, for sums are coming in continually, with promises of more.

Alumnæ, arouse! Give yourselves the pleasure by and by of knowing that you were among the first to see the good to result from the combined efforts of our members, and among the first who responded practically.

GERTRUDE SIEWERS, Sec'y.

THE SILENT SIDE.

BY MISS ADELAIDE L. FRIES.

Throughout the realms of earth diversified,
There is no life that wholly lies revealed;
And that which clearest seems to piercing glance
But hints at things unsearchable, concealed.
All has a silent side. The tender flowers
Flung to the summer sky their petals gay,
The bright leaves whisper to the murmuring breeze,
The rosy fruits smile as the sunbeams play.

But who can penetrate the mystery
That shrouds in silence, deepest, most profound,
The power that wakes into activity
The tiny seed, by earth's dark fetters bound;
That from the soil and air and sun and dew
Gathers with an inimitable skill,
And gives to bud and blade the myriad hues
That rich be-gem each woodland, vale and hill.

We lead a dual life; we smile, we frown,
We weep, perchance; 'tis in a moment o'er,
As wave that ripples on the lake's calm breast,
Spends all its strength and breaks against the shore.
Nay, even, as the wave, it well may chance
It but the more conceals what lies below,
And with the sombre trough and sparkling crest
Catches the eye that yet might deeper go.

For here the soul lives in itself alone,
Alone it hopes and fears, strives and succeeds,
Or strives and fails, and failing tries again,
And for fresh strength on hope's elixir feeds.
But though no friend may enter in
To share the struggle, or to criticize,
It yet is reached and moved by some still power
That oft in strength its gentleness belies.

'Tis ever thus our Alma Mater throws
A silent influence on the silent side,
And moulding many lives, a hold maintains
On all her daughters, scattered far and wide.
She draws them to her by her mystic cords,
So slight, so strong, composed of many a strand,
Until united by their common love
Fondly they gather round her, hand in hand.

Minutes of the Fourth Meeting of the Alumnae Association of Salem Female Academy, 1890.

THE Fourth Annual Meeting was held in the Moravian Chapel, Wednesday, 3 p. m., June 4th. 178 members registered at the door. An address of welcome from the President, Miss Vogler, was followed by reading of the Minutes of the last meeting. The President announced the death of two Alumnae during the past year, Mrs. Major Brown (Delphine Hall), of Winston, and Mrs. Dr. Fess (Della Dancy), of Georgia.

After singing the Alumnae song, solo by Mrs. H. E. Fries (Rosa Mickey), a letter of greeting from Mrs. Jno. Schell (Mantie Macomson), Cowpens, S. C., was read by her class-mate, Miss Kyle Pace, of Waco, Texas. Six papers of reminiscences of school life followed! the first, written by Mrs. Hartstene, of New York City, was read by Mrs. Slappey (Stella Neil), of Marshallville, Ga. Another written by Mrs. Scarborough (Miranda Miller), Ridge Spring, S. C., was read by Mrs. Kellett (Callie Trice), of Waco, Texas. Mrs. Dr. Ector (P. J. Brown), of Winston, read a paper prepared for the occasion, and this was followed by a Duet, sung by Misses Laciari and Francisco. A paper from Mrs. Kernan (Sophie Kremer), Lebanon, Va., was read by Mrs. F. H. Fries (Anne de-Schweinitz). Miss Kate Jones, of Bethania, N. C., read her own paper, after which Mrs. Sturdivant (Ann Meyers), Charlotte, N. C., read her last year's paper with some revision.

Miss Addie Fries followed with her poem entitled, "The Silent Side." Miss Pittman read the report of the Library Committee, showing contributions during the year of $135.34, and about $100 worth of books. Mrs. Dr. Bahnson (Emma Fries), of Salem, submitted the report of the Committee on Badges.

Miss Flora Lott, of Salem, read a very carefully prepared paper on College Reunions and Scholarship Endowments, which was followed by an earnest communication from Mrs. Wright (Georgia Bowe), Columbia, S. C., full of practical suggestions as to how the Fund may be started and managed. Her paper was read by Mrs. Robert Belo (Mattie Williams), of Salem. Dr. Rondthaler being called upon spoke warmly on the subject, and in order to ascertain the feeling of the Association, all who favored the endeavor were asked to rise. The assembly arose as one woman, and Mr. Clewell started the Fund with a gift of $100, promising to receive a pupil as soon as $2500 (half the endowment) should be raised. Slips of paper were passed around for those who desired to subscribe at once, resulting in the very encouraging sum of $274.75, and the amount of $15.00 pledged annually.

Election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Miss Lehman.

Secretary—Miss Gertrude Siewers.

Vice Presidents.—Mrs. Dr. Ector, Mrs. Robah Gray, Mrs. N. S. Siewers, Mrs. Kellett, Miss Kyle Pace.

Executive Committee.—Mrs. Dr. Dalton, Mrs. Ellen Shelton, Miss Sophie Butler, Mrs. W. A. Lemly, Miss A. Rondthaler.

Dr. Rondthaler then took the chair, and lovefeast was served. After singing the hymn, "Blest be the sacred covenant love," the meeting adjourned.

GERTRUDE SIEWERS, Sec'y.

Personal Items.

—Owing to the very large number of visitors it was impossible for the editors to secure all the items which would be of interest to absent friends. Hence we will welcome from friends any special items for our next issue. If you know of such item jot it down on a postal and send it to THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

—Miss Ward is in Raleigh with home friends.

—Miss Baker returned to her home in New Jersey.

—Miss Pittman will visit friends in Eastern Carolina.

—Miss Addie Laciari returned to her home in Pennsylvania.

—Rev. Mr. Byrd was the guest of Dr. Rondthaler while in Salem.

—Mrs. Willis Hall entertained the Hon. G. W. Sanderlin and family.

—Miss Gertrude Jenkins will spend part of the summer at Carolina Beach.

—Professor Blair has taken possession of the handsome new bank building.

—Misses Rondthaler and Winkler spent part of the vacation in Washington, D. C.

—We were pleased to welcome Mrs. Sturdivant's cheerful face among us again.

—Miss E. C. Harman is now Mrs. D. C. Darden, Morven, Anson Co., N. C.

—Janie Whitner has been spending some time with Carrie Shelton, but left end of June for her Florida home.

—Miss Pfohl resigned her position some time before the close of school, on account of the illness of her mother.

—Gladys Crawford will spend the summer at Mr. A. DuFour's Summer French School, near Henderson, N. C.

—Daisy Ruff could not remain till the close of Commencement, but we were glad to have her even a portion of the time.

—Grace Locke remained to accompany friends to the Charlotte festival, and then returned to her home in Brooklyn, N. Y.

—Professor Markgraff received a warm welcome as leader of the Salem Orchestra at the very successful Charlotte Musical Festival.

—Miss Maria Vogler and her sister, Miss Regina, are spending the summer in New England. They left immediately after Commencement.

—Misses Lou and Sallie Shaffner and Miss Evans sailed for Europe a few days after the close of school, and we notice that their steamer arrived safely on the other side.

—Hattie Sutton, Janie Sherille and Lyda David represented the line of the C. F. & Y. V. Ry. They seemed to enjoy Commencement, and their many friends certainly enjoyed seeing them.

—Rev. Mr. Byrd, after delivering the Baccalaureate Sermon, was compelled to return home on account of sickness in his family. We had hoped to have him spend the entire Commencement season with us.

—On Commencement Day three of the Valedictorians sat down together to dinner at the Academy, not one of the three having been here less than six years, and one seven and a half years. The three were Kyle Pae, Dora Adams Hopkins and Emma Rollins.

List of Our Visitors.

Below will be found as many names of friends who were present during Commencement as it was possible for us to secure. Any names omitted we will publish in our next issue, if the friends will kindly send us the same.

LIST OF FORMER PUPILS AT COMMENCEMENT.

- Miss Blanche Armfield, High Point, N. C.
- Mrs Branch, (Hattie Harlee), Rutherfordton, N. C.
- Miss Annie Boyd, Magnolia, Miss.
- Miss Minnie Beard, Kernersville, N. C.
- Mrs Cates (Mary Brabson), Marysville, Tenn.
- Miss Lula Cox, Sedge Garden, N. C.
- Miss Lilian Dicks, Randleman, N. C.
- Mrs Dr Dicks (Sue Blackburn), Walkertown, N. C.
- Misses Louise and Camille Hunt, Lexington, N. C.
- Miss Tillie Harmon, Kernersville, N. C.
- Miss Sallie Haines, Fulton, N. C.
- Miss Emma Hale, Clinton, S. C.
- Miss Della Hine, Old Town, N. C.
- Mrs A Hopkins (Dora Adams), Atlanta, Ga.
- Miss Kate Jones, Bethania, N. C.
- Mrs Wm Kellett, (Callie Trice), Waco, Tex.
- Miss Lily Lash, Mrs R P Leinbach (S Blum).
- Misses Lizzie and Addie Leinbach, Mrs E T Lehman, Bethania, N. C.

- Miss May Sue Motley, Reidsville, N. C.
- Miss Mattie Nichols, Scotland Neck, N. C.
- Mrs Newton (Annie Duncan), S. C.
- Miss Alice Ollinger, Milton, Fla.
- Miss Kyle Pace, Waco, Texas.
- Miss Kitty May Penn, Reidsville, N. C.
- Miss Jennie Ragsdale, Jamestown, N. C.
- Miss Daisy Ruff, Rock Hill, S. C.
- Mrs Scarborough (Miranda Miller), Ridge Spring, S. C.
- Mrs George W Sanderlin (Eliza Wooten), Miss Beulah Sanderlin, Raleigh, N. C.
- Mrs Dr Strickland (Lilian Lehman), Bethania, N. C.
- Miss Hattie Sutton, Fayetteville, N. C.
- Miss Jennie Stafford, Waughtown, N. C.
- Mrs C Smythe (Louie Grunert) Jamaica, W. I.
- Mrs A Sturdivant (Ann Myers), Charlotte, N. C.
- Mrs Slappey (Stella Neil), Marshallville, Ga.
- Miss Janie Sherille, Bennettsville, S. C.
- Miss Rachel Sims, Durham, N. C.
- Miss Mamie Thomas, Thomasville, N. C.
- Miss Janie Whitner, Fort Reed, Fla.

SENIORS' RELATIVES AND FRIENDS.

- Mrs W H Borden, Goldsboro, N. C.
- Mrs and Mrs Whitsett, Miss Foust, Graham, N. C.
- Mr R M Bourdeaux, Miss M Bourdeaux, Meridian, Miss.
- Mr J Sloan, Miss S Sloan, Reidsville, N. C.
- Judge and Mrs M P Jarnagin, Misses Mary and Martha Jarnigan, Mossy Creek, Tenn.
- Mr Chivvis L Wray, Ridgway, S. C.
- Mrs E D Peirce, Mr David Peirce, Tazewell C H, Va.
- Miss S H Hook, Miss Edith Griffiss, Chattanooga, Tenn.
- Mr E E Crawford, Galveston, Texas.
- Mr Wm Cummings, Aspen Grove, N. C.
- Mr and Mrs J L Smith, Mexia, Texas.
- Mr Wm Jefferies, Union, S. C.
- Dr W C Irby, Clinton, S. C.
- Major W W Rollins, Mr Wallace Rollins, Mr T Kollins, Mr Wm Johnston, Hon H A Gudger, Asheville, N. C.
- Mr and Mrs W A Wray and two children, Knoxville, Tenn.
- Judge T B Graham, Forest, Miss.
- Mrs W J Armfield, Mr E M Armfield, High Point, N. C.
- Mr Wm Chaffin, Mrs A M Chaffin, Foster Falls, Va.
- Miss Mary P Ashe, Houston, Texas.
- Mr and Mrs M P Cummings,
- Mrs Pauline Berking, Miss Dora Berking, Brooklyn, N. Y.
- Miss I Chaffin, Milton, Fla.
- Mrs Ada Weddington, Charlotte, N. C.
- Miss Jennie Butner, Macon, Ga.
- Miss Bertha Clouse, Hope, Indiana.
- Miss Maggie Penberton, Fayetteville, N. C.
- Miss Nellie Waddell, Wilmington, N. C.
- Mrs G L Gillespie and Miss Gay Gillespie, Chattanooga, Tenn.
- Mr A D McGill, Fayetteville, N. C.
- Dr and Mrs J P Henry, Greenwood, Miss.
- Mr and Mrs O R Cox, Cedar Falls, N. C.
- Miss Lyda David, Bennettsville, S. C.
- Mr H L Brower, Mrs E E Siler, Miss Lizzie Patterson, Liberty, N. C.

- Mr W W Moses, Jr, Richmond, Va.
- Mr and Mrs G H Makepeace, Franklinsville, N. C.
- Mr W C Fields, Miss Dora McDaniel, Kinston, N. C.
- Mr. W C Beck, Philadelphia, Pa.
- Mr. S Morgan Smith, York, Pa.
- Mr J H Green, Columbia, S. C.
- Mr and Mrs James G Penn, Miss Annie Lee Penn, Danville, Va.
- Mr H C Thomas, Mr Lawrence Thomas, Thomasville, N. C.
- Mr R L Cox, Sedge Garden, N. C.
- Mr E R Whitmer, Sanford, Fla.
- Mr Frank Lindsey, Mr Joe Barnes, Reidsville, N. C.
- Mrs Peirce, Tazewell, Va.

Our Library.

Contributions to the Griffiss Library Fund.
 J. C. Griffiss, Chattanooga, Tenn.,...$ 10 00
 Previously acknowledged,..... 135 34

Total,.....$145 34

—One of the most striking scenes in the Post Graduate entertainment was that in which the Queen and the Spirits, in solemn procession, entered the shrine of the Alma Mater. Above the altar was suspended a large shield, and on the shield was this design:

On the altar was a tripod containing a vessel of incense, on the opposite side an antique bottle, and in the center a large crystal globe, filled with transparent liquid. Dido advances to the altar and repeats these lines:

“O, our goddess, Alma Mater!
 'Tis our hearts are speaking to thee,
 Through the lips of one of us,
 Through the eyes of all of us.
 We would give thee our own color
 To be thine,—the color golden.”

Having said this she places a lighted taper to the vessel of incense, and at once a bright, golden flame springs into the air. Then taking the bottle she pours its contents into the globe, and immediately the heretofore clear liquid is changed to a rich gold. As this takes place all the spirits kneel, and the impressiveness of the entire scene is marked. Dido continues:

“Wilt thou take our willing offerings?
 Take these tributes of our love.”

The spirits then rise from the kneeling posture and advance to the altar, each placing on the altar a gift, and if the reader will in imagination take a place behind ye editor's chair, we will open the covers of the books (for the gifts are books) and find something written on each. The first book is Hypatia, or New Foes with an Old Face. Kingsley. On its fly-leaf we find: "To our Alma Mater. ETTA SHAFFNER, Post Graduate Class, 1890.

The Master of the Magicians, by Elizabeth Phelps, has written on it: "To my Alma Mater. EMILY HAZLEHURST, Post Graduate Class, 1890."

How They Kept the Faith. Raymond. "To our Alma Mater. ADELAIDE L. FRIES, Post Graduate Class, 1890."

Yesterdays with Authors. Fields. "To our Alma Mater. MARY E. FRIES, Post Graduate Class, 1890."

Chaplet of Pearls. Yonge. "To my Alma Mater. CARRIE SHELTON, Post Graduate Class, 1890."

Lorna Doone. Blackmore. "To our Alma Mater. BIRDIE GOSLEN, Post Graduate Class, 1890."

The Woman's Story. Holloway. "To our Alma Mater. GERTRUDE JENKINS, Post Graduate Class, 1890."

This is what the reader would have seen by looking over the editor's shoulder.

As the beautiful scene was withdrawn the graceful, classic costumes of the spirits faded away, and the wearers again became the Post Graduates, going in and out among their fellow students. But the gift will remain many, many years, as their manner of "registering" in the Library.

—Lieut. Sam. C. Lemly, of the U.S. Navy, has been on a visit to friends in Salem, and very kindly remembered the efforts now being made to enlarge our Library. He contributed two large volumes, entitled "International Polar Expedition. Report of the Proceedings of the United States Expedition to Laay Franklin Bay, Grinnell Land." Greeley. Lieut. Lemly was a member of the Relief Expedition, and several years ago delivered a very interesting lecture to the pupils of the Academy on the subject.

—Mr. E. T. Blum, another warm-hearted and staunch friend of the Academy, has presented a most valuable addition to the Library, viz: "The U. S. Geographical Survey, West of the 100th Meridian." By Wheeler. Vol. III., Geology. Vol. IV., Zoology. Vol. V., Paleontology.

He also presented "Annual Report of the Bureau of Ethnology." Powell.

These volumes, as also those presented by Lieut. Lemly, are very fully and handsomely illustrated, and are of great intrinsic value.

Quite a number of books in addition to those named have been received, but the list will be continued in the next number of THE ACADEMY.

---

Chronicle and Gossip.

---

—The publishers of the Posteid are under obligations to Mr. John Fries for favors conferred.

—An unusually large number of friends were present from a distance at the close of the school year.

—We extend our good wishes to Una Epes, whose marriage notice appears elsewhere in this issue.

—The bright moonlight enjoyed during Commencement Week was a marked addition. The Park and rear court were especially attractive in this soft light.

—Work on the square has been finished and the large fountain placed in position. The results of the plans are very successful, and were greatly admired by the visiting friends.

—Many persons made special comment on the beautiful and masterly manner in which the Salem Church Choir rendered the Hallelujah Chorus, Commencement Sunday morning.

—Professor Robert Carmichael, the violinist, spent some weeks with his friends in Salem, and while here made a strong addition to the musical force. He accompanied the Salem Orchestra to the Charlotte festival.

—The School is under many obligations for the marked interest shown by the newspaper representatives. Hon. H. E. Fries extended the courtesies of the Academy, and in many ways contributed to the comfort of all.

—Mr. Pendleton, the very accommodating gentleman in charge of the W. U. Telegraph Office, Winston, did a very hard week's work for the interest of the school. He probably sent about 10,000 words to the various papers, north and south, and in some instances was busy at his instrument till 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning.

—Mrs. Wolle (Mrs. Clewell's mother) and family will move to Salem this summer and occupy the house on the southeast corner of the square. Professor Markgraff has rented the adjoining house and will occupy the same in the near future.

—We acknowledge Commencement invitations from the following institutions: Nazareth Hall, Nazareth, Pa.; Theological Seminary, Bethlehem, Pa.; Young Ladies Seminary, Bethlehem, Pa.; Linden Hall, Lititz, Pa.; Winston Graded School, Winston, N. C.

—The work on the street car line is steadily progressing. It will be a matter of great convenience to the school to have this means of communication with the business center of the towns. Main Street in Salem will probably be paved with granite blocks, which will add new attractions to our already pleasant streets.

—The former parsonage on the lot just north of the church is now being moved back on the lot, and will be fitted up for school uses next year. The house will be placed next to Annex Hall, and will be considerably enlarged. The lot left vacant, facing on Church Street, will doubtless be used for a large building in the near future.

—Doubtless the old Moravian church has seldom been taxed to a greater extent than was the case on several of the days of Commencement, and we believe we can also say that seldom, if ever, was more care and courtesy shown to each and every guest than was shown by Mr. Allen Spough and his corps of gentlemanly ushers. To see the ease and grace with which the hundreds were made comfortable was an interesting sight.

—A very pleasing incident in connection with the closing concert was the presentation to Professor Markgraff, by his pupils, of a set of Dickens' works. The Professor was very much surprised, and in the address which Dr. Rondthaler made in making the presentation he stated that all the friends knew how much Professor Markgraff was averse to speech making, but that all would look for his answer in the manner in which he would speak to the audience in the conducting of The Requiem. All were well satisfied in regard to the answer.

—The arrangements for the departure of the pupils were so complete that there was little confusion this year. Capt. Buford moved his entire coupon ticket cabinet to the school, and with his gentlemanly assistants, together with Capt. Jenkins, Gee and Mr. Thweatt, attended to all matters relating to tickets, checks, &c. We are also under obligations to the Roanoke & Southern and Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroads for favors conferred.

—The introduction of electric lights into the halls, dormitories and yard has gone steadily forward, and during Commencement week we enjoyed the use of these lights by means of a special arrangement made with the old electric light plant. The large star in the center of the church attracted much attention, and was composed of 50 or 60 lights. The brilliancy which this design gave to the stage was almost equal to that of noonday.

—No one gave himself more fully and unsparingly to the arduous duties of the closing days of the school-year than did Mr. C. B. Pfohl, the Secretary of the institution; this being fully appreciated by the pupils, some of them determined to show their gratitude in a practical manner, and therefore purchased and presented to him a fine gold-headed cane. Mr. Pfohl says there is not another one like it in town, and wishes THE ACADEMY to return to the kind donors his sincere and appreciative thanks. It is just such spontaneous acts that go far to making the life journey smooth and pleasant.

During the severe thunder storm which visited our towns end of June, a strange freak of the lightning was witnessed in Cedar Avenue. One of the large cedar trees was struck by lightning, which descended, splitting the trunk of the tree, and jumping some distance to the urn on the top of one of the gate posts. Thence it followed the gilt lettering on the arch, blackening the same. From the arch it jumped to the gates, followed the long hinges,, shattered the post, and finally entered the ground. In the country, a few miles north of town, three persons were killed.

DAVIS SCHOOL.—Davis School has been moved from La Grange, in Eastern North Carolina, to Winston-Salem. This is a large boarding school for boys and young men. For several years it has been the largest military school in the State. The school is located in the country, a short distance from Winston-Salem. The session will begin in September. The buildings will be ready for occupancy, and the appointments of the school will be first class. There is a large faculty, and the course of instruction is broad and thorough. The school is recommended in the highest terms by its patrons. In speaking of the removal of the Raleigh Daily News and Observer says:

“We learn from Superintendent Davis officially that the Davis School, that excellent institution which stands in the front rank of military schools in this country, and which has had an unparalleled success for a number of years, is to be moved from La Grange to that wide-awake and progressive twin-city, Winston-Salem. Davis School as a training and all-round school for boys has won for itself by its efficient work in mental and physical culture a national reputation. Work will begin immediately on the handsome buildings and the school, already one of the best equipped in the United States will be greatly improved. The next session of the school will begin at its new home in September. We congratulate Winston. Davis School is very popular in this city, and has a number of Raleigh boys in its splendid battalion.”

Letter Read at the Alumnae Meeting, June 4, 1890.

COWPENS, S. C., May 29, 1890.

To the Alumnae of Salem Female Academy:

It is with a feeling of pleasure that I send you greeting this bright morning. While it would be far more pleasant to be present and listen to the racy letters from absent members and the words of wit and wisdom of those present, to join in the exercises with all the zest of an old Salem girl, still I am glad of this medium to be with you.

I've been keeping up, or trying to, with the Academy news. I read of wonderful improvements being made. I feel I would hardly recognize my old Alma Mater.

Kate Tannatt Woods says: “Progress is in the air we breathe,” and surely the saying is verified in the rapid strides of improvement made in the Academy since I was a happy school girl within its walls. We girls of '83 thought we were the crowning glory of our Alma Mater, but, alas! there is much that was not dreamt of in our philosophy. No doubt others of our class feel as I do, that we went to the Academy all too soon. The Gymnasium, Tennis, Archery, the excellent Business Course, the Students' Tour,—which almost tempted some of the Alumnae to envy the fortunate class of '90—these are only a few of the improvements made since '83. I am proud to note the progress of the old institution which deserves the love of every girl or young woman who has been educated beneath its roof.

Although change and progress are written on everything, I feel the warm hearts of the teachers are not changed; that they still take a kindly interest in all former pupils is attested by the many inquiries about those long since gone out from among them.

Our Secretary struck the key-note not long since when she gave us a plan by which we may with our mites help to enrich the Academy Library. Many of the Alumnae will not only deem it a duty but a privilege to be able to contribute to this fund. Let us each and all respond promptly to the call.

But my letter is already too lengthy. That this renewal of our friendship for each other and loyalty to our beloved Alma Mater may prove an occasion most pleasant and profitable to all, is the sincere wish of one of your members.

M. LOUISE MACOMSON SCHELL,
Class of '83.

Married.

June 12, 1890, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Epes, Epes, Ala., their daughter, UNA, to Mr. GEORGE P. KINKLE.

FOUNDED 1851.

HORNER SCHOOL,
OXFORD, N. C.

Fall Term Opens Aug. 4, 1890.

FACULTY:

J. H. HORNER, M. A., University of N. C.
(Founder of School.)
Col. J. T. DREWRY, Com'd't, Star Graduate Virginia Military Institute.
J. C. HORNER, A. M., Davidson College.
G. A. WAUCHOPE, M. A., Ph. D., University of Berlin, Late Fellow Wash. & Lee Univ.
Rev. J. M. Horner, B. A., B. D., University of Virginia and Johns Hopkins University.

L. V. & E. T. BLUM,
SALEM, N. C.,

BOOKSELLERS, STATIONERS,
PRINTERS.

PUBLISH "THE PEOPLES PRESS,"
FARMER'S AND PLANTER'S ALMANAC.

General Job Printing executed with neatness
and dispatch. Try us.

Printers of Salem Female Academy's publications.

ALUMNÆ BADGES. — Mrs. Dr. H. T. Bahnsen has been requested by the Alumnae Association to keep on hand a stock of the official badges of the Alumnae Society. She will be pleased to give any information relative to price.

Address MRS. H. T. BAHNSON,
Salem, N. C.

DAVIS SCHOOL

Military Boarding School

FOR BOYS and YOUNG MEN.

Full preparation for any College or for Business. Healthy location, fine climate; mild winters; excellent buildings; Cadet Corner Band; Cadet Orchestra; Resident Surgeon. No Extra Charge for Medical Attention. No Extra Charge for Languages or Sciences. Department of Art. Full Course

VERY LOW RATES. For Register with full particulars address

COL. A. C. DAVIS, Supt.,
WINSTON, N. C.

A REVOLUTION.

In methods of teaching PHYSIOLOGY and GEOGRAPHY. More and better work done with the use of YAGGY'S STUDIES in one year than in three terms without them.

YAGGY'S GEOGRAPHICAL STUDY,

comprising PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, GEOLOGICAL and ASTRONOMICAL Geography.

YAGGY'S ANATOMICAL STUDY

showing in a striking and original manner the structure and organs of the human body, full size, natural color; also a series of Object Lessons on the ruin of the body by intoxicants.

WHY FOLLOW THE OLD RUTS?

Adopt the above POPULAR, ORIGINAL and FASCINATING APPLIANCES and teach by the OBJECT METHOD.

Circulars sent on application.

WESTERN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
No. 3 East 14th Street,
New York City.

April 1890-1y.

WORCESTER'S DICTIONARY

"The highest authority known as to the use of the English language."

With or without Deacon's Patent Index.

The Standard of the Leading Publishers, Magazines, and Newspapers.

The Dictionary of the Scholar for Spelling, Pronunciation, and Accuracy in Definition.

Send for large Circular to the Publishers,
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,
PHILADELPHIA.

May, 1890. 1 y.

(REVISED EDITION.)

Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia is a whole library of universal knowledge from the pen of the ablest scholars in America and Europe. It is accepted as high authority in our leading colleges.

IT IS NOT FOR THE FEW,

Like Appleton's, the Britannica, or the "International,"

BUT FOR ALL.

It has just been thoroughly revised at a cost of over $60,000, and three years' labor by forty editors, and over 2,000 renowned contributors.

It is in 8 convenient sized volumes.

No father can give to his child at school, or his son or daughter just entering the arena of life, anything that will be of more permanent benefit.

It is an education supplementary to that of the Schools.

"The next few years will witness a great change in educational ideas. The possibilities of self-culture are to be emphasized, and the means of aid and direction increased. After a careful examination of 'Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia,' I am convinced that while it is excellently adapted to the needs of professional and business men, it is eminently useful to the earnest, thorough self-educator.

"This work, with its corps of contributors, offers accurate articles on the widest range of subjects. To the value of trustworthy information is added the inspection of personality associated with great names.

I heartily commend this Cyclopedia to all, and especially to those who are pursuing self-courses in the great university of life.

JOHN H. VINCENT, (Bishop),
"Chancellor, Chatauqua University."

Address, for particulars, terms and circulars,

A. J. JOHNSON & CO.,

11 Great Jones Street, N. Y.

Representatives wanted in every county.

From the Librarian of Harvard University,
Cambridge, Mass.

DEC. 16, 1889. — "There is perhaps no better test of the merit of a cyclopedia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA has, during many years' experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language."

From Rev. Thos. Hill, D.D., LL.D., Ex-
President of Harvard University.

PORTLAND, MAINE, Aug. 6, 1889. — "JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA (revised edition) is an ever-present companion and friend, and I consult it very much more frequently than I do my Britannica, Appleton's, Webster's Unabridged, etc., etc., and very seldom fail to find in it just the kind and amount of information which I need."

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL.D., Librarian of Congress, Washington D. C.

"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference."

* BELO-HOUSE.*

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan. '90-1y.

"Bingham School

stands pre-eminent among Southern boarding Schools for Boys."—U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Combines more desirable qualities than any other with which I am acquainted."—Lieut. J. B. Batchelor, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

"There exists not the equal of this School in my opinion."—Capt. Henry Wygant, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

More than 100 pupils from other States, the largest number in a Southern School for boys from outside the State of location.

Address,

Maj. R. BINGHAM

Bingham's School, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER, JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

— Dealer in —

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES, AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT," AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

HOTEL FOUNTAIN,

WINSTON, N. C.

The Leading Hotel of the Twin-Cities.

It will be Run in the Special Interest of
the Travelling Public.

Table Supplied with All the Delicacies of the Season,
Attentive Servants.

J. W. GRAY, form, Prop'r Cooper House, Statesville, N. C.
Apr. 90-1y.

FRIENDS!

Have you visited D. D. SCHOULER'S Stores this season? If not, it will pay you to do so. His RACKET STORE is twice the size it was last year, and now has a very large stock of goods, including everything for the household or personal adornment, below market prices.

Special attention is called to the SHOE DEPARTMENT, and the carpets, oilcloth, and upholstery, which are remarkably cheap.

Mr. SCHOULER has been in New York many weeks, and when we say that, every one knows from past experience what bargains to expect.

SCHOULER'S Millinery Establishment wishes to thank its many patrons for their generous support, which has helped it to grow and prosper, and know that its efforts to give satisfaction in Goods, Styles and Prices have been appreciated. We have the LARGEST STOCK and the LOWEST PRICES in town.

SCHOULER'S MILLINERY ESTABLISHMENT,
3RD ST., SOUTH OF COURT HOUSE.

— 1500 HATS, —

Including every novelty of the season.

IMPORTED HATS, BONNETS, and TOQUES at reasonable prices.

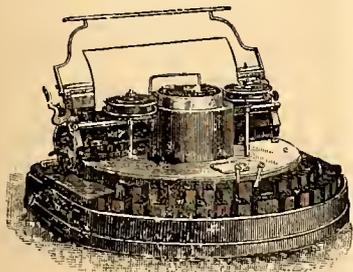

SPECIAL—One lot of Hats, fashionable shapes and good straws, 19 cents.—Children's beautiful fine satin Straws, trimmed, only 89 cents.—By far the largest stock of Ribbons, Laces, Flowers, and Hats, in the Twin City, at lowest prices.

HENRY W. MILLER,

STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY and PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.

Price, complete with two type wheels, $500.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.

Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.

Send for Catalogue.

WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,

CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

HARPER'S
SCHOOL SPEAKERS,

Compiled and Arranged by JAMES BALDWIN, PH. D., editor of "Harper's Readers."

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKER.
FIRST BOOK.

PART I. ARBOR DAY.—Exercises in poetry and prose for Spring Festivals, Arbor Day, Flower Planting Day, and other similar occasions. With an introduction by GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

PART II. MEMORIAL DAY.—Selections suitable for use in schools, and for public exercises in connection with the observances of Memorial or Decoration Day.

12mo, Cloth, 240 pages; price, 60 cents.

IN PREPARATION.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. SECOND BOOK. GRADED SELECTIONS. I. For First Reader Pupils. II. For Second Reader Pupils. III. For Third Reader Pupils. IV. For Fourth Reader Pupils. V. For Advanced Students and Public Readers.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. THIRD BOOK.—MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS especially adapted for use at morning "Opening Exercises." I. Life. II. Nature. III. Labor. IV. Laughter. V. Experience. VI. Duty. VII. Aspiration. VIII. Reverence. IX. Retrospection. Nearly two hundred selections.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. FOURTH BOOK.—PATRIOTIC SELECTIONS. I. Patriotism as a Principle of Life. Patriotism in "the Brave Days of Old." III. Our Country. IV. Our Flag. V. The Patriotic Citizen. VI. Washington's Birthday.

HARPER'S READERS.

The Most Successful School Books of this Century.

Prin. O. P. LEE, Edgefield Academy, S. C., says: "They are far superior to anything of the kind I have seen."

Prin. H. B. PARKER, Hampton Male and Female Academy, Ga., says: "We are perfectly delighted with the series."

Prin. M. N. WETMORE, Branson, S. C., says: "I think them as hear perfect in every way as books can be."

Hon. H. A. GUDGER, President of School Board, Asheville, N. C., says: "Harper's Readers are used in our public schools, and give perfect satisfaction."

Send for Price List and Terms for Introduction.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers

FRANKLIN SQUARE, New York City.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA
SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth, and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California.

Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pounds of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S.—E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 235, Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass. & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

—* MISS EMMA H. LEINBACH, *—

(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up. 155 Lexington Avenue New York.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leibach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

Mrs. NANCY TURNER, SALEM, N. C.

SPENCERIAN
STEEL PENS

Are the Best,

IN THE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES OF Durability, Evenness of Point, and Workmanship.

Samples for trial of 12 different styles by mail, on receipt of 10 cents in stamps. Ask for card No. 8.

WILSON, BLAKEMAN & CO., 753 Broadway, New York.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway

offers first-class service between Winston and Salem and Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all other points on the Atlantic Coast Line, and Savannah Florida and Western systems in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Solid trains run to Wilmington, where easy transfer is made by hack in the forenoon to the trains of the

Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley,

then a change of cars is made at Walnut Cove Union Station, arriving at Winston-Salem at 9:00 p. m. Those not securing through tickets can purchase tickets and re-check their baggage to Winston-Salem at Wilmington. From all stations on the Main Line of the CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY to Winston-Salem only one change of cars is necessary, at Walnut Cove Union Station.

J. W. FRY, Gen. Supt. Greensboro, N. C.
W. E. KYLE, Gen. Pass. Ag't Fayetteville, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem, N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class. Sure connection by all lines from the East, and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School. For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED.

Patrons of this paper, old students of Salem Female Academy, everybody interested in the history of the early Moravians of North Carolina to send for a copy of "TWIN-CITIES - WINSTON - SALEM." Price 25 cents. Stamps received. Address,
Mrs. A. V. WINKLER,
Salem, N. C.

Mar. '90—4m

THE BEAUTIFUL

NORTH.

The shortest and most direct line to Harrodsburg, Shelbyville, Lexington, Frankfort, Paris. Only 11 hours and 35 minutes Chattanooga to Louisville, only 11 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Boudoir Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England Points and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

SOUTH

The only line Chattanooga to Birmingham, Meridian, Jackson, Vicksburg, and Shreveport, making direct connections without omnibus transfer at Shreveport for Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston, Austin, Texas; New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Mexico and California. Shortest and Quickest Line to New Orleans, with solid Trains and Through Pullman Sleepers, making direct connections for Texas, Mexico and California. Close connection made en route for Memphis, Little Rock and Arkansas Points. Anniston, Columbus, Montgomery, Mobile, Natchez.

Passengers ticketed and Baggage checked through to destination.
For rates, Correct County Maps, and full information, call at QUEEN & CRESCENT TICKET OFFICE, READ HOUSE, or CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION CHAS. H. MILLS, Ticket Agt. C. S. BARRETT, T. P. A. Depot. Read House.
D. J. MULLANEY, Div. Pass. Ag't, Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. C. HARVEY CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS, Vice Pres. G. P. & T. A.

THE

"COTTON BELT ROUTE"

St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railway,
Carries More Pupils to and from Arkansas and Texas than all other lines to those States combined.

Why? Because this is the only line which has furnished, as promised, elegant chair cars direct from the school to the scholar's home, and from the home back to school without changes en route. These cars are fitted up for this class of travel exclusively with retiring and toilet rooms, accompanied by an attentive porter and in charge of an Agent of the Company, who sees that the car is reserved for the use of the pupils only.

We have handled the First-Class Schools of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and other States for a series of years, and in no instance has any school, commencing with us, patronized, subsequently, any other line.

This is the only line from Memphis running Two Daily Trains through to Texas without change of cars, and without Omnibus Transfer in Memphis from Eastern Lines.

Correspondence solicited from Principals of Schools and Parents concerning the safe conduct of scholars, by

D. MILLER, General Pass. Agent.
E. W. LaBEAUME, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, Gen. Agt. Memphis, Tenn.
S. G. Warner, Trav. Agt. Memphis, Tenn.
W. H. Winfield, Gen. Agt. P. Dept. Texarkana, Tex.
W. G. Adams, Pass. Agent, Nashville, Tenn.

:- "SOLD ON MERIT." :-
THE LIGHT-RUNNING "DOMESTIC."

Do you need a Piano?
Do you need an Organ?
Do you need a Violin?
Do you need a Musical Implement of any kind? Have you an old Instrument you wish to exchange?
If so you will find it to your interest to call and consult the undersigned.

W. P. ORMSBY,
MAIN ST., - - SALEM, N. C.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

STIEFF PIANOS

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XII.

SALEM, N. C., SEPTEMBER, 1890.

NUMBER 108.

The Children's Day at Salem.

REV. E. RONDTHALER, D.D.

THE children of Salem have had another very happy festal occasion. It was spent in connection with their annual covenant day, August 17th, which is set apart in the Moravian Church as the day on which the children, from earliest childhood to fourteen years of age are reminded of their covenant to love and serve the Savior, and thus to be in truth the lambs of the fold.

On Saturday afternoon at half-past four o'clock, the children met with their pastor in the Home Chapel. Very many were present and the meeting, though not very formal, was bright and interested. A Scripture text is appointed as the children's watchword for each covenant year. For 1889-'90 it was Paul's word to young Timothy: "Continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of." II Tim. 3. 14. The pastor spoke with the children about what they had learned of Christ during the year. The list of the names of the companions added to their class and of those whom the Lord had been pleased during the year to take to himself was also announced. The festal hymns were prepared, and after an hour thus pleasantly spent, the company, including some very little ones, happily went their way.

It would have pleased any of our readers to have seen them coming together again on the next morning. First, the chorals from church tower announced that it was the children's festal day. Then they began to gather from different directions, and many a white dress gleamed through the shaded, grass-grown Square in front of the Female Academy just below the church. In their morning service the children received and repeated their watchword for the new covenant year. It is as follows: "Have ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise." Mat. 21. 16. The duty of praising their Savior was simply and briefly dwelt upon, prayer was offered in their behalf for the twelve-months of growth and young experience lying before them.

At half-past two in the afternoon the Children's Lovefeast took place. On this occasion, as many of the readers of THE ACADEMY well know, coffee and cake are served and hymns are sung alternately by the church-choir, by the parents and older friends, and by the children themselves. It was a happy sight to see the pleased look of many a little child in mother's arms, or seated beside parent or teacher. A very little boy had voiced their feeling when at the breakfast table he exclaimed: "Oh, the day is all for us!"

In the evening a very large congregation was gathered to witness the closing exercises of the day. The pastor explained the historical reason of the festival. At the same time that the exiles from Moravia were blessed by the spirit of God in their home of refuge at Herrnhut, Saxony, the children received a sweet reviving. In the first Moravian Boarding School for Girls, where a few daughters of German noblemen were being educated, the instructions of Count Zinzendorff had awakened a fervent mind with regard to the love and sacrifice of the Savior for sinful children. Among the other youth of the village a similar awakening was going on. In thicket, or in field, or in the garden, the voice of their prayer could be often heard, asking for God's grace in the forgiveness of their sins. One little girl especially, Susanna Kuehnel by name, was busy in helping her companions to the Savior. The day on which she herself had found the Lord, August 17th, 1727, became, at a later time, the Children's Covenant Day in the whole Moravian Church.

After the service within the sanctuary came the most beautiful part of it, outside the church doors. It was a warm and beautiful night. The electric lights in the Salem Square shone upon hundreds of faces, intent upon the solemn, tender service. From the church tower above there fell through the intervening darkness a succession of chorals, such as are played upon brass instruments in connection with the Easter ritual and on other special occasions. Then followed the hymns of the Sunday School children, clustered in the centre of the great and orderly throng.

Next the whole congregation of old and young joined in the classic hymn which every Moravian knows by heart:

"Jesus makes my heart rejoice,
I'm his sheep and know his voice,
He's a shepherd kind and gracious,
And his pastures are delicious,
Constant love to me he shows,
Yea, my worthless name he knows."

The doxology and benediction closed the service. The children separated from under the many Chinese lanterns which had illuminated their happy faces, and the great congregation quietly dispersed, while the chorals from the church tower accompanied them with sounds gently lessening in the distance.

Thus ended the Children's Day of 1890 at Salem. It was throughout a picture of the earnest desire of the Moravian Church with regard to her own children and those temporarily committed to her charge from other Churches. We want to win their hearts for the Lord Jesus Christ. We believe that a personal union with the Savior will be their best safeguard during the years of youthful struggle and temptation. We believe that the simple child-like effort to please Him with every day's duty will produce a fine-grained, conscientious temper and will effect the formation in later life of a character both strong and tender. We believe that studies pursued under the light of the Savior's influence will be better done; better remembered and more fruitful for future good than could be the case under any other environment. Thus the Moravian Church judges concerning her own children, and if, in the case of other children committed to her care, she can, through the blessing of God, win them for Christ, or keep for Him what has been already won, and in that spirit return them to their own denominations as Christ-loving Christians, she believes that she has done what her Lord, in this one field of service, has given her to do.

—A tin roof has been put on the former chapel building, now used by the Seniors as a dormitory, and also on the buildings immediately south of this structure. This gives the entire group of buildings about Main Hall metal roofs.

Certum Pete Finem.

HONOR ESSAY OF MISS ANNIE BOURDEAUX, MERIDIAN, MISS., READ AT COMMENCE-
MENT, 1890.

A FIXED aim—or an object—is absolutely essential to success in any walk of life. Even if our placé is a lowly one, as some must be, and our aspirations not high, our aim must be fixed, or our work will be unsuccessful.

Who would set out on a journey without having the end of that journey impressed on the mind, as far as we can control circumstances? Who would begin a piece of work without some ideal of the finished perfection of that work? What would we think of a man who set out to build a house without a fixed plan, and just went along as fancy directed? here a gable, there an arch or a turret; what a wonderful structure that would be! Yet that is just what so many do with the choicest work of all, the building up of a life. We are all architects of fate, and the acts of our to-days and yesterdays are the materials with which we build for eternity. It becomes us, therefore, to set out with a steady purpose in view.

General Grant was no genius, he was rather ordinary, but his steady determination to carry out his plans, placed him in the front rank of military leaders. The sculptor makes his plans, blocks out his figure and then with patience carves the lines with many a sharp incision, until the perfected statue stands before him in finished beauty.

"Sculptors of life are we as we stand With our lives uncarved before us," carving it steadily, often painfully, but with glorious results.

We have now reached the first great crisis of our lives, that "tide in our affairs" which must turn one way or the other; and this our class motto, Certum pete finem, "Aim at a certain end," should be deeply impressed on heart and mind. Banded together as a class let this motto be deeply engraven on the golden clasp, and though our paths shall from this day widely diverge, yet we can still be guided by this formative motto. Our old companionships are being broken up, our class ties severed, and we are about to return to our homes the same and not the same. Our minds have been trained more or less; our sympathies have been broadened. If we return home and settle down to an aimless society life, we shall be conscious of a vague restlessness. Our school life has been filled with its duties and its pleasures laid out in advance. There was no uncertainty as to what should be done next; no lack of agreeable employment which made the days fleet so quickly by. Now, all this will come to a sudden stop; time to be filled as circumstances shall direct. Some fixed aim, some object is a necessity for us; for no less now than when Watts sang does "Satan find some mischief still for idle hands to do."

The great danger of young ladyhood is aimless drifting. What a blessing then a congenial employment becomes, something that we can like enthusiastically, whether it be art, music or domestic duties, ornamental needlework, or making bread and pies.

An idle, aimless life is the instigator of intrigue, the parent of hasty, imprudent marriages, the root of almost every evil that lies in wait to wreck our future.

If we are to be in so-called society, to make pleasure the aim and business of life we may possibly be allured by an endless round of calls and entertainments; but the finer our mental machinery is the sooner will we tire of them; and we see so many who are utterly surfeited with these things, willing to do any thing for a change. Like Miss Drexel, the daughter of a celebrated Philadelpaia banker, a millionaire in her own right, who recently took the veil; it is this unrest, this utter weariness of a vain society life that sends so many into convents; into the hospitals as nurses, or into many avenues of employment which have only within the last years opened before women. Happy will we be if real life brings with it the pleasures of society as an occasional enjoyment and not as the end and aim of being. Not that I would be misunderstood as advocating a career for myself or any of my classmates, but we must have a fixed desire to be something and to do something. A quick eye to see the right thing and a ready hand to do it. Our age is filled with glorious opportunities, and it is for us to say whether these opportunities shall be used and life become a grand success, or neglected and life become a sad failure.

"Seize then the hour
When fortune smiles and duty points the way."

Our class colors, the purple and the gold, are types of our lives as we climb out of the depths into the sun-filled raptures of the gold, royally bright and pure. The deep imperial purple of endeavor and struggle changing into the clear golden light of assured success.

The great end and aim of all struggle, of all endeavor, should be to make of this life's experiences a Jacob's Ladder by which to rise from earth to heaven; to make true Gospel religion the crown of every grace of person, of intellect, of every accomplishment, of every noble sentiment, of every womanly quality; the coronet by which we become, in truth, the King's Daughters, the heirs of the sweetest privileges and the highest honors of his kingdom.

Letter from Miss L. Shaffner.

[We give a very interesting letter received some time since from Miss SHAFFNER and trust that THE ACADEMY may be favored with many more communications in regard to this most interesting and successful tour.]

INTERLAKEN, July 18th, 1890.

Dear Mr. Clewett:

Our thoughts often wander across the ocean to old Salem and always with the wish that we could share what we enjoy with those at home. You have doubtless heard from others of our pleasant ocean voyage and journey through Holland and Belgium. Our trip up the Rhine from Cologne to Mayence was most interesting and the end came all too soon. At Mayence we soon found the monuments of Guttenberg and Schiller. The old castle at Heidelberg was the next point of interest; we of course immediately inquired for the big Tun, capable of containing 49,000 gallons of wine. We stood on the top, but did not dance.

In Strassburg, the Cathedral with its wonderful clock, so often described to us in childhood by our father, claimed our chief attention, and, oh, how we did wish our Salem young folk could see it. Here Miss EVANS left us for Paris, and we went to Basle where we spent two days. From Basle we visited our old uncle and spent a most pleasant week with him; would like to see him once more but fear we will not have the time.

We felt as if we must see Herrnhut before returning to America, so not giving ourselves time to wonder if we could, we started, and will never regret having gone. We found Herrnhut much as we had imaged, and were very kindly treated while there and in Berthelsdorf. Mrs. Romig inquired about Mrs. CLEWELL and her mother. Mr. Romig intends visiting Salem about the beginning of September, when he will pass through America on his way to the Mosquito Coast. We also visited Kleinwelke, though its charm was wanting, the children having gone for several weeks to relatives and friends; but we saw the place and went through the buildings.

We stopped one day in Dresden to see the picture gallery, and one day also in Nuremberg, the quaint old city, where we wished to stay longer, but could not. We returned to Basle where, on last Tuesday, we joined Mr. Townsend and party. The party is much larger than we thought it would be, but the members are very cordial and the few days we have spent with them promise us a very pleasant time.

A ride of 2½ hours brought us to Lucerne, which we found a much more modern place than we had thought. Our hotel was prettily situated, with the Rigi to our left, the rugged Mount Pilatus to our right, a snow capped range between and the Lake just before us. We spent two nights in the city and wished for a third. Of course we saw the Lion, so different from the cuts we had seen. A sail of one hour and ten minutes on the Lake brought us to the mountain railway station, where we were soon seated in one of the cars and on our way up the Rigi. The view was grand, equalling that along the Rhine. Though the sun was shining in Lucerne when we started and when we returned, we found the top of the mountain in a cloud, so that our view just from the top was misty.

Yesterday we left Lucerne and came to Interlaken, over the Brunig Pass, the ascent almost as steep as that of the Rigi; and the mountains with their many cascades, the lakes and the valleys with their pretty villages made a picture we will never forget. At Brienz we exchanged the cars for a steamboat, and after a delightful sail on the Lake, passing the celebrated Giessbach Falls, arrived at Bonigen, where we once more took seats in cars, and in about 15 minutes were in Interlaken. Here we had our first good view of the Jungfrau, and a most beautiful view it was, the snowy peaks against the dark blue sky. Our hotel is on the Hokeweg, with the Jungfrau, in her dazzling robe of white, in front and the green waters of the Aar flowing back of it. Behind the river rise mountains so high that their tops are all the time enveloped in clouds.

We will remain here until some time tomorrow when we will continue our journey to Lausanne. The weather so far has been cool, but we look for warmer. It has generally been fine, and the rain has never inconvenienced us. We are quite well, have been so all the time, and very thankful for it. We expect to sail from Boulogne on the 3rd of September, and hope by the middle of the month to be again in Salem and ready for work.

Please remember us very kindly to Mrs. CLEWELL and her mother if in Salem, also to your mother and Mrs. Jenkins, Dr. RONDHALER and every body at the ACADEMY.

Pardon me for writing so much; I did not intend to when I began. We hope you and family have been well and have had a pleasant summer so far. With kindest regards to yourself from us both,

yours truly,

L. SHAFFNER.

The 89th Annual Session of Salem Female Academy.

The following appeared recently in the People's Press, and it gives us pleasure to reproduce it:

"The pride and love our people cherish for Salem Female Academy is not in any danger of diminishment. Each succeeding session but more fully proves how strongly this School is entrenched in the hearts of the Southern people, and also the widening influences of its principles, which are, simply, the truth. Recent years have witnessed the addition of more house room—and this will be no exception,—until there is beginning to be felt the want of ONE building which, in its location, architecture and finish, shall be emblematic of female education in the South. Not full of the freaks of many college buildings, but stately and handsome as the ideal Southern woman is,—bearing in wall and column and general feature the impress of its mission, so "that he who runs may read." When this building will face the public square, who knows? Yet, the times we live in demand that thought must be quickly followed by action. The remarkable events and extraordinary changes that have taken place in Winston-Salem since the session of '89-'90 opened show this conclusively. If the Academy was merely a corporate school of individual capitalists then the public would have no primal interest in its affairs; but with us it is different, as like the Federal government is to the nation so the Academy is to us as a Church. The founders knew that the higher the education of its members the nobler and more exalted the worship. Education is the means not the end in our system.

Considering the question of such a building, then—if it can be considered as a question, experience shows us that other needs will arise, other wants must be met, hence the sooner the first is provided for the sooner the others will be disposed of. There is no need of the sweep of the whirlwind desire for change simply as change, but a grasping of peculiar situations with more vigor and understanding by the entire community. The means will never be wanting. The thrift and economy and industry which have been so often ridiculed by those who should have practised what they derided, will always be a feature here, let come what will, and therefore there can hardly come a time when we need fail to meet the apparently great expense, which will be amply justified by the objects attained.

To-day the 89th Annual Session of Salem Female Academy begins, with 150 boarders on the books and applications still pouring in. How often in days past have the fathers of Salem been criticized for locating the town in such a broken section. The natural drainage, the many streams of running water, the varied scenery, the sweep of hill and dale, where could a better location have been found for the purposes of our time? And this is one large reason why there are 150 boarders at the Academy. The conditions of health are met and the theories in this regard are naught.

The Academy's corps of instructors have returned from vacation, happily spent in foreign lands, at summer resort or in quiet old Salem. Brightened by contact with other scenes, rested by the waves, invigorated by mountain breeze, the work in hand for the next months will be vigorously prosecuted.

Then with our people more deeply interested than ever in the School and its work, with the great machinery of school-life in perfect working order, with so many bright, strong young lives from the Potomac to the Gulf eager for the struggle before them, with the prayers of the whole Church for Divine guidance and protection, we may look with no strained vision for a session of unexampled prosperity and success.

Hail to '90-'91.

PEN-STICK.

—The school plan is now made out in a somewhat novel and unusual way. The instructors' names and also the studies are printed on strips of paper and these in turn are pasted on blocks of wood. In case of a needed change the block is not easily misplaced, and hence the mortification of losing studies and teachers' names is not so easily experienced.

Personal Items.

—We were pleased to receive a call from Mrs. Dora Dunn and Mrs. Annie Hunt, both of Neuse, N. C., pupils about twenty-five years ago. Their friendship for SALEM ACADEMY is still strong.

—Gladys Crawford ('90) spent a few days with us in September.

—Claudia Palmer is daughter of S. E. Amiss, who was here from 1846-'50 and whose home was in Montgomery Co., Va.

—Mrs. A. Strong, living in Blakely, Ga., was Allie Blocker, and was a pupil in the ACADEMY in 1872.

—Carrie Mickey has accepted a position at Lumber Bridge, N. C., and will take charge of the music department of that institution.

—Mr. John G. Rawlings, of Chattanooga, Tenn, called to see us August 7th, and spent an hour inspecting the buildings.

—Mrs. J. W. Copeland (Lydie Vance) gave us a pleasant call some weeks since.

—Miss Theo Fitzgerald is visiting friends in Winston and Salem.

Our Library.

Books received:

Barnes' Brief History of Ancient, Medieval and Modern Peoples.

"A New History of Texas," by Mrs. Anna Pennybadser, donated by Mrs. Mary Lang Reade, Corsicana, Texas.

—The first Saturday in October "Architecture and Building" will be published in the form of a special school issue and will give a number of plates from the $500 school house to the most elaborate Academies. Address Architecture and Building, 23 Warren St., N. Y.

—We have just received two new books in Natural Science from the publishing house of D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, Mass., Chute's Physics and Shaler's First Book in Geology. They are both first class modern works, in fact coming from this excellent publishing House is a guarantee of their merit.

—Now that a new year has opened will not our friends remember the good work already begun in the Library and see that the very flattering beginning in this important branch of the school's interests be steadily supported and strengthened. Remember Miss SIEWER's suggestion to "register" in the Library by sending a book to permanently preserve your autograph, and also bear in mind that the Griffis Library Fund is growing steadily, is bearing interest, and is waiting to receive further gifts from our well-wishers.

—We have received from Hon. J. M. Brower, M. C., an Atlas to accompany a Monograph on the Geology of the Quick-silver Deposits of the Pacific Slope, by George F. Becker.

Also an Atlas to accompany a Monograph on the Geology and Mining Industries of Leadville, Col., by S. T. Emmons.

Old School Mates.

Eighteen years ago, Miss LAURA IRVIN, of Cabarrus county, and Miss MAGGIE McCAULEY, of Mt. Gilead, Montgomery county, were school-mates in Salem Female Academy. Since then they have been separated and had lost complete knowledge of each other's whereabouts, and since then the former has become Mrs. Jno. A. Moss, and the latter answers to the name of Mrs. Maggie Ingram, of Stanly county.

Last Sunday Mrs. Moss saw a lady at Misenheimer and Lentz's Springs, whose features seemed familiar. "I must speak to her," said Mrs. Moss; she advancing said: "Is this not MAGGIE McCAULEY?" "and is this not LAURA IRVIN?" When the friends of both parties looked at them they were in each other's embrace and kissing each other as old school-mates will do. Years had passed, time had left its impressions and cares had changed them some, but they knew each other and were happy.—Concord Standard.

Professor Clewell's Birthday.

To-day being the anniversary of Principal Clewell's birthday the Salem College girls were permitted to take a little airing on the street cars. Several car loads were taken out on the different lines—a delightful change for the girls from the monotony of every day school-life. The ride was very much enjoyed by the young ladies. Principal Clewell seems to be in the best of health, with every prospect of his living to celebrate a great many more birthdays. It is certainly a sincere wish of ours that such may be his lot. The College is now prospering beyond measure under his able and careful management, and we trust it may continue to be thus richly blest. The foundation for mental and moral training was laid wisely and well, and since then no defective material has been used in the structure. We were invited to take dinner at the College with the Principal, but very much regretted that our duties at the office prevented our doing so. However, Mr. Clewell knows our heart is with him.—Twin-City Daily, Sept. 19.

Members of Alumna Association.

Vogler, Miss Maria E.,	Salem, N. C.
Van Vleck, Miss Amelia,	"
Vail, Miss Cora L.,	Charlotte, N. C.
Vail, Miss Ida,	"
Vogler, Miss Marianna,	Salem, N. C.
Vogler, Miss Minnie,	"
Vance, Mrs. A. (Addie Fogle),	"
Vest, Miss Sallie,	"
Vest, Miss Carrie,	"
Vogler, Mrs. A. C.,	"
Winkler, Miss Claude,	"
Welfare, Miss Jane E.,	"
Woodward, Mrs. Amelia R.,	Cincinnati, O.
Wharton, Mrs. J. N., (A. Lang),	Marlin, Tex.
Wolle, Miss Lizzie,	Bethlehem, Pa.
Weatherly, Miss Mary,	Bennettsville, S. C.
Wiseman, Mrs. Dr., (Alphonine Douthit),	Farmington, N. C.
Wright, Mrs. (G. Bowe),	Columbia, S. C.
Williams, Mrs. (Sue Bryan),	Oxford, N. C.
Warner, Mrs. (Alice Hord),	Chattanooga, Tenn.
Wyatt, Mrs. J. P., (M. Hicks),	Raleigh, N. C.
Wriston, Mrs. M. E., (A. Springs),	Charlotte, N. C.
Welfare, Miss Mary,	Salem, N. C.
Whitner, Miss Janie	Ft. Reed, Fla.
Winkler, Miss Bessie,	Salem, N. C.
Winkler, Miss Mattie,	"
Watkins, Mrs. Dr., (Flora Conrad),	"
Walker, Miss Mary,	Oxford, N. C.
Zevely, Miss Mary,	Salem, N. C.

Subscriptions Received.

Mrs G W Hinshaw, Mr R W Nading, Mrs L Haines, Winston, N. C.; Miss Helen Ruff, Rock Hill, S. C.; Mrs F M Tomkins, Webster, N. C.; Mrs J F McCliskey, Belleville, Ark.; Miss Mary V Smith, Coxville, N. C.; Miss Agnes Parker, Coatope, Ala.; Mr Jas M Beck, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs Eliza Clark Brown, Marion, S. C.; Miss Jennie C Sieger, Mr F W Lineback, Bethlehem, Pa.; Mrs Loula Blount, Appling, Ga.; Mrs M J Hill, Macon, Ga.; Mrs Aggie Clark, Mrs Sue Battle, Marlin, Texas; Miss Lillian Parker, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs W T Pate, Laurel Hill, N. C.; Miss Mirta Hicks, Waco, Texas; Mr W A Brown, Davidson College, N. C.; Mrs S K Kernan, Mrs Walter Staley, Marion, Va.; Miss Gertrude Siewers, Mrs Joseph Gibbons, Miss Mary Lewis, Mrs Dr H T Bahson, Edward Belton, W T Vogler, Mrs R W Belo, Miss Daisy Brooks, Mrs Carrie Reich, A C Vogler, Mrs C W Vogler, Salem, N. C.; Miss Sallie Kinnon, Selma, Ala.; Mrs Sue V Hart, Tarboro, N. C.; Mrs Eunice H O'char, Winstons, S. C.; Mrs J L Minnaugh, Columbia, S. C.; Mrs L L Strickland, Bethania, N. C.; Miss Pamela Goodman, Mount Sylvian, Texas; S A Goodman, Tyler, Texas; Miss Mary C Jennings, Plum Branch, S. C.; Mrs J A Caldwell, Chattanooga, Tenn.; News & Observer, Raleigh, N. C.; Dr A H Byrd, Eataw, Ala.; Mrs J A Vance, Salem, N. C.; Miss Janie Sherrille, Bennettsville, S. C.; Lieut S C Lemly, Brooklyn Navy Yard, N. Y.; Mrs J N Wharton, Dallas, Texas; Mrs J F Ramsey, Asheville, N. C.; Miss Mary Fitzpatrick, Mt Pleasant, Texas; Mrs Eugene Kapp, Bethania, N. C.; Mrs Kate Hayley, Emery, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs Hennie Schiff Prince, Washington, D. C.; Mrs Dr L P Black, Taylor, Texas; Miss C A Lamkin, Summit, Miss; Miss A W Boyd, Magnolia, Miss; Mrs D W Moore, Van Buren, Ark.; Mrs Brown McCallum, Mineral Spring, N. C.; Miss Nellie Warner, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs Dora V Dunn, Neuse, N. C.; Mrs J W Cates, Marysville, Tenn.; Miss Maggie McKinnon, Rowland, N. C.; Mrs Frank Miller, Mrs F C Hoge, Winston, N. C.; Mrs E B Heard, Elberton, Ga.; Mrs Jacob Bickenderfer, Farmington, Washington; Mrs Andrew J Cobb, Athens, Ga.; Mrs Lula Callaway Nelson, Loraine, Ga.; Mrs J S Carr, Durham, N. C.; Mrs J E Frierson, Butler, Ga.; Miss Irah Dunlap, Macon, Ga.; Miss Viola Gunter, Gastonia, N. C.; Mrs John Landstreet, Greenville, Tenn.; Miss Mollie Spach, Bath, Pa.; Miss Annie Brown, Towns, Miss; Mrs L. Mc E. Heard, Elberton, Ga.; Mrs J. Mrs J B Churchill, Alma Place, La.; Mrs M A Hartstene, New York, N. Y.; Mrs Hallie Dunklin, Waco, Texas; Mrs W T Brown, Mrs L Haines, Mrs F G Schann, Mrs Kate Fuller, Mrs John Leak, Mrs Sallie Hill Steadman, Mrs Lela Wilson Gray, Winston, N. C.; Mrs W A Lemly, Mrs Chas A Fogle, Mrs Flora Watkins, Salem, N. C.; Mrs Mand Clegg Fielder, Silver City, New Mexico; Mrs Sue Draughn, Tarboro, N. C.; Mrs N G Wadley, Wytheville, Va.; Mrs Amanda M Rutherford, Houston, Va.; Mrs A Sturdivant, Charlotte, N. C.; Miss Hattie Sutton, Fayetteville, N. C.; Miss Lydie Irby, J W Copeland, Clinton, S. C.; Mrs Maggie Siler, Shelby, N. C.

Correspondence.

—Our first communication is from MAGGIE GRAHAM, one of our warm-hearted Seniors of the past year, who is remembered with much affection :

Long ere this I suppose you have the new Seniors in order, but please give us a passing thought occasionally. We, judging by myself, often think of you, and how I have longed to see the dear old ACADEMY again ! I would willingly come back and pass another year if that terrible bridge, the graduating essay, did darken the horizon. I almost wish that the ACADEMY was not so beloved by its Alumnæ, that something would make it not quite so pleasant a home for us, for I long so very, very much to stroll again through those beautiful grounds ; even your tap on my alcove would be pleasant to hear now.

My young ladyhood has been very pleasant, none could have been more so, but I believe our school-days in a pleasant school are, after all, the happiest.

I suppose you have heard from a great many of the girls this summer. I, too, have letters from a great many. ANNIE BOURDEAUX was quite ill after her return to Mississippi, but, as her letters give ample proof, has quite regained her health and spirits. Who of our class are back at Salem ? Please give them all my love.

I expect to see the Texas girls in a few months. I will probably visit MARY FITZPATRICK, JEANIE SMITH and TIBBIE WOMACK, spending a few days with REBA CAMPBELL, and some time with relatives.

If the Seniors of '91 resemble those of '90 I know that you wish I would hush and let you go to them. I wonder who will "carry the mail" when you receive this letter. How familiar that old phrase sounds to me !

Please send me THE ACADEMY for one year, beginning with the first number that is published. That much of my Alma Mater I intend having as long as I live. If you can spare the time please write me and tell me all about the girls, teachers and ACADEMY. Give my love to everything in the ACADEMY, Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL and Dr. RONDHALER, love to the Seniors of '91, but please don't let them engross all of your time and affections, and sometimes remember the class of '90.

With much love, your ex-pupil,
MADGE GRAHAM.

Forest, Miss.

—Our next gives us interesting information of friends of an earlier day, yet we are all members of one large family, whether we are from Mississippi, from Texas, or from the Old North State.

Please find enclosed postal order for $1.00, for which send THE ACADEMY to Mrs. Lenora Fleming McKoy, Dickinson, Harnett Co., N. C., and to Mrs. John B. Eaves, Statesville, N. C.

Mrs. McKoy and myself graduated at Salem in the Class of '59. She was then LENORA FLEMING and I AMELIA JOHNIE LOGAN. She was married about '64 or '65 to Mr. McNeill McKoy, and has one daughter, Irene. Mr. McKoy died about a year ago, so "FLEM", as we called her at school, is a widow now. Her loss was and is yet a great grief to her. I was married in 1866 to Mr. Jno. B. Eaves, of Rutherfordton. We are now living in Statesville, and have eight children, three daughters whom we expect to send to old Salem. There is no place, save my own home, that I love more than Salem, and it is with much pleasure and pride that I note her growth and prosperity. Before long I want to inquire after some of my teachers and schoolmates through the columns of THE ACADEMY.

Please include the Commencement number to each of us.

With much respect,

MRS. JNO. B. EAVES.

Statesville, N. C.

—Our next correspondent, Mrs. A. A. Strong, will be remembered by most of our former pupils as ALLIE BLOCKER, of Blakely, Ga.

How my heart thrilled with joy when I saw your name in the Catalogue. You and Miss EMMA CHITY seemed to be in poor health. I see a great many familiar names in the paper and Catalogue. Miss SALLIE SHAFFNER was another one of my room teachers. What has become of Misses Lizzie and Carrie Bahnon, Miss Maria Boner, Miss A. Steiner, Mr. E. W. Lineback and Mr. A. Minung ? I would like to hear from all the old teachers that taught when I was in school. How I did dislike to leave school ! I very well remember the little farewell talk you gave me as you told me that I was at the door just ready to enter real life. I have never met a girl that went to school in old Salem but what would give anything if she could return on a visit. Oh ! how I do wish that I could ! My mother and father are both dead, and I have a family of my own. I am the mother of eight children, six boys and two girls. I am very anxious to send my girls there to school. There has been a great change in every thing, but there has been no change in the part that I like about the school, and that is the religious training and a good education. You taught me duty first and pleasure afterward, and I am trying to teach it to my children. I teach them at home. We live in the country, five miles from any town. I am going to teach them till they are 13 years old, then I am going to send them to school if I can.

Your affectionate pupil,

ALLIE.

Blakely, Ga.

—We sympathize with our friend, Mrs. Rutherford, in her bereavement, and trust the knowledge that so many are thinking of her may give her a little comfort.

I do not know the date of my subscription to THE ACADEMY, having had the dear little sheet come to me and kept on file from its beginning. It seems time, however, for me to send a remittance, so you will find $1.00 enclosed, which please place to my credit on your subscription list. Be kind enough also to enroll me on the list of the Alumnæ Association. Some day I hope to give you a few items of interest regarding old pupils. I meet them occasionally, and it is pleasant for us to hear of those with whom we once were associated in our great family within the walls of the dear old Alma Mater.

A great sorrow has come to me in the loss of my loved brother, the only close tie of consanguinity that was left me in this world, and I cannot feel like giving details just now, but I wish not to lose one issue of THE ACADEMY.

Very truly, your friend,

MRS. ROBERT RUTHERFORD,
nee AMANDA CARDWELL.

Houston, Texas.

—The ACADEMY is now illuminated with the electric light, and it looks as if fairy land had been turned over to us. Three lamps on the outside, one over the central door of Main Hall, one at Gymnasium Hall Entrance, and one over the lower door of South Hall, effectually banish all darkness from the front of the buildings. The yard is also brilliantly lit up with the electric fireflies. The soft, radiant light is a positive boon in the study-parlors and in the halls and porches.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., SEPTEMBER, 1890.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—We desire to invite all our friends to unite in aiding to make THE ACADEMY more interesting this year than will be possible to make it without such aid. We hope to receive communications from every Room Company giving a glance into the life of the same. There are many spicy things said and done which will interest your friends and schoolmates. Then, too, we very greatly desire to have the Alumnae continue the liberal support which they have given in the past to this department of the paper. How pleasant it is to see the patriotism of those who are no longer directly associated with the Institution but are still sending a word of greeting from time to time. The present issue has one of these friendly letters from Dr. Rondthaler, and also a letter which was not exactly written to THE ACADEMY, but we gained possession of the same and are glad to present it to our readers. We allude to Miss Shaffner's letter, and hope to hear again from the European party of the summer. Miss Vogler has also sent us a most welcome letter, which we will publish next month, and we trust the friends may continue coming to the front. The various departments in the school should see to it that no item of interest in their part of the school-world is allowed to pass unnoticed. With this aid we feel that THE ACADEMY will always be a welcome visitor, since it will have something new to say to every one.

—The office is beset with the usual number of excuse requests, some being based on good reasons, others being unwise in their conception, and still others promising the most pernicious results. It is impossible to bring all pupils to the same standard, since one with defective eyesight will be unable to do as much as one with strong eyes. So there may be special objects to be gained which materially inter-fer with a full course in the college department. Amid all these conflicting views a safe plan is always to consult fully and freely with the Principal before a parent commits himself to a request made by a pupil for an excuse from a study or a number of studies. Under such circumstances a mistake is seldom made, and much disappointment is often saved.

THE NEW YEAR.

OUR opening has certainly been a very encouraging and satisfactory one. The most important feature is, of course, the character of the pupils when considered as a body. We have seldom had as few desperately homesick girls as this year. It is difficult to sever the home ties without an effort. But this form of superficial homesickness does not interfere with work. So that it was a source of promise for good to note how soon the large mass of young people were quietly engaged in their various class duties. Then, too, we rejoiced to note how many of the old pupils returned. Our estimate was that a Senior Class of a few more than thirty would be present, while there are in reality forty registered from last Senior Middle Class. This is larger than last year's unusually large class. When the graduates and the specials are dropped from the list at the end of the year the number is thus naturally very greatly diminished. Still, we have had the pleasure of welcoming this year about 90 of the old pupils and an equal number of new scholars as boarders. The list of day scholars has increased in the same proportion, and when we add the names of the specials we may feel that the old ACADEMY is certainly being treated in a generous manner by her friends in the matter of numbers. We can also speak in equally cheerful terms of the faculty, which is full in all departments, and the work will in more than one department be greatly improved this year. It is quite interesting to note how good-natured every one seems to feel, even though the halls are filled with the unusually large crowd at recess, and even though the study parlors have one or two more than they ought to have till the new building is ready for occupancy. If now we are given good health in addition to what is promised by the facts already alluded to, the new year will be one that all—parents, pupils and faculty—will be proud of.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Miss Gertrude Siewers is this year assisted by Miss Lena Chaffin in the Studio work.

—Prof. Markgraff spent some time at the seashore and visiting friends in the eastern part of the State.

—Mr. Pfohl spent a short vacation at the seashore with a number of friends. Little Clarence was with the party.

—Instruction in the Language Department is superintended by Dr. Rondthaler, who has associated with him Misses Alice Rondthaler, Emma Chitty and Carrie Jones.

—There are several pupils with us this year whose grandmothers were educated in the ACADEMY, and in one instance, at least, the pupil is a member of the fourth generation.

—Several gifts have been received for the Alumnae Scholarship Endowment, but we will mention them next month, together with other news concerning this noble undertaking.

—We regret our inability to make mention of all the friends who visited us during the opening days, but as the duties were so heavy at that time it was impossible to gather the list.

—A new and very fine settee has been received for those class rooms where the work is chiefly in the form of lectures. They will be placed in the new building to be called Park Hall.

—The promptness with which the girls returned at the opening of the term was a matter of great satisfaction to all connected with the school. The opening day was more like the usual end of the first week.

—Misses Lou and Sallie Shaffner returned from their European tour about the middle of September, and Miss Evans, who formed one of the party, came a few days later. All look well and seem to have enjoyed the trip very much indeed.

—Miss Siewers sustained a severe bereavement in the sudden death of her father. Miss Annie Jones also has our sincere sympathy, she too having been called to give up an affectionate parent, her mother having passed away during the summer.

—Miss Lehman was called to the bedside of her sister in August, and had a month of very severe duty at what at one time seemed to be the last sickness of both the mother and the father in the family. Miss Lehman returned to her duties soon after the opening of the term.

—The list of teachers who are laboring in the School of Music this year are as follows: In Instrumental Music—Professor Markgraff, Misses Sallie Vest, Augusta Hagen, Amy Van Vleck and Marguerite Dufour; Vocal—Misses Katharine Evans, Addie Laciard and Annie Jones; Guitar—Miss Lou Van Vleck; the Violin, Prof. Markgraff.

—The following is the list of pupils who spent a portion or all of the vacation within the ACADEMY:

Agnes Brownson, Irma Cordill, Alice Cordill, Laura Jones, Bloomfield Gambill, Willie Gambill, Fay McMullen, Mary McKeown, Minnie Shands, Sadie Sittig, Willie Lutz.

—A pedestrian club has been organized in the Senior Class. The girls have placed themselves in regular drill, and can already make a brisk round of five or six miles after the close of recitation without fatigue. They have various plans under consideration and may have something of interest to tell the readers of THE ACADEMY in the future.

—In addition to the names given elsewhere there are a large number of persons under regular instruction in connection with the ACADEMY, perhaps 50 in all. If to this is added the names of the faculty and those who have signified their intention of entering later, we have a family numbering about 350 persons. The number last year was 315.

—The preparations for the opening of the Cooking and Dress-making Department are being pushed as rapidly as possible. The building will probably be ready for occupancy by the end of next month, and after a visit of inspection to the Northern cities Miss Siewers will be ready to begin the work. The prospects are flattering for a large class.

—The second floor of Main Hall has witnessed quite a number of improvements during the last weeks. The South Senior room has received a new Brussels carpet, resembling a Turkish rug in its richness, the upper teachers' room has received a new carpet, and the long hall on the second floor looks quite festive with its new Linoleum, the color being modest brown with a lively fresh border.

—Numbers will tell, and as a result it has been found necessary to place an addition to the dining-room in the form of a room attached to the east end of the building. It seems as if it will be necessary to do the same thing to the north, south and west sides of the building also if the numbers still increase and the interest in long walks continues to grow. It is of course in keeping with the above to state that a request has come from Mrs. Carmichael to add another section to the kitchen range.

—It would be difficult to imagine a livelier scene than that which took place during the severe storm which visited our towns some days since. A large section of the roof over the Senior dormitory had been removed, and almost without warning the rain storm was upon us. Then there was "hurrying to and fro," and only with great effort were the precious dresses rescued from their impending fate. A large force of willing workers labored on the various stories, and thus not much damage was done to the building. We do not desire a repetition of the experience.

—Through the courtesy of Capt. Hawkes and Mr. Fritz Uhlenhaut, the vacation girls were given a delightful complimentary ride early in July. A special car was brought to the ACADEMY, a few invited friends joined the pupils, and the party was rapidly whirled up Main street, and out to the site of the new hotel. Here the car was stopped and the party inspected the hotel location. We were then taken a brisk run out Liberty street, and finally returned, passing down old Main street at a speed of about 20 miles an hour. The evening was a very enjoyable one, and the gentlemen will please accept our hearty thanks.

—The vacation girls, under the charge of Mr. Pfohl and several other friends, made a trip to the mountains early in August. It is needless to say that Mr. Fogle was one of the party, since the idea of a mountain party is hardly complete without picturing his genial and kindly face as one of the group. The points of interest visited were Fancy Gap in Virginia, Elk Spur, the famous cave called Devil's Den, the Pilot Mountain, and other points of interest. The weather was unfavorable, but we believe much pleasure was obtained from the trip. THE ACADEMY would be pleased to have the party furnish a letter regarding the trip for publication.

—We notice from a paper sent us by a friend that the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Heard, at Elberton, Ga., was the scene of a very enjoyable occasion some weeks since. Emily Hazlehurst was visiting Sue Heard, and while there an original drama was given which won the highest praise from those who were present. It would be well for the Literary Societies to make a note of this, and use the same talent when they begin to prepare for their winter entertainments.

—We have received a very interesting souvenir from Italy, presented to us by Miss Shaffner. It is a piece of lava from the volcano Vesuvius. While the party was standing by the crater the old mountain was showing a great amount of uneasiness, and was pitching lava and other materials into the air. One piece falling near the party a penny was pressed into the heated mass, and after the latter had become cool it was taken with the party, and now adorns our "sanctum" table.

—There are at present eleven Room Companies open, and the rapidly increasing numbers are calling for the opening of the twelfth. Miss Lehman has the North Senior and South Senior; the 3d Room is in charge of Misses Sallie Shaffner and Florence Meinung; 4th Room, Misses Lou Shaffner and Mary Meinung; 5th Room, Misses Shore and Tietze; 6th Room, Misses Carrie and Annie Jones; 7th Room, Mrs. Winkler and Miss Emma Cooper; 8th Room, Misses Connie Pfohl and Carrie Vest; 9th Room, Misses Chitty and Laciard; 10th Room, Mrs. Smith and Miss Heisler; the Room occupied by the pupils acting as assistants in the several departments is in care of Miss Fogle.

—One of the most important changes that has taken place within the last years in connection with the ACADEMY is the new programme of recitation hours. It is a change that has long been wished for, and one that must commend itself to the minds of all that give it more than a passing thought. According to the new programme the recitations begin at 9 in the morning, and close at 2 in the afternoon. Then the pupil has three hours and a half for rest, exercise and, in some instances, for work in the Studio and Music Department. No one who is a stranger to the tax which a student's life and work is upon the system can appreciate how this period of three and a half hours tends to allow the body and mind to regain its vigor.

When evening comes the studies are taken up with renewed energy, and the tasks accomplished with far greater ease. This plan is the one followed in many of the Graded Schools, and also in very many Colleges and Academies.

—Work on Park Hall, the new building, is progressing as rapidly as possible. Those of the former pupils who are acquainted with the topography of the ACADEMY and church grounds will remember the old parsonage building. This house had been occupied by Professor Wurrechke till in the last spring, when it was moved back about 200 feet and placed immediately in the rear of Annex Hall. The building was raised sufficiently to give a high story underneath, and by this means the rapidly growing school has added another Hall to its accommodations which will probably be used for the following departments: The Senior Class Rooms, the Laboratory, the Industrial School, several class rooms, and very likely a Study Parlor for one room company with sleeping hall attached. The view from the new building is very fine, and the success of Annex Hall has abundantly shown that the cottage system is a wise and happy one in connection with ACADEMY life.

—Dr. H. T. Bahnson has taken a great interest in rare water plants during the past years, and has added much to our Commencement occasions by the beautiful donations from his lily ponds. The crowning glory of the Doctor's efforts in this direction is the successful growing of the famous Victoria Regia, a plant that probably has not been grown in half a dozen places in the United States. The leaves are six feet in diameter, and as the edges are turned up it really forms a good sized boat. The immense size of the leaf may be imagined when we state that the doctor placed a little girl weighing 80 or 90 pounds on this leaf as it floated on the surface of the water, and the leaf was depressed only a very little. The scene was photographed, and if any of our readers would like a view of this wonderful plant the photographer can supply it. The flower, too, was a curiosity, and if space will permit next month we will publish a very interesting article which appeared in a State paper a few days since.

—The 19th of September was an occasion which will be looked back to as one of enjoyment in the life of the School. It was Mr. CLEWELL's birthday and before that gentleman had made his way down stairs busy hands had been at work and had placed some elegant floral offerings in the private parlor of the Principal's House. In addition to the floral gift there had been placed a large and beautiful Library Case in the same room, so chaste and beautiful that we cannot successfully describe the same to our readers. It is in the sixteenth century style, light wood, in three divisions, ornamented with carvings and French mirrors, and with ornamental antique brass hinges. A more acceptable gift could not have been chosen, and we feel sure Mr. CLEWELL will prize the gift more and more as time passes. The holiday was, of course, announced in chapel service, Dr. RONDTHALER being present and taking part in the same. A special car had been chartered by the School from the Electric Street Car Company, and the entire School given a ride during the day. The Birthday Dinner, of course, was a pleasing feature, and after enjoyments of various kinds the day was closed by a Sciopticon entertainment given to the girls by Dr. RONDTHALER. All seemed to have had a pleasant time. Mr. CLEWELL wishes us to extend his hearty thanks to all who contributed to make the day a happy one for him and the School.

—List of boarding pupils registered to date:

Anna Adams, Hattie Adams, Johnsie Alexander, Georgie Baxter, Sue Booth, Louise Breitenbucher, Fanny Broadfoot, May Broadfoot, Ettie Brown, Lucy Brown, Agnes Brownson, Alice Bryan, Lizzie Burgess, Lizzie Burson, Essie Busick, Bettie Campbell, Roberta Carr, Annie Carrier, Lena Chaffin, Lizzie Chaffin, Maud Cheek, Edith Clark, Mary Clark, Agnes Coleman, Lena Colwell, Alice Cordill, Irma Cordill, Bettie Cox, Dora Cox, Eula Cox, Fannie Creight, Lillian Crenshaw, Prue Crouse, Ruth Cunningham, Clara David, Viola Davis, Claudia Dicks, Louise Dicks, Mamie Donegan, Mamie Dryden, Marguerite Dufour, Nettie Dunlap, Carrie Edwards, Rosa Ellis, Mattie Epes, Agnes Irwin, Ollie Fain, Annie Farley, Mary Farley, Lena Fields, Lizzie Fitzgerald, Zana Fleming, Hattie Foster, Virginia Foster, May Franklin, Willie Gambill, Bloomfield Gambill, Effie Gilmer, Annie Green, Carrie Greer, Fanny Griffith, Eliza Gulick, Susie Gulick, Maud Green, Emma Hale, Annie Harris, Maud Harris, Clio Heard, Sue Heard, Mary Helm, Carrie Hertz, Cleora Hewson, Bertha Hicks, Ella Hinshaw, Lillie Hodnett, Margaret Hood, Sallie Jarvis, Laura Jones, Emma Kapp, Robbie Kapp, Lola Kyser, Frances Leach, Mamie Lewis, Nannie Leybrook, Edna Lindsey, Adie Leinback, Mary Lucky, Willie Lutz, Annie Makepeace, Eldred Mallory, Allie Mallory, M. Martin, Mattie Mason, Mary McCauley, Eloise

McGill, Almeida McGregor, Mary McKeown, Fay McMullen, Virginia McMurray, Katie McPherson, Mary Miller, Mary Moore, Ethel Morris, Blanche Morgan, Kate Moses, Addie Nimocks, Mamie Odeneal, Carrie Ollinger, Fanny Lou Pace, Claudia Palmer, Louise Patterson, Meta Patterson, Lizzie Patterson, Clyde Peacock, Annie Penn, Helen Perkins, Jessie Peterkin, Mabel Peterkin, Bessie Ponder, Mary Porter, Johnnie Powers, Lennie Price, Edith Ramsaur, Alice Rawlings, Huberta Read, Annie Ried, Lucile Read, Susie Reynolds, Maud Robbins, Ethel Roberts, Edna Russell, Annie Schoolfield, Daisy Schoolfield, Ella Sechrist, Florence Settle, Minnie Shands, Lizzie Shingleur, Sadie Sittig, Ida Smith, Mattie Spencer, Ava Stroup, Cinnie Sugg, Lucia Swanson, Carrie Taylor, Etta Taylor, Narcie Taylor, Deettie Teague, Onie Terrell, Evvie Thomas, Alice Thomson, Ora Thomson, Lillian Thompson, Lucy Thorpe, Maggie Threadgill, Mattie Trout, Cora Vogler, Lucy Waddill, Edith Wallace, Gray Warner, Mary Watson, Julia White, Bessie Whitner, Laura Whitner, Mattie Williams, Myra Winkler, Blanche Wood, Mary Wood, Mattie Woodell, Alpha Woosley, Lizzie Wooten, Susan Wright, Hessie Yancey, Lily Yancey.

List of day scholars registered to date:

Loline Allen, Nettie Allen, Mabel Butner, Mamie Barrow, Daisy Brooks, Carrie Bahnsen, Mary Conrad, Fannie Conrad, Daisy Crutchfield, Etta Carter, Nellie Crumpler, Agnes Fogle, Ada Fogle, Edna Fisher, Eva Franklin, Bessie Foy, Agnes Garboden, Lula Grogan, Mamie Gray, Mabel Gray, Minnie Goolsby, Lettie Gilmer, Elma Hege, Ella Hege, Sallie Hyman, Eliza Hoffman, Laura Hoffman, Mina Hege, Mary Hall, Mabel Johnson, Lula Kearns, Maud Keehn, Birchy Kirk, Emma Landquist, Carrie Lineback, Lucie Lineback, Inez Lloyd, Alice Locke, Viola Lloyd, Dora Miller, Bessie Purnell, Hennie Peterson, Maggie Pfohl, Bessie Rempson, Ollie Rominger, Mary Reid, Ollie Rainey, Louie Siddall, Tilla Stockton, Sudie Sicheloff, Lula Shore, Bertha Shore, Ada Spough, Ella Strupe, Bertie Stockton, Agnes Siewers, Bertha Shelton, M. Stipe, Bessie Thomas, Blanche Thomas, Alma Tise, Florence Tise, Beryl Tressler, Grace Terry, Minnie Tesh, Emma Vogler, Lula White, Carrie Welfare, Katie Wurrechke, Margaret Wurrechke.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil, 2. Date of Birth, 3. Name of Parent or Guardian, 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS ACADEMY.]

*—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

1867.

4894 ANNIE S. NORTH. — 1856.
Dr. E. G. Sussdorff, Macon, Ga.
4895 ANNA CORNELIA WILLINGHAM. — 1853
Thomas H. Willingham, Albany, Ga.
4896 EMILIE NARCISSE JEWELL. — 1858.
Mrs. H. A. Steadman, Clinton, La.

- 4897 MARY T. McLAWS. — 1855.
Judge Wm. R. McLAWS, Augusta, Ga.
- 4898 ELLA DORA McADOO. — 1855.
Pleasant McADOO, Greensboro, N. C.
- 4899 MINNIE ESTELLE BROWN. — 1856.
John G. Brown, Haynesville, Ga.
- 4900 ADA ELIZABETH COLEMAN. — 1853.
Whited M. Coleman, Mossingford, Va.
- 4901 ELLEN L. GILBERT. — 1856.
Richard T. Gilbert, Albany, Ga.
- 4902 MINNIE I. PEPPER. — 1855.
Dr. Wm. R. Pepper, Snowville, Va.
- 4903 SUR SHACKLEFORD. — 1854.
William P. Gillespie, Egypt Station, Miss.
- 4904 LOULA M. KEESSE. — 1857.
John D. Keesce, Pelham, N. C.
- 4905 ELLEN CONRAD. — 1851.
A. E. Conrad, Huntsville, N. C.
- 4906 MARY A. JONES. — 1857.
Edmund W. Jones, Patterson, N. C.
- 4908 FLORA JANE DORSETT. — 1855.
John Dorsett, Trinity College, N. C.
- 4909 FANNIE M. PENDER. — 1843.
F. M. Hyman, Tarboro, N. C.
- 4910 VIRGINIA SMITH. — 1853.
Ben. G. Smith, Bartow, Ga.
- 4911 MARY ISABEL GENTRY. — 1855.
W. H. Gentry, Danbury, N. C.
- 4912 ADA CATHARINE RIERSON. — 1855.
James Rierson, Danbury, N. C.
- 4913 MINERVA B. SMITH. — 1858.
John Blevins, Rogersville, Tenn.
- 4914 MARY SMITHERMAN. — 1857.
Jesse Smitherman, Troy, N. C.
- 4915 ANNA IRIS AYER. — 1854.
Gen. Lewis M. Ayer, Bamberg, N. C.
- 4916 PAULINE ALLEN. — 1854.
ANNA E. ALLEN. — 1858.
Robert A. Allen, Augusta, Ga.
- 4918 JENNIE LITTLE LEWIS. — 1855.
Capt. H. Little, Falkland, Ala.
- 4919 MARTHA C. ANDREWS. — 1853.
4920 MELISSA VAINRIGHT. — 1854.
Mrs. Andrews, Edgecombe City, N. C.
- 4921 ANNA OGBURN. — 1859.
Dr. J. F. Ogburn, Lombardy Grove, Va.
- 4922 CHRISTINA McNATT. — 1855.
Dan. McNatt, Fayetteville, N. C.
- 4923 IDA HAYNES. — 1856.
Capt. H. L. Haynes, Calvert, Texas.
- 4924 HATTIE WOOD. — 1853.
4925 DOSIE WOOD. — 1853.
Aaron Wood, Calvert, Texas.
- 4926 JULIA DRENNAN. — 1853.
S. D. Drennan, Calvert, Texas.
- 4927 GEORGINA E. PASTERUR. — 1854.
R. M. Pasteur, New Orleans, La.
- 4928 ANNIE E. DUNCAN. — 1853.
J. C. Duncan, Knoxville, Tenn.
- 4929 SARAH N. LEWIS. — 1855.
4930 MARY OPHELIA LEWIS. — 1856.
Sarah B. Lewis, Greenville, S. C.
- 4931 EMMA CORDELLA EDGE. — 1855.
W. R. Edge, Griffin, Ga.
- 4932 IDA LITTLE. — 1855.
J. W. Little, Griffin, Ga.
- 4933 ANNIE VIRGINIA THORP. — 1857.
John Thorp, Rocky Mount, N. C.
- 4934 JULIA A. POWERS. — 1858.
W. H. Beal, Milledgeville, Ga.
- 4935 CONNIE MELLEN TURNER. — 1856.
B. L. Turner, Mt. Sterling, Ala.
- 4936 ELMIRA J. PERRY. — 1856.
S. A. Perry, Hill Point, C. C.
- 4937 FLORENCE RIGHTS. — 1858.
Rev. C. L. Rights, Bethania, N. C.
- 4938 CLARA WAGONER. — 1857.
Moses Wagoner, Mocksville, N. C.
- 4939 FANNY VIRGINIA MCKINNEY. —
Brooks McKinney, Pelham, N. C.
- 4940 VIRGINIA ALICE CARTER. — 1855.
R. T. Carter, Pelham, N. C.
- 4941 ANNA LIZZIE MOTLEY. — 1856.
Thomas J. Motley, Ruffin, N. C.
- 4942 ROSEY J. ARMPFIELD. — 1855.
Emsley Armpfield, Greensboro, N. C.
- 4943 LOIS McLENDON. — 1859.
Dr. H. C. McCall, Executor, Benton, Ala.
- 4944 ANNA SWITZER. — 1855.
4945 MAGGIE SWITZER. — 1857.
Daniel L. Switzer, Tallahassee.

prime of life should be called to join the "innumerable caravan which moves to that mysterious realm." She was possessed of a brilliant mind, great cheerfulness and unbounded generosity. Her heart went out to all in suffering and sorrow, and she was ever ready, as far as it was in her power, to assuage grief and to comfort those who were stricken. During her fatal illness she was patient, uncomplaining and resigned, and manifested that christian spirit which was so beautiful a part of her life. Since her early youth she had been a member of the Methodist Church, and in her daily walk and conversation exemplified the faith she professed. Her bereaved husband and seven children have the sincere sympathy of their community. She has left them a bright example to follow, and it must be a great comfort to feel and know that in this life she faithfully discharged all the duties incumbent upon the loving wife and mother, the sincere Christian and the kind, sympathizing friend and neighbor.

Death of Miss Lilian E. Parker.

It is with the deepest regret we announce the death of this young lady, which took place at the residence of her parents at 1 o'clock this morning (Aug 28) from typhoid fever. Miss PARKER was a daughter of our most highly respected citizen, Mr. M. Parker, and was only 19 years of age. In the death of this young lady society, no less than her immediate family, has lost a bright and shining ornament. Possessed of charms both of personal and mental character, she was the chief adornment of a happy home. She was a young lady of the highest tone of Christian virtues, possessing that meekness and those noble traits that go so far to adorn the true followers of Christ. Taken hence, as it were, in the bloom of youth, she carries with her to the grave the love and sincere affection of a large number of relatives and friends. Indeed, it can be said in this instance, that the universal reaper has cut down a bright and shining mark and taken from earth a pure soul to dwell in the realms of eternal bliss. In the hour of sadness it would seem that nothing but the mercy of the good being can bind up the broken hearts so crushed by this dispensation of Providence. To Him, therefore, "who doeth all things well," must the bereaved ones look for that consolation which can proceed only from on high. In common with our entire people we tender our deepest sympathy to the afflicted family. The funeral took place this afternoon (Aug. 28) at 5 o'clock, from Edenton Street M. E. church, Rev. Dr. J. H. Cordon officiating. The remains were interred in Oakwood Cemetery. There was a very large attendance, and the funeral offerings were beautiful and profuse. The following gentlemen acted as pall bearers: W. W. Wynne, C. E. Johnson, J. B. Hill, F. B. Crowder, N. B. Broughton and E. B. Barbee. — Raleigh, N. C., Evening Visitor, Aug. 28.

MINE AND THINE.

TO THE MEMORY OF MISS LILIAN E. PARKER.

I closely held within my arms a jewel rare;
Never had one so rich and pure engaged my care.
'Twas my own—my precious jewel—God gave her me,
'Twas mine; who else could care for her so tenderly?

But the Master came one night my jewel to take,
I cannot let her go, I cried, my heart would break.
Nay, but the Master comes for her, to bear above.
To deck his royal diadem; he comes in love.

But, Master, she is my treasure, my jewel rare;
I'll safely guard and keep her pure and very fair.
If thou keepest my gem, he said, she may be lost;
The threshold of my home no thief has ever crossed.

And where the heart's rich treasure is the heart will be.
Your jewel will be safe above; gone before thee.
The Master said these words and gazed with pitying look,
While in the early hush of morn my gem he took.

Close to my heart that morn I held, tears falling fast,
An empty casket; the bright gem was safe at last.
Yes, Master, thou may'st keep my own, for she is Thine;
Safe in a house not made with hands, she is MINE and THINE.

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 29, 1890.

A FRIEND.

Died on Friday morning, August 22, at Farmington, Davie Co., N. C., Mrs. A. S. WISEMAN, wife of Dr. J. W. Wiseman, and eldest daughter of the late Stephen and Lisetta Dou-thit, aged 54 years less 2 days. She was a consistent member of the Baptist Church, a devoted wife, daughter, sister and friend, and will be greatly missed in the community where she lived. Her remains rest in the old family graveyard by parents, sisters and brothers.

Safe in the arms of Jesus,
Safe on his gentle breast;
There by his love o'er shaded,
Sweetly my soul shall rest."

In Memoriam.

[The following touching lines of poetry were written by Mrs. Hallie Atkins Dunklin, of Waco, Texas, on the death of a cherished boy. They were first published in a Texas paper, but as the newspaper clipping was sent to us without the name of the paper we are unable to credit to the right source.]

[In Memory of Tim Milburn Dunklin, died May 7, 1890, aged 16 years.

Lower the curtain, darken the room,
Why let in sunbeams where all is gloom;
Soft be the footfall, light be the tread,
While cold and silent "my boy is dead."

Oh, hush the loud hum of the crowd on the street,
Whispers, if need be, methinks were more meet
To spread the sad news. What else is to be said?
But in the dawn of manhood "My boy is dead."

Hear ye not the low notes of the birds on the trees?
Is the dirge that the wind chants more plaintive than these?
In kindness the leaves strive to warm the cold bed,
Where cold and silent "My boy is dead."

Nay, trouble me not with these books and affairs,
They are nought to me now but wearisome cares;
What now shall I strive for? Why look ahead?
All, all is now over, for "My boy is dead."

* * * * *
Is dead! Oh, fond mother, repeat not the word,
Nor the dark utterance on your lips be heard;
Lift up your sad eyes to the region of joy,
And behold in his glory your noble boy.

Would you call him again from the regions of bliss,
And give him a share in the sorrows of this?
Would you snatch from his grasp peace without alloy,
And fetter with life's cares your cherished boy?

Ah, lift up your eyes! You are not without hope,
You are not of the band who in thick darkness grope;
To the faithful and tried has the promise been given,
That seed sown in grief shall blossom in Heaven.

Oh, fortunate child, beloved of God!
Intercede for your mother now "under the rod,"
Send Angels to cheer her, to raise her bowed head,
To tell her in gladness, her boy is not dead. * * *

L. V. & E. T. BLUM,
SALEM, N. C.,

BOOKSELLERS, STATIONERS,
PRINTERS.

PUBLISH "THE PEOPLES PRESS,"

FARMER'S AND PLANTER'S ALMANAC.

General Job Printing executed with neatness
and dispatch. Try us.

Printers of Salem Female Academy's publications.

Married.

On Wednesday, Sept. 10th, in Bristol, Tenn.,
Mr. S. E. OWEN to Miss VIRGINIA BURSON.

Obituary.

Death of Mrs. B. H. Screws.

Hosts of devoted friends will learn with deep regret of the death of Mrs. B. H. SCREWS (EMMA McNEIL). Her illness, typhoid fever, was of only two weeks' duration, and it is hard to realize that one so full of hope and just in the ALUMNÆ BADGES. — Mrs. Dr. H. T. Bahnsen has been requested by the Alumnae Association to keep on hand a stock of the official badges of the Alumnae Society. She will be pleased to give any information relative to price.

Address MRS. H. T. BAHNSEN,
Salem, N. C.

DAVIS SCHOOL.

Military Boarding School
FOR BOYS and YOUNG MEN.

Full preparation for any College or for Business. Healthy location; fine climate; mild winters; excellent buildings; Cadet Corner Band; Cadet Orchestra; Resident Surgeon. No Charge for Medical Attention. No Extra Charge for Languages or Sciences. Department of Art. Full Course VERY LOW RATES. For Register with full particulars address

In Telegraphy. COL. A. C. DAVIS, Supt.,
WINSTON, N. C.

A REVOLUTION.

In methods of teaching PHYSIOLOGY and GEOGRAPHY. More and better work done with the use of YAGGY'S STUDIES in one term than in three terms without them.

YAGGY'S GEOGRAPHICAL STUDY,

comprising PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, GEOLOGICAL and ASTRONOMICAL Geography.

YAGGY'S ANATOMICAL STUDY

showing in a striking and original manner the structure and organs of the human body, full size, natural color; also a series of Object Lessons on the ruin of the body by intoxicants.

WHY FOLLOW THE OLD RUTS?

Adopt the above POPULAR, ORIGINAL and FASCINATING APPLIANCES and teach by the OBJECT METHOD.

Circulars sent on application.

WESTERN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
No. 3 East 14th Street,

April 1890-1y. New York City.

WORCESTER'S DICTIONARY

"The highest authority known as to the use of the English language."

With or without Denton's Patent Index.

The Standard of the Leading Publishers, Magazines, and Newspapers.

The Dictionary of the Scholar for Spelling, Pronunciation, and Accuracy in Definition.

Send for large Circular to the Publishers,
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,
PHILADELPHIA.

May, 1890. 1 y.

(REVISED EDITION.)

Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia is a whole library of universal knowledge from the pen of the ablest scholars in America and Europe. It is accepted as high authority in our leading colleges.

IT IS NOT FOR THE FEW,

Like Appleton's, the Britannica, or the "International,"

BUT FOR ALL.

It has just been thoroughly revised at a cost of over $60,000, and three years' labor by forty editors, and over 2,000 renowned contributors.

It is in 8 convenient sized volumes.

No father can give to his child at school, or his son or daughter just entering the arena of life, anything that will be of more permanent benefit.

It is an education supplementary to that of the Schools.

"The next few years will witness a great change in educational ideas. The possibilities of self-culture are to be emphasized, and the means of aid and direction increased. After a careful examination of 'Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia,' I am convinced that while it is excellently adapted to the needs of professional and business men, it is eminently useful to the earnest, thorough self-educator.

"This work, with its corps of contributors, offers accurate articles on the widest range of subjects. To the value of trustworthy information is added the inspection of personality associated with great names.

I heartily commend this Cyclopedia to all,

and especially to those who are pursuing self-set courses in the great university of life.

JOHN H. VINCENT, (Bishop),

"Chancellor, Chataqua University."

Address, for particulars, terms and circulars,

A. J. JOHNSON & CO.,

11 Great Jones Street, N. Y.

Representatives wanted in every county.

From the Librarian of Harvard University,
Cambridge, Mass.

Dec. 16, 1889. — "There is perhaps no better test of the merit of a cyclopedia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA has, during many years' experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language."

From Rev. Thos. Hill, D.D., LL.D., Ex-President of Harvard University.

PORTLAND, MAINE, Aug. 6, 1889. — "JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA (revised edition) is an ever-present companion and friend, and I consult it very much more frequently than I do my Britannica, Appleton's, Webster's Unabridged, etc., and very seldom fail to find in it just the kind and amount of information which I need."

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL.D., Librarian of Congress, Washington D. C.

"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference."

BELO-HOUSE.

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan, '90-1y.

"Bingham School

stands pre-eminent among Southern boarding Schools for Boys."—U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Combines more desirable qualities than any other with which I am acquainted."—Lieut. J. B. Batchelor, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

"There exists not the equal of this School in my opinion."—Capt. Henry Wygant, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

More than 100 pupils from other States, the largest number in a Southern School for boys from outside the State of location.

Address,

Maj. BINGHAM.

Bingham's School, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER, JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

—OF—

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,

AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

HOTEL FOUNTAIN,

WINSTON, N. C.

The Leading Hotel of the Twin-Cities.

It will be Run in the Special Interest of the Traveling Public.

Table Supplied with All the Delicacies of the Season.
Attentive Servants.

J. W. GRAY, form. Prop'r Cooper House, Statesville, N. C.
Apr. 9-1y.

WELCOME once more to Winston-Salem, ladies of the S. F. A. None are more cordially pleased to see your pleasant faces than we, nor more desirous to continue and increase the friendly relations already existing between us.

This year we will show you the most beautiful line of millinery ever displayed in North Carolina, and your orders will, as before, receive especial attention.

Hoping to see you all at our Fall Opening, we are Respectfully, yours,

SCHOULER'S
MILLINERY
ESTABLISHMENT.

Schouler's Racket Store.

Dore's Bible Gallery, 100 Engravings.
Milton's Paradise Lost, 50 Engravings.
Dante's Inferno, 75 Engravings.
"Purgatory & Paradise 60 Engravings.

Any one of these books, which are large and beautifully bound, will be given to a member of the ACADEMY when the amount of her purchases in SCHOULER'S RACKET STORE reaches $20.00,—not in one bill, but in as long a time as you please.

This store is a veritable Bazaar, and contains Dress Goods, Shoes, Notions, Jewelry, Stationery, Cologne, Ribbons, Bags, Trunks, Underclothes, &c., and the prices are the lowest in the Twin-City.

HENRY W. MILLER,
STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
Price, complete with two type wheels, $50.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.
Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.
Send for Catalogue.
WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,
WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKERS,

Compiled and Arranged by JAMES BALDWIN, PH. D., editor of "Harper's Readers."

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKER. FIRST BOOK.

PART I. ARBOR DAY.—Exercises in poetry and prose for Spring Festivals, Arbor Day, Flower Planting Day, and other similar occasions. With an introduction by GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

PART II. MEMORIAL DAY.—Selections suitable for use in schools, and for public exercises in connection with the observances of Memorial or Decoration Day.

12mo, Cloth, 240 pages; price, 60 cents.

IN PREPARATION.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. SECOND BOOK. GRADED SELECTIONS. I. For First Reader Pupils. II. For Second Reader Pupils. III. For Third Reader Pupils. IV. For Fourth Reader Pupils. V. For Advanced Students and Public Readers.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. THIRD BOOK.—MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS especially adapted for use at morning "Opening Exercises." I. Life. II. Nature. III. Labor. IV. Laughter. V. Experience. VI. Duty. VII. Aspiration. VIII. Reverence. IX. Retrospection. Nearly two hundred selections.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. FOURTH BOOK.—PATRIOTIC SELECTIONS. I. Patriotism as a Principle of Life. Patriotism in "the Brave Days of Old." III. Our Country. IV. Our Flag. V. The Patriotic Citizen. VI. Washington's Birthday.

HARPER'S READERS.

The Most Successful School Books of this Century.

Prin. O. P. LEE, Edgefield Academy, S. C., says: "They are far superior to anything of the kind I have seen."

Prin. H. B. PARKER, Hampton Male and Female Academy, Ga., says: "We are perfectly delighted with the series."

Prin. M. N. WETMORE, Bramson, S. C., says: "I think them as hear perfect in every way as books can be."

Hon. H. A. GUDGER, President of School Board, Asheville, N. C., says: "Harper's Readers are used in our public schools, and give perfect satisfaction."

Send for Price List and Terms for Introduction.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers

FRANKLIN SQUARE, New York City.

FOUNDED 1851.

HORNER SCHOOL,

OXFORD, N. C.

Fall Term Opens Aug. 4, 1890.

FACULTY:

J. H. HORNER, M. A., University of N. C. (Founder of School.)
Col. J. T. DREWRY, Com'd't, Star Graduate Virginia Military Institute.
J. C. HORNER, A. M., Davidson College.
G. A. WAUCHOPE, M. A., Ph. D., University of Berlin, Late Fellow Wash. & Lee Univ.
Rev. J. M. Horner, B. A., B. D., University of Virginia and Johns Hopkins University.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 174 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California. Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pound<sup>9</sup> of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S.—E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236, Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass. & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

→* MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH, *←
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
155 Lexington Avenue New York.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

MRS. NANCY TURNER, SALEM, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway

offers first-class service between Winston and Salem and Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all other points on the Atlantic Coast Line, and Savannah Florida and Western systems in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Solid trains run to Wilmington, where easy transfer is made by hack in the forenoon to the trains of the

Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley,

then a change of cars is made at Walnut Cove Union Station, arriving at Winston-Salem at 9:00 p. m. Those not securing through tickets can purchase tickets and re-check their baggage at Winston-Salem at Wilmington. From all stations on the Main Line of the CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY to Winston-Salem only one change of cars is necessary, at Walnut Cove Union Station.

J. W. FRY, Gen. Sup't. Greensboro, N. C.
W. E. KYLE, Gen. Pass. Ag't Fayetteville, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem, N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East, and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School. For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED.

Patrons of this paper, old students of Salem Female Academy, everybody interested in the history of the early Moravians of North Carolina to send for a copy of "TWIN-CITIES - WINSTON-SALEM." Price 25 cents. Stamps received. Address,

Mrs. A. V. WINKLER,
Salem, N. C.

Mar. '90—4m1

THE BEAUTIFUL

NORTH.

The shortest and most direct line to Harrodsburg, Shelbyville, Lexington, Frankfort, Paris. Only 11 hours and 35 minutes Chattanooga to Louisville, only 11 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Boudoir Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

SOUTH.

The only line Chattanooga to Birmingham, Meridian, Jackson, Vicksburg, and Shreveport, making direct connections without omnibus transfer, at Shreveport for Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston, Austin, Texas; New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Mexico and California. Shortest and Quickest Line to New Orleans, with solid Trains and Through Pullman Sleepers, making direct connections for Texas, Mexico and California. Close connection made en route for Memphis, Little Rock and Arkansas Points, Aniston, Columbus, Montgomery, Mobile, Natchez.

Passengers ticketed and Baggage checked through to destination.
For rates, Correct County Maps, and full information, call at QUEEN & CRESCENT TICKET OFFICE, READ HOUSE, or CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION CHAS. H. MILLS, Ticket Agt. C. S. BARRETT, T. P. A. Depot.
D. J. MULLANEY, Div. Pass. Agt., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. C. HARVEY, Vice Pres. CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS, G. P. & T. A.

THE

"COTTON BELT ROUTE"

St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railway,

Carries More Pupils to and from Arkansas and Texas than all other lines to those States combined.

Why? Because this is the only line which has furnished, as promised, elegant chair cars direct from the school to the scholar's home, and from the home back to school without changes en route. These cars are fitted up for this class of travel exclusively with retiring and toilet rooms, accompanied by an attentive porter and in charge of an Agent of the Company, who sees that the car is reserved for the use of the pupils only.

We have handled the First-Class Schools of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and other States for a series of years, and in no instance has any school, commencing with us, patronized, subsequently, any other line.

This is the only line from Memphis running Two Daily Trains through to Texas without change of cars, and without Omnibus Transfer in Memphis from Eastern Lines.

Correspondence solicited from Principals of Schools and Parents concerning the safe conduct of scholars, by

D. MILLER, General Pass. Agent.
E. W. LaBEAUME, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, Gen. Agt. Memphis, Tenn.
S. G. Warner, Trav. Agt. Memphis, Tenn.
W. H. Winfield, Gen. Agt. P. Dept. Texarkana, Tex.
W. G. Adams, Pass. Agent, Nashville, Tenn.

:- "SOLD ON MERIT." :-
THE LIGHT-RUNNING "DOMESTIC."

Do you need a Piano?

Do you need an Organ?

Do you need a Violin?

Do you need a Musical Implement of any kind? Have you an old Instrument you wish to exchange?

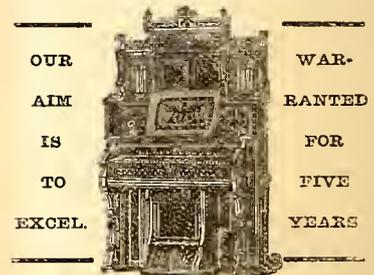

If so you will find it to your interest to call and consult the undersigned.

W. P. ORMSBY,

MAIN ST., - - SALEM, N. C.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.
WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS

STIEFF PIANOS

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XIII.

SALEM, N. C., OCTOBER, 1890.

NUMBER 109.

The Fourth of July in Concord, Mass.

BY MISS MARIA VOGLER.

WOULD my dear old pupils who read this journal, and who last winter took a sail with me up the Ocklawaha river, and in imagination enjoyed the hospitalities of a lovely Florida home, like to spend a day with me in a far different part of the country? You would, I doubt not, enjoy it here where I am making a long and delightful sojourn in the Pine Tree State, and be surprised, as I have been, with its lovely and diversified scenery, consisting of mountains, some of them solid rock, rugged and bare, like the Ragged Range to the north-east of us; others, like Mt. Pleasant to the south-east, wooded to their very summits, with silvery lakelets nestling at their feet, the waters clear as crystal, beautifully reflecting tree, mountain and sky. And the pretty white farm-houses, with their large, red barns, form a charming contrast with the green fields surrounding them. Add to this the cool, pure, bracing air, and you will understand why Maine is becoming a great summer resort.

But I think it will give you more pleasure to accompany our picnic party on the 4th of July to the beautiful old historic town of Concord, Mass., which is regarded a hallowed spot to literary tourists, as it contains the houses and final resting-places of Hawthorne, Emerson, Louisa Alcott and others who have enriched the world with the productions of their gifted minds.

We thought it would be pleasant to spend the day in "The Hub," and see how they celebrate the great national holiday in the very cradle of liberty; but when the day approached we found it was the custom for the Bostonians to go into the country on that day, and the country people to come into the city; therefore, when Mr. and Mrs. Batchelder, to whom we are indebted for many disinterested acts of kindness, proposed a picnic at Concord, we were very happy to join the party. There were seven in the company and each of you may consider herself the eighth.

As Mrs. B. has provided all the refreshments, we have nothing to do but take our seats in the street car at 10:30 a. m. When we pass the Common on our way to the station, and see the dense crowd of people, it seems as if all Boston is out of doors, or the whole surrounding country has been turned into the city. And the Common presents quite a different appearance, for today it is free to all, and is a crowded, busy mart of petty vendors of icecream, cakes, melons, candy, peanuts, &c., under booths or awnings of quaint designs and all colors.

We are glad our car is stopped several times by the jam on Tremont street, for we are interested in watching the busy scene. We find many others at the station bound for the country.

We pass many large vegetable gardens and green fields in which fine cows are grazing. Ten miles out is Waltham, where we see the immense manufactory of the Waltham Watch Company, the most extensive in the world. Here also the first cotton mill in the United States was erected in 1814.

Walden Lake is a lovely spot and a popular picnic resort, where large crowds of people have come out from Boston to spend the day, — boating on the lake, roaming through the groves or dancing in the large pavilion. At the other end of this lake the eccentric hermit-philosopher, Henry David Thoreau, had a cottage, where he lived alone, communing with nature, and where he wrote The Home in the Wood.

Mr. B.'s friend, Mr. J. B. Wood, a resident of Concord, meets us at the station with a barge, or hack, large enough to accommodate the whole company. We first drive to his home, a fine residence, with a lovely lawn in front and also in the rear, sloping down to the banks of the Concord River, and containing many ornamental trees and shrubs and part of it laid out in rose and vegetable gardens. He generously cuts us each a bouquet of his large, fine roses. Mrs. W. comes out and invites us in, but we prefer to sit on the piazza to enjoy the view of the garden and lawn.

We re-enter the barge and drive out through the beautifully shaded street; some of the trees, magnificent old elms, must have stood here on that memorable day when the British marched up this street 115 years ago, searching for the stores of ammunition which the militia had fortunately succeeded in removing to a place of safety. Many elegant residences line this Main Street, — the old fashioned and the more modern standing side by side, with lovely lawns, kept in perfect order, and a Sabbath-like stillness pervading it all. Either they have no small boys here, or they are so refined in their tastes that they do not enjoy the popping of the fire-crackers as the Boston boys do; for they demanded the privilege from the municipal government as their right, and began their din on the evening of the 3d, and kept it up during the greater part of the night.

We now pass a house on our right where Miss Alcott once lived, and a short distance beyond is a handsome, new, brick building which, Mr. W. informs us is a Public Library, recently erected and endowed by a rich bachelor of Concord. I am sorry that I cannot recall his name, for it is seldom that wealthy men who have no direct heirs think of thus benefitting their fellow-men.

We turn into another street, passing the Common where there is a monument erected by the citizens in memory of their soldier boys who were killed in the Civil War, and further on a very old house, where our guide orders a halt and points out to us a bullet hole in the wall which, he says, was made by a British soldier in the retreat, firing at a woman standing in the door close by.

As we approach the suburbs we notice an ancient looking house to our left, surrounded by extensive grounds and partly hidden by large trees. We are greatly interested to hear that this is the Old Manse, built in 1765 by Rev. William Emerson, grandfather of the "Sage of Concord." It was also the residence of Nathaniel Hawthorne for several years, and here he wrote his Mosses from an Old Manse. The house is built of wood, and has apparently never been painted, which adds to its antiquated appearance. Dormer windows protrude from the third story in front and rear. The gables are not sharp pointed, but curve towards each other.

The road leading to the battle-ground borders on the Old Manse property, and is a beautiful avenue lined with double rows of white pines. We drive through it to the monument, a granite shaft, the site of the first battle fought in the American Revolution. True, the first blood was shed at Lexington, where the British, on their way to Concord, fired upon the militia assembled there and killed eight of the minute men; they did not return the charge then, but here on the left bank of this beautiful little river they made their first brave resistance to tyranny; and the first British soldiers were killed where this monument now stands on the right bank of the river. It bears this inscription:

HERE
ON THE 19TH OF APRIL, 1775,
WAS MADE
THE FIRST FORCIBLE RESISTANCE TO BRITISH AGGRESSION, ON THE OPPOSITE BANK
STOOD THE AMERICAN MILITIA.
HERE STOOD THE INVADING ARMY,
AND ON THIS SPOT
THE FIRST OF THE ENEMY FELL
IN THE WAR OF THAT REVOLUTION WHICH GAVE INDEPENDENCE
TO THESE UNITED STATES.
IN GRATITUDE TO GOD AND IN THE LOVE OF FREEDOM
THIS MONUMENT WAS ERECTED
A. D. 1836.

A rustic bridge spans the river, and on the opposite side stands a monument, erected by Ebenezer Hubbard, who had disapproved of the site chosen for the other. It is far more beautiful and appropriate, consisting of a pedestal of unpolished granite, surmounted by a bronze figure of a Minute Man in a farmer's costume, his coat thrown across his plow, (the coat, Mr. W. tells us, was modelled after his grandfather's); with his gun in his hand he is hastening to the fight, his fine countenance evincing great earnestness and determination. The statue was cast out of rejected cannon used in the Civil War. The sculptor is D. C. French, whose home is in Concord, but who has a studio in New York. On one side of the pedestal are engraved the following lines, by Emerson:

"By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unurled,
Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world."

On the opposite side:

1775.
NINETEENTH OF APRIL.
1875.

In this beautifully shaded avenue, with these sacred monuments and the Old Manse in full view, we alighted, and Mrs. B. spread out her generous collation on the stone wall, which feast we enjoy to the full, spiced with the witty remarks of the irrepressible Nellie and gallant Sir Harry, and capped with delicious, freshly-picked strawberries furnished by Mr. Wood.

After a short rest we drove to Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, which we approached through another cemetery, from which we have a fine view of the former, a narrow valley of grassland, gently rising on the other side, through which the road winds gracefully, bordered by beautiful shade trees. We alight at the foot of a hill, and on its summit find the graves we are seeking. We stand with reverence and view the last resting place of Nathaniel Hawthorne, which is marked by a simple slab of marble at the head and foot, with HAWTHORNE engraved upon it in raised letters. Near by, on the slope of the hill, lies Thoreau; a plain granite headstone, with name and date, marks the spot where sleeps this lover of nature.

Within a stone's throw of these is Emerson's, on which is a huge boulder of pink quartz, but not a letter engraved upon it, so without our kind guide we could not have found it.

Near by Hawthorne's the Alcott burial plat is pointed out, where there are five graves in a row, marked only with initials on very small head stones. The gifted Louisa lies at one end, and her visionary father, who was also a writer and a teacher of philosophy, at the other. As her mother died abroad we imagine that the other graves are those of her sisters, immortalized in Little Women as Meg, Beth and Amy. The oldest grave in this cemetery is marked by a granite shaft, on which is engraved, "Rev. Samuel Whiting, born in England 1597, came to this country 1635, died 1639."

We drive back through the old cemetery in the centre of the town, where we find very old graves of the 17th century, with some quaint inscriptions. Just opposite is Wright's Tavern, which stood here when the British marched by in high spirits, and tradition says, Major Pitcairn went in for a drink and was heard to remark while stirring his toddy with his finger, "So will I stir the blood of these rebels before night." The patriots did not give him time to get a drink on his return, and before he reached Boston he had more opportunity to stir British blood than American. Mr. W. also points out a church and courthouse that stood here in those days; they look so well preserved that they may stand here a hundred years hence. We drive out about a mile on the road on which the British troops retreated, the patriots firing upon them from behind trees, fences or rocks. Now it is a lovely, peaceful avenue, bordered by ornamental shade trees. But its historical associations and present beauty are not its only attractions. Here to the right is the home of R. W. Emerson, a square, frame, old-fashioned house, painted white, with well-kept, extensive grounds. It is a lovely, peaceful spot, still occupied by his widow and daughter.

About a quarter of a mile further on to the left is the "Orchard House," the former home of Mr. Alcott, and where Louisa wrote Little Women. It is a beautiful place; a moderately sized house, two large white pines in front, and back of it a hill densely wooded with pines and other trees. Near by is the Chapel, a small, unpainted house, in which were held the sessions of the Concord School of Philosophy, taught by Messrs. Alcott, Emerson and others.

The next house, which is also on our left, is of still greater interest, for it is the "House of the Seven Gables," of which Hawthorne wrote and where he lived. It is a large house, with a chamber on the roof, surmounted by four gables. It was there Hawthorne used to write, mounting a ladder, which he drew up after him, that he might not be disturbed. There are three gables on the roof, which with these four, constitute the seven. On the beautiful lawn sits a lovely child about two years of age. A fine grove just beyond belongs to this estate.

On our return to the town we drive again to the residence of Mr. Wood, where we are greatly interested in his collection of native birds, mounted beautifully. Mr. B. had intended to return via Lexington, but as that train had gone, Mr. W. took us to the Massachusetts Reformatory, which is about a half mile from Concord. It is a very large, imposing looking building. Col. Tufts, the Superintendent, kindly sent an officer to show us through the different departments. There are about 700 young men and boys confined here, chiefly for minor offences and for an indefinite time. When the officers consider them sufficiently reformed they are released, better fitted to become useful members of society, for while they are there they are compelled to attend school and work at a trade, which each one is allowed to select.

Mr. W. accompanied us to the station, where we find he paid the driver of the barge in advance, thus adding another to the many kindnesses he has shown us today, and for which we are truly grateful.

We return to Boston feeling sure we will never forget the 4th of July we spent so pleasantly in lovely, classic Concord.

South Hope, Me., Aug. 15, 1890.

Paper Read before the Alumnae Society, June 3, 1890.

BY MIRANDA MILLER SCARBOROUGH, Ridge Spring, S. C.

BY request I will give you some of my recollections of the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY when I was a school-girl there from 1831 to the fall of 1834, more than fifty-five years ago. I was quite young, only ten years of age, when I became a pupil of the school, and now I appear before you a great-grandmother! At the time of my entrance the Rev. BENJAMIN REICHEL was the Principal and died while in office, and Bishop BECHLER filled the place until the Rev. Mr. JACOBSON was elected and took charge in 1834.

The ACADEMY of those days consisted of the one south building, which contained eight large dwelling or study rooms, an embroidery or work-room, a chapel and sleeping apartments in the third story, and two dining-rooms in the basement,—plainly furnished in every respect, but the food was well prepared. In our study rooms we had long tables with drawers in them, where we kept our books, &c, &c., and benches to sit on. The floors were bare, but were kept perfectly clean by the scholars, as we were required to take turns at this, two each day. We also had to bring all of the water we drank from a pump in the yard. At night we sat and studied by the light of tallow candles until the hour for bed. In the morning a bell was rung for us to rise and dress, and another for us to go to breakfast, which was soon followed by recitations, &c.

When I entered the ACADEMY I was placed in the 4th Room, with Misses LEINBACH and REICH, who were my teachers for two years, when I was promoted to the 1st Room, with Misses KRAMSCH and CRIST. They were so good and kind to me that I became very much attached to them and was as contented and happy as if I was at home. We did not have the large pleasure grounds and the variety of amusements of the present day. Our pleasures consisted of walking, jumping a rope, and cultivating a few flowers in a small, but naturally a pretty spot, situated in the lower edge of town. In this enclosure there were two summer-houses, where those who did not care to work among the flowers could sit and read, or pass the time as they liked best. Christmas was the happiest season of all. Our teachers did everything that they could to make it so. I well remember how happy we were on every Christmas morning when we entered our study rooms to see, on each of our table drawers, a profusion of candy, cakes, nuts, &c., and also two wax candles for each one, which were burning, emblematic of the "light which was come into the world," and made everything look so pretty. We enjoyed it all, I can assure you. Each year when Easter comes around I am reminded of our getting up by sunrise and repairing to the cemetery, where the special service for that day was read, and followed by the placing of flowers on the graves. The church, too, was always handsomely decorated with evergreens and flowers, and the usual services for the day were appropriate and the music very fine. After this season our thoughts were fixed upon our Annual Examination, which took place the last of May, when there was generally a crowd of the parents and friends of the scholars. My father always came at that time, and spent the whole two weeks of vacation, as he lived too far away to come oftener.

We did not have any railroads then, and the scholars of the present day cannot appreciate the many improvements which have been introduced in the school and buildings of the ACADEMY, which add so very much to their comfort and happiness. And with all these I doubt if any of them love their Alma Mater any better than I do. It is indeed pleasing to note the very prosperous condition of the ACADEMY, especially the high standard of scholarship which she has attained, and, I trust, with the blessing of God, she may continue to improve until she can stand at the head of all others in the land, and I believe she will, under the management of your energetic and indefatigable Principal, Rev. J. H. CLEWELL. The changes have been so great since I was a school-girl here that I can scarcely realize the fact that I am in my dear old home that I have loved so fondly.

No words can express the pleasure and gratification it gives me to be personally present at this meeting of our Alumnae Association, and if I am not permitted to meet with you again, I trust that we all may meet in our Home above, and "be one fold under one Shepherd."

Our Pedestrian Club.

BY AGNES.

THE fact that pedestrian exercise is most conducive to health has long been acknowledged by all, but a regular constitutional parade up the Avenue and down Main Street, like the animals in Noah's ark, was not at all sufficient for active girls, full of life and vitality.

Accordingly, early in the term, Mr. CLEWELL organized a Pedestrian Club among the Seniors, which numbered some thirty odd members.

Beginning with a short walk in the environs of town, we gradually extended our operations, several times going out as far as Davis School, where we eagerly noted the preparations for this flourishing institution; the boys, however, had not arrived. Fate seemed to ordain that we should not go in that direction, for each time it rained, and once we would have left one of our party in the mire had it not been for the prompt action of our "captain," assisted by a diminutive classmate.

One evening we made a short visit to quiet Centreville, rested a few minutes on the church steps, returning home by the Salisbury road. Our break-neck speed, so much like that of a locomotive, made one member of the faculty very uneasy for fear we would one day walk off, Principal and all.

During Mr. CLEWELL's absence, Dr. RONDTHALER took us on a very pleasant walk out to the spring beyond Nading's farm, getting back just in time for supper.

Walking to be profitable should have some object in view, and this we early recognized. A walk to the Pilot was held up to us as an incentive to continued practice, and we gradually have been able to cover eight or nine miles without being greatly fatigued, our longest walk having been to Stuart's Fork. On such walks we usually carried a light lunch, but on that day, the eagerness of the girls to start prevented Mr. CLEWELL from having it arranged,—he amply atoned for it, however, that night by inviting us over at half-past eight o'clock.

Should the inhabitants of the neighborhood, on the morning of the 24th inst., see a dark streak coming up the road, they need not be alarmed; it is only Mr. CLEWELL and his girls on their way to the Pilot.

P. S.—Added by a Friend.

The writer did not mention the part she took in the mire, but now she remembers the prompt action with regret, for had she been allowed to remain in the mire she would never have been called upon to inform her many friends of the dire calamity that befell her.

AD-A-LINE MORE.

Victoria Regia in Open Air.

Salem Corr. Wilmington Messenger.

BUT the innovation of the electric cars in Salem just now. We have not obtained Dr. Bahnson's permission to speak of the remarkable rarity he has in his private lily pond, but we venture upon the liberty of describing it because it is the first Victoria Regia known to the writer to prosper and bloom in the open air. This rare aquatic plant was discovered in the upper Amazon, and named in honor of Queen Victoria. The story of the immense trouble and expense at which a living plant was transferred to the Royal Gardens at Kew is known to most readers. For a long time this royal plant was studied, and a special aquarium prepared for it, enabling the gardener to keep up a temperature of 98 degrees F., and at last to the great joy of the botanical and horticultural world the plant bloomed. This success made way for another at the Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876, and since then the ambition of many lovers of beautiful aquatic plants has been directed to the accomplishment of the grand feat elsewhere. Dr. Bahnson has acquired much local reputation by his success in rearing magnificent lilies, lotuses and other rare water plants, and determined to attempt the rearing of a Victoria Regia. His first root was killed by the cold snap last June, just as it was rearing its head above the water. His second succeeded and gave its first flower in the early part of September.

Can you imagine the feelings of your correspondent as he and his party approached the pond and their eyes rested upon the magnificent leaves, five in number, surrounding a modest flower of pure white? Just as we reached the spot, as though the schedule was arranged, that after our journey of 200 miles, its beautiful white petals should unfold for our delectation, and there we stood and gazed "and still the wonder grew," that in open pond, in North Carolina, we should have the pleasure of seeing a veritable Victoria Regia in all its living splendor! One of the largest of these leaves measured sixty-six inches in diameter, and bore the weight of a little girl, 12 years of age, weighing 65 pounds, and in this attitude the whole plant was photographed. If you will look in Yates' window in the morning, you will see this photograph, and it will convey far better than any description the beauty and magnificence of the Victoria Regia, except as to the flower.

This flower has a very short life, measured only by two days. On the second day one of them was plucked from its stem by its generous owner, and brought into his parlor where, side by side with magnificent red, blue and white lilies, eichornias or water hyacinths and water poppies, it reigned supreme and went through a most remarkable transformation. The outer white petals gently opened, getting wider and wider as each layer separated, the deeper layers now assuming a delicate red tint which deepened towards the centre, until at last the whole flower, now extended to 13½ inches across, with its magnificent crown of stamens, fairly dazzled one's eyes. Visitor after visitor thronged the room to catch the culmination of the glory of the magnificent flower. One lady said she had made a special visit to the Kew Gardens near London to see it, but it was not in bloom, and another said she had seen the Kew plant, but the leaves looked dusty and dingy, and the heat of the aquarium was almost insupportable,—all agreeing upon the one thing that the half had not been told of its magnificent beauty. As the color deepened, the signal of death seemed to come upon it, catching the last rays of the glorious autumn sunset in its wide open face it died a splendid death.

Correspondence.

—Our opening letter for the month is from an esteemed friend of some years ago, Miss LAURA JEFFERIES, now Mrs. Roseborough, of Columbus, Miss.:

Your letter was received a few weeks ago; I was delighted to receive it: also the Sketches of Travel came recently, and I am reading it with great pleasure. I enclose stamps, which I suppose will not come amiss, though, possibly, you may receive too many stamps.

Allow me to thank you for your kindness and promptness. I enjoyed your articles in THE ACADEMY on Rome and Florence. It seemed to me I could recall, while reading, your graphic and peculiarly interesting manner of speaking to your classes in history, and to the 18 girls of the Second Room on various useful and enjoyable topics in literature. How often during the year I spent in Salem did I look up to see whether you were reading or talking to us.

I am delighted to hear of the increased prosperity of the School. I sometimes tell my little daughter, Carol (Carolina), now 10 years old, that I shall have to send her to Salem. The three younger children, Irving, Jamie and Janette are, with her, a never-ceasing pleasure as well as care to their mama. Guthrie and Lillian died when infants, but I think of them as keeping pace in growth with these on earth, except infinitely more so, even as Heavenly things exceed the earthly.

Columbus is a beautiful town of about 7000 people, and contains elegant homes of the southern type. The flowers are superb. The Mississippi Industrial Institute and college for girls is located here.

I am not going to be without THE ACADEMY again, and will remit at the proper time.

As "the girls" are always "the girls" to you, so "the teachers" are always "the teachers" to us,—to myself, any way, and such a feeling of reverence, combined with love and respect, is a pleasure to me, and one that will always be entertained. Miss Graves, from New York State, and a member of my husband's church, is teacher of Phonography and Telegraphy in the Institute here. She came to see me recently, and said she had been at Salem for some months a few years back, and spoke of the profound respect held by the girls for their teachers, and so much admired it. Such a reverence for superiors is lacking in so many institutions and yet, how plainly does the Bible speak on the subject, and how much should this feeling of reverence be inculcated! Miss G. was writing for some firm in town, and was associated some with Miss Sallie Vogler.

Yours sincerely,

A. L. ROSEBOROUGH.

Columbus, Miss.

—Our next is from one of our pupils of last year, THERESA PACE:

How many times this morning I have thought, "school begins to-day!" and every time I have most earnestly wished you a happy and successful year! I love to hear from you all, and my subscription to THE ACADEMY has expired, so I send 50 cents in stamps to renew it. My love to Mrs. CLEWELL and the dear little children. And will you please remember me kindly to Miss LEHMAN?

Your loving old pupil,

THERESA PACE.

Corsicana, Texas.

—The following lines are from Mrs. Kernan, better known to old pupils as Miss SOPHIE KREMER:

Enclosed please find $1.00 in payment for two subscriptions to THE ACADEMY. One 50 cents is for a new subscriber, Mrs. S. C. Look, Marion, Va.; the other is for the renewal of my own from January, '91. Mrs. Look is an old pupil, was COLUMBIA THOMAS, and, like all old Salem girls, retains the happiest and fondest recollections of her school-life. She was an especially esteemed and favorite pupil of Miss STAUBER'S, and often entrusted with the charge and care of her private room. when she (Miss STAUBER) occupied as such a small front room in the old Gemein Haus. She was there at the time of Rev. Mr. BLECK'S second marriage to Miss MARY HARRISON, a former pupil and a contemporary of Mrs. Look's.

Hoping you will have a prosperous and pleasant scholastic year, I am,

yours truly,

S. K. KERNAN.

S. W. L. Asylum, Marion, Va.

—We are glad to hear from FANNIE WRAY, who is well known to most of our present pupils as one of the Seniors of '90.

Now school has begun and you are again in S. F. A. for the year. I suppose you have been traveling this summer or visiting your relatives. We spent the month of June in the Old North State.

Though I live in Tennessee I am decidedly partial to my old home, and I think always will be so. We attended the Commencement exercises of Wake Forest where my brother is in school. From thence we went to Shelby, our old home place, and thence to Gainesville, Ga., where we witnessed the closing exercises of the Female Seminary. Taken all together we had a delightful trip.

There is to be a grand meeting here during the month of October, beginning on the 7th. It is "Veteran's Reunion," North and South taking together.

I have not seen HETTY this summer, but suppose she will be down in Knoxville soon. JOHNNIE and JESSIE CATES will be up sometime this month. LIZZIE DELL has been visiting EMMA for quite a while. Miss AMY and Miss LOU have been visiting MINNIE FAGG. NELLIE GRIFFISS sailed for Europe on the 10th with her father. I do not correspond with a great many of our class. TIBBIE seems to be getting along very well indeed. A few days ago when my brother left us for school I wanted to go so badly, but mama says I must stay this year and go next. Now believe me when I say I will be very glad to hear from you just as soon as you have time to write.

Your friend and pupil,

FANNIE WRAY.

Knoxville, Tenn.

—I have received safely three copies of THE ACADEMY and CATALOGUE, for all of which I thank you. I will become a subscriber to "The Scholarship Endowment Fund" for the sum of three dollars. Trust you will be able to collect much larger sums. Wishing great prosperity to the institution, I remain,

Yours with great respect,

M. A. HARTSTONE.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Our Library.

Books received:

Appleton's Annual Cyclopaedia, 1889. New Series. Vol. XIV.

—We acknowledge with thanks the gift of the Life of Henry Grady, donated by Mrs. Schell (MANTIE MACOMSON, '83).

—We have received a number of valuable works during the past days, the following being a partial list:

An Index to the United States of America, embracing Curious Facts, Historical Geographical and Political, by Townsend. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

Methods and Aids in Geography, by King. Lee & Shepherd, Boston.

1000 Questions and Answers in General History, by Hathaway. Burrows & Co., Cleveland.

The Chemistry of Common Things, by Macadam. T. Nelson & Son, Edinburgh.

Philadelphia and Its Environs. J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.

The Teaching of Geography, by Archibald Geikie. McMillan & Co., London and New York.

Sidney's Defence of Poesy. Cook, Ginn & Co., Boston. From the same firm, School Algebra, by Wentworth. A first-class work for the study of the branch named.

The Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow, by Jerome. National Publishing Co., N. Y.

—From the Hon. Z. B. Vance: Compendium of the 10th Census of the United States. Parts I and II.

—From the Hon. J. M. Brower we have received a copy of Treaties and Conventions between the United States and other Powers, 1776-1877.

—The special school edition of the magazine, entitled Architecture and Building, has come to hand, and we find it a valuable edition indeed. Address 23 Warren Street, N. Y.

—We have received from McMillan & Co., New York, a copy of Elementary Classics, viz: Cæsar and Virgil. These are small but carefully prepared books, sold at a low price, and suited for an abridged course in any of the classics. We have also received from the same firm a work entitled A Graduated Course of Natural Science. Loewy.

—We have just received kind greetings from a friend who sends us, among other messages, this one, that he is preparing a gift for the Library. No gift could be more welcome.

—From the American Book Co. we have received Course in Cæsar, Sallust and Cicero, by Harkness. An excellent volume, containing selections from each of these authors bound in one book.

Easy Latin Methods, by Harkness. A very fine work; takes the place of a condensed grammar, and fills a long felt want in many institutions.

Searing's Virgil. An edition of this author prepared for the N. Y. Normal College.

—It is with especial pleasure that we place on our library shelves the following volumes, with the fly leaf register as given:

University of North Carolina Charter Centennial, 1889. Donated to the Library of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY by Howard Rondthaler, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, October, 1890.

The second volume is The Hellenian, published annually by the Fraternities of the University of North Carolina. To the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY with compliments of A. H. Patterson, University of N. C., Chapel Hill.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., OCTOBER, 1890.

*Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.*

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers
constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

Studio Endowment.

The following letter will explain itself:

SALEM, N. C., October 25th, 1890.

*Rev. J. H. Clewell,
Salem, N. C.;*

Dear Sir:—I have today placed in the hands of Mr. Jas. T. Lineback, Treasurer of the Board of Trustees, the first bond issued upon the Roanoke & Southern Road, to be added to the "Louise Fund" and devoted to the Art Department of the ACADEMY. In presenting it I desire to express the wish that the Department may grow and improve and become a strong and popular school in the institution.

Yours truly,

F. H. FRIES.

The gift referred to is the first of the Roanoke & Southern Railroad bonds, interest bearing and worth $1000. Several years since Col. F. H. Fries founded the "Louise Fund" as a memorial to his little daughter Louise, who was born Oct. 8, and died Oct. 28, 1882. The first gift was $1000, and the present endowment swells the amount to $2000. Certainly our many readers will rejoice at this news, and feel that friends are rising up in a practical manner, and that their efforts will place the ACADEMY eventually in the very front rank of colleges in our land.

Without endowment no institution can attain to the highest ends. The income from the pupils will pay for current expenses in the culinary department, will pay for light, fuel and the like, but when the highest results are to be attained in the special schools either the ACADEMY must give its instructors special, technical opportunities, or must add to the Faculty specialists in these departments. This requires an unusual outlay, more than can be taken from the support needed by the College or Academic department without cramping that work, and to cramp the regular course work is to draw the life blood from the institution. Then, too, the regular college course needs endowment as a safeguard against times of depression. A financial panic might spread throughout the land; fire or storm might cause losses in the school; then the endowment would enable the school to weather the storm, and be ready later to again welcome the hundreds who flock to it.

Many friends are now interested in the establishment of these funds. The "Louise Fund" now amounts to $2,000, and will welcome gifts from any source. The Alumnae Scholarship Endowment has been undertaken by the Alumnae, the object being to raise $5000, and who has ever heard of a number of earnest lady-workers failing to accomplish what they carefully undertook to accomplish? The interest in the Library is growing, and besides the Griffiss Fund, at least one hundred valuable works have been donated during the past year, and (including all purchases and gifts) one large closet full is the net gain for the year just closed. With a foundation of 5000 volumes already in the Library think of what ten years of steady, modest work, such as was done last year, will make the library.

Nor should we stop at these three departments—Art, Scholarship and Library—but other departments are like bulbs in the spring-time, growing, breaking the shell, increasing. The Literary Societies need a building with two comfortable halls; the new industrial school of Cooking and Dressmaking will be able to accomplish more with more means; so, too, the Music School, the Commercial Department, the Language School,—all of which are separate and distinct schools gathered around the one large College or Academic Department.

As Principal of the ACADEMY the undersigned hails with joy this movement, which looks towards the upbuilding of the venerable but aggressive institution. Why should not the century of labor on the part of the ACADEMY be rewarded by patriotic thank offerings? Has not the ACADEMY done much toward the happiness of many thousands of homes? Is it not worthy of the gifts? Has there ever been a time, or will there ever be a time when a dollar, or a thousand dollars, or ten thousand dollars will do more than just now, when business development and all interests are taking the shape they will be governed by during the next century? Nothing save yes can be answered to all of these questions, and hence it is of more than ordinary moment to be able to acknowledge the generous and welcome endowment of Col. F. H. Fries, which will silently, from year to year, perform its work in the ACADEMY, and will make the name of little LOUISE, the dear departed child, a welcome and honored one to many who will reap the benefits of the fund.

JOHN H. CLEWELL,
Principal.

—We regret the delay in the present number of THE ACADEMY. Circumstances prevented an earlier issue of the same. Unless unavoidably prevented we hope to have the next number ready by Nov. 20.

—The editors are frequently met with the question: "Why did you not mention this or that circumstance?" Now we desire THE ACADEMY to be of interest to all, and hence request any and every one to send us notes of interesting facts. Pupils in the ACADEMY can drop the items in the mail box in Main Hall, addressed to THE ACADEMY. Friends at a distance will always give us pleasure by contributing to our columns.

—The Students' Tour to Northern Cities last autumn seems to have commended itself to our patrons so much that another request has come to us, and a party will be made up to take a similar journey this Fall. The girls who will make the trip are now busily engaged in studying the history, geography and topography of the sections through which they will pass, and doubtless the journey will be profitable as well as pleasant. This programme has been made at the request of a number of patrons and seems to commend itself to their judgment.

—The school-life has now entered upon its third period, or 9th week, and THE ACADEMY hopes, now that all has settled down, to receive numerous contributions from the room companies and departments within the school. Nothing makes a paper so interesting as to have the thoughts of many persons pictured in it. Hence, we hope to have many of the pupils and teachers take part in the work of editing the journal. We will send you from time to time sheets of paper with an invitation to contribute to the same printed on the top, and hope that these invitations will meet with a hearty response. In this way the paper will grow in interest to all.

—Our relations to Natural Science will this year undergo something of a change. We last year did more work directly in the line of Chemistry and to some extent in Physics. In addition to this, Physiology, Hygiene, Botany and kindred subjects are and have been well in hand. But, in order to make the very important subject of Natural Science more popular, and at the same time more comprehensive, the new laboratory has been fitted out with especial care. The use of the sciopicon, together with carefully prepared lectures, will enable the pupils to gain a good practical view of these important branches, and hence we hope to attain marked results in this sphere. Certainly there exists no more interesting field than that of natural science properly studied.

—It has been our pleasure recently to place a number of our pupils in positions of usefulness and this fact suggests the thought that the School could easily become a means of communication between those who desire teachers and those who desire positions. Hence, we invite any of our old pupils who want employment to communicate their desires to us, and state what field of work they prefer, and we will cheerfully seek to satisfy their wants. On the other hand those who may desire teachers for general class room work, or for private tutors, or for special work in music or art, or as short hand writers, &c., may depend upon it that we will always conscientiously recommend only those whom we believe to be able and willing to fill the positions which call for their services.

—Years ago it was customary to ring the church bell at 15 minutes before 12 o'clock each day, and many a weary laborer has welcomed the cheery sound of the bell calling him to begin the restful noon-hour, and many a housewife has exclaimed, "there, it is bell ringing!" knowing that in a few moments her husband would be home for dinner. This custom has long since ceased, much to the regret of many. The bell recently purchased by the school is a large, clear-toned one, and will be heard over the entire town. It will be rung not once but a number of times during the day, and we trust that as it divides the day into periods, it may in time become as welcome as the old-time custom of noonday "bell-ringing."

Chronicle and Gossip.

—A first-class telephone exchange is one of the conveniences which we hope to have within the next few months. It is greatly needed.

—BERTHA HICKS was called home by the sickness and death of her sister. Our sympathy goes out to her and her friends in this deep sorrow.

—IDA SMITH and ELLA SECHRIST left during the early part of the month. The one to accept a position; the other on account of her eyesight.

—We have had unusually cool weather for October, and the rapidly changing leaves of the forest remind us that the Fall-leaf picnic is near at hand.

—Dr. RONDTHALER's Sunday afternoon talks are much appreciated by the pupils. He makes them short, interesting and entertaining as well as profitable.

—The Music Department has been reinforced by two more pianos, purchased from Prof. E. W. Lineback. One will be used by Miss LACIAR, who will teach in Annex, old building.

—We have received a copy of the Davis School Register for the past year. This school bids fair to gain still greater public favor in its new and improved situation in the flourishing city of Winston-Salem.

—Since our last issue the following pupils have arrived as boarders: MARY STILLWELL, Alabama; LUCY BALL, KATE PEARSALL, ANNIE WHITFORD, LUCY ABERNATHY, MARY YANCEY, North Carolina.

—The new roof has been placed on the chapel and painted. There has been until the present time a shingle roof on this group of buildings, and the placing of a metal roof renders them far more safe than formerly.

—The Davis Military School is, like all other matters in Winston-Salem, greatly flourishing. The cluster of buildings, with the 200 attractively uniformed boys scattered around, presents the appearance of a lively village.

—Park Hall is rapidly approaching completion. The first story will contain lecture rooms, the second will contain the Industrial Department, viz: Cooking and Dress-making, also one form, or room company, and the third will be used as a dormitory. A detailed description will be given next month.

—Mr. CLEWELL made a hasty trip to Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York in the interest of the School, having also spent a day with friends in Bethlehem, Pa. The object of the visit was to examine certain text-books, purchase some apparatus for the new Laboratory and also secure a large bell. The trip was very satisfactory.

—There has been a wonderful growth in our two towns, Winston and Salem, during the past few years. Not only have the towns greatly increased in population, but wealthy land corporations have been formed in order to develop the best interests of the communities. A few years will doubtless add much to what has already been done.

—The interest in walking still continues as will be seen by a communication elsewhere. Recently a party walked 9 miles without experiencing any special fatigue, and walks of 4 and 5 miles are quite common. The very inclement weather has interfered with the proposed trip to the Pilot, but at an early date we hope to announce the success of the trip.

—The reports of the sermons of Rev. Sam Jones in the Wilmington Messenger are being complimented on all sides. They are worthy of every word that has been spoken, and are the best we have yet seen. To Miss Gertrude Jenkins, of Salem, is due the credit of getting them up.—Twin-City Daily.

Miss JENKINS is a graduate of the Commercial Department of Salem Female Academy.

—In a few days Miss SIEWERS will start North in order to take a course in a Boston Industrial School. She will be ready to begin work in the new quarters in Park Hall, which is now being fitted up for that department. During her absence Miss LENA CHAFFIN, who is at present Miss SIEWERS' assistant in the Studio, will supervise the Art Department, and thus no time will be lost. The Art Department is in a very flourishing condition.

—Among the purchases made recently for the new Laboratory is a fine Sciopicon, or Magic Lantern. It was secured from the famous establishment of Queen & Co., Philadelphia, and combines all the latest improvements. The instrument is suited for either oil or lime light, and the improved lamp is of 360 candle power. With this instrument were purchased a number of views illustrating history, geography, natural science, &c. The first use to which it has been put is to prepare the group of pupils about to make the tour of the northern cities, they being enabled to prepare themselves for the enjoyment of the trip by views of buildings and street scenes in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington and New York.

—Below will be found the programme of the first Musicale of the year, given under Miss EVANS' direction. It was an enjoyable hour, and was held in the rooms usually occupied by Senior Middle A and B in South Hall.

1. Piano Solo. Valse Caprice.....Rubinstein.
Miss MAUD ROBBINS.
2. An Old Garden.....H. Temple.
Miss DUFOUR.
3. Margarita.....H. Helmund.
Miss A. REID.
4. Tell her I love her so.....P. de Faye.
Miss SCHAFFNER.
5. Piano Solo. Largo.....Handel-Parsons.
Miss JULIA WHITE.
6. Left Untold.....Cowen.
Miss SETTLE.
7. Vocal Duet. The Night.....Milliotti.
Misses LACIAR and JONES,
8. Dear Heart.....Mattei.
Miss BLANCHE THOMAS.
9. Piano Solo. Joyful Peasant.....Schuman-Hartel.
Miss L. BREITENBUCHER.
10. For You.....Sydney Smith.
Miss GOSLEN.
11. Beautiful Dreams.....Levey.
Miss M. MILLER.
12. Vocal Quartette. Die Rosa.....Werner.
LORELEY QUARTETTE.

—The large, new $100,000 hotel to be erected by the West End Land Co. will bear the name "Zinzendorf," after the famous Saxon nobleman, Count Zinzendorf, who was active in aiding the settlement of this section. The name is euphonious and also very appropriate, perpetuating his historical association with this section. The hotel will have a front of 400 feet, and will be a credit to our entire section. It will be a summer and winter resort, and will supply a long felt want in our communities.

—The following is said to have originated in a neighboring school room : After the teacher had explained how a boy had saved a little girl from a terrible death on the railroad track, even at the risk of his own life, the question was asked : "What would you call the boy?" "A hero," was the answer readily given. The teacher desirous of impressing the feminine gender of the word asked : "Suppose a girl had rescued the little one instead of a boy what would you call her?" All was quiet for a moment, when up went the hand and a bright little pupil exclaimed : "Why you would call her a shero !"

—The new bell has arrived and is most welcome. The rapidly increasing number of pupils has necessitated the erection of a number of new buildings, hence the small bell is not loud enough to call to meals, class, &c. The new bell is of the famous McShane make, weighs between 400 and 500 pounds and has a very fine tone. It will be hung in a belfry now being built on Main Hall, and will also serve to summon the day scholars to the morning recitations.

—The Alumnae Scholarship subscriptions thus far paid in are given below. There are a number of pledges not yet redeemed, and as they are paid in THE ACADEMY will be pleased to acknowledge the same. The work is a great and a grand one, and will commend itself to every one. In order that more results may appear before the next Alumnae meeting it would be well to send in all gifts that are intended for this cause at as early a date as possible. The following is a list of those already paid in :

Mrs. A. G. Wright,	paid	$10.00
Miss Lou Shaffner,	"	2.50
Miss Sallie Shaffner,	"	2.50
Miss Kyle Pace,	"	5.00
Miss G. E. Stewers,	"	10.00
Miss E. Rollins,	"	1.00
Miss M. Fagg,	"	1.00
Mrs. Slappey,	"	1.00
Miss M. Pretlow,	"	1.00
Miss H. Sutton,	"	.50
Mrs. E. T. Lehman,	"	.25
Mrs. L. A. Smyth,	"	.25
Miss Claude Winkler,	"	1.00
Miss Ida Moore,	"	1.00
Mrs. Wm. Kellett,	"	20.00
Mrs. Jno. Fries,	"	10.00
A Friend, through Miss M. Vogler,	" +	10.00
Mrs. M. A. Hartstene,	"	3.00
Miss Emma Lehman,	"	20.00
		$100.00

Day Scholar Items.

—CARRIE BAHNSON has returned from her visit North.

—LOLIEN ALLEN, ELLA HEGE, BESSIE PURNELL and MAMIE GRAY were on the Committee from the ACADEMY for the sciopticon on Friday evening.

—BESSIE PURNELL and MAMIE BARROW attended the Raleigh Fair.

—AGNES FOGLE will accompany the family of her uncle, Mr. Chas. Fogle, to New Mexico next month.

—First Girl— "Ever read "Pickwick Papers?"

Second Girl—"No ; do you take 'em?"

—B.—Who selected your glasses? an oculist?"

B.—"No ; an optimist (optician)."

Personal Items.

—Mrs. Patterson, of Philadelphia, spent some days with her daughter in Salem.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Chaffin, of Foster Falls, Va., are at the Belo House. They will spend some time with us in North Carolina.

—EMMA ROLLINS and MINNIE FAGG arrived at Salem in order to assist at the Boozer-Carmichael marriage. LOUISE and CAMILLE HUNT were also in Salem, and assisted in the ceremony.

—Mr. Whitner and lady visited their sisters, LAURA and BESSIE, last week.

—Mrs. R. P. Dicks spent some days with her daughters recently.

Wedding Bells.

Thursday, October 23d, was appointed as the wedding day for Miss ALMA CARMICHAEL and Mr. GEO. A. BOOZER. Miss ALMA has been connected with the ACADEMY for six years, as Instructor in Music, and has also had the responsible position of room duty. During these years many pupils have been drawn very near to her, and hence many will read this article with especial interest.

The wedding was held in the Moravian church, which was decorated with an arch of autumn leaves, from the centre of which was suspended a bell of choice cut flowers. Tropical plants were placed about the arch. During the fifteen minutes preceding the ceremony an organ voluntary was rendered. At 8:30 o'clock, amid the inspiring strains of the wedding march the ushers W. T. Spaugh, G. F. Brietz, W. S. Pfohl and T. H. Siddall entered the church ; they were followed by the attendants : North side—Miss Minnie Vogler and Mr. H. E. Vogler, Miss Emma Rollins and Mr. G. R. Shultz, Miss Carrie Thomas and Mr. H. F. Shaffner, Miss Emma Cooper and Mr. F. C. Hege, Miss Ella Shore and Mr. R. A. Spaugh. South side—Miss Minnie Fagg and Mr. John L. Brietz, Miss Louise Hunt and Mr. W. C. Brown, Miss Annie Pittman and Mr. W. J. Brookes, Miss C. E. Pfohl and Mr. J. A. Seaber, Miss Lizzie Heisler and Mr. W. J. Peterson and Miss Loula Hege and Mr. B. J. Pfohl ; they in turn by the bride and groom who stood immediately beneath the arch, while Dr. RONDTHALER performed the ceremony. This was done while the organist rendered soft and subdued music, and immediately after the ceremony the organ and orchestra again joyfully united in the loveliest strains as the bridal party passed out from the church.

The reception took place in South Hall of the ACADEMY. Standing on a handsome rug, and surrounded by flowers, evergreens and orange trees the bride and groom received the congratulations of the numerous friends. This part of the programme ended, the entire company proceeded to the spacious dining room of the ACADEMY where several hours were pleasantly spent; refreshments and music added to the general enjoyment and all went "merry as a marriage bell." The presents were handsome and numerous, and these added to the new, comfortable and commodious home on Main Street, will enable the happy couple to begin life under the most pleasing circumstances. THE ACADEMY extends its best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Boozer.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1. Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS ACADEMY.]

*—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

- 4946 LECBNA JOHNSON. — 1855.
Green Johnson, Tallahassee, Florida.
- 4947 ALICE SMITHWICK. — 1855.
Bryant Smithwick, Centreville, Florida.
- 4948 EUNICE CELESTE FLEMING. — 1855.
S. J. Fleming, Tallahassee, Florida.
- 4949 ALLIE EMILIE BLDCKER. — 1856.
Stephen Blocker, Bluffton, Ga.
- 4950 LUCY B. Reynolds. 1856.
Captain H. W. Reynolds, Rock Springs, Va.
- 4951 MELLIE MCDOWY. — 1854.
Daniel A. McCoy, Montgomery, Ala.
- 4952 KITTIE McLAURIN. — 1857.
L. B. McLaurin, Kayseville, Miss.
- 4953 LILLY GAINS. — 1855.
Mary Gains, Edinboro, N. C.
- 4954 ANNIE McCAIN. — 1857.
Claudius A. Shankle, Albemarle, N. C.
- 4955 NANNIE HILTON CLANTON. — 1855.
George M. Clanton, Penn's Store, Va.
- 4956 ANNA HATHAWAY. — 1857.
Josh Theus, Montgomery, Ala.
- 4957 JENNIE C. SHARPE. — 1851.
J. M. Sharpe, Nashville, Tenn.
- 4958 VIRGINIA McFARLAND. — 1855.
Dr. B. F. McFarland, Morristown, Tenn.
- 4959 EVELYN McFARLAND. — 1855.
William McFarland, Morristown, Tenn.
- 4960 ELIZABETH IRENE CHARLES. — 1857.
Charles L. Stickney, Greensboro, Ala.
- 4961 HATTIE HINKLEY. — 1859.
Mrs. M. A. Smaw, Boligee Green, Ala.
- 4962 CAMILLA R. LEARY. — 1855.
- 4963 ADRLAIDE R. LEARY. — 1857.
Dr. William J. Leary, Edenton, N. C.
- 4964 JENNIE ROBINS. — 1857.
J. H. Robbins, Selma, Ala.
- 4965 MARY J. WYLIE. — 1854.
Dr. A. P. Wylie, Chester, S. C.
- 4966 SALLIE H. MULLINS. — 1855.
Samuel J. Mullins, Penn's Store, Va.
- 4967 MAMIE SAVAGE. — 1855.
Col. Alexander Savage, Norfolk, Va.
- 4968 MELLIE EURE. — 1855.
- 4969 ELLA EURE. — 1856.
Mills H. Eure, Gatesville, N. C.

- 4970 ADDIE STONE. — 1857.
J. C. Stone, Grove, N. C.
- 4971 ALICE C. SHELTON. — 1857.
- 4972 ROSA P. SHELTON. — 1858.
Dr. J. Shelton, White House, Va.
- 4973 MAY BELLE TRAMMELL. — 1859.
- 4974 EVELYN TRAMMELL. — 1861.
Mrs. M. Trammell, Clayton, Ga.
- 4975 NANNIE R. MDORE. — 1855.
W. M. Moore, Peter's Creek, N. C.
- 4976 FANNIE NELSON. —
Mrs. Andrews, Edgecombe City, N. C.
- 4977 ERNESTINE EUNICE MARS. — 1858.
Wm. D. Mars, Calhoun's Mills, S. C.
- 4978 NANNIE B. HOLDERBY. — 1856.
D. Barnes and M. Oaks, Reidsville, N. C.
- 4979 FLORENCE CLEMENT. — 1855.
J. M. Clement, Mocksville, N. C.
- 4980 MARY ELEANORA COBLE. — 1859.
Paul Coble, Gilmer's Store, N. C.
- 4981 MARTHA ANNA BYNUM. — 1857.
Ben Bynum, Germanton, N. C.
- 4982 NANNIE ELLEN DALTON. — 1857.
D. N. Dalton, Little Yaddin, N. C.
- 4983 ALBERTA META CANNADY. — 1855.
W. H. Cannady, Louisburg, N. C.
- 4984 ALICE RANDELMAN. — 1857.
- 4985 IDA JOSEPHINE RANDELMAN. — 1859.
John B. Raudleman, High Point, N. C.
- 4986 MARGARET ANGELINA LOGAN.
Judge G. W. Logan, Rutherfordton, N. C.
- 4987 MARY E. L. CRAWFORD. — 1857.
E. N. Crawford, McConnellsville, S. C.
- 4988 ADA E. SPRUILL. — 1858.
W. D. Spruill, Franklinton, N. C.
- 4989 LAURA JOHNSON. — 1857.
Henry Johnson, Americus, Ga.
- 4990 ZENDEBIA GREENE. — 1856.
Dr. W. A. Greene, Americus, Ga.
- 4991 FANNY WALKER CLARK. — 1855.
Judge James M. Clark, Americus, Ga.
- 4992 MATTIE HIGH. — 1859.
W. L. High, Madison, Ga.
- 4993 ANNA L. JONES. — 1855.
Palmyra, N. C.
- 4994 MARY E. GILL. — 1855.
George C. Gill, Smith's Turnout, S. C.
- 4995 CARRIE V. KNOX. — 1855.
William Knox, Chesterville, S. C.
- 4996 SALLIE JANE GIBSON. — 1856.
F. B. Gibson, Old Hundred, S. C.
- 4997 ANNIE JANE FLETCHER. — 1853.
John S. Fletcher, Old Hundred, S. C.
- 4998 LOUISA JANE BETHEA. — 1853.
Susan Bethea, Old Hundred, S. C.
- 4999 HATTIE C. WATSON. — 1859.
Rufus W. Watson, Mulden, Miss.
- 5000 FRANCES HELEN NDRFLEET. — 1859.
Col. S. A. Norfleet, Roxobel, N. C.
- 5001 MATILDA S. WILKES. — 1854.
- 5002 MARTHA V. WILKES. — 1855.
John W. Wilkes, Chesterville, S. C.
- 5003 LIZZIE IDA GARDNER. — 1857.
C. W. Dill, Atlanta, Ga.
- 5004 FRANCES HART WILDER. — 1856.
Major G. H. Wilder, Raleigh, N. C.
- 5005 SALLIE DAVIS. — 1857.
Captain John A. Davis, Albany, Ga.

Subscriptions Received.

Miss Maggie Spencer, Spencer, Va; Miss Kittie May Penn, Reidsville, N C; Hon G W Sanderlin, Raleigh, N C; Mrs Jas Garrity, Corsicana, Texas; Miss Mattie Nicholls, Scotland Neck, N C; Mrs Leonora F McKoy, Dickinson, N C; Mrs John B Eaves, Statesville, N C; Miss Laura McMickle, Edwardsville, N C; Mrs E C Clinard, Mrs Florence Stockton, Winston, N C; Miss Grace Locke, Brooklyn, N Y; Mrs Dr Kernau, Marion, Va; Mrs A M Craig, Greenwood, Miss; Mrs M J Phillips, Monroe, La; Mrs Emma Lehman, Bethania, N C; Miss Mattie Caldwell, Concord, N C; Mr Jas H Atkins, Charlottesville, Va; Miss Daisy Little, Little Rock, Ark; Miss Luta Bewley, Anderson, S C; Mrs F W Foster, Wilmington, N C; Miss Jennie Stafford, Miss Ida Moore, Mr Timothy Vogler, Mrs Eliza Kremer, Miss Carrie Vest, Miss Theresa Peterson, Salem, N C; Mrs M L Schell, Cowpens, S C; Mrs L B Winkler, Stockton, Cal; Mrs L A Smyth, Nazareth, Pa; Mrs S M Pritchett, Stapleton, S I; Mrs M E Scarborough, Ridge Spring, S C; Miss Theresa Pace, Corsicana, Tex; Mrs Ada Hemsath, Bethlehem, Pa; Mrs Harry Milligan, Mrs W B Susong, Greenville, Tenn; Miss Rachel Simms, Chapel Hill, N C; Mrs S C Look, Marion, Va; Miss Annie Bourdeaux, Meridian, Miss; Mrs W M

Kellett, Waco, Tex; Mrs Wm Holman, Raleigh, N C; Miss Theo Fitzgerald, North Danville, Va; Mrs J C LeGrand, Salisbury, N C; Mrs Dr Bufaloe, Mrs J P Wyatt, Raleigh, N C; Miss Nina Flournoy, Shreveport, La; Miss Madge Graham, Forest, Miss; Miss Kate Ollinger, Milton, Fla; Mrs S L Patterson, Yaddin Valley, N C; Mrs J G Hall, Hickory, N C; Miss M Jefferies, Home, S C; Miss O S Warner, Bethlehem, Pa; Mrs Cora Lipford, Winston, N C; Mrs John H Tise, Miss Jane Welfare, Mrs Frank C Minung, Mrs J G Sides, Mrs M F Patterson, Miss Donna Smith, Salem, N C.

Married.

In Macon, Ga., September 25th, 1890, Miss LOUISE BROWN to Mr. MILLER G. WHITE.

Died.

In Augusta, Ga., Sept. 3d, 1890, Mrs. ROBERT J. BOWE, mother of Mrs. W. C. Wright (GEORGIA BOWE), of Columbia, S. C.

Obituary.

Died in Raleigh, N. C., October 15, 1890, Mrs. JOB P. WYATT (MARY HICKS).

The funeral of Mrs. JOB P. WYATT was held from the residence on North Dawson street afternoon of the 15th at 4 o'clock. The services were impressively conducted by Rev. Dr. J. W. Carter, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. H. Cordon.

Mrs. WYATT was a true type of noble, womanly character. She was charming in society, was the light and life of a sweet and delightful home and was a loving and faithful mother. Her sympathies were broad, tender and noble, and her greatest happiness was in relieving the woe or promoting the happiness of others. Her illness was not of long duration, and it was with pain and keen anxiety that hosts of friends learned that it had become serious. The announcement of her death brought gloom to more than her own household; for there were other homes that knew of her sweet, sunny disposition and had felt the charm of her visits and presence. A true, noble woman rests from labors that made others happy, and four little children are sadly bereft of a tender influence, which to them is irreparable. A large number of friends attended the last sad services for a lost loved one, and followed the remains to their last resting place in Oakwood cemetery.

The pall bearers were Messrs. J. H. Alford, B. H. Woodell, H. H. Powell, C. G. Latta, D. H. Allen, J. A. Briggs, Phil. Taylor and Henry Horton.

Raleigh, N. C., State Chronicle.

L. V. & E. T. BLUM,
SALEM, N. C.,

BOOKSELLERS, STATIONERS,
PRINTERS.

PUBLISH "THE PEOPLES PRESS,"
FARMER'S AND PLANTER'S ALMANAC.

General Job Printing executed with neatness
and dispatch. Try us.

Printers of Salem Female Academy's publications.

ALUMNÆ BADGES. — Mrs. Dr. H. T. Bahnson has been requested by the Alumnae Association to keep on hand a stock of the official badges of the Alumnae Society. She will be pleased to give any information relative to price.

Address MRS. H. T. BAHNSON,
Salem, N. C.

DAVIS SCHOOL.

Military Boarding School
FOR BOYS AND YOUNG MEN.
Full preparation for any College or for Business. Healthy location; fine climate; mild winters; excellent buildings; Cadet Cornet Band; Cadet Orchestra; Resident Surgeon. No Extra Charge for Languages or Sciences. Department of Art. Full Course VERY LOW RATES. For Register with full particulars address
COL. A. C. DAVIS, Supt.,
WINSTON, N. C.

A REVOLUTION.

In methods of teaching PHYSIOLOGY and GEOGRAPHY. More and better work done with the use of YAGGY'S STUDIES in one term than in three terms without them.

YAGGY'S GEOGRAPHICAL STUDY, comprising PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, GEOLOGICAL and ASTRONOMICAL Geography.

YAGGY'S ANATOMICAL STUDY showing in a striking and original manner the structure and organs of the human body, full size, natural color; also a series of Object Lessons on the ruin of the body by intoxicants.

WHY FOLLOW THE OLD RUTS?

Adopt the above POPULAR, ORIGINAL and FASCINATING APPLIANCES and teach by the OBJECT METHOD.

Circulars sent on application.

WESTERN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
No. 3 East 14th Street,
New York City.

April 1890-1y.

WORCESTER'S
DICTIONARY

"The highest authority known as to the use of the English language."

With or without Denison's Patent Index.

The Standard of the Leading Publishers, Magazines, and Newspapers.

The Dictionary of the Scholar for Spelling, Pronunciation, and Accuracy in Definition.

Send for large Circular to the Publishers,
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,
PHILADELPHIA.

May, 1890. 1 y.

(REVISED EDITION.)

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia is a whole library of universal knowledge from the pen of the ablest scholars in America and Europe. It is accepted as high authority in our leading colleges.

IT IS NOT FOR THE FEW,

Like Appleton's, the Britannica, or the "International,"

BUT FOR ALL.

It has just been thoroughly revised at a cost of over $60,000, and three years' labor by forty editors, and over 2,000 renowned contributors.

It is in 8 convenient sized volumes.

No father can give to his child at school, or his son or daughter just entering the arena of life, anything that will be of more permanent benefit.

It is an education supplementary to that of the Schools.

"The next few years will witness a great change in educational ideas. The possibilities of self-culture are to be emphasized, and the means of aid and direction increased. After a careful examination of 'Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia,' I am convinced that while it is excellently adapted to the needs of professional and business men, it is eminently useful to the earnest, thorough self-educator.

"This work, with its corps of contributors, offers accurate articles on the widest range of subjects. To the value of trustworthy information is added the inspection of personality associated with great names.

I heartily commend this Cyclopaedia to all,

and especially to those who are pursuing self-set courses in the great university of life.

JOHN H. VINCENT, (Bishop),
"Chancellor, Chataqua University."

Address, for particulars, terms and circulars,

A. J. JOHNSON & CO.,

11 Great Jones Street, N. Y.

Representatives wanted in every county.

From the Librarian of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

DEC. 16, 1889. — "There is perhaps no better test of the merit of a cyclopaedia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA has, during many years' experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language."

From Rev. Thos. Hill, D.D., LL.D., Ex-President of Harvard University.

PORTLAND, MAINE, Aug. 6, 1889. — "JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA (revised edition) is an ever-present companion and friend, and I consult it very much more frequently than I do my Britannica, Appleton's, Webster's Unabridged, etc., etc., and very seldom fail to find in it just the kind and amount of information which I need."

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL.D., Librarian of Congress, Washington D. C.

"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference."

BELO HOUSE.

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan. '90—1y.

"Bingham School

stands pre-eminent among Southern boarding Schools for Boys."—U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Combines more desirable qualities than any other with which I am acquainted."—Lieut. J. B. Batchelor, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

"There exists not the equal of this School in my opinion."—Capt. Henry Hygant, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

More than 100 pupils from other States, the largest number in a Southern School for boys from outside the State of location.

Address,

Maj. J. R. HAM.

Bingham's School, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER,
JEWELLER,
Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.
REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

OF

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.
Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

HOTEL FOUNTAIN.

WINSTON, N. C.

The Leading Hotel of the Twin-Cities.

It will be Run in the Special Interest of
the Traveling Public.

Table Supplied with All the Delicacies of the Season.
Attentive Servants.

J. W. GRAY, form. Prop'r Cooper House Statesville, N. C.
Apr. 90-1y.

WELCOME once more to Winston-Salem, ladies of the S. F. A. None are more cordially pleased to see your pleasant faces than we, nor more desirous to continue and increase the friendly relations already existing between us.

This year we will show you the most beautiful line of millinery ever displayed in North Carolina, and your orders will, as before, receive especial attention.

Hoping to see you all at our Fall Opening, we are

Respectfully, yours,
SCHOULER'S
 MILLINERY
 ESTABLISHMENT.

Schouler's Racket Store.

Dore's Bible Gallery, 100 Engravings.
 Milton's Paradise Lost, 50 Engravings.
 Dante's Inferno, 75 Engravings.
 " Purgatory & Paradise 60 Engravings.

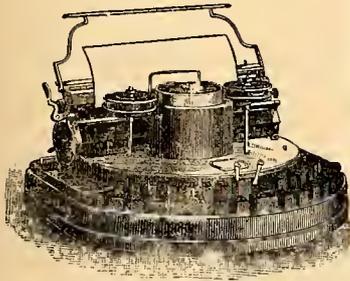

Any one of these books, which are large and beautifully bound, will be given to a member of the ACADEMY when the amount of her purchases in SCHOULER'S RACKET STORE reaches $20.00,—not in one bill, but in as long a time as you please.

This store is a veritable Bazaar, and contains Dress Goods, Shoes, Notions, Jewelry, Stationery, Cologne, Ribbons, Bags, Trunks, Underclothes, &c., and the prices are the lowest in the Twin-City.

HENRY W. MILLER,
 STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
 Price, complete with two type wheels, $60.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.
 Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.
 Send for Catalogue.
 WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
 9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
 CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,
WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKERS,

Compiled and Arranged by JAMES BALDWIN, PH.D., editor of "Harper's Readers."

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKER. FIRST BOOK.

PART I. ARBOR DAY.—Exercises in poetry and prose for Spring Festivals, Arbor Day, Flower Planting Day, and other similar occasions. With an introduction by GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

PART II. MEMORIAL DAY.—Selections suitable for use in schools, and for public exercises in connection with the observances of Memorial or Decoration Day.

12mo, Cloth, 240 pages; price, 60 cents.

IN PREPARATION.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. SECOND BOOK. GRADED SELECTIONS. I. For First Reader Pupils. II. For Second Reader Pupils. III. For Third Reader Pupils. IV. For Fourth Reader Pupils. V. For Advanced Students and Public Readers.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. THIRD BOOK.—MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS especially adapted for use at morning "Opening Exercises." I. Life. II. Nature. III. Labor. IV. Laughter. V. Experience. VI. Duty. VII. Aspiration. VIII. Reverence. IX. Retrospection. Nearly two hundred selections.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. FOURTH BOOK.—PATRIOTIC SELECTIONS. I. Patriotism as a Principle of Life. Patriotism in "the Brave Days of Old." III. Our Country. IV. Our Flag. V. The Patriotic Citizen. VI. Washington's Birthday.

HARPER'S READERS.

The Most Successful School Books of this Century.

Prin. O. P. LEE, Edgefield Academy, S. C., says: "They are far superior to anything of the kind I have seen."

Prin. H. B. PARKER, Hampton Male and Female Academy, Ga., says: "We are perfectly delighted with the series."

Prin. M. N. WETMORE, Brunson, S. C., says: "I think them as hear perfect in every way as books can be."

Hon. H. A. GUDGER, President of School Board, Asheville, N. C., says: "Harper's Readers are used in our public schools, and give perfect satisfaction."

Send for Price List and Terms for Introduction.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers

FRANKLIN SQUARE, New York City.

FOUNDED 1851.

HORNER SCHOOL,

OXFORD, N. C.

Fall Term Opens Aug. 4, 1890.

FACULTY:

J. H. HORNER, M. A., University of N. C.
(Founder of School.)
 Col. J. T. DREWRY, Com'd t. Star Graduate Virginia Military Institute
 J. C. HORNER, A. M., Davidson College.
 G. A. WAUCHOPE, M. A., Ph. D., University of Berlin, Late Fellow Wash. & Lee Univ.
 Rev. J. M. Horner, B. A., B. D., University of Virginia and Johns Hopkins University.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.
 The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line: 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California.

Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pound<sup>90</sup> of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S., E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236 Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass. & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

→*MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH,*←
 (OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
 155 Lexington Avenue New York.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL Principal.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889. Salem Female Academy.

CHICAGO, ILL. 28 UNION SQUARE, SAN FRANCISCO
 AT LANTA, GA. CAL. ST. LOUIS, MO. FOR SALE BY DALLAS, TEX.

Mrs. NANCY TURNER, SALEM, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway

offers first-class service between Winston and Salem and Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all other points on the Atlantic Coast Line, and Savannah Florida and Western systems in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Solid trains run to Wilmington, where easy transfer is made by back in the forenoon to the trains of the

Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley,

then a change of cars is made at Walnut Cove Union Station, arriving at Winston-Salem at 9:00 p. m. Those not securing through tickets can purchase tickets and re-check their baggage to Winston-Salem at Wilmington. From all stations on the Main Line of the CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY to Winston-Salem only one change of cars is necessary, at Walnut Cove Union Station.

J. W. FRY, Gen. Sup't. Greensboro, N. C.
W. E. KYLE, Gen. Pass. Ag't Fayetteville, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem, N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class. Sure connection by all lines from the East, and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School. For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED.

Patrons of this paper, old students of Salem Female Academy, everybody interested in the history of the early Moravians of North Carolina to send for a copy of "TWIN-CITIES - WINSTON - SALEM." Price 25 cents. Stamps received. Address,

Mrs. A. V. WINKLER,
Salem, N. C.

Mar. '90-4m

THE BEAUTIFUL

NORTH.

The shortest and most direct line to Harrodsburg, Shelbyville, Lexington, Frankfort, Paris. Only 11 hours and 25 minutes Chattanooga to Louisville, only 17 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Boudoir Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England Points and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

SOUTH.

The only line Chattanooga to Birmingham, Meridian, Jackson, Vicksburg, and Shreveport, making direct connections without omnibus transfer at Shreveport for Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston, Austin, Texas; New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Mexico and California. Shortest and Quickest Line to New Orleans, with solid Trains and Through Pullman Sleepers, making direct connections for Texas, Mexico and California. Close connection made en route for Memphis, Little Rock and Arkansas Points, Anniston, Columbus, Montgomery, Mobile, Natchez.

Passengers ticketed and Baggage checked through to destination. For rates, Correct County Maps, and full information, call at QUEEN & CRESCENT TICKET OFFICE, READ HOUSE, or CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION CHAS. H. MILLS, Ticket Agt. C. S. BARRETT, T. P. A. Depot. Read House.

D. J. MULLANEY, Div. Pass. Agt., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. C. HARVEY, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS, Vice Pres. G. P. & T. A.

THE

"COTTON BELT ROUTE"

St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railway,

Carries More Pupils to and from Arkansas and Texas than all other lines to those States combined.

Why? Because this is the only line which has furnished, as promised, elegant chair cars direct from the school to the scholar's home, and from the home back to school without changes en route. These cars are fitted up for this class of travel exclusively with retiring and toilet rooms, accompanied by an attentive porter and in charge of an Agent of the Company, who sees that the car is reserved for the use of the pupils only.

We have handled the First-Class Schools of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and other States for a series of years, and in no instance has any school, commencing with us, patronized, subsequently, any other line.

This is the only line from Memphis running Two Daily Trains through to Texas without change of cars, and without Omnibus Transfer in Memphis from Eastern Lines.

Correspondence solicited from Principals of Schools and Parents concerning the safe conduct of scholars, by

D. MILLER, General Pass. Agent.
E. W. LaBEAUME, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield.
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.
W. G. Adams, Pass. Agent, Nashville, Tenn.

:- "SOLD ON MERIT." :-
THE LIGHT-RUNNING "DOMESTIC."

Do you need a Piano?
Do you need an Organ?
Do you need a Violin?
Do you need a Musical Implement of any kind? Have you an old Instrument you wish to exchange?
If so you will find it to your interest to call and consult the undersigned.

W. P. ORMSBY,
MAIN ST., - - SALEM, N. C.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR WAR-
AIM RANTEL IS FOR
TO FIVE
EXCEL. YEARS

STIEFF PIANOS

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XIII.

SALEM, N. C., NOVEMBER, 1890.

NUMBER 110.

THE STUDENTS' AUTUMN TOUR.

AT the request of a number of patrons Mr. CLEWELL consented to take a number of pupils on a tour to Northern cities, as was done last year. The party consisted of 15 in all, as follows: LIZZIE FITZGERALD, MARY WATSON, LAURA JONES, ROSA ELLIS, MARY HELM, ROBIE KYLE, VIRGINIA FOSTER, SUE HEARD, MAUD HARRIS, MAMIE ODENEAL, ORA THOMSON, MAMIE GRAY, SADIE SITTIG. Miss EMMA CHITTY acted as lady chaperon and these, together with Mr. CLEWELL, made up the party.

Monday morning, November 3d, was the date appointed for leaving, and a very merry party gathered at the station, saying good-by, exchanging bits of humor, all apparently in the best mood. We will in this article only sketch the experiences of the trip, trusting that THE ACADEMY may be favored from time to time with communications from the pens of the travelers.

At Greensboro we found that the north-bound passenger train was late, and there was some difficulty in curbing the impatience of the now fully aroused travelers, but ere long it arrived. Seats had been reserved in the parlor car and soon all were comfortably accommodated. Our first adventure was at Reidsville, and we found it a difficult place to pass. One of the party was helplessly drawn away from the car, and only by the exercise of considerable physical effort was the wanderer lifted to the rapidly moving train. Danville furnished the sandwiches as usual, and although we receive no commissions for making the statement, yet it is only proper to recommend any hungry traveler to this hospitable railroad house for a good meal. At Reidsville and Danville relatives and friends greeted the party, but from this time forth all was new and strange. At Charlottesville special tables had been reserved for our party, and the 3 o'clock dinner heartily enjoyed. The conductor in charge of the Pullman car was particularly accommodating and added much to the enjoyment of the party, patiently answering the many questions asked him, and arranging the rear of the vestibuled car so that the beautiful mountain scenery of Virginia could be heartily enjoyed. About dark we drew near to Washington. The lights of the city were to be seen all about us, the train slackened its speed, and with eager anticipation we entered the long, brilliantly-lighted Washington Depot. It is with feelings akin to awe that the visitor stands for the first time at the entrance to a great city, and hence this arrival at the close of our first day at the city of Washington, will stand out as a marked experience in our journey. A good supper awaited the hungry party at the Metropolitan Hotel, across Pennsylvania Avenue, and after a couple of hours spent in this comfortable house we, together with Mr. Hege, the representative of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and Mr. G. R. Shultz, chief clerk in the Railway Mail Service, betook ourselves to the depot. It might here be stated that all arrangements for this journey had been made by Capt. R. A. Jenkins, of the B. & O. Ry, who this year, as well as last, negotiated reduced tickets, and completed all preparations in order to make traveling a luxury. We received, through Capt. Jenkins, special favors from Mr. Taylor, of the R. & D., in Washington, Mr. Bond, of the B. & O., in Baltimore, and Mr. Craig, in New York.

To return to our party. Arrived at the B. & O. depot in Washington we at once repaired to the sleeper, and the young ladies having almost sole possession of it at that hour, amid much turmoil and amusement, finally settled down to a good night's rest. Mr. CLEWELL had gone to the smoking apartment, and while there beheld, a half hour later, a disconsolate looking stranger enter and take a seat as if weary of life. Upon being asked what weighed so heavily on his mind he, with some reluctance unburdened his mind. He said that he had purchased a section on the New York sleeper, and that when he came to claim it he judged that it was already completely captured, and that so apparent was it that such was the case, that by standing at one end of the car he was convinced that either the brownies or a boarding school were the masters. Mr.

CLEWELL relieved his mind at once, and on examination it was found that one section belonging to the party was vacant, and this was turned over to the disconsolate stranger. So weary were we that a good rest was enjoyed by all, and by daylight the great city of New York was reached. It was a weird sight as we gazed out over the tracks of the busy Jersey Central Railway, over to the bay with its forest of masts, across the water to the bright light on the torch of the statue of Liberty, to the great city dusky in the distance, just emerging from the mist and gloom of the previous night. And as the unspeakable experiences of the night side of New York appeared to retreat before the new day, they seemed to leave a chill behind them, so that one of the party exclaimed, almost involuntarily: "O, here I would not live for the world!" This feeling was soon lost, however, and as the ferry boat ploughed briskly through the waters of North River, with sparkling eyes and eager glance the girls welcomed our approach to the city. We landed at Liberty street and walked up to Broadway. As it was election day the city seemed to be taking a holiday, and hence we did not experience the usual trouble in threading our way through the crowded street. Taking a car at the corner of Broadway and Liberty we soon reached the Grand Central Hotel, our home for the next few days. Comfortable rooms were assigned to us and ere long we were ready to begin the sight seeing. By agreement the remainder of the morning was quietly passed in attending to the preparations for the coming days. But after dinner a happy company started forth, our objective point being the

STATUE OF LIBERTY.

Down interesting Broadway we proceeded; by historic Trinity church, which stands guard in front of Wall Street; on by the Produce Exchange to the Battery, until the Statue of Liberty boat wharf is in view. Soon the little vessel that plies between the wharf and statue is seen approaching, and we get on board. It was a pleasing sight as we steamed across the bay to examine the great ocean vessels with the flags of all nations spread out in the brisk breeze, and far above us the majestic Brooklyn Bridge. But here we are at Bedloe's Island. The cannon and fortifications, as well as the armed sentinel, remind us that we are on soil that belongs to the government. Although the proportions of the great statue seem so symmetrical in the distance, when immediately beneath the figure is so large that one grows dizzy as it towers above the tourist. Three hundred feet or more above the water we climbed, and a large portion of the distance was around a central stem, up a narrow stairway but dimly lighted. One or two of our party fell back, and in the uncertainty of the apparently endless winding almost despaired of gaining top or bottom. But ere long all were safely in the head of the statue, but many emphatic statements were registered then and there that never more would that stairway be climbed by all of our party. The view from the windows was very fine indeed, and as the evening was clear the enjoyment was great. All were repaid for the severe exertion.

Having returned in good time to our hotel, a couple of hours were spent in rest, when the party started out to see the Old Homestead, with Denman Thompson in the leading role. This pure and simple play has been given to crowded houses all over the country for four years, and is now being played in the New York Academy of Music. The party pronounced the evening a very enjoyable one, and it may be classed among the most attractive of the evenings of amusement.

At a late hour we reached our hotel for the third time on that day, and were indeed ready to seek the much needed rest. Thus closed the first day of sight-seeing and one which was enjoyed by all.

(Concluded next month.)

THAT WELCOME HOME.

THE company of tourists having safely reached home November 15, on the evening of the 17th a formal reception was tendered them. The occasion was carefully planned and was therefore very much enjoyed by all. The reception was opened by a regular programme, as follows :

PIANO. Prayer from Moses in Egypt.....Rossini-Gobbaerts.
MISS BLANCHE MORGAN.

Vocal. Over the Stars there is Rest.....Franz. Abl.
MISS LENA FIELDS.

PIANO. Cujus Animam.....Rossini-Kihe.
MISS ETTA BROWN.

Vocal. La Veritable Manola.....Bourgeois.
MISS ALICE RONDTHALER.

PIANO. Aufschwung.....Schumann.
MISS MARGUERITE DUFOUR.

Vocal. Left Untold.....Coven.
MISS FLORENCE SETTLE.

The welcome home papers we give below, believing that they will be of interest to the readers of THE ACADEMY :

To Our Returned Travellers.

BY MISS BROWNSON.

THE happy duty of welcoming our Principal and girls home again has devolved upon us. Even a school-girl's tongue is at a loss for words to express our delight in having you again in our midst, to sympathize with us in our cares and to rejoice with us in our pleasures. Not that we have by any means been idle or dull during these two weeks that you have been away ; for we had, first of all, our usual autumnal holiday, when woods and skies and creature comforts all combined to give us an unusually bright and happy day. When we filed into chapel that morning looking so sober and dignified on our first appearance in the students' robes, facing the battery of amused glances and suppressed giggles, no one would have imagined how we would enjoy the holiday which was to follow. Soon we were called in line by the echoing blast of the bugle, which together with the tramp of many feet filled the lower corridor. It is useless to tell of the many pleasures of the day, for when we say Dr. RONDTHALER was commander-in-chief, we have told it all.

That night we repaired to this hall which looked like fairy-land, with its beautiful decorations of evergreens and autumn leaves, and with merry games and cooling refreshments, was a fit close to such a day. The next pleasure in store for us was the walk to Old Town. We thought from the looks of the morning that our trip would have to be deferred, and if so our disappointment would have been more than we could have endured, for the 22 chickens that had offered up their lives for us were already fried ! Soon the wagons were at the door, and though the day was not as bright as the preceding one it proved to be all that we could wish. Alternately walking and riding we arrived at the quaint old church about noon. Among other things to be remembered we visited the grave of the first Moravian missionary to Greenland. On our return we were ready to do ample justice to the dinner which had been so thoughtfully prepared for us by Mrs. CLEWELL, and we showed our gratitude as only hungry school-girls can. As we were ruefully considering our six-mile homeward walk, we were more than glad to see Mr. PFOHL and Mr. Fogle drive up, which dispelled all the fears we had entertained.

Tonight, however, the enjoyment of the past weeks is crowned by your return, and we trust this bright and happy evening will say more forcibly than any words of ours how glad we are to welcome you back.

To Our Geometry Teacher.

BY MISS LILLIAN THOMPSON.

TO welcome you or not to welcome you that is the question,—whether it is nobler to suffer the pangs of twelve Geometry propositions or to take up arms by not welcoming. For two short weeks we have missed "if A is equal to B what is B equal to." "And now tread softly and speak low, for our pleasure lies a dying," not that we love you less, but that we dislike Geometry more. How we have dreaded to see you coming home with a box car full of modern appliances and recent facilities for giving instruction in the most divine of all sciences ! While you were whirling rapidly through the northern cities in your comfortable palace car, we, poor followers of Wentworth, were burdened with his theorems by day, and

"Even in our dreams we'd see, Problems of Geometry," strangely commingled,—brownies running off with one side of an angle, while the others stared wofully at us.

As your office work is pressing you and you must needs have time to communicate with the friends at home, we, being of a very charitable frame of mind, are perfectly willing to give you holiday for a week (or even two) in order for you to faithfully perform the duties which devolve upon you as Principal of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

It is now our painful duty to give over into your hands and keeping the implements with which a continual warfare is waged against ignorance and all her dark train of attendants.

As the inevitable must come we may just as well accept it with good grace and take as our motto the words which have oftenest been upon our lips for the last few days,

"Rah! 'Rah! 'Rah!
We're in for fun!
Vive la! Vive la!
Ninety-one!"

This portion of the programme being concluded Misses HEARD and FITZGERALD read papers in reply, speaking of the trip and its pleasures, and Misses HELM and FOSTER were called on, the former responding by a short extemporaneous talk, the latter by a very short reply. Mr. CLEWELL was then requested to give a sketch of the journey, he alluding to incidents both humorous and serious, and after his address cake, icecream and fruits were served. A few choruses followed, and after an hour spent in social enjoyment the gathering was dismissed with a brief prayer by Dr. RONDTHALER, who had so thoughtfully planned the reception.

Gymnasium Hall was most beautifully decorated with ferns and evergreens, with a transparency "Welcome" over the front platform. The girls wore sprays of evergreen, and the entire scene was a very pleasing and brilliant one.

Paper Read Before the Alumnae Society, June 3, 1890.

BY MRS. SOPHIE K. KERNAN.

WITH mingled emotions of regret and of pleasure I will endeavor to comply with the request of your honored Secretary to write a few words of greeting and of "reminiscences of the past" to the assembled Alumnae of 1890. The appreciation of being so kindly remembered by the officers for the present year and the compliment implied in the request gives pleasure, but is cancelled by regret at the inability to be present in person. To those of our number who are more fortunate and who are now assembled in sweet reunion we send a loving greeting with the wish that this meeting may be as interesting and successful as productive of good to each member and to our dear old Alma Mater whose prosperity is so dear to us all.

As we think of some that may be present, contemporaries of our younger days, our heart goes out to them with warmest affection, but when we think of many that will not be there and who never more can greet us until we meet them in the great Reunion above,

"Remembrance wakes with all her busy train, Swells at my heart and turns the Past to pain."

Many indeed are the changes in authority, discipline and circumstance since, as a little maid, I entered SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. Both as pupils and teachers a few of us are representatives of the middle half or intermediate period of the century now nearly closing, which has witnessed the beginning and up to this time the successful existence of our beloved Alma Mater. Others of our number remember our first Principal, Bishop JACOBSON, with sincerest love and admiration. Busy, energetic, quick to detect error, loving and sympathetic, how the girls all loved him! Dear Mrs. JACOBSON, amiable and gentle, but dignified and authoritative, we all remember as she went her morning and evening rounds, always wrapped in a large plaid and wearing a becoming cap, trimmed in colored ribbon, as the fashion of the time was. Then came Mr. BLECK, with his gentle, invalid wife, who was soon laid to rest in the quiet graveyard under the old cedars, and dear Aunty BLECK, with her artistic tastes and skill,—was not only teacher, but took on her tiny shoulders the cares of office. Those were happy times for us school-girls. Then for the first time was formed a class of 10 or 12, called the "Select Class," and that learned and good and beloved woman, Mrs. DENKE, was installed as teacher. Our class-room was the front room of the north end of the old Gemeinhaus: there we sat around her in a square, on benches without backs, but the hours seemed short while we listened to the words of wisdom and instruction and experience that fell from her lips. Many of us owe our aspirations in their higher forms and nobler aims to her wise admonitions and intellectual attainments. Later still, when our sainted Bishop DE SCHWEINITZ was in office and I entered as teacher with dear Miss SCHNALL as colleague, were busy times, unexampled in the history of S. F. A., as regards numbers and prosperity. Every available space was crowded, even the town-girls' room was vacated to make place for a room company. What happy, busy times those were some of you I know must remember:—24 and 25 little girls in the rooms, with corresponding accessions to the regular classes in numbers, gave us plenty to do. How kind yet dignified was our dear Principal, and how proud we all were of him and his handsome wife, especially on public occasions when they both occupied prominent positions. Then the Examinations were the great event of the year, long and tedious, occupying a week of time, the rehearsals in the church being an especial event, when discipline was relaxed and extra privileges were allowed.

The incidents of those past and gone years crowd thick and fast, and I can note but few or I tire your patience and consume your time. The greatest event up to that time in the history of S. F. A. then occurred, the tearing down of the old Gemeinhaus and the erection of the new and stately building now standing. Many there are, I trust, still left who stood grouped around the morning the cornerstone was laid, who can yet see, in memory, our beloved Bishop BAHNSON, both the DE SCHWEINITZS, and others of our clergy, some of whom have gone to their eternal rest, who can yet hear the hymns and chorals sung on that important occasion. Then two rooms of small girls were domesticated, oh! so pleasantly, in the Boys' School House, 3 of us (who are still living) were the teachers in charge, the other has gone to her well-earned reward, but her memory is green in the heart of many a woman who was then a little girl in that happy time. Although we did not have the comforts and conveniences of the present day, although many a night we were compelled (from want of room in the dormitory) to trudge through rain and snow to our sleeping apartment in the 2d story of the Principal's house instead of retiring in a warmed and curtained room as is the pleasant experience of the pupils of 1889-'90, we were a happy family, and the ties of friendship then formed are still strong and enduring.

When we moved back into the new and handsome building we all thought we had everything to make us happy and comfortable, though our wash-rooms were in the basement, and we had neither carpets on the floor, pictures on the wall, the privacy of curtained alcoves, nor the many additions to comfort and appearances that now improve and adorn our old and honored institution. But in this age of progress she is not left behind. In no Southern institution, we are proud to say, is all that is best and highest in culture or more most desirable in physical comfort and advantages more successfully and satisfactorily introduced. Long may our Alma reign the Queen of Southern colleges! Long may she exist and flourish to send forth from her sheltering arms good and true women to be the light and joy of Southern homes and to shine in the ranks of Southern society! Long may she be held in loving remembrance by those fortunate members who compose the Alumnae of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY!

"And so I penned it down until it came to be for length and breadth (alone) the bigness which you see."

Marion, Va.

Our Autumnal Holiday.

THE lovely Indian summer brought with it our autumnal holiday on Tuesday, November 11. The day nearest October 31st (Founder's Day) is usually selected, but, of course, the weather, a very important factor, must be carefully considered.

It was warm, even for the returning summer, as she comes stealing back on tiptoe, glancing with mellow radiance thro' woodland nook and forest aisle to see how much she had been missed,—then, with a parting benison, she leaves us for the year.

We met as usual in the chapel for morning prayers, after which Dr. RONDTHALER collected the school in the lower corridor, boarding pupils and day scholars, all who were so inclined. The signals for starting were blown by the appointed trumpeters, a vanguard was detailed to lead, and a rearguard to keep up stragglers. It was a pretty sight as the large column moved up the Avenue, winding in and out, threading the mazes of Wachovia Park, out to the Reservoir woods, where we have had a number of picnics in the past. Mat soon appeared with a wagon load of lunch, and as he built two large fires he was assailed on all sides with questions, to which he returned non-committal answers.

After some time spent in playing games the company was gathered for lunch; the mystery of the fires was now solved, as a quantity of chestnuts were boiled and roasted. The varied features of the day were enjoyed as only healthy, happy-hearted school-girls can enjoy such simple, wholesome pleasures. Great masses of bright leaves were gathered for decorating Gymnasium Hall for the evening's entertainment.

At length the column was formed for the homeward march, arriving at the ACADEMY in good time for our regular 2 o'clock dinner. Gymnasium Hall was then elaborately decorated, the bright colors of the leaves contrasting finely with the white walls. At 7½ o'clock the bell rang, whereupon all repaired to the hall and spent a merry evening in games, etc., not forgetting the ice-cream and other dainties, always so acceptable to girls.

Soon after 10 o'clock the evening was closed by singing the Doxology, and all retired to rest, having spent a charming day, with enough variety to make the whole a complete success. We all felt especially grateful to Dr. RONDTHALER, Mrs. CLEWELL and Mr. PFOHL for their efforts in making the day so pleasant for us.

Correspondence.

—We open our columns for this month with a communication from Miss ANNIE BOURDEAUX, who read the Honor Essay at our last Commencement:

As I go through with my home duties each day, I naturally think what my duties were this time last year, under your kind supervision. How different my life is now—each day bringing a new responsibility and presenting new tasks. I realize now what an overwhelming influence for good was thrown around me at the ACADEMY.

The summer passed so swiftly that I scarcely realize that it has gone. My experiences have been varied. When I first came home I was confined to my room for several weeks with an attack of fever, but soon rallied and am myself again.

As you know we employ negro servants almost altogether in Mississippi, but they have become so worthless that many household duties devolve on us. For some time past I have been trying my hand at the culinary art. I cannot tell the extent of my success, but if it is ever our good fortune to entertain you, I will prepare the meals and you may judge for yourself.

The autumns in Mississippi are not nearly so pretty as they are in North Carolina; we miss the golden sunsets and the richly tinted autumn leaves.

Though I am not with you in person I am in spirit, and have been eagerly watching for THE ACADEMY, but it has not come yet. Please give my love to Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL, Dr. RONDTHALE, &c.

Your loving pupil,

ANNE BOURDEAUX.

Meridian, Miss.

—Our old friends, the MALONES, were refugees in Salem during the troublous times of the late Civil War; the four daughters, ANNIE, LUCIE, SALLIE and ALICE, with their devoted father, are still affectionately remembered.

One grows very lax in correspondence during the summer holidays, added to the usual ebb and flow of company incident to that season. We are in a new home since May, and it seems to me after having lived so long in my own and Mr. Thompson's old homestead, that there will never be a restful routine in a new place.

Your Sketches of European Travel I shall enjoy I know, as I have had a foretaste through the extracts given in THE ACADEMY of your sojourn in several places. How I wish I had been in company with you, especially in Rome. I should have enjoyed every architectural harmony and every article of virtue. Some of my friends tell me they never consider a visit to Rome complete without the Pope's benediction. I hope you were blessed with that completeness, and remember all you saw and heard without prejudice. Be assured I shall appreciate every line you wrote.

I notice the increasing prosperity of our Alma Mater with interest and pride, and through the columns of THE ACADEMY I hear frequently from friends in Salem, especially from Miss VOGLER and yourself, and wish to be remembered to Miss JANE WELFARE, not only through esteem for herself, but because beside the image of my dear Miss THEO. WELFARE, her face is most prominently associated.

I desire greatly to visit Salem, and intend doing so as soon as possible. My health has not been good for several years, nervous debility confining me to home a great part of my time. I am reminded of having no daughter upon whom I could transfer my responsibilities and meet the requirements of a family of boys whose ages range from 7 to 20 years. One has to be quite industrious, mentally as well as physically; they are now all at home, the two eldest having employment in the town, and the others are at school.

My sister, SALLIE (Mrs. Field), remained with us a few days en route to Memphis from the mountains of Tennessee; she is in perfect health and spirits, and has for two years intended sending her daughter to Salem, but her eyes have given out since she had a spell of measles. My other sisters and families are quite well and pleasantly situated in and near Memphis. With sincere affection,

Your friend,

LUCIE THOMPSON.

Tusculum, Ala.

—Our next is from TIBBIE WOMACK, one of our recent graduates :

After a tiresome though pleasant trip we reached home safely. We were delayed at Mt. Pleasant for several hours. MARY and BIRT FITZPATRICK came to see us and took us out driving ; they were very kind to us.

JEANIE lost her bracelet ; the one she got as a graduating present, a love knot set with 3 diamonds. She thought she put it in her trunk on Wednesday evening, and then did not think any more until her return home when she failed to find it. Will you please inquire about it? It was a lovely thing, and of course she dislikes to lose it. [We are sorry to say that we have not been able to find any traces of it whatever.—Eds. ACADEMY.]

I hope you are having a delightful vacation. As it is growing late I must say good night, with much love from JEANIE and myself.

Yours lovingly,

TIBBIE WOMACK.

Mexia, Texas.

—We are also very pleased to hear from Miss KATE AYERS, a former pupil, whose mother is perhaps better known to old Salem girls as VICTORIA MORRISON, Mrs. Col. Ayers :

You perhaps remember me as one of the girls of '87. I have not forgotten one of the dear faces of the ACADEMY. I finished school this past June a year ago, and this summer I spent abroad. I came back a month ago. Our trip was most enjoyable. You cannot imagine my surprise and pleasure at meeting Miss LOU and Miss SALLIE crossing the English channel from Dieppe to Newhaven ; it was but a few minutes, for as soon as the boat started I had to retire to my berth. We sailed from New York to Glasgow, consequently were out 10 days, and coming back 12, owing to a storm as we called it, though the sailors said it was only a swell. We also saw an iceberg ; it was half a mile distant and was 100 feet above the water ; it had four points and looked like a mountain of ice. It was beautiful.

Will you please send me a copy of your Sketches of Travel? Remember me to all that I know. I expect all the girls that I knew have finished and gone home.

Love for yourself, &c.,

affectionately,

KATE L. AYERS.

Estillville, Va.

—Our last communication is from ANNIE OGBURN, who is one of the great company of "shut in" invalids :

Again I write to renew my subscription to THE ACADEMY. The little paper is indeed a welcome visitor, for so often I find on its pages the names of old schoolmates and teachers.

I am always glad to hear of the success of my old friends, yet it never fails to make me feel sad, for I have known so little of life outside the school-room and the sick-room. I have been one of "our Father's" afflicted ones for many, many years. The old years go by and the new years come and find me still a sufferer. I doubt whether I ever will find my health in this clime till I have crossed over to the other side. I will return to my physician in Baltimore next week, for it is not considered safe for me to spend the winter here.

May the dear old school ever prosper in its grand and noble work is the wish of its sincere friend,

ANNIE L. OGBURN.

Smith's X Roads, Va.

Northern Press Comments on the Students' Tour.

A GALAXY OF SOUTHERN BEAUTY.—Among visitors to this city at present are a party of young ladies from the Salem Female Academy, North Carolina, who are taking a fortnight's tour through the Eastern States. The young ladies, who are under the charge of the Rev. J. H. Clewell, Principal of the Academy, arrived here on Saturday, are registered at the Aldine Hotel. [Here follow the names.]

Sunday was spent by the party attending the morning service at the Cathedral and Mr. Wannamaker's Sunday School class at Bethany church.

The party yesterday morning visited the Mint, Park and Zoological Gardens. They employed the afternoon in inspecting the chief stores on Chestnut Street, and in the evening were present at the performance of "Lohengrin" by the Emma Juch Opera Company at the Grand Opera House.

The fair Southerners will leave Broad Street Station early to-morrow morning for Baltimore and Washington, where they will spend a week.—Philadelphia Ledger.

FOURTEEN PUPILS OF SALEM ACADEMY INSPECTING THE CITY.—The officials at the various buildings of interest in the city gazed with appreciative eyes today on the trim figures and glowing faces of a party of charming Southern girls who were making a tour of inspection.

They were pupils from the Salem, N. C., Female Academy, and were accompanied by the Principal, Rev. John H. Clewell. They are on a tour of the North, and are visiting New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, their stay in this city at the Aldine Hotel lasting five days.

About this time last year Rev. Mr. Clewell brought on a similar tour an even larger number of his pupils. The young ladies were delighted with their visit, and when they returned the pleased tourists wrote for the college paper long accounts of the trip, in which this city came in for generous praise.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

SOUTHERN GIRLS SIGHT-SEEING.—A party of pretty girls from the South, under the escort of Prof. J. H. Clewell, arrived at the Metropolitan Hotel yesterday, and will spend several days seeing the sights of the Capital. They are all students of the Salem, N. C., Female Academy, and before reaching this point on their way home visited New York, Philadelphia and other Eastern cities. They say as one girl that Washington is "just perfectly lovely," and is far ahead of New York, with all its bustle, business and—dirt.—Washington Post.

—The Young Men's Christian Association of Winston-Salem held an interesting anniversary meeting in the Moravian church on Sunday night November 2d. The President, W. A. Blair, Dr. Conrad, Mr. E. L. Harris and Mr. Eugene Gray occupied the pulpit. Dr. RONDTHALER opened the services, after which a report was read by President Blair, giving an account of what had been done during the year, socially, spiritually, intellectually and physically. Dr. Conrad, the treasurer, gave his report. The general secretary, E. L. Harris, read an interesting report of his work. Mr. Eugene Gray delivered an excellent address to the Board of Directors, after which Dr. RONDTHALER dismissed the large congregation with the benediction.

—Barnum's world-renowned Circus and Menagerie visited Winston, November 7. The street parade to which we had looked forward with much interest did not come off, owing to their late arrival and the condition of our streets.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., NOVEMBER, 1890.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—THE ACADEMY is now safely embarked in its 13th year. During this time it has had no mean part in the upbuilding of the school, besides aiding to bring pleasure to many of the Alumnae. We return thanks for the liberal patronage thus far extended, and hope that the same kindly interest in the paper's welfare may exist in the future.

—Will not some member of the Old Town tramping party furnish us with an account of that pleasant holiday?

—As Park Hall is not quite ready to be occupied we will defer our description of this building till the December issue.

—We have been promised a communication from the Misses VAN VLECK, concerning their very pleasant trip to East Tennessee and Western North Carolina.

—In the list of subscriptions to the Alumnae Scholarship given in the October number of THE ACADEMY was "$10 from A Friend, through Miss M. E. Vogler." We are requested to state that it was donated by Mrs. MIRANDA (MILLER) SCARBOROUGH, of Ridge Spring, S. C.

—During Mr. CLEWELL'S absence Dr. RONDTHALER assumed control of the school. The time was spent in a very pleasant manner, since the autumn picnic fell into that period and the Seniors made a trip to Old Town. The thanks of the school are hereby tendered the Doctor for his accommodation.

—As will be seen from the Library Department many new books have been placed in the school during the past month. The peculiar form of this purchase is described, and we trust that it will add to the pleasure of the room life, as well as aid to extend the general information of the students.

—The Moravian Synod which convened in Salem, Nov. 19, among other resolutions passed the following :

Resolved, That we note with satisfaction the endowments recently made to the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, and heartily recommend this generous form of support to the friends of the Institution.

By this it will be seen that this important feature of the ACADEMY'S life is coming to the front, and when fully recognized will certainly be provided for.

—Quite a step forward has been made in the appearance of the pupils in and about the school by the introduction of the Oxford caps and gowns on the part of the Seniors. These distinctive costumes were made in Philadelphia, and as each of the Seniors was carefully fitted, the result is pleasing, adding another dignity to the class position. It is not an easy thing to complete the prescribed course of study, and it is only right and proper that those who have remained faithful throughout should be honored and commended. We would be glad to present a picture of the new departure in this respect, feeling that our readers would be pleased to see the same, and perhaps ere long we may be able to do so.

—The Moravian Synod recently assembled in Salem expressed itself as highly gratified with the condition of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, both as to its financial and scholastic condition.

Among other results of interest to our readers we note the nomination by Synod of Rev. EDWARD RONDTHALER, D. D., to the Episcopacy of the Moravian Church. This expression of confidence on the part of Synod is a deserved endorsement of a very useful life, and THE ACADEMY extends its congratulations to Dr. RONDTHALER, trusting that his life may be spared many years to continue his work in this enlarged sphere of usefulness.

Our Library.

—It has been customary on the occasion of Mr. CLEWELL'S visits North to bring some souvenir of the trip for the school. One time a picture for each room company, again a number of games, &c., When the recent students' tour was made the souvenir consisted of about 150 new and interesting books, which were purchased with the intention of establishing a room library,—a circulating room library it may be called. On the outside of each book is a label, the following being a sample :

Please do not take this book from the North Senior Room.

The 10 books are then placed in the room, and during the next month, by mutual agreement, none of these volumes can be taken from the room, and hence any member of the room company desiring to read the book she has commenced will find it in its place, and not in some distant portion of the Park, by one of the fountains, or in a summer-house, forgotten by the last one who used it.

At the end of four weeks the line North Senior is changed to South Senior, and vice versa, and in this way each four weeks a new and fresh lot of books is placed in the rooms. This new supply of reading, so conveniently arranged, has been welcomed by the pupils, and, we trust, will have a tendency to not only amuse, interest and profit, but also to wean away any improper taste in the matter of general reading. Few persons can realize the pernicious effect of improper reading. It stimulates the mind to an unnatural degree, is a fostering seed bed for all unnatural thoughts and feelings, and causes the realities of life to appear in a most uninviting form to such a diseased mind. But as the active intellect of young people must have something, it would be well if parents would more carefully consider the supply of reading matter in the homes. Place before the growing girls plenty of good books; not only the Encyclopædia Britannica, but also interesting and instructive story books; something to play upon the imagination in a healthful manner, to warm and nurture it, but not burn it out by furnace heat. Having done this, wage war on all questionable and improper literature. Within the school this is done; all books not approved by the Principal and teachers are mercilessly confiscated and destroyed. And in the place is supplied in room company and in Library an abundance of attractive literature, and in giving to our pupils the books alluded to we would again appeal to all parents who are contemplating sending pupils to us, to any school, or into real life, to strenuously labor in removing the sensational, pernicious and overdrawn novel from the receptive mind of the growing child.

The following is the list of books spoken of above :

LIST OF BOOKS PURCHASED.

Dickens' Works.

- 1 Pickwick Papers.
- 2 David Copperfield.
- 3 Tale of Two Cities.
- 4 Our Mutual Friend.
- 5 Great Expectations.
- 6 Bleak House.
- 7 Master Humphrey's Clock, &c.
- 8 Nicholas Nickleby.
- 9 Martin Chuzzlewit.
- 10 Barnaby Rudge, &c.
- 11 Dombey & Son.
- 12 Little Dorritt.
- 13 Oliver Twist, &c.
- 14 Old Curiosity Shop.
- 15 Christmas Stories.

Thackeray's Works.

- 16 Pendennis. Vol. I.
- 17 Pendennis. Vol. II.
- 18 Henry Esmond.
- 19 The Virginians. Vol. I.
- 20 The Virginians. Vol. II.
- 21 The Newcomes. Vol. I.
- 22 The Newcomes. Vol. II.
- 23 Roundabout Papers.
- 24 Hoggarty Diamonds and Book of Snobs.
- 25 Burlesques.
- 26 Yellowplush Papers.
- 27 Phillip.
- 28 Catharine.
- 29 Ballads.
- 30 The Four Georges.
- 31 Paris and Eastern Sketches.
- 32 Barry Lyndon.
- 33 Irish Sketches.

- 34 The Marble Faun. Hawthorne.
- 35 Mosses from an Old Manse, Hawthorne.
- 36 Architecture Mrs. Horton.
- 37 Emerson's Essays.
- 38 Lucile. Owen Meredith.
- 39 Robert Browning's Poems.
- 40 Byron's Poems.
- 41 Anne. Miss Woolson.
- 42 Looking Backward. Edward Bellamy.
- 43 Outline Study of Man. Mark Hopkins.
- 44 Little Lord Fauntleroy. Burnett.
- 45 Self Surrender. Mary Haek.
- 46 Miss Prudence. Drinkwater.
- 47 Eunice: a Tale of New England.
- 48 Pincherton.
- 49 One Summer. Blanche Willis Howard.
- 50 Stephen, M. D. Wetherell.
- 51 Freshman and Senior. Wright.
- 52 Hermit of Livry. Housekeeper.
- 53 Story of Margaret Kent. Ellen Kirk.
- 54 A White Heron, &c. Sarah Orne Jewett.
- 55 The Gray Champion. Hawthorne.
- 56 A Royal Hunt. Wilson.
- 57 Guenn. Blanche Willis Howard.
- 58 A Woman's Patience. Worboise.
- 59 Old Town Folks. Mrs. Stowe.
- 60 Rose and Thorn. Bates.
- 61 Warleigh's Trust. Worboise.
- 62 Friend Olivia. Mrs. Barr.
- 63 Lady Charissa. Worboise.
- 64 A Titled Maiden. Mason.
- 65 Transplanted. Newton.
- 66 Mrs. Morse's Girls. Kenny.
- 67 Fourfold. Drinkwater.
- 68 The Open Door. Blanche Willis Howard.
- 69 A Knot of Blue. Lottie Street.
- 70 A Modern Telemachus. Miss Yonge.
- 71 Papers for Thoughtful Girls. Tytler.
- 72 Ruth Irving, M. D. Barker.
- 73 My Lady Nell. Weaver.
- 74 Faith on the Frontier. Vittum.
- 75 Six Girls. F. Irving.
- 76 Ardis Claverden. F. Stockton.
- 77 Leslie Goldthwaite. Mrs. Whitney.
- 78 Aunt Serena. Miss Howard.
- 79 Bek's 1st Corner. Drinkwater.

- 80 Finding Her Place. Howe Benning.
- 81 Theodora. McKeen.
- 82 Christie's Next Things. Kenny.
- 83 Lenore Annandal. Green.
- 84 Queen Hildegard. Richay.
- 85 Almost a Woman. Frost.
- 86 How He Made His Fortune.
- 87 Knights of Sandy Hollow. Sleight.
- 88 Annie Mason. Averill.
- 89 A Houseful of Girls. Tytler.
- 90 Violet's Idol. Joanna Matthews.
- 91 We and the World. Ewing.
- 92 Yensee Walton's Womanhood. Mrs. Clark.
- 93 One Little Maid. Allen.
- 94 Our New Mistress. Miss Yonge.
- 95 Millicent Kendrick. Worboise.
- 96 Grimm's Fairy Tales.
- 97 Winnie Lorrimer's Visit.
- 98 The Pathfinder. Cooper.
- 99 Hyacinth and Her Brothers. Matthews.
- 100 Ruthie's Venture.
- 101 The Lamplighter. Cummins.
- 102 Anderson's Fairy Tales.
- 103 Stepping Heavenward. Mrs. Prentiss.
- 104 In the Hospital at Elm Ridge.
- 105 Three Greek Children. Alfred Church.
- 106 Neighbors. Mrs. Molesworth.
- 107 Rolf House. Mrs. Lillie.
- 108 The Barnie. Cooper.
- 109 Lily's Lesson. Matthews.
- 110 Last of the Mohicans. Cooper.
- 111 Grandmother Merwin's Heiress. Mrs. Butts.
- 112 Bessie and Her Friends. Matthews.
- 113 Bessie at School.
- 114 Madge Harland.
- 115 Thy Heart's Desire. Sarah Doudney.
- 116 Dora's Motto.
- 117 Nellie's Housekeeping.
- 118 Oliver Twist, Italy, &c. Dickens.
- 119 Lilly Morris' Enemy.
- 120 Romance of Animal Life.
- 121 The Pioneer. Cooper.
- 122 Butterfly Flights to Philadelphia.
- 123 Belle Power's Locket. Mathews.
- 124 Bessie in the Mountains. "
- 125 Bessie on Her Travels. "
- 126 Rose's Temptation.
- 127 Butterfly Flights to Saratoga.
- 128 Christmas Stories. Dickens.
- 129 Miss Robert's Fortune. Sophy Winthrop.
- 130 Lorna Doone. R. D. Blackmore.
- 131 Miss Willowburn's Offer. S. Doudney.
- 132 True and Noble Women.
- 133 The Salt Master of Luneberg. J. Wolff.
- 134 Violet Vaughan. Worboise.
- 135 Ruth Erskine's Cross. Pansy.
- 136 Leader Onward and Upward. Ewart.
- 137 The End Crowns All. Emma Marshall.
- 138 Old Curiosity Shop. Dickens.
- 139 Daisy's Work. J. Matthews.
- 140 Bessie at the Seaside, "
- 141 Bessie in the City, "
- 142 Maggie Bradford Club. "
- 143 Mamie's Watchword. "
- 144 Hope Reed's Upper Window. Benning.
- 145 Jessie's Parrot.
- 146 Butterfly Flights to Niagara.
- 147 Butterfly Flights to the Seaside.
- 148 Pinkie and the Rabbits.

—We have received the Cornell University Register, 1889-90. This shows a list of 1329 students for the past year.

—Memorial Volume of Jefferson Davis, by Jones, Johnson & Co., Richmond, Virginia.

—Hon. J. M. Brower has sent to our Library an "Address in Commemoration of the Inauguration of George Washington, delivered by Melville Weston Fuller, L.L.D., Chief Justice of the United States.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—The pedestrian trip to the Pilot was abandoned by mutual consent, as the season was evidently too far advanced for much mountain climbing.

—Added to the many other improvements in and about the ACADEMY is a new roof on the Principal's house. A fresh coat of paint will also be given to the building.

—The Seniors' Academic robes and caps arrived early in November, and on the morning of the 11th they were worn for the first time to prayers. The Seniors caused a considerable sensation as they filed in, but they bore themselves with a quiet dignity which was perhaps "caught from the strong contagion of the gown," as Dr. Johnson hath it.

—We are indebted to Rev. Henry Rominger, of Philadelphia, for a number of pictures of our party while on its northern tour. The photographs were taken at three points in the Philadelphia Zoological Garden, and all were successful. One was at the lake, the other at the bear-pit, and the third near the prairie dog yard. The party tenders its thanks to Mr. Rominger for his courtesy in the matter.

—Our new bell has not as yet been named. The Seniors have the matter under grave consideration, for they feel the importance of giving a suitable name to so useful and silver-tongued a functionary. It rouses from morning slumbers, it is true, but then its tones are so sweet that they soothe off the aroused sleepers into dreamland again before the bell stops ringing.

—Mr. CLEWELL set out on his Student's Tour early on the morning of November 3d, with 13 of the girls, under the chaperonage of Miss EMMA CHITTY. The party reached New York city, their farthest objective point, in the course of the next day; after visiting the varied points of interest in and around the great commercial metropolis, they will go to Philadelphia, Washington, &c.

—Autumnal walks have been decidedly fashionable during the past weeks. Dr. RONDTHALER, who had charge of the school during Mr. CLEWELL'S absence out North, would occasionally start out with a following of 80 or 90 girls, each one carrying a small paper bag with a light lunch. Sometimes in scampering along the girls would find that the bottom of the bag had given way, and the lunch had gone to feed the fishes or whatever chanced to find it.

—Hymen has been unusually busy among our Alumnae during the Autumn as will be seen by reference to our marriage notices. Our best wishes attend them all in their new spheres of duty. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Boozer (ALMA CARMICHAEL) have gone to house-keeping in a handsome flat on Main street. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hege (MINNIE WINKLER) occupy the adjoining flat on the north side.

—The part of town in front of the ACADEMY buildings has been lovely during the soft and pensive Indian summer season. Farther on the pavements are torn up, and Main street is being paved with Belgian blocks, but we serenely enjoyed all the lights and shadows of the autumnal sun as it flecked the soft grass of the Square, and tinted the maples and sycamores with the brilliant flush of autumn glories. At night the Square and its surroundings were fairy-like in the electric lights, with their weird and changeful hues.

From the Studio.

—Since the 3d of November the Studio has taken on rather a sober bearing, and fain would draw a veil of sombre hue over the pieces of brilliant coloring that adorn her walls and cabinets, that she may appear to all eyes in her true light,—mourning the art-inspiring presence that departed for the North on the above-mentioned day in the personage of Miss SIEWERS. However, since time is a cure for all ills, we trust soon to emerge from this shadow and be ready to welcome Miss GERTRUDE back into her old dominion blazing with lovely scenes and gorgeous tints.

The introduction of gentlemen into the Studio is a new feature, and it is interesting to find that the majority are young men. We think, however, the faculty need not be uneasy on this score as the young gentlemen have not opened their lips since they made their appearance, and their eyes do not appear very communicative. We conjecture that the teachers,—of course, they are accompanied by teachers,—who have them in charge have forbidden their talking, but perhaps their silence is due to the embarrassment they must experience when placed directly in front of young ladies. The pupils manifest great interest in their work, and constantly come up for extra hours. This may be due to the new feature, though we dare not say so.

From the Commercial Department.

—The pupils in Book-keeping are working busily, and are about ready to begin business. Their stores will be opened shortly and customers are invited to call.

—The Telegraphy scholars have nearly mastered the alphabet, and can now send any words and messages to each other. To prevent guessing the words are frequently sent backwards, and close attention to sound becomes necessary.

—A very large number of pupils are engaged in studying Shorthand, Miss LENNIE PRICE aiding Miss LEHMAN in this branch.

From the 3d Room.

—Pupil, walking into 3d Room, asks: "where is the 'catarrh?'" (guitar).

—Young lady, in jewelry store, inquires: "Is this a cake knife?" "No," said the amused jeweler, "it is a shoe horn."

—Afflicted pupil inquired in the sick-room for a remedy for ulsters (ulcers).

—Why is the 3d Room unpopular? Because Tom(linson), Dick(s) and Harri(s) live in it.

From the 4th Room.

—The 4th Room girls enjoyed a candy stew last Friday night, and though the weather was a little warm were remarkably successful. Perhaps the blisters lasted longer than the candy, but who will tell?

—The following sentence recently translated in one of the German classes is endorsed by those opposed to early rising: "A father recommended early rising to his son, telling him of a person who had while walking out early one morning found a purse containing money. The son however assured the father that the person who had had the misfortune to lose the purse must have risen earlier." Thus proving that early rising may be a loss as well as a gain.

—The reception tendered Mr. CLEWELL and his party, on the evening of the 17th, was indeed an enjoyable affair. Gymnasium Hall was tastefully decorated with evergreens and ferns gathered by the Seniors at their picnic in Old Town. The girls flitting about in every direction, dressed in bright-colored costumes, formed a picture that pleased every one. The company gathered at an early hour, and as the new bell pealed forth eight strokes the exercises were opened. These consisted of music and short essays carefully prepared for the occasion. The refreshments were by no means the least of the entertainment, and the evening passed all too quickly, sending the girls tired but happy to their beds.

—Have you heard the new name for the Gymnasium? Some one when asked where she was going, hesitated a moment, and then replied, "To the Gymdaisy."

From the 5th Room.

—A girl, apparently enjoying the best of health, standing before the mirror, suddenly exclaims: "Oh, girls, I believe I have the Mineralgesus (meningitis)!"

—A companion thinks she has St. Violence (Vitus) dance!

—The following conversation passes between two girls taking a morning walk in the Pleasure Grounds: "Now, Mary, expand the air." "What do you know about expanding the air, Mattie?" "Why," replied Mattie, indignantly, "I guess I have studied Botany."

—Teacher—"Who was Herodotus?" Scholar—"She was the wife of Herod."

—The 5th Room apparently enjoys the fullest confidence of Mr. CLEWELL, since he has entrusted us with the ringing of the new bell. We are impressed with our responsibility, since the punctual performance of the duties of the whole school depends upon its correct ringing.

From the 8th Room.

—One of the bright upstairs girls was asked whether Janaushek was dead or living? The answer was: "I am not sure, but think he is living."

—A question was asked about the first five books in the Bible. One girl answered: "The first five books in the Bible are Matthew, Mark, Luke and John."

Teacher—"What is a problem?" Bright girl—"A question to be dissolved."

—Perplexed Jun. Mid.—"Miss S—, what kind of men are war elephants?"

—The following is the programme of the Musicales given complimentary to the Synod of the Southern Province of the Moravian Church, Thursday evening, November 20, in Gymnasium Hall:

1. Vocal Trio. In Yonder Glade.....Saubert.
Misses EVANS, LACIAR and JONES.
2. Vocal Solo. Would I were a Birdling.
Sieber.
Miss F. SETTLE.
3. Piano Solo. Le reveil du Printemps.
S. Smith.
Miss EMMA HALE.

4. Vocal Solo. Jerusalem.....H. Parker.
Miss JONES.
5. Vocal Duet. Dance young Maidens.
Viardot-Schubert.
Misses SETTLE and DU FOUR.
6. Vocal Solo. Springtime.....Becker.
Miss B. GOSLEN.
7. Vocal Solo. Heart's Delight.....Gilchrist.
Miss LACIAR.
8. Piano Solo. Simple Aven.....Thome.
Miss M. MASON.
9. Vocal Trio. Loreley.....Silcher.
Misses EVANS, LACIAR and JONES.
10. Vocal Solo. A Winter Lullaby.P. de Koren.
Miss EVANS.
11. Vocal Quartette. Two Roses.....Werner.
LORELEY QUARTETTE.

Personal Items.

—Mrs. J. A. Drake (SALLIE J. GIBSON, '56), of South Carolina, died during the past summer.

—ANNIE J. FLETCHER, '53, was married to Mr. C. J. Covington, and resides at present in Covington, S. C.

—LOUISA J. BETHEA, '53, now Mrs. Archie Fletcher, lives in Adamsville, S. C.

—Three times within the past months have we been called upon to mourn the loss of loved and honored members of our Alumnae Association. In the latter part of August Mrs. Dr. Wiseman (ALPHONZINE DOUTHIT), of Farmington, N. C., a noble, Christian lady, the centre of a large circle of friends and loved ones, passed over the river. Then we were startled by the sad intelligence of the death of Mrs. J. Wyatt (MARY HICKS), of Raleigh, N. C., long known and esteemed among us; she left 4 little children, the eldest a boy of 6 years, and the youngest an infant of a week: and in a few weeks Mrs. J. F. Brower (TENNIE KEEHLN), of Salem, was laid to rest under the cedars of our own graveyard, leaving two little ones motherless. Verily God's ways with the children of men are past finding out, and we can only bow in humble submission, feeling that some day, in the clearer light of eternity, we shall know what now appears dark and mysterious.

—Miss NELLIE CRAMER, of Thomasville, N. C., gave us a pleasant little visit recently. She speaks of returning after Christmas to complete her course in vocal culture.

—Mr. and Mrs. John W. Fries, with their two accomplished daughters, ADDIE and MARV, set sail for Europe on October 4th, and landed in Liverpool after a voyage of a week. They intend to spend nearly a year abroad, taking the winter for Southern Europe, being in Rome about Christmas, and giving the young ladies every possible advantage. No doubt they will have a most delightful and profitable time.

Subscriptions Received.

Mrs. Hattie Hill, Bristol, Tenn.; Miss Eddie Hunnicut, Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Martha Jeffreys, Neuse, N. C.; Miss Maggie R. Blaine, Blackstock, S. C.; Mrs. E. C. Williams, Tyler, Texas; Miss Emma Schiff, Miss Annie Greer, Charlotte, N. C.; Mr. H. V. Lineback, Roanoke, Va.; Miss Gertrude Stowers, Miss M. E. Vogler, Miss L. Shaffner, Salem, N. C.; Mrs. A. L. Davis, Trinity, Ala.; Miss Helen de Schweinitz, Bethlehem, Pa.; Mrs. Dr. A. Jones, Walnut Cove, N. C.; Mrs. Emma Maul, Kewanee, Ills.; Mrs. J. H. Kapp, Bethania, N. C.; Mrs. Lucie Thompson, Tuscumbia, Ala.; Mrs. J. P. C. Davis, Newbern, N. C.; Miss Carrie Wray, Shelby, N. C.; Mrs. R. L. Penry Reedy Creek, N. C.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1 Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS ACADEMY.]

- I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*
- 5006 SALLIE CHADWICK. — 1858.
J. N. Chadwick, Chappell Hill, Tex.
- 5007 LAURA E. FOY. — 1857.
Mrs. P. B. Oliver, Pollocksville, N. C.
- 5008 JESSIE STURBS. — 1860.
T. B. Skide, Williamston, N. C.
- 5009 MINTIE P. DUNCAN. — 1856.
J. C. Duncan, Big Lick, Va.
- 5010 MOLLIE S. JACKSON. — 1855.
M. Jackson, Marion, Va.
5011. LAURA B. OAKS. — 1870.
Major M. Oaks, Reidsville, N. C.
- 5012 EUNICE MELISSA ISON. — 1856.
- 5013 SALLIE S. ISON. — 1858.
F. M. Ison, Griffin, Ga.
- 5014 HESTER E. STRAUGHAN. — 1859.
Geo. Straughan, Winterpock, Va.
- 5015 WILLIE CRUMP. — 1857.
William B. Crump, Mouth of Indian, W. Va.
- 5016 EMILY IRENE CAMFIELD. — 1859.
C. H. Camfield, Albany, Ga.
- 5017 GERTRUDE JONES. — 1858.
R. L. Patterson, Salem, N. C.
- 5018 AUGUSTA GEORGIA BOWE. — 1858.
R. A. Bowe, Augusta, Ga.
- 5019 FANNIE COCHRANE. — 1858.
W. R. Cochrane, Charlotte, N. C.
- 5020 NANNIE E. CLAYTON. — 1857.
John E. Clayton, Walnut Cove, N. C.
- 5021 DORA WALLACE MCKINNEY. — 1860.
Brooks McKinney, Pelham, N. C.
- 5022 MINNIE WALKER BURNETT. — 1857.
William Burnett, Calverton, Texas.
- 5023 EMMA STANBACK. — 1859.
W. P. Stanback, Little's Mills, N. C.
- 5024 SARAH ZEVELY TAYLOR. — 1857.
Jeanette E. Taylor, Craigsville, S. C.
- 5025 ANNA L. GOMILLION. — 1860.
Jesse Gomilion, Johnson's Depot, S. C.
- 5026 IONA GOMILLION. — 1858.
Lovett Gomillion, Johnson's Depot, S. C.
- 5027 LYDIA ELIZ. TIMMERMAN. — 1858.
Dr. W. H. Timmerman, Lott's P. O., S. C.
- 5028 EMMA ELIZ. HATTIWANGER. — 1857.
William Hattiwanger, of Depot, S. C.
- 5029 SALLIE BLANCHE PERSON. — 1856.
Pressly C. Person, Franklinton, N. C.
- 5030 WINNIE W. HATCH. — 1851.
J. R. Hatch, Mt. Olivet, N. C.
- 5031 FLORENCE LEGRAND. — 1858.
B. F. Little, Little's Mills, N. C.
- 5032 IDA HORTENSIA LEGRAND. — 1858.
Hampton LeGrand, Mangum, N. C.
- 5033 EMMA FIFE. — 1856.
W. W. Fife, Thomasville, N. C.
- 5034 MARY E. KENNEDY. — 1855.
Col. John T. Kennedy, Goldsboro, N. C.
- 5035 JOELLA ZOLLICOFFER MONTGUE. — 1836.
Dr. H. W. Montegnie, Rolesville, N. C.

- 5036 JULIA E. LOCKHART. — 1856.
Adam Lockhart, White Store, N. C.
- 5037 JUDY STULE STANBACK. — 1859.
P. N. Stanback, Little's Mills, N. C.
- 5038 EVA R. FLEMISTER. — 1856.
Lewis Flemister, Griffin, Ga.
- 5039 MOLLIE A. HYLTON. — 1855.
Mary Ann Hylton, Nettle Ridge, Va.
- 5040 SARAH GILLILAND TILKEY. — 1856.
John Tilkey, Augusta, Ga.
- 5041 NETTIE STEELE. — 1859.
Thos. W. Steele, Little Rock, Ark.
- 5042 NETTIE CONNOR. — 1857.
E. B. Connor, Augusta, Ark.
- 2043 PATTIE T. LINDSAY. — 1857.
- 2044 SALLIE LOU LINDSAY. — 1858.
Wm. Lindsey, Reidsville, N. C.
- 2045 ALICE D. GILMER. — 1856.
S. L. Gilmer, Mt. Airy, N. C.
- 2046 MARY B. PARROTT. — 1856.
Eliza A. Parrott, Kinston, N. C.
- 2047 FANNIE A. THARP. — 1858.
- 5048 BETTIE THARP. — 1860.
Major Cicero Tharp, Macon, Ga.
- 5049 SALLIE E. BARTLETT. — 1858.
Harriet M. Bartlett, Macon, Ga.
- 5050 LUCY W. LOCKETT. — 1859.
B. G. Lockett, Albany, Ga.
- 5051 LAZZIE L. BEANE. — 1856.
A. C. Beane, Augusta, Ga.
- 5052 HENRIETTA KIRKPATRICK. — 1854.
- 5053 LAZZIE MORGAN KIRKPATRICK. — 1856.
S. F. Alexander, Charlotte, N. C.
- 5054 MOLLIE LOUISE BARNHARDT. — 1856.
- 5055 LAURA JOSEPHINE BARNHARDT. — 1854.
J. C. Barnhardt, Pioneer Mills, N. C.

Married.

CRIST—WINKLER.—On November 20, 1890, in the Moravian church, Salem, N. C., Mr. WILL C. CRIST to Miss MATTIE A. WINKLER, Rev. Dr. Rondthaler officiating.

SHELTON—WATKINS.—On October 22d, Mr. WILLIAM R. SHELTON, of Elkin, N. C., to Miss FLORENCE WATKINS, of Winston.

EFIRD—OGBURN.—In October, Mr. F. B. EFIRD to Miss MINNIE OGBURN, both of Winston.

SULLIVAN—BEWLEY.—On October 28, Mr. CHARLES SULLIVAN to Miss LUTA C. BEWLEY, of Anderson, S. C.

DALTON—HINE.—In Winston, N. C., October 29, Mr. ERNEST DALTON to Miss DELLA HINE.

ADKINS—KERNER.—On October 29, Mr. J. R. ADKINS to Miss ADDIE KERNER, of Kernersville.

ADAMS—STOKES.—On Oct. 28, Mr. THOMAS T. ADAMS to Miss ANNIE STOKES, of Danville, Virginia.

Died.

BROWER.—On November 4, of consumption, Mrs. HORTENSIA BROWER (m. n. KEEHLN), of Salem, N. C. We sympathize deeply with the bereaved family in this affliction. She leaves 2 little children scarcely old enough to remember the mother so early lost.

L. V. & E. T. BLUM,
SALEM, N. C.,

BOOKSELLERS, STATIONERS,
PRINTERS.

PUBLISH "THE PEOPLES PRESS,"
FARMER'S AND PLANTER'S ALMANAC.

General Job Printing executed with neatness
and dispatch. Try us.

Printers of Salem Female Academy's publications.

Gloves! Gloves!! Gloves!!!

SCHOUER'S MILLINERY ESTABLISHMENT

announces that after this date they will always have on hand a first-class line of

Harris's Celebrated Kid Gloves

FOR LADIES AND MISSES

in all colors, sizes and prices. These gloves are of finest kid and excellent fit, and are guaranteed to give satisfaction.

A NEW LOT OF HATS JUST RECEIVED, and our prices low as ever.

Special attention given to all orders from the Academy.

ALUMNÆ BADGES. — Mrs. Dr. H. T. BAHNSON has been requested by the Alumnae Association to keep on hand a stock of the official badges of the Alumnae Society. She will be pleased to give any information relative to price.

Address MRS. H. T. BAHNSON,
Salem, N. C.

A REVOLUTION.

In methods of teaching PHYSIOLOGY and GEOGRAPHY. More and better work done with the use of YAGGY'S STUDIES in one term than in three terms without them.

YAGGY'S GEOGRAPHICAL STUDY,

comprising PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, GEOLOGICAL and ASTRONOMICAL Geography.

YAGGY'S ANATOMICAL STUDY

showing in a striking and original manner the structure and organs of the human body, full size, natural color; also a series of Object Lessons on the ruin of the body by intoxicants.

WHY FOLLOW THE OLD RUTS?

Adopt the above POPULAR, ORIGINAL and FASCINATING APPLIANCES and teach by the OBJECT METHOD

Circulars sent on application.

WESTERN PUBLISHING HOUSE,

No. 3 East 14th Street,

April 1890-ly.

New York City.

WORCESTER'S DICTIONARY

"The highest authority known as to the use of the English language."

With or without Deason's Patent Index.

The Standard of the Leading Publishers, Magazines, and Newspapers.

The Dictionary of the Scholar for Spelling, Pronunciation, and Accuracy in Definition.

Send for large Circular to the Publishers,
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,
PHILADELPHIA.

May, 1890. 1 y.

(REVISED EDITION.)

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia is a whole library of universal knowledge from the pen of the ablest scholars in America and Europe. It is accepted as high authority in our leading colleges.

IT IS NOT FOR THE FEW,

Like Appleton's, the Britannica, or the "International,"

BUT FOR ALL.

It has just been thoroughly revised at a cost of over $60,000, and three years' labor by forty editors, and over 2,000 renowned contributors.

It is in 8 convenient sized volumes.

No father can give to his child at school, or his son or daughter just entering the arena of life, anything that will be of more permanent benefit.

It is an education supplementary to that of the Schools

"The next few years will witness a great change in educational ideas. The possibilities of self-culture are to be emphasized, and the means of aid and direction increased. After a careful examination of 'Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia,' I am convinced that while it is excellently adapted to the needs of professional and business men, it is eminently useful to the earnest, thorough self-educator.

"This work, with its corps of contributors, offers accurate articles on the widest range of subjects. To the value of trustworthy information is added the inspection of personality associated with great names.

I heartily commend this Cyclopaedia to all,

and especially to those who are pursuing self-set courses in the great university of life.

JOHN H. VINCENT, (Bishop),
"Chancellor, Chataqua University."

Address, for particulars, terms and circulars,

A. J. JOHNSON & CO.,

11 Great Jones Street, N. Y.

Representatives wanted in every county.

From the Librarian of Harvard University,
Cambridge, Mass.

DEC. 16, 1889. — "There is perhaps no better test of the merit of a cyclopaedia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA has, during many years' experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language."

From Rev. Thos Hill, D.D., LL.D., Ex-President of Harvard University.

PORTLAND, MAINE, Aug. 6, 1889. — "JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA (revised edition) is an ever-present companion and friend, and I consult it very much more frequently than I do my Britannica, Appleton's, Webster's Unabridged, etc., etc., and very seldom fail to find in it just the kind and amount of information which I need."

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL. D., Librarian of Congress, Washington D. C.

"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference."

DAVIS SCHOOL.

Military Boarding School
FOR BOYS and YOUNG MEN.

Full preparation for any College or for Business. Healthy location; fine climate; mild winters; excellent buildings; Cadet Cornet Band; Under Orchestra; Resident Surgeon. No Charge for Medical Attention. No Extra Charge for Languages or Sciences. Department of Art. Full Course VERY LOW RATES. For Register with full particulars address

COL. A. C. DAVIS, Supt.,
WINSTON, N. C.

*BELO-HOUSE.*

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY.
Jan, '90-1y.

"Bingham School

stands pre-eminent among Southern boarding Schools for Boys."—U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Combines more desirable qualities than any other with which I am acquainted."—Lieut. J. B. Batchelor, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics

"There exists not the equal of this School in my opinion."—Capt. Henry Wyatt, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

More than 100 pupils from other States, the largest number in a Southern School for boys from outside the State of location.

Address,

Maj. R BINGHAM.

Bingham's School, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER, JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.
REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

OF

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES, AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT," AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

WELCOME once more to Winston-Salem, ladies of the S. F. A. None are more cordially pleased to see your pleasant faces than we, nor more desirous to continue and increase the friendly relations already existing between us.

This year we will show you the most beautiful line of millinery ever displayed in North Carolina, and your orders will, as before, receive especial attention.

Hoping to see you all at our Fall Opening, we are Respectfully, yours,

SCHOULER'S
MILLINERY
ESTABLISHMENT.

Schouler's Racket Store.

Dore's Bible Gallery, 100 Engravings.
Milton's Paradise Lost, 50 Engravings.
Dante's Inferno, 75 Engravings.
" Purgatory & Paradise 60 Engravings.

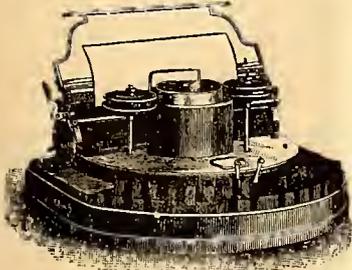

Any one of these books, which are large and beautifully bound, will be given to a member of the ACADEMY when the amount of her purchases in SCHOULER'S RACKET STORE reaches $20.00,—not in one bill, but in as long a time as you please.

This store is a veritable Bazaar, and contains Dress Goods, Shoes, Notions, Jewelry, Stationery, Cologne, Ribbons, Bags, Trunks, Underclothes, &c., and the prices are the lowest in the Twin-City.

HENRY W. MILLER,
STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
Price, complete with two type wheels, $100.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.
Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.
Send for Catalogue.
WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKERS,

Compiled and Arranged by JAMES BALDWIN, PH. D., editor of "Harper's Readers."

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKER. FIRST BOOK.

PART I. ARBOR DAY.—Exercises in poetry and prose for Spring Festivals, Arbor Day, Flower Planting Day, and other similar occasions. With an introduction by GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

PART II. MEMORIAL DAY.—Selections suitable for use in schools, and for public exercises in connection with the observances of Memorial or Decoration Day.

12mo, Cloth, 240 pages; price, 60 cents.

IN PREPARATION.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. SECOND BOOK. GRADED SELECTIONS. I. For First Reader Pupils. II. For Second Reader Pupils. III. For Third Reader Pupils. IV. For Fourth Reader Pupils. V. For Advanced Students and Public Readers.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. THIRD BOOK.—MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS especially adapted for use at morning "Opening Exercises." I. Life. II. Nature. III. Labor. IV. Laughter. V. Experience. VI. Duty. VII. Aspiration. VIII. Reverence. IX. Retrospection. Nearly two hundred selections.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. FOURTH BOOK.—PATRIOTIC SELECTIONS. I. Patriotism as a Principle of Life. Patriotism in "the Brave Days of Old." III. Our Country. IV. Our Flag. V. The Patriotic Citizen. VI. Washington's Birthday.

HARPER'S READERS.

The Most Successful School Books of this Century.

Prin. O. P. LEE, Edgefield Academy, S. C., says: "They are far superior to anything of the kind I have seen."

Prin. H. B. PARKER, Hampton Male and Female Academy, Ga., says: "We are perfectly delighted with the series."

Prin. M. N. WETMORE, Brunson, S. C., says: "I think them as hear perfect in every way as books can be."

Hon. H. A. GUDGER, President of School Board, Asheville, N. C., says: "Harper's Readers are used in our public schools, and give perfect satisfaction."

Send for Price List and Terms for Introduction.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers

FRANKLIN SQUARE, New York City.

FOUNDED 1851.

HORNER SCHOOL,

OXFORD, N. C.

Fall Term Opens Aug. 4, 1890.

FACULTY:

J. H. HORNER, M. A., University of N. C. (Founder of School.)
Col. J. T. DREWRY, Com'd't, Star Gradi a/e Virginia Military Institute.
J. C. HORNER, A. M., Davidson College.
G. A. WAUCHOPE, M. A., Ph. D., University of Berlin, Late Fellow Wash. & Lee Univ.
Rev. J. M. Horner, B. A., B. D., University of Virginia and Johns Hopkins University.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.
The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woods and Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California. Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pound<sup>1/2</sup> of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S.-E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236 Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

→* MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH,*←
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
155 Lexington Avenue New York.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment;—she is a thorough musician, and she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1890.

NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO. ORANGE, MASS.
CHICAGO, ILL. 28 UNION SQUARE, N.Y. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
ST. LOUIS, MO. FOR SALE BY DALLAS, TEX.

Mrs. NANCY TURNER, SALEM, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway

offers first-class service between Winston and Salem and Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all other points on the Atlantic Coast Line, and Savannah Florida and Western systems in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Solid trains run to Wilmington, where easy transfer is made by hack in the forenoon to the trains of the

Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley,

then a change of cars is made at Walnut Cove Union Station, arriving at Winston-Salem at 9:00 p. m. Those not securing through tickets can purchase tickets and re-check their baggage to Winston-Salem at Wilmington. From all stations on the Main Line of the CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY to Winston-Salem only one change of cars is necessary, at Walnut Cove Union Station.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen. Sup't. Gen. Pass. Ag't
Greensboro, N. C. Fayetteville, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain
& Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem, N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class. Sure connection by all lines from the East, and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School. For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED.

Patrons of this paper, old students of Salem Female Academy, everybody interested in the history of the early Moravians of North Carolina to send for a copy of "TWIN-CITIES - WINSTON - SALEM." Price 25 cents. Stamps received. Address,
Mrs. A. V. WINKLER,
Salem, N. C.

Mar. '90-4m

THE BEAUTIFUL

NORTH.

The shortest and most direct line to Harrodsburg, Shelbyville, Lexington, Frankfort, Paris. Only 11 hours and 25 minutes Chattanooga to Louisville. Only 12 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Bozair Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England Points and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

SOUTH

The only line Chattanooga to Birmingham, Meridian, Jackson, Vicksburg, and Shreveport, making direct connections without omnibus transfer at Shreveport for Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston, Austin, Texas; New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Mexico and California. Shortest and Quickest Line to New Orleans, with solid Trains and Through Pullman Sleepers, making direct connections for Texas, Mexico and California. Close connection made en route for Memphis, Little Rock and Arkansas Points, Anniston, Columbus, Montgomery, Mobile, Natchez.

Passengers ticketed and Baggage checked through to destination. For rates, Correct County Maps, and full information, call at QUEEN & CRESCENT TICKET OFFICE, READ HOUSE, or CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION CHAS. H. MILLS, Ticket Agt. C. S. BARRETT, T. P. A. Depot. Read House.

D. J. MULLANEY, Div. Pass. Agt., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. C. HARVEY, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS,
Vice Pres. G. P. & T. A.

THE

"COTTON BELT ROUTE"

St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railway,
Carries More Pupils to an from Arkansas and Texas than all other lines to those States combined.

Why? Because this is the only line which has furnished, as promised, elegant chair cars direct from the school to the scholar's home, and from the home back to school without changes en route. These cars are fitted up for this class of travel exclusively with retiring and toilet rooms, accompanied by an attentive porter and in charge of an Agent of the Company, who sees that the car is reserved for the use of the pupils only.

We have handled the First-Class Schools of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and other States for a series of years, and in no instance has any school, commencing with us, patronized, subsequently, any other line.

This is the only line from Memphis running Two Daily Trains through to Texas without change of cars, and without Omnibus Transfer in Memphis from Eastern Lines.

Correspondence solicited from Principals of Schools and Parents concerning the safe conduct of scholars, by

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield,
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.
W. G. Adams, Pass. Agent, Nashville, Tenn.

:- "SOLD ON MERIT." :-
THE LIGHT-RUNNING "DOMESTIC."

Do you need a Piano?
Do you need an Organ?
Do you need a Violin?
Do you need a Musical Instrument of any kind? Have you an old Instrument you wish to exchange?
If so you will find it to your interest to call and consult the undersigned.

W. P. ORMSBY,
MAIN ST., - - SALEM, N. C.

CHICAGO
COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that Inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR WAR-
AIM BANTED
IS FOR
TO FIVE EXCEL. YEARS

STIEFF
PIANOS

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XIII.

SALEM, N. C., DECEMBER, 1890.

NUMBER 111.

PARK HALL.

THE very large attendance of pupils at SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY has necessitated the addition of new buildings for several years past. The present year is no exception. Already in the summer it appeared that the present capacity of the school would not be sufficient to accommodate the autumn attendance. Hence the Trustees purchased the lot immediately north of the Salem Moravian church, known as the parsonage, and lately occupied by Professor WURRESCHE. On this lot, which extended back between 300 and 400 feet, was the parsonage, a building 50 feet in length and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  stories high. This building was moved back about 250 feet, until it was in a line with Annex Hall, the north line of the ACADEMY yard extending at this point to the lot alluded to. This position placed the building 20 feet from Annex Hall. The house was raised 12 feet after it had been placed in its proper position, and a substantial brick story built underneath. With this addition we secured a building 40x50 feet (porch and wing included)  $2\frac{1}{2}$  stories high. Workmen have had the alterations and additions in hand since June last, and the results are most gratifying indeed. As many of our readers will not see this recent addition to our little "village of buildings," THE ACADEMY invites you to make an inspection of the same in imagination.

If you will take your place with us in spirit in the rear court formed by Main Hall, the Infirmary wing and Gymnasium Hall (the former chapel building), just where the large fountain and the De Schweinitz willow stand, we will start on our tour of inspection of Park Hall. Passing northward under a neat, covered walk, we approach Annex Hall, the addition made some 2 years since. This comfortable structure presents a very home-like appearance with its veranda and broken front. About 60 feet west from Annex Hall is Old Annex (known formerly as the Bagge House). Between these buildings we pass and arrive at the new Hall, just north of Annex. The high board fence has been removed and placed above the new lot, and there is a continuous yard embracing the former parsonage lot, the Bagge lot and the ACADEMY rear court. With the covered walks, the several buildings and the majestic shade trees the outlook is a pleasing one from any point, but especially in the evening when the electric lights sparkle here and there, throwing a cheery light on everything. But we will return to the description of Park Hall. As the ground was quite uneven at this point a level plateau, 80 by 125 feet was made, with a gracefully sodded bank rising to the west, and a steep incline bounding the east side. In the centre of this stands Park Hall, facing east and west. The west side is hidden in part from Church street by the terrace alluded to and by a high board fence. This fence divides the newly purchased lot into two parts, the vacated portion leaving a space 80 by 200 feet and affording a magnificent site for building in the future, should the School or Church require such a location. To the east of Park Hall (and on this side is the large portico) a prospect of rare beauty is presented. Not more than 100 feet below extends the romantic ravine which passes through the ACADEMY Park. The nearer Summer House is so close that a stone could easily be tossed into it from the windows of the new building. Standing on the back porch the entire Park is spread out before the individual, and hence the name "Park Hall." The fountains and rustic bridges; the pavilions and winding walks; the croquet and the tennis grounds; the majestic oak and the ornamental evergreen; Wachovia Park is in full view, and between them is Dr. Bahnsen's lily pond. The view from this building is not surpassed anywhere in the ACADEMY premises, unless we except what is known as "Lover's Leap," the little mound just beneath the gigantic tulip poplar near the main entrance to the Park. This view will be one to which we can always bring visitors with pleasure, and we trust you, kind reader, may sooner or later visit the spot.

We will now enter the new building. The first floor is used for lecture rooms exclusively. The first that we enter is the laboratory. This has been prepared with an eye to security, efficiency and comfort. The lecture room is 17x40 feet. The eastern portion of the room is a fire-proof section, covered with an iron roof and paved with brick. Shelves and a slate blackboard are in the rear, 5 feet high, while the next 12 feet is a pure white wall space, to be used for stereopticon views either day or night. The laboratory will be so arranged that it can be readily darkened at a moment's notice. Within this eastern section of the laboratory, on a brick foundation, is a slate slab, to be used for experiments, and beside it is a large iron sink. Gas and water are connected with the slab and sink. In front of this lecture section is a series of raised tiers of seats, rising about 8 feet in all. These platforms are supplied with students' chairs, with tablet arms, and are capable of seating about 120 pupils. The walls are tinted with a delicate blue, and the wainscoting, as well as all the wood-work, is finished in hard oil, native pine being used. This laboratory lecture room as it now stands is doubtless one of the most comfortable and complete rooms that could be desired. In the opposite end of the building is the Senior class room. The size of this is 16x27 feet, and this, too, is arranged in successive tiers, with student tablet-arm chairs. The entire wall on one side is occupied by real slate blackboards, and the large windows, high ceilings and tastily finished woods give the room a fresh and attractive appearance. The remaining portion of the first floor is taken up with a third class room, similar to the last one described, but without the raised tiers of seats.

Passing now to the second story we find on the eastern portion of the building a 35 foot veranda, with the beautiful view already alluded to. Entering from this porch we find ourselves in a reception room 15 feet square, with 4 doors opening into the various rooms. The first one to our left is the entrance to the upper story. Next to this is the door leading to the large, double study-parlor. This study-parlor is 16x27 feet, and is divided by a folding door. The room is connected with Annex Hall by a covered passage, and also has a carefully devised fire escape from the upper story. The rooms are ceiled, the walls are finished with white alabastine, and the wainscoting and wood-work are finished in hard oil. The floors are covered with handsome rugs, and the windows, 6 in all, hung with lace curtains, and light provided by both gas and electricity. New tables and chairs complete the furniture, and all in all the Park Hall room company will doubtless feel itself very well provided for. Adjoining the rooms just described are three more, also neatly and carefully finished, but of these we will speak more in a subsequent article. Suffice it now to say that it is the suite of rooms to be occupied by the new Industrial Department. The one room will be devoted to the Dress-making Department, the second will be a large and comfortable kitchen, and the third a dining room. When we introduce our new department to our readers, as we hope Miss SIEWERS, now in Boston, will do next month, these rooms will claim our special attention.

Passing one story higher we find ourselves in a most comfortable dormitory, with a capacity of 16 pupils. At one end is the usual lavatory, while the neat, red trimmed curtains give the dormitory a most cleanly and fresh appearance. Two flue ventilators extend to and above the roof, while at the south end a fire-escape is provided, in case the regular egress should be cut off.

This, kind reader, will give you an idea of the building which is in the present month occupied by a portion of our large school family. It adds to the capacity of the school seating room for three classes, total about 170; one double study-parlor; three rooms for the Industrial school, and a dormitory for 16 pupils, and gives a fire escape on second story to both Park and Annex Halls. It adds a large and attractive yard to the ACADEMY grounds, and is a pleasing addition to the already numerous list of school halls. We trust that the efficiency of the remaining portion of the year may be greatly increased by the addition of PARK HALL.

THE STUDENTS' AUTUMN TOUR.

IT was a cold, frosty Wednesday morning as our party reached the Grand Central Depot in New York, under the care of Mr. Louis Ingwersen, a representative of the N. Y. C. R. R. Passing through the long line of tunnels in the upper portion of the city and under High Bridge we soon found ourselves speeding along the banks of the Hudson, towards Poughkeepsie, our first objective point being Vassar College. After a stroll of half a mile through the streets of Poughkeepsie we entered a street car and were taken out to the College. The approach to the same is along a beautiful walk, bordered with evergreens, and ere long we stood at the door of the famous institution. Our time was limited, but as President Taylor himself kindly escorted us, we were able to visit various points of interest in the main building, including the Library, Chapel, etc. It was a matter of great regret that we were not able to more thoroughly inspect the adjoining buildings, such as the Laboratory, Gymnasium, etc., but as the day was very full and our train would not wait, we reluctantly bade President Taylor and the famous Vassar farewell. At the depot a hasty lunch refreshed us, and a few moments later the swift express was whirling us down the river toward West Point. The reader can well imagine the interest with which our party climbed the historic hill and threaded its way in and out among the buildings and war relics, the monuments and carefully graded walks. Seldom is the view more beautiful at West Point, and whether the party gazed across the river toward the aristocratic mansions, or up towards Crow's Nest, or along the romantic shores of the river, exclamations of delight were constantly to be heard from members of our party. Before leaving West Point we were favored by seeing the machine-like precision with which the various duties of the cadets were gone through with, and also spent half an hour in the riding school. But all things must have an end, and so had our visit to West Point. "No stop between this station and New York," shouted our conductor, and off we sped, a tired but gratified company.

Tuesday evening was spent in inspecting the Eden Musee, with its historical and realistic groups of wax-work figures.

The next day it was decided that our party should separate, some going down town with Mr. CLEWELL, others visiting the stores uptown with Miss CHITTY. The events of the morning were not unlike those that usually come with a visit to the crowded streets of a great city. ORA and MAMIE were penned up in the middle of the street at one time by struggling, rushing teams, but a huge policeman was by their side in a moment, and the danger past. Schwartz's famous toy bazar claimed a good share of interest and admiration, but the climax was reached when at Tiffany's the famous $100,000 diamond was displayed to the delighted gaze of the tourists, and a $70,000 necklace was passed from hand to hand for inspection. "Would you like to take it home as a souvenir?" asked the salesman who was kindly showing us the attentions. "No," quickly responded the school-girls, "not unless you have one for each, as we would not like to make any distinctions in our party!" After dinner, once more united, we visited St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue, greatly admiring the beautiful architecture of the exterior and the stately grandeur of the interior. An equal interest gathered around the walk up the Avenue, by the palatial residences of the Vanderbilts, past Dr. John Hall's $1,100,000 church, and to Central Park. The evening being already far advanced we could only stop a moment beside the lake, and spend but a brief time in the Zoological department, and then hasten on to the Obelisk. Here Mr. CLEWELL began to expand on the wonderful interest attaching itself to the great Egyptian wonder; he spoke of the remarkable feat of transporting it to our country; of the age of the shaft; his interest and enthusiasm waxed stronger and stronger, when, lo! O tempora! O mores! he chanced to look toward his supposed audience and discovered that every single one was gazing intently at the unbroken line of fashionable equipages passing and repassing along the famous Central Park drive. Egypt and its wonderful memories had been routed, defeated, utterly vanquished by the ribbons and silks, the fine horses and frizzled lap dogs of Fifth Avenue! All was quiet for a moment, when one solemnly exclaimed: "Is somebody dead? this looks like a funeral procession!" As we slowly retired from the Park, and Cleopatra's needle was outlined against the evening sky, one of the party seeing Mr. CLEWELL's downcast look, came to him and said: "You need not take the matter so greatly to heart; that terrible obelisk affair does not indicate a lack of interest in Egypt: it only goes to show that a girl takes in the length and breadth of a matter so much more quickly than does the other sex."

Jefferson and Florence claimed the attention of our party at night, and later he welcome rest which every one knew how to appreciate and enjoy.

Our last day in New York was what may be best described as a ramble down town. Mr. C. W. Price, of the B. & O. R'y, kindly piloted us over this portion of the journey. We first went to the North River and examined the large ocean steamer Etruria. It was on this vessel, if we are not mistaken, that ADDIE and MARY FRIES sailed some weeks since as they and their parents entered upon their European tour. A sister of one of our number crossed the Atlantic on the same vessel, so that we felt a special interest in the same. A little farther one we inspected the same steamer which took Miss SIEWERS from New York to Boston.

Almost an adventure was experienced a few moments later when we were on the platform of the elevated road. Half the party had entered the car when the gates were suddenly shut and left Mr. Price and Mr. CLEWELL with 6 of the girls, and the other half of the party, including Miss CHITTY, were whirled down Sixth Avenue. With commendable forethought they stepped off at the next station and when the following train reached this point we were again united and continued our journey. But space forbids a detailed account of our visit to the Stock Exchange, the Equitable Building, the great Brooklyn Bridge. Time and care were given to each, and then we sought once more the Grand Central Hotel for dinner.

It was just about the change from late afternoon to twilight that the ferryboat bore us across North River. The soft evening light touched the restless waters with a golden tint, and the Statue of Liberty, one of the first objects to welcome us, now lighted her torch to bid us farewell. The sunset gun was heard sounding out over the waste of waters, and the shadows began to hover over the great city as we settled down into one of the elegant cars of the B. & O. Royal Blue Line, and many a sigh of regret was uttered as the party realized that this first stage of the tour was at an end.

Fearing that our letter may grow to too great a length, we will now say good-bye to the patient reader, and in the next issue of THE ACADEMY rapidly sketch our experiences during the remainder of the trip.

Contributed.

From the Music Department.

—In a late number of the Musical Courier is a lengthy article on "Vocal Methods," in which is to be found the following remark: "Each science has, through experience, been developed from decade to decade, and so also Vocal Art. The highest development of the latter up to our days is the method of Manuel Garcia, Sr., who in the third decade of this century began his activity as a teacher in Paris, and whose method has remained the standard one up to this time. . . . His daughter, Viardot-Garcia, who is still living and teaching, is the best representative of this famous method." Miss EVANS, our Vocal professor, is one of the very few authorized teachers of this method in the United States.

—Mnsicale No. 3, of which the following is the programme, was given entirely by the pupils who commenced singing this year :

- 1 The Autumn Story..... L. Kellie.
Miss A. HARRIS.
- 2 I Heard a Wee Bird Singing..... Linley.
Miss BREITENBUCHER.
- 3 The Same Old Story..... Theo. Bonheur.
Miss BROADFOOT.
- 4 Cradle Song..... H. A. Norris.
Miss O. FAIN.
- 5 Apple Blossoms..... E. Sloman.
Miss C. HEWSON.
- 6 He was a Prince ..... Lynes.
Miss MAYETTA WILKINSON.
- 7 All in a Garden Fair ..... Watson.
Miss MARY WATSON.
- 8 Out on the Deep ..... Loehr.
Miss CORNELIA MASTEN.
- 9 Morning and Evening Star..... Aide.
Miss M. BOBBINS.
- 10 Love's Old Sweet Song..... Malloy.
Miss L. YANCEY.

No. 4 was given by the more advanced pupils :

- 1 It Came with the Merry May..... Tosti.
Miss BESSIE THOMAS.
- 2 Wake Not But Hear Me, Love..... Osgood.
Miss DUFOR.
- 3 Were We Lovers Then ..... H. Temple.
Miss HODNETT.
- 4 Swiss Song..... Eckert.
Miss SETTLE.
- 5 Summer Night Dream..... Cowen.
Miss M. MILLER.
- 6 Afterwards..... J. W. Mullen.
Miss McMULLEN.
- 7 Love's Springtide..... Arlot-Padilla.
Miss A. JONES.

- 8 Angel's Serenade..... Braga.
Miss GOSLEN.
- 9 Sunrise..... Wekerlin.
Miss A. REID.
- 10 Ever True..... Trotter.
Miss BLANCHE THOMAS.
- 11 Margarita..... F. Loehr.
Miss SCHAFFNER.
- 12 Voices of the Wood..... Rubinstein.
Miss W. GAMBILL.

—Miss EVANS is expecting a large addition to her class after the holidays, as the number who have asked her to "save a place" for them is already large.

—The Vocal Department has been in a state of more than usual activity this term, as the number of Musicales given by the pupils will testify. The last appearance of the young ladies before Christmas will be on Thursday evening, 18th inst., when Miss EVANS and some of her pupils will present the operetta, "A Dress Rehearsal," by Louis Diehl. Next term the Musicales will partake more of the nature of illustrated talks, when the teacher, after giving a short sketch of the life and works of some noted composer, will call upon her pupils for illustrations. The list of subjects at present decided upon will consist of Wagner, Schumann, Franz, Chopin, and Liszt.

—We hear with pleasure that it is probable that NELLIE CRAMER will return after Christmas to continue her vocal studies.

—There are numerous requests for another Loreley Club concert.

—Of all the special departments of the Institution Music seems to cover a wider range, and that perhaps in itself makes it all the more difficult to give an idea of what is being carried on. While in one practicing room a poor victim is struggling with might and main (especially the latter if we happen to know the meaning of the French word that is spelled like it) to conquer the 5-finger exercise; you can hear in the adjoining room the heart-rending strains of one of Liszt's Rhapsodies, and maybe in the next room a vocalist is pouring out her soul almost too forcibly,—but, pardon us, that does not belong to our sphere. A good many young ladies are so very "Nocturnal" that their presence is known but occasionally to their respective instructors, while others' serenades are heard as much in day time as in the Nyx generally allotted to music of that sort. Some have undertaken "Martha," and I am afraid that Orpheus' complaint in it of having lost his Eurydice will be changed into a woful cry for Orpheus, who has decidedly vanished. But while the deities are with us (when not without) we must render justice to the faithful and show our appreciation for the good will exhibited by some and the decided progress marked in others.

—Reading at first sight is quite a craze among a number of scholars, and as school girls have to follow a fashion, we are glad to notice that many have given up using their ears instead of their minds, and this motto would apply in this case as in many others: Pensare, sed non audire!

From the Language Department.

—Victor Hugo's thrilling drama, Hernani, is proving most interesting class-work among some of our advanced pupils; one young lady in particular we notice pays closest attention to all the tender passages, which she appears to be memorizing for future use.

—Athalie, Racine's greatest tragedy, is keeping the Senior's busy, and even seems to vie with Virgil in the intricacy of its passages. That the class is enjoying it cannot be vouched for, but we feel perfectly safe in saying that they consider it "awfully hard."

—The courageous pupil who is busy with the Anabasis is regarded, we hear, as quite a prodigy among her companions.

—Those of us who have enjoyed Daudet's La Belle Nivernaise and his other charming romances, will regret to hear that reports from Paris announce that owing to ill health his writing days seem well nigh over.

Correspondence.

—Our first letter for the month is from Mrs. Fielder (MAUD CLEGG), of Sliver City, New Mexico:

I enclose herewith 50 cents to renew my subscription to THE ACADEMY, which has just expired. I received a pleasant message from my old friend, Mrs. Kate Hayley Emery, in the last number of THE ACADEMY, and, if I may, I will send her my love and good wishes through the paper.

GUSSIE SHANNON has just left me for her home in Denning, after a little two days' visit. She has a flourishing school and is very popular. [Since this letter was written GUSSIE SHANNON has entered the state of matrimony, as will be seen from another column.—Eds. ACADEMY.]

I was in Galveston some time ago, and would have enjoyed seeing LAURA and CORA FOWLER, but I did not know at all where to inquire for them. DELLA DANCY too has gone to join "the innumerable host." I can close my eyes and see her perfectly in imagination as she looked when a bright little girl at Salem. What a lively, dancing sprite she was, and so devoted to "Sister," as she called CAMMIE. Poor CAMMIE! she has my tenderest sympathy.

Do you remember the dances we used to have in the music room, back of the Library? The old Academy is so changed I suppose I would scarcely recognize my old haunts. I feel, too, that it would make me very sad to walk alone through the halls and verandas, and the old first and second rooms, and remember the many now numbered among the dead who then were light-hearted and gay, to think of the sorrows which have darkened many a young life, which was then so hopeful, so bright. But these sad thoughts apply only to one side of the picture: on the other, I see, in imagination, the lofty leadings of duty, the noble joys of wifehood and motherhood, as I follow the course of others of my old school-fellows.

I never see any old Salem girls except GUSSIE. We both send love to you and all old friends.

Your affectionate pupil,

MAUD CLEGG FIELDER.

Silver City, N. M.

—Our next is from an old friend whose maiden name we failed to get. She is an aunt of Miss Minnie Smith, Glen Springs, S. C., one of our bright companions of last year's European tour:

It has been many a year since I went to Salem, and I have lost recollection of many events of those times. I entered the ACADEMY in June, 1829,—was there in 1829, '30 and '31. I have an old Album in which some of my old teachers wrote. Among them are LOUISA CHARLOTTE KRAMSCH, A. E. CRIST, S. D. BYHAN, LIZETTA C. MEINUNG, SOPHIA D. RUEDE, LYDIA STAUBER, etc. Rev. Mr. REICHEL was the Principal: he was a widower, but married during my stay in Salem. Miss BAGGE was my music teacher: her father, an old gentleman whom the girls called DADDY BAGGE, always came to attend us when our relatives called to see us, would go to the hotel with us, and would see us back to the ACADEMY. I must not forget MAMMY CHRISTMAN who gave me many a slice of bread and butter, and Miss ROSE who waited on me so kindly in the sick-room. All were kind to me and I left there with regret. When I see you I can give you more particulars.

Your affectionate aunt,

CATHARINE.

Charlotte, N. C.

—LULA MCENTIRE, now Mrs. Leslie Clark, of Dallas, Texas, recently also gave us a very welcome epistle:

I often wonder what it is about Salem, my friends and my life there that has such a peculiar effect upon me. I am just recovering from a very severe illness, but I cannot resist the temptation of taking a little of your time, though I know you are busy.

For ten days I could move neither hands nor feet, but since that time I am slowly recovering strength. During these days I have thought so much of my school days and longed to be quite well, that once again I might see you and go through the ACADEMY. Leslie says when I am well he will take me. I know little or nothing about my classmates. My health was so bad I had to give up all correspondence. MOLLIE TUCKER wrote occasionally until she married, but since then I have heard nothing. I received a card announcing ANNIE STOKES' marriage.

LAURA GASTON is my very near neighbor; she is not married. Mrs. Luther Clark (LUCY SIMS) lives in Dallas now. We have exchanged calls, but unfortunately have not met. Hon. Nash Gibbs (LULA's father) was here during the Fair this fall, and called to see us several times. He never tires of talking of LULA, how happily she is married, her children, her home, &c.

My friend, NINA FLOURNOY, visited me last year. She is very handsome and attractive. Write to me when you can spare the time. I lie and think all day, and a letter from you would be highly appreciated.

Affectionately,

LULA MCENTIRE CLARK.

**Dallas, Texas.*

—We certainly appreciate the warm and earnest words of commendation written by a former pupil, Mrs. A. Rutherford (AMANDA CARDWELL), of Houston, Tex., to a friend who inquired of her concerning a school for his daughter. She says:

Your letter has but reached me this moment. We returned last night from a 3 weeks' trip to Mexico. I will unhesitatingly say to you that SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C., is beyond all odds the institution I would select to send a child, young or grown up. Besides embracing the most thorough educational advantages, Music and Art in their highest forms are taught; also, if one desires, the industrial branches are in reach of any one, while above all the Faculty and many teachers are of the pure old Moravian stock, whose devout christianity and earnest work have held this institution at the head of all Southern schools for nearly a century.

Respectfully,
Mrs. RUTHERFORD.

Personal Items.

—Mr. J. G. Rawlings, of Chattanooga, Tenn., was in Winston-Salem for a few days and made the ACADEMY several visits. His coming was a surprise to ALICE.

—MARY MILLER's brother came over from Trinity College on the 27th ult.

—LUCY THORPE's uncle was in town in November and gave us a pleasant call.

—Mr. S. A. Cunningham, of the Nashville American, called some days since and seemed much pleased with his visit to church and school.

—Miss GERTRUDE JENKINS, of Salem, went to Concord this morning to report the proceedings of the Western North Carolina Conference for the Concord Standard. Bro. Cook should be congratulated upon securing such valuable aid during this first session of the Conference. Her services wherever rendered are highly spoken of.—Daily.

—Miss CONNIE PFOHL spent Thanksgiving with friends in Madison, N. C.

—Miss EVANS ran down to Thomasville, N. C., and tried the Thanksgiving turkey with friends there.

—Mr. J. A. Cheek, of Hillsboro, N. C., paid us a very pleasant visit end of November. MAUD was of course very happy.

—Mrs. Richardson, of Reidsville, N. C., dropped in to see her friends some days since.

—Mrs. Stillwell (ANNA HARALSON) furnishes the following items concerning old pupils:

MATTIE BLEVINS, of Selma, who married Mr. Pitts, of Uniontown, Ala., soon after leaving Salem (1868) died two years ago of consumption. She left three or four children.

LIZZIE WHITT, who married Mr. Brown, from near Livingstone, died about three years ago. She left two or three children. One daughter is grown.

BESSIE WARE is Mrs. McGoodwin. She lives in Danville, Ky., and has a lovely grown daughter. She herself is as lovely in manners and looks as ever.

—JULIA WALKER, 1884-'85, is Mrs. O'Connell, of Charlotte, N. C. She lived in Baltimore after her marriage until last September, when she returned to Charlotte. She has two children, one little girl less than two years old and a baby.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Thanksgiving night was spent in a somewhat unique manner by about 100 of the pupils. They gathered in the Laboratory of Park Hall and spent an hour and a half in listening to one of Dickens' Christmas stories, viz: Marley's Ghost. Mr. CLEWELL had purchased a set of stereopticon views, and the large new lantern was used for the first time. The reading was prefaced by a few remarks, in which Mr. CLEWELL stated that every two weeks he hoped to meet with as many of the pupils as desired to spend an hour socially in the comfortable Laboratory. The opening view was then thrown upon the white background, viz: "The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers." A few words on Thanksgiving, the festival given to us by the Pilgrim Fathers, and then the programme proper began. The portion of the story read was the interview between Scrooge and Marley's Ghost, and the visit of the first spirit, "Christmas Past." The reading was done by the use of the "dark lantern," a very ingeniously devised lantern to furnish an abundance of light for the reader, but little in the room. The list of illustrations was as follows:

1. Scrooge's Office.
2. Scrooge's Door.
3. Marley's Face on the Knocker.
4. Scrooge's Room.
5. Scrooge's visit from Marley's Ghost.
6. Scrooge's Bedroom.
7. Visit of the Spirit of Christmas Past.
8. The School-room.
9. Ala Baba. (Effect.)
10. Robinson Crusoe. (Effect.)
11. Fizziwy's Ball.

12. Scrooge's First Love.

13. The Later Home of Scrooge's First Love.

These views were neatly and carefully thrown on the white space as the reading proceeded, one remaining until time for the second to follow. MATTIE WOODSELL kindly attended to this somewhat difficult part of the programme, she and SADIE SITTIG having volunteered to be Mr. CLEWELL's assistants. At the close of the reading a bright view of a Christmas tree was displayed, and the light turned up amid the hearty applause of the young ladies.

—Saturday evening, Dec. 13, the second illustrated reading took place. 109 tickets were placed in the Senior Room for distribution, and were soon taken. The Laboratory was warm and comfortable, and the raised tiers of seats filled by 6:30 o'clock. Mr. CLEWELL gave a brief sketch of Stave One and Stave Two of "Marley's Ghost," and at the same time the company glanced rapidly at the stereopticon views used on the occasion of the previous reading, and then proceeded to Stave Three, or the appearance of the Spirit of Christmas Present. The views were:

1. The Spirit of Christmas Present.
2. Bob Cratchett's Home.
3. The Miner's Christmas.
4. The Nephews' Christmas Party.
5. Scrooge's Bedroom.
6. The Ghost of Christmas Future.

"The Water Babies" was the title of the introductory view, and the evening was closed with the attractive colored slide entitled "The Disgrace to the Family." Misses WOODSELL and SITTIG again aided in the management of the lantern and slides. These evenings are apparently greatly enjoyed by the pupils, and our new stereopticon will not only be a means of instruction, but will add much pleasure to the winter.

—Teacher—"Why were the wars between the Romans and the Carthaginians called Punic wars?" Scholar—"From where they lived." Teacher—"Well, where?" Scholar—"In Punic."

—The girls of the North Senior Room are busily engaged in making Christmas presents; pigs of all kinds—big pigs, little pigs, poor pigs and fat pigs, slippers and other dainty presents may be seen everywhere.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., DECEMBER, 1890.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—Recitations are suspended from Dec. 23, 2 o'clock, p. m., till Friday, January 2, 9:45 a. m.

—We have received a number of contributions to the Alumnæ Endowment, and will acknowledge the same next month.

—We were favored last month by quite a number of interesting dots concerning the room companies. We trust that this form of support may continue.

—Pupils who intend registering for January in the ACADEMY are requested to send their names to the Principal at once, since the number that can be accommodated will necessarily be limited.

—With the opening of Park Hall the slightly crowded condition of the school will be entirely removed. The class which has used the rear room of the church will be changed from this building, and as winter and closed rooms become the order of the day the return to normal numbers will be complete. In fact we will be able to receive a few additional pupils at Christmas, if such apply, though we will be pleased to have intending patrons notify us in advance in case they place their daughters with us.

—In answer to our recent editorial asking for the names of those who desire to find employment we have received several letters, and can now place those desiring to employ young ladies as teachers or in any office capacity, into communication with competent, faithful applicants. Write us if you need help, and we will give you a candid opinion as to the qualifications of the persons we recommend. No charge will be made in any case, either of the employer or employed, our object being to aid those who have been trained in our Institution to become of use to themselves and the world when they have decided to assume the responsibilities of active work.

—The happy, holy Christmas time is now near at hand, and whether in school or with relatives we trust that our faculty and pupils may enjoy a most blessed season. The ACADEMY, as usual, will be filled with fragrant evergreen, and happy faces and loads and loads of express packages will glut the box room. No one can imagine the joy of Christmas at the ACADEMY save those who have spent this season in the school, and we believe this Christmas will be no exception to the general rule. Therefore, THE ACADEMY extends its most hearty Christmas good wishes to pupils, teachers, alumnæ, patrons and friends, and trusts that the New Year may bring many, many blessings to each and every one.

The Dress Rehearsal.

On Thursday, Dec. 18, "The Dress Rehearsal" was given in Gymnasium Hall before a large number of gathered friends. This interesting and enjoyable evening was given to the school and to the public by some of the members of Miss EVANS' Vocal Class. Miss EVANS personally drilled the participants, and with her well known energy made of it a success, as she does with all her work. The peculiar power of the entire entertainment was the exact manner in which each pupil had been selected to suit the part assigned to her. Of course we do not mean to imply that Miss A. REID is most happy when eating; nor that Miss WARNER cares for nothing save novels; nor that Miss JONES and Miss DUFOUR excel in quarrelling; nor that Miss LACIAR is an unsophisticated Lady Principal; nor that Miss THOMAS is a foreigner; nor Miss CHAFFIN a person of shallow judgment; nor Miss FIELDS a broken down actress; nor Miss SETTLE a model "stove blacker"; nor Miss MILLER the "witch with enchantments"; nor Miss GAMBILL masculine in tendency; nor the Misses ROBBINS, BROADFOOT, MCMULLEN and WATSON any thing save genuine college girls. Oh, no! We mean no personal reflection. But what we do mean is that Miss EVANS deserves great credit for her keen insight into the natures of her pupils, since each one performed her part without any apparent effort. The accompanist, Miss AMY VAN VLECK, should also have a meed of praise, since a good accompaniment is no small part of a successful evening. THE ACADEMY congratulates Miss EVANS and her associates on the triumphant production of the operetta.

Below we give the programme in full:

A DRESS RÉHEARSAL.

BY LOUIS DIEHL.

MISS KATHARINE W. EVANS, Director.
MISS A. VAN VLECK, Accompanist.

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ.

Miss Jones, Principal of Grove House Academy, .....Miss LACIAR.
Mlle. Epinard, French Governess,
Miss B. THOMAS.
Amy Fibbs, afterward Cinderella, Miss SETTLE.
Clara Wilkins, afterwards the Prince,
Miss BLOOMFIELD GAMBILL.
Sarah Ann, the Greedy Girl, Miss ANNIE REID.
Sophonisba Spivins, the Romantic Girl,
Miss GREY WARNER.
Martha Higgins, .....Miss A. JONES.
Carry Jackson, .....Miss M. DUFOUR.
Afterwards Spiteful Sisters.
Mrs. Jarvey, Elocution Mistress, Miss L. FIELDS.
Miss Prudence Pinchbeck, A Visitor,
Miss L. CHAFFIN.
Rosa Jennings, afterwards Fairy Godmother,
Miss M. MILLER.
Servant.....Miss M. ROBBINS.
Humpel.....Miss M. WATSON.

SCENE—Grove House Academy.

INDEX.

Introduction.

We're sitting and knitting.....Solo and Chorus.
Your parents are invited.....Solo and Chorus.
'Tis just now forty years.....Song.
Oh, how jolly!.....Chorus and Recitative.
Melos.
As time rolls along.....Song.
Oh, you shall be belle of the Ball.....Duet.
Ah, vat is love?.....Song.

Finale.

ARGUMENT.

The story of this little musical play is simple, but includes a great deal of fun and frolic of the kind that will be appreciated by the girls.

In the first scene we are introduced to the school-room of Grove House Academy, of which Miss JONES is the lady Principal, and Mlle EPINARD is the French teacher. It is proposed to wind up the term by a grand party and supper, an additional entertainment being a charade, which, in the hands of the merry girls, becomes a burlesque imitation of "Cinderella." Mrs. JARVEY, a retired actress, and now a teacher of elocution, is called in to train the pupils in their parts. She at first demurs, as the present play is some miles below "Shakespeare," but finally consents, and enters into the matter quite heartily.

Miss FIBBS now enters, to begin the rehearsal. She is arrayed as Cinderella, and is reciting very well, when she is interrupted by a visitor, Miss PRUDENCE PINCHBECK, who takes the strange object for a real "poor pupil," who is being starved and otherwise ill-treated by the Principal Under this impression she hurries away to obtain assistance, perhaps from the police.

In the meantime the play progresses, with many absurd interruptions by SARAH ANN, who is always eating; by SOPHONISBY SPIVINS, who is greatly excited over a novel she is reading, and by Miss JONES and the French lady, who do not quite understand what it is all about. Finally Miss PRUDENCE PINCKBECK returns, intending to arrest the Principal, and free poor, starved Cinderella. The whole thing is then explained, and the DRESS REHEARSAL is considered a success.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Reduced rates have been furnished by the Richmond & Danville Railroad for Christmas travelers, and also on the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroad.

—The Methodist Protestant Conference has been in session in Winston during the present month. Several of the ministers preached in the Moravian church.

—The Principal's house has been neatly repainted, and presents a very attractive appearance. The parlor has been refurnished and various improvements added.

—Quite a number of girls will spend Christmas with parents at their homes, but the school family will still be very large. Christmas at the ACADEMY is always an exceedingly happy occasion.

—Mrs. Hobbs, of Guilford College, delivered a very interesting lecture on Dress Reform and kindred topics to the pupils of the ACADEMY on December 2, at 1 o'clock. Those who were so favored as to be present pronounce the address a most interesting one.

—The covered walk from the dining-room, past the ten-pin alley, through the green-house, by Annex Hall to Park Hall, is about 400 feet in length, and with the electric lights dotted here and there, with the brightly illuminated study-parlors all about you, forms a pleasant promenade.

—The Calisthenic Drill has been regularly commenced, and occupies about 20 minutes each day, immediately after the first morning hour. The class consists of more than 200 members, and the precision with which they respond to the orders is quite gratifying. Miss CONNIE PFOHL acts as leader and Mr. CLEWELL conducts the drill.

—The work of the new Chemistry Class, 100 in number, has begun in earnest. Mr. CLEWELL conducts the lectures, and he has two sets of assistants, AGNES BROWNSON, EMMA HALE and CARRIE TAYLOR being the first, and SUE HEARD, ANNIE REED and LILIAN THOMPSON the second. The interest of the pupils is marked, and the new Laboratory promises to be a favorite "work-shop."

—The new watchman's watch has been formally placed "on duty," and by means of this device the watchman records each visit to 12 stations throughout the buildings. It is a most complete piece of mechanism, and even though we have had confidence in our watchmen of the past, and so too at present, yet when the wind is high these winter nights it gives one a feeling of comfort to hear his footsteps regularly in the halls.

—Old Annex will now become quite a center for music. For some time Miss VEST and Miss VAN VLECK have taught in this building, and recently Miss LACIAR has taken possession of one of the rooms for vocal instruction. Now that Preparatory A and B have moved from this building Miss DUFOUR will take the north room front floor, and the two south rooms will be used to store the physical apparatus, and also be used to begin a collection of Natural Science specimens.

—The Thanksgiving decoration in the Moravian church was very fine. Fruits, flowers, vegetables, grain, cotton, etc., were grouped artistically around the pulpit, and festoons and bouquets were displayed in other parts of the church. A fine sermon was preached by Dr. RONDTHALER in the morning, and service conducted by the pastor was held at night. The church was crowded on both occasions. The collection was for the benefit of the Twin City Hospital, and amounted to $113.

—During the five recitation hours, from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m., the Study-parlors are deserted. Those who are not in regular class-room work, nor in some one of the special schools, nor in a practice-room, meet in the Library, and are under the supervision of some instructor assigned to the duty of looking over their work. This complete organization of every individual within the school will save many an hour and add much to the desirable results of the year.

—Rev. H. V. Rominger recently paid Mr. CLEWELL a visit and while here delivered a lecture in the Home chapel on "Alaska." The lecture was unusually interesting and instructive. As the subject is one on which there is not a great amount of general information we will next month present the lecture, or at least a portion of it, to our readers. Mr. Rominger is at present living in Portland, Oregon, and is completing a tour around the world. He and his bride expect to reach their distant home before Christmas.

—Owing to the opening of Park Hall a number of changes have taken place in the class-rooms. The present plan is as follows:

Seniors in Park Hall, South Room.

Senior Middle A, no change.

Senior " B, "

Junior " A, Park Hall, Mid. Room.

Junior " B, South Hall, front.

Junior, former Senior Room.

Preparatory A, opposite Library.

Preparatory B, Annex Hall.

Preparatory C, South Hall, 2d story.

—A very busy day was Saturday, Dec.

13. At nine in the morning a company of 8 stalwart colored men formed a procession between Main and South Halls and the new building, Park Hall. They were transferring the beds, bedding, trunks, etc., of the Park Hall girls to their new home. The following is a list of those who took possession of the new building: LENA CHAFFIN, LENNIE PRICE, MARGUERITE DUFOUR, LIZZIE CHAFFIN, FLORENCE SETTLE, ANNA and MARY NEELEY, JULIA WHITE, ALICE RAWLINGS, NETTIE DUNLAP, EMMA KAPP, ADDIE LINEBACK, CLEO HEARD. Miss FOGLE has the supervision of the new form or room company. The west portion they have named the Sitting-room, and the east the study-room. We hope soon to have a letter for THE ACADEMY from one of the inmates of Park Hall.

—Thursday morning the Senior Class repaired to the Laboratory at Dr. RONDTHALER's invitation, and enjoyed a lecture on Rome instead of engaging in their usual Latin recitation. The lecture was illustrated by a number of views. This was the first time the Laboratory had been used for stereopticon views by daylight. But the room is so arranged that in a moment it can be deprived of almost every ray of light. The list of views displayed was:

1. The Forum restored.
2. The Ruins of the Forum.
3. The Arch of Titus.
4. Arch of Constantine.
5. Pyramid of Cestus Gallus.
6. Tomb of Wife of Crassus.
7. The Coliseum.

8. Gladiators.

9. Night in the Coliseum. Colored view.

The last named represented the bodies of the martyrs, slain by wild beasts, after one of the cruel day's sport during the persecution of the Christians in early days. The wild beasts prowl about among the victims, the seats of the vast amphitheater are deserted, but the angels are descending to receive the spirits of the martyrs.

From the 9th Room.

—A Junior Middle to a Special: "I wonder if these deers ever drink any water?"

—A bright young lady to a companion: "When was the world invented?"

—The word centipede occurring in the lesson, Lizzie said to Annie: "What is a centipede any way,—a turnip?"

—Where have our long walks gone to? Perhaps some think, as Dr. RONDTHALER once felt inclined to think, they have gone off the earth. We will be glad when they are continued and hope they will be after Christmas.

—"Illuminate one of the unknown quantities," said an Algebra scholar to her companion some days ago. We hope the proper light was obtained.

—The 4th Room girls are anxious to know why their School fields Foster so many Cunning hams.

DOTS FROM '90.

On the occasion of a recent visit of the Principal to the Senior Class, it was suggested that a few moments be given to each pupil to dot down a few lines on some subject to be selected by the pupil. The following are some of the items furnished:

The Seniors' Way of Celebrating Birthdays.

FORMERLY it has been the custom in the different room companies to remember the birthdays of their friends by collecting the various gifts of each one and arranging them prettily on a table, which is generally placed where her eyes will rest on it the moment she opens the door. We have had several very pretty tables in our room this year, but for the last one of our friends who turned another leaf of her life's volume we decided to stray from the usual custom and introduce another plan.

On the morning of ———, G—— came in with her face wreathed in smiles, per- haps of expectation, and probably she experienced a pang of disappointment that her friends had seemingly forgotten her, for there was no prettily decorated table to meet her eyes, but if there was such it was quickly dispelled by the many kind wishes that greeted her.

The day passed very pleasantly, and in the afternoon she noticed that there seemed to be an air of mystery brooding, for she saw girls gathered together in groups and whispering; this was increased at supper when she saw our appetites seemed so delicate, which generally were exactly the opposite; still she had no idea what it was.

About 6:30 she was ushered into the dining-room where was spread a sumptuous banquet, consisting of pickles, meats, candies, fruits, etc. Seeing this she stood in blank astonishment, wondering if the fairies had really paid us a visit; the mystery was soon explained by one of our number, who gracefully told her that this was a birthday gift. After which we sat down to enjoy it thoroughly and soon the walls echoed with our merriment. About 7:30 we once more returned to our rooms prepared to study with double energy the rest of our study hour, as we had lost part of it in frolicking. We have all agreed that this is the most enjoyable manner of celebrating birthdays, so that all may enjoy it, and doubtless we will continue the plan as others come.

Lovers.

MORAL Philosophy says that "Love needs no definition and admits of none." So it is with lovers. Every one understands what the term generally means, but not every one can imagine what it signifies in a Female Academy.

It is an old institution, probably beginning with the founding of the school and is therefore nearly a century old. Of course, no member of the other sex could ever be thought of as a lover by a boarding-school girl. Such a thing would be unimaginable. But the word is used here in the ACADEMY for the same thing as "love-bests, sweethearts, etc." elsewhere.

Although the different loves are of different kinds and degrees, they usually begin in the same way. First, a few compliments are sent to the beloved which are delivered to her by a companion who happened to overhear the remarks, in the form of "trades," then smiles are exchanged, flowers given, engagements to walk made, poetry sometimes written in praise of the sweetheart; and then they become lovers.

Now the course of true love runs smooth with the exception of a few troubles with teachers, who object to girls slipping notes in study hour, or neglecting practicing to walk with each other at night. Usually at the end of three days or possibly three weeks the lovers quarrel. Each goes her way and the affair is at an end.

A Description of the South Senior Room.

THE South Senior Room is on the second floor of the main building opposite the 3rd Room, and adjoining the North Senior Room. It is easily distinguished from the other rooms, as on the door is a small silver plate bearing the name, "South Senior."

The room is of ordinary size, with four windows opening toward the East, and two doors; one is the entrance from the hall, the other opens into the side-room. It is neatly furnished, is carpeted and provided with study tables, above which hang the gas jets from the ceiling. Chairs are arranged at the different tables. In one corner is a comfortable lounge; the room is also furnished with three easy chairs. Standing near the side-room door, in the corner, is a stove. Pictures hang on the wall and also a large red and white calendar; this is quite an important feature in the room. Last but not least is a handsome mirror hanging opposite the entrance from the hall.

Altogether the room has a very neat and comfortable appearance. The other rooms of the building are similar in their arrangement.

Friday Evening.

WHEN the recitations of the week are finished, we feel that a considerable burden has been lifted from us, and that we are free to spend the evening in social enjoyment.

The two literary societies of the institution hold their meetings, which usually last about an hour.

On this evening the girls are allowed to visit in the different room companies from seven till nine o'clock, when they engage in games and enjoy quiet conversation with friends.

Some, however, who are not socially inclined, spend the time reading, writing, practicing, or doing fancy work. Since the completion of Gymnasium Hall we have ample room for dancing, skating and other amusement, though sometimes companies are found enjoying a pleasant candy stew in a practicing room, but then the fun ends abruptly.

We are required to retire at the usual time, half past nine, and we all go to bed wishing we could prolong the evening several hours.

Park Hall.

[The following kind words were used by Penstick in a description of Park Hall which appeared in a recent issue of the People's Press :

"The intending patrons of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY need have no fear that their law of demand will suffer any check from the failure of the law of supply of this Institution. Mr. Cleveland's "It is a condition and not a theory which confronts us" aptly illustrates the position of the ACADEMY's Principal. And further than this, each grapple with an increased demand leaves the next strongly entrenched. The action of the Spring Council of the Home church in giving the ACADEMY a very long lease, with the privilege of buying, the magnificent lots east of the Pleasure Grounds, was brought about principally by the wise forethought and energy of Principal CLEWELL.

"Practical attention had previously been paid to the Parsonage and lot connected therewith. This was purchased by the School and Professor WURRESCHKE having moved to his handsome residence on Park Avenue, shortly after Commencement the work of reconstruction began.

[Here follows a detailed description of the building.]

"You can form no real opinion of the beauty of Park Hall's situation, of the exactness with which the details for comfort, work and health have been carried out, until you see this latest addition to the ACADEMY's handsome buildings. Therefore, take the time and view it. Mr. CLEWELL, or his efficient Secretary, Mr. PFOHL, will, no doubt, take great pleasure in showing you through the building.

An open space, 80x200 feet, between the Home Chapel and Dr. RONDHALER's residence and Church Street and Park Hall leaves a most eligible site for a future building to meet other needs of the school. "[Next—A Music Hall, of grand and noble proportions. Already needed, the demand must soon supply it.]

"With Park Hall, Main Hall, South Hall, Annex Hall and Old Annex, with its well graded curriculum, its capable and devoted faculty, SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY stands out clear and distinct as a COLLEGE of the first rank, with principles and character the same through 90 years of United States history."

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1 Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS ACADEMY.]

*I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some angels had deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

- 5056 SARAH H. RAND. — 1855.
Oscar P. Rand, Raleigh, N. C.
- 5057 SOPHIE M. TILLET. — 1858.
L. D. Starke, Norfolk, Va.
- 5058 ANNIE WEST ADAMS. — 1856.
Col. Hy. W. Adams, Castle Craig, Va.
- 5059 ALICE WOLLE. — 1854.
Augustus Wolle, Bethlehem, Pa.
- 5060 MARY C. SHAW. — 1854.
P. C. Shaw, Solemn Grove, N. C.
- 5061 ELIZA EMMA BROWN. — 1860.
Dan. W. Brown, Lancaster C. H., S. C.
- 5062 ANNIE LOUISE FOSTER. — 1858.
Capt. J. C. Foster, Lancaster C. H., S. C.
- 5063 ANNA JANE RICHARDSON. — 1858.
R. P. Richardson, Reidsville, N. C.
- 5064 MARY TECOAH LEA. — 1858.
Mrs. Margaret T. Lea,
Missouri H. Williford. — 1858.
Alexander Williford, Rock Hill, S. C.
- 5065 IDA E. DAVIS. — 1856.
Dr. J. S. Davis, LaGrange, N. C.
- 5066 MYRTLE A. WOOTEN. — 1858.
John Council Wooten, Kinston, N. C.
- 5068 LAURA A. CHAFFIN. — 1855.
ANN GERTRUDE CHAFFIN. — 1857.
Wm. A. Chaffin, Germantown, N. C.
- 5070 MAGGIE ANN MCALEY. — 1855.
D. C. McAuley, Mt. Gilead, N. C.
- 5071 ROSA B. BURNETTE. — 1860.
R. J. Burnette, Jackson, N. C.
- 5072 VIRGINIA ARABELLA WABMER. — 1857.
Agnes J. Warmir, Ruffin, N. C.
- 5073 MARY H. LOGAN. — 1857.
G. W. Logan, Rutherfordton, N. C.
- 5074 ELIZA JANE NEELY. — 1858.
J. M. Neely, Walkersville, N. C.
- 5075 NANNIE CUNNINGHAM. — 1856.
A. J. Kibbler, Lancaster, S. C.
- 5076 CORA HOLT. — 1859.
5077 DAISY HOLT. — 1860.
5078 ELLA HOLT. — 1862.
Col. Thos. M. Holt, Haw River, N. C.
- 5079 ANNE ELIZABETH MATTHEWS. — 1854.
S. H. Hodgkin, Winston, N. C.
- 5080 JULIA BALLINGER. — 1858.
Yancy Ballinger, Greensboro, N. C.
- 5081 TRANQUILLA YATES. — 1855.
Mary Yates, Morrisville, N. C.
- 5082 LAURA E. PUGH. — 1858.
Margaret J. Laughinghouse, Johnson's Mill, N. C.
- 5083 SALLIE C. ATWOOD. — 1855.
S. Atkin, Covington, Ala.
- 5084 EMILY S. HOLLINGSWORTH. — 1857.
Jno. W. Hollingsworth, Fayetteville, N. C.
- 5085 CARRIE S. WHITSETT. — 1856.
Thomas Whitsett, Gum Creek, Ga.
- 5086 ELMINA CALDWELL. — 1858.
Harriet Caldwell, Perry, Ga.
- 5087 KATE LARK. — 1858.
Judge Cullen Lark, Laurens, S. C.
- 5088 ANNE PORTER ROWLAND. — 1861.
Ida Rowland, Madison, Ga.
- 5089 FRANCES L. HOLLAND. — 1857.
Jno. W. Holland, Wayne County, N. C.
- 5090 SALLIE SUE HARRIS. — 1863.
Eugene W. Harris, Madison, Ga.
- 5091 LIZZIE SUE WEBB. — 1862.
S. M. Webb, Memphis, Tenn.
- 5092 LIZZIE KING. — 1857.
Hill King, Golden Place, N. C.
- 5093 MATTIE GILMER GRAYES. — 1859.
Col. R. Y. Graves, Milton, N. C.
- 5094 MOLLIE E. BROOKS. — 1850.
Jacob Felkin, Centerville, Fla.

- 5095 EMMA JANE HANES. — 1860.
Hon. Lewis Hanes, Salisbury, N. C.
- 5096 ANNIE E. STICKNEY. — 1859.
J. B. Stickney, Washington, D. C.
- 5097 SUE ELLA WILSON. — 1859.
M. M. Wilson, Newton, N. C.
- 5098 CARRIE R. TYE. — 1857.
5099 LOULA TYE. — 1859.
L. M. Tye, McDonough, Ga.
- 5100 SARAH A. BROADHURST. — 1856.
Henry Broadhurst, Mt. Olive, N. C.
- 5101 ELLA NANNIE KERNER. — 1857.
Dr. Elias Kerner, Kernersville, N. C.
- 5102 SUE BROWN. — 1859.
Wm. R. Brown, Fort Valley, Ga.
- 5103 NANNIE J. BROWN. — 1859.
Uncle Wm. R. Brown, Fort Valley, Ga.
- 5104 LOULA HOLT. — 1859.
Dr. F. R. Holt, Ft. Valley, Ga.
- 5105 LIZZIE O. SLAPPEY. — 1858.
R. H. Slapney, Andersonville, Ga.
- 5106 CORA ELIZABETH CONRAD. — 1859.
A. E. Conrad, Vienna, N. C.

Subscriptions Received.

Miss Annie L. Ogburn, Smith's X Roads, Va.; Mrs. D. W. Willard, New York; Miss Lillie Lash, Bethania, N. C.; Mrs. Amelia R. Woodward, Cincinnati, Ohio; Miss Mary Welfare, Miss H. Foltz, Salem, N. C.; Miss Mattie R. Campbell, Houston, Texas; Mrs. Julia A. Jones, Bethania, N. C.; Miss Mattie Bahnon, Farmington, N. C.; Mrs. C. W. Kellinger, — 1859. Mrs. J. A. Thom, China Grove, N. C.; Miss S. E. Shaffner, Salem, N. C.; Mrs. R. C. Williams, Mooresburg, Tenn.; Miss Delia E. Blackburn, Winston, N. C.; Misses Annie Green, Carrie Edwards, Carrie Taylor, Bessie Ponder, Agnes Brownson, Katie Sittig, Emma Hale, Mattie Woodell, Mary Watson, Sadie Moses, Eula Cox, Ora Thomson, Rosa Ellis, Dora Cox, Laura Whitner, Susie Gulick, Annie Makepeace, Virginia McMurray, Bloomfield Gambill, Mary Miller, Eloise McGill, Edna Lindsay, Lucy Waddill, Mattie Mason, Fay Mcullen, Agnes Coleman, Lizzie Fitzgerald, Maud Harris, Annie Reid, Willie Gambill, Lizzie Burgess, Annie Harris, Mary Stillwell, Clara David, Maud Robbins, Meta Patterson, Mattie Trout, Louise Breitenbacher, Lucy Abernathy, Eliza Gulick, Annie May Schofield, Fruz Crouse, Cleora Hewson, Effie Gilmer, Hattie Foster, Edith Ramsaur, Lizzie Patterson, Blanche Wood, Mattie Spencer, Lillian Crenshaw, Hattie Adams, Lola Kyser, Ava Stroup, Fannie Griffith, Alice Bryan, Mary Wood, Frank Creight, Cora Vogler, Narcie Taylor, Lillie Hodnett, Gray Warner, Almeida McGregor, Mary McKeown, Clyde Peacock, Willie Lutz, Carrie Olliger, Anna Adams, DeEtte Teague, Zana Flemming, Hessie Yancey, Lulie Yancey, Lucia Swanson, Lizzie Wooten, Kate McPherson, Blanche Morgan, Ethel Roberts, Julia White, Edith Wallace, Sue Booth, Etia Taylor, Eldred Mallory, Lizzie Shinkle, Mamie Odeneal, Robbie Kyle, Agnes Erwin, Johnnie Alexander, Roberta Carr, Mattie Epes, Edith Clark, Maggie Threadgill, Alpha Wooley, Emma Kapp, Lena Colwell, Virginia Foster, Essie Busick, Huberta Read, Laura Jones, Irma Cordill, Mary Martin, Mary Donegan, Evvie Thomas, Lucy Ball, Johnnie Powers, Helen Perkins, Alice Cordill, Addie Nimocks, Sallie Jarvis, Lucie Brown, Jessie Peterkin, Mary Lucky, Susie Wright, Daisy Schofield, Lizzie Burton, Mary Moore, Maud Cheek, from the ACADEMY.

Married.

KING — SHANNON. — On June 18, Dr. H. R. KING to Miss GUSSIE SHANNON, in Deming, New Mexico.

LEGRAND — BROWN. — In Mocksville, N. C., Nov. 18, Mr. LEGRAND, of Richmond Co., N. C., to Miss WILLIE BROWN.

FULTON — ILER. — In Shreveport, La., Nov. 19, Mr. VICTOR FULTON to Miss EMMA E. ILER.

CORNELIUS — HOLLAND. — On Nov. 18, at the home of the bride's father, by the Rev. Dr. Pool, Mr. WILLIAM H. CORNELIUS to Miss IDA F. HOLLAND, daughter of Dr. E. B. Holland, of Dallas, N. C.

L. V. & E. T. BLUM,
SALEM, N. C.,

BOOKSELLERS, STATIONERS,
PRINTERS.

PUBLISH "THE PEOPLES PRESS,"
FARMER'S AND PLANTER'S ALMANAC.

General Job Printing executed with neatness
and dispatch. Try us.

Printers of Salem Female Academy's publications.

Gloves! Gloves!! Gloves!!!

SCHOLAR'S MILLINERY ESTABLISHMENT
 announces that after this date they will always have on hand a first-class line of
Harris's Celebrated Kid Gloves
 FOR LADIES AND MISSES
 in all colors, sizes and prices. These gloves are of finest kid and excellent fit, and are guaranteed to give satisfaction.
 A NEW LOT OF HATS JUST RECEIVED, and our prices low as ever.
Special attention given to all orders from the Academy.

ALUMNÆ BADGES. — Mrs. Dr. H. T. Bahnson has been requested by the Alumnae Association to keep on hand a stock of the official badges of the Alumnae Society. She will be pleased to give any information relative to price.
 Address Mrs. H. T. BAHNSON, Salem, N. C.

A REVOLUTION.

In methods of teaching PHYSIOLOGY and GEOGRAPHY. More and better work done with the use of YAGGY'S STUDIES in one term than in three terms without them.

YAGGY'S GEOGRAPHICAL STUDY, comprising PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, GEOLOGICAL, and ASTRONOMICAL Geography.

YAGGY'S ANATOMICAL STUDY showing in a striking and original manner the structure and organs of the human body, full size, natural color; also a series of Object Lessons on the ruin of the body by intoxicants.

WHY FOLLOW THE OLD RUTS?
 Adopt the above POPULAR, ORIGINAL and FASCINATING APPLIANCES and teach by the OBJECT METHOD
Circulars sent on application.

WESTERN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
 No. 3 East 14th Street,
 April 1890-1y. New York City.

WORCESTER'S DICTIONARY

"The highest authority known as to the use of the English language."

With or without Deacon's Patent Index.
The Standard of the Leading Publishers, Magazines, and Newspapers.
 The Dictionary of the Scholar for Spelling, Pronunciation, and Accuracy in Definition.

Send for large Circular to the Publishers,
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,
 PHILADELPHIA.
 May, 1890. 1y.

(REVISED EDITION.)

Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia is a whole library of universal knowledge from the pen of the ablest scholars in America and Europe. It is accepted as high authority in our leading colleges.

IT IS NOT FOR THE FEW,

Like Appleton's, the Britannica, or the "International,"

BUT FOR ALL.

It has just been thoroughly revised at a cost of over $60,000, and three years' labor by forty editors, and over 2,000 renowned contributors.

It is in 8 convenient sized volumes.

No father can give to his child at school, or his son or daughter just entering the arena of life, anything that will be of more permanent benefit.

It is an education supplementary to that of the Schools

"The next few years will witness a great change in educational ideas. The possibilities of self-culture are to be emphasized, and the means of aid and direction increased. After a careful examination of 'Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia,' I am convinced that while it is excellently adapted to the needs of professional and business men, it is eminently useful to the earnest, thorough self-educator.

"This work, with its corps of contributors, offers accurate articles on the widest range of subjects. To the value of trustworthy information is added the inspection of personality associated with great names.

I heartily comment this Cyclopedia to all,

and especially to those who are pursuing self-set courses in the great university of life.

JOHN H. VINCENT, (Bishop),
 "Chancellor, Chataqua University."

Address, for particulars, terms and circulars,
A. J. JOHNSON & CO.,
 11 Great Jones Street, N. Y.

Representatives wanted in every county.

From the Librarian of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

DEC. 16, 1889. — "There is perhaps no better test of the merit of a cyclopedia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA has, during many years' experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language."

From Rev. Thos. Hill, D.D., LL.D., Ex-President of Harvard University.

PORTLAND, MAINE, Aug. 6, 1889. — "JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA (revised edition) is an ever-present companion and friend, and I consult it very much more frequently than I do my Britannica, Appleton's, Webster's Unabridged, etc., etc., and very seldom fail to find in it just the kind and amount of information which I need."

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL.D., Librarian of Congress, Washington D. C.

"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference."

DAVIS SCHOOL.

Military Boarding School
 FOR BOYS and YOUNG MEN.

Full preparation for any College or for Business. Healthy location; fine climate; mild winters; excellent buildings; Cadet Gunner Band; Cadet Orchestra; Resident Surgeon. No Charge for Medical Attention. No Extra Charge for Languages or Sciences. Department of Art. Full Course VERY LOW RATES. For Register with full particulars address
COL. A. C. DAVIS, Supt.,
 WINSTON, N. C.

BELO HOUSE.

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan, '90-1y.

"Bingham School

stands pre-eminent among Southern boarding Schools for Boys." — U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Combines more desirable qualities than any other with which I am acquainted." — Lieut. J. B. Batchelor, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

"There exists not the equal of this School in my opinion." — Capt. Henry Hygan, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

More than 100 pupils from other States, the largest number in a Southern School for boys from outside the State of location.

Address,
Maj. R. BINGHAM,
 Bingham's School, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER, JEWELLER,
 Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in
WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.
 REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

— OF —
TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS, LADIES' WORK BASKETS, FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF OIL STOVES,

AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
 AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:
 Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
 Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
 Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

WELCOME once more to Winston-Salem, ladies of the S. F. A. None are more cordially pleased to see your pleasant faces than we, nor more desirous to continue and increase the friendly relations already existing between us.

This year we will show you the most beautiful line of millinery ever displayed in North Carolina, and your orders will, as before, receive especial attention.

Hoping to see you all at our Fall Opening, we are

Respectfully, yours,
SCHOULER'S
 MILLINERY
 ESTABLISHMENT.

Schouler's Racket Store.

Dore's Bible Gallery, 100 Engravings.
 Milton's Paradise Lost, 50 Engravings.
 Dante's Inferno, 75 Engravings.
 " Purgatory & Paradise 60 Engravings.

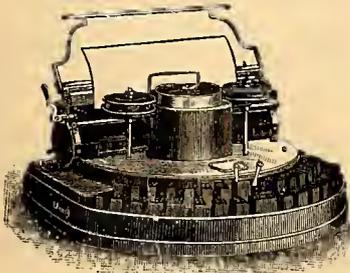

Any one of these books, which are large and beautifully bound, will be given to a member of the ACADEMY when the amount of her purchases in SCHOULER'S RACKET STORE reaches $20.00,—not in one bill, but in as long a time as you please.

This store is a veritable Bazaar, and contains Dress Goods, Shoes, Notions, Jewelry, Stationery, Cologne, Ribbons, Bags, Trunks, Underclothes, &c., and the prices are the lowest in the Twin-City.

HENRY W. MILLER,
 STATE AGENT FOR THE

Hammond Type Writer

RALEIGH, N. C.

IT IS THE BEST FOR SPEED, DURABILITY AND PERFECT ALIGNMENT. IT STANDS AHEAD.
 Price, complete with two type wheels, $100.

All Styles Type-Writer Supplies.

Fine Linen Paper. Celebrated Carbon Paper. Type-writer Ribbons. Office Specialties.
 Send for Catalogue.
WHEELRIGHT & CO., Southern Representatives,
 9 North 11th Street, Richmond, Va.

S. E. ALLEN,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,
 CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,
WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKERS,

Compiled and Arranged by JAMES BALDWIN, PH. D., editor of "Harper's Readers."

HARPER'S SCHOOL SPEAKER. FIRST BOOK.

PART I. ARBOR DAY.—Exercises in poetry and prose for Spring Festivals, Arbor Day, Flower Planting Day, and other similar occasions. With an introduction by GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

PART II. MEMORIAL DAY.—Selections suitable for use in schools, and for public exercises in connection with the observances of Memorial or Decoration Day.

12mo, Cloth, 240 pages; price, 60 cents.

IN PREPARATION.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. SECOND BOOK. GRADED SELECTIONS. I. For First Reader Pupils. II. For Second Reader Pupils. III. For Third Reader Pupils. IV. For Fourth Reader Pupils. V. For Advanced Students and Public Readers.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. THIRD BOOK.—MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS especially adapted for use at morning "Opening Exercises." I. Life. II. Nature. III. Labor. IV. Laughter. V. Experience. VI. Duty. VII. Aspiration. VIII. Reverence. IX. Retrospection. Nearly two hundred selections.

SCHOOL SPEAKER. FOURTH BOOK.—PATRIOTIC SELECTIONS. I. Patriotism as a Principle of Life. Patriotism in "the Brave Days of Old." III. Our Country. IV. Our Flag. V. The Patriotic Citizen. VI. Washington's Birthday.

HARPER'S READERS.

The Most Successful School Books of this Century.

Prin. O. P. LEE, Edgefield Academy, S. C., says: "They are far superior to anything of the kind I have seen."

Prin. H. B. PARKER, Hampton Male and Female Academy, Ga., says: "We are perfectly delighted with the series."

Prin. M. N. WETMORE, Brunson, S. C., says: "I think them as hear perfect in every way as books can be."

Hon. H. A. GUGGER, President of School Board, Asheville, N. C., says: "Harper's Readers are used in our public schools, and give perfect satisfaction."

Send for Price List and Terms for Introduction.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers

FRANKLIN SQUARE, New York City.

FOUNDED 1851.

HORNER SCHOOL,

OXFORD, N. C.

Fall Term Opens Aug. 4, 1890.

FACULTY:

J. H. HORNER, M. A., University of N. C. (Founder of School.)
Col. J. T. DREWRY, Com'd't, Star Grade Virginia Military Institute.
J. C. HORNER, A. M., Davidson College.
G. A. WAUCHOPE, M. A., Ph. D., University of Berlin, Late Fellow Wash. & Lee Univ.
Rev. J. M. Horner, B. A., B. D., University of Virginia and Johns Hopkins University.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line; 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Eureka and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California. Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has Through Palace Coaches and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars, Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pound<sup>2</sup>/<sub>3</sub> of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to

R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S. - E. T. P. A., P. O. Box 236 Atlanta, Ga.
 S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass. & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

→* MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH, *←
 (OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about $75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
 155 Lexington Avenue New York.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind,—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.

Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 17, 1889.

CHICAGO, ILL. 28 UNION SQUARE, N.Y. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
 ST. LOUIS, MO. AT LANTA, GA. DALLAS, TEX.
 FOR SALE BY

Mrs. NANCY TURNER, SALEM, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway

offers first-class service between Winston and Salem and Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all other points on the Atlantic Coast Line, and Savannah Florida and Western systems in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Solid trains run to Wilmington, where easy transfer is made by hack in the forenoon to the trains of the

Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley,

then a change of cars is made at Walnut Cove Union Station, arriving at Winston-Salem at 9:00 p. m. Those not securing through tickets can purchase tickets and re-check their baggage to Winston-Salem at Wilmington. From all stations on the Main Line of the CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY to Winston-Salem only one change of cars is necessary, at Walnut Cove Union Station.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen. Sup't. Gen. Pass. Ag't
Greensboro, N. C. Fayetteville, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem, N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class.

Sure connection by all lines from the East, and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School.

For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED.

Patrons of this paper, old students of Salem Female Academy, everybody interested in the history of the early Moravians of North Carolina to send for a copy of "TWIN-CITIES - WINSTON - SALEM." Price 25 cents. Stamps received. Address,

Mrs. A. V. WINKLER,
Salem, N. C.

Mar. '90-4m

NORTH.

The shortest and most direct line to Harrodsburg, Shelbyville, Lexington, Frankfort, Paris. Only 11 hours and 35 minutes Chattanooga to Louisville, only 11 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Boudoir Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England Points and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

SOUTH.

The only line Chattanooga to Birmingham, Meridian, Jackson, Vicksburg, and Shreveport, making direct connections without omnibus transfer at Shreveport for Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston, Austin, Texas; New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Mexico and California. Shortest and Quickest Line to New Orleans, with solid Trains and Through Pullman Sleepers, making direct connections for Texas, Mexico and California. Close connection made en route for Memphis, Little Rock and Arkansas Points, Anniston, Columbus, Montgomery, Mobile, Matchez.

Passengers ticketed and Baggage checked through to destination. For rates, Correct County Maps, and full information, call at QUEEN & CRESCENT TICKET OFFICE, READ HOUSE, or CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION CHAS. H. MILLS, Ticket Agt. C. S. BARRETT, T. P. A. Depot. Read House.

D. J. MULLANEY, Div. Pass. Agt., Chattanooga, Tenn.
C. C. HARVEY, Vice Pres. CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS, G. P. & T. A.

THE

"COTTON BELT ROUTE"

St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railway,
Carries More Pupils to and from Arkansas and Texas than all other lines to those States combined.

Why? Because this is the only line which has furnished, as promised, elegant chair cars direct from the school to the scholar's home, and from the home back to school without changes en route. These cars are fitted up for this class of travel exclusively with retiring and toilet rooms, accompanied by an attentive porter and in charge of an Agent of the Company, who sees that the car is reserved for the use of the pupils only.

We have handled the First-Class Schools of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and other States for a series of years, and in no instance has any school, commencing with us, patronized, subsequently, any other line.

This is the only line from Memphis running Two Daily Trains through to Texas without change of cars, and without Omnibus Transfer in Memphis from Eastern Lines.

Correspondence solicited from Principals of Schools and Parents concerning the safe conduct of scholars, by

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield,
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.
W. G. Adams, Pass. Agent, Nashville, Tenn.

:- "SOLD ON MERIT." :-
THE LIGHT-RUNNING "DOMESTIC."

Do you need a Piano?
Do you need an Organ?
Do you need a Violin?
Do you need a Musical Implement of any kind? Have you an old Instrument you wish to exchange?
If so you will find it to your interest to call and consult the undersigned.

W. P. ORMSBY,
MAIN ST., - - SALEM, N. C.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR WAR-
AIM RANTED
IS FOR
TO FIVE
EXCEL. YEARS.

STIEFF PIANOS

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XIII.

SALEM, N. C., JANUARY, 1891.

NUMBER 112.

CHRISTMAS AT SALEM.

BY SUSIE GULICK.

SOMETHING happened this Christmas that has never taken place before. We all attended recitations on Saturday, in order to gain one more free day during Christmas week. School closed Monday at 2 o'clock, and then our pleasure commenced. Tuesday was spent by some of the room companies in decorating with evergreens.

The Lovefeast and Christmas Eve service on Wednesday night was the first real observance of the happy Christmas-tide; after the return from the service bright and happy faces were to be seen everywhere, some looking strangely like Santa Claus with bundles of all sizes in their arms.

Christmas morning cries of "A Merry Christmas" were heard long before our usual rising time, and when "Old Rouser" rang out seven we were not unwilling to rise. Quickly dressing we hurried to our rooms, and what we found there should be seen to be appreciated. After breakfast little knots of girls gathered and strolled about to visit the rooms, now bright with the loving remembrances of the inmates.

The North and South Senior rooms were decorated with festoons, while evergreens were placed all about, even on the brow of Shakespeare, who regarded the whole scene most benignly from the corner bracket.

The 3rd room had a very modest decoration; the 4th room was brilliant with mottoes;—Merry Christmas greeted us from the window and a tree in the corner from which the gifts had been clipped. The 5th room was elaborately decorated, a snowy tree and evergreens gave it a wintry appearance, but the faces and hearts were warm and bright. The 6th, 7th and 8th rooms were pretty with their Christmas trees. In Annex Hall the 9th room was not elaborately decorated, but everything looked full of Christmas; the 10th room was very pretty, the little ones were happy for Santa Claus had visited them. The two adjoining rooms in Park Hall gave fine opportunities for decorating and the girls used it to advantage.

We attended most of the Sunday School celebrations. Dr. RONDTHALER took the Seniors, who wished to go, to Centreville Chapel. Christmas night the Home Sunday School Cantata was given in the church, which was filled to overflowing and also overflowing with good cheer. The Cantata was written by a former pastor of this church, Rev. A. L. Oerter. The following night the Elm Street Sunday School gave its Cantata in the Home church: this dialogue was written by Dr. RONDTHALER, and perhaps that was the reason every one declared it to be the best thing we had attended. Mr. McCuiston was presented with a gold-headed cane, and while Mr. CLEWELL, who presented the gift, was still speaking, a beautiful chair was brought in and, to our surprise, it was a gift to Dr. RONDTHALER. He will doubtless need it after his efforts to put Latin into the heads of the Senior Class. Several of the Seniors got up the courage to walk three-quarters of a mile, through the mud, to attend the entertainment given by the East Salem Sunday School.

New Year's Eve we attended the first service at 8 o'clock; returning we were invited to the dining-hall to partake of an oyster supper; at 11:30 we returned to the church to watch the old year out and with it the death of our wrong desires and thoughts, and to sing the New Year in. New Year's morning we attended church. At noon a good dinner awaited us, and we did it full justice. It was the first time some of the girls had been to the table during the holidays, the box room having been the favorite resort.

Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL'S annual reception to the girls on New Year's night was the greatest pleasure of all. The dining-hall was beautifully decorated. The Seniors aided Mrs. CLEWELL to entertain. Christmas trees were placed here and there, and with sofas and easy chairs formed some very romantic nooks. The Senior Class colors, light blue and silver were used for the first time, and they added brightness as scarfs and wall decorations. Words can not do justice to the supper; everything was beautifully served as is characteristic of Mrs. CLEWELL'S receptions.

All join me in saying the evening was one of unbroken enjoyment. Our pleasures had commenced in a small way and ended in this happy occasion as the height of enjoyment.

But all things must come to an end, and our Christmas holidays of '90 are gone.

ALASKA.

A Summer Tour in the Wonderland of the North.

BY REV. HENRY ROMINGER.

THIS evening we are to go on a tour to Alaska, the Wonderland of the North, a region that few people in the United States as yet know is visited as a place of pleasure, recreation and natural scenery. It is generally supposed a visit to this unknown land involves all the perils and hardships of a Franklin Search or Greeley Relief Expedition, with little hope that the brave adventurer will see his home and kindred again. The "vast and varied" misconception on the part of otherwise intelligent Americans as to Alaska,—what it is, where it is, and what it is worth to our country, is something colossal and phenomenal even in this land of wonders. For years after its purchase by Mr. Seward it was the standing joke for Eastern newspapers and humorists, and few people even now believe it was worth the purchase money. Those who have had the good fortune to visit the accessible portion of this land of wonders return filled with surprise at their own previous ignorance, and at the lack of knowledge of most whom they meet.

Alaska is the wonderland, not only of the tourist, but also of the statesman and politician; for it is a country without laws and without taxes. Few of our statesmen have visited Alaska and know of its governmental needs. Few vessels have threaded the myriad isles of this Wonderland; tourists have visited the gigantic glaciers and snow-mountains; few scientists have studied her geology or catalogued her fauna or flora; few surveyors have measured her snow-turbaned hills; few miners have dug for coal and iron, or prospected her mountains and streams for precious metals.

Alaska is a vast region, — one-sixth of our national domain is comprised within its limits. Its area, 580,107 square miles, is larger than the 13 original States; its extreme length more than 2,000 miles and its breadth about 1400 miles, while its coast line, including bays and islands, is 25,000 miles, or greater than the entire circumference of the earth. The Yukon river of Alaska is the fourth in size on the North American continent, being 2044 miles long. The island of Altu, the westernmost of the Aleutian group, is farther west from San Francisco, than Eastport, Maine, is east. The exact dividing line between the east and the west of our territory runs out into the Pacific Ocean about 40 miles west of the mouth of the Columbia river. It is said that the sun never sets on the British Empire, and it is literally true that in the short Summer nights the sun never sets on the American Republic. Its rays have not ceased to flash on the spears of the fishermen of the Aleutian Islands before they begin to glint and blaze on the axes of the woodsmen in the forests of Maine.

Alaska is thought to be a sort of duplication of Labrador and Greenland. While the greater portion of the territory is covered with snow and ice most of the time, there is a large habitable region lying between north latitude 55° and 60° in the same latitude as Scotland and Scandinavia. This portion of Alaska has a climate not any more rigorous than Scotland and Scandinavia, while these old world countries are possessed of far less natural wealth and are far less grand in natural configuration. The south-eastern portion of Alaska has great resources in fish, lumber and minerals. Mr. Bancroft, in his history of the Northwest Coast, says: "Apart from the seal islands the production of wealth in Alaska for each white inhabitant is greater than in any part of the United States, or of the world, and yet it is said the country has no resources." Few people are aware that the royalty paid the government by the Alaska Commercial Company for the privilege of catching seals on two small islands of the Pribyloff group in Behring Sea has aggregated more than the original cost of the whole territory, and that there are single gold mines on Douglas Island that would sell for more than the cash price paid Russia. The fishing grounds of Alaska are more extensive and valuable than all the fishing grounds along the Atlantic coast line of Canada, about which there has been so much debate and noise of late.

Alaska, you know, was originally Russian America, having been discovered by the Russian navigators, Behring and Chirikoff, in 1741, and occupied by Russia till 1867, when the United States bought it for $7,200,000. Since then the territory has been systematically neglected by Congress, and it is still crying for civil government and development. In 1884, a bill, introduced by Senator Harrison, was passed, which gives Alaska a shadow of government, extending to it the laws of Oregon so far as they were applicable. United States laws relating to mining claims and rights incident thereto were to be in full force, but the general land laws of the United States were not to apply to Alaska; so that it became a judicial but not a land district of the United States, strange as that may seem.

This evening we shall only visit the south-eastern panhandle of Alaska,—the land of the tourist; of gigantic glaciers, icebergs and waterfalls; of gold, lumber and fish; of the most wonderful displays of creative power and exhaustless wealth of scenery to be found anywhere in the world. The inland passage from Puget Sound to the head of Glacier Bay, in latitude 59° north, a distance of over 1000 miles, is on water as smooth as the Willamette river. Only at one or two places is there a little swell, but that is not sufficient to cause any one to lose his dignity or self-respect. * * * * On our right we leave San Juan Island, famous in the boundary dispute with England, and which was finally awarded to the United States in 1872 by the late Emperor of Germany, William I., to whom it was referred for arbitration.

We were entirely in British America on the 2d of August, and for a whole day have Vancouver Island, 300 miles long, the largest on the Pacific coast, on one side and the mainland on the other. Towering mountains and fir-clad hills rise on either side, foreshadowing some of the grandeur that was soon to unroll before us. During the night we passed the dangerous Seymour Narrows, where the tide is forced through a gorge, two miles long and less than a quarter of a mile wide, at the rapid rate of 9 miles an hour, with foaming swirls and eddies caused by meeting currents. Here the U. S. Ship Saranac was wrecked, June 18, 1875, and now lies bleaching on the bottom fathoms below. We pass through Johnstone Straits, a narrow, winding channel, from which the hills rise on either side, 2000 to 3000 feet high. A panorama of beauty glides past the steamer; towering peaks, snow-crowned, serrated and scarred by avalanches and landslides, with torrents rushing down their sides, are flung about among bays and islands in endless variety. All is wild, romantic, full of surprises,—a fit introduction to the wonderland we are now approaching. The primeval hills, void of human habitation, hear naught save the sounds of the steamer's paddle-wheels on a salt river, so narrow at many places that a pistol shot would reach across, and so deep that 100 fathoms of line will not touch bottom. You turn your opera glass on the high hills, and perhaps see a black bear disappearing in the thicket or a mountain sheep perched on a lofty promontory.

After crossing Queen Charlotte Sound we encountered for a few days a thick fog. The Japan current which flows across the Pacific touches the coast here at the north of Queen Charlotte Sound and the contact of the colder air of the land with the warmer air of this ocean river produces fog almost constantly the year round. This Japan current, the Gulf Stream of the Pacific, modifies the climate of the whole Pacific coast and makes temperature depend upon distance from the sea instead of distance from the equator. It bends the isothermal lines of Kentucky and Tennessee as far north as Sitka and the Aleutian Islands.

We enter Grenville Channel between Pitt Island and the main land. For 50 miles it is as straight as any canal and its scenery as beautiful and lovely as is ever seen among the lakes of Switzerland, or as could be conjured up by the liveliest imagination. The morning sun wrapping his fringes of pink and purple around the distant snow-peaks, the giant hills, against which the yards of the steamer almost scraped, their primeval stillness unbroken except by the regular thumping of the steamer's engines, form altogether an enchanting scene, on which one can look in peace and repose far away from the morning newspaper, the business rush and crush of the dusty, sweltering city. The clear, soft light, the pure air, and the stillness of sky and shore and water, smooth as a mirror in the early morning, made it seem like the dawn of creation in some new paradise. The breath of the sea and of the pine forest blend in the tonic air, and the silence and calm add to the inspiration and grandeur of the surroundings.

Soon our steamer came into the harbor of Fort Wrangell. A scene of transcendent sublimity is here presented to the vision. The little village of Indian huts, custom-house, stores and abandoned buildings of a United States fort straggles around the circling beach at the base of the frowning cliffs and beetling crags. The mountains, rising terrace above terrace, stretch away in the background, while the smooth, clear waters over which we were gliding reflected the marvellous show of green mountain tops and glittering snow-peaks. We seemed to be sailing in liquid air over these stupendous mountains into the heavens above. Switzerland, with all her panorama of Alps, could not present such a fairy scene of entrancing wonder. It was a vision which did not seem of earth and which will never fade from memory.

Fort Wrangell is situated on an island at the mouth of the Stikeen river, and was founded in 1834 by Baron Wrangell, then governor of Russian America. When the Cassiar gold mines were discovered in 1874 on the Stikeen river in British Columbia, a wild tide of life rolled upon Wrangell, and it took on something of the excitement of a mining town. About 4000 miners went up the Stikeen river every Spring, and returned with an average of $1,500 of gold dust per man, most of which they left among the stores and saloons of Wrangell. But the mines are now abandoned or worked only by Indians or Chinamen, and the town has likewise fallen into decay. The United States troops were withdrawn in 1877, and government buildings which cost $150,000 were sold for $500.

On the right you see an old steamboat drawn up on land, which used to run on the Stikeen river during the mining activity in the Cassiar district, and netted its owner $135,000 each season. When first drawn on land it was used as a hotel, and has still the sign "Bakery" over the engine room. Demon-like totem poles adorn the streets and stand in front of the houses of Wrangell. On the Main street we see an Indian grave with life-size figure of a wolf, the totemic beast of the dead man's family. The grave is a square log box and contains the ashes of the deceased. It is said before the missionaries came to Alaska the Indians cremated their dead. They did not have orthodox ideas about the future, supposing hell was made of ice and that a person buried in the earth or sea would be cold forever afterwards, while he who was burned to ashes would be warm and comfortable throughout eternity. This is on the authority of Miss Scidmore's book, who might be circulating false gossip. These totem poles are carved logs with figures of crows, bears, eagles, whales, wolves, frogs or ravens, and are a sort of picture-writing, giving the family history. They are the coat-of-arms of the Alaska Siwash, telling his ancestral pedigree, the tribe he has descended from on his mother's side, for in Alaska the man takes the name of his wife instead of the wife taking the man's family name. On the top of one of the totem poles we see a conical hat similar to that worn by certain classes in China, which has led ethnologists to assume the oriental origin of these people and their emigration by way of Behring's Straits. Alaska Indians resemble very much the Chinese, and but for the dress of each you could hardly tell the difference. Chinamen are said to be able to communicate with them through their language with greater facility than the whites. The shamanism of the Alaska Indians also points to their oriental origin, being the same terrible religion prevalent in Northern Asia. The Aleutian Islands running near to Asia may have been the bridge of emigration in earlier ages. At the present day intercourse is maintained by canoes across Behring Straits between the Esquimaux of Northwestern Alaska and Siberia.

As we leave Fort Wrangell and go northward the grander the scenery becomes, the higher and more rugged grow the mountains, the whiter the caps of snow, the denser the surrounding forests, and the more numerous the streams which leap from the lips of the crags. Peaks are piled upon peaks in most tumultuous forms. Outlines, serrated and sharp, cut the upper sky. Black ravines and dazzling patches of snow alternate. Scars seam the entire sides of lofty mountains, where the spring avalanches have scathed them of every vestige of soil and vegetation. Bare poles stick out on the mountains, the remnant of dead trees which decay when reaching a certain size for lack of soil on the steep inclines and others take their place.

[Concluded next month.]

Our Library.

—The Educational Platform of the Moravian Church, a pamphlet, by Rev. Morris Leibert, Bethlehem, Pa.

—Cotton Textiles in Foreign Countries,
Carpet Manufactures " " Fruit Culture " "

—The Manual of Phonography, by Pitman & Howard. Phonographic Institute, Cincinnati, O.

—Wells College Algebra with Answers, published by Leach, Shewell & Sandorn, Boston and New York. A new work, and as far as we have been able to examine the same a very excellent one also.

—Chambers Encyclopædia. New Series. Humb. to Malt. J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Personal Items.

—JANIE SHERILLE paid us a pleasant visit, calling at the ACADEMY.

—MAY SUE MOTLEY was in Winston, but did not favor us with a call.

—We think we heard MAGGIE SPENCER's cheerful voice outside our "sanctum," but failed to give her our greeting.

—A number of the patrons called to see us during the past days.

—Mrs. Susan Mills, who left school in 1832, now resides in Concord, N. C.

—The name of Miss M. E. GIBSON, of Lowryville, Chester Co., S. C., was received some time ago and entered upon the list of members of the Alumnae Association of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. She was a pupil here during 1853, '54, '55, and '56. It is very gratifying to receive these marks of affection, and we can assure our Alumnae that their Alma Mater follows their course through life with loving interest and pride.

—We acknowledge with pleasure the donation of a book, entitled Black Beauty, for our Library, from Miss EMMA SCHIFF, of Charlotte, N. C. This book has become a sort of classic among the literature of animals.

—Mrs. W. C. Wright (GEORGIA BOWE), of Columbia, S. C., writes that while she was visiting her father in Augusta, Ga., she met Mrs. A. C. Heggie (FANNIE THORPE), of Grovetown, Ga. Mrs. Heggie anticipates a visit to Salem next commencement.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., JANUARY, 1891.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers
constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—A happy and prosperous New Year to all the readers of THE ACADEMY.

—THE ACADEMY hopes that all good New Year resolves may be as firm and strong December 31, 1891, as they were
January 1, 1891.

—The new Industrial Department is not quite ready to make its bow to the readers of THE ACADEMY this month, but will do so in our next issue. By the time this is printed, however, the work will be under way and many industrious workers will be in training.

—The papers announce the appearance of a work entitled "Our Local Poets."
Among other sketches will be given one of Miss EMMA LEHMAN, together with a number of her poems. Miss LEHMAN well deserves the high testimonials given her by her friends.

Death of Rev. C. L. Rights.

WITH deep sorrow THE ACADEMY announces to its readers the death of Rev. C. L. RIGHTS. For many years a Trustee of our Institution he was always filled with deep interest in its welfare, rejoiced in its prosperity and earnestly labored for it when the school was passing through troublous times. In the death of this venerable man of God the School loses a staunch friend, the Church an earnest laborer, and the world a good and pure man.

We take from the columns of the Republican a brief sketch of his life:

"It is with deep regret that we are called upon to chronicle the death of that worthy man of God, Rev. C. L. RIGHTS, which occurred at Tahlequah, Indian Territory, last Friday, 9th inst., whither he had gone a short while since, with his good lady, as an inspector of the work of the Church there, as well as to visit his son and daughter who are engaged in the Moravian Mission among the Cherokee Indians. * * * Rev. Mr. RIGHTS was born near Salem, and received a limited education. Early in life he learned the printing business and worked in the Salisbury Watchman office with the late editor Bruner; in the Salem Press office with the senior member of the firm, Mr.

L. V. Blum, and possibly Greensboro and other points. From the "case" he entered the Moravian ministry, and without the advantage of a collegiate course, for many years, until his death, labored with zeal and ability in the pulpits at Bethania, Friedberg, Bethabara, Friedland, Macedonia and Hope in this vicinity, and Mt.
Bethel, in Virginia. At the time of his departure he was stationed at Kernersville. He was also a delegate some years since to the General Synod of the Moravian Church, held in Herrnhut, Saxony, was for years a member of the Board of Trustees of SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, and held a number of other important offices in the Church. He was the oldest active minister in either the Northern or Southern Province, and, in a recent letter to Salem, stated that he had about decided to remain and labor with the red men until reinforcements arrived, and in the midst of duty, for he was always busy, the Master called.

"Of the deceased it can be truly said he was a self-made man and beloved by all, for no man in this section was more widely or better known, and a pang of sorrow will touch many hearts when the sad intelligence of his demise is known.
He leaves a wife and three children, a brother and sister, and a number of other relatives in this immediate section."

—A very sad bereavement fell upon LENA and LIZZIE CHAFFIN in the death of their beloved father, who passed away peacefully on Friday morning, January 2, at the Belo House. Mr. and Mrs. Chaffin had come to Salem to spend the winter near their daughters. A few days before his death Mr. Chaffin contracted a severe cold, which rapidly developed into pneumonia, and resulted as stated above. The interment took place on Saturday afternoon, the remains being laid to rest in the Cemetery in Salem. Dr. RONDHALER, assisted by Revs. Norman, Davis and CLEWELL, conducted the services. Our departed friend was a warm supporter of the school, and his life was filled with kind and charitable deeds. The veil of mourning will be cast over many a mountain home when the news of his end is made known. Our earnest sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives and friends.

A Voyage Across the Atlantic.

BY ADELAIDE L. FRIES.

First day out.

The sun shines brightly,
Softly fair the Autumn sky,
And in dimpled, dreamy silence
Infant wavelets slumbering lie.
On the broad deck of the steamer
Reign supreme delight and joy;—
We had cast all burden from us
As a child a broken toy.

Second day.

An azure heaven:
But the wavelets wake from sleep;
See, they don their dainty white caps,
And are romping on the deep.
Hear them calling to each other:
"Let us deck a mermaid fair,—
Quick! her robe: yon sheet translucent
Might this foamy trimming bear;
Twine a spray among her ringlets,
Put a conch shell in her hand;
Now might vie our ocean maiden
With the fairest in the land!"
But—what ails me? am I dreaming?
Am I dazzled by her light?
For it seems her form is changing,
All my being thrills with fright;
And my brain is reeling, whirling,
Oh, I feel—I think I—O—oh!
I must see this phantom nearer,—
Can I reach the railing? So—o—o!
This is better! 'twas but fancy;
Now their sports are rising higher,
I'm inclined to think—oh mercy!
Ugh!—to think I will retire.

Sixth day.

Now, at last they've wearied,
And the waves have sunk to sleep,
With the breeze the phantom vanished,—
There is silence on the deep.
And 'tis welcome, for, oh spectre,
I am tired of thy reign;
Sorely have I longed to lose thee,
Felt thy loss would be my gain.
Me thou soughtst with strange persistence,
I had nothing more to give,
Such scant tribute scarce could lure thee,
Why, oh why, my spirit grieve?
But 'tis past, and now in comfort
May I sit and fondly gaze
On the radiance of the waters
Where the lingering sunbeam plays.
And, as oft with tiny dreamers,
O'er each crest smile chases smile,
While the tender zephyr murmurs
Drowsy lullabies the while.

Alumnæ Scholarship Endowment.

—The following gifts have been received to be added to the Alumnæ Scholarship Endowment:

Miss Maud Butner, . . .	$ .25
Mrs. R. P. Lineback, . . .	1.00
Mrs. R. L. Hendricks, . . .	3.00
Miss Kate Jones, . . .	.25
Mrs. R. W. Belo, . . .	2.00
Miss Maria Vogler, . . .	1.00
Miss Laura Lemly, . . .	1.00
Mrs. H. Foltz, . . .	.25
Miss L. Lash, . . .	.25
Mrs. A. Buxton, . . .	5.00
Previously acknowledged, . . .	100.00

Total, $114.00

Chronicle and Gossip.

—About 90 or 95 of the girls went home during the Christmas recess.

—The first snow of the season came on Christmas night, and seemed to add a charm to the festivities of the week.

—Miss ADDIE LACIAR and Mrs. A. V. WINKLER withdrew from the service of the ACADEMY at the close of the Christmas term.

—On Xmas Eve Miss MAMIE YANCEY was married in the school parlor to Mr. C. M. Corpening, in the presence of her brother and sisters and a number of friends. Dr. RONDTHALER performed the ceremony. The bridal party left on the evening train for the North.

—The Christmas decorations in the Moravian church were very fine. Suspended from the ceiling was an immense globe of green, containing the illuminated inscription, "Glory to God in the Highest." Other texts were placed on the walls, and festoons were freely and effectively used. The transparency containing the beautiful picture of the Nativity was artistically worked into the pulpit decoration.

—On Sunday, January 4, about 10:45 in the morning, fire was discovered in the dormitory of Park Hall by Anderson, who was making his rounds of the building. He began fighting the fire at once, and called to ALICE RAWLINGS and JULIA WHITE who were on the story below. These young ladies brought water at once and the flames were quickly extinguished. THE ACADEMY acknowledges the cool, prompt and effective action of all the parties named.

—The following pupils have entered the ACADEMY since we published the last list :

- |                  |                   |
|------------------|-------------------|
| Mary Neeley,     | Jennie Harper,    |
| Anne Neeley,     | Laura Huff,       |
| Essie Tomlinson, | Nellie Lunceford, |
| Ellen Crudup,    | Minnie Lunceford, |
| Pearl Phillips,  | Dora Glass,       |
| Daisy Thompson,  | Carrie Peterson,  |
| Agnes Fields,    | Eliza Murphy,     |
| Agnes Stallings, |                   |

—A beautiful Jamaica Spider Lily was in bloom recently in the ACADEMY greenhouse. It was brought to Mrs. CLEWELL by her mother, Mrs. Wolle, from Jamaica, where it grows wild in great profusion, covering the mountain sides with its beauty and filling the air with its fragrance. From a cluster of broad, green leaves, about 9 inches in length, arises a stem bearing at its summit a crown formed of six spotless white lilies. The crown measures fifteen inches in diameter, and each lily encloses within its six narrow-leaved perianth a cup formed of thin, web-like leaves connecting the stamens. The six long stamens of each lily intermingle with one another and give to the flowers their spider like appearance.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9, 1891.

My dear Miss Lehman :

I have pleasure in sending to you by mail to-day for the library of the SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, a copy of Professor SOUSA's new book, Airs of All Lands," which will doubtless be of interest if not of use to the Musical Department of the ACADEMY.

Very sincerely, yours to command,

SAM. C. LEMLY,
Lieut., U.S.N.

—The last of the readings, "Marley's Ghost," took place on the evening of December 29th, there being about 100 pupils and friends present. The evening was introduced with a colored view, entitled "Clear the Track," representing a party of jolly youngsters enjoying a merry coasting frolic on the snow-covered hillside. The scenes connected with the reading were :

1. Christmas Future.
2. On 'Change.
3. Marine Store Dealers.
4. Interior of Cratchett's House.
5. The Churchyard.
6. Buying Turkey at Door.
7. Interior of Nephew's House.
8. Scrooge's Office.

The evening was closed with a sliding view, entitled "Stolpen Castle," the scene being at first dark, then gradually growing lighter till the moon is seen to rise back of the tower.

—On the occasion of the visit of the Boston Symphony Orchestral Club to our towns a concert was given before the pupils of the ACADEMY in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. The following programme was rendered :

- 1 Symphony in G Major. Minuetto and Trio.....Haydn.
SYMPHONY CLUB.
- 2 Flute Solo. Les Echos d'Alsace....Rucquoy.
FR. RUCQUOY.
- 3 Aria. Linda.....Donizetti
MISS ANNA MANTELL.

- 4 a. Air.....Bach.
b. Slumber Song.....DeSeve.
SYMPHONY CLUB.
5. Violoncello Solo. Grand Fantasia on Le Desir .....Scrzais.
ERNEST OEHLHEV.
- 6 Grand Waltz.....Delibes.
SYMPHONY CLUB.
- 7 Violin Solo. Zigenner Dances.....Nachez.
ALFRED DESEVE.
- 8 Hungarian Dances .....Brahms.
SYMPHONY CLUB.

From the Language Department.

—Specially suited to the Language Department is a letter received in the last days from a last year's student, Miss MARY FRIES, who is spending the winter in Florence. We take the liberty to quote from it :

FLORENCE, Italie, Le 24 Dec., 1890.

C'est difficile de croire que c'est Noël deman, quoique nous ayons orné notre chambre de verdure.

Vendredi passé nous avons eu une très agréable surprise. Nous étions assis à table d'hôte quand une société d'étrangers entraient dans la salle à manger, imaginez vous notre surprise quand nous voyions NELLIE GRIFFISS! Elle et son père avec neuf autres personnes avaient fait un voyage en Turquie, Palestine et Egypte. Lundi matin ils sont partis pour Venise et ils retourneront en Amerique dans le courant de janvier. Peut-être qu'ils passeront par Salem en allant à Chattanooga. Je pense qu'ils ont trouvé de la neige, de l'autre coté des Appennines.

Les derniers quinze jours nous avons eu deux "tramontanas" avec un beau jour clair entre d'eux. Une "tramontana" est un vent froid et désagréable qui vient des montagnes. Mais aujourd' hui le temps a été charmant. Après—midi j'ai fait une promenade à Belle Squardo avec mon père et ma soeur. La vue était très belle ; nous pouvions voir les montagnes dans le lointain. couvertes de neige ; celles un peu plus près de nous colorées d'une teinte rougeâtre ; à gauche une colline couverte d'oliviers ; et Florence au fond de la vallée. Et lorsque nous entendions en même temps le son des cloches du village vous pouvez croire que c'était charmant.

J'ai beaucoup de plaisir quand je travaille dans mon atelier. Mon premier modele était une jolie jeune fille italienne, et maintenant je dessine une femme habillée en nonne.

Votre affectionnée,
MARY E. FRIES.

From the South Senior Room.

—A conversation.

Place : Sleeping hall.

Time : 6:30 p. m.

A.—“Well, I'm sure that is the most nonsensical question I ever heard of; the idea of asking what a centipede is! If one were to get on them I guess they'd find out. I saw one once in a glass bottle.”

B.—“Oh, I've seen hundreds of 'em!”

A.—“I reckon you have; you live where they grow!”

C. (coming up)—“Girls, please tell me what a hypochondriac is?”

D.—“It's an antedeluvian.”

B.—“No, it isn't; it's a person who goes crazy on some particular subject.”

C. (disgusted)—“Oh, that's an atheist!” Then suddenly: “What's an antedeluvian?”

A general laugh followed this question.

The above may be accounted for by recalling the fact that it was Christmas time.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1 Name of Pupil. 2. Oate of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS ACADEMY.]

*—I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

- 5107 JOSEPHINE STARBUCK. — 1858.
Uncle, D. H. Starbuck, Winston, N. C.
- 5108 MARY LOUISA LOGAN. — 1858.
Rev. W. H. Logan, Grassy Knob, N. C.
- 5109 MARY F. PHARR. — 1856.
Samuel Pharr, Harrisburg, N. C.
- 5110 MAGGIE MORRIS. — 1857.
P. M. Morris, Harrisburg, N. C.
- 5111 SUE TOWNSEND. — 1858.
Richard Townsend, Lumberton, N. C.
- 5112 MOLLIE TOWNSEND. — 1856.
Jackson Townsend, Lumberton, N. C.
- 5113 MOLLIE R. POAG. — 1857.
James C. Poag, Rock Hill, S. C.
- 5114 MAGGIE ERWIN. — 1858.
James A. Erwin, Smith's Turnout, S. C.
- 5115 MARGARET LEWIS. — 1858.
J. M. McQuill, Richmond Hill, Roads, S. C.
- 5116 FANNIE M. WATTS. — 1859.
Judge Samuel W. Watts, Franklinton, N. C.
- 5117 MOLLIE P. HARGROVE. — 1856.
EMMA M. HARGROVE. — 1858.
John Hargrove, Townesville, N. C.
- 5119 MARY ELIZABETH BEST. — 1852.
William A. Best, Hamilton, S. C.
- 5120 MARY M. CLARK. — 1858.
Judge J. M. Clark, Americus, Ga.
- 5121 SARAH LOUISA MAXWELL. — 1859.
Col. W. A. Maxwell, Americus, Ga.
- 5122 LIDA LARK. — 1860.
Judge Cullen Lark, Laurens, S. C.
- 5123 KATE MATTHEWS. — 1858.
Capt. B. H. Matthews, Liberty Hall, S. C.
- 5124 MAGGIE R. GUNN. — 1859.
Mrs. Susad P. Gunn, Braudon, Miss.
- 5125 CORRA M. HOLLAND. — 1860.
Mrs. Martha Hollard, Ft. Gaines, Ga.
- 5126 LELIA MARY CLEMENT. — 1859.
Charles J. Clement, Pettu Hook, Va.
- 5127 LOUISA PHARR. — 1857.
Elam King, Cabarrus County, N. C.
- 5128 LAURA ERWIN. — 1856.
Franklin Erwin, Cabarrus County, N. C.
- 5129 MARGARET ROBERTA ARNOLD. — 1861.
Charles W. Arnold, Augusta, Ga.

- 5130 MINNIE W. ELLIS. 1858.
Charles B. Ellis, Macon, Ga.
- 5131 NANNIE VAUGHN. — 1859.
J. B. Vaughn, Wilson's Store, S. C.
- 5132 FANNIE LEDBETTER. — 1859.
F. W. Ledbetter, Paint Rock, Ala.
- 5133 ALICE EAGLETON. — 1856.
W. C. Eagleton, Murfreesboro, Tenn.
- 5134 BETTIE EAGLETON — 1858
J. A. Eagleton, Murfreesboro, Tenn.
- 4735 SUE MATTIE WADE. — 1857.
R. W. Wade, Florence, Tenn.
- 5136 EDDIE PERRY. — 1858.
Matthew Fulford, Farmington, N. C.
- 5137 ELLA F. ARMSEY. — 1858.
Matthew Fulford, Farmington, N. C.
- 5138 SALLIE ASHE SPENCER. — 1858.
John Spencer, Laurinburg, N. C.
- 5139 EUGENIA DIGGS. — 1858.
Wm. Oiggs, Laurinburg, S. C.
- 5140 AGGIE E. LEATHERS. — 1860.
5141 ANNIE LOU LEATHERS. — 1861.
Or. James C. Leathers, Mt. Terzah, N. C.
- 5142 MARY A. FAIN. — 1855.
George A. Fain, Dandridge, Tenn.
- 5147 JULIA MOFFAT. — 1857.
Henry Moffat, Lewisville, S. C.
- 5141 MARY BELLE PATTERSON. — 1857.
Mrs. O. T. Patterson, Home, Tenn.
- 5145 NANNIE MALONEY. — 1855.
Thomas Maloney, Greenville, Tenn.
- 5146 LAURA WILLIAMSON. — 1863.
George Williamson, Yanceyville, N. C.
- 5147 MARGARET JANE MARION. — 1857.
J. A. Marion, Chesterville, S. C.
- 5148 SUE MATTIE PULLEN. — 1858.
Tom Pullen, Museville, Va.
- 5149 FOZIE J. ZENTMEYER. — 1858.
J. N. Zentmeyer, Mayo Forge, Va.
- 5150 OORA ELLA STANFIELD. — 1859.
Or. Jos. A. Stanfield, Leasburg, S. C.
- 5151 MARY I. TWITTY. — 1858.
William Twitty, Lancaster C. H., S. C.

Married.

CONRAD—WATKINS.—At the First Baptist church, Winston, on December 29, Dr. W. J. CONRAD to Miss MOLLIE WATKINS.

WOLFE—BROWN.—In the Presbyterian church of Winston, Dec. 30, Mr. W. J. WOLFE to Miss MABEL BROWN.

LOWRY—MILLER.—In the Church of our Saviour, Rock Hill, S. C., Thursday, December 18, Mr. SUMNER DE LEON LOWRY to Miss WILHE MILLER.

JONES—WALKER.—On Wednesday, December 17, in Oxford, N. C., Mr. W. W. JONES to Miss MARY B. WALKER.

CARROLL—REYNOLDS.—In Kinston, N. C., December 30th, Mr. JOHN CARROLL to Miss ORA REYNOLDS, both of Asheville.

Subscriptions Received.

Miss Roxie Armfield, Greensboro, N. C.; Miss M. Neely, Miss Maud Butler, Miss A. Steiner, Salem, N. C.; Mrs. Jesse Carter, Madison, N. C.; Mrs. Hy J. Strickland, Graham, N. C.; Miss Kate Lark, Brewster, S. C.; Mrs. Susan Mills, Concord, N. C.; Miss Mary H. Pfohl, Columbus, Ga.; Miss M. E. Gibson, Lowrysville, S. C.

S. E. ALLEN.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

Tinware, Hollow Ware, Glassware,

CROCKERY AND HARDWARE.

CORNER OF THIRD AND MAIN STS.,

WINSTON, N. C.

OPPOSITE THE OLD STAND.

Schouler's Racket Store.

Dore's Bible Gallery, 100 Engravings.
Milton's Paradise Lost, 50 Engravings.
Dante's Inferno, 75 Engravings.
" Purgatory & Paradise 60 Engravings.

Any one of these books, which are large and beautifully bound, will be given to a member of the ACADEMY when the amount of her purchases in SCHOULER'S RACKET STORE reaches $20.00,—not in one bill, but in as long a time as you please.

This store is a veritable Bazaar, and contains Dress Goods, Shoes, Notions, Jewelry, Stationery, Cologne, Ribbons, Bags, Trunks, Underclothes, &c., and the prices are the lowest in the Twin-City.

FOUNDED 1861.

HORNER SCHOOL,

OXFORD, N. C.

Fall Term Opens Aug. 4, 1890.

FACULTY :

J. H. HORNER, M. A., University of N. C.
(Founder of School.)
Col. J. T. DREWRY, Com'd't, Star Graduate Virginia Military Institute.
J. C. HORNER, A. M., Davidson College.
G. A. WAUCHOPE, M. A., Ph. D., University of Berlin, Late Fellow Wash. & Lee Univ.
Rev. J. M. Horner, B. A., B. D., University of Virginia and Johns Hopkins University.

→*MISS EMMA L. LEINBACH,*←
(OF SALEM, N. C.)

AGENT FOR THE SELECTION AND PURCHASE OF

PIANOS,

NO SHODDY PIANOS HANDLED.

Good Second-Hand Pianos, Prime Order, from about
$75 Up. New Pianos from $275 Up.
155 Lexington Avenue New York.

I cheerfully certify that Miss Emma Leinbach has purchased Pianos for our institution, and for residents of our community, and has, in every case, given eminent satisfaction. She unites the three qualities which fit her for responsibilities of this kind—she has fine taste and excellent business judgment; she is a thorough musician, she is thoroughly conscientious.

JOHN H. CLEWELL, Principal.
Salem Female Academy.

Salem, N. C., Feb. 11, 1889.

ARKANSAS, TEXAS AND CALIFORNIA SHORT LINE

Via THE MEMPHIS & LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

The Quickest and most Direct Route to all points in the West and Southwest.

Fourteen Hours and Forty Minutes Quicker

To Dallas, Fort Worth and Texas Pacific points than the New Orleans Long Line: 173 miles shorter to Dallas, and 200 miles shorter to Fort Worth. The shortest and best route for the tourist or invalid to the famous Park and Hot Springs of Arkansas. Woodruff Buffet Sleepers on all night trains, connecting with Through Sleepers in Union Depots for points in Texas and California.

Connections at Little Rock with Little Rock & Fort Smith Railway for Fort Smith, Morrilton, Clarksville, Ozark, Van Buren and the Indian Territory. This route has 11 rough Palace Coaches, and Pullman Combination Parlor and Sleeping cars. Memphis to Waco, Texas, without change. 150 pound<sup>7</sup> of baggage allowed to each whole ticket, and 75 pounds to each half ticket. Remember this is the Shortest, Quickest and Best route, and see that your ticket reads via The Memphis & Little Rock Railroad. For further information, regarding rates, schedules, maps and new Western Ry. Guide, write to R. A. WILLIAMS, G. S., E. P. A., P. O. Box 236 Atlanta, Ga. S. W. TUCKER, G. Pass & Ticket Agt., Little Rock, Ark.

Gloves! Gloves!! Gloves!!!

SCHOUER'S MILLINERY ESTABLISHMENT

announces that after this date they will always have on hand a first-class line of

Harris's Celebrated Kid Gloves

FOR LADIES AND MISSES

in all colors, sizes and prices. These gloves are of finest kid and excellent fit, and are guaranteed to give satisfaction.

A NEW LOT OF HATS JUST RECEIVED, and our prices low as ever.

Special attention given to all orders from the Academy.

ALUMNÆ BADGES. — Mrs. Dr. H. T. Bahnson has been requested by the Alumnae Association to keep on hand a stock of the official badges of the Alumnae Society. She will be pleased to give any information relative to price.

Address MRS. H. T. BAHNSON, Salem, N. C.

A REVOLUTION.

In methods of teaching PHYSIOLOGY and GEOGRAPHY. More and better work done with the use of YAGGY'S STUDIES in one term than in three terms without them.

YAGGY'S GEOGRAPHICAL STUDY,

comprising PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, GEOLOGICAL and ASTRONOMICAL Geography.

YAGGY'S ANATOMICAL STUDY

showing in a striking and original manner the structure and organs of the human body, full size, natural color; also a series of Object Lessons on the ruin of the body by intoxicants.

WHY FOLLOW THE OLD RUTS?

Adopt the above POPULAR, ORIGINAL and FASCINATING APPLIANCES and teach by the OBJECT METHOD

Circulars sent on application.

WESTERN PUBLISHING HOUSE, No. 3 East 14th Street,

April 1890-1y. New York City.

WORCESTER'S DICTIONARY

"The highest authority known as to the use of the English language."

With or without Denton's Patent Index.

The Standard of the Leading Publishers, Magazines, and Newspapers.

The Dictionary of the Scholar for Spelling, Pronunciation, and Accuracy in Definition.

Send for large Circular to the Publishers,

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA.

May, 1890. 1 y.

(REVISED EDITION.)

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia is a whole library of universal knowledge from the pen of the ablest scholars in America and Europe. It is accepted as high authority in our leading colleges.

IT IS NOT FOR THE FEW,

Like Appleton's, the Britannica, or the "International,"

BUT FOR ALL.

It has just been thoroughly revised at a cost of over $60,000, and three years' labor by forty editors, and over 2,000 renowned contributors.

It is in 8 convenient sized volumes.

No father can give to his child at school, or his son or daughter just entering the arena of life, anything that will be of more permanent benefit.

It is an education supplementary to that of the Schools

"The next few years will witness a great change in educational ideas. The possibilities of self-culture are to be emphasized, and the means of aid and direction increased. After a careful examination of 'Johnson's Universal Cyclopaedia,' I am convinced that while it is excellently adapted to the needs of professional and business men, it is eminently useful to the earnest, thorough self-educator.

"This work, with its corps of contributors, offers accurate articles on the widest range of subjects. To the value of trustworthy information is added the inspection of personality associated with great names.

I heartily commend this Cyclopaedia to all,

and especially to those who are pursuing self-set courses in the great university of life.

JOHN H. VINCENT, (Bishop),
"Chancellor, Chataqua University."

Address, for particulars, terms and circulars,

A. J. JOHNSON & CO.,

11 Great Jones Street, N. Y.

Representatives wanted in every county.

From the Librarian of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

DEC. 16, 1889. — "There is perhaps no better test of the merit of a cyclopaedia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA has, during many years' experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language."

From Rev. Thos. Hill, D.D., LL.D., Ex-President of Harvard University.

PORTLAND, MAINE, Aug. 6, 1889. — "JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA (revised edition) is an ever-present companion and friend, and I consult it very much more frequently than I do my Britannica, Appleton's, Webster's Unabridged, etc., etc., and very seldom fail to find in it just the kind and amount of information which I need."

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL.D., Librarian of Congress, Washington D. C.

"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPAEDIA is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference."

DAVIS SCHOOL.

Military Boarding School FOR BOYS and YOUNG MEN.

Full preparation for any College or for Business. Healthy location; fine climate; mild winters; excellent buildings; Cadet Cornet Bands; Band Orchestra; Resident Surgeon. No Charge for Medical Attention. No Extra Charge for Languages or Sciences. Department of Art. Full Course VERY LOW RATES. For Register with full particulars address

COL. A. C. DAVIS, Supt., WINSTON, N. C.

BELO-HOUSE.

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan, '90—1y.

"Bingham School

stands pre-eminent among Southern boarding Schools for Boys."—U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Combines more desirable qualities than any other with which I am acquainted."—Lieut. J. B. Batchelor, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

"There exists not the equal of this School in my opinion."—Capt. Henry Wygant, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

More than 100 pupils from other States, the largest number in a Southern School for boys from outside the State of location.

Address,

Maj. R. BINGHAM.

Bingham's School, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER, JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE

HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.

REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

OF

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS, LADIES' WORK BASKETS, FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES, AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT," AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs, Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters, Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

TO THE PATRONS OF
SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway

offers first-class service between Winston and Salem and Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, St. Augustine and all other points on the Atlantic Coast Line, and Savannah Florida and Western systems in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Solid trains run to Wilmington, where easy transfer is made by hack in the forenoon to the trains of the

Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley,

then a change of cars is made at Walnut Cove Union Station, arriving at Winston-Salem at 9:00 p. m. Those not securing through tickets can purchase tickets and re-check their baggage to Winston-Salem at Wilmington. From all stations on the Main Line of the CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VALLEY to Winston-Salem only one change of cars is necessary, at Walnut Cove Union Station.

J. W. FRY, W. E. KYLE,
Gen. Sup't. Gen. Pass. Ag't
Greensboro, N. C. Fayetteville, N. C.

TO THE PATRONS OF
Salem Female Academy.

WHY

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway

is the BEST LINE for patrons from Salem, N. C., to Arkansas and Texas?

It is the Only Line that runs from Memphis to Arkansas and Texas Two Trains Daily.

Road Bed and Equipment are first-class. Sure connection by all lines from the East, and when sufficient to justify a Special Pullman Palace Car or Day Coach will be furnished for the exclusive use of the party, with an agent to escort to destination.

The same arrangements can be made to return from Texas or Arkansas to the School. For complete Itinerary of Route, address

A. A. GALLAGHER,
Southern Pass. Agt.

103 Read House, Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. TOWNSEND,
G. P. A.,
St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED.

Patrons of this paper, old students of Salem Female Academy, everybody interested in the history of the early Moravians of North Carolina to send for a copy of "TWIN-CITIES - WINSTON - SALEM." Price 25 cents. Stamps received. Address,

Mrs. A. V. WINKLER,
Salem, N. C.

Mar. '90-4m

NORTH.

The shortest and most direct line to Harrodsburg, Shelbyville, Lexington, Frankfort, Paris. Only 11 hours and 25 minutes Chattanooga to Louisville, only 11 hours Chattanooga to Cincinnati, only 12 hours Knoxville to Cincinnati without change, with luxurious Pullman Boudoir Sleeping Cars through without change, making close connections North-bound for St. Louis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Canadian points, New York, Boston, New England Points and the Summer Resorts of the North and East, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

SOUTH.

The only line Chattanooga to Birmingham, Meridian, Jackson, Vicksburg, and Shreveport, making direct connections without omnibus transfer at Shreveport for Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston, Austin, Texas; New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Mexico and California. Shortest and Quickest Line to New Orleans, with solid Trains and Through Pullman Sleepers, making direct connections for Texas, Mexico and California. Close connection made en route for Memphis, Little Rock and Arkansas Points, Amiston, Columbus, Montgomery, Mobile, Natchez. Passengers ticketed and Baggage checked through to destination.

For rates, Correct County Maps, and full information, call at QUEEN & CRESCENT TICKET OFFICE, READ HOUSE, or CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION CHAS. H. MILLS, Ticket Agt. C. S. BARRETT, T. P. A. Depot. Read House. D. J. MULLANEY, Div. Pass. Agt., Chattanooga, Tenn. C. C. HARVEY, CINCINNATI, O. D. G. EDWARDS, Vice Pres. G. P. & T. A.

THE

"COTTON BELT ROUTE"

St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railway,
Carries More Pupils to an from Arkansas and Texas than all other lines to those States combined.

Why? Because this is the only line which has furnished, as promised, elegant chair cars direct from the school to the scholar's home, and from the home back to school without changes en route. These cars are fitted up for this class of travel exclusively with retiring and toilet rooms, accompanied by an attentive porter and in charge of an Agent of the Company, who sees that the car is reserved for the use of the pupils only.

We have handled the First-Class Schools of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and other States for a series of years, and in no instance has any school, commencing with us, patronized, subsequently, any other line.

This is the only line from Memphis running Two Daily Trains through to Texas without change of cars, and without Omnibus Transfer in Memphis from Eastern Lines.

Correspondence solicited from Principals of Schools and Parents concerning the safe conduct of scholars, by

D. MILLER, E. W. LaBEAUME,
General Pass. Agent. Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

H. W. Morrison, S. G. Warner, W. H. Winfield,
Gen. Agt. Trav. Agt. Gen. Agt. P. Dept.
Memphis, Tenn. Memphis, Tenn. Texarkana, Tex.
W. G. Adams, Pass. Agent, Nashville, Tenn.

:- "SOLD ON MERIT." :-
THE LIGHT-RUNNING "DOMESTIC."

Do you need a Piano?
Do you need an Organ?
Do you need a Violin?
Do you need a Musical Implement of any kind? Have you an old Instrument you wish to exchange?
If so you will find it to your interest to call and consult the undersigned.

W. P. ORMSBY,
MAIN ST., - - SALEM, N. C.

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

STIEFF PIANOS

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XIII.

SALEM, N. C., FEBRUARY, 1891.

NUMBER 113.

OUR COOKING SCHOOL.

ELLEN H. RICHARDS, in one of her Household Manuals, says:

"The prosperity of a nation depends upon the health and the morals of its citizens; and the health and the morals of a people depend mainly upon the food they eat and the homes they live in.

"Strong men and women cannot be raised on insufficient food. Good-tempered, temperate, highly moral men cannot be expected from a race which eats badly cooked food, irritating to the digestive organs and unsatisfactory to the appetite. Wholesome and palatable food is the first step in good morals, and is conducive to ability in business, skill in trade and healthy tone in literature."

It is with a deep conviction of the truth of these statements that SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY hopes to accomplish something for the improvement, physically, mentally and morally, of her daughters and those whose lives they will largely control in the years to come.

A woman's knowledge of music, art and the ologies cannot fail to give her the culture and enjoyment which are their natural effects, but a practical knowledge of home-making and keeping will bear yet richer fruit for her and hers, opening an avenue of healthful activity, enabling her to fill acceptably and with ease to herself, the constantly occurring need of faithful service.

A solution of the present servant difficulty will be found when educated women know, not only how a thing should be done, but how to do it, and think it as honorable to keep a family well and happy by their skill as cooks as to pursue any other of the avocations open to women.

In considering how best to conduct the Cooking Classes various public and private schools in Boston and New York have been visited, and their methods carefully studied. We have incorporated the best points of several in our plans which must be adapted to our local resources.

It seemed best, in fitting out the department, to use the stove, fuel and materials which pupils will find in their home laboratories, with such added conveniences as they can easily procure or contrive.

The purely chemical side of cooking would fail to interest the average school girl; still, some knowledge of the classification and composition of foods is necessary in order to know how to prepare them that they may prove more digestible and nourishing. This knowledge will be imparted from time to time as it applies to the work in hand, for cooking, like everything else, is better when thought is put in it, and there is much food for the mind in the preparation of food for the body.

A class of six or eight girls will meet and prepare a three course dinner,—soup, meat and vegetables, and dessert,—simple at first and more elaborate as they become more skillful. Each pupil will have her part assigned, and will be carefully instructed in the "how and why" of the preparation throughout. Some one will be appointed Scribe, to take notes of matters under discussion, write out recipes correctly, and, after the teacher's inspection, each member of the class will copy them into her own book.

A dining-room adjoins the kitchen, and here the table will be laid with due regard to Boston's very exacting code of table setting. It may seem a trifle ridiculous at first to lay stress on small matters like the placing of knives and forks, but eventually we find that to have perfect order rules are necessary—they are easy to learn and the habit of exactness being formed, there is no further effort necessary, and work systematized is half done.

Sometimes the class will take dinner as a family with the servants away, at other times mistress and maid will be appointed, so that a knowledge of how to preside and how serving should be done may be practically learned. Table manners will also receive due attention.

After dinner the table will be cleared, the dishes washed, wiped and put away, and the dining-room and kitchen left in order by the adjourned class.

Through the Industrial Department.

HAVE you time to walk through the Industrial Department with us? Is not the view lovely from this long veranda? Our glance sweeps over Wachovia Park, the ACADEMY Pleasure Grounds, down the ravine and across to "Happy Hill." How the sunshine lies on it to the last setting ray!—of course, it is a happy hill.

But walk in, through the hall, into the north-east room of Park Hall. The same lovely view greets us out of the two east windows, and from the north window we see our peaceful cemetery with its dark cedars. In the Industrial Department we are reminded that after work comes Rest,—happy shall we be if, by and by, it can be truthfully said of us, "She hath done what she could."

This is the room for Sewing, Dress-making and Embroidery. The straw matting on the floor gives it a clean, fresh appearance, and we shall not want a dusty carpet in the room where our pretty fabrics are lying out, by and by. The dotted Swiss lambrequins look dainty, do they not? We have them in kitchen and dining-room also,—they are so easily laundered and look so fresh. This long table will be used in cutting out our work, as we need to lay all our patterns on our goods, and turn them about until they cut advantageously. These roomy wall-closets are for materials and "unfinished business." They can be locked so that we may find every thing as we leave it.

The north-east room, into which we pass from the Sewing-room, is the Kitchen. Of course, the stove is the most important piece of furniture. It is a very simple one, without ornament, and after it was bought was found to have "The Southern Home" on its front plate. Here is a long dresser, with convenient shelves and drawers. Two tables and a sink complete the furniture. We think this closet, which opens also on the other side into the dining-room, is very convenient; we can pass dishes through below, and on the shelves above keep the china, washing and putting it away on the kitchen side, and taking it out for setting the table on the dining-room side. We have oil-cloth on both kitchen and dining-room floors, as grease (which, however, we never intend to spill) can be so easily wiped up.

We are very pleased with the Dining-room, too. It opens from the kitchen and has a west window. An old-fashioned corner cupboard was found in disgrace in an old wood cellar, but after a good scraping, painting and varnishing, with new shelves, make it a very desirable article of furniture indeed. Our sideboard is likewise a resurrection, and we value it as Europeans do their famous singers, when old age comes and their voices go, for what it "was." It is all walnut and eminently respectable. In it our blue and white china, of which we have a full dinner and tea-set, will look very well. We pride ourselves specially on our pretty and good table linen, cloths, napkins, doilies, tray-covers, carving cloths, &c., all having the initials "S. F. A." embroidered in one corner. Our extension table occupies the centre of the room and wears a richly-hued cover between times.

Perhaps when you come again we may be able to give you something more substantial than "dissolving views."

ALASKA.

A Summer Tour in the Wonderland of the North.

BY REV. HENRY ROMINGER.

WE passed through Wrangell Narrows amid gorgeous scenery of towering snow-clad mountains and gigantic glaciers, pushing themselves down through the ravines and dropping their icebergs into the water. The floating ice-cakes gave notice of our approach to the glacier regions. On our right loomed the great Patterson Glacier, put down as 1000 feet high, and it was greeted with shouts of admiration and wonder. Although 15 miles away the long streaks of glacial mud and dirt could be seen on its face, alternating with snow and ice. The whole, as touched by the light of the afternoon sun, was a frozen lake of wonderland, shimmering with silvery lights and throwing off its torrential cascades. If there were no other wonderful places in Alaska the scenic grandeur of Wrangell Narrows alone would give it world-wide fame and make its fortune in the coming centuries when tourists and yachts will crowd these waters and summer villas look out from the romantic islands. Passing several other glaciers and the round mountain peak of the Devil's Thumb, our steamer is at the wharf at Juneau.

The town lies at the base of beetling cliffs, 3,500 feet high, on which snow lies, and down whose sides leap foaming cascades like long silver ribbons. The place has 1500 white inhabitants. There are a number of comfortable dwellings, a nice public school building, a Presbyterian church for whites, one for Indians, and a school for Indian children, a Catholic chapel and school for girls.

On the streets of Juneau you can see groups of Indians selling berries and trinkets. They frequently have blackened faces and wear a most melancholy and sad expression. Different reasons are given for this face-blackening. 1. When fishing on the water, as a preventive against glare, flies or mosquitoes; 2. merely as show and ornament, as some civilized ladies paint; 3. as a sign of mourning; 4. as a sign of anger; 5. as a concealment of old age on the part of the ladies, for they are as sensitive in Alaska as they are in the States.

Immediately across the bay from Juneau, a mile away, we stop at the great Treadwell gold mine, the richest in the world. This mine is said to yield $100,000 per month, paying 100 per cent. profit per month on the stock. It is owned by the Alaska Mill and Mining Company, of San Francisco. The vein is 400 feet wide, cropping out on the surface. The ore in sight is worth five times as much as the price paid for Alaska, and cannot be exhausted in a century. The ore is low grade, averaging $8.50 per ton free gold and 5 per cent. sulphurets, with an assay value of $100 per ton, but the ore is so easily mined that the profits are enormous. The mill and mine are at work day and night, lighted by electricity, and know no Sunday. Wages paid Indians are $60 per month and white men receive $2.00 per day and are boarded in addition by the company.

There are immense mineral resources on Douglas Island and in the vicinity, and a large city will probably spring up here. Our steamer proceeded on through Lynn Canal, between the giant mountain walls, streaked with snow patches and ground by the great glaciers to Pyramid Harbor, the farthest point north we reached, in lat. 59° 13'. Retracing our course and passing Davidson Glacier, 3 miles across its front and 1200 feet high where it slopes to reach the level ground, we proceed northward again into Glacier Bay, and were among the floating ice-cakes, with a chill air sweeping the deck, proclaiming our approach to the crowning glory and climax of the wonderland tour. The morning sun, at 4 o'clock, rose clear and brilliant over a vast panorama of snow-mountains. There was not a cloud in the sky, and all nature seemed at her best to prepare us for the astounding revelation which awaits us at the head of the bay. Huge lumps of ice, dazzling white, resting like blocks of marble on the polished sea, and soon increasing to the size of ice-bergs, are floating past the steamer. Groups of ladies rush to the taffrail and greet the new arrivals with exclamations of wonder. The varied beauty of their colors is inconceivably charming. Some of them are of uniform deep azure, but more are of purest white, striped in their fretwork with silver and the most delicate cerulean blue. Their shapes assume every fantastic appearance from a camel to a cathedral, from a ship to a fairy palace and a mountain peak of snow. The stillness of the air was broken only by faint metallic tinkling sounds of the ice floes as they ground together. The great masses, silent and majestic, glittering and corruscating with light, sea-gulls sitting in long solemn rows upon the battlements, scenes ghost-like and pallid march and countermarch across the field of vision, and momentarily grow more weird. Off to the left wander the truncated peaks of Mt. Fairweather, Crillon, and La Perouse, lifting themselves, snow-covered, out of the vast ice fields below, cut the clear air, 15,000 to 16,000 feet above the sea-level. Among these mountains, 40 miles away, many of the glaciers have their origin. Away to the right and north the sky seems to meet the earth,—on every side, around the whole circumference of your sight, are lines and ranges of snow-capped peaks shutting your glances in. Now look straight ahead in the direction from which the ice-wind is sweeping the steamer's deck. Do you see that ice-river, with ragged surface, shining in its garments of white as the morning sun falls upon it? That is the great Muir Glacier, named after the State Geologist of California, who first explored it in 1879, in company with Mr. Young, the Presbyterian missionary of Wrangell. There, in front of us, three miles away, lies one of the grandest and most stupendous scenes in nature, the greatest glacier in the world outside the polar seas. The steamer approaches nearer and nearer, and what at first appeared to be a level surface meeting the water, rises into a huge ice-wall, 250 to 400 feet high, with ragged peaks serrated and riven in every part by clefts and fissures and jutting pinnacles that seemed about to topple off. An ice river boils up from below, and cascades rush down icy beds. The front, hollowed out into grottoes and caverns, hung with massive stalactites, flashes with dazzling colors, of silver, purest white and an infinite variety of blues impossible to describe. Everything around in that vast, terrible desolation wears a weird, ghostly, supernatural appearance. The ice-wall extends 700 feet under water, and if you could see all of it it would be 1000 feet high. It is over mile wide across the snout or front where it breaks off into the sea. Ten miles back it is ten miles wide, extending 40 miles to its head, and 16 tributary glaciers unite to form this one great ice-river. Professor George F. Wright, 3 years ago, encamped 4 weeks at this great glacier and studied its phenomena. He found it moved at the rate of 70 feet per day in the center and 10 feet on the sides, averaging 40 feet for the whole, and discharges 200,000,000 cubic feet of ice every 24 hours. The Swiss glaciers move only 15 to 17 inches a day, and are mere pigmies beside this great Alaska glacier, whose dimensions and movements make it one of the physical wonders of the world. Professor Wright says his visit to this glacier is one of the events of his life, and that he will publish a book on the great ice age in North America, in which the Muir Glacier and those of the Pacific Coast will furnish the subject of a prominent chapter.

The steamer comes to a stop immediately under the ice-wall that towers five times higher than the vessel's mast. The deck cannon is fired point-blank at the front of the glacier; a moment of silence follows, and then a thundering echo reverberates among the gloomy crags, succeeded by a long sharp roll as it is flung from cavern to cavern in the ice. The crack of the rending ice and crash of falling fragments add inspiration and excitement. But right before you as you look up at the towering wall, a huge pinnacle from the very summit cleaves itself from the mass, and the apparent slowness of the descent is sublimity itself, because it carries with it the measure of its stupendous vastness and inappreciable height. It topples into the watery abyss with the roar of cannon discharge, and sends huge foam crested waves rolling in breakers to the shore, the resulting swell from which tosses the steamer like a toy. To hear the deafening roar of the cracking ice and witness the stupendous throes that give birth to the ice bergs, attended with detonations like the explosion of artillery and reverberations of thunder across the skies, to see the foam lashed water dashed up two thirds the height of the cliff and the mighty wreckage which follows each convulsion, to see all that terrible grandeur and measure of infinite power makes an epoch in one's life. The process of world-building carried on by titanic forces is here exhibited before your eyes. It appalls and fascinates. Its overmastering sublimity and impressiveness must be seen to be appreciated.

The steamer anchors near the shore, and all disembark to go see the glacier. After climbing for a mile or more over the debris of the terminal moraine and heaps of stones ground round and smooth by the ice, we can look along the side and see the broken ice pinnacles of the water front. On the sides near the lateral moraine the ice is smooth, and you can walk for miles over the dull gray surface and hear the roar and gurgle of the river beneath the glacier. But as you go towards the centre huge crevasses yawn, and the ice is pushed up into hills and tossed and broken like the waves of an angry sea. The passengers wandered for hours over the glacier, gathering relics of rounded pebbles and pieces of cedar wood brought down from the interior on the ice, and some small blue flowers that grew around the great boulders in the terminal and lateral moraines. As we returned we went up the beach towards the front of the ice-wall and saw the great ice cakes stranded on the shore. When the anchor was lifted the steamer took a great sweep up nearer to the glacier front, and as we lay there for an hour several grand crashes occurred, great sections of the front falling off with deafening roars into the water. The day spent at the Muir Glacier will live forever in the memories of all who witnessed that stupendous scene. The day was perfect in sunshine and beauty, and of all sights and objects in nature nothing could be grander or more impressive than those we had looked upon. The primeval forces that built the earth and moulded its surface were at work there and it was all so far away and out of the every day world that we might have been walking a new planet fresh fallen from the Creator's hand. As we sat on the deck, gliding out of the bay in the golden rays of the afternoon sun the ice-mass was glorified and transfigured, and we looked back regretfully as the great glacier disappeared from view.

After an outside passage of 12 hours, through Cross Sound, we were in Sitka, the capital of Alaska. There are four civilizations represented in Sitka, the Russian, American, Indian and Chinese. The population is about 1200, of which 300 are white, and the remainder Russians, half-breeds, Indians and Chinamen. First of all we look at the old Castle, standing on a little bluff near the wharf. In this lived the Russian governors and gave banquets and entertainments, but now no vestige of the old glory remains to illuminate the dark bare walls. Desolation reigns throughout the halls and the wind whistles through windows and empty rooms from which the plaster and ancient paper is crumbling. The steps leading up to the entrance are nearly rolled away, and when they disappear scaling ladders will have to be used to get up. The Russians left everything in good order when they retired from Sitka in 1867, but now things are falling into ruin, with the U. S. Government indifferent and nobody apparently to care for their sad fate. The old castle which overlooks the town and which was once the pride of the Barouffs and Romanoffs is now the most of all the Badlyoffs.

As we proceed along to the end of the street across a small court we see the most imposing building of Sitka, the Greek Church. The lofty dome and minarets, with three bells cast in Russia, rise curiously in this far-off Alaskan wilderness. The glory of this church, like everything else around Sitka, is disappearing. The faded walls and roof, almost destitute of paint, tell a sad tale. It was once a cathedral, presided over by a bishop, but has now only one priest, who ministers to a few hundred half breeds and Indians, there being scarcely any native Russians left in Sitka. The services in this church are conducted in the old Slavonian language, which it is safe to say no human being in Sitka but the priest perhaps can understand. The service, however, with its pomp, parade and show is said to be very attractive to the Indians.

The thermometer seldom reaches zero at Sitka. The average summer temperature is 51° to 55°, and in midwinter is 31° to 38°. Ice seldom forms, and skating is a rare amusement. The day we spent in Sitka was the most lovely imaginable, with the balmiest sunshine and the clearest, most transparent atmosphere. Sitka is a most romantic place, surrounded by enchanting scenery. It has been compared to Naples, but Naples is not so massive nor near so grand. The harbor has 1000 verdant islets that break the swell of the Pacific. Back of the town the beetling crags frown down in awful majesty. Behind these is a battlement of snow-clad mountains, with the volcanic peaks of Edgecombe and Vistovia lifted high up against the firmament of blue. During the Mexican War Sitka was the metropolis and most important maritime town on the western coast of America, north of Mexico. Here the Russians had a shipyard, foundries, and manufactories of agricultural implements, which were shipped to California and Mexico. Some of the bells on the Mission churches of California were cast at the Sitka foundry. All this industry has now disappeared.

All good things must end, and so must the trip to Alaska, as the tourist finds to his regret. There is nothing wearisome, but everything is full of fascination and surprises each day, and the cruise seems too short when the end approaches. The voyage is one protracted marine picnic and unbroken succession of memorable days. The long nights and days never lose their spell, and in retrospect the wonders of the Northland appear the greater. Everything is wild and we travel for days seeing nothing but an Indian canoe as an indication of the presence of man.

Our steamer is homeward-bound, and we feast again on gorgeous scenery and glorious sunsets. The distance traveled was 2665 miles and the time 20 days. During all that time we were on smooth water, amidst the grandest scenery of the continent. If you could put all Switzerland, the Rhine, the Hudson and Columbia rivers together you would not have an equal of this arctic fairyland of beauty and wonders, this moving extravaganza of scenery presented to the tourist on the Inland Passage to Alaska.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., FEBRUARY, 1891.

Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at Salem, N. C.

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications

THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.

Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—We call special attention to Miss SIEWERS' article on the first page in regard to the new Industrial Department. Not only is it of general interest, but it is of special interest to the large circle of patrons because it enables a pupil who leaves home to still secure domestic instruction. This cannot be over estimated in value. A young girl is sent to school to spend four, five or six years. Perhaps her mother is no longer living. She not only receives the training of mind and the refining influence of music and art, but in addition to this can learn how to become proficient in the management of the domestic portion of the home. This is true also in a special degree, because the models are always of the best. The student in the Industrial Department learns how to roast beef, prepare vegetables, make deserts, according to a good, high scientific standard. She learns how to set a table in the most attractive style; she learns that a kitchen and dining room can be kept as neat and clean as any other room in the house, and these lessons will go through life. This, we repeat, will remove one of the chief objections to boarding school life, and will give the full circle of instruction. The SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY now covers a wide field, in fact completing the circle; the pupil is trained physically; she receives the accomplishments, such as music and art; she can prepare herself for commercial work, i. e. for money making in a good and pleasant position, by short-hand, book-keeping, telegraphy, etc.; she can prepare for her European travels in the special language school; she can also fit herself to successfully conduct the kitchen and dining room, and supervise the neat and attractive garment cutting and making. We rejoice to thus present this new work to our patrons and return thanks to them for their liberal patronage in the past, which enables us thus to widen the field of our usefulness.

Educational Sewing and Dress-Making.

EDUCATIONAL SEWING is being so universally taught in Northern schools, with such very satisfactory results, that SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY adds it to her present work with the confidence that its introduction will be much appreciated when its workings are understood.

Eighteen different stitches, all of practical use, compose the samplers, beginning with an overhanded seam on striped cotton, the stripes being matched lengthwise and crosswise. Meanwhile the subject is Cotton, and by means of what she knows and what the pupil can ascertain the pupil becomes fairly intelligent on the subject. Later, linen, woolens, silks, &c., are taken up, as well as all the implements used by the needlewoman. Considerable knowledge of fabrics and how to judge their quality is acquired, and soon sufficient progress in sewing is made to take up Dressmaking.

The McDowell garment-drafting machine has been decided upon, after advising with dressmakers and teachers in Industrial Schools. It is a thoroughly honest system, very simple as all truly good things are, and cannot fail giving complete satisfaction if properly understood and intelligently used.

The Embroidery department is transferred from the Studio to Park Hall, where its classes will meet in the Sewing Room.

Correspondence.

—We were very pleased to hear once more from our staunch old friend, Dr. Samuel Goodman, Sr., of Tyler, Texas:

It may not be strictly in line to address this letter to you, but I know you and therefore take the privilege. Inclosed you will find a Postal Order for one dollar which will pay for myself and PAMELIA C. GOODMAN for one year to THE ACADEMY. Change PAMELIA'S address from Mount Sylvan, Smith Co., to Hopewell, South Co., Texas.

I have two little grand-daughters, MATTIE'S sisters, in training for your school, and have made arrangements for them to attend there.

My writing is poor, but my excuse is found in the shades of 86 years, which are gathering around me.

Very respectfully,

SAM'L A. GOODMAN, SR.

—Our next is from PATTIE J. JOHNSTON, Brinkleyville, Halifax Co., N. C.:

I enclose 50 cents to renew my subscription to THE ACADEMY. May it have a most prosperous New Year, is the sincere wish of your friend.

PATTIE J. JOHNSTON.

—Mrs. Sullivan, (LUTA BEWLEY) of Anderson, S. C., tells us of her happy recovery from a dangerous illness. Our best wishes attend her in her married life, with warm congratulations on her recovery from severe and protracted sickness:

You are due me a letter; I have expected to hear from you ever since I was married, but the looked for letter has never arrived. I suppose you received NELLIE'S letter telling of my illness?

I was confined to the house two months with typhoid fever and very glad I was to get out at the end of that time, you may be sure. My marriage seems much like a dream to me. I was ill a week before, but would not give up. On the next night before I was married, the physician told Mamma I had a fever, which afterwards developed into typhoid. Of course, they were much alarmed, and a postponement of the marriage was proposed. But the Doctor and Charlie would not listen to such a proposition, and the others had to acquiesce. We had intended to take a trip, but that had been given up before.

When the wedding morning came, I was too ill to leave my room. The guests were assembled, and I was married by my bed-side in my tea gown. When the minister entered, Charlie and I arose, the ceremony was soon over, and that is the last I remember for several weeks.

It is all over now, and I am feeling better than I felt before I was ill. Can't you find a little time to write to me?

With best love from NELLIE and myself.

Yours truly,

LUTA B. SULLIVAN.

—We also acknowledge a kind invitation from Mrs. Emma Lehman (GREIDER) to the Golden Wedding of her parents Mr. and Mrs. William Lehman, on January 14th. It is a blessing rarely vouchsafed to a couple to tread the path of life side by side for half a century, and our heartfelt congratulations attend them.

—Our next communication is from FLORENCE CUMMINGS, of Aspen Grove, N. C.:

Through your kindness a copy of THE ACADEMY published in November was received sometime since. I was delighted to see the paper again, knowing that my subscription had expired I wish to have it renewed.

Do the Seniors have to write a poem as we did last year? I remember last year about this time each one of our class wrote a few verses, and what a hard time we did have over it too!

Please remember me to Mr. and Mrs. CLEWELL, DR. RONDTHALER and all the friends I know.

Your loving pupil,
FLORENCE CUMMINGS.

—A letter from Miss KATE JONES is next on file. We are always glad to hear from her:

I send the enclosed for the Alumnae Scholarship Fund of last summer. I know Miss SIEWERS is Secretary and Treasurer, but seeing in THE ACADEMY that she had gone North, I send it to you as President. I also send 50 cents for the renewal of Mother's subscription to THE ACADEMY.

I noticed in the paper that some of the Seniors had gone North. I don't envy the pleasure, but I certainly wish it had fallen to my lot to have gone in my day and time. But they cannot enjoy their school-life any more than I did, and that ought to satisfy me. We all only have one time to go, and should make the best of it. I would like to see you, but so seldom have time to go the ACADEMY, and then you are always so busy.

With much love.

Yours sincerely,
KATE JONES.

Bethania, N. C.

—MARY PFOHL writes us quite an interesting letter from Columbus, Ga.:

After so long a silence, you will probably think, if you ever do have time to think of me, that I never intend writing back to my Alma Mater, whose very memory I love and revere. How often I think of my friends within her walls! Time passes so quickly I can scarcely keep count. I am so busy that it seems to pass all the more quickly.

I am engaged in rather a new field for girls, but though new, it is very pleasant and profitable.

I am on the evening paper of the city, the Columbus Ledger. A gentleman and his wife started the paper here, four years ago. His wife is a bright, enterprising little lady, and believes in girls making their way in the world, so she decided to fill her composing room with girls. She took 7 and had us carefully taught, from the first rudiments of printing, and now we form the main portion of her composing rooms.

One of the other girls and I are first; we can set on an average one thousand an hour. We are all delighted with our work, and this is a field in which a woman's work is worth as much as a man's.

Remember me kindly to DR. RONDTHALER, and give him my congratulations on his accession to the Bishopric.

My kindest regards to the teachers, and especially for yourself. Enclosed find my subscription for THE ACADEMY.

Yours sincerely,
MARY H. PFOHL.

Columbus, Ga.

Alumnae Scholarship Endowment.

Miss F. Lott, . . . . .	$ .50
Mrs. C. S. Hauser, . . . . .	1.00
Miss Fannie Fisher, . . . . .	.25
Miss Emma Fisher, . . . . .	.25
Previously acknowledged,	$114.00
Total, . . . . .	$116.00

Chronicle and Gossip.

—Lucky for the Industrial Department. The list of embryo cooks is headed by MARY LUCKY.

—CLAUDIA PALMER, of Richmond, has been indisposed for several weeks, but is now rapidly convalescing.

—Gymnasium Hall presents a lively scene almost any time that you visit it. Sometimes it is a party of school girls engaged in skating, romping or promenading and sometimes it is the Calisthenic drill with its class of 200.

—Dr. RONDTHALER gave the Senior Middle Class an hour of interesting stereopticon views January 30th. The hour was the one usually devoted to Biblical Literature, and hence the views were those of scenes in the Holy Land.

—Prof. Ford, of New York, again visited our town and gave his elocutionary entertainment in Gymnasium Hall. He is always welcome, and we enjoy "Carvedat 'Possum" as often as we hear it in the Professor's happy style. Come again.

—Among welcome additions to the Studio, made possible by generous endowments, we have the plaster bust of Clytie, for which we have long wished. Also a number of lovely studies for screens, and some choice landscapes. There are strong symptoms of a mirror craze; you see one can paint on the frame and note the condition of one's bhangs at the same time.

—The Salem Orchestra gave its first concert for the season, in January, and it was in every way an enjoyable and successful evening. The young gentlemen play well, and are a credit to the community. The ACADEMY owes much to their kind aid on its public occasions.

—We know the girls do not wish Mr. CLEWELL any harm, but it was only human nature to feel a little glad that the Chemistry examination was delayed and Trigonometry stepped to one side for a week while he was without his voice. The vocal organs are all right again, and Trigonometry and Chemistry are on the onward march.

—Great excitement prevailed in the ACADEMY when the following notice appeared on the Hall blackboard:

"All intending to take Cooking Lessons will come to the Studio (with thimbles) at 2:45 P. M."

Various were the conjectures as to what connection thimbles have with cooking; somebody suggested they were to be used for biscuit cutters. It turned out quite prosaically after all, for our first cooking lesson was a sewing lesson, and the big aprons in which we expect to do doughty deeds will soon be finished.

—The ACADEMY pupils had the pleasure of listening to a lecture delivered by Mr. Edward Wessels, of Jamaica, West Indies, on the subject of that remarkable island. Mr. Wessels is a fluent speaker and a very intelligent observer, and his audience was greatly interested in the subject. Mr. Wessels runs a line of steamers between Jamaica and New York, being engaged in the fruit trade. He cordially invites the next Students' Tour to visit Jamaica, and as he guarantees no greater expense than that of the tour to Northern cities who knows but that our party may cross the briny deep ere long.

From the Music Department.

—The Piano Recital given by Wm. H. Sherwood before the pupils the ACADEMY on the afternoon of the 5th was the event of the season. From the moment his hands touched the keys the young ladies seemed entranced, and after sitting over 2 hours, listening to one selection after the other, they were loathed to leave. Mr. Sherwood is one of the greatest of American pianists, and has more than a National reputation. He is in every sense an artist. The ease with which he rendered the most difficult portions of his selections, the marvelous beauty of his tones, and his brilliant, yet thoroughly sympathetic touch made an impression which will last for many days in the memory of his hearers. To listen to such a programme as Mr. Sherwood gave us on Thursday was the highest kind of a musical education.

Miss EVANS assisted Mr. Sherwood with a couple of vocal selections, which she rendered in her usual finished and artistic manner, thus forming a most rare musical combination of splendid talent.

The following is the programme :

Bach—Bourée, in A Minor. (From second English Suite.)
Mendelssohn.—"Song without Words." No. 23, A Minor.
"Volklied."
Ombra leggiera. Recitative and Aria from Dinorah.

Miss KATHARINE W. EVANS.
Pagini—Liszt—"La Campanella."
Beethoven.—"Sonata, quasi una Fantasi" ("Moonlight"). C sharp minor Op. 27, No. 2.
Sherwood, Wm. H.—"Buy a Broom." Op. 14, No. 1.
Grieg.—"Norwegian Bridal Party passing by." Op. 19, No. 2.
Schubert—Liszt—"Soiree de Vienne." No. 6.
Hetzou's Fruehling.
Miss KATHARINE W. EVANS.
Schumann.—"Warum."
Chopin.—"Nocturne," D flat. Op. 27, No. 2.
"Waltz," A flat. Op. 42.
Gounod—Liszt—"Faust."
Wagner—Brassin.—"Magic Fire Charm." (From "Die Walkure.")
Wagner—Liszt.—"Tannhauser March."

Our Library.

—Some months since in giving the list of books donated by the friends of the Institution, by accident one donated by BESSIE PFOHL, an esteemed Post Graduate of last year, was overlooked. She kindly placed a handsome volume entitled "The Last Days of Pompeii," and the book has been engaged by many.

The Academy Register.

[The following list gives the names of resident pupils only, and embraces, under general date of entrance,—1 Name of Pupil. 2. Date of Birth. 3. Name of Parent or Guardian. 4. Residence.

We shall esteem it a special favor if earlier pupils of the ACADEMY, under whose notice this list may fall, will communicate any items of intelligence respecting their former school-mates here mentioned, particularly married names and present P. O. addresses.—EDS ACADEMY.]

*— I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet-hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed!*

- 5152 FLORENCE MAY DAVIDSON. — 1855.
W. F. Davidson, Charlotte, N. C.
5153 ALICE LUCRETIA RUMSEY. — 1860.
J. A. Rumsey, Atlanta, Ga.
5154 ELLA CARRIE PAGE. — 1859.
J. R. Pace, Rogersville, Tenn.
5155 JULIA LOVE. — 1857.
Dr. Robert Love, McConnellsville, S. C.
5156 LAURA G. MOFFATT. — 1861.
Henry Moffatt, Lewisville, N. C.
5157 ANNA McMILLAN. — 1856.
H. McMillan, Fayetteville, N. C.
5158 EMMA MATILDA GREIDER. — 1861.
Rev. E. P. Greider, Bethania, N. C.

- 5159 PRISCILLA JANE SWAIM.
Wm. F. Swaim, Farmington, N. C.
5160 LUCINDA SALISBURY. — 1859.
W. L. Salisbury, Columbus, Ga.
5161 LULA A. SIGMAN. — 1859.
Mrs. Martha J. Sigman, Atlanta, Ga.
5162 MOLLIE ALICE LEAK. — 1860.
J. H. Leak, Wilson's Store, N. C.
5163 SUSIE JONES. — 1859.
W. H. Jones, Suffolk, Va.
5164 ANSIE A. WOOD. — 1861.
Mrs. C. M. Wood, Edenton, N. C.
5165 MARTHA ROSABEL FRAZIER. — 1857.
J. M. Frazier, Lawsonville, N. C.
5166 IDA F. HAMLEN. — 1859.
Winston, N. C.
5167 ELIZABETH HUNT. — 1859.
Winston, N. C.
5168 ELMIRA THOS. VANHOOK. — 1856.
R. C. Vanhook, Eldorado, Ark.
5169 EMMA WILLIE LEE. — 1859.
5170 SARAH OTELIA LEE. — 1861.
Capt. P. H. Lee, Franklin, Va.
5171 LULA J. HENDERSON. — 1859.
Col. Wm. F. Henderson, Lexington, N. C.
5172 LAURA AVE LONA WALKER. — 1856.
Dr. N. S. Walker, Eatonton, Ga.
5173 FANNIE McDADE. — 1856.
Wm. T. McDAde, Eatonton, Ga.
5174 HATTIE E. HARLLEE. — 1853.
5175 MATTIE O. HARLLEE. — 1858.
Dr. W. F. Harllee, Argyle, N. C.
5176 VIRGINIA ELIZABETH MCKINSEY. — 1854.
J. W. McKinsey, South Boston, Va.
5177 JENNIE REID HOUSTON. — 1857.
Dr. G. J. Houston, Mt. Mourne, N. C.
5178 CARRIE A. HILL. — 1856.
Eli G. Hill, Powers P. O., Ga.
5179 ELLA AMANDA MARSH. — 1859.
Thomas Marsh, Guilford City, N. C.
5180 KATIE WILLIE HANNAH. — 1859.
Thomasville, N. C.
5181 CLAUDIA PAXTON. — 1860.
Mrs. E. B. Paxton, Edenton, N. C.
5182 ANNA LOUISA MACK. — 1860.
5183 EMMA MINERVA MACK. — 1863.
Rev. Edward Mack, New Spring Place, Cherokee Nation.
5184 ADDIE G. HODGES. — 1857.
S. E. Hodges, Falling Creek, S. C.
5185 LULA K. HARPER. — 1858.
Mrs. Charlotte E. Harper, Falling Creek, N. C.
5186 MOLLIE WHIPPLE HANNA. — 1857.
Jas. S. Hanna, Calvert, Texas.
5187 DORA JANE COLE. — 1857.
Mary E. Lowry, Calvert, Texas.
5188 MOLLIE PITTS WINSHIP. — 1858.
John Winship, Waco, Texas.
5189 LELIA HENDERSON. — 1860.
Dr. A. G. Henderson, Yanceyville, N. C.
5190 FANNIE TURNER KEESEE. — 1859.
Capt. J. D. Keesee, Pelham, N. C.
5191 LULY THOMPSON. — 1861.
Geo. M. Thomson, Leasburg, N. C.
5192 LIZZIE ANN NEAL. — 1860.
Stephen Neal, Lochst Hill, N. C.
5193 MOLLIE J. JONES. — 1859.
J. G. Jones, Oxford, N. C.
5194 AMANDA E. ROGERS. — 1859.
F. I. Rogers, Oxford, N. C.
5195 LAURA LOUISA JONES. — 1862.
5196 SALLIE ELIZABETH JONES. — 1854.
B. F. Jones, Panther Creek, N. C.
5197 MOLLIE SUE BARNES. — 1855.
Decatur Barnes, Reidsville, N. C.
5198 SALLIE JOSEPHINE HILL. — 1858.
J. G. Hill, Germantown, N. C.
5199 ELFREDA WALKER. — 1859.
Peterson County, N. C.
5200 HENRIETTA SCHIFF. — 1860.
J. Schiff, Charlotte, N. C.

Subscriptions Received.

Samuel A. Goodman, Tyler, Texas; Miss Pamela C. Goodman, Hopewell, Texas; Miss Tilla Harmon, Kernersville, N. C.; Miss Mamie Thomas, Thomasville, N. C.; Miss Florence Cummings, Aspen Grove, N. C.; Mrs Dr W T Pate, Laurel Hill, N. C.; Mrs Dr Bogle, Midland, Tenn; Mr W A Brown, Davidson College, N. C.; Mrs Edith Wessels, St. Ann's Bay, Jamaica; Miss Pattie Johnson, Miss Jennie Ragsdale, Jamestown, N. C.; Mrs Mary L Early, Woodlawn, Va; Miss Julia Flake, Beverly, N. C.; Mrs J W Roseborough, Columbus, Miss; Miss Lula Parker, Sylva, N. C.; Mr Jos A Rice, Bethlehem, Pa; Miss Julia Meachum, Anderson, S. C.; Mrs H E Bewley, Russellville, Tenn; Mrs J G Hunt, Oxford, N. C.; Miss Carrie Francisco, Greenville, Tenn; Miss Mamie Caunady, Wilton, N. C.; Mrs Jas A Gray, Mrs A Matthews, Mrs S E Hough, Miss Ada Dodson, Mrs W B Glenn, Mrs E E Shelton, Mrs J E Gilmer, Mrs Ellen Montague, Mrs D H Starbuck, Winston, N. C.; Mrs A A Spangh, Mrs Snsau Keehn, Miss Amy Van Vleck, Mrs Dora Ebert, Mrs C W Vogler, Dr J W Hunter, Mr H W Shore, Mrs M E Ackerman, Mrs C A Hege, Miss A M Hagen, Miss Claude Winkler, Dr N S Siewers, Miss Ella Shore, Miss Ida Moore, Miss Sophie Butner, Salem, N. C.

Married.

LEE—SPENCER.—At Spencer, Va., January 21st, Mr. WILLIAM G. LEE to Miss MATTIE SPENCER.

After March 1st the happy couple will be at home to their friends at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, Cal.

In Jackson, Miss., by the Rev. John Hunter, D.D., Major G. W. TERREL, of Bedford Springs, Va., to Miss AMANDA LEMLY, of Jackson.

Mrs. Terrel was a pupil in the ACADEMY as a little girl during the war.

PRIVATE LESSONS

—IN—

German, French, Latin and Mathematics

—BY—

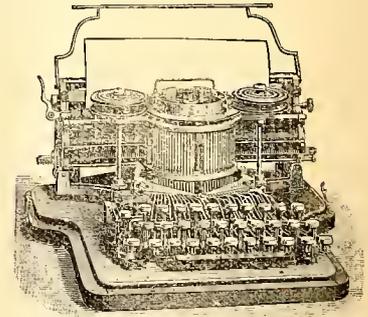

L. B. WURRESCHKE.

Apply for Terms.

Feb. '91—6t.

— USE —

The Hammond Type-Writer.

For SPEED, DURABILITY and BEAUTY OF WORK it has no equal.

The SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY, having tested it, has formally adopted the "HAMMOND," and recommends it where a first-class machine is desired.

For Catalogue and price write to J. W. GANNON, Winston, N. C.

L. V. & E. T. BLUM,
SALEM, N. C.,

BOOKSELLERS, STATIONERS,
PRINTERS.

PUBLISH "THE PEOPLES PRESS,"
FARMER'S AND PLANTER'S ALMANAC.

General Job Printing executed with neatness
and dispatch. Try us.

Printers of Salem Female Academy's publications.

Gloves! Gloves!! Gloves!!!

SCHOUER'S MILLINERY ESTABLISHMENT

announces that after this date they will always have on hand a first-class line of

Harris's Celebrated Kid Gloves

FOR LADIES AND MISSES

in all colors, sizes and prices. These gloves are of finest kid and excellent fit, and are guaranteed to give satisfaction.

A NEW LOT OF HATS JUST RECEIVED, and our prices low as ever.

Special attention given to all orders from the Academy.

ALUMNÆ BADGES. — Mrs. Dr. H. T. Bahnson has been requested by the Alumnae Association to keep on hand a stock of the official badges of the Alumnae Society. She will be pleased to give any information relative to price.

Address MRS. H. T. BAHNSON,
Salem, N. C.

A REVOLUTION.

In methods of teaching PHYSIOLOGY and GEOGRAPHY. More and better work done with the use of YAGGY'S STUDIES in one term than in three terms without them.

YAGGY'S GEOGRAPHICAL STUDY,

comprising PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, GEOLOGICAL and ASTRONOMICAL Geography.

YAGGY'S ANATOMICAL STUDY

showing in a striking and original manner the structure and organs of the human body, full size, natural color; also a series of Object Lessons on the ruin of the body by intoxicants.

WHY FOLLOW THE OLD RUTS?

Adopt the above POPULAR, ORIGINAL and FASCINATING APPLIANCES and teach by the OBJECT METHOD

Circulars sent on application.

WESTERN PUBLISHING HOUSE,

No. 3 East 14th Street,

April 1890-1y.

New York City.

WORCESTER'S DICTIONARY

"The highest authority known as to the use of the English language."

With or without Denslow's Patent Index.

The Standard of the Leading Publishers, Magazines, and Newspapers.

The Dictionary of the Scholar for Spelling, Pronunciation, and Accuracy in Definition.

Send for large Circular to the Publishers,
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,
PHILADELPHIA.

May, 1890. 1 y.

(REVISED EDITION.)

Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia is a whole library of universal knowledge from the pen of the ablest scholars in America and Europe. It is accepted as high authority in our leading colleges.

IT IS NOT FOR THE FEW,

Like Appleton's, the Britannica, or the "International,"

BUT FOR ALL.

It has just been thoroughly revised at a cost of over $60,000, and three years' labor by forty editors, and over 2,000 renowned contributors.

It is in 8 convenient sized volumes.

No father can give to his child at school, or his son or daughter just entering the arena of life, anything that will be of more permanent benefit.

It is an education supplementary to that of the Schools

"The next few years will witness a great change in educational ideas. The possibilities of self-culture are to be emphasized, and the means of aid and direction increased. After a careful examination of Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia, I am convinced that while it is excellently adapted to the needs of professional and business men, it is eminently useful to the earnest, thorough self-educator.

"This work, with its corps of contributors, offers accurate articles on the widest range of subjects. To the value of trustworthy information is added the inspection of personality associated with great names.

I heartily commend this Cyclopedia to all,

and especially to those who are pursuing self-set courses in the great university of life.

JOHN H. VINCENT, (Bishop),

"Chancellor, Chataqua University."

Address, for particulars, terms and circulars,

A. J. JOHNSON & CO.,

11 Great Jones Street, N. Y.

Representatives wanted in every county.

From the Librarian of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

DEC. 16, 1889. — "There is perhaps no better test of the merit of a cyclopedia than its usefulness in such a library as ours at Harvard; and here JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA has, during many years' experience, been found more useful than any other in the English language."

From Rev. Thos. Hill, D.D., LL.D., Ex-President of Harvard University.

PORTLAND, MAINE, Aug. 6, 1889. — "JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA (revised edition) is an ever-present companion and friend, and I consult it very much more frequently than I do my Britannica, Appleton's, Webster's Unabridged, etc., etc., and very seldom fail to find in it just the kind and amount of information which I need."

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, LL.D., Librarian of Congress, Washington D. C.

"JOHNSON'S UNIVERSAL CYCLOPEDIA is found, in the Library of Congress, to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference."

DAVIS SCHOOL.

Military Boarding School FOR BOYS and YOUNG MEN.

Full preparation for any College or for Business. Healthy location; fine climate; mild winters; excellent buildings; Cadet Cornet Band; Cadet Orchestra; Resident Surgeon. No Charge for Medical Attention. No Extra Charge for Languages or Sciences. Department of Art. Full Course VERY LOW RATES. For Register with full particulars address

COL. A. C. DAVIS, Supt.,
WINSTON, N. C.

BELO-HOUSE.

Mrs. HANSLEY desires to state to the patrons and friends of THE ACADEMY that she has opened a first-class Hotel and Boarding House in the well known and popular former Belo House. This House is situated only one block from the ACADEMY; rates are reasonable, and accommodations pleasant and home-like in all respects. When you arrive at Salem be certain to go to the BELO HOUSE. For rates, day, week or month, address Mrs. HANSLEY, or THE ACADEMY. Jan, '90-1y.

"Bingham School

stands pre-eminent among Southern boarding Schools for Boys."—U. S. Bureau of Education.

"Combines more desirable qualities than any other with which I am acquainted."—Lieut. J. B. Batchelor, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

"There exists not the equal of this School in my opinion."—Capt. Henry Wygant, U. S. Army, Instructor in Tactics.

More than 100 pupils from other States, the largest number in a Southern School for boys from outside the State of location.

Address,
Maj. R. BINGHAM,
Bingham's School, N. C.

WM. T. VOGLER,
JEWELLER,

Main Street, WINSTON, N. C.

Dealer in

WATCHES, CLOCKS, JEWELRY and SILVERWARE
HOLIDAY GOODS A SPECIALTY.
REPAIRING DONE PROMPTLY.

GRANDEST DISPLAY

OF

TRAVELING BASKETS, LUNCH BASKETS,
LADIES' WORK BASKETS,
FASHIONABLE MILLINERY and FANCY
GOODS, at very low prices.

All orders by mail will receive prompt attention.

Mrs. T. B. DOUTHIT, SALEM, N. C.

A NICE LINE OF

OIL STOVES,
AT THE "BIG COFFEE POT,"
AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Our latest novelties are:

Pat Flue Stoppers, Picnic Mugs,
Star Safety Razors, Pie Lifters,
Perfection Cake and Pie Tins and Egg
Beaters, all at very reasonable figures.

We solicit a share of your patronage.

Very respectfully,

W. O. SENSEMAN & CO.,

THE ACADEMY.

VOLUME XIII.

SALEM, N. C., MARCH, 1891.

NUMBER 114.

More About Our New Industrial School.

WE give below some glimpses of the work in this new and advanced department of our work, and feel that it will be specially welcome to our Alumnæ and of interest also to the general reader.

Three Hours in the Kitchen.

On Tuesday, Feb. 3d, a class, composed of six Seniors, prepared and served a dinner, and as our readers may feel some curiosity as to what goes on in the kitchen, we will give them some idea of our modus operandi.

At 12 o'clock the class assembled. The first comer usually makes the fire, but on this day it had been made previously, to facilitate matters.

LIZZIE FITZGERALD prepared the soup. The class had learned how to make soup stock two weeks before, and were now to discover how to make soup without stock. The following is the receipt worked out on this occasion :

TOMATO SOUP.

- 1 quart canned tomatoes.
- 1 pint hot water.
- 1 tablespoonful sugar.
- 1 teaspoonful salt.
- 4 cloves.
- 4 pepper corns, or 1 saltspoonful white pepper.
- 1 tablespoonful butter.
- 1 tablespoonful chopped onion.
- 1 tablespoonful chopped parsley.
- 2 tablespoonsful corn starch.

Put the tomatoes, water, sugar, salt, cloves and pepper on to boil. Put the butter in a small saucepan, and when it bubbles put in the onion and parsley. Fry this five minutes, being careful not to let it burn. Add the corn starch, and when well mixed stir all into the tomatoes. Let it simmer ten minutes. Strain and serve it with crisped crackers.

LENA FIELDS crisped the crackers in this way : she halved them, spread them with butter on one side, and slipped the pan containing them into the oven on the rack. In ten minutes they were nicely browned when she arranged them daintily on a plate and took them into the dining-room.

BLOOMFIELD GAMBILL scored a success with the most difficult item on the bill of fare. She took the four-pound piece of beef sirloin, and with a wet cloth wiped it on all sides, as putting meat into water extracts the juices. With a slender-bladed and pointed boning knife she removed all the bone and gristle. This done the meat was made as compact as possible, and a stout twine was passed twice around it and tied securely. It was then sprinkled all over with salt and pepper and dredged with flour, which was rubbed into every crack and crevice to prevent the escape of the meat juices. A dripping-pan with two tablespoonfuls of lard in it, was put on top the stove, and when this was hot the wire-rack was put into the pan and the meat placed on it. The pan was slipped into a hot oven, on the rack, in order to sear the meat quickly on all sides and keep the juices in it. Later the pan was put in the lower part of the oven, with a tile or piece of iron under it, as if this is not done the lard is burned and unfit for gravy. The pan was taken out of the oven every ten minutes and the lard was spooned over it. Twice it received a sprinkling of salt, pepper and flour, and now and then it was turned. All this care produced a fine result : on carving it the meat was found to be done to a turn and full of juiciness.

Meanwhile ANNIE READ took the biscuit in hand, beginning half an hour before they were wanted. She sifted one pint of flour, two scant teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and half a teaspoonful of salt together three times in order to have them thoroughly mixed. She rubbed into this half a tablespoonful of lard, and then stirred in about one-third of a pint of milk. She handled the dough as little as possible, and having turned it out on a well-floured board, rolled it lightly and cut her biscuits, baking them about 15 minutes. To serve them she covered a plate with a doyley and, putting the biscuits on it, brought the corners together and pinned them so that the biscuits were kept warm and tender and had none of the unpleasant dampness they get from lying on a plate.

GEORGIA BAXTER concocted the cabbage salad. She cut the cabbage on a vegetable cutter, added a hard-boiled egg, chopped fine, and made a mayonaise, as follows :

- One raw egg well beaten.
- One saltspoonful celery seed.
- One teaspoonful white sugar.
- One tablespoonful melted butter.
- One teaspoonful flour.
- One-half cup butter.

Salt, mustard and pepper to taste. Boil the vinegar and pour it on the beaten egg, sugar, butter and seasoning. Wet the flour with cold vinegar and beat it into the mixture. Cook it, stirring until it thickens, and pour it upon the salad. Serve it as cold as possible.

To serve it temptingly she placed some of the delicate, green, uncut cabbage leaves in the dish to form a sort of calyx for the salad.

VIRGINIA McMURRAY prepared the corn, which being canned only needed a good heating, with the addition of a little salt, pepper, cream and flour.

ANNIE REID washed and pared the potatoes, letting them lie, when pared, in cold water for half an hour. She then poured off the cold water (thirty minutes before dinner) and put them on the stove in boiling water. When done every drop of water was drained off, they were given a good shaken which made them mealy, and after squeezing them through our patent masher, she added salt, pepper, butter and milk.

VIRGINIA McMURRAY made a delicious Queen of Puddings according to the following receipt :

- One pint stale bread crumbs.
- One cup sugar.
- One ounce butter.
- One quart milk.
- Four eggs.

Juice and grated rind of one lemon. Soak the crumbs in the milk for half an hour. Beat the yolks of the eggs and the sugar together until light, then add them to the crumbs and milk, mix and add the lemon. Pour it into the pudding dish and bake it in a moderate oven half an hour.

Whip the whites of the eggs, add four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and beat until very stiff. When the pudding is baked, put over the top a layer of the egg, then a layer of fruit jelly (currant is nicest) and the remainder of the egg. Brown slightly on the oven rack.

Serve cold, with a pint of rich cream, into which two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar have been dissolved. Flavor this with one teaspoonful vanilla extract and half a nutmeg grated.

LIZZIE FITZGERALD and GEORGIA BAXTER served the table. "We all sat down together," as the Kindergartners sing, but when the time came they removed our plates and brought on the next course. BLOOMFIELD GAMBILL carved and LIZZIE FITZGERALD served the soup and pudding at the other end of the table.

Dinner over we again donned our big aprons, and in half an hour "willing hands" had made "light work," the washing, wiping and putting away of the dishes was finished, and the kitchen and dining-room swept and put in order.

From 12 to 3 o'clock the girls worked busily and really enjoyed the change of occupation.

Voices from the Sewing Class.

During the past month we have been working diligently, each with the hope that she may obtain the grize (a gold thimble) in June. Besides sewing, we have studied cotton in all its aspects, and offer our friends a composite essay on the subject. Each pupil wrote all she knew and all she could find out, and a sentence or two will be found in the literary hash of cottony texture given below. One article handed in was so carefully prepared and so complete that we give it entire :

The cotton plant is cultivated in the Southern States, and is sown in March and April, in rows four or five feet apart. In July it begins to blossom. It is said that no crop in the United States presents an appearance so beautiful as growing cotton, especially when the globes of snowy wool are seen among the glossy, dark green leaves. The season best adapted to the growth of cotton is a wet and warm spring, allowing the young plants to become well started and firmly set in the soil ; a long hot summer, with bright days and dewy nights, with occasional showers to mature the bolls. The flowers are pale yellow, with five petals having purple spots at their base. A triangular pod succeeds the flower and contains in three cells the seed and the three locks of white down which burst forth and cover the shell of the pod when this opens at its maturity. The seeds of the short staple cotton are green and in size larger than the grape. They are sown every year. In Santo Domingo the cotton plant instead of being a simple bush planted from the seed each year, is a tree growing two to three years, which needs only to be trimmed and pruned to produce a large yield of the finest cotton. Cotton was found by Humboldt in the Andes growing at an elevation of 9000 feet, and in Mexico 5500 feet. The earliest notice of cotton is by Herodotus, about 450 B. C., who speaks of the Indias bearing as their fruit fleeces more delicate and beautiful than those of sheep, and of the Indians using them for the manufacture of cloth. Spain was the first of the European countries to adopt the cotton culture. De Soto found cotton growing wild on the Mississippi and its tributaries. In 1786 the first sea island cotton was raised on the coast of Georgia. The seeds were obtained from the Bahamas. The sea island is the finest and the best kind of cotton grown, and its cultivation is limited to districts along the shores of South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Texas. Early in August the picking season begins and continues until November and sometimes until the latter part of December. The height of the picking season is in October. The picking is done by hand. Each person will pick an average of 200 to 300 pounds a day. The cotton is brought from the fields in wagons to the gin. If damp it is dried in the sun.—ANNA NEELY.

Cotton is a soft downy substance resembling fine wool, growing in the capsules or pods of the Gossipium, or cotton plant.—MINNIE SHANDS.

It came to the United States through the Bahama Islands from one of the Caribbean Isles, and is supposed to have originated in Persia.—WILLIE LUTZ.

It is most abundant in Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.—HUBERTA READ.

The plant which supplies the raw material for one of our greatest industries and for the clothing of all nations may claim to be ranked amongst the most valuable of Nature's productions. There are many different kinds, among which are the Asiatic or Indian cotton, and the Occidental or American cotton. The latter has only become known to the civilized world since the discovery of America, and consists of two great divisions, the Barbadian, or black seeded cottons, bearing pure yellow blossoms, with a reddish purple spot at the base of the petals, and the Hirsute, or hairy cottons, more or less covered with a distinct clothing of hairs, bearing white or partly primrose-colored blossoms.—LOUISE PATTERSON.

The most important kinds of cotton are herb-cotton, a small plant ; shrub-cotton, about as large as a currant-bush, and tree-cotton, which grows two or three times as high as a man. In the United States shrub-cotton is mostly grown : a little tree cotton is raised on the islands along the Atlantic and the Gulf, and it is called Sea Island cotton. It differs from the shrub-cotton in having longer and more silky fibres.—JONNIE POWERS.

The cotton plant grows from two to eight feet in height. It is planted in the early spring, and kept well weeded by means of hoes and ploughs until summer when the plant blooms.—VIRGINIA McMURRAY.

The bloom is at first cream-colored, then red, and falls off on the third day. If it rains on the day it is cream-colored it will fall off and no cotton will come there.—VIOLE DAVIS.

After the bloom comes the pod, and the bolls follow. They are the seed holders of the plant and soon burst the pod, showing the beautiful white cotton.—HUBERTA READ.

The bolls vary in size from two to three inches in diameter, and some are even larger.—LIZZIE WOOTEN.

The cotton fibre is seldom straight like that of flax, but is either twisted or in the shape of a corkscrew.—MAGGIE HOOD.

In August the picking season begins, and continues to the end of the year. The height of the season is in October.—WILLIE LUTZ.

The gathering of the cotton is the most troublesome part of the cultivation, but the cotton-picker, which has lately been invented in Texas, bids fair to lighten the labor of picking.—AVA STROUP.

White cotton generally indicates superior quality ; a yellowish tinge, when not the effect of accidental wetting, or inclement seasons, is considered as indicating greater fineness.—WILLIE LUTZ.

The lobes in every boll of cotton contain seeds, which, except when covered with down, resemble the coffee berry, and have to be separated from the fibre by a process known as ginning.—LOUISE PATTERSON.

The first cotton gin was made by Eli Whitney in 1792.—HUBERTA READ.

After the cotton is cleaned it has to be combed until all the threads lie one way. It is then made into threads of many kinds, differing in fineness and weight, such as sewing thread, lace thread, and thread for weaving into cloth. Sewing thread differs a little from other kinds, it is spun a little tighter, and dipped into weak gum or starch to make it harder and firmer.—MATTIE WILLIAMS.

The manufacture of cotton had its origin in the East, where the cotton plant thrives and the weather is suited to its growth. Arrian mentions cotton cloth among the many things which the Romans brought from India, but the quantity imported by them was inconsiderable from the preference they gave to woolen clothing.—MAGGIE HOOD.

The cotton seeds not required for sowing are pressed for their oil, which, when refined, is often mixed with olive oil, or is converted into a cake for feeding cattle, or into a material for making paper, while the refuse is made into soap. Even the stalks of the cotton plant are made to answer some purpose, being used for thatching the roofs of the planter's huts, and for making baskets.—ALMEDA MCGREGOR.

So goes the world, everything changing, new things becoming old and being made into new things again. The very clothing we wear now hath some humble little cotton plant worn long before.—LIZZIE WOOTEN.

Apropos of cotton, Mr. Carl Hecker, artist, says there is no plant to be found having more varied and beautiful forms for conventionalizing in Art work than the cotton plant. Study the forms in the next cotton plant you see, every peculiarity in its growth, the leaves, buds, pods, &c., and you will agree with him. If you visit New York, particularly if you want lessons in Art, call at Mr. Hecker's studio, No. 6 W. 14th St., and if you will let him he will open up to you a world of beauty of which you never dreamed.

—Many applications come from former pupils for an address where good art materials are to be procured. We order exclusively from A. Sussman, 232 Sixth Avenue, New York. He has served us for years and always satisfactorily.

For embroidery materials, stamping, &c., send to Jas. G. Johnson, 8 East 14th St., New York.

—The Juniors have just finished a written examination on the history of Egypt, Chaldea, Assyria, Babylonia and Israel.

Chronicle and Gossip.

—The Mid-winter Concert was an occasion of unusual interest and enjoyment. The programme was arranged with peculiar care, and embraced Vocal, Instrumental and Orchestral music so blended that it was one symmetrical whole. The first evening was for the citizens of our towns, and the hall was filled with patrons and friends who listened with marked sympathy and interest.

The second evening was complimentary to the Davis School Cadets. The young gentlemen, handsomely uniformed, and numbering more than 200, filled the north side of the hall, while the young ladies of the ACADEMY filled the south side. It was an unusually interesting scene to see these 400 or more young persons, gathered from every part of our land, all under strict rule and discipline. Both Colonel Davis and Mr. CLEWELL spoke briefly to the schools, and it is needless to say that the program was rendered with unusual brilliancy. At the close of the exercises the cadets formed on the east side of the square in front of the buildings, while the ACADEMY pupils gathered on the large portico in front of Main Hall. After the Davis School band had rendered a selection, the cadets marched up Main street to their new and comfortable barracks. All seemed to enjoy the evening. The following is the programme:

1. Polish Liberty March, Barnekoy.
SALEM ORCHESTRA.
2. Semi-Chorus. Boat Song. Abl.
3. Piano Solo. Mazurka Appassionata. Op. 32. Mollenhauer.
Miss T. STOCKTON.
4. Vocal Duet. Echoes. Moir.
Misses M. WATSON and M. DUFOR.
5. Piano Solo. Scherzo. No. 2, Op. 31. Chopin.
Miss L. HEGE.
6. Vocal Solo. La Soeur des Rossignols. Bordese.
Miss A. REID.
7. Piano Duet. Les Sylphes. Bachmann.
Misses L. SWANSON and C. EDWARDS.
8. Vocal Solo. Romeo and Giulietta. Valse. Gounod.
Miss F. SETTLE.
9. Piano Solo. Fantasie Brillante. Les Huguenots. Smith.
Miss M. ROBBINS.
10. Double Quartette. Wreath Ye the Steps. Paradise and Peri. Schumann.
Misses F. BUTNER, A. REID, A. JONES, M. ROBBINS, B. THOMAS, BLANCHE THOMAS, M. WATSON, M. DUFOR.

11. Piano Solo. La Rosee du Matin. Smith.
Miss B. WOOD.
12. Vocal Solo. La Calandrina. Jomelli-Viardot.
Miss A. JONES.
13. Piano Solo. Tone Poem, Characteristic. Rive-King.
Miss M. WATSON.
14. Vocal Solo. Le Parlate D'Amor. Faust. Gounod.
Miss BLANCHE THOMAS.
15. Piano Solo. Selections from Variationen und Fuge. Beethoven.
Miss E. SIDDALL.
16. Loreley Club. Ave Maria, from Loreley. Mendelssohn.
Solo: Miss M. ROBBINS.
17. Piano Solo. Priere de Moise. Rossini-Gobbaerts.
Miss B. MORGAN.
18. Vocal Solo. Cero Nome. Recitative and Aria. Rigoletto. Verdi.
Miss KATHARINE W. EVANS.
19. Piano Solo. Etude. Op. 25, No. 9. Chopin.
Miss M. MILLER.
20. Vocal Quartette. Jack and Jill. Caldicott.
Misses M. ROBBINS, A. JONES, BL. THOMAS and M. DUFOR.
21. Piano Solo. Etude. G flat major. No. 5. Chopin.
Miss L. SIDDALL.
22. Sobre Las Olas. Mexican Waltz. Rosas.
SALEM ORCHESTRA.

—The space given to the new Industrial Department will doubtless convince any fair-minded reader that the work done there is not only theoretical but also decidedly practical. But if there should be any doubt we would be pleased to have our readers enjoy the same privilege which the writer of this item had recently when invited to a dinner. Beginning with soup, followed by meat and vegetables and concluding with a delicious dessert, each dish was a success in itself considered and the dinner as a whole a grand success.

—New apparatus has been placed in the Gymnasium, consisting of ladders, bars, rings, &c. Quite a number of the pupils have developed special strength and skill in using them. The drill is entirely voluntary.

—The stage in Gymnasium Hall has been improved within the past month. The gas fixtures have been removed, and in their place are 3 electric lights of 50 candle power each, with large mirror reflectors. In this way the light is entirely concealed from the audience and thrown on the faces of the performers with great power.

THE ACADEMY.

SALEM, N. C., MARCH, 1891.

*Entered as second-class matter in the Postoffice at
Salem, N. C.*

Published every month of the school-year, ten numbers constituting a volume, at 50 cents per annum, payable in advance, postage paid. Single copies 5 cents.

Address subscriptions and communications
THE ACADEMY, Salem, N. C.
Address Personal Correspondence
Miss EMMA LEHMAN, Salem, N. C.

—We give a considerable amount of space to our Industrial Department this month since it will doubtless be welcome to our readers who feel an interest in the new departure.

—Preparations are being made for a specially interesting Alumnæ gathering in June.

—Commencement preparations are in progress, and we hope to place the general outlines before our readers next month.

—A movement is on foot to erect a Hall, with an auditorium sufficiently large to accommodate any audience which may be called together. This is certainly needed by both town and ACADEMY. We hope it may become a reality in the near future.

—Again we are forced to keep out of the columns of our paper much news connected with the life of the school, but as our April issue will follow this number in about two weeks we will make that number distinctly one of Chronicle and Gossip.

—We will give next month an article which appeared in the Twin-City Daily Sentinel, relative to Washington's visit to Salem 100 years ago.

—The Memorial Service of the Rev. C. L. Rights, held in the Moravian church, in Salem, on Sunday, March 15th, was largely attended and was of a most impressive and interesting nature. The services were participated in by the Revs. Rondthaler, Lineback, Hall, Wurrechke, McCuiston and Clewell.

—The Seniors are doing special work in Latin at the present time, as Dr. RONDTHALER intends to lighten the work when we approach nearer to Commencement. In Mathematics they are busy with logarithms and trigonometry.

Register Dates.

BY an oversight the years have been omitted from the Register for a number of issues of THE ACADEMY. For the information of those who file the paper we give the years in question, and the omission can by these means be easily entered on the papers as filed.

- 1867 began with 4558, Miss Cath. Senora Fladger, Mars Hill, S. C.
1867 ended with 4646, Miss Ella Cahill, Newton, N. C.
1868 began with 4647, Miss Lila P. Dillard, Montgomery, Ala.
1868 ended with 4699, Miss Mary G. Thompson, Winnsboro, S. C.
1869 began with 4700, Miss Tomockolee Warren, Georgetown, Ga.
1869 ended with 4804, Miss Julia Parker, Raleigh, N. C.
1870 began with 4805, Miss Charlotte Bettie Nichols, Raleigh, N. C.
1870 ended with 4903, Miss Sue Shackelford, Egypt Station, Miss.
